Tommy: "No, but he's stopped sayin' that it hurts him worse than it does me."

Laying hens frequently are neglected when summer arrives; it is well to continue mash grain feeding during the summer.

GAVE PASSION PLAY IN THIRD CENTURY

First Drama of the Kind Is Credited to Jew.

The first Passion play, such as that at Oberammergau, is said to have been the product of one Ezekiel, a Jew, who, in the Third century, adapted the story of Israel's exodus from Egypt to the Grecian stage. His object wns to arouse the patriotism of his exiled and despondent countrymen and excite in them a hope for the re-establishment of their kingdom in Palestine.

In the Fourth century St. Gregory Nazianzen, bishop of Constantinople, having noticed the effect of the Greek drama upon the people, concluded that the readiest method of extending the church was the dramatic presentation of the sufferings of Christ, which he accomplished in a drama called "The Passion."

When the barbarians made their inroads into southern Europe, and the church began to extend its influence northward into the lands of the Germans, Normans and Saxons, it found great difficulty in coping with the fascination which the heathen festivals and performances exercised. The so lution was the adoption of the festivals, and miracle plays were introduced.

Adapting the drama to the surrounding circumstances, many of the heathen characters, slightly changed, were retained. The play was supplied with humor by the artful caprices of the impersonated devil

Soon after the Reformation the miracle plays began to decline, and now they are performed in only a few places, as in southern Bavaria and the Tyrol. The Passion play of Oberammergau is the most celebrated survival.

In 1633 the flax in the neighborhood of Oberammergau became diseased and unfit for the spindle. To prevent the recurrence of any such calamity, the peasants made a vow that every ten years they would present the sufferings of Christ upon the stage.

The vow was kept until the beginning of the Nineteenth century, when further performances were prohibited The peasants, however, appealed to King Maximilian, who granted permission to renew the celebrations if certain features were removed This was agreed to, and in 1811 the drama, written by Pastor Welse, was first presented devoid of the devil and comic personages.

Since then, save for a brief interruption occasioned by the World war the drama has been given at the usual interval. The gospel story commences with Christ's triumphal entry into Jerusalem, and closes with a scene previous to the ascension

Meeting a Lion in Bed

A Bourges (France) tradesman was drowsing while his assistant was opening the shop below when a great weight suddenly landed on the bed M Cotineau opened his eyes and came face to face with a lion.

Such an unusual sight was enough to upset any peaceable grocer, and we can forgive M. Cotineau for darting under the bedclothes. Strange to say, the suddenness of his movement seemed to frighten the lion, which leaped off the bed and ran into another room.

We may be sure M. Cotineau lost no time in barricading his door Meanwhile the assistant, who had seen the lion enter the shop, ran to the local menagerie, and keepers soon arrived to remove the king of beasts.

Bismuth Meal

One of the drawbacks in the use of X-ray photography in surgery has been that the internal organs do not show upon the plate nearly so boldly as solid parts, such as the bones. This difficulty has been partly surmounted by giving the patient a meal containing a proportion of bismuth an hour or so prior to the operation, according to the Washington Star.

The opacity of the bismuth causes most of the organs to stand out boldly, but even so it is ineffective for certain parts of the human organism such as the lungs. Quite recently, however, a scientific worker discovered that a certain oil, the name of which has not been disclosed, injected a few hours prior to the operation, renders the lung cavities clearly visible.

Illiteracy in India

Although there was an increase of 482,000 pupils and 9,113 recognized educational institutions in India in the school year of 1925 over those of the preceding period, it would require forty years, at the present rate, to enroll all the children into schools, according to recent estimates Only $2,000 of the increase in the number of pupils were above primary school status, and as 90 per cent of the 320,000,000 people in that country are illiterate, the progress of education is shown to be slow.

Conscientious Judge

"Judge Johnston," began Police Judge C. S. Johnston of Stockton, Calif., "you are charged with making a left turn. Guilty or not guilty?" "I'm guilty," replied the judge to himself, "but you see it was like this—" "I know that story," the judge interrupted himself. "The usual fine is $1 for making a left turn, but because you ought to know better it will be $5 in your case." After fining himself Judge Johnston complimented the policeman for citing him to court.

Twenty-five years from now we may be fussing over the American who made a trip to the moon and back.

NOTICE OF DISSOLUTION

To Whom It May Concern:

Notice is hereby given, that the Corporation known as the Farmers Lumber Company of Klemme, Iowa, having sold all of its assets and liquidated all of its liabilities did on the 2 day of July A. D. 1927, by unanimous action of its stockholders, dissolve the corporation.

Dated this 2 day of July A. D 1927.

WM. F. GREIMANN, Jr
President

B. F. GREIMANN,
Secretary

(Publish July 7-14-21-28, 1927)

For Anyone Wanting Cheap, Reliable Insurance—There Is None Better Than—

TOWN MUTUAL Dwelling House Insurance ASSOCIATION

—Of Des Moines, Ia.—

For Particulars See

H. L. SUCKOW, Sr.

Agent Klemme, Ia.

We Serve

Higley's Luxus ICE CREAM

If you want the best in ice cream come in and have one of our delicious Sundaes, or better still, take home a quart of Higley's. All flavors and kept just right with Frigidaire.

SOFT DRINKS

We carry a full line of Soft Drinks, Malt and all kinds o Pop. Buy it here by the bottle or buy the case.

REGULAR MEALS
And SHORT ORDERS

New Cafe

M. O. BARR, Prop.

Farm Loans

5%

Isaac Sweigard

Garner Iowa

PIANOS

Players & Grand New and Second Hand

M. N. ZEIGER

Jewelry & Optical Goods

GARNER, IOWA

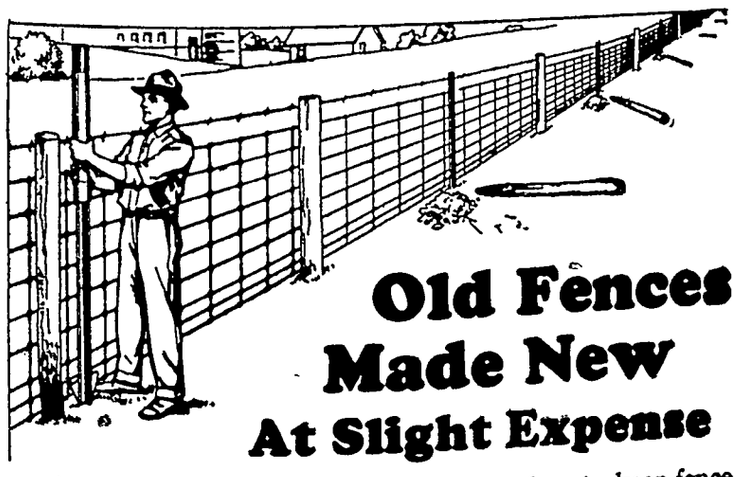
Real Quality Meats Here

It is an assured fact if your meat comes from our shop that it is of the very best, for that is the only kind we sell. You will find here a choice selection of all the fancy and plain cuts—meats that will suit you.

During the summer we especially feature a choice selection of luncheon meats of all kinds—fine for suppers on warm nights—ideal for your picnic lunches.

And, when packing your picnic basket your meal will be better if you have a bottle of our ketchup, some of our pickles, a slice of our good cheese, or other items such as olives, sardines, pork and beans, mustard, and other appetizing foods.

Klemme Meat Market



Old Fences Made New At Slight Expense

IT DOESN'T take much time nowadays to keep fence lines stock-tight and in good repair. Not if you use these quick driven Red Top Steel Posts.

You can drive 20 or 30 Red Tops in an hour. And the fencing is attached in a jiffy so that it will never pull away. This means that you can get a lot of fence repaired even in odd moments.

It's pretty risky business letting fence lines go hang while waiting for a time when work is slack to put them in shape. The damage to stock or crops that can come from just one weak spot may be larger than the entire expense of keeping the fences in good shape. An ounce of prevention is certainly worth while here.

Keep a small stock of Red Tops on hand and get one of these One-Man Drivers. Then when you see a wood post going bad simply drive a Red Top alongside, take out the wood post and fasten the fencing to the steel post. These Red Tops will stop any farm critter you've got on your place.

We personally guarantee Red Tops and we are authorized to make adjustments promptly. Red Tops are not an experiment. They are a proved success and have been giving a good account of themselves in thousands of farm fence lines.

We picked the Red Top line because we believe it is the best value. That's the way we try to buy all lines of goods. We expect our business to grow on the basis of giving you a full dollar's worth for every dollar you spend. Come in and see us when you're in town. Get our prices on posts and the other materials you're needing. Prices are mighty reasonable now on posts and other special items.

Red Top
GUARANTEED
Double Strength Studded Tee
Steel Fence Posts

NORTHERN LUMBER Co.

What's the Answer?

Questions No. 7

1—How is divorce obtained in Soviet Russia?

2—Who said: "Liberty and Union now and forever, one and inseparable!"?

3—Who wrote "The Virginian"?

4—In what countries do the Andes mountains originate?

5—To what two brothers and their sister is the invention of oil painting commonly attributed; what was their nation and country?

6—Who is the intercollegiate tennis champion?

7—What makes a stick seem to bend in water?

8—Why are they called "dog days"?

9—What was the name of the vessel in which Henry Hudson sailed up the Hudson river?

10—Who laid the corner stone of the national capitol and when?

11—What President was elected by the house of representatives?

12—Where did the United States flag first fly in the face of an enemy, and when?

13—What causes a lump in a person's throat?

14—What is the hottest place in the United States?

15—Who is the British open golf champion?

16—What composer was not only a master of dramatic music, but was himself a dramatist of great genius?

17—Which continent, in proportion to area, has the longest coast line?

18—Who wrote a famous diary in shorthand, which was not deciphered for a hundred years?

19—Who said: "Look! There is Jackson standing like a stone wall?"

20—In what country is most of the diamond cutting done?

Answers No. 6

1—Brazil and Argentina.

2—Capt. James Lawrence.

3—Eugene Sue.

4—Babe Ruth, 59 in 1921.

5—A combustible mineral formed by the decomposition of vegetable matter.

6—A twig of hazel or willow said to have the property of indicating the presence of mineral or water in the earth.

7—Benjamin Franklin.

8—1884.

9—Schubert.

10—The Amazon.

11—Commodore O. H. Perry.

12—Rev. James Owen Hannay.

13—The northeastern section, known as the Archaen area.

14—"Uncle Tom's Cabin."

15—Cambridge.

16—William the Conqueror, when he directed that at the ringing of a bell at eight o'clock at night all lights and fires be extinguished.

17—An internal-combustion engine which dispenses with the usual igniting devices by rendering the air charge incandescent by compression.

18—Gen. A. S. Johnston.

19—Plattsburg, N. Y., 1915.

20—North Carolina.

Sport That Requires Nerve and Quickness

Though you may have never heard of this sport under its proper name, the quintain, you may have seen the apparatus described, especially in connection with stories of medieval and later sports in England.

The quintain is an apparatus used in military sport or as exercise by men on horseback. It is simply an upright post with a crossbar at the top that turns on a pivot. One end of this crossbar is flat; to the other end is attached a bag of sand.

The horseman rides at the post, endeavoring to strike the flat end of the crossbar with a lance and pass on before the bag of sand can swing around and strike him on the back.

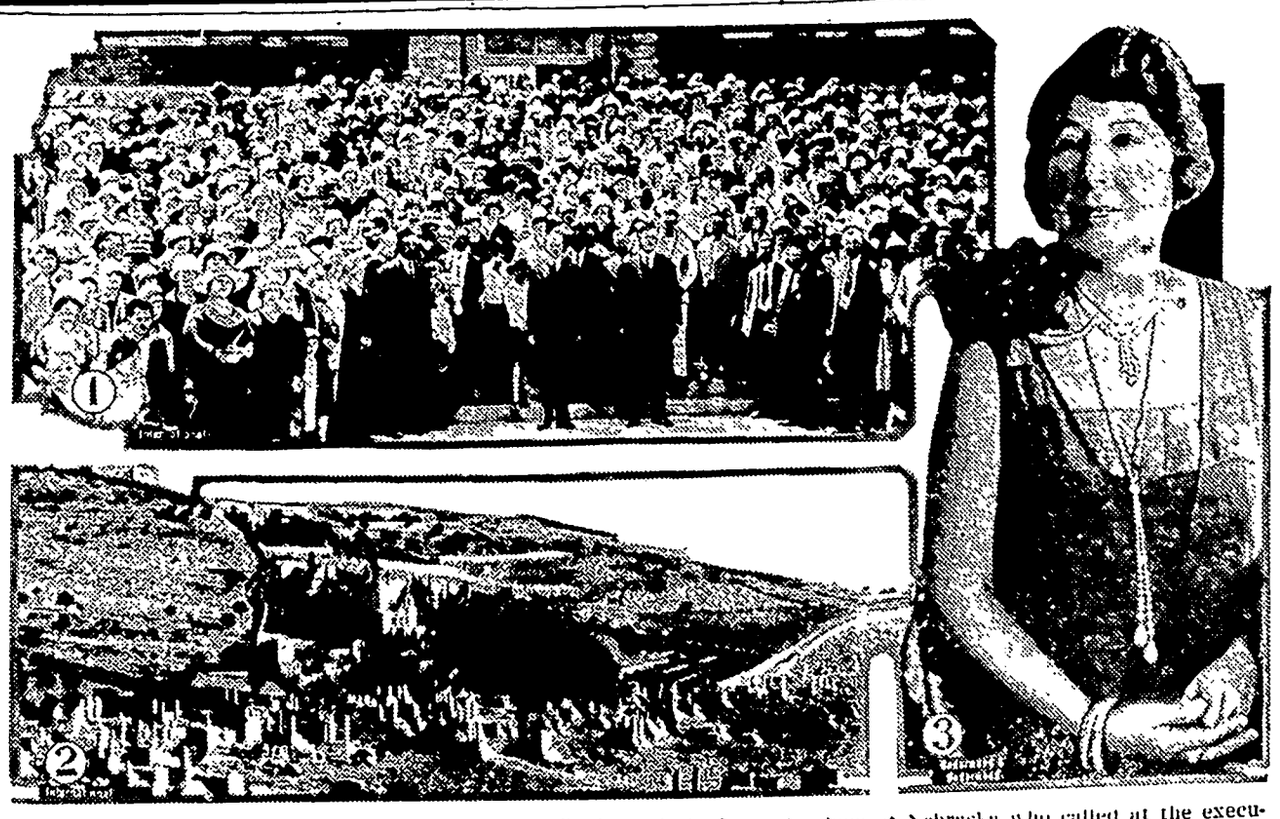
To engage in this sport requires more than an ordinary amount of horsemanship, as well as a quick eye and a steady hand.

Railroad Grades

Any railroad grade of 2 per cent or over is uneconomical. Grade revision has progressed in this country until there are few grades of 2 per cent or over. The Denver & Rio Grande has 12 miles of 2.4 per cent grade westbound from Helper, Utah, to Kyune, Utah, and a 2 per cent grade from Soldier Summit, Utah, to Tucker, Utah, a distance of about fifteen miles.

Use Fish as Illuminant

The candle fish is still being used by the Indians in some parts of British Columbia for illuminating purposes. After catching the candle fish, the Indians place them in a dry, sheltered place and wait till they have shrunken and all the water has evaporated from them. They then set the head or tail of the fish alight and use the carcass as they would a torch There is so much oil in the carcass that it produces a bright, steady flame which burns slowly.



1.—President Coolidge with 700 students of Chadron State Normal school of Nebraska who called at the executive offices in Rapid City. 2.—View of the Mount of Olives, Jerusalem, where great damage was wrought by the Palestine earthquake. 3.—Mrs. Henry R. Rathbone, wife of the congressman at-large from Illinois, who will receive a Carnegie medal for saving a child from drowning at Miami.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Earthquake in Palestine and Transjordania Is Fatal to Hundreds.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

HUNDREDS of men, women and children—perhaps as many as a thousand—were killed in Palestine and Transjordania by the severest earthquake that region has experienced in a hundred years. Thousands were injured and other thousands were rendered homeless. In Jerusalem many famous buildings were seriously damaged, including the Church of the Holy Sepulcher, the Hebrew university, the Dome of the Rock, the Basilica, the Russian church, the Bagdadese synagogue and the government house on the Mount of Olives; but the casualties in the "City of Peace" were few. Elsewhere, especially east and south of the Dead sea, the destruction in towns and villages was almost complete and hundreds of mangled bodies were taken from the ruins of houses. Half of the town of Nablus was utterly wrecked and many inhabitants were killed. It was reported that 300 were dead at Maan, 36 at Amman, 72 at Ramleh and 80 at Ludd. In Jericho there was but one victim, but the Winter Palace hotel collapsed and other buildings were damaged.

British military aviators from Transjordania helped in the rescue of many survivors, and relief work was got under way promptly. Pope Pius, deeply grieved by the catastrophe, sent instructions to the patriarchiate at Jerusalem concerning relief measures. The earthquake was felt in Egypt and caused great alarm but not much damage. On the same day there were severe temblors in Victoria, Australia.

Floods following a cloudburst in the valleys of the Gottleuba and Muglitz rivers, tributaries of the Elbe in Saxony, killed about 200 persons and devastated the valleys, burying the ruins of villages deep in mud. Troops and hundreds of relief workers were rushed to the rescue, the Red Cross leading the expedition and being followed by the communists, the Fascists, the "Steel Helmets" and the rebublican "Reichsbanner" forces, all united for once in the task of extricating and feeding the hapless survivors. The same violent storm that struck Saxony raged along the Alps and Apennines in northern and central Italy, doing vast damage.

KEVIN CHRISTOPHER O'HIGGINS, vice president of the Irish Free State, minister for justice and perhaps the leading man in the government, was assassinated as he was on his way to church in Booterstown, a suburb of Dublin. Three men fired bullets into his head and body and escaped in a motor car. O'Higgins, before his death a few hours later, whispered: "I go as Collins went and as my father went. I die as I have lived—for Ireland. I die at peace with my enemies and with God. I forgive them all."

The brutal murder caused intense indignation, not only in the Free State but throughout the world, and messages of sympathy were received by President Cosgrave from King George, the duke of Abercorn for northern Ireland and many other personages. Eamon de Valera denounced the crime as murder inexcusable from any standpoint and said he was confident the republican organization was not responsible for it. Ten men, all said to be connected with irregular organizations, were arrested, the charge being that as senior officers of secret groups they directed the conspiracy resulting in the assassination. One of the prisoners was a son of Count George Plunkett.

ANOTHER week of debate in the naval limitation conference at Geneva, and no definite results. Great Britain, still striving to maintain her predominance on the seas but not willing that the conference should fail, suggested a compromise solution of the cruiser problem. W. C. Bridgeman, first lord of the admiralty, said if the United States would agree to limit the number of 10,000-ton cruisers to ten each for America and England and six for Japan, he would be prepared to accept the maximum tonnage figures of 400,000 tons fixed by the United States. Mr. Gibson and his colleagues might have reached some agreement with the British with this as a starter, although it was asserted in Washington that our government could not accept Bridgeman's figures. But here the Japanese stepped in with the flat statement that they would not go above 480,000 tons for cruisers and destroyers combined, this being the total for both categories as suggested in the original American plan. Viscount Saito said his delegation was ready to return home without any treaty, and that if the Americans and British could get together, they might as well sign a two-power pact. This, however, did not suit Mr. Gibson at all.

Mr. Bridgeman requested that a plenary session of the conference be held on Thursday. At this he, Mr. Gibson and Viscount Saito again set forth the positions of their respective governments in the matter of cruisers, and there was a formal review of what had been accomplished—if anything.

Talking to the correspondents, Mr. Gibson was optimistic. "We luckily hold a middle position" he said. "The Japanese are in full accord with our original figures and we can get an agreement with the British on increased tonnage totals under consideration. Now it is up to the British and Japanese to get together."

America has not definitely held out for 25 10,000-ton cruisers, Mr. Gibson added.

REPRESENTATIVES of the agriculturists in 15 Middle Western states, attending the Northwest farm conference in St. Paul, voted to support the McNary-Haugen farm relief bill until it becomes law, though they were willing it should be revised to meet President Coolidge's objections.

Drafted by Congressman Charles Brand of Ohio, the resolutions urged that the bill be changed:

To permit the President to select nominees for the federal board to stabilize prices of farm products, instead of having them chosen by farm organizations.

To make the bill general in its application so as to include all farm products, instead of the five specifically named in the bill which Mr. Coolidge vetoed.

MR. COOLIDGE received a call from representatives of the Western Stock Marketing association who presented a plan for extending the co-operative marketing process to the cattle business, and asked government aid in its organization. Extended to the entire Western range, as is suggested, cattle would be manipulated just as the fruit growers of California handle their crops, holding them until they get a certain minimum price. Such an organization would compel the packers to bargain for cattle on the ranches instead of in the Omaha and Chicago markets.

Among other visitors of the week at the summer White House were a large number of members of the National Women's party, just from their meeting in Colorado Springs, who presented to the President their demand for "equal rights for women." The farmers of North Dakota also sent a delegation to tell Mr. Coolidge that they are in favor of the St. Lawrence waterway project and a new diversion of the Missouri river waters through the James river valley and to urge the early completion of those projects.

FRANK O. LOWDEN, whose boom for the Presidential nomination has just received the indorsement of 10,000 residents of Montana, delivered an address before the Wisconsin legislature, and seemed to make an excellent impression. He confined his talk entirely to the problems of agriculture and the necessity for stabilization of prices of farm products. Especially vigorous applause greeted these two parts of the speech:

"What the farmer asks is that he be given the same right to name a price in the first instance and that he be enabled to acquire an organization which will secure to him the same power to maintain that price which other industries through their superior organization now enjoy."

"The federal farm board should be able to empower organizations of farmers to take control of the surplus and to distribute the cost of that operation not only among the members of the co-operatives but among all the producers, whether they are members or not."

HONOLULU is host, for two weeks, of the Institute of Pacific Relations, and 100 leading citizens of ten nations bordering on the Pacific or having especial interests in that ocean are trying to arrive at an understanding of the causes of friction between East and West. The conference is unofficial and the discussions are frank and open, with no germane topics forbidden.

Nearly 50 Americans are present, including Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, president of Stanford university and chairman of the institute; Prof. James T. Shotwell of Columbia university; Robert Dollar, president of the Dollar Steamship company; Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, lecturer of New York; Stephen P. Duggan, director of the Institute of International Education, and Archbishop Edward J. Hanna of California.

EMULATING Oliver Cromwell, Marshal Pilsudsky has executed another coup d'etat in Poland by sending his soldiers into the senate and ordering it to dissolve because it would not pass laws he considered necessary without debating them. Pilsudski had given democratic rule a trial for about ten months but it wasn't satisfactory to him so he has resumed the absolute dictatorship.

PROHIBITION COMMISSIONER DORAN held a conference with his district administrators in Washington and warned them that honest physicians and retail druggists are not to be harrassed in the prescription or sale of liquor for medicinal purposes. Prohibition agents are not expected to practice medicine or pharmacy in the enforcement of the Volstead act, according to Commissioner Doran, who continued that doctors and druggists, as members of responsible professions, should be given an ample opportunity to explain apparently irregular practices before they are subjected to the expense of proceedings to revoke their permits.

WHETHER the two $1,000,000 libel suits against Henry Ford will be settled out of court as a result of his public retraction of and apology for the anti-Jewish articles in the Dearborn Independent is uncertain at this writing, but Aaron Sapiro said he was negotiating a settlement of his action. In Washington there was a mass meeting of Jews called to consider Ford's apology, and eloquent appeals for its acceptance in good faith were made. But a majority of those present preferred to wait and see if Ford's actions conform to his words. So the resolution of acceptance was rejected.

JOHN DREW'S death in San Francisco caused the nation to heave a sigh of regret, for the dean of the American stage was universally beloved and respected. His entire life had been given over to the work of entertaining the public with clean, intelligent and thoroughly artistic acting and he passed away "in the harness" though he had reached the age of seventy-three years. Another capable and popular actor, Gregory Kelly, died in New York after several months' illness.

DR. F. SCOTT M'BRIDE, general superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, has issued a statement saying the league will make every effort to elect a bone dry congress next year, despite the fact that many constitutional lawyers are of the opinion that any modification of the Volstead act would be held unconstitutional by the Supreme court of the United States. "The 1928 campaign," he says, "will be carried into every congressional district. Candidates who are not known friends of the prohibition cause will be opposed, while candidates who are friendly to prohibition will be supported to the fullest extent.

Improved Uniform International

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D.D., Dean, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)
(©, 1927, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for July 24

DAVID AND GOLIATH

LESSON TEXT—I Samuel 17:1-58.

GOLDEN TEXT—The Lord is the strength of my life, of whom shall I be afraid?

PRIMARY TOPIC—A Boy Overcomes a Giant.

JUNIOR TOPIC—A Boy's Brave Deed.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Why David Was Not Afraid.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Victories of Faith.

I. The Contending Armies (17:1-3).

On the north side of the Valley of Elah, on the highlands, stood Saul and his army, and on the south side stood the Philistine hosts, eyeing each other for battle. According to an ancient custom, the Philistines, having a warrior among them of great strength, sought to decide the war by a combat between two selected champions. The nation whose champion was slain was to be subject unto the other.

II. The Champions (17:4-37).

1. Goliath of the Philistines. (a) He was a giant (v. 4), perhaps eleven and one-half feet in height. The appearance of such a man greatly intimidated the Israelites. Saul, who once was brave, made no attempt or effort to meet this giant.

(b) He was filled with proud conceit. His size, his panoply of war, and his strength, caused him to believe that no evil could befall him. His conceit became his snare.

(c) He was boastful. No doubt he was a much-talked-of man among the Philistines. Their possession of such a man recalled the former experience of their nation when Samson, the Israelite giant, wrought such great mischief among them.

(d) He was defiant. He openly defied the army of Israel—the people of the Most High. That is just like the champion of Satan's hosts now. He is becoming more and more defiant of the Lord's people, and ultimately will defy the Almighty Himself.

(e) He was scornful. He treated the Israelites with the utmost contempt. This is what Satan is doing daily. He treats God's people with the utmost contempt.

2. David, the Israelite.

In the providence of God, David was sent to the camp at a time to hear the blatant boasting of this proud and contemptible Philistine champion. His three eldest brethren were in the army, and his father sent him with some provisions for them as well as for the captain. While David was talking with his brothers, Goliath made his appearance. The sight of Israel's cowardice and lack of zeal for God prompted David to offer his services. Note the character of David. (a) A mere youth, a stripling not used to war. (b) He was courageous. When all Israel were afraid, he undertook this task. Besides, he had proven his bravery before in defending his flock against the lion and the bear. (c) He had a mighty faith in God. He argued that what God had done for him He would do again. (d) He had meekness and self-control. This he exhibited in a remarkable manner under the gibes of Eliab (v. 28). (e) He was skillful. He had become such an expert in the use of the sling that he had absolute confidence in the issue of his attack. He was not a blind enthusiast who disregarded the use of means, but was careful to use means, and most particular as to what they should be. He put aside the untried armor of Saul. He knew that God's will for him was to use by faith that which he had thought insignificant. This is God's will for us.

III. The Battle (vv. 38-48).

When Goliath beheld David coming up against him, he cursed him by his gods—Dagon, Baal, and Astarte, showing that it was not merely a battle between David and Goliath, but between true and false religion. David hasted and ran to meet Goliath. The stone from his sling smote Goliath in the forehead and he fell to the earth upon his face. David went forth in the name of the Lord of hosts—that all the earth might know that there was a God in Israel. The whole matter shows that the battle is not with the strong, but with those who put their trust in God.

IV. The Victory (vv. 49-58).

The Philistine champion was killed and the army routed. This victory is a phophecy of a greater one when the devil, the defiant enemy of God and man, shall be slain and his army put to flight. David is thus the type of Christ and Goliath a type of Satan Goliath's sword was turned against himself and typified that Christ shall turn Satan's weapons against him for his own destruction

Milk Hurt by Heat

Recent experiments have disclosed that heat has a detrimental effect on milk as it reduces the amount of soluble calcium contained. Calcium is an important element in the building of new tissue in the young.

Self-Denial

Teach self-denial, and make its practice pleasurable, and you create for the world a destiny more sublime than ever issued from the brain of the wildest dreamer.—Sir Walter Scott.

SHE WENT FROM BAD TO WORSE

Down to 98 Pounds—Feels Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Cleveland, Ohio.—"After having my first baby, I weight, no matter what I did. The doctor told me would be better I had another baby which I did. I got worse, was always sickly, went down to 98 pounds. My neighbor told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it helped her very much I tried it. After taking four bottles I weigh 116 pounds. It has just done wonders for me and I can do my housework now without one bit of trouble."—Mrs. M. Riessinger, 10004 Ne Ave., Cleveland, Ohio.

If some good fairy should appear and offer to grant your heart's desire what would you choose? Wealth? Happiness?

Health? That's the best gift. Health is riches that gold cannot buy. Surely health is cause enough for happiness.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound may be the good fairy that offers you better health.

Humor Found Even in Somber English Jail

Rev. Eustace Jervis, at one time or another chaplain at some of the largest English jails, tells these stories in his book, "Twenty Years in Six Prisons":

There was a very refined but short-looking doctor at one prison. A man who was under sentence of death complained of toothache. He asked the doctor if he would take the tooth out for him. The doctor looked at it sadly for a moment or two, and said:

"Do you really think that life is worth while?"

A wife whose husband was "doing" three years wrote that she would have nothing to do with him when he came out. She said she had met a very nice gentleman, who had taken her and the three children to live with him. They had tea for dinner every night, he took them to the pictures and had bought the children new clothes and boots. She had never been so happy and comfortable and cared for in her life. After bidding him farewell, she signed herself: "Your broken-hearted wife, Cla

Then Papers Noticed Him

William B. Skillman, running for alderman in Brooklyn did not attract much attention from the newspapers and his campaign was not getting anywhere. One day each of the papers received a telegram charging Skillman was living with a woman not his wife. The papers "ate it up." Then an investigation showed Skillman had sent the telegrams himself, signing an assumed name. "Sure, what of it?" said he when accused of the deed. "It's all true. I am living with my mother."—Capper's Weekly.

Bunions

Quick relief from pain. Prevent shoe pressure.

At all drug and shoe stores

Dr Scholl's Zino-pads

Put one on—pain is gone

CHOLERA MORBUS (Summer Complaint)

Food or water may cause diarrhea and stomach cramps. For prompt relief take Chamberlain's Colic Remedy in water. Ask your druggist for this old, reliable remedy today. For trial size, send 4c to Chamberlain Medicine Company, 702 Sixth Avenue, Des Moines, Iowa.

CHAMBERLAIN'S GUARANTEED REMEDY FOR COLIC AND DIARRHEA THE FIRST AID IN STOMACH AC

Deafness—Head Noises RELIEVED BY LEONARD EAR OIL

"Rub Back of Ears" INSERT IN NOSTRIL

At All Druggists Price $1

Folder about "DEAFNESS" on request

A. O. LEONARD, INC., 70 FIFTH AVE., N

Hanford's Balsam of Myrrh

A Healing Antiseptic

Money back for first bottle if not suited. All dea

Keep Stomach and Bowels Right

By giving baby the harmless, pure vegetable, infants' and children's regulator brings astonishing, gratifying results in making baby's stomach digest food and bowels move as they should at teething time. Guaranteed free from narcotics, opiates, alcohol and all harmful ingredients. Safe and satisfactory.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SYRUP

At All Druggists

CARIB GOLD

By ELLERY H. CLARK

WNU Service

Copyright 1926 by Bobbs-Merrill Co.

CHAPTER XIII—Continued

—18—

diately I groped about me with etched hands. On three sides earth; but on the fourth, at about evel of my waist, I encountered space, and for the first time I enced a gleam of hope. Clearly a case of hands and knees, and, Helen to follow, I dropped on all and without the faintest idea ether our venture meant life or I began crawling along the d often read, in old romances, of ysterious charm of underground es, but this was not the kind encountered in books. It was deep in mud and water, which nspleasant enough in itself, and dition to this I began to fear that arth might collapse above us, and ered at the thought of such a fate. ay port in a storm, as the saying nd I felt that whatever we were ced to undergo could be no worse the seemingly certain death we left behind.

ecently, after what appeared like terminable time, but which was, ppose, in reality only a few min- I suddenly encountered solid ahead, and, judging that this mark the end of the passage, I ed above us, pushed upward on wood that met my hands, and the instant clear starlight, never welcome, shone down upon us. econd later we were scrambling up sides of the narrow opening, to ourselves again above the earth, the night air blowing fresh and upon our faces. I knew at once re we were—in the clearing among mangroves where McAllister had to view his treasure, and had ly met his death at the hands of giant ape.

this time it was pitch dark nd us; moonrise was still far off; accordingly we crept back a little nce from the clearing, and, mak- ourselves as comfortable as pos- , proceeded to await developments. now, for the first time, I had a nce to consider our position, and to der whether or not we had bet- d ourselves by our flight. In one , of course, I myself had greatly efited, for I was, at least, still alive. beyond that the outlook seemed lous. I had shown McAllister that as not his nephew; had admitted deceit by running away. Nor was the worst of it, for Helen, through courage and quickness of wit, joined her fortunes irrevocably mine. And how we were now to pe from the island and reach the th of the river, where Barclay lted us, was more than I could he hours dragged on. From the r, to the westward, we could hear, time to time, the sound of low es and the splash of oars. Clearly slaves would attack from that rter also. From the plantation, on east, rose the yelling and shouting e avengers, and presently the light a huge bonfire flared against the , then died away, and darkness n enshrouded the world.

Helen," I whispered, "this tunnel cAllister's last resort—his refuge emergency. That is plain as day. a means of escape from the island, where there's a burrow there must a boat. I'll go to the north, you he south; if you find anything call e, but softly, on your life."

ithout another word we separated, I began groping my way through tangle, but had not gone, I think e than fifty feet when I heard Hel- low call, and, retracing my steps h all possible speed, found her nding by a little inlet in the swamp, le before us, in the darkness, we ld discern the dim outlines of two ts, one a small canoe, the other haps thirty feet long, built on the of a whaleboat, and capable of ing a dozen men. To handle this er craft was, of course, beyond our vers, and accordingly I lost no time launching the canoe through mud slime, until she lay ready at the y entrance to the river. And then, pite the danger, a sudden reckless ught flashed through my mind. treasure chest! Who could fore- the future? The slaves might manently possess and guard the nd. This might be the last chance secure the gold and gems. And , with a hurried whisper to Helen, ed back to the big boat, found the pple in the bow, and, making my y to the familiar spot where I had ed the life of McAllister, I used novel spade to such advantage that hin five minutes I had returned to canoe, and had placed the small heavy chest safely aboard.

nd now I prayed for darkness. But le the whole eastern sky was red with clouds, the moon had so managed to evade them, and con- ed to shed her light upon island river. And presently, as we wait- in a fever of impatience, it became dent that the attack upon the for- s had at last begun. From the ward came a tumult of frenzied utting, the beating of drums, the ck! crack! crack! of rifles and pis- ; while from the mangroves, close hand, fire-tipped arrows soared up- ward, curved and descended upon the roof of the house. To me the course of events seemed plain. The garrison, hopelessly outnumbered, would either be massacred at their posts, or, taking to the tunnel and emerging among the mangroves, would add to the dangers of our predicament. "We must risk it," I cried, and even as the words left my lips, the moon as if in eclipse was suddenly engulfed in cloud. Our chance had come! In an instant we were aboard, had shoved the canoe clear of the mangroves and the next moment had begun our journey toward the sea.

Whether our adventures were ended, or were only just beginning, it was hard to say. Behind us the tumult seemed to have slackened, but whether this meant victory or defeat for McAllister we could not tell. A boat in our path was our greatest dread, and I was so busy peering forward through the blackness that I had no thoughts for anything else until, after twenty minutes of steady progress, and with the mouth of the river near at hand, Helen suddenly stopped paddling, and turned her head. "Hark!" she whispered.

I sat motionless, paddle suspended in midair. Instantly I became aware of the unmistakable sound of oars, and again my heart sank like lead. Up, and then down, had flowed and ebbed the tide of our hopes and fears, and now—to be caught with safety almost in our grasp—it was too much to be borne.

Without a word, we bent to our paddles again with a will, and no longer keeping a lookout for imaginary dangers, we made the canoe fairly boil through the water. And then, all at once, the moon shone forth through a rift in the clouds, and to my horror I heard, behind us, a wild yell from our pursuers. One hurried glance told me all I wished to know; it was the whaleboat, with half a dozen maroons at the oars, and in the bow, rifle in hand, the wizened figure of McAllister. Whole-heartedly I cursed myself for not leaving the treasure.

Only one hope remained. I had agreed to meet Barclay in the evening, and it was now close to daylight, yet if his patience had lasted, and he was still lying off the mouth of the river, all might yet be well. Once more the moon was engulfed in clouds, suddenly effacing our pursuers in the gloom, and a minute later the long, slow heave from the ocean told us that we had passed the limits of the river, and were fairly on the sea.

Presently, not far ahead of us, something loomed faintly through the haze, and for an instant my heart leaped with the belief that it was the longboat, but a moment later, as we drew swiftly nearer, I perceived that it was but one of the many sandy islets that fringed the shore, barren, save for a clump of reeds in the center. Had our pursuers been fewer in number, we might have beached the canoe and taken refuge, for a last stand, in the reeds; but, with a half-dozen assailants, doubtless fully armed, our rifle and our two pistols would scarcely have sufficed. And so, like hares harried by a falcon, we swept out to sea.

Nearer and nearer drew the whaleboat. I could hear McAllister shrieking imprecations, and could imagine that the loss of the treasure must have driven him nearly mad. I felt sure that he was within range of us, and wondered why he did not shoot, until I reflected that if he shot and wounded me, I might, in my struggles, upset the canoe and lose the treasure. Doubtless it was this thought that stayed his hand.

Wild plans darted through my brain. I might stop paddling, poise the chest over the side, and demand our lives in payment for its safety. But how make McAllister keep his word? Plainly a crisis of some sort was close at hand, and in desperation I had laid down my paddle and reached for my rifle, when all at once I heard a hail, and as the moon once more emerged from its dark barrier I saw a sight that I shall never forget—the longboat of the Black Panther shooting out from the cove where it had lain concealed, four men bending their sturdy backs at the oars, and in the stern the familiar figures of Burford and of Captain Barclay.

In an instant the whole aspect of affairs had changed. I imagined, at first, that McAllister would stand and fight, but I think that to his guilty conscience there must have been something terrifying as well as supernatural in Barclay's sudden appearance upon the scene, for almost immediately the bow of the whaleboat swung toward the islet, the maroons putting forth all their strength in an effort to gain the protection of the reeds. Was the stranger among them, I wondered. I could see no sign of him, and suspected (what I found, long afterward, to be the truth) that he, with Bill and Quamino, and three more maroons, had fallen in the attack upon the fortress, thus meeting, by the whim of fate, a tragic death in a quarrel not his own.

A second later the longboat swept alongside of us, and I shall never forget the captain's courtly bow to Helen. Yet this was no time for ceremony. And he said quietly, "Are you with us, Richard? I think we may have need of you."

I did not hesitate—did not answer, even—but sprang at once into the longboat's bow. Even Helen—and I blush to say it—was for the instant a secondary thought. This was a man's fight, and in it I meant to play my part.

A wave of farewell, and we were speeding toward the island. Looking aft, I could see that the captain's gaze never left his quarry, and that his dark face gleamed with exultation. "The Black Panther"—even in these tense and thrilling moments I realized the aptness of the phrase

Nearer and nearer we came until at length our boy found its resting place in the smooth sand. Beside us lay the whaleboat, careened upon its side, as the fugitives had left it. No trace of them was to be seen; only the level sweep of the sand, and a hundred yards away the dark and sinister outline of the reeds, among which our foemen lay concealed. There was no dallying, no delay. So well did Barclay's followers know their savage game that he had no need of wasting words. "Take him alive!" was his one command. Then, out of kindness to an unskilled hand, he assigned me to a place on the left of the line, and told me briefly: "Keep your distance from the man next you; when I give the word to charge, run crouched and leap from side to side. And above all, hold your fire. The light is bad. Cold steel will tell the tale."

Instantly a Bent but Wiry Figure Leaped Forward.

An instant later we were advancing toward the ambush, traversing perhaps half the distance in perfect silence. Then I heard Barclay's trumpet voice, "Charge!" and mindful of his counsel, I bent double, and went leaping, zigzag fashion, up the beach. No sound came from the reeds, and I began to feel a hot resentment, as though they were not giving us a chance for our lives, when suddenly two flashes of flame seared the darkness, and the man to right of me pitched forward, gave a twist or two, and then lay still. On we swept, and had nearly reached the edge of the ambuscade before we got the rest of their volley, almost, as it seemed, in our faces. Sometimes, as I look back upon it, it appears strange that they did not annihilate us; but, on the other hand, fate was against them. For one thing, the light could not have been worse, and they were drawing bead on moving objects, almost as black as the night itself. Moreover, they had already undergone one desperate fight, and had, on top of that, rowed themselves almost to the point of exhaustion, so that their fingers must have been unsteady on the trigger. Again, something, I think, of their leader's panic must have communicated itself to the superstitious blacks. And, last of all, your mercenary, no matter how brave, can never hope to fight like the man who battles for his own hand. In any event, their volley did us little damage, and the next instant they had leaped up from their hiding places and had received our fire in return. And then we closed.

All that followed was blurred and distorted, like an ugly dream. The flash of pistols, the gleam of steel, dark forms meeting hand to hand—it was all bewildering and unreal. I was conscious that Barclay was raging like a lion among the foe; I heard oaths and cries of pain; but, unskilled as I was in such warfare, it seemed as though I should be of small assistance, until finally, more through accident than design, I was drawn into the very center of the fray. Barclay, with his enemy almost within his reach, had struck down the man who guarded him, but the maroon, in his death agony, gripped the captain's foot, and nearly brought him to the ground. Instantly a bent but wiry figure leaped forward, a knife flashed high, and I saw, to my horror, that it was McAllister. I still grasped my empty rifle in my hand, and more quickly than I have ever acted before or since, I clubbed it and dealt McAllister such a blow that it crashed through his guard and sent his knife spinning through the air, my gun stock fairly splintering his skull.

In a fraction of a second Barclay had wrenched himself free, and was bending over his enemy. I was aware of sudden silence about us. The conflict was ended; not one of our adversaries was left alive. Barclay, rising, replaced his knife in his belt and turned to me with a half-rueful shake of his head.

"Richard," he said, "I would that your strength were less. You have both given and taken away. You have saved my life, but you have robbed me of my revenge."

I did not answer him, for now that the fight was over, my thoughts sped swiftly back to Helen. Every moment the light was growing clearer, and I could see that she was paddling swiftly toward the island. Presently Barclay came nearer and laid his hand on my shoulder, and I saw that he too was gazing eastward. A great change had come over his face; he looked like a man awakening from a dream.

"Richard," he said, "I'm glad it's over. For all this time, night and day, I've thought only of revenge. Now we must look ahead. You and your lass are safe; you'll marry, and then bear away to the north'ard. When this trouble with the blacks is over, I'll take charge of the plantation, and treat them as I'd like to be treated in their place. Then there's the treasure—we must get that."

I pointed to the approaching canoe. "It's there," I answered, "and at your service."

His clasp on my shoulder tightened. "I thank you, Richard," he said. "This treasure, then, for me, and for Burford and my men. But I will give you the bearings, and when you come to Straitsmouth, the other chest will be for you and your bride."

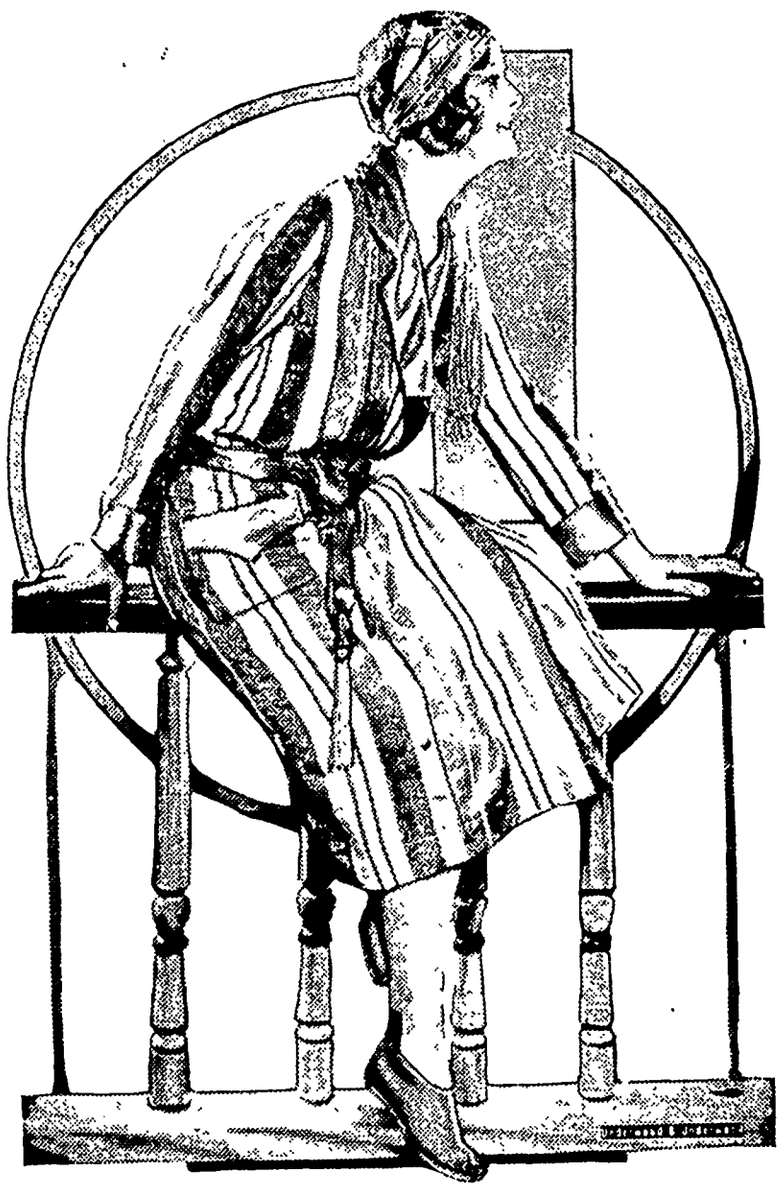
Later I was to appreciate the munificence of his gift, but at the moment I think I hardly understood. For the canoe had almost reached the shore, and I started swiftly down the beach. The night was paling, and to the eastward, far beyond the hills, clouds, tinged with rose, foretold the coming of the dawn.

(THE END)

ABOUT BEACH ENSEMBLES AND MATCHING PARASOLS

WHEN madam or mademoiselle lolls so happily, lazily under her vivid beach parasol or promenades in the warm sands or perhaps prettily poses upon the pier as she does in this picture, she is expected to do so in gorgeous array.

In the selection of her beach robe, be it coolie coat or one of the large new shawl squares, her headgear, her sandals, likewise her bright parasol and gay cushions and all the accoutrement which goes to make up a perfect ensemble, milady of fashion exercises as fastidious taste as she does in the choosing of her most formal and fetching ballroom attire. And when she does just so, behold! a radiant picture of decorative display on the beach, such as this illustration sets forth.



Silk in Vivid Stripes Popular.

For this "useful as well as ornamental" beach robe striped khaki kool is the preferred medium. The cap is also of this Romany-striped material.

At every step of the way along this sandy shore one meets these sirens of the sea clad in spectacular beach array. Among the most popular beach coats which affect the picturesque in color are many of smart linen crash dashingly printed, then bordered by way of contrast with black satin.

Of all the interesting beach styles none are perhaps more interesting, at least from the point of novelty, than are the capes and coats made of heavy unbleached muslin, decorated to simulate hand-painting For instance an artful all-enveloping cape with scarf ties at the throat is bordered to a considerable depth with a huge colorful fish and seashell design.

This new fashion of hand-painted unbleached muslin for resort wear bids fair to assume the proportions of a widespread vogue before the summer is past. One can make such clever coolie coats of the muslin, painting them as amusingly and gorgeously gay as one chooses.

Gingham, too, is receiving its share of notice for beach apparel and bathing suits. Cretonne, also, continues to enliven the beach style, as it appears made up in robes, parasols, headwear, neckwear, footwear, gloves, handbag, parasol, jewelery, boutonnierre and other items down to the minutest detail. Especially is this so, since fashion has become so arbitrary on the subject, accepting as an evidence of correct dress, nothing less than a perfectly appointed—a unified ensemble.

This demand for harmony in dress has resulted in a genuine "get together" spirit among coutourier, milliner, bootmaker, jeweler and others who contribute to the costuming of the fair sex. It is quite the proper thing to buy one's silk hose at one's favorite bootery, in order to insure a perfect match to one's slippers, and as likely as not the salesman will insist on showing you a handbag made of the selfsame leathers as the shoes you are considering.

This summer, matching parasols have especially entered into the scheme of things. Maybe it is a sunshade of scenic print silk to match the scarf and hat which milady chooses to perfect her ensemble such as is shown in this picture.

Parasols and Other Accessories.

The latest is for handbag and parasol to show some relationship, perhaps in color, perhaps in material. Snakeskin trimmings are finding their way into the realm of woman's fashions most successfully. A new idea is the snakeskin handbag, with an interworking of the snakeskin in an accompanying umbrella. The illustration shows clever parasol and handbag sets, such as would add smartness to the street costume. Often a belt of snakeskin accompanies a parasol and handbag trimmed with the same.

Ribbon plays an important part in relating the hat to the parasol in that the identical kind used to trim the former also borders the latter. Ombre grosgrain ribbon is mostly favored for this.

JULIA BOTTOMLEY.

(©, 1927, by Western Newspaper Union.)

Pike Long Noted for Hunger and Voracity

The pike is the hungriest and the fiercest of fishes. Fish, flesh and fowl seem alike acceptable to its palate, and it does not disdain mineral products; rings, spoons and other similar articles have been frequently taken from its maw.

Four English boys went to bathe in Inglemere pond, near Ascot, England. One of them, who shall be called Henry, walked into the water to about the depth of four feet, when he spread out his hands and tried to swim. At that instant a large fish came up and took the whole hand in its mouth, but finding itself unable to swallow it relinquished its hold, and the boy, turning round, prepared for a hasty retreat. His companions, who saw the fish, scrambled out of the pond as fast as possible.

Henry had scarcely turned round before the fish came up behind, and, seizing his other hand crosswise, inflicted some very deep wounds on the back of it. The lad raised his free hand, which was still bleeding, and stuck the great fish a hard blow on the head, when it disappeared. The other boys took him to a surgeon, who dressed seven wounds in one hand, and so great was the pain the next day that the lad fainted twice. The little finger was bitten through the nail and it was more than six weeks before it was well.

Blindness No Handicap

In spite of total blindness caused by a gun accident, Henry Fawcett rose to high positions in British public life. He was born in Salisbury in 1833. At the age of thirty-two he entered the house of commons where his ability and devotion to worthy causes soon made him a prominent and influential member. In 1880 he became postmaster general in the government of Mr. Gladstone, and during his term of office he brought about many improvements in the postal service. He died in 1884.

Algonquin Indians

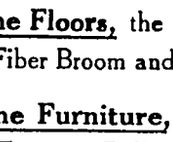
The Sauk and Fox Indians are both of the Algonquin tribe. Sauk is translated "people of the yellow earth," in contradistinction from "red earth people," a name of the Foxes. Their own name for themselves is "red earth people," because of the kind of earth from which they are supposed to have been created.

Coal

We have filled our bins with all kinds of Coal. We can supply you with Threshing Coal at reasonable prices. Now is the time to put in your supply of Furnace Coal for the winter. High grade coal for ranges, too.

Twine

We still have some Twine on hand at the low price for cash of, per pound—



13½c

FEED

We have plenty of Oil Meal and Tankage on hand. Our grinder works every day if you want oyur own feed ground here.

Klemme Co-Operative Grain Co.

Fuller cleaning sets lighten your work.

A Fuller Set may be had for every cleaning purpose.

Handy Brush

Furniture Polish

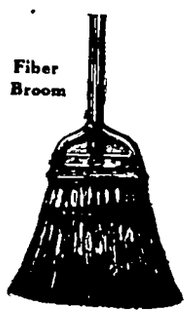
For the Floors, the Fuller Dry Mop, Wet Mop, Fiber Broom and Push Broom.

For the Furniture, the Fuller Furniture Brush, Furniture Polish and Tan Duster.

About the House, the Fuller Window Brush and Dryer, Radiator Brush, Wall Brush Utility Brush.

Dry Mop and Duster

Kitchen Set, Fuller Stove Set, Dish Mop, Handy Brush, Scouring Mop, Sink Brush, Pastry Brush.



Fiber Broom

I am the Fuller Man in your community and will call on you soon. I am particularly anxious to get your opinion of the two newest Fuller Products, Furniture Polish and Push Broom.

CLAUDE DEBORD
Garner, Iowa

Threshing Coal

Now is a good time to lay in your supply of Coal for Threshing.

We have our coal bins filled with a high grade of coal especially suited for your needs at threshing time—and the price is right on our coal.

We always carry a complete lne of all kinds of coal. Right now we are also featuring high grade coal for kitchen ranges.

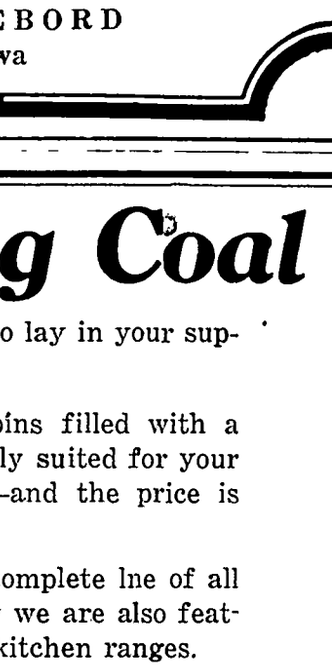
A full line of all kinds of feed on hand.

North Iowa Grain Co.

Only $5.00 down and a LIBERAL ALLOWANCE on your old cleaner!

THIS double offer places this splendid product within reach of everyone. The balance can be paid on the easiest of easy payment terms.

The Premier Duplex is worthy of a place in the finest home. It cleans by double action—powerful suction plus a motor driven brush. It needs NO OILING for both motor and brush turn on ball bearings



Premier Duplex

Central States Electric Co.

News of Klemme and Vicinity

Dr. R. W. Specht, Dentist, Garner, Iowa. adv

Mr. and Mrs. John Terhufen were visiting at Mason City Thursday.

L G Gimer was at Garner Saturday evening on business.

Ruth Wellemeyer spent a day last week with Marie Stille on the farm.

Henry Buseman and family were Garner visitors Saturday night.

Dr. D. P. Anderson was at Mason City yesterday afternoon on business.

Mrs. Gilbert Schaper is back at the Kluckohn store after enjoying a vacation visiting in Wisconsin.

Jay Griggs and family are riding around in a new Star Coach, purchased last week.

Mr. Ben Swalve left Tuesday in his car for Freeport, Illinois, for a visit with relatives and friends.

Ralph Ludeke and family were at Garner Saturday evening on business.

Arnett, son of G G. Wadingahm, broke his arm near the elbow this week.

Henry Josten went to Cherokee Tuesday for an operation for cancer on his lip.

Mrs Lena Schroeder visited all day at the Albert Barz home Thursday.

Isaac Sweigard, of Garner, was in Klemme on business Monday afternoon.

George and Verner Christie of Goodell were Klemme visitors last Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs John Christians are enjoying a visit from their son, John of Chicago.

The Misses Stella Bock and Adella Kuhlman went to Mason City Friday for a visit with Edwin Bock at the hospital.

This vicinity was visited by a nice shower of rain Saturday morning, A good, soaking rain would do a lot of good right now

Mr and Mrs. Hans Hanson and Ruby returned last Sunday from Minneapolis where they had been visiting relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. T. F Mitchell, of Swea City were visitors at the C. F Keraus and C. G. Waterman homes Sunday.

Rev. Grosshuesch took his little daughter, Gertrude to the hospital at Mason City yesterday to have her tonsils removed.

W C Kerause and family and Clarence Kluckhohn and family enjoyed a picnic dinner on the shore or Clear Lake Sunday.

A. D. Gimer and family and Clarence Johnson and family enjoyed a picnic supper at Clear Lake Sunday evening.

Mrs P M Wilson underwent an operation at the Rochester hospital Saturday morning Reports are that she is geting along nicely

Mrs John Bock is staying with her son, Edwin, at the Mercy Hosp'tal for a few days He is getting along nicely.

Berna Holetz left Tuesday for her home at Garner, after visiting for a week with her aunt, Mrs. Lloyd Lau Mr. and Mrs Lau took her home in their car Tuesday evening.

Louis Prochaska, of Los Angeles, California came Sunday in his car for a visit with his sister, Mrs C F. Keraus and husband. He intend to remain here for some time.

Mr. F W Dingman is working in a barber shop at Crystal Lake this week. Last week he worked in a shop at Britt, and the two weeks before that at Ventura

The Times is in receipt of a card from Sam Harvey stating they were on the Canadian side viewing Niagra Falls July 13. They left Klemme the morning of the 10th, so have made good time. Sam and family expect to visit his folks at Bloomfield, N. J. for a month or more.

"Jack" Wellemeyer returned Saturday from Des Moines where he has been for about six weeks taking a course in embalming and funeral directing Edwin Bock underwent a major operation at the Mercy Hospital at Mason City Thursday, for stomach trouble. we understand Edwin is getting along nicely.

Mrs A. W. Gauger, Miss Marie Burke and Mrs R. A. Jorgenson and son, Buster, called on Mrs. C. A. Arnold and Miss Minnie Lenz Wednesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Musfelt and Mrs Hattie Lanahan enteretained for Sunday dinner at the Musfelt home George Musfelt and family, Dewey Rice and family and Mr. and Mrs Oscar Musfelt, all of Clarion.

Leslie Smock and family have moved to Austin, Minnesota, where Mr Smock will work in the packing plant Clark Bredbenner took a load of household goods up for them Sunday in his truck

Loraine, six year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Stille, returned home from the hospital at Mason City Thursday, where he had been receiving treatment for lock-jaw. He is now making a good recovery.

Mrs Clarence Arnold celebrated her birthday Tuesday by inviting Mr and Mrs Harry Gibbs and children, Mrs. Asa Gibbs and Annis and Mrs Emma Gibbs to her home to eat ice cream and cake

C. G Waterman, Rev A W. Gauger and family, Miss Marie Burke and R. A. Jorgenson and family all enjoyed a swim and a picnic supper at Clear Lake Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs John Day and son, Dorance, left early Thursday morning for Watertown, South Dakota, for a few days visit at the Fred Skow home Tuesday they visited at Lake Park, and returned home to Klemme last evening.

Tom Blank had three ribs broken on his left side last Thursday when he was helping unload ties at the railroad yards A tie fell out of the car against his side, causing the accident Tom's side is rather painful but he manages to get around.

Mr and Mrs Emil Krause and daughter, Arlene, left Monday on a month's vacation. Mr Krause s taking a lay-off from his duties as cream hauler and G Gobeli's son is hauling for him Mr. Krause has not been well of late and a vacation may be of great benefit to him They left for Minneapolis from here to consult a specialist, and from there they will go to South Dakota fro a visit with relatives.

CAMP FIRE NOTES

On Friday evening a Camp Fire meeting was held at the home of Leona Poort. The whole evening was spent in planning for our week's vacation at Clear Lake. We are planning on goig July 31st.

Our ext meeting will be a council fire at the home of our guardian, Marie Blank, on Julyy 22. We are going to take in some new members and a few of the girls are to become Wood Gatherers.

DR. ZINN TO PRACTICE

Dr. Zinn, who the past y taken a sort of vacation f practice of modicine in Klem nounces that he again will b office every day and will an calls both day and night

Dr. Zinn has been activily ed in looking after his farm year and had to temporarily the greater part of his prac only attended to a few office the evening

BAYSIDE

AMUSEMENT PARK
—Clear Lake, Iowa—
— PROGRAM —

SUNDAY, JULY 24th

North Iowa Band, Free Moving Pictures and Out-door Attractions, Ball Game at Three O'clock, Fun Features.

MONDAY NIGHT, JULY 25th

Big Fight, 30 Rounds by Headliners and Admission less than half the usual price.

DANCES

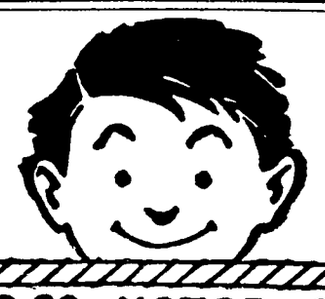
At Bayside on Wednesday and Friday Nights. At White P on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday nights.

ROLLER SKATING at Bayside Daily.

AT BAYSIDE—Best bathing beach on Lake bath house, toboggan slide, roller coaster, little train, new dance house, merry-go-round, ferris wheel, fortune teller, concessions, free picnic grounds and tables, children's playgrounds, boating, fishing.

FUN FOR ALL ALL FOR FUN

— Policed Parking Grounds For Cars 15c —



EN-AR-CO MOTOR OIL

NOT ALL DUMBELLS ARE SILENT—

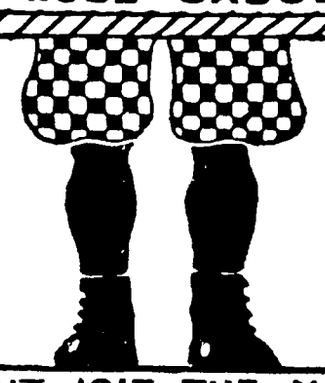
Before you hear grinding in your Transmission or Differential, fill up wth En-Ar-Co Gear Compound. Then notice the difference

E. F. Jacobs

"Your Farm Service Hardware Store"
The best of everything at the right price.

WHITE ROSE GASOLINE

EN-AR-CO GEAR COMPOUND



COPYRIGHT 1917 THE NATIONAL REFINING CO. CLEVELAND, OHIO

INCOMPARABLE

Tire Values

We will not back down a single inch in our assertion that we are offering incomparable values in standard make tires. Compare them with what other dealers are offering and then decide for yourself.

HOT WEATHER

The Old Tire's Worst Enemy Is With Us

Why use inferior grade tires when you can buy Firestones at practically the same price?

Mr. Successful Business Man or Farmer, do you make a practice of paying $2.00 for an article that your competitor or neighbor buys for $1.00.

Think this over. Think seriously about this tire business.

Garner Auto Company

Firestone Tires
Mobile Oils

Phone 92, Garner
Phone 77, KLEMME, IOWA.

THE KLEMME TIMES

ty-ninth Year—Number 50. KLEMME, IOWA, THURSDAY, JULY 28, 1927.

OPS DAMAGED BY HIL STORM HERE

INJURED ON SEVERAL FARMS NEAR HERE

Causes Complete Loss South And East Of Klemme

uring the severe storm which t this vicinity Sunday several near Klemme suffered greatly hail ruined fine crops of small and corn ll practically wiped out crops ain and corn on several farms and east of Klemme. The suffering the heaviest loss he A. R White farm, Lippo 's farm, Albert Johnson farm, les Fritzell farm. U G. Smid and Albert Barz farm. Other by farms also were hit by the e hail storm but did not suffer eat a loss. Crops, or portions ops on the places mentioned are tealy wiped out Samples of brought in from Fritzell's place beaten by the hail to such an t that it looked like it had run through a threshing ma- The corn on hese farms was ly stripped of leaves. Other y farms show evidence of the by the stripped appearance of orn.

e storm was narrow and came the south But little hail fell of town.

tside of the hail area the rain most welcome and during the e of an hour approximately 3 s of rain fell which is of real it to the corn fields and the es, as well as the garden lots wns.

"THAT SETTLES IT"

ute knowledge have I none, y aunt's washerwoman's son a policeman on his beat a laborer on the street he had a letter just last week written in the finest Greek a Chinese coolie in Timbuctoo said that a son in Cuba knew colored gent in a Texas town a man in Klondike says he knows a gang of unwashed Eskimos some feller in Borneo knew a man who claimed to know n' who lived beside a lake e mother-in-law will undertake ore a friend's sister's niece ated in a nicely written piece he has a son who knows about ate the new Ford car comes out'

—Author good, but unknown.

SERVICES AT METHODIST CHURCHES SUNDAY

re will be no services at either Klemme or Liberty Methodist n Sunday, as the pastor and mily are attending the Bible ence at Lake Okoboji this

Find 8,631 Lime Deposits

e farmers need not deny their mestone because the state has tage of the raw material, for different outcroppings of it been located in Iowa, according ormation at Iowa State Coll- In addition to the large quar- the state which furnish lime e on land. many farmers who limestone deposits on their have secured small pulveriz- n 1926, there were 152 small zers in operation in the state

Junior Dairy Judges Lose

Junior dairy cattle judging from Clayton County, which e championship of the United last fall, was defeated July highest international honors English team. The Iowa jun- ere beaten by 12 points. This second time Iowa has repre- the United States in the in- onal contest in Englad. The eam two years ago from County won the English

A GREAT COMEDIAN

That Will Rogers should be able to keep up his funny remarks while suffering from gall stones and an anything-but-humorous surgical operation shows that our heroes are not all flying over the seas in airplanes Major operation is no laughing matter We all are happy to know that he is recuperating nicely and that he will continue to spread the sunshine of smiles There is probably no other individual in the world today who brings mirth to the hearts and smiles to the lips so easily and generously as Will Rogers, who has a daily comment on the affairs of the world in several hundred of the best newspapers in the country.

It's sense, hard sense, that makes Mayor Will Rogers, cowboy comedian and grinning philosopher, a great comedian Rogers is widely quoted because all his best comedy is based on common sense and keen observation or both He throws on high places the light of shrewd and deliberately homely philosophy It's his own sensible nonsense and his own shrewd observation, too His "gags" are far more than mere jokes

Will Rogers has done many extraordinary things He has been an ardent worker in the Red Cross relief fund He put on a great many benefits, one of which netted $40,000 in itself

There is certainly no more popular writer, actor and humorist in all America than Mayor Will Rogers of Beverly Hills

ESTATE TRANSFERS

A Weekly Review Of Sales And Trades In Property

Ernest C Henschen wife to Wm Ferleman W D, date 7-18-27, $1.00 Lots 6-7-8-9 block 5 Park addition Garner.

Henry W. Ley wife to Nellie E. McCullough W. D date 10-7-19, $1.00, lot 4 block 9 Garner

Trade Name Fannin Service Station, Britt Owners C O Brewster, Britt, Iowa

Geo. McCleery to E C Henschen. W. D date 4-21-1904, $100 00, lots 6-7 block 5 Park addition Garner.

Henry M Jensen wife to Thov Thovson. W. D, date 7-13-27, $14, 400 00, S½ of SW¼ and S½ of N ½ SW¼ 11-97-23

H K Drake wife to Hancock Co Easement date 7-15-27, $25 00. .05-100 acres in Sec 9 Bingham twp

L A. Andrew, Receiver's Deed, date 7-7-27, $1 00, SE50 ft. of lots 1-2-3-4 block 4 and 23 ft. x 80 ft. in SE cor ot 1 bock 5 and Receiver's int in lot 2 block 5 and lots 5-6-7 block 4 Orig Corwith.

E. P. Hanson, Sheriff to Winnebago County State Bank. Sheriff's deed date 7-16-27, $14,717.16 N½ of SW¼ and NW¼ SW¼ 12-97-24.

COPS TRAIL MOVIE STARS

Cops are seldom conceded to be human or to react to human emotions. There were some, however, who got a real "kick" out of their careers as motion picture actors in Samuel Goldwyn's "Partners Again —with Potash & Perlmutter," directed by Henry King, and which is the United Artists release coming next Tuesday and Wednesday, August 2 and 3 to the Lyric Theatre at Garner, Iowa.

They were real motorcycle officerhs, whose work was mainly a wild pursuit or two of the arguing partners while the latter were demnostrating the Schenckmann Six, the automobile they were "distributing" i nhtis new Montague Glass screen story.

The Schenckmann Six is far from a perfect automobile. It has its shortcomings of various kinds But during a hectic demonsrtation by the partners, neither of whom may lay claim to mechanical genius, the car, purely by accident, develops a tremendous spurt of speed It wouldn't be fair to tell you juts what happened to the car to cause this wild ride, but it gave the cops a job, all right. 1tc

STOCK SHIPMENTS TAKE SUDDEN CLIMB

NINE CARS OF LIVE STOCK IN SATURDAY SHIPMENT

An Exceptionally Large Shipment For This Time Of Year

Nine car loads of live stock is an exceptionally large shipment, but that is the number of car loads that left the Klemme yards Saturday evening over the Rock Island for the Chicago markets

The Linden Ranch shipped two car loads of cattle, C O Adams also shipped two car loads of cattle C A Larsen shipped two car loads of hogs and one car load of cattle Joe Johnson, manager of the local shipping association shipped two car loads of hogs

The entire shipment went to Chicago, with the exception of one car load of hogs which Larsen shipped to Iowa Falls

We believe the Saturday night shipment was a record breaker for this time of the year and we would like to hear of any other town in Northern Iowa that had as many or more car loads of sock Saturday

Klemme has gained a name as being the best live stock market in this part of the state The amount of stock shipped out of here is proof for our claim

Business Man Returns From Visit In Ohio

Mr Henry Jost, manager of the North Iowa Grain Company, returned Saturday from his visit at Toledo where he was called by the serious illness of his mother the week before Mr Jost reports that his mother was much improved when he left Mr Jost took a different route when he came home and his trip took him through six states besides Iowa He says that the crops in the state of Iowa were far ahead of the other states this year and that they lookedt he best of any saes he rayeled through

The Home Runners

Pitchers have license to embarrassment when the batting order of Ruth, Gehring, Meusel and Lazzeri confronts them This quartet of home-wreckers would break up any combination With this stretch of run-getters on one team there s little hope in walking a man

KICKED BY MULE FRACTURED LEG

BOY BADLY INJURED WHEN KICKED BY MULE

Kenneth Bell's Leg Broken As Result Of Accident Monday

Kenneth Bell's left leg was boken just above the ankle about noon Mondayw hen he was kicked by a mule.

Kenneth was helping his father, Wm Bell, farmer southeast of Klemme, with the noon chores and was feeding some of the stock. He was ready to feed the muels and carried in a basket of feed to them and came into the barn between the mules The animals are of a nervous disposition and it is thought they became frightened when Kenneth walked between them with a basket, as they were not customary to being fed in that manner. One mule reared up and when he came lown his front hoofs struck Kenneth's leg His cal's for help were heard by carpenter's working on the place who dragged him away form the mules and possibly saved him from further injury He was rushed to Klemme and the local doctors set the limb He is suffering a lot of pain but is getting along as well as can be expected at this time.

McGREGOR PEOPLE WILL GO TO BAYSIDE PARK SUNDAY

The visitors at Bayside Amusement Park, Clear Lake, Iowa, next Sunday, July 31st, will include many people from northeastern Iowa. An excursion from McGregor to Bayside will be run on the Milwaukee railroad next Sunday. Those on the excursion will arrive at Bayside about 11:30 a m The band, which will play popular concerts afternoon and evening, at Bayside Park, will come on the excursion. The Winneshiek County Giants from Decorah, one of the best semi-pro teams in the state, will play the Mason City O-P team at Bayside's ball park commencing at three o'clock. A great game is expected and fans are urged not to miss this particular game. Sunday Bayside is looking for a big crowd to entertain. Another fight will be staged at Bayside Park on Monday night, August 1st. A number of heavy-weights will btatle for thirty rounds. The admission price will be one-half the usual scale elsewhere.

PLAN LIVESTOCK EXPOSITION

Iowa is expected to break all records this summer by staging the largest livestock exposition ever seen at any state fair in America, according to advance predictions which were made this week by officials of the 1927 Iowa State Fair.

Already indications are that champion herds from all corners of the United States, numbering fully 6,000 animals, will be shown at the coming State Fair. Livestock premiums alone at the fair this season will total more than $87,000. The above view shows a few of the champion draft horses, which won blue ribbons at the fair at Des Moines last summer.

HIGHWAY BUILDING

More than one-sixth of public revenue goes for road building During the fiscal year 1924-25 highway construction and maintenance cost the nation nearly a billion and a half dollars. The rate of expenditure is mounting with every year, notwithstanding the large mileage of permanently improved roads previous outlays represent.

There has been a gradual conversion of the public to the wisdom of spending money for good roads. Ten or fifteen years ago, proposals for road bond issues were opposed in the rural districts on the ground that the usefulness of paved highways was confined principally to wealthy automobile owners from the cities Now that nearly every farmer has an auto, we seldom hear this argument, though a division still exists over the relative claims of main and lateral roads. In most cases, however, the only question really considered pertinent is how much the tax payers can afford to contribute.

Return From Southwestern Trip

Paul Stille, Orville Bridges and Elmer Beier returned Monday from ttheir trip to the wheat fileds of Western Nebraska and Colorado They were away from Klemme three weeks, of which time they worked two weeks, the balance of the time they drove. While in Colorado the men visited with Paul's folks and found everybody well and happy. They also found time to drive up into the mountains while in Colorado. The men enjoyed their trip and enjoyed the experience in the wheat country They said there were more men than jobs and that many men followed the harvesting from the south and would continue until the close of the season in Canada every year.

SPRING ALFALFA SEEDING BEST SAYS AMES MAN

Will Produce More Hay The Next Season; Is Also Better

Seeding alfalfa in the spring with a nurse crop has proved to be cheaper, more certain to make a stand and produces a heavier crop of hay the following season than summer or early fall seedings. Such are the results of experiments conducted at Iowa State College.

It is possible, however, in some seasons to procure a good stand of alfalfa by seeding the cropal one in the late summer. Much depends on the amount of moisture in the soil and the preparation given the seed bed.

If alfalfa is seeded in the spring with oats or some other small grain nurse crop, the working of the ground will suffice both for the small grain and alfalfa, thereby greatly reducing the cost of putting in the alfalfa. Also, there is generally more moisture in the spring to start the alfalfa If the oats are sown lightly, not more than two bushels to the acre, and cut in the milk stage for hay, they will not greatly interfere with the alfalfa.

F. G.Churchill and E. S. Dyas extension crops men, have found in their experience with farmers thruout the state that it is generally not safe to sow alfalfa later than the first of September and that sometime in August is usually best if spring seeding cannot be made.

They say that a growth of 6 to 8 or 10 inches is essential before freezing weather arrives in order to insure that the crop will winter satisfactorily. August seedings may be made on land from which there has been taken a small grain crop such as early oats or winter wheat, on land from which a clover crop has been taken or on a piece which has been summer fallowed.

A good seed bed, well worked down, which is fine on top and firm beneath, is one of the prime essentials of a successful summer seeding, Churchill and Dyas say. They also urge drilling the summer seeding, but if it must be broadcast, they say to sow both ways to insure an even distribution of seed

TIGERS TIE GAME WITH BELMOND 6-6

TIGERS PUT UP GOOD GAME AT BELMOND SUNDAY

Will Play Meservey-Thornton Team Here Next Sunday

A double header was played at Belmond Sunday when Goodell defeated Renwick 5 to 1 for the first game and Belmond and Klemme put on an eight inning tie game 6 to 6 which was called oc on account of rain The Tigers were going great toward the end of the game and chalked up three runs in the eighth frame, and also one in the seventh.

The Klemme sluggers got their share of the long ones when Lemke soaked the horsehide one three base hit and another good for two, while Smith also put one out in the field for three sacks. Dillan of Belmond was the only other batter to get a more than one sacker as he clouted out a two-base hit too.

Following is the box score of the game and a summary of high spots during the game:

Belmond

Pos.	AB	R	H	E
H. Johnson, 1b.	4	0	0	0
D McNulty, 3b.	2	2	1	0
B. Dillan, l. f.	4	2	2	0
J Chapman, p.	4	0	0	0
C.S tudebaker, s. s.	4	1	0	0
P. McNulty, c.	3	1	1	0
J Johnson, 2b.	3	0	2	1
H. Bowler, c. f.	2	0	0	2
N. Packard, r. f.	2	0	0	0
Totals	28	6	6	3

Klemme Tigers

Pos.	AB	R	H	E
W Lemke, 1b.	4	1	3	0
E. Smith, 3b.	5	2	2	0
B Greimann, c. f.	4	0	0	0
E Lau, c	4	0	1	1
H. Leitzinger, s. s	4	0	0	0
O. Stokesbary, 2b.	4	1	1	0
M. Brinkman, r. f.	4	0	1	0
G Lau, l. f	3	2	1	0
H. Willer, p.	3	0	2	1
V. Turgasen, p	1	0	0	0
Totals	36	6	11	2

Score by innings:-

Belmond: 0 2 2 0 0 0 2 0 x—6
Klemme 0 0 1 1 0 0 1 3 x—6.

Summary:-

Two base hits: B. Dillan, W. Lemke. Three base hits: W. Lemke, E. Smith. Double plays: Studebaker to P. McNulty to D. McNulty; and Stokesbary to Smith. Bases on balls off Chapman: none; hit by Chapman, 3. Bases on balls off Willer 2, Turgasen 1. Hit by Willer 2 Struck out by Chapman 10, Willer 8 Wild pitch: Willer 2. Left on bases Belmond 6, Klemme 7 Umpire, Punke. Time 1:52.

A combination team composed of players from Meservey and Thornton will play the Tigers here Sunday, July 31st. This promises to be a fast game.

Calendar Reform

Thirteen leading Americans, we are told, have ratified the plan for a year of 13 months, each consisting of four weeks. It would be a sensible change. It would stabilize business accounting and anchor a number of dates which now float about. But there are some who view the proposed reform with misgiving—tenants, for instance. They find 12 rent days trying enough without taking chances on the dubious number, 13.

On Wings Of Love

Two Connecticut girls served as bridesmaids at two different weddings in two cities 175 miles apart within three hours of one another It was plane sailing. After the first knot was tied they hopped into an airship and were gayly on the way to the next engagement. Next thing we know some couple will be married over mid-ocean in a flight to Paris, with a divorce in waiting at the end of the jump.

The three greatest causes of loss in the dairy business are poor cows, improper feeding and management.

"On to Paris!"

1. CHAMBOURD—Madame Mathilde Coupeu, the Washerwoman of Chambourd. It was Madame Coupeu who paddled out hundreds of shirts and socks and suits of underwear for hundreds of American soldiers who passed through Chambourd on their way to the Front. She's standing on a ladder which points to the temporary abode of those hundreds of men.

2. ONLY ON FOOT MAY THEY CROSS—Such is the warning to the approaches of the Arch de Triomphe in Paris. Americans in the French capital for the American Legion convention must heed this warning, too. There are plenty of "pieton" signs which are being erected for their benefit. "A pieton" is a person who does an "alles a pied," in other words, a person of either sex who goes on foot. "Pieton" signs are near the Arch de Triomphe and request the visitor to "Traversee de la Chaussee," or go across on their shoes. "Allons! Pietons! And make it snappy no matter how much your 'old dogs' are fretting."

3.—ROMAGNE—Abbe Ernest Decourtier, Cure of the church at Romagne-Sousmont Fauoom. The road to the right, following the direction of the arrow on the tree leads to the American military cemetery where rest the bodies of at least 15,000 American war dead. The Cure was ordered shot as a spy, but about an hour before the time set for him to face the firing squad an alibi was given for him by a German priest and he was saved.

4. LE FOUR DE PARIS—Once upon a time LeFour de Paris was quite a village, having a population of 700. Here it is today, nothing except the base of a road marker at the right. A new signboard has been erected, just to the right of where the old one stood. A monument, too, has been erected and may be seen in the picture.

5. ALLIEPOINT—Buy some maps before you start out looking for Alliepoint, is the advice given any members of the Eightieth (Blue Ridge) division, going back to revisit the town which stood along the banks of the Agron river. Alliepoint didn't have a chamber of commerce, but it was a respectable place and was about as much heard of as its neighboring villages of Verpel and Thenorgues. Then it took the role of chief stopper of shells, fired by the Eightieth, and this is what you can see of Alliepoint when you go back today.

6. LAHARAZEE—Until last summer the shaft in the German cemetery in the Argonne forest, near the dugout of the crown prince of Bavaria, was surmounted by a marble eagle. Now the eagle is somewhere in the United States. An ex-American army officer, who fought his way through the Argonne in 1918, carried it off as a souvenir.

Some Familiar Scenes in France That Await the Second Coming of the A. E. F.

Why I Want to Go Back to France

(First Prize Essay in the American Legion's France Convention Contest. Written by Robert McKinnis of New Briton, Pa.)

I want to go back to the land of romance once more—to march down the sweltering roads again with the memory of a carefree gang of doughboys tramping along to the songs of "Hinky Dinky, Parley Voo," "Good-by, Broadway Hello France," and dear old "Madelon."

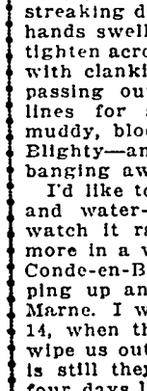
I want to be part of that dust-covered column once more; to live again the things that made it hell, yet made us love it, too—lines of sweat streaking down dusty faces and necks, dangling hands swelling up to numbness as pack straps tighten across the shoulders, noisy mess wagons with clanking pans rolling along in the rear, a passing outfit of Frogs trudging out of the lines for a rest, ambulances jammed with muddy, bloody, grinning Yanks going back to Blighty—and the distant boom of big guns banging away over the hills in front of us.

I'd like to crawl back into a certain cramped and water-soaked dugout up near Toul, and watch it rain, rain, rain. I want to lie once more in a wheat field below the old chateau in Conde-en-Brie, and watch for Jerry heads popping up and down in the trenches across the Marne. I want to live again the night of July 14, when they poured up through that field to wipe us out, and to see if the same little trench is still there where we found Ed and Charley four days later, leaning over their rifles on top of the parapet just as the Jerries had knocked them off.

I want to live all the nights again; to see the bursting shrapnel and to hear it whistling for its victims; to hear the frantic cries of "gas" repeating down the line; to lie listening to the dismal moan of G. I. cans going over to wake up the boys from Berlin. I want to crouch there in my dugout listening and wondering. Listening to the dull heavy boom of far-away cannon rumbling through the night. Listening to the drip, drip, drip of the everlasting rain out in the darkness. I want to lie there wondering—always wondering—what it's all about.

I want to see French hills, French fields, French sky, French people once again. I want to see the kids—to know that they've learned to smile since the war. I want to go back to France once more—not to seek new joys or thrills, but to revive the dreams of old that are fading with the years.

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON



THE A. E. F. is mobilizing again. But it is the second A. E. F. which is planning a trip abroad and this time the slogan is "On to Paris!" instead of "On to Berlin!" All over the United States, members of the American Legion are making their plans to revisit the land over which they fought ten years ago and to attend the annual Legion convention, which will be held in Paris September 19 to 24.

It's a very different A. E. F. that is going over in this year 1927 from the one that went over in the year 1917. Then its members crossed the Atlantic in crowded troop ships, their sailing clouded with the profoundest of secrecy, every mile of their journey beset by the dangers of the submarine-infested water. For the folks at home there was a long anxious wait and then finally word came back that these boys of theirs had arrived safely "Somewhere in France." This year they'll be going over on palatial steamers like the Leviathan, the Republic and the President Harding, and instead of the folks back home waiting anxiously for word from them, some of these folks will accompany them on this gala trip. For the sweethearts of 1917 are the wives of 1927, and they're going to Paris, too. And some mothers are going.

And when they get to Paris how different it will be from 1917 also! Then it was a matter of only a few hours' leave and even those hours were spent under the watchful eyes of the M. P.'s This year they are going back with the knowledge of seven days of glorious freedom in the French capital, of living at some of the best hotels at moderate prices. American Legion officers in charge of the arrangements for the convention have engaged five classes of hotels, and will give the boys a week in Paris at prices ranging from $10 to $49 for room only, for the seven days.

As for the matter of M. P.'s, there won't be any. No passports will be required for members of the Legion attending the convention, and they will enjoy complete freedom. Identification certificates have been accepted by all European countries, instead of passports, thus avoiding visas or charges of any kind. Since such certificates are heretofore unknown to the Paris police, the boys will have only to flourish them to get past any French authorities. Although the Legion authorities will appoint special units in each group to assist the French police force in handling the crowds, Legion officials are counting upon the fact that at least one-third of the 30,000 delegates who are going will be the wives or other female relatives of the men. They will be the real M. P.'s of this A. E. F. while it is in Paris!

For that is the reason that most of them are heeding the slogan "On to Paris." Robert McKinnis, the winner of the prize essay contest, whose reason for going is given above, has expressed it for all of them, when he indicated that they are going back to revisit the scenes of the greatest adventure of their lives. And they're going back, too, to read certain names on the white crosses which stand in long rows at Romagne-sous-Montfaucon, at St. Mihiel, at the Somme, at Suresnes and at the Marne. For these are the names of their buddies, certain members of the first A. E. F. who went to France to stay!

Insect Damages Red Clover Crop

Root Borers May Be Killed by Plowing and Harrowing in Summer.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The clover root borer, which does extensive damage to red clover wherever that crop is grown, is one of the principal factors limiting the life of a clover stand after the first-crop year, says the United States Department of Agriculture. The most noticeable damage is observed in the second-crop year, when the stand may be badly thinned, according to L. P. Rockwood, associate entomologist, in a new bulletin entitled "The Clover Root Borer," just issued by the department. By late summer frequently the stand is practically killed out unless there has been abundant self-seeding.

Where Eggs Are Laid.

The eggs of the borer are laid in niches in the walls of burrows in the clover roots beginning late in April or May, and hatch in 17 to 30 days. The total development period of the insect is from 60 to 90 days or longer. It spends the entire winter in the roots of the clover where it matures. There is but one generation a year.

Clover root borers can be killed in large numbers by plowing up badly infested clover roots and harrowing them to the surface of the soil at any time between the middle of June and beginning of August. Many of the borers may be destroyed by plowing and harrowing the clover soon after the seed crop or second cutting of hay. A one-crop system of clover culture, together with a general practice of early fall plowing of clover sod, and, in exceptionally severe cases, summer plowing and harrowing, should free a community from appreciable damage by the borer in the first-crop year.

What Bulletin Contains.

Department Bulletin 1426-D, which contains a description of the clover root borer, its distribution, seasonal history, damage, natural enemies, control, and other relevant information, may be obtained free, as long as the supply lasts, upon application to the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Handling Alfalfa With Little Loss of Leaves

That the best system for handling alfalfa hay is to let it lie in the swath for a few hours and then cure it in the windrow, is a fact discovered by Professors T. A. Kiesselbach and Arthur Anderson, of the Nebraska experiment station. Such a plan insures a favorable rate of curing and the least possible loss of the leaves.

Experiments showed that alfalfa left in the swath until field cured lost nearly 10 per cent in weight through the shattering of the leaves. When cured entirely in the windrow or with three to six hours initial swath curing, followed by windrowing, the loss in weight through leaf shattering was only from 1 to 2 per cent.

Tests made to determine how long it would take for alfalfa hay to be reduced to a moisture content of about 30 per cent, which is the upper limit in moisture content at which hay may be put in the stack or barn, brought out facts of interest. These tests showed that when the hay was left to dry in the swath it was ready for stacking in twenty-seven hours. When the hay was put into the windrow right after cutting, it required an average of sixty-five hours to become dry and when put into the cock after cutting 102 hours for drying wore required.

Corn Less Susceptible to Injury by the Borer

In some instances certain varieties of field corn and of sweet corn have been found to be less susceptible to severe injury by the European corn borer than others, although no variety is immune. This apparent difference is usually involved to some extent with the time of planting and also with the rapidity or size of growth and the consequent period of maturity. The varieties of corn having large, heavy stalks seem able to withstand injury to a much greater extent than the slender varieties. This seems especially true of the robust, large, dent varieties, such as are grown widely in the corn belt states.

Agricultural Facts

Use home-grown plants to avoid bringing in new diseases.

* * *

Keep a sharp lookout for the Mexican bean beetle on your beans.

* * *

Cultivate the garden frequently to save moisture and destroy weeds.

* * *

Start the bug fight early and diminish severe injury that would be caused later.

* * *

The use of binder twine in tying a fleece of wool will lower its selling value.

* * *

Don't be afraid to use a drag harrow across the corn rows. It will kill a lot of grass and not hurt the stand.

* * *

Have you written your state college of agriculture for its latest bulletins on hay and forage crops for your section? You should have them.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

Praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Mrs. Annie Kwinskt of 526 1st ... nue, Milwaukee, Wis., writes tha... became so wea... run down tha... was n... able ... her housework ... saw the name ... E Pinkham's ... fable Compoun... the paper and ... to her husban... will try that ... cine and see ... will help me." ... says she took ... bottles and is ... ing much better.

Mrs. Mattie Adams, who live... Downing Street, Brewton, Ala., w... as follows: "A friend recomme... Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable ... pound and since taking it I feel ... a different woman."

With her children grown up, the ... die-aged woman finds time to do ... things she never had time to do b... —read the new books, see the ... plays, enjoy her grand-children, ... an active part in church and ... affairs. Far from being pushed ... by the younger set, she finds a ... rich life of her own. That is, if ... health is good.

Thousands of women past fifty, ... they owe their vigor and health ... Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable C... pound, and are recommending i... their friends and neighbors.

HANFORD'S
Balsam of Myrr...
For Poisoned Wounds as Rust... Nail Wounds, Ivy Poisoning, etc.
All dealers are authorized to refund your money f... first bottle if not suited.

FOR OVE... 200 YEAR...

haarlem oil has been a wor... wide remedy for kidney, liver a... bladder disorders, rheumatis... lumbago and uric acid conditio...

GOLD MEDAL
HAARLEM OIL
CAPSULES

correct internal troubles, stimulate v... organs. Three sizes. All druggists. In... on the original genuine GOLD MED...

STOMACH UPSET?

Stomach and bowel dis...ders cause sudden pains. You want relief quick! Take Chamberlain's Colic Remedy diluted with water and soon you'll feel fine. Ask your druggist for this reliable remedy today. For trial size, send 4c to Chamberlain Medicine Company, 703 Sixth Avenue, Des Moines, Iowa.

CHAMBERLAIN'S
GUARANTEED REMEDY FOR COLIC AND DIARRHE...
THE FIRST AID IN STOMACH AC...

Aching, Swollen Fe...

Money Back If Emerald Oil Does... Away With All Soreness, Swelling... Distress in 24 Hours. One B... Proves it.

No sensible person will contin... suffer from those intense agon... throbbing foot pains when every ... stocked drug store has Mo... Emerald Oil and sells it with an... solute guarantee of satisfaction ... money back.

Your feet may be so swollen ... inflamed that you think you can... another step. Your shoes may ... as if they are cutting right into ... flesh. You feel sick all over with ... pain and torture and pray for ... relief. What's to be done?

Two or three applications ... Moone's Emerald Oil and in fi... minutes the pain and soreness ... appears. A few more applicatio... regular intervals and the swe... reduces.

And best of all any offensive ... is gone for good—It's a wonde... formula—this combination of e... tial oils with camphor and ... antiseptics so marvelous that t... sands of bottles are sold annually ... reducing varicose or swollen vein...

K-R-O
Kills Rats Only

This new powd... kills rats and m... but nothing el...

Get rid of rats without danger to ... children, livestock, pets or poultry. ...

Think what this means to you! ...

K-R-O may be used freely in the ... barn or poultry house with absolute ... Actual tests have proved that it kills ... and mice every time but other anim... and poultry are not injured by the largest ...

NOT A POISON

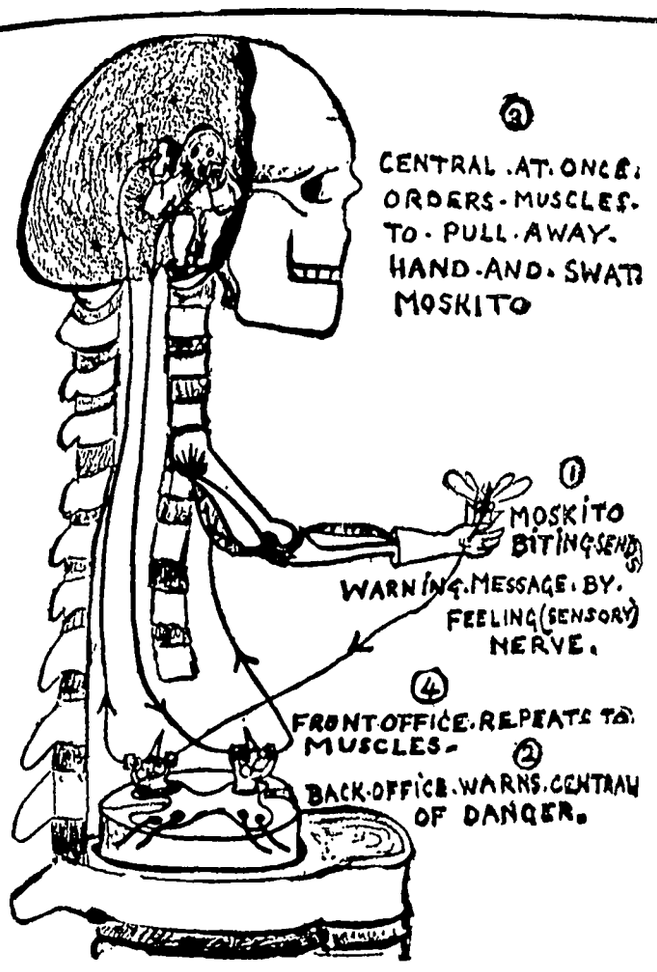
K-R-O does not contain arsenic, ... phorus or barium carbonate. Made ... bulbs—the new safe way urged by ... ernment experts. At your druggist. ... Large size (4 times as much) $2.00. O... direct from us postpaid if he cannot ... you. Satisfaction guaranteed.
K-R-O CO., Springfield, Ohio

YOURSELF and YOUR BODY

By WILFRED T. GRENFELL

THE WIRES OF COMMUNICATION

All Communications Are Addressed to Nerve Cells.



CENTRAL AT ONCE ORDERS MUSCLES TO PULL AWAY HAND AND SWAT MOSKITO
1
MOSKITO BITING SENDS WARNING MESSAGE BY FEELING (SENSORY) NERVE.
4
FRONT OFFICE REPEATS TO MUSCLES
2
BACK OFFICE WARNS CENTRAL OF DANGER.

Here is a Substation Warning Central That a Mosquito Is Biting Thumb.

SOME people complain of being 'a bundle of nerves.' Well, every single cell of the body that is alive has to be connected with a nerve, so really we all are that. Of all the wonders of the body perhaps the nerve-cells are the most marvelous. And yet they are very simple. Some think that nerve-cells are nothing but a lot of electric batteries, though their current travels only about a hundred yards a second, while ordinary electricity travels a hundred and eighty-six thousand miles. Some of these batteries are connected by long wire cells to the substations in various parts of the body, especially to small ones in the chest and belly. These are very sensitive and automatic, and are called sympathetic ganglia, which only means 'nests of cells' forming centers. "Other masses of cells in the brain are called 'special centers,' because they are all for one job—like the breathing center, or the center for choking after the pump and pipes, called the vasomotor center.

"The wires, of course, conduct the currents; the central part of the nerve here is called the axis cylinder. It is made of the best conductor of currents known to man.

"The nerve currents, of course, go both ways—first to the brain. These are called centripetal, that is, seeking the center. Secondly, they go away from the brain. These are called centrifugal, flying from the center. The are carrying sensations, i. e., feelings,' like smell, or sight, or pain, sound, or taste, and therefore are called, also, sensory nerves. The others carry currents that start something going, like a muscle or a gland, and are called therefore motor nerves, because they say 'get a move on.'

You can graft a motor wire or axis into a strange substation, but it will do only what the substation tells it, so now that it is nothing but a wire. People used to think that the wires were hollow and carried nerve juices. They run everywhere from the brain. The bulks of main lines run down either. Small bundles come out through holes between every vertebra, like side pipes. This is a fine way to protect them till they get near their work. Then they bid one another good-bye and each goes off to look after his own special work, whatever it may be.

All the nerve-cells are small, but of different sizes. They have an outside cell which has only recently been discovered. This is full of protoplasm, and in the center of it is another kind of protoplasm, separated from it by another coat, said to be only one-millionth of a millimeter in thickness. It is made of tiny fat globules and is a marvelous insulator, more so than the glass of a Leyden jar. This inside is called a nucleus—which means the center of importance—just as the first ten cents which you put in your bank is a nucleus, or center; around which the rest will gather. These nuclei watch over the nourishment of the cell and of the whole axis cylinders, and they alone can make cells grow.

"The end nerve-cells are the most raggedy things imaginable. They are so like a tree with endless little branches that they are called 'dendrites,' which is only the Greek for tree.

"The nerve-fibers, or neurons, may be yards and yards long. The dendrites are just like the threads of a web. They grow from nerve-cells in between millions of others.

"As the main trunk gets farther off from the main station, of course it gets smaller, just like the top branches of a tree. It ends in the tiniest branches—it may be in the big toe or the little finger, or heart or liver or eye, or anywhere.

"Here is a nerve-cell and its axis cylinder, or trunk, which is carefully wrapped around as soon as it leaves the skull, in a sheath that protects it and insulates it like the rubber around the copper wire. Remember it is tied up with millions more in bigger bundles when it starts. (See picture.) Here you can see it branching out to end in the big toe. Perhaps it is the one that hurt so, when I trod on your toe.

"Here is a substation warning central that a mosquito is biting a thumb. (See picture.) Central is telling the biceps to pull the thumb away.

"We are talking very learnedly about nerve-cells and protoplasm, but really we do not know why a nerve-cell feels, and sees, and tastes, and all the protoplasm of a muscle-cell only contracts. We do know that anything which makes a chemical change in anything starts it working, and that that change of substance taking place starts a current instead of starting a simple shortening of the cell, as it does in a muscle-cell.

"The ends of the sensory nerves in the brain spread out exactly as do the motor ones in the toe, for instance, and they put their ends so close to motor dendrites, or branches in the brain, that though they do not exactly join, the current leaps over from one to the other.

"Axis cylinders of both kinds of nerves break up into fibrils. They form a network (Latin, plexus) in which each fibril ends in a plate, or in a cell of some kind. These plexuses are a great safeguard, as, if one fibril is blocked or breaks, the cell can send its messages sound by a detour.

"The cell can do other things through its nucleus. For instance, it orders all refreshment for the axis cylinder. It can also refuse to do what the sensory nerve asks.

"There is another thing to remember before we leave 'The Nerves.' It is this: Nature makes every possible provision for taking care of the delicate cells; the finest of fibers, elastic and strong, are woven round and between them. Along these run tiny pipes, with food and oxygen. Special material also is stored there for making nuclei and refreshing tired-out cells. This meshwork is called 'neuroglia'—it is the scaffolding or framework of the brain or ganglia. But remember this: just as muscle-cells, nerve-cells may be so badly overworked that they can never recover. Go on long enough abusing and using a tired nerve-cell and it just dies. No amount of rest will bring it back again. That is why we say: 'All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy.' So 'scoot' and play 'instanter.'"

(© by the Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Improved Uniform International

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D., Dean, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)
(©, 1927, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for July 31

DAVID AND JONATHAN

LESSON TEXT—I Samuel 18:1-4; 19:1-7.

GOLDEN TEXT—There is a friend that sticketh closer than a brother.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Two Good Friends.

JUNIOR TOPIC—David and Jonathan.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Choosing the Right Kind of Friends.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Obligations of Friendship.

The friendship of David and Jonathan has become immortalized in the world's thought. It was unique in that it occurred between two men of rival worldly interests. Jonathan was the crown prince, the heir to the throne. David was heir according to the divine choice and arrangement. Jonathan knew this and magnanimously waived his natural personal rights to the one he knew God had chosen.

I. Friendship Established Between David and Jonathan (I Sam. 18:1-4).

1. Love at Sight (vv. 2).

Following the interview of Saul and David after the victory over Goliath, Jonathan's soul was knit with that of David. He loved him as his own soul. While there was mutual love, this pleasing trait stands out more prominently in Jonathan than in David because it meant great loss to him—the loss of the throne; while it meant immense gain to David, the acquisition of the throne to which he had no natural right.

2. Covenant established (vv. 3, 4).

Following the love covenant between them, Jonathan stripped himself of his court robe and his equipment and gave them to David. This act was a virtual abdication of the throne to David.

II. Jonathan Defended David Against Saul's Frenzy (I Sam. 19:1-7).

David went into the battle with Goliath out of zeal for God and true religion—not for personal glory, but it turned out as always that because he made God first, God honored him.

Upon David's return from victory over the Philistines, according to Oriental custom he was met by a triumphal chorus of women from all the cities of Israel chanting praises to him for his victory over their enemy. They ascribed more praise and honor to David than to Saul. These women seemed to sing as answering chants. The one sang, "Saul has slain his thousands," the other answered, "and David his ten thousands." To hear sung the praises of a shepherd boy surpassing his own was too much for Saul. It aroused murderous envy which had been slumbering in his heart and moved him twice to attempt to kill David. This wickedness was in his heart as a bitter feeling, but this occasion fanned it into a flame, making it a burning passion of evil.

In Saul's third attempt to kill David, Jonathan defended him before his father and evoked from him the oath that David should not be slain. He thus exposed himself to the anger of his infuriated father for David's sake.

III. Jonathan Revealed to David Saul's Murderous Intent (I Sam 20:30-40).

The beginning of the new moon was celebrated by sacrifices and feasting at which all the members of the family were expected to be present (v. 5). David's excuse for being absent was that he might go home to attend the yearly sacrifice of the entire family. The annual feast was more important than the monthly feast. Matters were now so serious that Jonathan and David renewed the covenant between themselves. In this renewal the terms were broadened beyond the life of Jonathan (vv. 14, 15). Saul's anger was now so fierce that for Jonathan to be found in David's company was most dangerous, so he cleverly planned a sign by which he could make known to David Saul's attitude and purpose. We prove our friendship by warning those who are exposed to danger. David's heart responded by pledging fidelity to Jonathan's seed forever. This pledge was faithfully carried out by David (II Sam. 9:7, 8). Concerning real friendship observe:

1. It should be made while both parties are young, when the hearts are capable of being knit together.

2. Real friends are few. We should be careful in the formation of friendships. For though we should love everybody we can have but few friends. Friendship should be formed for the purpose of helping each other. There can be no real friendship except where merit is on both sides.

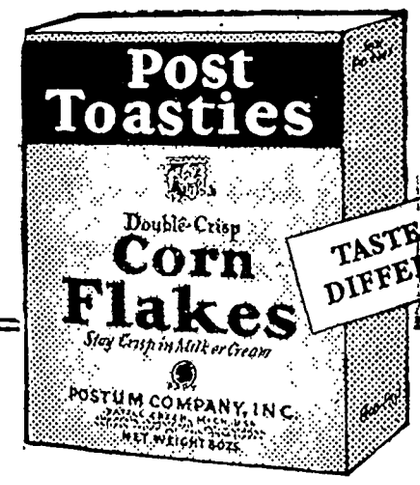
3. Real friendship can only be with God-fearing people. Both David and Jonathan recognized their obligation to the Lord.

Satan on Watch

Prayer is the strategical point which Satan watches. If he can succeed in causing us to neglect prayer, he has won; for where communion between God and His people is broken, the true source of life and power is cut off.—Andrew Murray.

The Man at the Top

The man at the top is usually some one who has been in the habit of going to the bottom of things.—The Prospector.



Ask for

POST TOASTIES

They stay crisp in milk or cream

Delicious hearts of corn toasted oven-brown and double-crisp

During these warm days, enjoy the cool and crunchy crispness of Post Toasties. Made from the hearts of succulent white corn, these delicious flakes are delicately seasoned, and toasted double-crisp by the special process of the Postum Company. They stay crisp in milk or cream down to the last inviting flake in breakfast bowl or luncheon dish. Serve Post Toasties often these summer days. You'll find a cooling freshness in their double-crispness and an appetizing goodness in their true corn flavor. Make sure that you get double-crisp Post Toasties that stay crisp in milk or cream. Ask for Post Toasties, in the red and yellow, wax-wrapped package that keeps them fresh and crisp.

Post Health Products

© 1927, P. Co., Inc.

POSTUM COMPANY, INC., BATTLE CREEK, MICH.

Kill All Flies! THEY SPREAD DISEASE

Placed anywhere, DAISY FLY KILLER attracts and kills all flies. Neat, clean, ornamental, convenient and cheap. Lasts all season. Made of metal, can't spill or tip over; will not soil or injure anything. Guaranteed. Insist upon DAISY FLY KILLER from your dealer.

HAROLD SOMERS Brooklyn N. Y.

The New Science

Parker Moon was discussing the enormous campaign expenditures of certain candidates.

"These chaps," he said, "don't seem to understand political economy."

Then he laughed and went on:

"A boy said to his father:

"'Pop, what's political economy, anyhow?'

"'Political economy?' said the father. 'Why, any fool ought to know that political economy is the science of not buying any more votes nor paying no higher for them than what you actually need.'" — Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

How Silly Grownups Puzzle Small Boys

"Children are inclined to take things very literally," remarked Anne Wheeler, the settlement worker. "Take for instance the case of little Billy. His father had brought home a big box of candy but the child had been told by his mother that he must never eat candy without her permission.

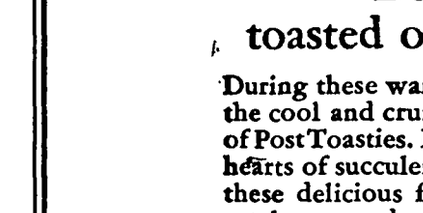
"When a guest tried to make the little fellow take some, he said, 'Me must ask my muddie,' and started off for where she was, over half a mile away.

"'But,' said the guest, 'why not ask your father? He's right out here on the porch.'

To which Billy replied with indignation:

"'Don't you know me faddie isn't me muddie?'"

In all thy actions think God sees thee.—Quarles.



"Why didn't Tommy come?" "Oh, his mother's making Monarch Cocoa and Teenie Weenie Peanut Butter sandwiches." "Let's all go down to Tommy's house."

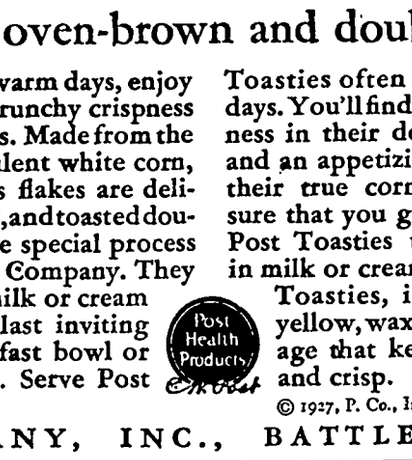
EVERY genuine Monarch package bears the Lion Head, the oldest trademark in the United States covering a complete line of the world's finest food products—Coffee, Tea, Cocoa, Catsup, Pickles, Peanut Butter, Canned Fruits and Vegetables, and other superior table specialties.

REID, MURDOCH & CO.

Established 1853

Chicago Pittsburgh Boston New York Jacksonville Tampa Los Angeles

Monarch is the only nationally advertised brand of QUALITY FOOD PRODUCTS sold exclusively through the men who own and operate their own stores.



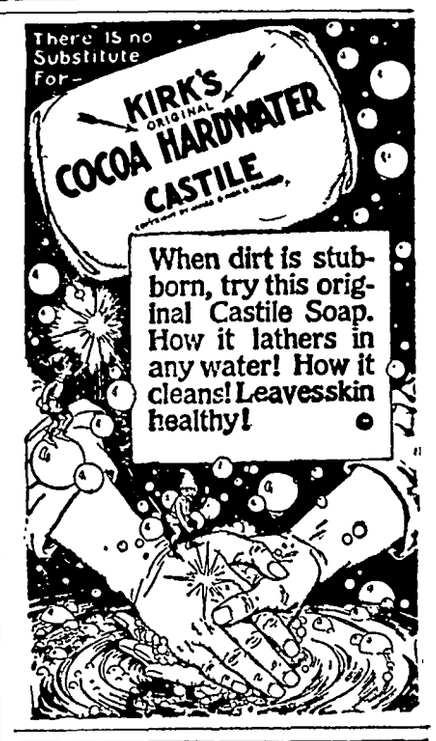
MONARCH

Quality for 70 Years

Amsterdam Jews Hold High Municipal Posts

Holland is the ghetto of western Europe. Latest figures show 115,223 Jews living there—54,591 men and 60,632 women. Amsterdam was the first Dutch town in which the Jews settled and its Jewish community today is famous the world over. Rotterdam, The Hague, Utrecht and other places also have important Jewish quarters. In Amsterdam, however, the Jews hold an extraordinarily prominent position. Three of the six sheriffs are Jewish, as is a heavy representation in the municipal council. Parliament has many of them, including Henri Polak, leader of the Socialist party and president of the Diamond Workers' federation. State Councilors Visser and Limburg, who formed an extra-parliamentary cabinet in 1926, are both Jews. A portion of the Jews are of Spanish and Portuguese origin, their ancestors having come when the Dutch republic freed itself from Spanish tyranny in the Sixteenth century. —Chicago Daily News.

Some people are criticized because they won't talk, and others because they will.



There IS no Substitute for—
KIRK'S ORIGINAL COCOA HARDWATER CASTILE
When dirt is stubborn, try this original Castile Soap. How it lathers in any water! How it cleans! Leavesskin healthy!

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM

Removes Dandruff-Stops Hair Falling

Restores Color and Beauty to Gray and Faded Hair

60c and $1.00 at Druggists.

Hiscox Chem. Wks., Patchogue, N. Y.

HINDERCORNS Removes Corns, Callouses, etc., stops all pain ensures comfort to the feet, makes walking easy. 15c by mail or at Druggists. Hiscox Chemical Works, Patchogue, N. Y.

HAY-O is guaranteed to give instant and absolute relief to any case of HAY FEVER in the world, or money refunded. Price $1. THE HAY-O CO., Sundance, Wyoming.

117 ACRES WELL IMPROVED $11,000, near Bethel, 30 miles from Minneapolis. Natural clover section, fine crops, immediate possession. Columbia Realty Co., Minneapolis.

No Mother-in-Law

Harold—Will you ever marry?

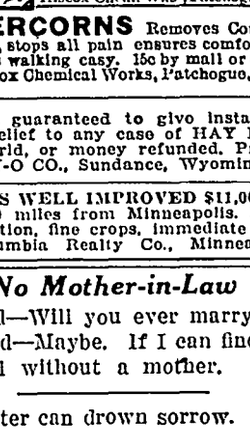
Clifford—Maybe. If I can find some nice girl without a mother.

Laughter can drown sorrow.

Ma Buzz went to the country, Hooray!

FLIT spray clears your home of flies and mosquitoes. It also kills bed bugs, roaches, ants, and their eggs. Fatal to insects but harmless to mankind. Will not stain. Get Flit today.

FLIT



DESTROYS

Flies Mosquitoes Moths

Ants Bed Bugs Roaches

"The yellow can with the black band"

© 1927 STANDARD OIL CO. (N. J.)

NOTICE OF PROBATE OF WILL

STATE OF IOWA,
Hancock County, ss.
To Al Whom It May Concern:

YOU ARE HEREBY NOTIFIED, That an instrument of writing purporting to be the last Will and Testament of Anna Rust deceased, dated Sept. 24, 1924, having been this day filed, opened and read, Fonday the 29th day of August, 1927 is fixed for hearing proof of same at the Court House in Garner, Iowa, before the District Court of said County or the Clerk of said Cuort; and at 3.00 o'clock P. M.o f the day above mentioned, all persons interested are hereby notified andrequired to appear, and show cause, if any they have, why said instrument should not be probated and allowed as and for the last Will and Testament of said deceased.

Dated at Garner, Iowa, July 25th, 1927.

CHRIS J. JOHANSEN,
Clerk of District Court.
(Publish July 28, Aug. 4-11, 1927.)

NOTICE OF APPOINTMENT OF ADMINISTRATRIX

STATE OF OWA,
County of Hancock, ss.

Notice is hereby given, that the undersigned has been duly appointed and qualified as Administratrix of the estate of Barbara Reichardt deceased, late of Hancock County. All persons indebted to said estate are requested to make immediate payment; and those having claims against the same will present them, duly authenticated, to the undersigned for allowance, and file in the office of the Clerk of the District Court.

WILHELMINA WENZ
Wichman & Hastings, Attorneys.
Dated July 8th, 1927.
Chris Johansen, Clerk District Court.
(Pub July 14-21-28,'27)

Pete Wilson and daughter Gladys left in their car early Sunday morning for Rochester, Minnesota, for a visit with Mrs. Wilson who is recuperating from a major operation. They report that Mrs. Wilson is getting along fine and that Monday she was able to get into a wheel chair and be taken out doors. Gladys remained with her mother, but Pete returned Monday evening. Donald Gibbs was in charge of the Drug Store during Mr. Wilson's absence.

Klemme Local Items

Mr. and Mrs. George Platt were Goodell visitors last Wednesday.

Gear Compound and Hard Oil n bulk at E. F. Jacobs. 1tc

Donald Stille and Roland Runge drove to Cedar Falls Sunday.

Herman Best and Harold Jost were visitors at Hampton Tuesday.

Levi Klotzbachr eturned Tuesday from his visit at Monona, Iowa.

Bulk Fly Chaser for sale at E. F. Jacobs, Klemme, Iowa. 1tc

Dr. W. F. Missman and family spent Sunday at the Ely home at Belmond.

Mr. and Mrs Walter Pritchard and son "Bobbie" of Garner, were Klemme visitors Tuesday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Gee, of Goodell visited Sunday at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Chris Gram.

Sheriff E. P. Hanson and wife of Garner were visitors in Klemme and vicinity Friday afternoon.

Emil Barz was an over the week-end visitor with his son, Max, at the home of Mrs. Lena Schroeder.

Kenneth Patet has been out in the country for a few days visiting with Paul and Norman Sampson.

Mrs. Sarah Behringer, of Ames was visiting with Klemme friends this week.

Wm. H. Trafford of Belmond was a business caller in Klemme yesterday morning.

Mrs. Tom Finn and family of Belmond spent Sunday at the Earl Finn home in Klemme.

Carl Suckow and family of Garner were Klemme visitors last evening.

Miss Mabel Smith is taking a vacation this week from her duties at the J. N. Day store.

Mrs Betchle, of Garner, mother of Louie Knoke and his sister, Mrs. Farrier of Algona, visited at his home yesterday.

Freda and Cora Wessels from Colesburg, Iowa, are visiting at the Emil Patet home and with other relatives in this vicinity.

Mr. and Mrs. Einar Salling, Mrs. Martin Brinkman and children and Mrs. Baack returned from their visit at Sheboygan, Wisconsin Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lewis and Mr. and Mrs. John Etchen and little daughter were Garner visitors Tuesday evening.

Miss Marie Gauger, who is attending summer school at Cedar Falls, spent the week end visiting Charless City relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Chris Jacobs, of Garner, and Miss Bertha Wellendorf, of Maquoketa, were visiting at the Ed. Jacobs home Monday.

"Dad" Keraus and Joe Miller went fishing last Thursday. There are still some fish left, as they didn't want to catch them all.

Mrs. Henry Christenson and Mrs. Clara Schuldt and daughter, Nina, of Goodell, were visiting in Klemme Friday

Arthur Kudje and family and Frank Kluckhohn and family drove to Pilot Knob Sunday and enjoyed a picnic diner.

Work is progressing rapidly on the new brick school house west of Klemme, known as the Wm. Stille school. John Suckow is the contractor on this job.

Max Barz is at Waterloo for a two weeks visit with his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Thompson. Max is doing some visiting around before school starts.

The Reformed Ladies Aid Society met at the home of Mrs. Henry Barz yesterday afternoon. Delicious refreshments were served following the regular meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Keraus and sons Otho and Verle left Sundya in their car for a week's vacation in Minnesota at one of the lakes to do some fishing.

Ernest Lewis and wife who have been enjoying a week's vacation at Clear Lake visited with his parents Mr. and Mrs. Lew Lewis and then left yesterday for their home at Grundy Center.

Mrs Elmer Fuller and daughter of Des Moines and Mrs. Howard Wiles, of Ames came yesterday to see Mr. Fuller, who is ill at the R. W. Elder home suffering an attack of appendicitis.

Wm. Neuhring and family, David Schwichtenberg and family, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Patet and Kenneth, and Cora and Freda Wessel were visiting at the Leonard Sampson home, east of town, Sudnay.

Rev. and Mrs. A. W. Gauger and three children, William, Stanley and Harlan, and Harvey Nelson, eft Sunday afternoon for Lake Okoboji for a week's outing and to attend the Bibe Conference in session there this week.

Miss Marie Burke, who has been visiting at the Rev. A. W. Gauger home for a couple of weeks, left Friday for Garner, for a visit with Miss Rosetta Byers, and will also attend the Epworth League Institute at Cear Lake.

Miss Clella McCullough, of Garner left last week for Los Angeles, California, for a visit with her brother and wife, Mr. and Mrs. G. P. McCullough, formerly of Klemme. Reports from Mr. and Mrs. McCullough state that they both like California very well.

Dr. and Mrs. W. F. Missman and son, Byrnes, were called to Belmond Friday evening by the serious illness of Doris, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. L. R. Parsons. Doris was operated on that evening at the Belmond hospital for appendicitis. and at this time is making a good recovery The Parson family were getting ready to take a vacation trip at the time but now will postpone their plans until a future date.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Giesel, of Andrew, Iowa, came last Thursday for a week's visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Jacobs. Miss Bertha Wellendorf, of Maquoketa, Iowa, also spent a few days visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Jacobs. She is visiting for a few weeks with her sister Mrs. Ray Nelson. at Garner.

C. J. Kraus and son Albert are putting up a new barn on their place north of Klemme. The barn will be 34x70 feet in size and will have a self-supporting roof. A brick wall runs up about seven or eight feet. The entire barn will have a cement floor and the dairy cattle section will have steel stanchions Work is well under way and the barn should be completed in a very short time now.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Wiles were visiting in Klemme Tuesday. They were returning to their home at Ames after a vacation trip in northern Minnesota where they visited the big iron mines at Hibbing, the sights around Duluth and Superior, a trip to Port Arthur, Canada, and a trip through part of Wisconsin. They have been gone about three weeks and thoroughly enjoyed their trip

Not Before Xmas

'Twas the night before payday
And all through my jeans
I hunted in vain
For the price of some beans.
Not a quarter was stirring,
Not even a jit,
The kale was off duty;
Milled edges had quit.
Forward, turn forward,
O time, in thy flight;
Make it tomorrow,
Just for tonight!

Were you on your vacation this time last year?

NOTICE OF PROBATE OF WILL

STATE OF IOWA
Hancock County, ss

To All Whom It May Concern:

YOU ARE HEREBY NOTIFIED, That an instrument of writing purporting to be the last Will and Testament of Dirk Pannhoff deceased, dated July 20, 1922, having been this day filed, opened and read, Monday the 8th day of August, 1927 is fixed for hearing proof of same at the Court House in Garner, Iowa, before the District Court of said County or the Clerk of said Court; and at 10:00 o'clock A. M. of the day above mentioned, all persons interested are hereby notified and required to appear, and show cause, if any they have, why said instrument should not be probated and allowed as and for the last Will and Testament of said deceased.

Dated at Garner, Iowa, July 6th, 1927.

CHRIS J. JOHANSEN,
Clerk of District Court
(Publish 7-14-21, 1927.)

Office:— Masonic Bldg. GARNER, IOWA.
Phones:— Office, 149. Res., 149.

Dr. E. H. Phillips
OSTEOPATHIC PHYSICIAN

Physiotherapy, including Osteopathic treatment, diathermy, surgical diathermy, radiant heat, high frequency chlorine gas and auto-condensation.

For Electric Service

CALL 39 GARNER, IOWA
HOUSE WIRING—MOTORS—
LAMPS—
APPLIANCES—
—ALSO A FULL LINE OF RADIOS AND RADIO ACCESSORIES——

Prouty Electric Shop
GARNER — IOWA

No One Else Will SAVE
For YOU

Saving is a job you must do for yourself—a duty you owe yourself and your future.

The surest way to keep your dollars from slipping between your fingers is to put a portion, at least, of them in a Certificate of Deposit, where they will work for you instead of away from you.

We will gladly welcome your account.

First National Bank
KLEMME, IOWA.

For Your Needs At Harvest Time

Housewives! You can make your big harvest time meals much easier if you will buy your baked goods of us. We carry a complete line of "DIAMOND" Baked Products and can supply your wants. We also feature special orders on short notice.

DIAMOND BREAD
Dinner Loaf Potato Bread Rye
Graham Whole Wheat Pullman
Vienna Twin Loaf Raisin
It's Sure Good!

SPECIAL BUN ORDERS
When you want Buns or Parker House Rolls, just phone or igve us your order the afternoon before you need them. Get them fresh next morning!
None Better

DIAMOND CAKES
Orange Cherry Pineapple
Nut Ringe Silver Bars Devil's Food Maple Bars Jelly Rolls
Marshmallow Rolls—all are excellent
Fresh Cakes Every Morning

HARVEST DISHES
We have in stock a ful line of dishes of kinds for Harvest, Platters, Dishes
Silverware, Glassware, Enamelware
If It's Dishs—We Have Them

SPECIAL HARVEST COOKIES
Put up in 4 lb. Cads at Special Price
Also a full line of other kinds in stock
Our Cookies Are Fine

GALLON FRUITS
We have an especially nice assortment of Gallon Packed Fruits—our prices are exceedingly low on these.
Original Flavor Retained

G.W. Kluckhohn & Sons

YOU READ

The Other Fellow's Ad

You are reading this one. That should convince you that advertising in these columns is a Profitable Proposition; that it will bring business to you. The fact that the other fellow advertises is probably the reason he is getting more business than is falling to you. Would it not be well to give the other fellow a chance to

Read Your Ad

In These Columns

Goodell News

(By Special Correspondent)

Neille Boller entertained some girls at a party Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Newgard wree in town Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Carpenter have a new Essex Coach.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Ruka visited in Marshalltown Sunday.

Mrs. Mary Ahrenkeil and daughter, Louisa, are visiting relatives at Cedar Falls.

Mrs. Thada is enjoying a visit from her sister and daughter.

Goodell defeated Renwick by a score of 5-1 at a ball game on Belmond's diamond Sunday.

The U B. Ladies of the Aid Society held a food sale in the Township Hall Saturday night.

L. W. Wesenberg and family visited relatives at Charles City Sunday.

Mrs Fuller and Mrs Stokesbary will entertain at Rosary Society on Thursday at the Catholic Church.

Rev. and Mrs Scott and family returned home from their visit with relatives, Tuesday.

Mr and Mrs George Zeilie visited at the Luick and K. K Pals home at Thornton Sunday.

Mr and Mrs. Matt Smith of Meservey visited relatives at Goodell Sunday.

Mr and Mrs. Herrick of California are visiting their daughter, Mrs Virgil Cook.

W L Sherwood and family spent Sunday at the Walter Newberger home in Forest City.

Vilola Quigley, of Maple Hill spent Saturday and Sunday with Daphne Houghton She has been visiting at Fort Dodge Louise Mason, Loisa Ahurenkeil and Misses Baker of Belmond have rented a cottage at Clear Lake for a week They will go Friday.

Mr and Mrs A C Carpenter and son, Richard, left Saturday for a trip through the Black Hills and to the National Park They will visit at the Neeble home in Hartly and with Mr and Mrs Sherman at Torington, Wyoming. Mrs. Sherman was formerly Gittie White of this place.

A large crowd attended the funeral of Mrs Rust Wednesday. The relatives of the deceased have the sincerest sympathy the community can extend Mrs Rust had lived alone in Goodell for more than sixteen years after her husband's death A few weeks ago her children were all home to visit her on her 85th birthday She was taken sick several weeks ago and died last Sunday evening at the home of her son Hiram She leaves to mourn her loss five daughters: Mrs Martha Brass, Mrs Wm. Langlitz, and Mrs H Harberts of Goodell; Mrs. Jacobs of Sioux Falls, South Dakota and Mrs Shultz of Minot, North Dakota, five sons Hiram and John of Goodell, George of Kanawha, Henry and Heiko of Minnesota, thirty-five grandchildren, eighteen great-grand children and a host of friends.

WONDERFULLY

Refreshing

With the warm weather now here, nothing is more cooling or refreshing than one of our fine Sodas!

Luscious ice cream, fresh ripe fruit, pure flavoring—that's what you get at our fountain.

Whenever you feel the need of a tasty, toothsome treat, stop in at our cafe.

Crystal Cafe

Conrad Quandt, Prop.

Picnic Time

IS HERE

The present time is picnic time—most enjoyable of all the year. The evenings are long and enjoyable and there are many pleasant spots to enjoy a picnic lunch or meal.

We have prepared for picnics and we have for your convenience many toothsome and wholesome items that will save many hours of toil and make the trip most enjoyable.

Here are a few suggestions for your picnic lunch:—

LUNCHEON MEATS—A complete line of all kinds of clod meats for sandwiches.

CHEESE—Cream, Brick, Limburger, and a variety of special cheese.

CANND GOODSE—Salmon, Sardines, and all kinds of sea-food for salads, Pork & Beans, Jellies, Mustard, Etc., Ketchup, Steak Sauce, Relish, Horse Raddish.

PICKLES—Sweet, Dill, and others, Olives in bulk or bottled, plain or stuffed.

——Call On Us For Your Picnic Needs——

Good Meat Good to TEat"

Klemme Meat Market

Threshers Supplies

Get ready for the threshing season now so you will be ready to go when the time comes. Check over your needs and let us know what you want. Here's a partial list of items for threshers:-

Belt Dressing Graphite Packing
Cylinder Head Packing
Valves Globe and Check Valves all kinds
Water Glasses Belt Lacing—Patent Steel and Whang Leather Lacing
Belts in Al Sizes—Rubber and Alfalfa
Oil Cans—Big Ones—Small Ones, all kinds
Oil and Grease Cups, Alemite Fittings and Alemite Grease Guns For Every Need Tank and Steam Hose, Flue Cleaners, Etc.
Advance Thresher Oil
Steam Cylinder Oil
Tractor Oil, all grades.
All kinds of Grease.
BULK HARD OIL—Special per lb.....10c

E. F. Jacobs

"THE FARM SERVICE STORE"

Avery Twp. News

(Special Times Reporter)

John Bachman was a business caller at Garner Wednesday.

Jay Griggs has purchased a new Star Coach.

A nice shower of rain fell in this vicinity Sunday evening.

Mr and Mrs. Clyde Marshall and children were Sunday visitors at the D A and Herb Marshal home.

Herb and Gilman Marshall were business callers at Mason City last Wednesday

Jane Dutheridge and GeGrtie Trampel spent Tuesday afternoon at Bayside

Mr and Mrs Fred Haupt and daughter, Edith, were visitors at the Clarence Bachman home Thursday.

Mrs John Bachman was a visitor with her mother, Mrs Hanson, at Concord Wednesday evening.

Mr and Mrs Peter Trampel and family were visitors at the John Bachman home Thursday evening

Kenneth Bell had the misfortune to have his leg broken Monday noon when he was kicked by a mule

Mrs Rob Roths was a Saturday afternoon caller at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bachman.

Mrs. D A. Marshall and granddaughter, Irene Marshall, were callers at the Fred Bachman home Friday afternoon.

Ell Township News

(Special Times Reporter)

Roy Swanson was avisitor at Cedar Falls Sunday.

Mrs George Buseman and children were Garner callers Tuesday afternoon.

Stella Bock was a visitor at the Ernest Schuldt home Saturday evening and Sunday.

Sam Larsen has been putting up hay the past week on the farm occupied by Carl Pearson.

Mrs Fred Becker has been on the sick list the past week. She was a victim of the Flu.

Ella Barz has been helping at the Frank Rosendahl home the past week Mr. Rosendahl is seriously ill at this writing.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bell and little daughter Julia Jane were visitors t the John Bock home Tuesday evening

Edwin Bock returned from the Mercy Hospital, Tuesday. He is making a fine recovery from the major operation he underwent some time ago.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Reformed Church met at the Henry Barz home Wednesday afternoon. After the regular meeting a delicious lunch was served by the hostess.

Avery-Twin Lakes News

(Special Times Reporter)

Benny Schaeper visited with Verner Priebe Tuesday.

Some farmers are through outting oats and also are through shocking.

Charles Busch is helping with harvesting at the Will Wenz farm.

Mr and Mrs. Walter Bredlow and family were Sunday visitors at the Owen Neuhring home.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Etchen were Sunday evening visitors at the Rhine Schlawin home.

The hail which fell Sunday did a great deal of damage to the corn but the rain was much appreciated by all

Mr and Mrs Peters of Ackley came Saturday for an over Sunday visit at the George Platt and Fred Etchen homes.

Mr and Mrs Dick Fuls and other relatives from the state of Washington called at the Dick Swalve, Herman Priebe and Gilbert Schaeper homes Monday evening.

Herman Priebe, Ewald Josten and Albert Priebe drove to Cherokee Sunday for a visit with Henry Josten, who underwent an operation for cancer of the lip. They report that he is getting along well.

Mrs. Nettie Tabat and daughters, Louise and Della of Thornton came Sunday for a visit at the Dick Swalve home Because of the heavy rain they were forced to remain until Monday. Mrs. Tabat and Mrs. Swalve are cousins.

Liberty News Notes

(Special Times Reporter)

Frank Rosendahl has been very sick the past week.

Grandma Lemke is visiting at the John Lemke home.

A nice shower of rain fell Sunday afternoon. A little damage was done by the hail.

A large crowd of this veilnity attended the band concert at Garner Tuesday evening.

Dorothy Marshall is home after a two week's visit at the Roy Fuller home in Canton, South Dakota.

Most of the farmers of this vicinity will finish harvesting grain this week.

Ethel Beier, who was just getting over an attack of the flu, was again taken ill last week. We hope to report her O. K. in our next writing

Mr. and Mrs. Rhine Lomke were visiting at the Ray Johnson home at Mason City last Sunday. They also visited Herman Lemke and other friends at the hospital.

"PICKLE" WORMS WHEN MAILING TO AMES

Some Of Them On Way To Ames Have Escaped

Hundreds of borers have been arriving at Ames the last few weeks by mail, but some of them have escaped before they reached their destination by boring holes thru pasteboard packages, corks of bottles and paper wrappings.

As a result, the entomolgoists at Iowa State College who were asked to identify the various pests request that the insects submitted be placed in a botle containing a 3 per cent solution of formalin. This will kill the insect, but preserve it so that it may be identified.

The majority of the borers arriving at the college for identification recently have been the common stalk borer and not the dread European corn borer as many have feared. The common stalk borer has been especially destructive in corn fields and gardens this year.

In sending specimens for identification, the part of the plant on which the pest is working should be included. The bottle containing the formalin and pest may be enclosed in a mailing tube. Care should be taken to label the packages carefully and to number them if more than one is sent.

ANNOUNCE REDUCED RATES.

Des Moines, Special: All railroads in Iowa and northern Missouri have announced drastic reductions in rates in connection with the Iowa State Fair and National Livestock Show which will be held here August 24 to September 2.

All roads are offering a special rate of one cent a milo each way for round trip throughout the entire period of the exposition, and some are providing speci ' inducements even lower than this.

COLLEGES TO EXHIBIT.

Des Moines, Special: Iowa's national leadership in the field of education is to be demonstrated graphically this summer in connection with the formal opening of the new $350,000 Iowa Educational Building at the coming Iowa State Fair, August 24 to September 2.

Approximately 50 different colleges, universities and other educational institutions of the state will have more than 90,000 square feet of exhibits of their work on display when the new building is opened to the public on the first day of the fair. The exhibitors will include the State University, Iowa State College, State Teachers' College, practically all the denominational colleges, all the institutions operated by the State Board of Control, and a large number of the state's different welfare institutions. In addition to these exhibits, the new building will house the art display which features paintings and drawings by Iowa artists, both amateur and professional, in the annual statewide art contest conducted by the State Fair Management.

FEEDER CATTLE AT FAIR.

Des Moines, Special: The latest advances which have been made by Iowa livestock feeders in the scientific production of beef for the big markets will be demonstrated in a big Feeder Cattle exhibit which will be one of the attractions at the National Livestock Show to be held in connection with the 1927 Iowa State Fair, opening here August 24.

The exhibit will include the different types of feeder cattle available to the farmer, and side by side with these animals will bo shown cattle of similar grades after they have been fed out, together with dollars-and cents comparisons showing the profits which the farmer may expect to make from each grade of steers. For the benefit of the housewife the exhibit will explain the difference between the quality of beef in finished cuts of meat obtained from these grades. The new markings adopted by the United States government for designating prime, best, and good cuts will also be shown. This exhibit is one of the first of its kind ever conducted in the United States and is expected to be a big attraction at the coming exposition here.

A THREE-FOLD RACING PROGRAM

Dos Moines, Special: Whippet dog racing, horse racing, and auto racing, the three biggest summer pastimes in the world of outdoor sports, headline the entertainment program which will feature the 1927 Iowa State Fair, opening here August 24th.

Whippet dog racing, which created such a sensation when introduced to Iowa for the first time at the fair last summer, will be a regular feature on six days of the fair, with seven races a day and with entries from some of the most famous kennels of North America and Europe. There will be five days of horse racing for purses totalling more than $20,000, including one complete day of running races on Saturday, August 28. Two big auto race programs have been planned for this year. The entire afternoon on both the opening and closing Fridays of the fair has been set aside for the auto classics, and entries have already been received from the most famous dirt track drivers of the United States and Canada.

The racing program at the fair this summer is one of the most comprehensive ever drawn up for any of the great midwestern expositions and, with the 12,000 seating capacity provided by the new State Fair Amphitheatre, it is expected that this will be one of the contributing factors in setting new attendance records this year.

CHALLENGES IOWANS

"Put" Mossman of Eldora, state horseshoe pitching champion of Iowa, who has issued a challenge to horseshoe pitchers of the state in connection with the annual championship tournament to be held at the Iowa State fair, August 29 to August 31. It is already estimated that nearly 100 pitchers from all parts of the state will accept Mossman's challenge and seek championship honors at the Des Moines Exposition.

Twenty-five years from now we may be fussing over the American who made a trip to the moon and back.

NOTICE OF DISSOLUTION

To Whom It May Concern:

Notice is hereby given, that the Corporation known as the Farmers Lumber Company of Klemme, Iowa having sold all of its assets and liquidated all of its liabilities, did on the 2 day of July A. D. 1927, by unanimous action of its stockholders, dissolve the corporation.

Dated this 2 day of July A. D 1927.

WM. F. GREIMANN, Jr.
President

B. F. GREIMANN,
Secretary

(Publish July 7-14-21-28, 1927.)

For Anyone Wanting Cheap, Reliable Insurance—There Is None Better Than—

TOWN MUTUAL
Dwelling House Insurance ASSOCIATION
—Of Des Moines, Ia.—

For Particulars See

H. L. SUCKOW, Sr.
Agent Klemme, Ia.

Homelike Cooknig

If you are sandwich hungry or ready for a juicy steak.

If you are "all set" for a good dinner or just want a "snack"—we're waiting for you—all set.

Good, substantial wholesome food.

HIGLEY'S LUXUS
ICE CREAM

—is sold here in bulk or served as sundaes. Try a quart next time.

Give us the pleasure of welcoming you today—

New Cafe

M. O. BARR, Prop.

Farm

Loans

5%

Isaac Sweigard

Garner Iowa

PIANOS

Players & Grand
New and
Second Hand

M. N. ZEIGER

Jewelry & Optical Goods
GARNER, IOWA

1—Japanese troops marching to their camp in Shantung province, China, their presence causing official protest from Chinese governments. 2—Mrs. Clarence W. Smith of New York, new chairman of national council of National Women's party. 3—Air view of Vienna, Austria, scene of bloody riots started by communists.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Mr. Hoover Offers Flood Relief and Control Plan to President.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

FLOOD relief and control work by congress, covering a period of ten years and costing more than $150,000,000 is recommended by Secretary of Commerce Hoover in the comprehensive report on the Mississippi valley disaster of this year which he laid before President Coolidge at the summer White House. His control project, besides providing for taking over and improving the levee system, embraces a plan for completion of the navigation program of the Mississippi and its main tributaries which he says can be carried out at an additional cost of fifteen to twenty millions a year.

Mr. Hoover declared that the flood control program must embrace the following principles:

1. Higher and consequently wider levees and the extension of federal responsibility for levees in some of the tributaries.

2. A safety valve upon the levee system by the provision of a spillway or by-pass to the gulf to protect New Orleans and southern Louisiana—most probably the Atchafalaya river for this purpose.

3. For further safety measures the engineers are examining the possible extension of the by-pass to the northward from the Atchafalaya toward the Arkansas, the possible erection of emergency flood basins, and the possibility of store in the tributaries.

Concerning the relief work Mr. Hoover said in part:

"The financial situation on relief is that we can complete all these programs—seed, food, feed, furniture, animals, house construction, sanitation. By the first of November we estimate we shall have spent $13,400,000 Red Cross funds, $7,000,000 equipment and supplies from the federal government, $3,000,000 free railway transportation, and provided $1,100,000 for county health cleanup units. We should have left $3,000,000 from the $16,500,000 subscribed to the Red Cross with which to face continued necessities after November 1. It is impossible to determine what the necessities will be after that date."

ANOTHER caller on the President was Senator Smoot, chairman of the senate finance committee, who presented his plan for tax reduction. This program is based on a tax cut of $300,000,000 and includes the following items:

Reduction of the corporation tax from 13½ to 12 per cent, lopping off $150,000,000 annual revenue.

Elimination of taxes on admissions and club dues, cutting the nation's income $37,000,000 yearly.

Reduction of tax on passenger automobiles from 3 per cent to 1½ per cent, costing $50,000,000.

Graduated scale reduction on incomes between $15,000, and $60,000.

MICHAEL, a golden-haired child not yet six years old, is now king of Rumania, for the picturesque King Ferdinand succumbed on July 20 to the malady that made his death imminent for many months. Until the new monarch reaches his eighteenth year the country will be ruled by a regency comprised of his uncle, Prince Nicholas, Miron Cristea, patriarch of the Rumanian orthodox church, and Judge Buzdugan of the supreme court.

In announcing the death of Ferdinand the government issued an official statment saying it will not waver from the decision of the crown council on January 4, 1926, at which Prince Carol was disinherited and Prince Michael, his son, proclaimed crown prince, and that the government will support the regency, and "if necessary, resort to arms to prevent the reinstatement of Carol."

The commander of the Second army corps, stationed in Bucharest, issued a statement informing the country that the state of siege continues, and warning newspaper men that if they spread false alarms they will be liable to court-martial.

Prince Carol, at his home of exile in Neuilly, near Paris, received word of his father's demise and at once secluded himself, sending word to the press that he expected to be recalled to Rumania and calling himself "king."

Ferdinand's last words, as he died in the arms of Queen Marie, were: "I am feeling tired." His body lay in state in Cotroceni palace outside Bucharest until Saturday, when the state funeral was held. Then the casket was placed in the family vaults at the monastery of Curtea Arges.

Premier Bratiano took strong measures to prevent any uprising, public buildings and strategic points being occupied by troops and meetings being forbidden. Queen Marie received messages of condolence from all over the world, including one from President and Mrs. Coolidge, and the British and Belgian courts went into mourning.

TAKING advantage of a strike of protest ordered by Vienna Socialists because of the acquittal of some Fascist slayers, the communist agitators there tried to get control of the city and set up a soviet government. Mobs, stirred to riot, marched through the city, looting public buildings and burning the palace of justice, and fighting the police fiercely. The local contingents of troops were disinclined to fire on the crowds, so the Seipel government called in troops from provincial garrisons. These, with the help of the Social Democrats, soon gained control of the situation, and the civil war which the communists were trying to stir up was averted.

The strike had stopped all transportation, and threats were received from Italy that if Italian trains were not permitted to pass through the country, troops would be sent into the Austrian Tyrol, occupying the railroad line up to the German border. The government of Austria threatened to take radical steps to end the strike, and the nationalist villages, the anti-socialist peasantry and the loyal Heimwehr or home guards gave Premier Sepel full support. So the labor unions and Socialists of Vienna yielded and the strike was called off.

The flurry, however, was costly to Austria in several ways. During the rioting scores of persons were killed and hundreds wounded; the destruction of property was great, and in the burning of the palace of justice all the nation's financial records were lost. The government was fearful lest the disturbances might keep many tourists away from Vienna.

DOWN in Nicaragua one rebel leader, General Sandino, refused to submit to the peace terms imposed by the United States, and last week he led his brigand band of 500 in attacking a small detachment of American marines and native constabulary at Ocotal. Capt. G. D. Hatfield was in command and his little force fought back desperately. Marine scouting planes carried word of the battle to Managua and five bombing planes commanded by Maj. Ross E. Rowell flew to the rescue through a severe tropical storm. With bombs and machine guns they speedily routed the rebels, of whom about 300 were killed. The marines lost only one man. Sandino, still defiant, fled to the mountains and a column of troops was sent out with orders to get him.

Delegates to the fifth congress of the Pan-American Federation of Labor, in session in Washington, denounced this killing of Nicaraguan citizens, and President William Green of the American Federation of Labor, who presided at the opening of the congress, sharply denounced American intervention in the domestic affairs of Latin American countries and wrote a letter of protest to Secretary of State Kellogg. In reply Mr. Kellogg warmly defended the action of the marines, and set forth clearly the conditions in Nicaragua which had resulted in the outlawing of Sandino, who had neither the support nor the approval of any of the leaders of the political parties in Nicaragua. The resolutions committee of the Pan-American labor congress adopted a resolution asking the immediate withdrawal of American forces from Nicaragua.

Brigadier General Feland, commanding the marines in Nicaragua, has recommended that the distinguished service medal be awarded Major Rowell, who, he says, saved the little garrison at Ocotal from great loss of life and almost certain destruction.

GREAT BRITAIN and Japan reached some sort of accord on the cruiser question in the conference at Geneva and the plan was presented to the Americans, who did not seem especially pleased with it. Then the British government called Viscount Cecil and W. C. Bridgeman to London for consultation with the cabinet, and at once there were reports that the conference was on the verge of a breakdown. This was strongly denied in London, where a foreign office spokesman asserted that the hope for an agreement was stronger than at any time since the conference began. The Japanese delegates in Geneva also were optimistic, predicting that an agreement would be reached by the middle of August. The British before leaving Geneva had consented to reduce their demands for cruisers and destroyers from 800,000 tons to 500,000 tons, as insisted upon by the Japanese, and hoped this would induce the Americans to agree to bar eight-inch guns on all but 10,000-ton cruisers; but Mr. Gibson would not surrender this point.

FIVE transatlantic flyers—Byrd, Noville, Acosta, Balchen and Chamberlin—returned to the United States by steamer and were given New York's usual noisy reception, with parade, paper confetti, banquets and medals. The two first were awarded the navy's distinguished flying cross. Lieutenants Maitland and Hegenberger, who flew to Honolulu, had a triumphant trip across the country on their way to Washington, where Secretary of State Kellogg and other government officials greeted them warmly. They, too, will receive the distinguished flying cross when President Coolidge returns to the capital.

Colonel Lindbergh picked up his "Spirit of St. Louis" at Mitchel field, New York, and started on a tour of the country to tell the people of the advance of aviation and the needs of more and larger airports. His first stop was at Hartford, Conn., where he spoke at the Hartford club.

Capt. F. T. Courtney, British aviator, was all ready for his attempted flight from England to America, with a stop at Valencia, Ireland, but was delayed by unfavorable weather. He was to carry a crew of two men and intended to fly from the Irish town direct to Newfoundland.

JACK DEMPSEY, former heavyweight champion, "came back" in the fight with Jack Sharkey in New York and won the right to challenge Gene Tunney for the title. He knocked out the Boston lad in the seventh round with a hard left hook to the jaw. The battle was lively and aroused the enthusiasm of 83,000 persons who were present. Sharkey claimed that he was fouled in the final round, but this was denied by Dempsey and by Referee O'Sullivan.

IOWA'S Lowden-for-President club announces that more than 100,000 persons in that state have signed the petition asking Frank O. Lowden to seek the Republican Presidential nomination and pledging him their support. Among the signers are Gov. John Hammill and more than 90 per cent of the employees in the Iowa state capitol building. Action of the governor in signing the petition nullified the hopes of his friends that Mr. Hammill, who, like Mr. Lowden, has been a leader in the farm relief fight, might become a vice presidential candidate next year on a Coolidge ticket.

MINOR items of news:

Aaron Sapiro has dismissed his million-dollar libel suit against Henry Ford, accepting the automobile manufacturer's apology and a "substantial sum" of money.

Standard Oil Company of New Jersey announces it will have no business relations with the soviet government of Russia so long as that government declines to recognize private property rights.

Hankow and Hanyang, China, were occupied by Gen. Ho Chien, a Conservative southern leader. Mme. Sun Yat-sen, widow of China's first President, retired from political life.

What's the Answer?

Questions No. 8

1—Who won the batting championship in the American league in 1920?

2—What American general was killed in the Philippines?

3—What vice president resigned and when?

4—How much gold has a 14-karat ring?

5—Why is it called "Adam's apple"?

6—What was the first English comedy?

7—What peninsula is the largest in Europe?

8—Where is the Bodleian library, and when was it founded?

9—Who said: "No terms except an unconditional and immediate surrender can be accepted"?

10—What are the three largest corporations in the United States?

11—Who was voted the most valuable player to his team in 1920?

12—What is cork?

13—Where are milk pails filled from trees?

14—What state was originally colonized by the Swedes?

15—When was the Cherokee Strip opened?

16—What is the most famous religious painting by Leonardo da Vinci; the most famous portrait?

17—Which is the highest mountain chain of the European continent?

18—What American historian was minister to Spain?

19—Who said: "I am going into Mobile bay in the morning if God is my leader, as I hope He is"?

20—In what parts of the United States is the shortage of domestic help most acute?

Answers No. 7

1—On application by both partners or either of them.

2—Daniel Webster.

3—Owen Wister.

4—Colombia and Venezuela.

5—Jan, Hubert and Margaret Van Eyck; Flanders, latter half of the Fifteenth century.

6—E. G. Chandler of California.

7—A stick seems to bend in water because of a change in direction of light after it enters the water.

8—The hottest season of the year is called "dog days" because it falls in the period 20 days before and after the rising of the "dog star."

9—Half-Moon.

10—George Washington, 1793.

11—John Quincy Adams.

12—Fort Schuyler, New York, 1777.

13—Sudden emotion causes the muscles of the throat to work upward, pressing against the windpipe, and causing one to feel as if there was a lump in the throat.

14—Death valley in California.

15—R. T. Jones, Jr., of Atlanta, Ga.

16—Wagner.

17—Europe.

18—Samuel Pepys.

19—General Bee of the Confederate army.

20—Belgium.

Colorado Boasts of Most Expensive Road

The most expensive road built in the United States is in Colorado.

This is the state highway between Ouray, Silverton and Durango and parts of it cost $50,000 a mile.

This highway follows an old toll road and to construct it the state had to blast out large sections of the mountains, build masonry embankments, fill in gorges construct bridges and build stone walls to make travel safe.

There are numerous places where the stream in the bottom of the canon near Ouray is more than 2,000 feet below the highway and other places where it is 3,000 feet or more.

Aside from the scenic gradeur of this highway, piercing as it does some of the most rugged mountains in the state, the marvel in its construction is the wonder of the auto tourist. It is on the direct route between Mesa Verde, Telluride, Ouray, Silverton and Durango.

Wesley Great Horseman

The most redoubtable horseman of the Eighteenth century was John Wesley. All through his active life he rode from 60 to 70 miles a day; after he was eighty years of age his record for a year was from 4,000 to 5,000 miles. Often he was in the saddle by 3 a. m., and, when weather permitted, it was his custom to ride with loose rein, reading history the while. —A. M. Pagan, in the Empire Review.

Explorer's Homely Longing

Roald Amundsen, the famous Norwegian explorer, who won the race to the South pole, was once asked whether he longed for any particular sort of food as he struggled miserably through the snow. He replied that he was always longing for a cup of hot coffee and a plate of bread and butter.

Men enduring hardships in foreign lands never seem to pine for rich French dishes, but for the everyday things they despised at home.

Expert Advice

Merchant—Do you believe the business man should go into politics?

Politician—Certainly, provided he has plenty of money, is willing to spend it and goes in on my side.—Life.

A New Way to Make Jellies

Without Staining Fingers—Without Long Hours of Boiling—Without Depending Upon Berries or Fruit Being in Season.

One of the most interesting and yet one of the simplest new products in the food field is called minute jelly. It is pure fruit or berry juice already boiled down and concentrated. To this concentrated juice, fruit pectin in the right amount has been added. The pectin is that part of fruit which makes jelly "jell." It is as pure and wholesome as the fruit juice.

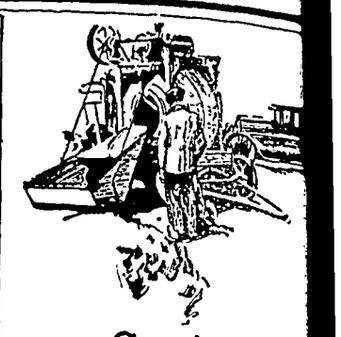
To make the jelly take the little bottle of concentrated juice, pour in a sauce pan, add water and sugar according to directions on the bottle and boil a few minutes. Then pour into jelly glasses and when it has become cold you have the most delicious pure fruit jelly you ever tasted.

A few bottles kept on hand, selected according to your taste for jellies, and you can make up a few glasses just as you want it. One small bottle makes two glasses of jelly. If you wish to try two bottles send us twenty-five cents and we will give you your choice of grape, mint, pineapple, orange, raspberry, strawberry or blackberry. Or four bottles—all different—for fifty cents. Address Department WU, General Packing Corp., Cranford, New Jersey.—Adv.

These Changing Times

Black—Times have changed.

Rock—Yes; before, when a man was run down he took a tonic, now he takes an ambulance.



Stationary Engine Opera

If you operate a cem mixer, a compressor, or type of stationary eng driven equipment just stall a set of Champion you want the dependabil the efficiency and econo that makes Champion better spark plug.

Champion is the better spark plug because of its double-ribbed sillimanite core—its two-piece construction and its special analysis electrodes.

Champion X—for Fords 60¢

Champion—Cars other than Fords 75¢

CHAMPIO Spark Plugs TOLEDO, OHIO

For your protection be sure Champions you buy are the original Champion carto

Defect in a great facility with is that you have so few chanc exhibit it.

Anyone who pans his friend hind their backs, doesn't deser have any.

Bringing up Children

"MY sisters, my sister-in-law and myself all have families, and for years we have all given our children Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. We have recommended it hundreds of times and think it just wonderful, not only to bring up children but for ourselves. At the slightest sign of stomach trouble, colds, constipation and when out of sorts, a dose or two is all they need. Truly, it is a family medicine and the stitch in time that saves nine." (Name and address sent on request.)

Constipation, Colds, Coughs, Fevers and Other Perils of Childhood

One dose and mother's anxiety is lifted. The sickest stomach craves the taste of Syrup Pepsin. From infancy to old age the result is certain. Droopy, listless, feverish children respond as if to magic. Headache, stomachache, biliousness, coated tongue, constipation—these are the daily perils for which a host of mothers say Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is the safeguard. Sold and recommended by all druggists.

For a free trial bottle send name and address to Pepsin Syrup Company, Monticello, Illinois.

Dr. Caldwell's SYRUP PEPSIN

CUTICURA

Helps Business Girls to Look Their Best

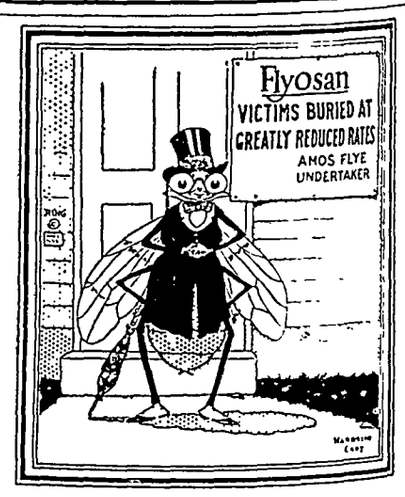
The regular use of Cuticura Soap, assisted by touches of Cuticura Ointment when required, keeps the complexion fresh and free from blemishes, the hair live and glossy, and the hands soft and smooth. Cuticura Talcum is fragrant and refreshing, an ideal toilet powder.

Soap 25c. Ointment 25 and 50c. Talcum 25c. Sold everywhere. Sample each free. Address: "Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. B3, Malden, Mass."

Cuticura Shaving Stick 25c.

Bugville's Richest Citizen—

But Flyosan will get him too!



HE'S BEEN burying flies and mosquitoes by the millions.

Flyosan floats through your rooms, killing every single fly and mosquito—getting into corners and crevices you could never see.

But use Flyosan itself—the first liquid insect spray on the market (non-poisonous). Flyosan not only kills every fly and mosquito in your house, but also kills the millions of deadly, disease-bearing germs on the body of each.

And "swatting" only scatters these germs into the air you and your family breathe.

Peterman's has the right insecticide for each insect. On sale wherever drugs are sold.

Here is the right insecticide for each insect:

FLYOSAN, Liquid Spray—kills flies and mosquitoes.

PETERMAN'S ANT FOOD—exterminates ants.

PETERMAN'S DISCOVERY, Liquid—exterminates bedbugs.

PETERMAN'S ROACH FOOD—exterminates that cockroach army.

PETERMAN'S MOTH FOOD—protects against moths.

You must have a specific insecticide for each insect. No single insecticide will exterminate them all. We have had nearly 50 years' experience. We know that is true.

Peterman's

200 Fifth Ave., N. Y. C.

MEN MAROONED

By GEORGE MARSH

Copyright by The Penn Publishing Co.
WNU Service.

CHAPTER I

—1—

Where sinister cloud banks with gray waters the sullen bay fitfully. Along shore, plover, er and yellow-legs, godwit and ed behind the retreating tide, restless flocks of teal and pin- trolled the flats between the and the sea. Inland, where anting hawk-owls wheeled and low over the grass flats, black rose from a pool as a heavily ed figure made its way slowly a tent on an alder-grown of higher land thrusting sea- into the marsh. As the man the camp, a dog barked. Then rning, rough and sharp, soft- to whines and yelps of recogni- Plunging at a stake, a huge aire- wriggled an ecstatic welcome to se-laden master.

llo, Shot, old boy!" With an ex- llon of relief the man stretched ms, for his load had been heavy. a rangy and well made, his lean, ly modeled features bronzed by and sun. From the corner of the eye a scar crossed the cheek to the ear.

cing his gun in the tent, the e-hunter freed the plunging dog. ughout the long hours of the day soner at his stake, nose tortured the scent, eyes hungry with the t of passing duck and geese, the sle went mad at his release. hile the animal worked off his energy in thrashing through the rs and long grass in the vicinity he camp, his master started a fire put on a kettle of goose to boil; went in search of drift cedar, for eptember norther on the west coast ames bay may blow for days, and r kindlings kept dry in a tent are ful.

an hour the marshes were purple dusk. Then over the bay an un- ken roar as of a thousand guns, pled with thrusts of light, signaled turn of the tide, and the barrage wind and rain opened. Along the e beaches thundered the surf. A back in the rocking alders, in a tent anchored and propped against pounding of the wind, a man lay h his dog.

s Garth Guthrie listened to the mor of the wind, the far drumbeat the advancing tide, the drive of the like machine-gun bursts on his t, his thoughts followed the throb- g years through which he had just ed. Here, in this wild night on the y coast of the bay, how shadowy seemed—that war which had caught up, a boy fresh from college, and pped him a man, scarred of body— illusioned. Even Ethel seemed dowy, although her last letter ught up the coast by canoe packet m Fort Albany hardly two weeks fore, had flicked him with remorse— et, almost, for his decision to win again on the bay—Ethel, whom he d taken by storm (as he thought) the time of his short leave home, Montreal, after the tragic Somme. It had been a typical war wooing. ilisting as a private, he had gone erseas with the first Canadian di- ion, and returned, late in 1916, a keran platoon leader, wearing a ound stripe and the Military cross; one morning, in his English hos- tal, Lieut. Garth Guthrie had re- ived a double surprise—a decoration gallantry and sixty days' home re while his wounded left arm re- vered its strength. This last was tently the work of his older brother, arles, whose Montreal machine ops were running night and day on vernment shell contracts, for home re was rare among the Canadians. Then he had met Ethel.

With a boy of twenty-four, who, two ars before, had carried the dreams a college senior into the shambles Flanders, the hours spent with the rely Ethel Falconer could march to t one fulfillment. A member of the ining corps organized by Clara uthrie, Garth's efficient sister-in-law, e girl had captured his imagination their first meeting. Youth, war, d Mrs. Guthrie had done the rest.

So young Lieutenant Guthrie, ounded and decorated for bravery, d brother of the maker of muni- ons and member of government oards, had, in those tense, dramatic ays, found to his delight that the urse of true love often runs surpris- gly smooth. In a manner foreign to arlier generations, Ethel Falconer ad met the impetuosity of the ardent oung soldier with a response equally rank. The days of his leave were too uelly short to be wasted. In a week e was wearing his ring.

Then came the parting, and the two astly years—nightmares of grime d slaughter, soul-harrowing months alternate hope and despair, fol- wed by—victory! To the man lying the tent shaken by the storm re- rned the face of Ethel, vivid as hen, on his return from overseas, he ood at the rail of his ship being arped to its pier.

It had been a proud and happy omecoming for Maj. Garth Guthrie, . S. O., but the three wound stripes n the sleeve of his tunic were not mpty symbols. There remained to e man in the tent the clear-cut mem- ry of the moment when his yearn- g arms had released her and Ethel ad gasped, "Oh, Garth, how thin and ld you've grown!" Then, as he urned to hug Clara and his brother, e ill-concealed start—the look of ain when Ethel Falconer first saw e red scar furrowing his cheek from eye to ear. His letters had casually mentioned a scratch on the face, for it was gas which had held him weeks in the hospital. Until he met Ethel that morning on the pier he had forgotten—he was disfigured.

So poignant was the memory that the man, stretched on his blankets in the dim candle light instinctively raised his right hand to trace with his fingers the course of the bullet which had seared his face. Then with much grunting a hairy body wriggled its way to a place beside him; the moist nose of a massive, leonine head was thrust into his face, while from a deep throat came low noises.

"Etienne is surely making a wet night of it in the bush, Shot," said the man, as the wind drove the rain in bursts against the straining fly of the tent. Then with the hairy bulk of the contented dog sprawled against the length of his recumbent body, head propped on one hand while the other rubbed the airedale's ears, Guthrie's thoughts were again with his homecoming, two years before.

The tense days following his landing marched past his dreaming eyes in a pageant of camp life and military duties preceding the discharge of his battery; swift hours with Ethel, dinners with his family, reunions with old friends. Again he rode through cheering thousands in the final review of his brigade.

He chuckled at the memory of Shot, marching with battalion headquarters in full field kit and wearing a blanket with its wound stripe.

Nightmares of Grime and Slaughter.

At the time of his discharge the surgeons had shaken their heads over his lungs. "You're not out of the woods yet," he had been told. "A long rest in the open air, or you'll have trouble with that chest." But a desk in the office of Charles Guthrie waited him and he had kept his own counsel.

"You've lost five years, old man," his materialist brother had deprecated.

"You're twenty-six and have a lot to learn."

Hot blood had darkened Garth's face. "Lost five years? Where would you and your money be if millions of us hadn't lost five years?" he blurted.

"Oh, you know I appreciate all that, old chap," soothed the smug Charles. "It's unnecessary for me to repeat how proud I am of your record, but you know nothing about the business as yet; and I want to see you in a position to marry."

True, Garth had acknowledged, he knew nothing of the Guthrie Steel company, which, created and developed by the energy and ability of Charles Guthrie, had, through war contracts, made his brother a millionaire. And then there was Ethel, waiting. So, instead of the summer in the open air on which the doctors had insisted, he had gone to work.

The fingers of the man lying in the tent shut convulsively on the thick mane of his dog as he remembered the pain which thrust through him when he had first realized that Ethel never voluntarily walked or sat on his right side. Coming from a world of broken men, where the blind and the maimed were commonplaces, he had almost forgotten the shock the scar on his cheek had given her the day of his homecoming. Unpleasant though it might be, this red gash, to look upon, it was nevertheless the symbol of his service, the measure of his manhood. Yet to the girl who loved him, it seemed a thing of aversion—repulsive. Following the discovery, he had, on meeting her ironically covered the cicatrix with his hand, or turned his head, but the red shame and the passionate tears of protest, which it invariably induced, checked him.

That Ethel Falconer was not of the fiber of many of the women he knew, who patently cherished the scars of their men—gloried, seemingly, in these proofs of their sacrifice for Canada and the empire, had forced itself upon the consciousness of Guthrie with a bitterness with which his philosophy vainly contended. Vehement as were her protests, her denials, when, in a moment of depression and disillusion, he had suggested that to hold her to a promise made in 1916 to a man whose face was presentable and body sound, was grossly unfair, now that he had returned to her the flotsam of war, scarred, changed, he nevertheless knew that Ethel, too, was having her bad half hours. But notwithstanding his moment of doubt, his gray moods, due as much to physical condition as unhappiness, Garth Guthrie had valiantly clung to the dreams of the fair girl he had taken back overseas with him after the golden fortnight in 1916.

Then, after six months in the office and foundry of Charles Guthrie, the lungs of the returned soldier had developed a condition which medical authorities diagnosed as alarming. A certain sanatorium in the foothills of the Laurentians was the imperative order, and the wedding in the spring, for which Ethel and Clara Guthrie had so meticulously planned, was indefinitely postponed.

With his dog, trained as a puppy behind the lines in 1918, Guthrie left Montreal to make the fight for lost health—and happiness And before the snows left the Quebec hills and the spruces dripped in April thaws, he was well on the road to the first. Six months in the Laurentians had healed the lung lesions and put back the hard weight he had lost, but it was under strict parole that the Garth Guthrie of old, burned to a deep tan by the sunglare from the March crust, one day walked in on Ethel and his sister-in-law. That night at dinner, through the course of which the practical Charles dwelt at length on his plans for his brother's apprenticeship in a special branch of the growing business, the sober eyes of Garth lit with frank amusement—the hint of a smile repeatedly lifted the corners of his mouth. At length the older brother abruptly demanded:

"You don't seem to be taking me seriously, Garth?"

"My dear Charlie," the man on parole rejoined, "I most certainly am deeply grateful for this interest in my future—these plans of yours; but I have put off telling you something—"

He paused, avoiding the startled look of Ethel, as he continued: "The big man at the hospital talked like a father to me this morning before I left. He said," deliberately continued Garth, "that it was a year in the open air for me, or . . . well, he wouldn't give much for my chances."

"Oh, Garth!" Slowly the blond head of the girl drooped to his shoulder, as the pained eyes of Clara met her husband's shocked look.

"My poor boy! You—you mean he actually ordered you away—for a year?" stammered the incredulous Charles.

Garth's arm shepherded the quivering shoulders of the girl, as he nodded to his brother over her golden head.

"But you look so fit—so rugged, Garth," protested Clara. "You've recovered all your weight. I don't understand."

"And the wedding?" Ethel's questing eyes lifted to his.

"Poor dear! I wouldn't have the heart to take you up there. It would be unthinkable." He gravely shook his head.

"Up where?" She turned on him—fear in her eyes. "You can live out of doors here?"

"I can't loaf here—I must do something. And a friend has offered me the chance of air—and work, too. Up on James bay. I've been offered a job with the Hudson's Bay company."

Had Guthrie's announced destination been China, the shock could not have been more profound to his hearers. The plump face of his brother darkened in a scowl of frank disapproval. Clara sat open-mouthed, incredulous. Ethel probed Garth's level eyes, as if in doubt of his meaning—then, chin in hands, stared dully at the tablecloth.

"You bound yourself," she said at length, in a voice empty of emotion. "You planned all this—to go away for a year—without consulting me— I don't seem to count, then." Rising stiffly, she had left the room, followed by the sympathetic Clara.

Yes, it had been brutally abrupt—unfeeling, admitted the man lying by his sleeping dog, as the storm drove past the tent in the alders. But the alternative would have been endless letters of protest, reproach, so he had not written. Through the slow months of the winter, with their loneliness and introspection, he had learned to doubt both himself and Ethel. Often in the intervals between her visits with Clara—Charles had been too busy to appear more than once—Garth had desperately tried to analyze the nature of her affection; often, in his doubt of her, fought to free himself from the magic of her hold over him; always, in the end, to realize how he was missing her—how hungrily he waited for her coming. No, the separation had not broken the spell or lessened his need of her, but it had touched his enamored eyes with vision. There in the white hills of his banishment, beyond the glamor of her physical loveliness, he had learned to see how utterly she had failed him. Hurt in body, disillusioned, he had returned from the holocaust of Flanders to the refuge of her arms—the solace of her love—to find regret—a veiled shrinking from the change in him; to learn that she still clung to her memories of the boy with unmarred face who had carried away her heart into the maelstrom of the final years of the war.

He pictured the scene at the Victoria station. Old comrades—fellow officers, there with their Godspeed, chatting in a group, nearby, while he talked with family.

"To think that I can hear from you so seldom—that is what makes it so hard," Ethel was saying.

With a thrust of the old pain he remembered that the girl whose face bore the unmistakable marks of suffering even at parting, had, from habit, stood on his left side. A year had failed to reconcile her. The furrowed cheek was still a thing hideous.

"It is tough. There's only the Christmas mail and a summer packet up the coast from Albany," he had replied, "but there's always the chance of a canoe or dog-team being sent through between times. So write regularly and I'll get them in time. In France I'd often get five or six at once—and read them in their order."

"Oh, you mustn't expect the letters I used to write, Garth," she had swiftly replied.

"No," he said grimly, "I've learned not to expect that."

"You know why."

"Yes, I think I know why." They stood, avoiding each other's eyes, in their unvoiced misery.

The train was about to start. A wave to his friends; a grip of the hand for Charles; a hug for the teary Clara; and he turned to the dry-eyed girl. "Good-by, dear. A year is not so long." He took her in his arms and kissed her. But the face he touched was cold. Her arms hung stiff at her side. "Good-by, Ethel," he repeated. "I'm sorry."

"Good-by, Garth," she faltered. "This, I suppose, is the end—I've lost you."

* * * * * * *

Down the Missinaibi to Moose, up the coast to Fort Albany, the man who had gone into the north to find health and the solution of his problem in separation, was companioned by doubt and self-censure. It had been unfair—brutal—this wrenching himself from the sure appeal of her personal charm But in fairness to the future, it was imperative. A year would clarify his vision—prove her hold over him unbearable or make him a free man. However, notwithstanding the bitterness of her farewell, the first mail to reach him in the early months of his apprenticeship in the fur trade had brought letters patently not those of renunciation. On the contrary they dwelt in detail on plans for his future homecoming and the wedding; were gay with gossip; related with frank pride the rumor of a knighthood for services to the government during the war with which the name of Charles Guthrie was being coupled; at times, to his surprise, approached the warmth of the old days.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Hold Church Services in Old Waiting Room

Porters and clerks at Denmark Hill railway station, South London, often work to the accompaniment of hymns sung lustily by a congregation in a disused waiting room next to the booking office, says the Washington Star. The Mystical Church of the Comforter is one of London's most curious churches. Babies are baptized in a room that was once only used by impatient travelers waiting for their trains; funeral services are read in it and a marriage has been solemnized This church has been in existence for about six years.

One end of the former waiting room has been transformed by an altar painted white and surrounded by the seven colors of the rainbow. Seven steps lead to the altar, and at the side are two pillars representing beauty and strength. Everything is done by symbols in this remarkable church and the badge worn by members is a dove standing in a circle with a seven-leafed branch in its beak. The leader and founder of the church was a woman named Mrs. Elizabeth Mary Eagle Skinner, with the official title of "messenger."

Repairing Hard Rubber

The bureau of standards says that hard rubber may be joined by a bond of new hard rubber. A cement is prepared by adding one part of sulphur and three parts of crude rubber to fifty parts of carbon bisulphide and three parts of alcohol. Several applications of the cement are applied to the broken parts. These are finally joined and held under pressure at a temperature of 160 degrees C. for four hours. A mixture of equal parts of gutta percha and bitumen dissolved in carbon bisulphide may also be used to cement the broken portions.

Number of Hound Packs

There are 519 known packs of hounds in the world.

If you are planning to trade-in your present car for a new car, remember these facts:

1 When you trade-in your used car for a new car, you are after all making a purchase, not a sale. You are simply applying your present car as a credit toward the purchase price of the new car.

2 Your used car has only one fundamental basis of value; i. e., what the dealer who accepts it in trade can get for it in the used car market.

3 Your used car has seemingly different values because competitive dealers are bidding to sell you a new car.

4 The largest allowance is not necessarily the best deal for you. Sometimes it is; sometimes it is not.

5 An excessive allowance may mean that you are paying an excessive price for the new car in comparison with its real value.

6 First judge the merits of the new car in comparison with its price, including all delivery and finance charges. Then weigh any difference in allowance offered on your used car.

GENERAL MOTORS

"A car for every purse and purpose"

CHEVROLET · PONTIAC · OLDSMOBILE · OAKLAND
BUICK · LASALLE · CADILLAC
GENERAL MOTORS TRUCKS · YELLOW CABS AND COACHES

FRIGIDAIRE—The electric refrigerator

Ocean Currents

The great current of the Pacific ocean is the Kuro Shio or Japan current, having its source in the north equatorial current. It does not send off a branch into the Bering sea as is commonly supposed. The northerly current of the Bering sea is due to local conditions.

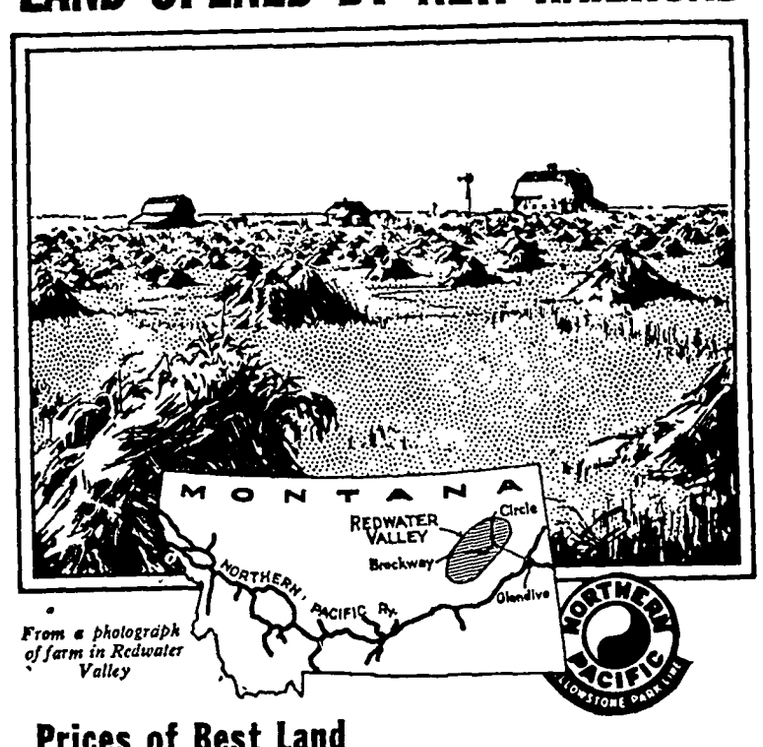
Where It Couldn't Crash

Flying Enthusiast—Is this airplane an absolutely safe one?

Salesman—Safest on earth.

The newest submarine of the British navy is said to be capable of remaining submerged two and one-half days.

MILLION ACRES OF RICH MONTANA LAND OPENED BY NEW RAILROAD



From a photograph of farm in Redwater Valley

Prices of Best Land only $10 to $20 an Acre

ONE million acres of rich, low priced land in the great Redwater Valley country of Southeastern Montana will be opened to farmers this year by a new branch line of the Northern Pacific Railway, running 63 miles from Glendive.

Here the Northern Pacific will sell direct to farmers a half million acres at prices ranging from only $10 to $20 an acre, with 20 years to pay. Taxes are extremely low. Special advantages are available to neighbors and colonies desiring to settle together.

Mixed farming is successful throughout this area. Corn has increased by hundreds of thousands of acres in the last few years in Southeastern Montana. Hog production has grown rapidly. All classes of livestock are raised. The dairy industry is getting a good start.

Communities already are established. Churches have been built. Schools are open. Rapid development will come with the new railroad. Markets will be closer. More farmers will come in. Land values will increase.

The Northern Pacific Railway will help farmers in getting started right. Settlers are wanted who seek a real chance for themselves and their families. The Northern Pacific will send a representative to talk the matter over, if desired. Investigate this opportunity. Let us send you booklets, prices and easy payment plan. All sent free.

MAIL THIS COUPON TODAY!

J. M. Hughes, Land Com.
Northern Pacific Railway Co.,
St. Paul, Minn.

Without obligation on my part please send all information about Redwater Valley Country.

Name _____

Town _____

State _____

Keep after the weeds.

A hen eats 15 to 20 times her weight in grain annually. Hence a layer soon will "eat her head off" says H A Bittenbender, of the poultry department at Ames.

LYRIC
Theatre
—GARNER, IOWA—

Presents The Following Attractions:-

FRIDAY and SATURDAY
July 29-30

"PARTNERS AGAIN"
A stirring picture of New York life

—Comedy—
"CHARLEY MY BOY" ..
Admission 10-25c

TUESDAY and WEDNESDAY
August 2-3

"BROADWAY NIGHTS"
"With Potash & Perlmutter"
—Comedy—
"MUSCLE BOUND MUSIC"
Admission 10-25c

The Misses Leona Lau and Marie Blank left Tuesday for Fort Madison, Iowa where they will attend a convention of the Auxiliary. They expect to return to Klemme Saturday.

R. A. Jorgenson and family spent Sunday at Garner visiting his parents. His mother had just returned from a trip to the Black Hills where she saw President and Mrs. Coolidge going to church at Hermosa one Sunday morning.

A large group of folks in this vicinity and near Garner enjoyed a picnic dinner at Pilot Knob Sunday. Those in the crowd were Mr. and Mrs. Will Wenz, Klemme; Mr. and Mrs. Lippo Wessels and family of Garner; Mr. and Mrs. Will Roswag, and Mr. and Mrs. Ben Roswag, of Garner; Mr. and Mrs. Martin Peterson and family, Garner; Mr. and Mrs. Nelson and family of Miller; and John Swalve and family, Klemme. All say they had a fine time at Pilot Knob and enjoyed the day verym uch, even when they were forced to leave and drive home in a soaking rain, they enjoyed it, although some had quite a hard time driving home and some got soaked

Coal

We have filled our bins with all kinds of Coal. We can supply you with Threshing Coal at reasonable prices. Now is the time to put in your supply of Furnace Coal for the winter. High grade coal for ranges, too.

Twine

We still have some Twine on hand at the low price for cash of, per pound—

13½c

FEED

We have plenty of Oil Meal and Tankage on hand. Our grinder works every day if you want oyur own feed ground here.

Klemme Co-Operative Grain Co.

Only $5.00 down

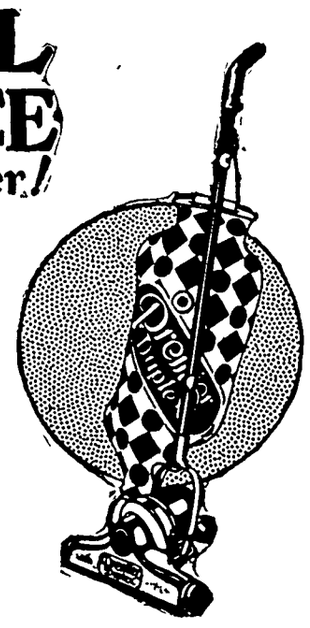
and a

LIBERAL ALLOWANCE

on your old cleaner!

THIS double offer places this splendid product within reach of everyone. The balance can be paid on the easiest of easy payment terms.

The Premier Duplex is worthy of a place in the finest home. It cleans by double action—powerful suction plus a motor driven brush. It needs NO OILING for both motor and brush turn on ball bearings



Premier Duplex

Central States Electric Co.

Threshing Coal

Now is a good time to lay in your supply of Coal for Threshing.

We have our coal bins filled with a high grade of coal especially suited for your needs at threshing time—and the price is right on our coal.

We always carry a complete lne of all kinds of coal. Right now we are also featuring high grade coal for kitchen ranges.

A full line of all kinds of feed on hand.

North Iowa Grain Co.

News of Klemme and Vicinity

Dr. R. W. Specht, Dentist, Garner, Iowa. adv

Gilbert Schaeper was at Mason City on business Friday.

Save money, buy Dip in bulk at E. F. Jacobs, Hardware. 1tc

Norman Sampson spent yesterday visiting Kenneth Patet.

Mrs. John Josten and son, Earl, were at Mason City Tuesday.

John Lemke was at Mason City Tuesday on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Jacobs and son visited at the Chris Jacobs home at Garner Sunday.

Earl Josten had his tonsils removed at Mason City yesterday. Dr. Rice performed the operation.

Miss Elvira Stille is at Cedar Falls for a few days visit with Miss Ethel Wellemeyer.

Mesdames Harry Gram, C. F. Keraus and Frank Kluckhohn were at Mason City Friday afternoon.

Mr and Mrs. Fred Kluckhohn and daughter, Thelma, were at Mason City Friday.

Orvis Poort has been working on the farm for Frank Miller the past week.

County Treasurer John Suurballe of Garner was a business caller in Klemme Saturday afternoon.

Henry Suckow, Jr. and Arley Blickendorfer drove to Des Moines on business Tuesday.

Mrs. Wayne Whitney, of Britt, is visiting with her daughter. Mrs. Will Lemke and family this week.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. A. Gast, of Garner, were callers at the Emil Patet home Saturday.

Raymond Thompson, of Mason City visited at the Henry Freie home Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Patet and Kenneth helped Harvey Nelson celebrate his birthday last week. Mrs. Nelson served ice cream and cake.

Dr D P Anderson and Miss Genevie Schuldt visited with Mr. E H. Schuldt at the Mason City hospital yesterday.

Mr and Mrs. Ed. Jacobs and Mr and Mrs Bob Giesel drove to Spirit and Okoboji Lakes yesterday to enjoy an outing.

Mrs. Henry Keeper will be hostess to the W. F. M. S. of the Klemme Methodist Church at her home next week Friday afternoon, August 5th.

Mrs. R A. McConn and another lady from Clear Lake were calling on Klemme friends Monday evening.

Mrs. Paul Stille entertained a number of ladies Monday afternoon Delightful refreshments were served.

Mrs. L. H Wilson of Goodell spent several days last week visiting at the home of her daughter. Mrs. Earl Finn.

Wm. Livermore, of Garner, was in Klemme Monday morning on business. He is managing the Lyric Theatre at Garner.

Mr and Mrs. C. F. Keraus were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Horecka at Garner Sunday.

Mrs Frank Miller and family are enjoying a visit from her sister, Miss Esther Schaefer, of Petersburg, Nebraska, who came last Sunday for a visit of about a week.

Edwin Bock came home from the Mercy Hospital at Mason City Tuesday, where he recently underwent an operation. Edwin is getting along fine.

Mr. Einar Salling, accompanied by Mrs. Martin Brinkman and children left Thursday for Sheboygan, Wisconsin in the former's car for a visit with relatives and friends and to get Mrs. Salling and Mrs. Baack who have been visiting there for a couple of weeks. Mr. J. J. Poort is driving Mr. Sailing's truck on the cream routes while he is away.

Shuck's 6-piece Orchestra will play at Karl Kraus' Barn Tuesday night. Art is a caller of old time dances at Mason City for the past four years. 1tc

J. N. Day and family and Wm. Smith and family of Klemme and Walter Ross and family of Garner enjoyed a picnic dinner at Clear Lake Sunday.

Julius Priebe and family and Herman Stromer and family drove to Iowa Falls Tuesday and all enjoyed a picnic at Saloam Park near there.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry, Gibbse ntertained Sunday, Mrs. C. A. Arnold, Miss Minnie Lenz, and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kuptinter and daughter, Gladys of Mason City.

Levi Klotzbach is taking a vacation this week from his duties at the Jacobs Hardware Store and is visiting relatives and friends at Monona, Iowa.

G. Gobeli and family enjoyed a visit last Thursday from Mr. and Mrs Christenson, of Des Moines, who stopped here on their way home from a trip.

C. G. Waterma and family and Mrs. Mary Waterman were visitors at Clear Lake Sunday. Mrs. C. G. Waterman has recovered from her recent illness and is able to be out again.

Grandma Schroeder, Mrs Marin Croner and daughter, Dorothy, returned Monday morning from their two weeks visit with relatives and friends at Chicago and Hammond, Indiana.

Fred Finn, Edwin Biee and Wm. Veeder of Belmond were visiting at the Earl Finn home Saturday evening Sunday morning they left for Minot, North Dakota, to work harvesting grain.

Mrs L. H. Wilson and daughters Avis and Wava of Goodell and Miss Alma Pitcher, of Chicago were visiting at the Earl Finn home Tuesday Miss Pitcher will remain in Klemme for a couple of weeks.

Vivian, Adella and Paul Stromer left yesterday for a trip through Minnesota, Canada, North and South Dakota, and the Black Hills and the Bad Lands of South Dakota. They will visit relatives and friends at points along the route.

Mrs. Mary Waterman came Friday afternoon from Iowa City for a visit at the C. G Waterman home and with other Klemme relatives and friends. Her daughter, Mabel, came as far as Fredericksburg for a visit until Monday with a friend

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Bamman and children and Oscar Schuldt left in the latter's car for Chicago Sunday afternoon Dick and Oscar have been working in Chicago for some time. The Bamman family will reside in Chicago in the future.

County Treasurer John Suurballe and wife left Wednesday on a vacation and business trip to Colorado where they will oook after some land they have there Mr. and Mrs. Suurballe have some nice camping equipment and intend to camp out during their trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Wellemeyer and daughter Nora, Miss Elvira Stille and Frank Gibbs drove to Cedar Falls Sunday and enjoyed a picnic dinner and visit with Miss Ethel Wellemeyer and Lawson Hockey, who are attending summer school there.

Elmer Fuller, of Des Moines, brought Mrs. Sarah Behringer of Ames to Klemme Tuesday for a visit with Klemme friends. Mr. Fuller took sick whileh ere and had to postpone his trip home, and so remained at the home of his sister, Mrs. R. W. Elder.

Ben F. Greiman and Harry Gibbs each have one of the finest fields of winter wheat ever grown in this part of the state Last year these farmers raised enough seed from some certified wheat they bought from the Iowa State College so that this year they were each able to raise thirty acres this year. Well posted farmers say its the best they ever saw and the yield and quality will both run high. When this wheat is all threshed our readers will know how near forty bushels an acre the wheat made.

Mr. B. C. Way and Mr. J. F. Stanfield, of the Western Electric Telephone Company of Mason City were business callers in Klemme Tuesday, looking after interests for the Iowa Union Telephone Co.

Dr. W. F. Missman and family and R. A. Jorgenson and family drove to Pilot Knob early Sunday morning and were up on the peak ready to watch the sunrise at 4:30 a. m. It's a wonderfu sight to see the sun rise from Pilot Knob. The morning was a bit cloudy but this made the scene more beautiful with the sun casting rose coored rays on the silver clouds. An open air breakfast, consisting of bacon and eggs, coffee, bread and butter and raspberries and cream was prepared and greatly enjoyed.

LOIS WILSON FEATURED IN BERT KANE'S "BROADWAY NIGHTS"

"Broadway Nights", Robt. K fast moving and colorful film theatre and night club life in city where the "dawn comes up thunder," is the attraction F and Saturday, July 29-30 at Lyric Theatre, Garner, Iowa. Wilson heads a cast of Broad celebrities thru the peppy piec

How an ambitious amateur s ed an apprenticeship in vaude blossomed on Broadway in the est night club of the street, and ally became the toast of the t as the har of a big musical re serves as the strong plot aga which are set colorful backgrou of Manhattan atmosphere

BAYSIDE
AMUSEMENT PARK
—Clear Lake, Iowa—
— PROGRAM —

PROGRAM SUNDAY, JULY 31st

Excursion on Milwaukee to Bayside, North Iowa Band, Free Movies, and Out Door Attractions. Ball Game Three O'clock, Winneshick County Giants vs. Mason City O-P Team.

MONDAY NIGHT, AUGUST 1st

Big Fight, Heavyweights in 30 Rounds, Eight O'Clock. Admission less than half the usual scale.

DANCES

At Bayside on Wednesday and Friday Nights. At White Pier on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday nights.

ROLLER SKATING at Bayside Daily.

AT BAYSIDE——Best bathing beach on Lake, bath house, toboggan slide, roller coaster, little train, new fun house, merry-go-round, ferris wheel, fortune teller, concessions, free picnic grounds and tables, children's playgrounds, boats, fishing.

FUN FOR ALL ALL FOR FUN

— Policed Parking Grounds For Cars 15c —

Henry Ford's NEW CAR

Hundred of people have been coming in the last few weeks and inquiring about the NEW CAR. We are sorry we have not been able to impart any specific information, but we do hope to answer these questions definitely soon.

WE ARE JUST AS ANXIOUS FOR THE GOOD NEWS AS THE EXPECTANT OWNER OF

One of Henry Ford's New Cars

We do know this much—that Henry Ford would not stop right off when he was manufacturing and selling forty percent of the total automobiles today, or to the month that he suspended producion, o build an entire NEW MODEL, if we were not satisfied that it was going to be the sensation of the present type of auomobile transportation.

All we can say is that it will be wise for you to wait and see the NEW CAR before buying. If you are anxious for an early delivery place your order now.

Henry Ford, with a Billion Dollar factory and facilities for manufacturing surpassed by none, with a surplus in cash running into the millions, and with no stockholders to pay big dividends is GOING TO BUILD US AN AUTOMOBILE.

AUTHORIZED FORD DEALER

Garner Auto Co.

Firestone Tires
Mobile Oils

Phone 92, Garner, Iowa
Phone 77, Klemme, Iowa.

Klemme, Iowa

THE KLEMME TIMES

Thirty-ninth Year—Number 51. KLEMME, IOWA, THURSDAY, AUGUST 4, 1927

SIXTY FOUR ATTEND NASHUA RE-UNION

SCHWICHTENBERG DECENDANTS HAVE FAMILY GATHERING

Relatives From Near And Far Meet At The Little Brown Church

The lawn at the Little Brown Church In The Vale, near Nashua, Iowa, Sunday was the happy scene of a family gathering, decendants f the Schwichtenbergs, and was attended by relatives from far and near who chose this beauty spot as a centrally located point for a big family reunion.

The re-union was not extensively planned but when the relatives met and counted up there were very few missing. The gathering had been planned by correspondence a short time ago when relatives in easteren Iowa wrote and asked relatives in this part of the state to meet at the Little Brown Church. No special arrangemens were made other than to "pass the news around," but the result was remarkable.

At the appointed hour at about noon the table had been arranged and the feast put on. All were seated at one great long table and when a count had been completed it was found that sixty-four persons were present and that the gathering included two "Schwichtenberg aunts and one uncle; they were Mrs. Emma Schwichtenberg and Mr. Herman Brockmeyer (aunt and uncle by marriage) and Mrs. Herman Brockmeyer a Schwichtenberg.

Those who were present at this happy gathering were: Mr. and Mrs. Herman Brockmeyer; Mrs. Emma Wessel and Freda, Cora, Harold and Bobbie, Mr and Mrs. Donald Wessel, Betty Jean, Phyllis and Garland; Mr and Mrs. Wm Adams and Una; Mr and Mrs. Schaffer; Mrs. J. Grimes and Harold; and Miss Blanche Grimes, all from Colesburg, Iowa.

Lawrence Geinapp, of Earlville.

Laura and Clifford Wessel from Edgewood.

Mr and Mrs Geo. Scheuke from Manchester.

Miss Olena Wessel from Charles City.

Mrs. Emma Schwichtenberg, Ernest and Bridus, of Goodell.

Mr and Mrs. David Schwichtenberg, Jean, Viola, John Bill and Jesse Donald, of Goodell.

Kathrine and Ada Sandrey, from Goodell.

Mr and Mrs. Leonard Sampson, Paul, Irma and Norman, of Klemme.

Mr and Mrs. Emil Patet and Kenneth, of Klemme.

Mr and Mrs. Henry Griffen, Madeline, Marvin, Kenneth and Dorothy of Klemme.

Mr and Mrs. Wm. Krause, of Garner Mr and Mrs. W. C. A. Gast of Garner and Myrtle Gast of Dedar Falls.

Mr and Mrs. Schiedke of Nashua.

All families were present with the exception of two: Rev. Fred Griewe and family of Centerpoint, and Albert Tanner and family, of Klemme.

The re-union was a great success and no doubt a similar gathering will be planned for next year All report they had a fine time and the crowd was mixed enough with various ages so that all found a fine group of their own age to visit and have a good time together.

Some would-be chicken thieves were foiled in their attempt to rob Tom Blank's chicken coop Saturday night at about 11:30 o'clock. Mr. Blank's daughter's, Mrs. Usher and Miss Marie were coming home and as they came into the yard heard a noise in the chicken yard. They told Mr. Blank and he telephoned to Quandt's restaurant for some help. Mr. Quandt and a couple of other men jumped into a car and drove to the Blank home, but the chicken thieves heard them approach and ran in a southwesterly direction and escaped.

There is a sermon in three words: I am sorry."

GEO. SCHOENWETTER HOME IS SCENE OF FAMILY DINNER

Forty-Two Relatives Have Dinner Together In Country

Members of the Schoenwetter family and close relatives quite often get together for a big family dinner. Such was the occasion when the "tribe" met Sunday at the home of Mr and Mrs George Schoenwetter west of Klemme for another big family dinner.

Forty-two persons were present to do justice to the big dinner that had been prepared Those present were. Mr and Mrs Carl Suckow and sons, Warren and Dean of Garner; Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Ludeke and children, Lucille, Clarence, Merle and Lyle; Mr. and Mrs Henry Ludeke and son, Paul, Mr. and Mrs Ralph Ludeke and children, June, Doris and Stanley, Mr. and Mrs F Schlichting and daughters Gladys and Mabel, and John Newberger, all of Klemme, Mr. and Mrs Elmer Weisbrod and children, Ralph, June and Bob. of Fenton, Mr. and Mrs. Wm Ax and children, Irvin, Pearl, Ida and Lloyd, of Alexander; and Mr. and Mrs. Art Schoenwetter and daughter, Ethel from west of Klemme Elmer Ax, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm Ax, attends school at Des Moines and was not able to be present. A fine time was had by all and each one present looks forward to the next occasion.

SPEED BOATS WILL RACE AT BAYSIDE PARK SUNDAY

Albert Lea Packers Will Play Mason City O-P Ball Team At 3:00

Speed launch races will be one of the big attractions at the Bayside Amusement Park, Clear Lake, next Sunday, August 7th There are five new, privately owned speed launches on Clear Lake and each owner feels and boasts that his speed boat cannot be beaten Next Sunday they will enter several races for big cash prizes. The various events will be held right in front of Bayside Park so all visitors can see them. These speed launch races, which start about four p m., will be fast and exciting and the first ever held on the lake. It will be one of the biggest events ever staged by the Bayside Park and a great crowd is expected next Sunday to see them. The Albert Lea Packers will meet the Mason City O-P team at the Bayside ball park Sunday at three o'clock Albert Lea has a hard-fighting team. Band concerts, free movies and out-door attractions will also entertain Sunday visitors at Bayside Everybody is invited to use the free picnic grounds and tables.

"UP IN MABEL'S ROOM" WILL BE SHOWN AT GARNER

Laugh Special One Of Most Entertaining Comedies Of Season

Marie Prevost has moved her mirror, make-up case and wardrobe "Up In Mabel s Room." The one-time bathing girl who sparkled in "The Dark Swan," "Tarnish," and "The Marriage Circle," has now reached the heights, for in the Al Christie production of the famous stage farce, "Up in Mabel's Room," which will be shown Tuesday and Wednesday, Aug. 9-10 at "The Lyric Theatre" Garner. In the picture Miss Prevost has a delightful time making Harrison Ford, who plays Garry Ainsworth, her ex-husband, miserable—all because of an autographed chemise which Garry gave Mabel before they were divorced. As Garry poses as an innocent bachelor instead of a husband with a past, the fun gets fast and furious when Mabel is invited to the same house party at which Garry is also a guest and at which the two are "introduced". The chemise, Garry, Mabel and all get mixed up with delightful results.

A Female Barkis

He: 'You should see the altar in our church."

She: "Lead me to it!"

Reason Enough

What's the difference between a snake and a bedbug?

Answer: A snake crawls on his own belly.

BIG OUTING AT FAIR ASSURED

Des Moines, Special: Whether or not Iowa will break all former records of attendance at the Iowa State Fair when the state's big exposition opens here the latter part of August, now depends solely upon the question of favorable weather, is the belief of fair officials who have just completed final preparations for the state's "annual outing."

Assurance has already been given that in point of magnitude, variety of exhibits, and elaborateness of the entertainment program, the Iowa State Fair this summer will eclipse any previous fair in the history of the state, and possible in the entire United States. Entries already indicate a livestock show comprising more than 6,000 head of fancy stock from famous breeding farms throughout the country. More than 1,000 livestock entries are expected in the Boys and Girls' Department of the fair, where entries of prize calves, pigs, sheep, and poultry have been made by junior farmers from every part of the state

The Agricultural Department of the exposition will likewise tax the maximum capacity of the huge fair buildings, with hundreds of exhibits of prize grains, fruits, and farm products from nearly every county in Iowa in competition for premiums totalling more than $22,000.

The machinery show at the fair this summer will comprise well over 40 acres, including all the latest developments in farm implements and home equipment of all kinds, and also embracing a mid-season motor show of more than 100 late models of automobiles, trucks, and tractors from all leading factories.

Two entire exposition buildings will be occupied by a mammoth women's fair covering every field of women's activities and offering a program of demonstrations, lectures, and exhibits which will be in progress continuously every morning and afternoon for eight days.

All told more than 250 carloads of exhibits from all parts of Iowa and the United States will be unloaded at the big exposition grounds here between now and August 26th, the formal opening day.

The day and night entertainment program is equally as elaborate as the array of educational features. It comprises five days of harness racing, two days of auto racing, six days of whippet dog races, Sousa and his band in three appearances each day, in addition to five other outstanding bands and orchestras; a mammoth fireworks spectacle, "The Fall of Troy", each evening of the fair; fifteen Hippodrome attractions each afternoon and evening, four nights of Society Horse Shows, approximately 40 big midway attractions; and numerous state tournaments and contests, including the state championship Horseshoe Pitching meet, Old Fiddlers' Contest, Hog Calling Contest, and Team Pulling Contest. An 80 acre free camp has been provided for the convenience of those who wish to enjoy an outdoor vacation in connection with the state fair visit.

Labor Day is Monday, Sept 5.

REPORT OF COW TEST NO. 2 ASSOCIATION

Carl Peterson of Britt Heads Tho High Herd List

(By R. Roy Lewis, Tester)

Carl Peterson, Britt, with his herd of purebred Holstein and grade cows heads the list of high herds of Hancock No. 2 Cow Testing Association during July. The production of this herd averaged 941 pounds of milk containing 32 7 pounds of butterfat per cow. Ten of the eleven cows thus averaged were in milk.

Julius Jenson, Crystal Lake, and Fred Molander, Britt, tied for second place with herd averages of 29.9 lbs of butterfat. Jenson's entire herd of 16 grade Guernseys and Jerseys and all of Molander's herd of eight grade Holsteins were being milked during July.

The association average based on all cows in the association in milk and dry was 574 lbs. of milk and 21 2 lbs of butterfat. There are 284 cows now on test in the 26 herds enrolled.

The annual report of Hancock No. 2 is now being prepared and the leading averages for the year will be published soon. The comparison of feed costs of high producing cows and low producers should be of interest for every herd owner contrary to popular belief high herd producers fed intelligently will produce butterfat cheaper per pound than the average profitable cows throughout the country. This summary of the year's work will show a fair margin over feed costs since grain prices have been held fairly steady throughout the year. Should grain prices continue to rise and the butterfat market slump this margin would become so narrow that a big percentage of the so called average profitable cows would become star boarders. Better get your herd tested now and be ready for such conditions when they arrive. The leading herds of the association have been culled until the owners have no fears as to the future prices of butterfat.

Ninety-five percent of the European corn borers in the infested areas where clean-up campaigns have been waged this spring were destroyed by the campaign, according to estimates of the workers from the United States Department of Agriculture.

New York is going to have a 23-story church. That is one sure way of getting closer to heaven.

His name isn't Byrd for nothing.

SOUSA COMING TO IOWA

John Philip Sousa, world's most famous band leader and composer, is coming to Iowa this summer with a 70 piece band for a seven day engagement at the Iowa State Fair, from August 27 through September 2. The State Fair Board has had to build a new $6,500 bandstand to provide accommodations for this huge band. Sousa and his organization will play three times daily, and, in addition, will play two special feature concerts on Sunday, August 28, in front of the new $350,000 amphitheater.

HANCOCK COUNTY REAL ESTATE TRANSFERS

A Weekly Review Of Sales And Trades In Property

Victor Lamoreaux wife to Elizabeth Vickerman. Q. C. D., date 6-15-27, $1.00, lots 5-6 block 1 Grace Fisk's Add. Britt.

C. E. Barnes wife to Standard Oil Co. W. D., date 7-25-27, $1050.00. Lot 7 block 26 Garnor.

Lydia Schram to Gustavus Schram Q. C. D., date 3-24-27, $1.00. NEfr ¼ 4-96-24.

Harry D. Ricketts wife to G. A. Ricketts, Trustee. Trust Deed date 7-1-27, $9,500.00, lot 6 block 13 Britt.

KLEMME REFORMED CHURCH

Calvin Grosshuesch, Pastor

The services for Sunday, Aug. 7 are as follows:

10:00 a. m. German service. Rev. Paul Grosshuesch, Sheboygan, Wis.

11:00 a. m. Sunday School. English talks by visiting ministers.

2:30 p. m. German service. Rev. Meyer, Jewish Missionary, Minneapolis.

English Sermon, Rev. H. Pankuk, Meservey, Iowa.

8:00 p. m. English service, Rev. Paul Grosshuesch.

An offering for Missions will be lifted at all services.

All members and friends are cordially invited to attend these services

The Bible Class on Wednesday evenings will be discontinued until September.

The Junior choir will meet Saturday evening.

METHODIST CHURCH NOTES

A. W. Gauger, Pastor

A number of our people availed themselves of the opportunity last Sunday to visit one of the Methodist Camps. In both places interesting programs were on. Those who went to Okoboji had the privelege of hearing "Dad" Elliot who gave two strong messages. No man today is closer to the heart of young men and young women than is this man. Any young person hearing this man will be a better person ever after for having heard him.

Next Sunday we will have all services regular and we shall look for a full house Let it be an hour of worship and of meeting and of service!

The Junior League meets on Saturday afternoon at 2:30 at the church.

Epworth League on Sunday evening at 7:15.

Those belonging to the Women's Foreign Missionary Society will not forget the meeting on Thursday of this week.

FRIENDS HELP AUGUST BAACK CELEBRATE BIRTHDAY

Last Friday was August Baack's birthday and to help celebrate the event properly Mrs. Baack invited a number of friends to come out to the farm for supper and spend the evening. August likes a lot of company and he was well pleased with the arrangement his wife had made to celebrate his birthday.

Those present were Herman Baack and family; Wm. Baack's, Martin Brinkman family, Mr. and Mrs. H. Lewis, Clarence Kluckohn family, Ed. Buentenbach family, Frank Kluckohn family, Martin Jensen family, Carl Swanson family, and Hans Willer family.

A big picnic supper was served after which the evening was spent in a social way, all reporting they had a fine time.

On a tombstone in another state: "Here lies an editor who told the truth. That's why he's here."

Henry Buseman and family and George Buseman and family were visitors at the W. F. Pavey home Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Herman Coobs, Sr., of McGregor were visitors at the Pavey home Sunday. They took advantage of the excursion special from McGregor to Bayside Sunday and had a splendid opportunity to thus visit Klemme relatives and friends for the day.

TIGERS WON GAME HERE SUNDAY 10-9

In the game here Sunday with a combination Meservey-Thornton aggregation, the Klemme Tigers battled their way to victory in the last frame, overcoming a 9 to 6 lead and won the game 10 to 9 over the visitors.

The Tigers have been going good and have won a number of games the past few weeks. They seem to get a poor start but they always put a thriller on the finish.

Following is the box score of the game Sunday:

Meservey-Thornton

Pos.	AB	R	H	E
Woomos, l. f.	5	2	1	1
Fishers, 3 b.	1	0	0	0
Peters, 2 b.	5	1	2	0
Jacobson, c.	5	3	1	1
Finn, c. f.	4	1	1	0
C. Smith, 1 b.	4	0	1	1
Chambers, p. - 3b.	4	0	2	0
Obretch, 3b - p.	4	0	0	0
O. Sprau, s. s	3	1	0	2
F. Sprau, r. f	4	1	1	0
Totals	39	9	9	5

Klemme Tigers

Pos.	AB	R	H	E
G. Lau, l. f.	5	0	1	0
E. Smith, 3 b.	5	1	2	0
L. Tanner, c.	5	0	1	0
W. Lemke, 1 b.	5	1	1	1
H. Leitzinger, s. s.	5	1	3	2
B. Greiman, c. f.	4	3	3	0
M. Brinkman, r. f	3	1	0	0
O. Stokesbary, 2 b.	4	2	2	0
H. Willer, p.	1	0	0	1
H. Bonwell, p.	4	0	2	0
E. Lau, r. f.	2	1	1	0
Totals	42	10	16	4

Score by innings:-

Mes.-Thorn.	301	500	000	9
Tigers	041	010	004	10

Summary:- 2 base hits, W. Lemke, O. Stokesbary, H. Leitzinger 2, Peters 2. Double plays: Smith to Leitzinger. Bases on balls off Chambers 1, off Willer 6, off Bonwell none. Runs and hits off Chambers 7 and 14 in 8 innings, off Obretch 2 and 2 in 0 innings, none out in ninth, off Willer 9 and 7 in 3 2-3 innings, off Bonwell 0 and 2 in 5 1-3 innings. Hit by Chambers 1, Obretch 0, Willer 1, Bonwell 1. Struck out by Willer 6 in 3 2-3 innings, Bonwell 4 in 5 1-3 innings, Chambers 5 in 8 innings Left on bases Klemme 10, Thornton 10. Losing pitcher Obretch. Umpires:- Pavey and Hartfelter. Time 2:24.

BAPTISMAL SERVICE HELD AT ULRICH HOME SAT. EVE

There was quite a gathering of relatives and friends at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Ulrich Saturday evening, the occasion being that several of the group were to receive Holy Baptism, by a former pastor, Rev. A. B. Gedye, who is in Klemme for a visit.

Those present were Rev. A. B. Gedye and family; Mr. and Mrs. Peter Merkel; Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Merkel and family; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bredlow an dfamily; Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Ulrich and family; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gram and family; Effie Carpenter and Clarice Johnson.

Rev. Gedye administered baptism to Marvin Kenneth Wade, son of Mrs. Nettie Wade; Merlan Junior Ulrich, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Ulrich, and to Mrs. Alfred Merkel and her daughter, Corine Elizabeth Merkel.

After the ceremony the guests partok of ice cream and cake and fruit and spent the evening visiting.

The following Klemme people also drove to the Clear Lake State Park Sunday and enjoyed a picnic dinner after which they went over to Dodge's Point and enjoyed a swim in the bay: Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Keraus; Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Keraus and sons, Verle and Otho; Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Waterman and Marian; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Kudje and daughter, Jackie; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kluckhohn and children, Kenneth. Franklin and Carmen; and Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Jorgenson and son, Buster. A big chicken picnic dinner was the main attraction. All had a fine time.

A Forgotten Wild West Hero

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

THIS is the story of a real Wild West hero, a man who faced death innumerable times on the plains and in the mountains of the Great West, who under the acid test of danger proved that he was "pure grit clean through" and who won the whole-hearted admiration of every man, white or red, with whom he ever came in contact. It's the story, too, of a forgotten Wild West hero because, unlike so many of our Wild West heroes—the long-haired, buckskin-clad Bills and Dicks and Sams whose careers were approximately 10 per cent experience and 00 per cent press agentry—he shunned publicity and was content to let his deeds speak for themselves. So he never became a dime novel hero, but the old-timers of the West, the men who know who were the really great and who were the pseudo-great, will tell you that there never was a braver man on the frontier nor few who played a more important role at a critical period in its history than Dr. V. T. McGillycuddy, now a resident of Berkeley, Calif., and president of a public utilities company in San Francisco, but once an army surgeon with General Crook's expedition in the Sioux war of 1876 and later Indian agent for about the wildest bunch of red men that the government ever tried to keep penned up on a reservation.

Doctor McGillycuddy was born in Racine, Wis., in 1849, and at the age of sixteen began the study of medicine. After completing his course in four years he served as an interne in the United States Marine hospital in Detroit and later became assistant surgeon in several hospitals in that city. His early education had also included a course in topographical engineering and the year 1875 found him getting his first experience in the Wild West as chief topographer for a government expedition into the Black Hills of South Dakota. So among his other distinctions Doctor McGillycuddy can claim that of being one of the first, if not the very first, to make accurate maps of the region which is now so much in the public eye because President Coolidge chose it as the site for the "Summer White House."

The chief guide for this expedition was the renowned California Joe, General Custer's famous scout, and Doctor McGillycuddy has a rich fund of reminiscences of this noted frontier character. In fact, he knew nearly all of the early Black Hills notables, and he can tell interesting tales of Calamity Jane, of Capt. Jack Crawford, "the Poet Scout," and Frank Grouard, General Crook's favorite scout, of Buffalo Bill and his understudy, "Buffalo Chip" White.

After the Sioux campaign was over Doctor McGillycuddy was stationed at Camp Robinson, Neb., and there he made the acquaintance of Crazy Horse, one of the greatest war chiefs the Sioux had ever had. The army surgeon won the friendship of the Sioux leader by caring for his wife who was a sufferer from tuberculosis and won for himself the name of "Tashunka Witko Kola" (Crazy Horse's Friend) and "Wasechun Wauken" (White Miracle Man) by which he became known among the Sioux later.

In 1879 President Hayes appointed the young army surgeon agent for the Ogalala Sioux on what is now the Pine Ridge reservation. Despite the recommendation that the name "Tashunka Witko Kola" gave him, the new job was not an easy one. Here were several thousand Sioux, fresh from the warpath, still remembering their terrible triumph over Custer on the Little Big Horn, utterly irreconcilable to being penned up on a reservation—they who from years immemorial had been lords of a vast region over which they roamed as they willed. Their great war chief was Red Cloud, who, although he had taken no active part in the campaign of '76, was an implacable enemy of the whites who had repeatedly broken faith with him. Both the youth of McGillycuddy and his recent connection with the army were against him in his dealings with the Oglalas and in the first general council Red Cloud made it plain that he would oppose every effort the new agent made to "lead his young men in the white man's road."

To this Doctor McGillycuddy replied that he admired Red Cloud for his loyalty to the old ideals, but that the white man had come to stay and if the red man expected to survive he must learn the white man's ways. He warned Red Cloud that if the older Indians resisted the agent's efforts to lead them in the white man's road, he would appeal to the young men. And appeal to the young men he did. The result was the organization of an Indian police force, the first of its kind ever used on an Indian reservation, authorized by a special act of congress. The leader of this force was a young warrior named Miwaukon Yuha (Man Who Carries a Sword), or Captain Sword and with this little group of 50 men, the young agent undertook to keep order on a reservation of 4,000 square miles.

Red Cloud continued to obstruct his work and finally in 1882 came the showdown. Doctor McGillycuddy deposed Red Cloud as chief. The Oglalas were in a turmoil. A plot to assassinate the agent was foiled by Captain Sword and his men, but affairs became so threatening that the War department began concentrating troops at the posts near by. If the Sioux jumped the reservation it meant another costly war in which many lives would be lost and much property destroyed. It was a time when a cool head was needed and that cool head sat on the shoulders of Doctor McGillycuddy. "We can handle the situation ourselves" was the word that the young doctor sent to Washington. "If troops are sent here, the Sioux will interpret it as a warlike gesture and trouble will be sure to follow." By "we" he meant himself and Captain Sword and those 50 Indian policemen! His faith was justified, for Sword's men soon had the situation in hand and there is no doubt in the minds of those who knew the situation at the time and the temper of the Sioux that a bloody war was averted.

Shortly before this time there occurred an incident which showed the aptness of that "pure grit clean through" characterization of Doctor McGillycuddy. At the time of the last great sun dance ever held among the Sioux some 2,000 of Chief Spotted Tail's Brule Sioux, always a turbulent and restless outfit, came up to Pine Ridge to visit their Oglala brethren. One day a band of 400 of them rode over to the agency and ten of them, heavily armed, filed into McGillycuddy's office. In the building at the time were Doctor McGillycuddy, a clerk, Louis Changro, his interpreter, three army officers, who had come to see the sun dance, and two visiting cattlemen. There were only eleven white persons on the reservation.

After a silence of several minutes, the leader of the party, a tall, powerful young chief, said to Changro, "Tell him we want food." McGillycuddy's reply was that he knew the Brules were well provisioned before they left their reservation and that they would get no food from him. At that reply the young chief's eye glittered angrily. "Tell him we want food NOW!" he growled. A smile flickered across the young doctor's face. "Just tell him to go to h—l, Louis!" he said quietly. Instantly the Brule chief sprang across the room and, shaking his fist in the agent's face, he shouted hoarsely, "If you don't give us food now, I'll kill every white man on the reservation!"

The smile disappeared from McGillycuddy's face. His jaw snapped shut and without a word he sprang on the Indian, seized him by the throat and shook him until his rifle clattered to the floor. Then he rushed the Indian to the door, whirled him around and kicked—the worst insult that any white man ever gave an Indian. Ten feet from the door the Brule picked himself up from the dust and, wild with rage, led his followers on a mad gallop to the Brule camp. But the whites knew that they would be back and that nine white men would probably soon be fighting for their lives and the lives of Mrs. McGillycuddy and the post trader's wife against not only 2,000 Brules, but probably against several thousand Oglalas who would likely come swarming like a wolf pack to the kill.

One alarming fact was that at the appearance of the Brules Captain Sword and his men had disappeared! Soon the white men heard the drumming of pony hoofs on the dry prairie and a party of naked, war-bonneted warriors swept out of a little coulee and headed for the agency building. As the white men crouched down behind the flimsy barrier of the fence surrounding the agency and lined their guns on the approaching throng Changro suddenly shouted: "No shoot! Sword, he come!" It was Captain Sword and his policemen, clad in the battle dress of their ancestors, coming to the aid of their white chief and ready to die in his defense.

And then the Brules came back, 400 of them, a howling pack of savages pounding their ponies into a mad charge. In the face of this onrush McGillycuddy said quietly to his white companions and Sword's men, who had lined up beside him, "Don't fire until I give the word!" On and on came the Indians until it seemed that they would ride the little group of defenders into the earth. And then they stopped! The steady control of the iron-nerved agent broke through the heat of their madness and brought them to a sliding, dust-plowing halt 50 yards away There they milled around uncertainly. At the psychological moment, McGillycuddy took the offensive. He turned to Changro. "Hop out there, Louis, and tell that old devil to chase himself back to camp, he said. "Tell him I'll give him just five minutes to get under way and, what's more, if he ever bats his eye at me again, I'll choke him to death just for luck." As Changro ran forward to deliver this message the agent sprang to the top of the fence, watch in hand, to show the Brules that he meant exactly what he said. For a moment they wavered. The chief, still hot for blood, insisted that they charge. But the cool nerve of this slender young doctor who had showed them so plainly that he could not be bluffed or frightened even in the face of overwhelming odds was too much for them. They rode back to their camp forthwith.

During the next few years the Oglalas prospered under McGillycuddy's rule. Then in 1885 politics, which has so often made a football of the Indian, got in its work and the agent was summoned to Washington for trial on trumped-up charges of insubordination and exceeding his authority. The trial was something of a farce, but the upshot was that he was relieved from duty. Not long afterward the ghost dance craze swept the Sioux and then, if ever, was the firm hand of McGillycuddy needed. But it was not there and as a result a majority of the Oglalas stampeded to the Bad Lands and the terrible story of the Battle of Wounded Knee was added to our Indian history.

The former Indian agent gave valuable service during those trying days as assistant adjutant general to the governor of South Dakota, but a short-sighted government policy prevented him from serving where his influence over the Sioux would have counted most. If he was ever rewarded by the government in the slightest measure for the incalculable worth of his services there is no record of it. Later he became dean and president of the South Dakota School of Mines at Rapid City, and as an educator became widely known. But except to a few historians the name of this man, but for whose efforts the settlement of a vast empire might have been delayed indefinitely, is comparatively unknown.

"A Forgotten Wild West Hero"? Not exactly! Talk to some of the old Oglalas today, as the writer did recently, and you will find that the name of McGillycuddy is magic among them still. "McGillycuddy Kola" (friend of McGillycuddy), I said to one of them. "Waste!" (good!) he exclaimed and that phrase was the open sesame for the subsequent interview with several of them. Through an interpreter, Jim Grass, an educated Sioux, I talked with Rock, Spider, Little Hawk, Brave Heart, Yellow Thunder, and Chase in the Morning, all of them old-timers who remember the days of the buffalo chase and the tribal wars. Rock, Spider and Chase in the Morning fought under Crazy Horse in the Custer battle and at the Battle of the Rosebud where the Oglala chieftain fought General Crook to a standstill.

After the wars were over Rock became one of McGillycuddy's Indian policemen on the Pine Ridge reservation and from him I learned much of those stirring times when the young agent was gambling with death as he tried to break down the reactionary influence of Red Cloud among the Oglalas. Rock and some of the old fellows questioned me eagerly about their friend Wasechun Waukon (Doctor McGillycuddy)—where he lived and what he was doing. They requested me to write to him and ask him to write to them. It was plain to see that after all these years they still love and honor the one Indian agent whom they learned to trust and respect.

"He was a brave and good man and the best friend we have ever had," Rock told me, and his face lighted up as he spoke of the old days when he was one of McGillycuddy's policemen. Then it saddened as he continued, "If he had been with us the great sadness (the ghost dance trouble and the Wounded Knee affair) would not have come to our people."

Forgotten? Not by the men who did not give their friendship lightly and when an old-time Sioux warrior utters the simple words, "He was a brave and good man," it's about as fine a tribute as could be paid to this real Wild West hero, Dr. V. T. McGillycuddy, surgeon, soldier, Indian agent and friend of the red man.

Around Orchard

PLANT TREES IN FALL OR SPRING

As old as Adam is the question which rises about this time of year from fruit growers everywhere. Is it better to plant fruit trees in the fall or in the spring?

It all depends upon the kind of fruit and the locality in which it is to be planted, says Prof. M. A. Blake, horticulturist of the New Jersey Agricultural Experiment station. Cherries, for instance, which make their growth early in the season and then stop for the year, are better suited for fall planting. When set late in the spring, they not only fail to make much growth, but a considerable number are likely to die.

Apples and peaches, on the other hand, often make a late fall growth in the nursery if weather conditions are favorable, and if transplanted late and subjected to severe weather conditions immediately afterward, are quite likely to be severely winter-injured. Also, in districts where the frost heaves the soil in winter, fall-planted trees may be so loosened and thrown upward that the roots dry, freeze and are dead when spring comes.

Don't forget these two precautions in fall planting, however. Never set trees in soil so wet and sticky that it packs into lumps and clods, and don't fail to pack dry soil very firmly about the roots. Air spaces left about the roots either because the soil is too wet and lumpy or too dry, are almost certain to result in dead trees.

Homemade Apple Grader to Work Satisfactorily

Answering a query as to the best way to construct a homemade apple grader a writer in the Rural New Yorker makes the following reply:

Undoubtedly a homemade apple grader could be made, but the matter would depend entirely upon the mechanical skill of the maker rather than any directions. A grader is a delicate mechanism, and most folks will do better to purchase from the manufacturers of grading machines. A rather crude but effective machine could be made by using two long narrow web belts placed at an angle of about 45 degrees with each other so as to form a "V-shaped" trough, gradually widening at one end A motor driving these belts would provide the power to move the apples along which would drop through to bins beneath when the space between the belts grew wide enough Of course, the belts would need to rest in wooden supporting frames because the belts would not have the rigidity and supporting strength necessary to hold the apples from slipping through before the proper size had been reached. This principle has been used to a limited extent and is used yet with peaches and gooseberries.

Apples are sized in quarter-inch sizes. In practice the leading grade is that consisting of everything over 2½ in., usually designated at "2½ in. and up." A 2¼-in. grade is standard, and sometimes a 2 in. pack is found on the market, depending, of course, upon the market and the variety.

Wettable Sulphur Sprays Are Gaining Popularity

To mention some of the important changes in spraying materials, wettable sulphur sprays are gaining in favor in almost all sections of the country because they give good disease control and less injury than standard lime-sulphur. The sulphur in lime-sulphur reaches the tree in soluble form, and if it gets into the interior of leaf or fruit tissues through breaks in the skin or leaf surface, injury results. Furthermore, lime-sulphur tends to form compounds with arsenate of lead which are apt to give burning, although hydrated lime added to the spray helps to overcome this disadvantage.

Spray Residue Removed by Washing the Fruit

Fortunately the washing of fruit now seems to be a fairly simple solution of the spray residue problem. Fruit immersed for one minute in a bath of hydrochloric acid of 1 to 500 has given very satisfactory results, and treated fruit has been kept in storage for five months with no apparent injury. In fact, the bath seems to improve the finish of some varieties, notably Rhode Island Greening. In the fall of 1926 two men using splint baskets and wooden hogsheads dipped 180 bushels of fruit in three hours. The acid costs about 15 cents, and the entire operation was performed for less than two cents a bushel.

White Pine Blister

White pine blister rust is caused by a fungus. Very strangely it spends part of its life on currant and gooseberry bushes and part on the pine. Accordingly the best methods of control are to remove all currant and gooseberry bushes from the vicinity of white pine plantings. The disease is usually not detected on the pine until it has become established, showing itself by the bright orange-yellow pustules that break through the bark from within.

SICK WOMAN SOON RECOVE

By Taking Lydia E. Pinkh Vegetable Compound

"A neighbor advised me to try E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compo which she said helped her so m So I bought a bottles and t out. It sure h me wond-full felt much be My work was longer a drea me If I hear o one who is trou the way I wa will gladly re mend the Veget Compound to them and I will an any letters in regard to the same MRS. BERTHA MEACHAN, 1134 N. P Ave., Lansing, Mich.

"I had been sickly ever since I fifteen years old. After taking L E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compoun got so I could do all my housework I am in good health"—MRS. MARG WILLIAMS, Ketchikan, Alaska.

From Michigan to Alaska from M to Oregon and from Connecticu California letters are continually b written by grateful women re mending Lydia E. Pinkham's Veget Compound.

The Compound is made from r and herbs and for more than fifty y has been helping to restore run-do over-worked women to health.

Are you on the Sunlit Road to ter Health?

CORNS

Ends pain at once

In one minute pain from corns is end Dr. Scholl's Zino-pads do this safe by removing the cause—pressing a rubbing of shoes. They are thin, me cated, antiseptic, healing. At all dr and shoe stores. Cost but a trifle.

Dr Scholl's Zino-pads

Put one on—the pain is gone!

They Stick You

Alexander Kerensky, one time R sian President, said at a dinner Philadelphia:

"The bolsheviks conspire in ev country, they plot against every g ernment, and if you utter a w of disapproval—dear me, how th feelings are hurt! As sure as de they'll bomb you if they get a chanc

"Nevertheless," declared a rich r ical or pink, "the bolsheviks, you m remember, have their good points."

"Yes," said M. Kerensky savage "the same as a porcupine has his."

Madrid Bars Planes

No airplanes of any description s permitted to fly over Madrid, Spa The object is to protect the popul tion from the danger of a crash, though thus far there has never be an aerial accident over the city.

"A God-sent Blessing" is what one mother writes of Mrs. Winslow's Syrup. Thousands of other mothers have found this safe, pleasant, effective remedy a boon when baby's little stomach is upset. For constipation, flatulency, colic and diarrhoea, there is nothing like

MRS. WINSLOW'S SYRUP

The Infants' and Children's Regulator

It is especially good at teething time. Complete formula on every label. Guaranteed free from narcotics, opiates, alcohol and all harmful ingredients.

At all Druggists

Write for free booklet of letters from grateful mothers.

ANGLO-AMERICAN DRUG CO. 215-217 Fulton St. New York

SKIN BLEACH

Results wonderful and sure. One complete bo of KREMOLA will convince the most skepti cal. Also cures Eczema. Price $1.25. Ask you dealer. Beauty Booklet FREE. Dr. C. H Berry Co., Dept. 18, 2075 Michigan Ave. Chicago

Hanford's Balsam of Myrr

Since 1846 Has Healed Wounds a Sores on Man and Beast

Money back for first bottle if not suited. All dealers

The FIRST AID in Stomach Ache!

When some food results in a bad stomach ache—just a little Chamberlain's Colic Remedy in water will give quick relief! Be prepared—get this reliable remedy from your druggist today! For trial size, send 4c to Chamberlain Medicine Company, 706 Sixth Avenue, Des Moines, Iowa.

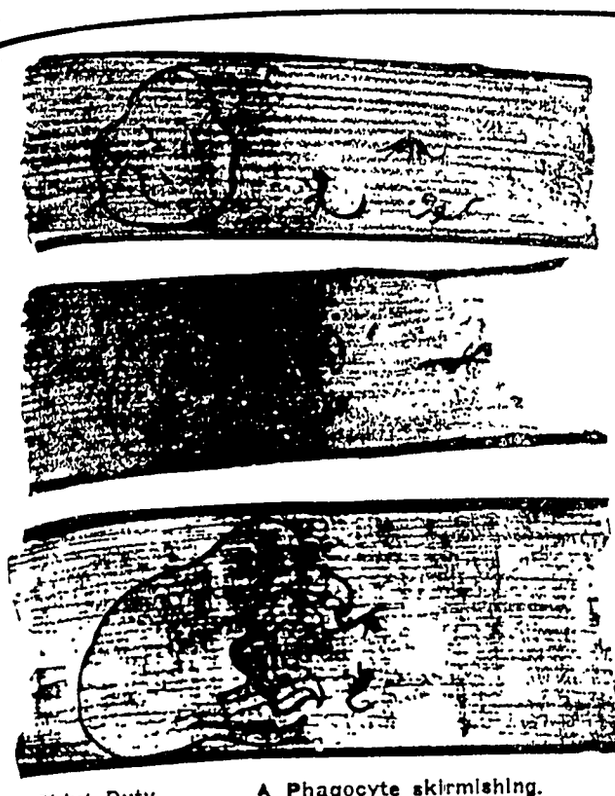
CHAMBERLAIN'S GUARANTEED REMEDY FOR COLIC AND DIARRHOEA

THE FIRST AID IN STOMACH ACHE

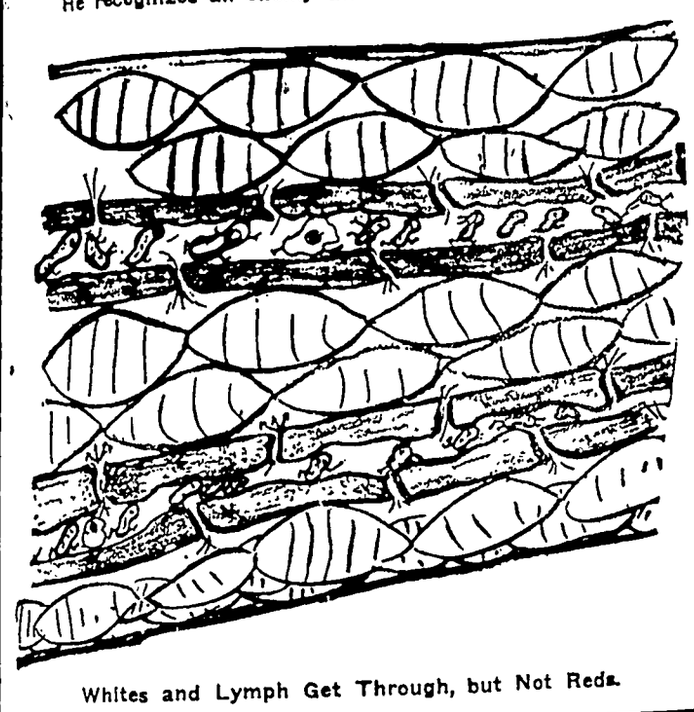
OURSELF nd YOUR BODY

By WILFRED T. GRENFELL

THE BLOOD



Picket Duty. A Phagocyte skirmishing. He recognizes an enemy and eats him.



Whites and Lymph Get Through, but Not Reds.

WHY is our blood said to be our life, father?" "Why, because our body has got to keep alive in every and we must have a live fluid, of live workers, flowing to every all the time, all our lives, carry- them and all their gear for con- l repairs.

Then we built our home, first there to be an architect. Mother did all drew the plans and watched over hole thing. Then we had to have enters, masons, plasterers, plumb- electricians, ordinary laborers, and scavengers, to keep the place ; then came gardeners, cooks, nts, to keep it going; later came emen and soldiers and sailors and ers to keep it safe; and mer- ts to keep it fed and clothed. All jobs have to be done for our house by the blood and its myriad workers. They are all very tiny ey could not possibly get into any ary-sized body—we should all to be immense giants, clumsy and od in a world like ours.

an we see these workers?"

ertainly we can. Here is a frog. not going to hurt it, but just to the web of his toe under the mi- ope. Now what do you see? A f little red dumb-bells tumbling and over, and passing quickly inside some pipes. Anything Look carefully, a roundish fellow. But he is only crawling y along. Right you are! Those far the most important servants have.

or thousands and thousands of these faithful little Red Knights been our friends, living and dy- for us, though we did not even it! They really build our bodies take care of them. Take another at them. See how busy they are t their affairs.

he Reds dash to the lungs and up oxygen and give in exchange s and garbage that they have d up at their work. They never a mess around when they have ; they pick it all up and carry ff, and then come the White hts—the real scavengers and po- and soldiers—and see that every- is all right and safe. We will of them later.

he Reds have to be ready to give heir oxygen quickly, so they carry their skins; and in order to be to carry as much as possible, they shaped like this—and they ar- e so cleverly that their skins al- ther are 1,500 times as big as the of the whole body. Does that le you?

ere is a Red. You see he is car- bubbles of oxygen. He fixes it some jelly-like stuff called hae- obin, and that is what makes him ed, and why your face gets red you have been out in the good air and gotten a lot of oxygen in blood. It just shows through skin. That is the way the Reds up steam all over our body, by ing up the food and tissue. That w they keep us warm, always at the same temperature, about ninety-eight degrees, and also full of energy.

"The Reds do heaps of other useful work. If a leak happens to appear in one of the pipes, of course our body will, in time, bleed to death—that is, lose all its blood. So the Reds and Whites turn plumbers for the time, and help to stop it."

"Tell us more about the White ones, father. What do they do?"

"Oh, there aren't so many Whites as Reds. Only one to every 3,500. They are larger, and, as you see, do not hurry about like the Reds. But they are the fiercest little fighters you ever knew. They not only kill, but eat their enemies at once, and only when they have safely swallowed them do they march off the battlefield. One thing they can do which is convenient, they can call up any number of reserves if needed

"As soon as any part of the body is wounded, the Whites send a scout patrol along, like the scout bees when a swarm is going to occur. If there is poison in the wound, such as bullets going through dirty soaked clothing carried with them in the war wounds, a real swarm of Whites scurries down. In fact, if you are feverish, and the doctor thinks that you are poisoned by germs, but isn't sure, he will take a drop of your blood, look at it through the miscoscope, and count how many Whites there are in it. If there are too many, say two instead of one in each tiny space, then he knows that the whites have found germs somewhere, and are hurrying around looking for the trouble.

"These Whites don't look to be much, but they really are brave as lions. They do not care how dangerous the enemy germ is. Right there in the dark they dart out on him and kill him or get killed.

"Unfortunately, enemies do win sometimes, and endless brave Whites are killed, as they were in Russia. Their dead bodies are then left on the battlefield, and often any number of dead cells from tissues as well. Many Reds may have leaked out from broken pipes, and died also. The heat and swelling which result from the battle are called inflammation, and the dead mess left behind is called pus, or matter.

"Our blood is so valuable that there must be no leaks; and even the finest hair tubes have a wall one brick thick. So, really, the whole blood never touches any outside cell itself. It is like men living in a city who enjoy eating fish, but can never go and catch one. However, the tiny pipes or capillaries are so close together in some places that the distance between them is less than their own width. What is necessary is some middleman to get the food to the cells outside. This is called lymph. It finds its way out between the bricks in the hair walls, through holes too small for the Reds to get through. In this way every cell gets a sort of warm bath of soup all day and all night. This takes a great deal of lymph, almost three times as much as there is blood."

(© by the Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

What's the Answer ?

Questions No. 9

1—Who is the champion open golf player?

2—What is an electric eel?

3—Why do we smile when we are pleased?

4—For what queen was Virginia named?

5—How many Presidents of the United States came from Virginia and who were they?

6—What composer wrote the largest number of melodious and enduringly popular American songs?

7—Which continent has but one active volcano?

8—What was the real name of Pierre Loti?

9—Who said: "You can fool all the people some of the time, and some of the people all of the time, but you can't fool all the people all of the time"?

10—Which is our largest national forest?

11—What famous novel was written about a whale, and by whom?

12—Which is the largest salt water lake in the world?

13—Who is the national woman tennis champion?

14—What is an electron?

15—What is the ratio of workers to population in the United States?

16—How much did the United States pay Panama for the Canal zone?

17—What famous American explorer was once imprisoned in Mexico?

18—What was Shakespeare's professional work other than poet and playwright?

19—Who said: "The public be d—d!"?

20—What proportion of the words in the present English language are derived from Norman French?

Answers No. 8

1—Manush of Detroit.

2—Gen. Henry Lawton.

3—John C. Calhoun, 1832.

4—Fourteen parts gold, ten parts alloy.

5—When Adam ate the forbidden fruit a piece is said to have lodged in his throat, where the bulge appears.

6—"Ralph Roister Doister," written by Nicholas Udall, probably between 1534 and 1541.

7—The Scandinavian.

8—At the University of Oxford; in 1602.

9—Gen. U. S. Grant.

10—United States Steel corporation, Standard Oil of New Jersey and American Telephone and Telegraph company.

11—George Burns of Cleveland.

12—Cork is the outer bark of a species of oak which grows in southern Europe and northern Africa.

13—In South America, where "cow trees" yield a fluid which resembles in appearance and quality the milk of the cow.

14—Delaware.

15—1803.

16—"The Last Supper." "Mona Lisa."

17—The Urals.

18—Washington Irving.

19—Admiral David G. Farragut.

20—The northeastern states and some parts of the West.

Human Speech Calls for Little Energy

Speech requires a small amount of energy, according to telephone engineers, who explain that if a million persons were to talk steadily, and the energy of their voices were to be converted into heat, they would have to talk for an hour and a half to produce sufficient heat to make a cupful of tea.

One acoustic expert has divided the English speech into 36 letter sounds, and he found that the vowels carry most of the energy. It is estimated that at the upper and lower limits of hearing it takes a million times as much energy to make sound audible as in the range of 1,000 to 5,000 cycles, where the ear is most sensitive.

On the radio the sounds "th," "f," "s" and "v" are the most difficult to hear correctly. This is attributed chiefly to their very weak energy.—Scentific American.

The First Doll's House

What may prove to be the earliest British doll's house has been discovered in an old country house in Chelmsford. It is a two-storied house about five feet high, built of solid oak, and contains four large rooms, attics and a balcony on top. The legs on which the house is mounted and the paneling and the mirrors, are, it is said of definite Queen Anne design and workmanship.

Luminous House Numbers

A luminous number which can be seen from a distance at night has been put up on the town hall at Budapest, writes the correspondent of the London Observer, and the authorities are considering the advisability of putting luminous numbers on all houses in the city, and luminous plaques at the street corners on which the street names may be easily read after dark.

It is claimed that Budapest is the first city to consider this method of obviating this difficulty.

This age finds Camel worthy of leadership

THE people of this modern, busy age are always anxious to recognize quality, and they have placed Camel first among cigarettes.

Modern smokers have an experienced taste that quickly learns to know good tobaccos. Camel is their favorite, because they recognize in it the choicest tobaccos grown, blended to bring out their exquisite taste and fragrance.

Camel has won its way to the top in the hardest-to-please age ever known because it has the qualities of goodness that make smoking a pleasure. You will revel in the enjoyment of these cigarettes. No better smoke can be made.

"Have a Camel!"

© 1927, R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, Winston-Salem, N. C.

Rolling stones gather no moss, but they are nobody's stepping stone.

A New Way to Make Jellies

Without Staining Fingers—Without Long Hours of Boiling—Without Depending Upon Berries or Fruit Being in Season.

One of the most interesting and yet one of the simplest new products in the food field is called minute jelly It is pure fruit or berry juice already boiled down and concentrated. To this concentrated juice, fruit pectin in the right amount has been added. The pectin is that part of fruit which makes jelly "jell." It is as pure and wholesome as the fruit juice.

To make the jelly take the little bottle of concentrated juice, pour in a sauce pan, add water and sugar according to directions on the bottle and boil a few minutes. Then pour into jelly glasses and when it has become cold you have the most delicious pure fruit jelly you ever tasted.

A few bottles kept on hand, selected according to your taste for jellies, and you can make up a few glasses just as you want it. One small bottle makes two glasses of jelly. If you wish to try two bottles send us twenty-five cents and we will give you your choice of grape, mint, pineapple, orange, raspberry, strawberry or blackberry. Or four bottles—all different—for fifty cents. Address Department WU, General Packing Corp., Cranford, New Jersey.—Adv.

She Fools Doctors

After lying in a hospital at Springfield, Mass., for six months, paralyzed from the waist down by a bullet which severed her spinal column, a woman now is on the road to recovery. Physicians operated at the time, but expected her death within a few days. They say there is no similar case on record.

BABIES CRY FOR "CASTORIA"

Prepared Especially for Infants and Children of All Ages

Mother! Fletcher's Castoria has been in use for over 30 years as a pleasant, harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Teething Drops and Soothing Syrups. Contains no narcotics. Proven directions are on each package. Physicians everywhere recommend it.

The genuine bears signature of

Chas. H. Fletcher.

The Reason

"You're always meddling with something," complained an irate father. "Why don't you grow up and be a man?"

"How the heck can I?" objected little Willie. "Ma allus makes my clothes so darned tight."—American Legion Monthly.

Common sense is none too common.

One of the great moral fights that some natures have is to keep from eating too much.

One owes some deference to public opinion, merely because so many people hold that view.

BAYER Genuine ASPIRIN

SAY "BAYER ASPIRIN" and INSIST!

Proved safe by millions and prescribed by physicians for

Colds Headache Neuritis Lumbago
Pain Neuralgia Toothache Rheumatism

DOES NOT AFFECT THE HEART

Safe — Accept only "Bayer" package which contains proven directions.

Handy "Bayer" boxes of 12 tablets
Also bottles of 24 and 100—Druggists.

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

Painted Red Cross Building

When the Red Cross building at Charleston, W. Va., was discovered to be badly in need of a coat of paint and the Red Cross treasury was without funds for the work, members of John Brawley post of the American Legion bought paint, donned overalls and completed the job in one afternoon.

Pavia Is Oldest College

The oldest university in the world is that at Pavia in Italy, founded in 825 A. D. by Lothair, grandson of Charlemagne, according to Liberty.

How sweet and sacred idleness is.—Landor.

Epidemic's Big Toll

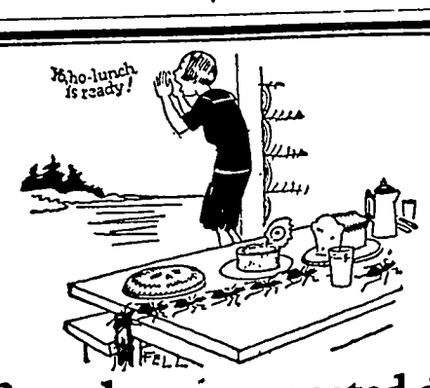
An estimate of the deaths caused by the influenza epidemic, 1918 and 1919, was made by Laumonier in the Gazette des Hospitaux, September 30 and October 2, 1919. He says that for the total of eleven months, allowing for analogous mortalities in Central Asia and the Far East, the world mortality could easily have exceeded 25,000,000.

Only One Explanation

Hank—My brother ain't been arrested for ten years.

Tony—What, is he up for life?

Wealthy Romans sometimes paid as much as $5,000 a year for a skilled cook.



Ma Buzz has unexpected guests

FLIT spray kills ants, bed bugs, roaches, and their eggs. It also clears your home of flies and mosquitoes. Fatal to insects but harmless to mankind. Will not stain. Get Flit today.

FLIT

DESTROYS
Flies Mosquitoes Moths
Ants Bed Bugs Roaches

"The yellow can with the black band"

© 1927 STANDARD OIL CO. (N.J.)

Mr. Martin of Garner was a visitor here Tuesday.

Lou Gimer was a visitor at Pilot Knob Sunday.

150-200 lb. Steam Cylinder Oil s sold at E. F. Jacobs Hardware. 1tc

Mr B. L. Prouty, of Garner was n Klemme on business yesterday.

Charlie Haupt and wife of Belmond visited at the Fred Haupt home last week.

Dr. D. P. Anderson and Miss Genevie Schuldt were visiting Mr. E. H. Schuldt at the hospital Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Mueller spent Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs Chris Riebe at Garner.

AUGUST 14-19

NORTH IOWA FAIR

—MASON CITY, IOWA—

AGRICULTURAL INDUSTRIAL EDUCATIONAL ENTERTAINMENT
—Supreme—

AUTO HARNESS RUNNING Races

100 —— PEOPLE —— 100
REVUE CIRCUS
BALLET ACTS

"Our Nation's Glory"

MAMMOTH FIREWORKS SPECTACLE
—5—
NIGHTS
—5—

McDONALD'S SCOTCH Band

August 1 4-1 9

Klemme Local Items

Mr. Worthy Usher, of Clarion was visiting his wife and relatives here Sunday.

Ray Kahl came from St. Paul to visit with his wife and children at the Ash Keever home.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Musfelt and Mrs. Mary Waterman were visiting with relatives at Clarion Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Sumner Trumbell drove to Hampton on business Monday.

Dr. Missman and son, Byrnes were at Mason City on business Thursday.

Peck Hanson, of Garner, was in Klemme on business Saturday morning.

R. A. Jorgenson and family were visiting the Lyle Liebendorfer family at Mason City Friday evening.

John Pritchard was a business caller at Mason City Friday evening.

Clarence Elder drove to Ames Saturday, returning Sunday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Wiles of Ames drove up Tuesday for a visit with Klemme friends.

Mrs. C. A. Arnold and Mrs. Geo. Stokesbary and Eva were visitors at Garner and Britt yesterday.

Mrs. Geo. Griggs and sons of Goodell were shopping in Klemme Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Geisel returned to their home at Andrew Friday after visiting for about a week at the Ed. Jacobs home.

We understand Elmer Fuller was taken to a Des Moines hospital last week and underwent an operation for appendicitis.

Dorance Day spent Wednesday night with "Bill" Gauger. The boys arose bright and early this morning to see the sun rise.

C. G. Waterman and family, Mrs. C. F. Keraus and Mrs. Mary Waterman were Mason City visitors Friday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Gary and baby were visiting at the home of Mrs. C. A. Arnold last Thursday. Mr. Gary will teach at Rockford this fall.

Grandma Schroeder, Mrs. Lena Schroeder, Mrs. Marlin Croner and Dorothy were at Garner on business Friday afternoon.

C. G. Waterman had his tonsils removed at the Mercy Hospital at Mason City Monday morning. C. G. has been on a soup diet since.

The Klemme Auxiliary ladies put on a hot hamburger sandwich and coffee sale Saturday evening which netted them a neat sum.

Mesdames W. F. Pavey and Aaron Greimann will be hostesses to the M. E. Ladies Aid Society at the Parish House next Thursday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Hercog and son Will and daughter Addy of Chicago visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Haupt last week.

Valentine and Peter Josten drove to Cherokee Sunday to see their brother, Henry, who is recovering from an operation. He is getting along as well as can be expected.

Miss Mildred Johnson came home from Chicago Monday to spend her summer vacation at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe E. Johnson and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Buentenbach and children and Ed's brother Wm. and family of Canada, drove to Williams Sunday for a visit with relatives and friends.

Mr. Harold Snitker, of Plymouth, Wisconsin, a student of theology, spent a week's vacation visiting at the home of Rev. and Mrs. Calvin Grosshuesch.

Mrs. Ely came from Belmond last week Wednesday evening and remained until Friday evening visiting with her daughter, Mrs. W. F. Missman

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Coobs, Sr. came up from McGregor Sunday on the excursion to Bayside and came to Klemme for a visit at the W. F Pavey home.

Mr. Walter Lau, of Waupena, Minnesota spent Sunday with his wife and children at the P. W Johnson home. He is working in an elevator at Waupena.

Threshing is going on here now in full blast and many rigs are in operation this week. A few early birds started the latter part of last week.

Mrs. Charlie Fritzel's brother and sister and another young man came yesterday to look after the farm as Mr. and Mrs. Fritzel were called to Grundy Center by the death of Mr. Fritzel's mother.

Game Warden Monpleasure from Clear Lake was in town Tuesday and left a petition for an open season on pheasants to be signed by farmers in this vicinity. Those who desire to sign can do so at Barr's Cafe

Mrs. Hattie Lanahan is away on her vacation and her place is taken by Miss Elvira Stille at the Kluckhohn store. Mrs. Lanahan and her daughter, Laura, will visit relatives and friends during her vacation

Dr. and Mrs. R M. Thomas and children, of Maringo, were visiting in Klemme a short time Tuesday. They were on their way to Clear Lake for a couple of week's vacation

Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Gimer and children, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Smith and Miss Mabel, and Mr. and Mrs J N. Day and Dorance all drove to Ames Sunday for a picnic dinner and to visit the Iowa State College campus.

Rev. and Mrs. A. W. Gauger and children are visiting with relatives at Rudd, Charles City and other places this week, and will go to Cedar Falls to bring Miss Marie home at the close of her summer course of study.

The country home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Barz was the scene of a family gathering and picnic dinner Sunday. All of the Barz families in this vicinity and the Wm. Barz family of Garner, Mrs. Lena Schroeder, Aug. Barz, Grandma Schroeder and Mrs. Marlin Croner and Dorothy were present. A good time is reported by all.

J. J. Brumer, of Jeffrson, Iowa, was a business caller at the Klemme Creamery Tuesday. Mr. Brumer is the field man for the Great Atlantic and Pacific Tea Co., the firm which buys practically the entire output of the Klemme Creamery.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Buentenbach and children enjoyed a visit the latter part of the week from Ed's brother, William and family who came from Nepawa, Canada. The latter family have been living in Canada for a year or more but have moved back to the States again.

P. M. Wilson and Mr. and Mrs. P W. Johnson and daughter, Shirley drove to Rochester, Minn., Sunday for a visit with Mrs. Wilson and Gladys. Mrs. Wilson is making a fine recovery from her recent operation and is expected home the latter part of this week.

Rev. A. B. Gedye, wife and two daughters, Ersula and Beulah, of Radcliffe, Iowa, drove up Saturday for a few days visit with old Klemem friends. The Gedye family always find a welcome for them when they visit Klemme. Rev. Gedye was a former pastor at the English M. E church in Klemme.

Reuben Grosshuesch was six years old Friday and his mother planned a fine birthday party for him to which a number of his little friends were invited. After playing games and having a big time for an hour or two the youngsters were treated to a lunch by Reuben's mother. All say they had a fine time.

The Klemme Live Stock Shipping Association handled four car loads of live stock Saturday night, all billed for the U. S. Yards at Chicago. Joe Knadler of Garner, and Curtis Schuldt and Raymond Chelsvig of Goodell rode in to Chicag n the stock train from here.

Chris Jacobs of Garner was in Klemme on business Monday. Mr. and Mrs. Jacobs sold their home at Garner last week to the Lutheran Church there, to be used for a parsonage. If Mr. and Mrs. Jacobs are looking for a nice place to live we would like to have them as residents of Klemme.

The Klemme Camp Fire Girls and their guardian, Miss Marie Blank, are spending this week at the Koerner cottage at Clear Lake. The party includes the following girls: Valeria and Nova Koerner, Blanche Gimer, Irene Johnson, Esther West and Gracka Quandt The girls are sure having a big time.

BUCK JONES THRILLS WITH HIS DARING STUNTS

At His Best In Fascinating Story Of A Stolen Mine

Buck Jones and his famed horse, Silver Buck, showing next Friday and Saturday, Aug. 5-6 at the Lyric at Garner, Iowa. "Good As Gold" a western thriller that is crammed full of suspense, thrills, stunts of daring and danger, and all in a story that is of fascinating interest. Add to this a background made up of the wonders of the Grand Canyon of the Colorado, and you have a picture that is nearly perfect entertainment.

Buck Jones, in the role of a son robbed of his inheritance, a fabulously rich gold mine by claim jumpers, gives a fine performance that is made up of hard riding, daring swinging among the chasms of the Grand Canyon over vast depths, and causes the audience to thrill with suspense one moment and laugh the next.

Frances Lee in the role of the girl who inherits the stolen mine makes a beautiful heroine

NOTICE OF PROBATE OF WILL

STATE OF IOWA,
Hancock County, ss.
To Al Whom It May Concern:

YOU ARE HEREBY NOTIFIED, That an instrument of writing purporting to be the last Will and Testament of Anna Rust deceased, dated Sept. 24, 1924, having been this day filed, opened and read, Fonday the 29th day of August, 1927 is fixed for hearing proof of same at the Court House in Garner, Iowa, before the District Court of said County or the Clerk of said Cuort; and at 3:00 o'clock P. M.o f the day above mentioned, all persons interested are hereby notified andrequired to appear, and show cause, if any they have, why said instrument should not be probated and allowed as and for the last Will and Testament of said deceased.

Dated at Garner, Iowa, July 25th, 1927.

CHRIS J. JOHANSEN,
Clerk of District Court.
(Publish July 28, Aug. 4-11, 1927.)

Earns $70 Per Year

ON EVERY $1,000 INVESTED IN

7 Per Cent Preferred Stock

CNETRAL STATES ELECTRIC CO.

No Iowa state tax. No normal federal income tax. Pays dividends quarterly.

Net applicable assets nearly TWICE the outstanding preferred stock.

Net applicable earnings equal over FOUR TIMES the dividends of 7 per cent on the preferred stock

The company serves about 80 cities and toyns located in Iowa, Minnesota and Nebraska and is managed by the men under whose successful management its earnings have inlreased yearly from $62,000 in 1916 to nearly $800,000 now.

This 7 per cent preferred stock has a ready market, as resale facilities are provided by the company fo the convenience of stockholders.

For further information see our local office or write the

Securities Department

Central States Electric Company

515 Merchants National Bank Building
CEDAR RAPIDS, IOWA

Note: Investment made by the 10th earns full dividends from the 1st of the month.

For Electric Service

CALL 39 GARNER, IOWA
HOUSE WIRING—MOTORS—
LAMPS—
APPLIANCES—
—ALSO A FULL LINE OF RADIOS AND RADIO ACCESSORIES——

Prouty Electric Shop

GARNER — IOWA

UNDER GOVERNMENT SUPERVISION

The Happy Medium

He who strikes a happy medium between income and outgo, and SAVES the difference has mastered one of the greatest problems of modern domestic life.

Spend WISELY—and SAVE regularly at this safe, convenient bank.

First National Bank
KLEMME, IOWA.

Farm Champions of the World

WITH prize herds from America's greatest breeding farms—grains, fruits and farm projects from every corner of the state—the world's greatest agricultural and live stock fair welcomes you to Des Moines this summer.

Never has such a wealth of farm features been assembled as you will see in this vast exposition, covering more than 300 acres. Never have such amusements been provided, or such a perfect combination of education and entertainment for an ideal vacation.

Iowa's Annual Outing

National Live Stock Show of nearly 6,000 pure-bred animals.

Finest grains and produce from Iowa's best farms.

Boys and girls' live stock show, farm exhibits and judging contests.

A women's exposition filling two entire buildings, thirty-one county Farm Bureau displays; 40 acres of farm machinery; team pulling contests; lectures and displays on improved farming methods of all kinds.

And such entertainment—five days horse racing for $20,000 in purses, six days whippet dog races, two days auto races, Sousa and his 70-piece band, five other famous bands and orchestras; brilliant midway of 40 shows, fifteen hippodrome attractions, immense fireworks spectacle—"The Fall of Troy," society horse shows, mammoth new grandstand seating over 12,000

There's no substitute for a real State Fair outing. Join the 400,000 happy vacation-seekers who will enjoy Iowa's great exposition this summer.

Sousa and His Band Every Day

Iowa State Fair

AUG. 24 - SEPT. 2

Reduced Railroad Rates

Goodell News

(By Special Correspondent)

and Mrs. Gus O'Krueg went Moines Saturday.

L. Sherwood and family were on City callers Wednesday.

eral families of this vicinity at Cornelia Sunday.

J. Cook and family were shopp- to Mason City Thursday.

rs. Met Avery and her sister of ond and their mother went to their brother and son who is ously ill in the hospital there.

WONDERFULLY

Refreshing

With the warm weather now here, nothing is more cooling or refreshing than one of our fine Sodas!

Luscious ice cream, fresh ripe fruit, pure flavoring—that's what you get at our fountain.

Whenever you feel the need of a tasty, toothsome treat, stop in at our cafe.

Crystal Cafe

Conrad Quandt, Prop.

Mr. and Mrs. Emerson visited at the Wesenberg home this week

Jay Griggs was a business caller at Mason City Monday.

W. L. Sherwood and family spent Sunday at Clear Lake.

Goodell played ball with Cartersville on the Belmond diamond Sunday.

Mr and Mrs. Mart Bachman, of Klemme visited at the Geo. Griggs home Sunday.

W. L. Sherwood is having his house painted by Johnson and Wright of Belmond

Francis Cashman visited the Steel hospital at Belmond Monday. He is suffering from an injured eye

Martin Kearney went to Williams Tuesday. They were threshing on his farm.

Mr. and Mrs Hemingway and son spent Sunday at Renwick at the Glen Martin home

Many attended the Legion Day celebration and dance at Belmond Thursday.

Rev Scott and family took supper at the J J Cook home Sunday evening

The Misses Margaret and Agnes Fuller, Mrs Lee Robbins and Mrs Francis McNulty were shopping in Mason City Wednesday

Mr and Mrs Thada and Jeanne are out of town this week Viola Finn and Selma Hanson are helping in the store during their absence

Meats For

Threshers

To feed a crew of hungry threshers is quite a task for the farmer's wife during the busy threshing season, but when your meats are purchased at Larsen's a large part of the task has been met.

Right now we are specializing in special cuts for the threshers' dinners and to meet the demand we are well stocked on—

TENDER ROASTS—both beef and pork

Choicest Hams—fine for serving either piping hot or cold sliced

STEAKS CHOPS COLD MEATS

For those morning and afternoon lunches for the threshers we suggest that you have on hand a supply of our Cold Meats for Sandwiches, Cheese—any kind, pickles, etc.

If It's For Threshers Meals and Lunches

We Can Serve You Well

Klemme Meat Market

A Good

Hog House

Your Hogs deserve a good home. Hogs should have something more than just a shed, because the returns they give you depend largely upon the care they have.

Choose a Hog House that will be convenient, well-ventilated, permanent and attractive in appearance.

With our Lumber and full line of all kinds of Building Material and Equipment, you can build a modern Hog House at a very reasonable cost.

We offer you our Free Plan Service on any building and will be glad to quote you prices.

Build now and have your hogs properly sheltered for fall and winter.

Tell us your plans!

Northern Lbr. Co.

Avery Twp. News

(Special Times Reporter)

Mr and Mrs Frank Roths spent Thursday at Belmond.

Johnnie Reed has been cutting some oats for Chris Anderson

Miss Irene Marshall spent Thursday at the Clyde Marshall home

The farmers are all done with harvesting in this vicinity

Johnnie A. Trampel has been helping with the harvest at the Ted Dutheridge farm.

Mrs Ernest Helps was a Tuesday afternoon visitor with Mrs Clarence Bachman-

Mrs Clarence Bachman and Miss Lela Bachman were business callers at Mason City Thursday

Clyde Marshall and son Robert, Peter Trampel and son John, and Fred and Alvin Albers were all down to help D A and Herb Marshall finish harvesting.

Ell Township News

(Special Times Reporter)

Arthur Schlawin has been quite ill the past week

Mrs Henry Josten went to Rochester, Minn., last week for a medical examination.

Miss Genola Hanson of Garner is spending a few days of this week at the John Bock home

The B W S Thresher Company started the season threshing at the Albert Barz farm on Tuesday morning

Mr and Mrs Ed. Buentenbach and children visited Mrs. Buentenbach's parents and other relatives at Dows, Sunday.

Mrs John Bock, Edwin and Stella were in Mason City on business Monday They also visited with Mr Schuldt who is still in the Mercy Hospital

Mr and Mrs Wm. Buentenbach and family from Canada visited at the Ed Buentenbach home last week Sunday they left here and went to Williams to visit relatives there Messrs. Valentine, Peter, Alfred and August Josten motored to Cherokee Sunday where they visited with Henry Josten who is in the Seaman Sanitarium there. They reported that Mr. Josten is expected home sometime in the near future.

The following people were entertained at the Fred Barz home Sunday· Mr. and Mrs. Henry Barz and family; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Barz and family; Grandmother Schroeder; Mrs. Marlin Croner and daughter, Dorothy; and Mrs. Lena Schroeder.

Avery-Twin Lakes News

(Special Times Reporter)

Mr. John Wessels is assisting with work at the Will Wenz home.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Buseman visited at Belmond Friday night.

Mr. and Mrs. George Platt were entertained to a chicken supper at the Fred Etchen home Monday evening.

Mr Dick Swalve went to Mason City with a load of hogs one day last week. Dave Schwichtenberg hauled them in his truck.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Thieman and family spent Sunday at the Herman Priebe home.

Miss Emma Christians spent Sunday with the Misses Florence and Carrie Swalve.

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Swalve and family were Sunday evening visitors at the John Christians home.

Mr and Mrs. Wm. Wenz were Sunday visitors at the Herman Schuldt home.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Buseman and family were Sunday visitors at the Pavey home.

Mrs. Edwin Josten helped Mrs. Elmer Schlei prepare dinner for the threshers Tuesday.

Mrs. Carl Wille and daughter Arlene and Grandma Schlawin helped Mrs Lou Griffen cook for threshers Tuesday.

Liberty News Notes

(Special Times Reporter)

The Wes Lenz family were guests at the Henry Beier home Sunday.

Threshing is going on in full swing in most of the rings.

Mr and Mrs. Eric Clark ond son Dick, of Garner, were visiting at hte Rhine Lemke home Thursday evening.

John Lemke has been suffering with blood poison in his arm the last few days. How it started he does not know.

Orville Bridges, Paul Stille and Elmer Beier returned home from their trip out west. Guess it was too warm for them in the West.

Mrs. Wayne Whitney who has been visiting at the Will Lemke home had a slight stroke of paralysis last Wednesday. She returned to her home in Britt Thursday afternoon.

Smart Dog

Lassie is a smart dog, indeed, and her mistress has taught her some very clever tricks. For instance, the Mrs. will say: "Lassie, are you a Republican?" Thereupon Lassie will bark quite sharply, indicating that she is really of that political faith.

Late one night the Mr. and Mrs. were awakened by Lassie's loud barking in the kitchen, and the Mrs. finally became uneasy.

"I believe there's some one in the house," she whispered.

"It's only Lassie holding a Republican caucus," grunted the Mr. half-asleep.

Woman Boiler Worker

Overalled and gloved and her face covered with a steel mask, the only woman acetylene welder in the country is rapidly completing the biggest boiler ever constructed in the boiler works at Wildwood, N. J. She is Mrs. Catherine Nelson, of Stelton, N. J., and the mother of two children. In addition to wielding the torch, Mrs. Nelson bosses the labor of several men. Before the World war increased the demand for women in industry, Mrs. Nelson was a dressmaker.

New York Noisiest City

Owing to the tremendous amount of subway construction going on at the present time, New York is undoubtedly the noisiest city in the world. A rat-tat-tat of pneumatic riveters is heard all day long. This, combined with the thousands of other noises, taxes the nervous system enormously. To lessen this wear and tear on the nerves, rubber ear plugs are now on sale in many of the drug stores.—Capper's Weekly.

Paper From Hardwoods

The United States Department of Agriculture has announced the development of a new process for making newsprint from hardwoods. It is believed the process will assist materially in continuing the newsprint supply from aspen and birch and possibly maple in the northeastern region and in developing of a newsprint industry in southern states for gumwood.

Italy Reclaims Land

Nearly 1,900,000 acres of swamp land in Italy is being reclaimed and completion of the projects will have cost approximately $90,000,000. It is hoped that six-sevenths of the work now in course of operation will be finished by 1935. Other proposals call for the reclamation of 1,900,000 additional acres.

Motors in Mine Hoist

The old Kentucky mine in Amador county, Calif., a gold producer with the deepest vertical shaft in North America—4,614 feet—has given up all other forms of power and is now hoisting with electric motors.

ANNOUNCE WOMEN'S FAIR.

Des Moines, Special: A complete women's exposition, representing practically every type of domestic and professional work now being done by the women of Iowa, is to be held at the Iowa State Fair which opens here August 24 for ten days.

The exposition will occupy two of the largest buildings on the fair grounds and will include continuous programs, lectures, and demonstrations each morning and afternoon throughout the entire period of the fair. It will also embrace hundreds of exhibits assembled by the women of the state.

The chief features of the exposition will include style shows; the annual Baby Health Contest; cooking, canning, and sewing; home decoration, improvement and management; community drama work; fancy needle work of all kinds; women's work in the rural communities of the state; and citizenship activities. It is expected that more than 100,000 women from all parts of Iowa will attend the exposition during the ten days of the fair.

FARM LEADERS COMING.

Des Moines, Special: Farm Bureau leaders throughout Iowa are making elaborate preparations for the big mid-summer Farm Bureau Festival, which is to be held here the last week in August, in conjunction with the 73rd annual Iowa State Fair, August 24 to September 2.

The Farm Bureau has reserved an entire section in the State Fair's 80-acre free camp grounds, where members will camp out during the period of the exposition. Monday, August 30, has been designated as Farm Bureau Day at the State Fair, and the State Federation will stage a series of meetings for members both morning and afternoon, with addresses by noted agricultural leaders. Thirty-one different county farm bureaus will bring to the fair this summer special exhibits, showing the outstanding farm projects which they have conducted during the past year, with representatives in charge of every project to explain it to interested visitors.

The Farmers' Union and other farm organizations are likewise making elaborate plans for extensive participation in the fair, and detailed announcement of these programs will be made in the near future.

FARM YOUTHS TO EXHIBIT.

Des Moines, Special: Literally every county in Iowa has filed entries in the statewide contests for Iowa farm boy and girls championships to be held at the 1927 Iowa State Fair, opening here August 24th.

Between 1,000 and 2,000 picked farm boys and girls will spend eight days at the State Fair competing in all fields of farm work. The competitions carry with them cash prizes totalling more than $11,000. They embrace exhibits of prize calves, pigs, sheep and poultry raised by junior farmers, judging contests and demonstrations in such work as farm record keeping, home management, poultry culling, livestock feeding and kindred subjects.

It is said that this will be the largest Boys and Girls' Club Show ever held at any state fair in this country

TO SHOW FARM PRACTICES.

Des Moines, Special: All the latest developments in modern farm methods and improved forms of livestock raising are to be exhibited and demonstrated at the Iowa State Fair here, in connection with a special display which will be arranged by Iowa State College experts, as one of the features of the fair's new $350,000 Educational Building.

Among the special subjects to be taken up by college experts will be better methods of livestock feeding, farm marketing, soil betterment, crop rotation, and weed eradication. The corn borer, which is menacing the State of Iowa at the present time, will have a special section in the exhibit all to itself, where farmers may view actual specimens of the pest and obtain the latest information as to methods worked out for its control.

IMPROVE CAMP GROUNDS.

Des Moines, Special: Eighty acres of virgin timber land immediately adjoining the Iowa State Fair grounds here has just been put in condition to receive more than 25,000 campers who are expected to take their annual outing at the Iowa State Fair here this summer.

The huge camp ground is equipped with electric light, city water, police and fire protection, excellent sanitary facilities, and grocery and meat market service under the supervision of the State Fair management The camp will be open to all State Fair visitors free of charge throughout the entire period of the exposition. Special sections of the camp are being set aside for the Farm Bureau, Farmers' Union and County Agents.

ASSEMBLE BIG CIRCUS.

Des Moines, Special: Famous circus stars and hippodrome attractions from the show rings of the United States, Europe, and South America have been assembled for the eight day entertainment program which will form one of the features of the Iowa State Fair here August 24 to September 2.

Two big circus programs will be given in front of the new $350,000 amphitheater each day, one in the afternoon and one in the evening. The attractions include acrobats, trapeze performers, clowns, gymnasts, jugglers, trained animals, and all the other thrillers which are associated with the best circuses, A total of fifteen different attractions comprise each day's hippodrome program, in addition to Sousa and his band, the afternoon horse racing, auto racing and whippet dog racing events and the night fireworks spectacle, "The Fall of Troy."

BRIEF JOKES

Into the Cold World

"Is there an opening here for an ambitious young—"

"Yeah, close it as you go out."

You May Have Noticed

"I suppose Easy Street is a happy place." "Naw, it runs right into Affinity avenue."

We'd Like to Know

"What do you think of this plan to drive the crooks out of Chicago?"

"Who gets 'em?"

One and the Same

Ted—"Bill has a new siren for his car." Frank—"Yeah, what happened to Mae?"

Thrust Upon Him

"I sometimes wonder," sighfully said Tennyson J. Daft, the versatile versificationist, "why I was born a poet?"

"You weren't," meanly replied old Gaunton Grimm.—Kansas City Star.

Prompt payment of bills aids industry and keeps business moving.

Mosquito is a cheerful little rascal He sings before he present his bill.

Everything comes to him who waits—even rain.

Mule trainers get a big kick out of life.

Homelike Cooknig

If you are sandwich hungry or ready for a juicy steak.

If you are "all set" for a good dinner or just want a "snack"—we're waiting for you—all set.

Good, substantial wholesome food.

HIGLEY'S LUXUS

ICE CREAM

—is sold here in bulk or served as sundaes. Try a quart next time.

Give us the pleasure of welcoming you today—

New Cafe

M. O. BARR, Prop.

Farm

Loans

5%

Isaac Sweigard

Garner Iowa

PIANOS

Players & Grand

New and

Second Hand

M. N. ZEIGER

Jewelry & Optical Goods

GARNER, IOWA

1—View of the parade in Boston in honor of the visit of the transatlantic and transpacific aviators, the Yankee division passing the reviewing stand. 2—Wailing Wall of the Jews in Jerusalem, access to which is forbidden since the earthquake. 3—Thomas E. Campbell, former governor of Arizona, who may be made ambassador to Mexico.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Naval Conference Resumed With Not Much Hope of an Agreement.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

WITH the return to Geneva of the British delegation, the naval limitation conference was resumed; but there was a feeling there and in Washington that the parley was doomed to failure. Viscount Cecil and W. C. Bridgeman had submitted to the British cabinet their demands and their entire policy, and apparently were upheld in every particular. Sir Austen Chamberlain, foreign secretary, then made a statement to the house of commons that left little hope that an agreement could be reached. The crux of this was that he considered the permanent formula adopted at Washington for limiting battleships inapplicable for certain classes of cruisers to have sounded the death knell of the conference. It was to apply this formula to auxiliary craft that President Coolidge called the conference. Sir Austen suggested that an agreement might be reached for a shorter period than originally planned, or on destroyers and submarines only, in case the three powers could not agree on a maximum cruiser tonnage; but this idea was coldly received by the American officials in Geneva and in Washington.

Dispatches from Geneva said the final British proposals were as follows:

1. That, since an agreement has practically been reached on submarines and destroyers, a convention shall be framed providing for 90,000 tons of submarines and 180,000 tons of destroyers, with an approximate 60 per cent ratio for Japan.

2. That a quota of 300,000 tons shall be adopted for all cruiser types.

3. That the ratio between the United States, Great Britain, and Japan for 10,000-ton cruisers carrying 8-inch guns shall be 12-12-8, or, if this is not acceptable, 15-15-10.

4. That the next smaller cruiser class shall be limited to 7,500 tons, carrying 6-inch guns.

5. That the question of providing extra smaller cruisers for Great Britain from its obsolete vessels shall be left to the Washington conference in 1931.

Congressman Martin B. Madden of Illinois, chairman of the house appropriations committee, who has been traveling in England, gave an interview at Torquay in which he said that if Great Britain was not willing to give America the equivalent of English ship power with respect to speed, range, tonnage, etc., there was every reason to believe that the United States naval building program would have the support of the appropriations committee. An agreement putting our navy out of balance with Britain's would not be ratified by congress, he said. Ambassador Gibson has been told by the State department that the United States would rather have him return to Washington without a treaty than to sign an agreement which fails to safeguard American interests or make possible real naval economies.

FOR three days about two dozen governors of states and some guests, in annual conference at Mackinac island, Mich., discussed all manner of topics related to the public welfare, devoting a large part of the time to flood control and farm relief. The executives do not adopt resolutions at these meetings, but they were unanimous in favoring flood control of the Mississippi river and its tributaries by the federal government and in blaming that government for past neglect of that problem and the consequent losses. Governors of the Middle West and West had a lot to say about the agricultural problem and most of them seemed to favor a measure like the McNary-Haugen bill which the President vetoed.

There was a general condemnation of election corruption but the governors disagreed on the method of purification. A limited expression on federal control of hydro-electric systems was largely opposed and the sentiment against the centralization of power in Washington bureaus was all but unanimous. A proposed house of governors was called ridiculous by one governor and commended by others.

Gifford Pinchot, former governor of Pennsylvania, found opportunity to tell the conference that Senator-elect Vare should be ousted from the senate, and to make a bitter attack on Secretary of the Treasury Mellon as Vare's political partner.

PRESIDENT AND MRS. COOLIDGE attended the pageant at Custer, S. D., celebrating the days of gold discovery, and experienced some thrills not on the program. Two big horses broke from a covered wagon they were drawing and, with the doubletree attached, ran through the crowd straight for the box where the Chief Executive and his party were seated. A mounted cowboy managed to turn them aside, the throng opened for them and they disappeared over a near-by hill. When Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge were returning to the State Lodge they were overtaken by a violent rain storm which made travel over the slippery, sloping roads rather perilous. Mr. Coolidge has been asked by several cities to use his influence in the matter of the location of the Republican national convention of next year, but last week he declared he had no choice, though he would be glad to confer with the national committee if it desired. It is said that San Francisco now has more votes pledged to it than any other city.

The President is seriously considering the invitation to visit Havana next spring, extended by President Machado of Cuba, and to address the Pan-American congress there. He might make such a proposed trip the occasion of visiting Porto Rico to inform himself of conditions in that island, the people of which are clamoring for changes in their form of government and the election of a governor of their own people.

MRS. ANNE U. STILLMAN and her son, "Bud," found place on the front pages again last week, for the young man was married in the Grand Anse camp, in the Quebec woods, to Lena Wilson, forest girl and former servant in the Stillman household. Fifi managed the whole affair with great eclat, gathered a lot of notable wedding guests and decked her new daughter-in-law with magnificent diamonds. Of course the news photographers were there in swarms, and as Father L'Ami was performing the ceremony some of them pressed too close. Fifi flew into a rage and upset them and their cameras and bombarded the whole squad of camera men with plates until they fled to the woods.

MARION COUNTY PROSECUTOR REMY of Indianapolis and his aids are working their way through a great mass of documents turned over to them on the order of ex-Dragon Stephenson, the life convict, which he says substantiate his charges against Indiana officials; and a new grand jury at Indianapolis is supposed to be investigating Stephenson's alleged control of the 1925 legislature. Gov. Ed Jackson continued silent concerning charges of misconduct in office, and two Indianapolis papers, the News and Times, asked him to show his innocence or resign. Editors of other Indiana papers back up this demand, the Republican organs saying the governor owes it to his party, as well as to himself and the state, to dispel the cloud of mistrust now enveloping the statehouse. Prosecutor Remy says the disclosures may rock the state and shock the nation.

FREDERICK STERLING, the first American minister to the Irish Free State, presented his letters of credence to Gov. Gen. Timothy Healy in Dublin and took up his duties. The ceremony was made elaborate by the Irish, their best troops acting as escort for Mr. Sterling and lining the route of the parade to the vice regal lodge in Phoenix Park. After seeing the governor general, the minister exchanged calls with President Cosgrave. Mr. Sterling's first task will be the negotiation of a commercial treaty between America and Ireland, replacing the old American treaty with Great Britain.

IGNORING the Chinese treaties with the powers, the Nationalist government at Nanking has promulgated a new list of tariffs on luxuries, running from 15 to 60 per cent. American exports to China are especially hard hit, and the American merchants in Shanghai met and decided to send a strong protest to Washington, though their hope of relief was small.

Though Gen. Feng Yu-hsiang was continuing his advance on Peking, along the line of the Hankow railway, Gen. Chang Kai-shek, generalissimo of the Nanking forces, was reported to be in a precarious position because the Radical forces from Hankow were moving down the Yangtse toward Nanking and also were threatening to advance south through Chekiang province on Shanghai.

FRANCE, or its government, is about fed up on Russian communist propaganda and Premier Poincare called in the soviet ambassador, Christian Rakowsky, and told him most emphatically that unless Moscow's Red agents in France were recalled at once France might be provoked into breaking off all relations with Russia. Rakowsky hurried to Moscow to confer with his chiefs. Eight communists, convicted in Paris of being spies in the pay of Russia since 1924, were given unusually severe sentences.

Secretary General Turati of the Italian Fascist party in a speech at Ravenna predicted that a clash between the Fascist and the Bolshevist conceptions of the state must come, and that the victory would rest with Fascism.

NEW YORK was all set to undergo the inconvenience of a strike of traction workers, and the Interborough managers were prepared to continue service with strikebreakers—which promised riotous times—when Mayor Walker intervened and in two hours won both sides to agree to a settlement that resulted at least in a truce. The trouble probably is not over, however, for the union leaders assert they are now free to organize the traction workers, while the Interborough officials deny this.

ACCOMPANIED by his brother, Prince George, and by Prime Minister Baldwin, the prince of Wales has come over for another visit to Canada, and possibly to the United States. On August 7 these three distinguished men will represent England at the formal dedication of the Peace bridge between Buffalo and Fort Erie, Ontario, built to commemorate a century of unbroken peace between the United States and Canada. The United States will be represented by Vice President Dawes and other notables.

LIEUT. CARLETON C. CHAMPION of the army went up for an altitude record at Washington, and when seven miles up his airplane motor caught fire. Refusing to use the parachute because he was determined to save his barograph record, he descended by head and tail spins and back slips, all the time fighting the flames with a small extinguisher. Several times the machine was out of control, but Champion finally landed safely in a cornfield. Then he learned that he had failed of a record by 1,000 feet.

MAURICE E. CRUMPACKER, representative in congress from Portland, Ore., committed suicide by jumping into San Francisco bay, after previously attempting to kill himself with poison. The reason for his act was not revealed.

Cardinal Czernoch, primate of Hungary, died in Budapest after a long illness.

CHICAGO'S worst marine tragedy since the sinking of the Eastland 12 years ago occurred Thursday when the little excursion steamer Favorite sank in a squall. Twenty-six person were drowned, fifteen of them bein gchildren and ten women. Fifty-five passengers and members of the crew were saved.

Bull Association Aid to Dairyman

Means Offered to the Small Owner to Secure Use of Improved Sires.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Few dairymen are so situated financially that they can afford to purchase a really first-class pure-bred bull for a medium-sized or small herd of dairy cows, says J. C. McDowell, dairy husbandman of the United States Department of Agriculture. But every dairyman, regardless of the size of his herd or the condition of his pocketbook, can well afford to own a share in a high-class bull. In fact, the dairyman with only a few cows from which to obtain an income is the very one who needs a high-producing dairy herd. He is the man who can least afford the great losses that come from carelessness in breeding.

Use of Improved Sire.

For dairymen in these circumstances the co-operative bull association offers a means of securing the use of better dairy bulls than could otherwise be had. Through the system of transferring bulls from farm to farm, as is done in a bull association, it is possible to keep all bulls until their daughters have made records, and until the records of the dams and the daughters have been compared. That makes it possible to determine which are the good bulls and which ones should be retired from service.

When the census was taken in 1920 only 25 per cent of the dairy bulls of the United States and 3 per cent of all the dairy cattle were pure-bred, and there was only one pure-bred bull to each 23 farms. That is not a good record for an important dairy country. To improve this condition the first step should be to eliminate all bulls except the pure-breds; the next, to prove all the pure-bred bulls through the records of their daughters and to eliminate all whose daughters are unsatisfactory. The bull association is one means by which these results may be brought about, says Mr. McDowell.

What Dairymen Think.

The growth of a movement does not always prove its value; but in the case of dairy-bull associations the continued and almost constant growth since the work began is at least some indication of what the dairymen think of this method of co-operative breeding. In 1910, two years after the work began, there were 9 associations; in 1915 there were 15 associations; in 1920 there were 123 in 30 states; and in 1927 there are 248 associations in 33 states.

Potatoes Repay Proper Care at Digging Time

Potatoes will well repay proper care and attention at digging time. This is a statement of the potato men at the State College of Agriculture at Ithaca. They declare that bruising is especially to be avoided, and that ordinarily potatoes should be handled as little as possible when dug. If allowed to lie on the ground, they will dry so that not much dirt will adhere to them. Careful storing for awhile in shallow piles is desirable as it gives an opportunity for the skin to tighten. This will avoid slipping of the skins which not only permits an entry of disease, but is objectionable in other ways.

If the tubers are to be stored, they should be carefully picked over, and the bad ones discarded. All bruised and cut potatoes ought to be thrown out for use immediately. Disease usually attacks them first, and, once started, it becomes very destructive and hard to check.

The potato bins should be thoroughly swept, and if there has been trouble with rot in past seasons it is wise to disinfect them. Painting or washing all inside parts with a solution of one pint of formaldehyde mixed with twenty gallons of water is efficient. After the removal of last year's crop is the best time for cleaning and disinfecting the bins for receiving the new crop.

Storage below 40 degrees F. is recommended whenever possible.

Agricultural Facts

Timothy hay should not be cut later than when it is in full bloom.

* * *

Cut the lawn often, and do not remove the lawn clippings. They help to build a good lawn soil.

* * *

The wise dairyman will know whether he is keeping cows or whether the cows are keeping him.

* * *

Prices of butterfat, wool, lambs and poultry products are such that these products will afford a much better outlet for our grains than the cash market will bring at any time this year.

* * *

Look out for harlequin bugs on your cabbage and turnips and pick them off by hand as soon as they appear; knock them into a can in which you have a little kerosene oil and water.

* * *

Where it is possible to haul the manure directly to the field as it is produced, this practice is to be advised, since excessive losses by leaching and fermentation are thereby prevented.

Improved Uniform International

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D.D., Dean, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)
(©, 1927, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for August 7

DAVID SPARES SAUL

LESSON TEXT—I Sam., chap. 26.

GOLDEN TEXT—Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good.

PRIMARY TOPIC—David's Kindness to His Enemy.

JUNIOR TOPIC—David Shows Mercy.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How to Treat Those Who Wrong Us.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Overcoming Evil With Good.

I. Saul in Pursuit of David (vv. 1-3).

Ever since David took his departure from Jonathan (ch. 20), when that crowning act of friendship was shown, Saul had been hunting him as a wild animal. He now pursues him with 3,000 chosen men. David flees from place to place and is in hiding as an outlaw. Sometimes he is in the enemy's country doing disreputable things. This is the period of his schooling, which fitted him to be the future eminent king. It was a bitter period in his life, but God sent him to this school and adapted the instruction to his needs. David could never have been the broad man that he was had he not been prepared in this crucible of bitter experience. He learned many lessons, among which may be mentioned:

1. His own weakness. It was necessary that he be humbled under the sense of his infirmities. Before any one is fit to be raised to a position of prominence he must be made to know his limitations and weaknesses. Unless a man has learned this lesson, sudden elevation to power will utterly ruin him.

2. His dependence upon God. David's many miraculous escapes caused him to realize that the Lord had redeemed him out of his adversity.

3. He learned the country and people over which he was to rule. By knowing the grievous afflictions which Saul had heaped upon the people, he could sympathize and remove them.

4. He learned the magnanimity of self-control. This a man must know before he can be a true king. He that ruleth his spirit is better than he that taketh a city (Prov. 16:32).

II. Saul in David's Hands (vv. 4-20).

1. David sends out spies (v. 4). This he did to find out whether Saul was come in very deed.

2. David in Saul's camp (vv. 5-11). He took with him Abishai and went in the night to where Saul was sleeping. Abishai asked to be allowed to kill Saul, but David forbade him because Saul was the Lord's annointed.

3. David takes Saul's spear and cruse of water (vv. 12, 13). Once before at Engedi (chap. 24) David spared Saul's life. Now again he was at his mercy. This David did that he might show tangible evidence to the king that he had no evil intent.

4. David taunts Abner, the king's bodyguard (vv. 14-16). He calls to Abner and taunts him for his listlessness—his failure to watch over the Lord's annointed, the evidence of which is the cruse and spear in his hands.

5. David reasons with Saul (vv. 17-20). David reasoned with Saul, showing that he had nothing but good intentions toward the king. He asked that he would show what wrong he had done, or what evil intent was in his heart. If the Lord was directing Saul he was willing to appease His wrath with an offering. If Saul was only hunting him because wicked men were urging him, a curse should be pronounced upon them. David is very humble and begs Saul to relent, for surely if he had any wicked purpose he would not have saved his life twice when the Lord had placed Saul wholly at his mercy. David recognized the fact that the Lord had delivered Saul into his hands not to kill, but to save. He did not kill, neither did he allow his servants to kill.

III. Saul's Confession (vv. 21-25).

1. He confessed that he had sinned. The sad feature about his confession is that it lacked conviction, for he went right on sinning.

2. He confessed that he had played the fool and erred exceedingly. We see about us daily many using such expressions, but still they go on repeating their sins. David shows his magnanimity of spirit, however, in delivering the cruse and spear to Saul's servant. He knew that Saul's confession was not genuine, so he was afraid to go near. He still appeals to Saul's kindness to him, and they part never to meet again.

Praying

"It is better to do a little with prayer and in the Spirit than to be busy with many things in your own strength."

Spiritual Love

All real spiritual love is but a portion of Christ's love which yearns in all who are united to Him.—Alford.

An Important Duty

You have not fulfilled every duty unless you have fulfilled that of being pleasant.—Charles Buxton.

Beware of Low Aim

Not failure, but low aim is crime.—Lowell.

Here's the place where flies and disease germs bree but it's easy and inexpensive to rid of them this proven way

Flies and disease germs breed live in filth. And flies carry the ease germs—especially those o phoid fever—wherever they go, taminating even the food you e
Physicians and health author everywhere recommend this sim method of getting rid of these de flies and germs: Simply sprink can of pure, high-test Lewis' Ly nothing else—into your outside toilet a week. It kills disease germs instantly absolutely prevents flies from bre
Also removes objectionable odors an stroys rats.

Use pure Lewis' Lye this way regul especially during the summer and fall get your neighbors to use it. Remem that a single case of typhoid—even should not result fatally—will cost m than thousands of cans of Lewis' Lye.

Lewis' Lye is sold by reliable grocer you are unable to secure it from your n est grocer, take no chances with sub tutes, send us a postoffice money orde
$1.80 and we will send you by expr dozen cans—a three months' supply

In any case, send us your name on a card and we will mail you our book—" Truth About a Lye"—containing hund of uses for lye and valuable recipes our booklet on the prevention of Cholera, and a free sample of our cleanser and water-softener—Pe

PENNSYLVANIA SALT MFG
Dept. 99
Philadelphia, Pennsylvania

You can't be sure o success unless you use
LEWIS' LYE

Send for FREE Books

SMALL INVESTORS OPPORTUNITY

We want 500 investors to invest $10 in Finance Investment Company Prefe stock $20 per share, draws 7% and pates in earnings to 10%. Common st sold with preferred. A new company ba by men who know the business and po bilities. Make monthly payments with interest charge if you wish to do so. W
Commonwealth Investment Co. Merch
National Bank Building Cedar Rapids,

Drove Hard Bargain

A man tells this story of his c
lege days:

He was accosted on the street o day by a stranger who offered to s at a bargain a ring which he said had found in the washroom of a ho
The ring had a large stone set. T stranger asked $5 for the ring. h after much bickering took 25 cents.

The student put on his new ma of opulence and went down to the c lege with the expectation of maki an impression, but on arriving, found others had made similar b gains, paying from 10 cents to $1.

Sarcasm

It was during the family bat
"You seem to think a bad cold in t head means nothing to a woman," co plained Mrs. Blackstone. "I do know of anything more annoying."

"No," countered her husband, wi a rare flash of spirit "How ab lockjaw?"—American Legion Month

Fast Air-Mail Schedule

Airplanes will soon leave New Yo or San Francisco at night and depos mail at the opposite coast for ear delivery on the second morning.

Tender, Aching, Perspiring Fe

Amazing Relief in 5 Minutes or Money Back.

Get a bottle of Moone's Emera
Oil with the understanding that it does not put an end to the pa and soreness and do away with offensive odors your money will promptly returned.

Don't worry about how long you'
been troubled or how many oth
preparations you have tried. Th powerful penetrating oil is one pre aration that will help to make yo painful aching feet so healthy a free from corn and callous troubl that you'll be able to go anywhe and do anything in absolute fo comfort.

So marvelously powerful is Moone
Emerald Oil that thousands ha found it gives wonderful results the treatment of dangerous swol or varicose veins.

MEN MAROONED

By GEORGE MARSH

WNU Service.

Copyright by The Penn Publishing Co.

STORY FROM THE START

Garth Guthrie, Canadian war veteran, having to live in the open on account of weakened lungs, is factor of a Hudson's Bay post at Elkwan. He came back from the conflict with a permanently scarred face, which he realizes cost him the love of his fiancee, Edith Falconer. Sir Charles Guthrie, his brother, is a millionaire war profiteer.

CHAPTER I—Continued

—2—

In the autumn Garth had been sent north with Etienne Savanne, a veteran servant of the company, to winter at the fur post at the mouth of the Elkwan. When the Christmas mail from the south was sighted on the white river Garth felt the mingled feelings with which he had watched the approach of the dog team bringing word from home—from her—were the cause of puzzled self-analysis through the months to follow. In July when he sailed into Fort Albany in his York boat with his furpacks, his year on the silent west of the bay was up. The mail he found waiting was up. The arrival brought the news that he was now brother of Sir Charles Guthrie; announced the decision of Edith and Clara for an August wedding on the return of the exile; dwelt at length on the rise in Guthrie steel; and disposed of his health in the formal surmise that it had been fully restored by the year in the open.

The letter last had drawn a bitter smile from the man who read. Pages for the personal affairs of the writers, and time for the lungs he had brought back from the Hun drive for the Channel ports. So they were waiting in Montreal, were they, for his return, to fit him to their petty ways—shape him into a business machine, like Charlie—when he had breathed the tonic air off the ice-fields of the north; seen the caribou drift across the treeless lakes at dawn; camped under a canopy of stars while the aurora crowned the north; wakened to the clamorous chorus of the Canadas and watched the "wavies" rally their legions in the autumn? How blurred, after this, the once poignant memory of Ethel Falconer was growing! How petty seemed the obsession of Charles Guthrie for money and power to the man who had found in the peace of the west coast an opiate for his doubt and disillusion!

With no attempt at defense of his decision to remain for another year, Guthrie wrote home, and without regret, had sailed out of the delta of the Great Albany with Etienne, bound for Elkwan.

The man who had lain beside his sleeping dog with his thoughts while the wind roared through the alders, glimmering the anchored tent, and the rain beat its intermittent tattoo, sat up and placing the candle lantern at his elbow, drew a letter from his pocket and read:

"Dearest Garth:

"I don't know what to say—I'm simply stunned. Either you are still trying to are deceiving us, or take this method to humiliate me before your family and the world in the hope that I shall voluntarily give you up. Of course, if you no longer love me, there is nothing to be said. Do you love me still, Garth dear? So long as you do, I shall wait.

"Devotedly—until you wish it otherwise,

ETHEL."

This had been her answer to the burning of his bridges—utter abandonment of her pride, and he had once thought her proud.

Nevertheless, each new reading of the letter brought to Elkwan by the winter packet a fortnight before, had quickened the memory of what this girl, vibrant with life and physical charm, had meant to him—this girl whom he had humiliated. Often, kneeling before her vivid likeness in his quarters he had gazed at the alluring face, the faultless modeling of throat and shoulders, and marveled at the spell which held him in the north while such loveliness waited his return. She still had power to stir him, and his moods of self-censure and remorse were short-lived. The north had won.

CHAPTER II

At daylight the challenge of the airedale waked the sleeping man. With hair erect on mane and back, the dog wheezed through the lashed tent flap and broke into furious barking.

"Shut up, Shot! Etienne's dropped in for breakfast," called Guthrie.

Presently, weighted down with his load of wet geese, a bent figure stumbled through the alders accompanied by the leaping airedale.

"Good morning, Etienne! You had a bad night of it in the bush."

The wiry half-breed cached his load on the platform above his head, and grinned. "I mak good camp een de trace wid beeg fire, an' roast some geese."

With difficulty the men boiled their tea and a kettle of goose; then, to avoid the flying sand, went into the tent to eat.

"We ought to be starting for Elkwan, Etienne. I don't like to leave her too long, sick as she is."

The swart face of Etienne Savanne grew grave as he nodded.

"She nevaire see de snow once more."

"That's why I hate to leave her alone with old Anne. I'd never forgive myself if—" Guthrie paused to stare at the tent wall.

The black eyes of his companion softened. "You ben good man, m'sieu'. Dat girl die long ago een de bush."

"Yes, the condensed milk has kept her alive—but she should have gone to the mission at Albany."

The other shook his head; then struck a match and lit his pipe before replying.

"You are new man in dees country-tree. You don' know Injun squaw. At Albanee—widout you—she not be happy."

Guthrie reddened under his deep tan. He knew only too well. "But they would have taken better care of her," he protested.

Etienne slowly shook his head. "Too late, m'sieu. She live more long here dan at Albanee."

All day while the norther flayed the west coast, Guthrie and Etienne dressed and salted geese. Deep in the winter, when the caribou had drifted back from the coast, the geese, freed from the salt by boiling, would be a welcome change from the fat bacon of the company's stores. The wind held into the night, but when the men turned out of their blankets at sunrise the blow was over.

Sailed Out of the Delta of the Great Albany.

At noon the goose hunters launched the canoe and driving her through a quarter sea, pushed down the coast for the shelter of Akimiski island. They were rounding the low headland of Elkwan point when Garth, slaving in the bow, was aroused by an exclamation from the stern man.

"Look! A boat!" Etienne pointed his dripping paddle across the yellow strait to the shore of the island. "Shipwrecked—somewhere! Dey use de oar."

In the distance, crossing to the mainland, Guthrie made out a boat.

"Dey wave to us!" cried Etienne. "Dey see de canoe!"

From the craft, still miles away, showed a flutter of white.

"We'll come up with them on the lee side of the point," and Guthrie, whose thoughts were at Elkwan, whose arms were driven by fear—fear that in his absence tragedy had had its grim way, lunged viciously with his paddle.

In the quiet waters beyond Elkwan point, the two boats approached within hailing distance. In the ship's dory four men were rowing, while two figures sat in the stern. The crew of the boat rested on their oars.

"Hello, canoe!"

Guthrie answered the hail, and shortly the Peterboro came up with the larger craft. "You've lost your ship?" he began.

The black-bearded figure in the stern of the boat, ignoring the question, demanded: "You're Hudson's Bay people?"

"Yes, we're bound to the Elkwan just below here. You've lost your ship? Where did you leave her?"

Guthrie's curious glance shifted from the bearded spokesman to the girl at his side wearing a pea-jacket and a sou'wester, below the brim of which fluttered a plume of dark hair. As the boats swung together, the airedale, mane and tale stiff, growled menacingly at the strangers, but a low command from his master silenced him.

"Our schooner's ashore on the outside of the island. We left Fort George day before yesterday, and were off Cape Jones when the blow struck us. It crippled our rudder and drove us straight across the bay. We couldn't head into it."

"You were lucky to get ashore in that blow," said the surprised Guthrie. "Your boat must have got a pounding on those flats."

"It did, but we struck at high tide and managed to get most of our stuff off her. Then, this morning, we fell into the hands of a pirate."

"Pirate!" Guthrie exclaimed.

"Oh, Archie," protested the girl, "that's hardly fair. He paid for what he took, and helped with the last of the stores."

"Who were they—where from?"

"They were in a little sixty-foot power schooner, the Ghost, St. Johns, and the leader was a red-headed ruffian with a mutilated face—horrible;"

The black eyes of Etienne Savanne snapped as they met the backward glance of his chief. "McDonal', Ha! Ha!" said the half-breed with a grin that mapped his swart face with lines.

"What?"

"Yes," nodded Guthrie. "Your pirate was undoubtedly the famous Laughing McDonald. The Indians call him 'McDonald Ha! Ha!' because of the grin—from that scar."

As he spoke, Guthrie was aware that the grave eyes of the girl were curiously studying him—the second man with a scarred face she had met since her shipwreck on the west coast. Instinctively he got the impression that those sober eyes had themselves looked on suffering—tragedy. The blood rose to his forehead as he went on: "They think he's sort of a superman—the Indians. He's hypnotized them; but," and he met the girl's straight look, "you say he treated you fairly?"

"I think he did," she said, and, as she tucked the loose lock of chestnut under her cap, while the color showed faintly at her temples he wondered if she had read his thoughts.

"Treated us fairly," exploded the bearded man. "Well, I call that—"

"How many men were with him?" roughly interrupted Guthrie.

"Four. There was an Eskimo, too."

"One a big, bearded chap?"

"Yes! The others I took to be sailors."

Guthrie nodded to Savanne. "That's the Newfoundland whaler who brought him into the bay last year," he said; then continued to the stranger, "You had the honor, sir, to meet the man who has stampeded the fur trade from Whale river to Fort Churchill. He took fifty thousand dollars' worth of fox out of the bay last year."

"Hum! Why didn't you drive him out—arrest him?"

Guthrie laughed. "Arrest him for what? He has as much right here as we. Then, you know, there are not many who would relish the job."

"Relish the job! Bah! I thought you fur men were—"

The speaker was interrupted by a voice suddenly grown hard with impatience. "It's getting late. My name is Guthrie—this is my assistant, Etienne Savanne. You'd better step that mast. You'll need the sail or you won't make Elkwan before dark."

"I'm Dr. Archibald Quarrier, sir, geologist. We've been prospecting for iron and copper on the east coast," snapped the other, visibly annoyed. "This is my sister, Miss Joan Quarrier. How far did you say we were from Albany?"

Guthrie smiled into the amused eyes of the girl, who seemed to enjoy the discomfiture of her brother.

"You're ninety miles from Albany. Your boat can't be beached like a canoe. It would depend on the wind." Then, as he glanced at the sun, dread of what he might find at Elkwan led Guthrie to finish abruptly: "Follow me into the river mouth. Our accommodations are limited, but you are welcome." And delivered of this lie, with a sweep of his paddle, he separated the boats.

"How about my stuff over on the island; it's very valuable?" called Quarrier after the retreating canoe. "You can send men for that and bring it to Albany?"

But the paddles of the now fast-moving Peterboro lunged and swung in unison, the question ignored.

Beyond the river valley the muskeg was smothering a sun veiled in haze when the Peterboro approached the log landing below the huddle of buildings on the high shore, which was Elkwan. The problem of caring for the guests which the storm had brought Guthrie had been swiftly crowded from his thoughts by solicitude for those he had left at the post, a week before, when the necessity for beginning the hunt of their winter supply of geese had compelled his absence. He was overdue, and Anne was old and ignorant. He would never forgive himself—never cease to be haunted by the eyes of the doomed girl he had left in the care of the Cree women, if— But no! It was unthinkable—too hideously tragic that it should have come to her, alone with old Anne. Fear of the thing had depressed him on his summer trip to Albany—had harassed him through the last two days, a prisoner to the wind. The ache of his own loneliness through the first weeks at the sanatorium had lent him deeper understanding of the frightened look in the eyes of the girl whenever of necessity he had left her, even for a few hours, in the care of old Anne. But always he had returned to find her, and the joy in her wistful face had been fit recompense for his haste to turn back—to keep his word to a waif of a half-breed, that he would be with her at the end.

Guthrie leaped up the cliff trail to his quarters. Opening the door, he announced his coming in a voice that belied his fear.

"Back again! How's all my family?"

A squat Indian woman shuffled into the living room, her wide mouth splitting a swarthy face in a grin of delight.

"'Allo! We glad you come!"

Guthrie expelled a deep breath of relief. A voice from an adjacent room called faintly:

"Nia! nia! You come back! It ees long tam!"

"Yes, Ninda." He bent over the cot where lay the wraith of a girl in whose face, thin to emaciation, great dark eyes glowed feverishly as she smiled up to him in her joy.

Guthrie drew a chair to the bedside and took in his the hot hand which lay on the coverlet. The fever was worse.

"It was the storm, Ninda—the wind We could not travel."

The blue-black hair, heaped in braids on the pillow, accentuated the pallor of the dusky skin, shot over the high cheek bones with the flush of fever. She had failed rapidly since he left, but in her hour of extremity she would not be alone.

"You go—no more?" she whispered, searching his bronzed face.

He shook his head. No more, Ninda."

Anne came in with some hot condensed milk. The girl sipped a little, then smiled at the pitying face of the man with its scar furrowing the right cheek.

"You here all tam now, Ninda sleep." With a sigh her eyes closed. As Guthrie left the room, he looked back On the pinched oval of her face hovered a smile.

"Where the boat, Etienne?" he asked, huskily, entering the trade-house, which stood in the clearing outside the dog stockade.

"She come slow along the shore—not far now."

Guthrie went down to the landing to meet his guests. The lack of space at his quarters—at first thought embarrassing—was now a source of satisfaction, for there would be room for Miss Quarrier, only. Her pompous brother and the rest would sleep in the trade-house. He would take Quarrier in to meals and the others could eat with Etienne.

And then, there was Ninda.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Glory Long Departed From Ancient Karnak

Karnak is a village in upper Egypt with a population of about 15,000. The village has given its name to the northern half of the ruins of Thebes on the east bank of the Nile, the southern part being known as Luxor. The Karnak ruins comprise three great enclosures built of crude brick. The most northern and smallest of these contained a temple of the god Mont, built by Amenophis III, and restored by Rameses II and the Ptolemies. Except a well-preserved gateway, little more than the plan of the foundation can be traced. The southern enclosure contained a temple of the goddess Mut, and is almost as ruinous as the east, but on a much larger scale. The third or central enclosure is of vast dimensions, forming approximately a square of 1,500 feet; and it contains the greatest of all known temples, the Karnak temple of Ammon. Thebes became the royal residence, and Ammon of Karnak was the great god of the state. Different kings added to the temple of Karnak and to Thebes. Alexander the Great, the Grecian conqueror of the East restored a chamber in the festal hall. The walls of the buildings throughout, as usual in Egyptian temples, are covered with scenes and inscriptions, and many record the annals of kings and of battles and campaigns.

Wasps That Eat Metal

An insect known as the steel wood wasp can do considerable damage to lead.

A piece of pine wood infested with larvae of this wasp had been used as a core on which to roll some sheet lead. When, on reaching maturity, they attempted to escape, they cut through the lead instead of traveling lengthwise through the wood.

Each sheet of metal was one-tenth of an inch thick, and the insects penetrated 15 thicknesses of lead before escaping.

The man with a grievance is a grievance to others.

Ask for

POST TOASTIES

They stay crisp in milk or cream

Delicious crispness that children's eager appetites prefer

Temptingly seasoned, and toasted by the Postum Company's special process, Post Toasties have the double-crispness children's appetites prefer. Sealed in the lasting crispness of these golden flakes is the true delicate flavor of the hearts of selected white corn. Give this crisp delight to children, to satisfy their eager appetites. Serve Post Toasties often—the crisp, delicious flakes that everybody likes—for breakfast, supper and in-between-meals treats. Make sure that you get the real Post Toasties that stay crisp in milk or cream. Ask your grocer for Post Toasties, and see that they come to you in the red and yellow, wax-wrapped package that keeps them crisp, fresh and ready to serve.

© 1927, P. Co., Inc.

POSTUM COMPANY, INC., BATTLE CREEK, MICH.

Those Knotical Miles

Sweet Young Thing—Why do you have knots on the ocean instead of miles?

Skipper (sarcastically)—Well, you see, they couldn't have the ocean tied if there were no knots.—Montreal Family Herald.

Community Enterprise

The whole town of Conway, N. H., dropped all other work for one day and graded and put into shape the new athletic field for the high school. The field was wholly laid out by the townspeople. There are a track, a diamond and grandstand.

"Are you coming to my party, Frank? We'll have Monarch Cocoa and Teenie Weenie Peanut Butter sandwiches." "Am I coming? I'll be the first one there!"

EVERY genuine Monarch package bears the Lion Head, the oldest trademark in the United States covering a complete line of the world's finest food products—Coffee, Tea, Cocoa, Catsup, Pickles, Peanut Butter, Canned Fruits and Vegetables, and other superior table specialties.

REID, MURDOCH & CO.
Established 1853
Chicago Pittsburgh Boston New York
Jacksonville Tampa Los Angeles

Monarch is the only nationally advertised brand of QUALITY FOOD PRODUCTS sold exclusively through the men who own and operate their own stores.

MONARCH
Quality for 70 Years

Post Erects Street Signs

The hundred vacationists who go to Grand Haven, Mich., each summer will have no trouble finding their way about the city in the future. They will find the streets marked by signs erected by the local post of the American Legion. About two hundred signs will be erected by the Legionnaires in co-operation with city officials.

Claims Quilt Record

Mrs. Amanda Conrad, seventy-five, Prairie Hill, Mo., believes she established a world record in quilt-making when she completed a scrap quilt containing 16,400 pieces. Nine spools of thread were used and four months of spare time occupied.

His Reception

"They seem to be a savage set, over at Ten Degrees," said a guest. "Why, when I was there I saw a lot of them attack a young man with clubs and stones just as he got off from the train and nearly kill him!"

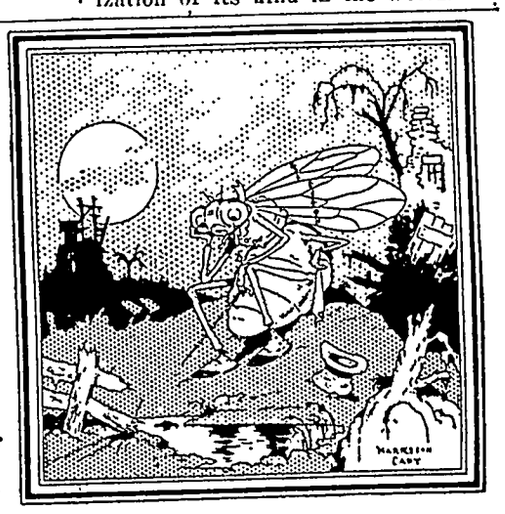
"Great gosh!" ejaculated the landlord of the Pruntytown tavern, "What had he done to them?"

"Well, he came home wearing a pair of golf knickers, and—"

"Aw, I see!"—Kansas City Star.

Farm Co-operation

The farmers of western Canada in less than four years have established the largest co-operative wheat organization of its kind in the world.



The Last Survivor

Flyosan has killed all his millions of friends and relatives

NO WONDER he's blue. He knows he's next.

Flyosan has killed every single fly and mosquito in thousands of homes this summer. Flyosan is the modern best way of fighting flying pests. It kills them by the wholesale—not one at a time.

Flyosan is the original liquid insect spray (non-poisonous). Use Flyosan itself, not one of its imitations. Flyosan not only kills all the flies and mosquitoes in your home but also rids it of the millions of deadly, disease-bearing germs which each one carries.

"Swatting" only scatters these germs into the air which you and your family breathe.

Here is the right insecticide for each insect:

FLYOSAN, Liquid Spray—kills flies and mosquitoes.
PETERMAN'S ANT FOOD—exterminates ants.
PETERMAN'S DISCOVERY, Liquid—exterminates bed-bugs.
PETERMAN'S ROACH FOOD—exterminates that cockroach army.
PETERMAN'S MOTH FOOD—protects against moths.

You must have a specific insecticide for each insect. No single insecticide will exterminate them all. We have had nearly 50 years' experience. We know that is true.

Peterman's has the right insecticide for each insect. On sale wherever drugs are sold.

Peterman's 200 Fifth Ave., N. Y. C.

Mrs Herman Paul and three children and Mrs. Luke and daughter f St Louis, Mo, arrived in Klemme this morning for a visit with Klemme relatives and friends. Mrs. Paul is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Suckow.

LYRIC
Theatre
—GARNER, IOWA—

Presents The Following Attractions:-

FRIDAY and SATURDAY
August 5-6
Buck Jones In
"GOOD AS GOLD"
Taken In The Grand Conyon
—Comedy—
"GIMME STRENGTH"
Admission 10-25c

TUESDAY and WEDNESDAY
August 0-10
The Al Christie Laugh Special
"UP IN MABEL'S ROOM"
—Comedy—
"WHO'S MY WIFE"
Admission 10-25c

Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Tries and son came from Des Moines last week. Mr. Tries is working in the Carson Barber Shop.

The newly organized Klemme ball team, "The Independents" will play the Goodell ball team at Belmond Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Chris Gram drove to Fort Dodge Sunday to see Wild Cat cave. They said it was scenery well worth driving that far to see.

R. W. Elder and family took a little auto jaunt Sunday. They ate dinner and then drove to Ackley and Iowa Falls and then home.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. C. Keraus and sons, Otho and Verle, returned Saturday evening from their week's vacation spent at the lake near Waterville, Minn. They say they had a fine time camping out.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fritzel drove to Grundy Center yesterday, being called there to attend the funeral of Mr. Fritzel's mother. Deceased was a lady 82 years old and she had been in ill health for some time before death relieved her suffering.

Coal

We have filled our bins with all kinds of Coal. We can supply you with Threshing Coal at reasonable prices. Now is the time to put in your supply of Furnace Coal for the winter. High grade coal for ranges, too.

Twine

We still have some Twine on hand at the low price for cash of, per pound—

13½c

FEED

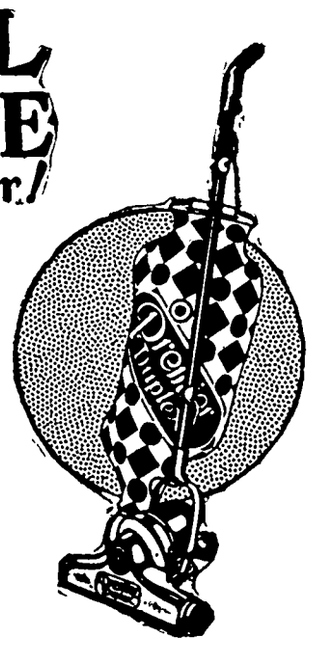
We have plenty of Oil Meal and Tankage on hand. Our grinder works every day if you want oyur own feed ground here.

Klemme Co-Operative Grain Co.

Only $5.00 down and a LIBERAL ALLOWANCE on your old cleaner!

THIS double offer places this splendid product within reach of everyone. The balance can be paid on the easiest of easy payment terms.

The Premier Duplex is worthy of a place in the finest home. It cleans by double action—powerful suction plus a motor driven brush. It needs NO OILING for both motor and brush turn on ball bearings



Premier Duplex

Central States Electric Co.

Threshing Coal

Now is a good time to lay in your supply of Coal for Threshing.

We have our coal bins filled with a high grade of coal especially suited for your needs at threshing time—and the price is right on our coal.

We always carry a complete lne of all kinds of coal. Right now we are also featuring high grade coal for kitchen ranges.

A full line of all kinds of feed on hand.

North Iowa Grain Co.

News of Klemme and Vicinity

Dr. R. W. Specht, Dentist, Garner, Iowa. adv

Mr. A. D. Gimer made a trip to Rockford on business Tuesday.

Mrs. Martin Brinkman was a Mason City visitor Wednesday.

George Lawhorn is driving a new Essex Coach.

FOR SALE—14 inch gang plow, like new. Peter Trampel. 2tp

Miss Gail Buss is visiting relatives at Belmond this week.

All sizes rubber and cloth belting for threshers at E. F. Jacobs. 1tc

Reports are that Mr. Ernest H. Schuldt is gradually getting better at the Mercy Hospital at Mason City.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Haupt of Rowan visited at the Fred Haupt home last week. The men are brothers.

Mrs. W. F. Missman enjoyed a visit the latter part of the week from her sister from Racine, Wisconsin.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ward and family were visiting relatives Sunday at Britt.

Mr. and Mrs. Tony Ahrenkeil and son of Goodell, were Klemme visitors last night.

Mr. and Mrs. Lou Davis and children of Mason City were visiting at the Henry Freie home Sunday.

Grandma Schlawin and Mrs. Carl Wille helped Mrs. Lew Griffin cook for threshers Tuesday.

Quite a number from here took in the Legion celebration at Belmond last Thursday.

Dr Tice and family of Mason City visited with the Arnold families Saturday.

Dr. Missman and son Byrnes were business callers at Mason City Friday afternoon.

Dr. and Mrs. W. F. Misman were visiting at Hampton Monday afternoon.

Elmer and Mabel Larson, of Iowa City were visiting with the Arnold families here over the week end.

Mrs. Henry Christenson and Vogel of Goodell were visiting at the Sumner Trumbell home yesterday.

Mrs Fred Musfelt, and Mrs. Hattie Lanahan and Luara, drove to Mason City on business Tuesday.

M O Barr sold his pet bear Monday to the Seils-Sterling Circus which was showing at Dows.

Mr. and Mrs. George Musfelt of Clarion were visiting with Klemme relatives last Thursday.

The Misses Marie Blank and Leona Lau returned Saturday from Ft. Madison where they attended the State Auxiliary convention.

Mr and Mrs. John Braund and children of Williams were visiting at the Henry Freie home Saturday and Sunday.

The Misses Neota Ridder and Minnie Lau returned Friday from their visit in Chicago of a couple of weeks.

Miss Dolores Koerner drove over to Clear Lake Tuesday to spend the day with Marie Blank and the Camp Fire Girls at the Korener cottage.

We understand that the Iowa Union Telephone Company has leased the Walter Lau residence in north Klemme and will soon move their exchange to that location.

Mrs. Clinemeyer and son James of Seneca, Illinois came Wednesday evening of this week for a visit at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Ernest Helps.

Prof. Ben Stucki, Superintendent of the Reformed Church Indian School of Melsville, Ohio, visited at the home of Rev. Grosshuesch Tuesday and Wednesday.

Miss Bertha Miller, who has been in Los Angeles, California, for almost a year with her sister, Mrs. G. P. McCulloug and husband, returned home Saturday. She reports Mr. and Mrs. McCullough are well and happy.

The Arnold families of this vicinity, the Dr. Tice family of Mason City and Mabel and Elmer Larson of Iowa City, all enjoyed a picnic dinner Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. P. N. Anderson of Forest City; Ben Abbey and family of Joice and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Needham of Mason City, were callers at the W. F. Pavey home Sunday.

Miss Beatrice Busch left Tuesday for Chicago. She has been spending a couple of weeks vacation here visiting with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Busch and family.

Grandma Schroeder, Mrs. Lena Schroeder, Mrs. Marlin Croner and Dorothy and Mrs. R. A. Jorgenson and Buster all went out to Henry Barz this morning to help Mrs. Barz cook for the threshers.

"Pickles" Gibbs and "Wearie" Christie left Friday morning in the former's car for a two week's trip in Northern Minnesota, Canada and possibly back by way of the Black Hills.

George Blank, formerly of Garner, but who resided in Minnesota, died of pneumonia. He was a brother of Tom and Lippo Blank of Klemme, and is Mrs. Paul Lemke's and Mrs. John Griewe's father.

Mrs. W. F. Missman and Byrnes Mrs. Ely and Mrs. Paul Grange and son Dorance, drove to Belmond Friday evening. Mrs. Ely had been in Klemme for several days visiting and she remained at Belmond.

Milo Patet returned home from Hayfield the latter part of the week. He has been working on a farm this summer. In about two weeks he intends to go to Chicago again to resume his art course.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Jensen and children, Mr. and Mrs. August Baack and son, and Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Kluckhohn and two sons enjoyed a picnic dinner at Pilot Knob Sunday.

Rev. Calvin Grosshuesch and family; Adella Kuhlman; Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Wenz; Miss Frieda Schuldt, and Mr. Joe Schuldt, of Klemme, and Alferta Thompson, of Minneapolis, were entertained at the home of Mr and Mrs Herman Schuldt Sunday.

Mrs. Albert Carolus, Sr. and children drove to Clarion one day the past week where they met Mr. and Mrs Den Hurn who accompanied them to Iowa City to see Mr. Carolus in the hospital. He has been there two weeks, but as yet is not much better.

John Woods and family and Miss Bertha Miller drove up from Watkins, Iowa, Saturday for a visit at the John and Frank Miller homes. Miss Bertha has been in California nearly a year and has been visiting the Woods family for a couple of weeks and they brought her home to Klemme.

Rev. and Mrs. A. W. Gauger and sons, Wm., Harlan and Stanley and Harvey Nelson returned Sunday evening from Lake Okoboji where they spent a week's vacation and attended the Bible Conference in session there.

Mr. and Mrs Geo. Ulr
Jeanette Wade and child and Mrs. Walter Bredlow a ly, and Mr. and Mrs. Har and daughter Coleen, and Mrs. Lloyd Ulrich and famil
ed a picnic dinner Sunday.

Office:—
Masonic Bldg.
GARNER, IOWA.

Phones:—
Office, 1
Res., 1

Dr. E. H. Phillips
OSTEOPATHIC PHYSICIAN

Physiotherapy, including Osteopathic treatment, diat my, surgical diathermy, radiant heat, high freque chlorine gas and auto-condensation.

BAYSID
AMUSEMENT PARK
——Clear Lake, Iowa——
— PROGRAM —

SUNDAY, AUGUST 7th

Speed Launch Races in front of the Park. Five Boats, seve fast and exciting races, big cash prizes. Start about four p.
Albert Lea Packers vs. Mason City O-P team at ball park th o'clock. Band concerts, free movies and out-door attractio Great crowds expected.

DANCES

At Bayside on Wednesday and Friday Nights. At White P on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday nights.

ROLLER SKATING at Bayside Daily.

AT BAYSIDE——Best bathing beach on Lak bath house, toboggan slide, roller coaster, little train, new f house, merry-go-round, ferris wheel, fortune teller, concessio free picnic grounds and tables, children's playgrounds, boa fishing.

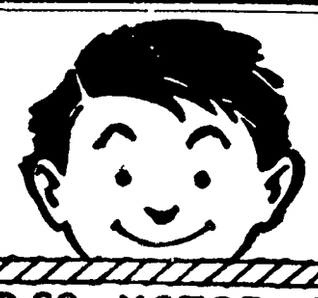
FUN FOR ALL ALL FOR FUN
— Policed Parking Grounds For Cars 15c —



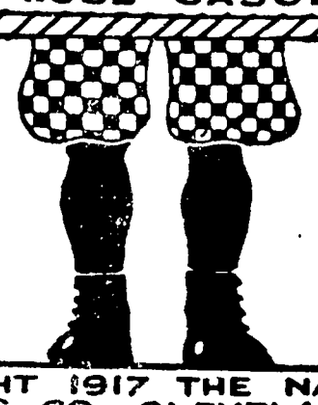
EN-AR-CO MOTOR OIL
HEADQUARTERS FOR THRESHERS!

Don't forget that we carry a full line of Oil and Grease for Threshing Rigs, also 150-200 lb. Steam Cylinder Oil, and a full line of Threshers Supplies.

EXTRA SPECIAL—En-ar-co Bulk Hard Oil 10 cents per pound! 10 cents per puond!

E. F. Jacobs
"Your Farm Service Hardware Store"

WHITE ROSE GASOLINE



NATIONALITY KEROSENE
EN-AR-CO GEAR COMPOUND

COPYRIGHT 1917 THE NATIONAL REFINING CO. CLEVELAND, OHIO

2800 Years Ago Aesop Said:

"Beware of the man who offers Diamonds for the price of Garnets!"—And today:-

Some Dealers Offer Fabulous Prices for Used Cars

That boy Aesop knew his Diamonds. If he had been an Automobile Dealer, he should have handled a car that contained all the value that the price suggested, and he should have offered only what a Used Car was worth.

He would have been a safe man to trade your car in with, because, though you may have received a smaller trade-in allowance, you would have been certain of receiving a car that contained full value for every dollar invested.

Take a Tip From Aesop:—Beware of the man who offers you a fabulous price for your car. It simply means that his new car is priced so high that he can afford to pay you More Than Your Car is Worth.

TODAY EASOP WOULD SAY:-
"It Will Pay You To Wait For The New Ford"

Garner Auto Company

Firestone Tires
Mobile Oils

Phone 92, Garner
Phone 77, KLEMME, IOWA.

THE KLEMME TIMES

th Year—Number 52. KLEMME, IOWA, THURSDAY, AUGUST 11, 1927.

TTEND FAMILY UNION SUN.

LE FAMILY HOLD BIG NION AT HAYFIELD

nual Reunion Of Tribe Is Well Attended

al to the Klemme Times)

d of over one hundred and people gathered at the Abe home, south of Hayfield, August 7th, 1927, to cele- e third annual re-union of le families. They are the nts of William and Henry d their sister, Mrs Schram eld, who were some of the rly settlers of Iowa. The illiam and Henry Stille are t their sister is still living r old age.

ildren of these three ances- as follows:

Charles Bredlow, living n a, and J. J. Stille from here ; and August, Henry and eceased, are the children of Stille, Sr.

Stille, J.E. Stille, Mrs. Frank acher, Mrs. John Terhufen , Ernest Schuldt from here man Stille living in Colorado ren of Henry Stille, Sr.

Stiniker, Mrs. G. V. Geddes, Schram from here and Aug. and John Schram living in kota are children of Mrs.

ildren, grand children and and children now number years ago while attending ame, some Stille boys from on hearing the name Stille the players questioned a- n and learned that there ree prosperous families of ing near Nashua. On 'n- on proved that they were namely, cousins to Sr. Will- ry Stille and Mrs Schram. that they held a re-union a in order that they might r acquainted with their new- ered relatives.

Family Was "Discovered"

that time the reunion is d in rotation, viz., at Nash- me and Hayfield. The nnual re-union will be held a next year. This year 34 scendants from Nashua at- he re-union here.

present at the re-union are s:

From Nashua, Iowa

d Mrs. Henry Stillt, Otto, nd Clara.

ugust Stille, Aug., Jr., Ger- artin Stille, Iva Smith, Stille and Esther Hans-d Mrs. Will Stille, Rudolph nd Pahl.

nd Mrs Carl Walther and d Mrs. Edward Stille, Rob- ence, Lucille, Mabel, Oscar d Orla Hanswirth.

nd Mrs Fred Kehret, Fred Eltnora, Lewis Stille and Stille.

From Garner, Iowa

E. F. Meckstroth and hus-

d Mrs. Chester Stille and ille, Mr and Mrs. Quentin d Glenn.

From Hayfield, Iowa

ma and Grandpa Schram, ram, Evelyn and Ruby Mrs. Clark Lackore and husd Mrs. Will Stiniker, Wal- ey, Ella, Gladys, Fern and Mrs. Henry Stoltenberg and, Mrs. Edd. McWilliams and son Harold. Mrs. G. s and husband, Mr. and Mrs Geddes, Mr. and Mrs. Chest- s and Goldie, Mr. and Mrs. des and Harold, Mr. and Geddes and Ethel, Mrs. chultz, husband, daughter nd son Robert. Mr. and er Bredlow, Herbert Bred-

ves From Klemme, Iowa

d Mrs. J. E. Stille and Mar- nd Mrs. William Stille and Mr. and Mrs. Lester Stille Mrs. Frank Gruetzmach-

FORMER KLEMME MAN DIED WHILE FISHING

Is Well Known By The Older People Of This Community

The Times is in receipt of a card from Mrs. Anna M. Frank, of Waseca, Minn., which carries the news of the death of a former resident of Klemme. The item is as follows:

"Charles F. Albrecht died Saturday afternoon, Augst 6th, while out on the lake fishing—got a stroke and was seen by three ladies near by that he fell over with his head hanging over the water and before help got there he had passed away Funeral Tuesday, Aug. 9 at Waterville, Minn.." Mrs. Anna M Frank.

HANCOCK COUNTY REAL ESTATE TRANSFERS

A Weekly Review Of Sales And Trades In Property

Clara W. Burgitt hus. to Ben Limberg. W. D., date 7-23-27, $9200. W½ of SE¼ 1-96-26.

A Kelly to Stephen Engstler W D., date 7-18-27, $1.00, lots 1-2-3-4 block 4 Miller.

Edwin H. Arnett to Lois S. Arnet. W. D., date 8-1-27, $1.00 lot 3 block 1 Stubbins 2nd add. Britt.

P. H. Madsen to Hanna Madsen. W. D , date 1-27-26, $1.00 and love and aff. NW¼ block 12 Stubbins 3rd add. Britt.

L. A. Doege wife to Fred Doege. W. D., date 7-30-27, $1800, E½ of NE¼ 12-97-26.

Wm. Dawson to Irene Klatt. W. D. date 6-28-27, $225 lot 2 and S½ lot 6 block 5 Stilson's add Corwith.

Gertrude A. Johnson hus. to Diedrich Boyken. W. D. date 7-11-27, $2,625 lots 13-14-15-16 block 14 Woden.

E. P. Hanson, sheriff to Joe Wheeler. Sheriff's Deed, date 8-1-27, E½ SE¼ NE¼ 32-96-25.

KLEMME LOSES SUN.

FANS SAY GAME WAS ONE OF BEST THIS YEAR

Game Tied In Ninth, Took Twelve Innings To Decide Victor

The Klemme Independents made a good showing in their first game of the season when they played the Goodell team Sunday in a twelve inning battle and losing 3 to 5.

The game was tied 2 to 2 in the ninth frame and it took three more innings to settle the dispute. The score was still in the sack at the opening of the twelfth when Goodell took on a batting streak and sent three men over the plate for a lead of 5 to 2 The Independents also came in strong in the last half and it looked like they would again tie but Goodell held thtm down for one score and the game ended 5 to 3 in favor of Goodell.

Johnny Chapman of Goodell pitched for Klemme and we understand he will pitch for the Independents for the balance of the season, according to a member of the team.

Will Play Belmond Sunday

The Independents have scheduled a game on the home field with Belmond for Sunday. This should be a good game as the experience of the game with Goodell has shown that the Independents can play a good brand of ball.

er and husband.

From Liberty Township (Garner)

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Stille, Kermit, George, Lucille and Virgil.

Mrs. Elmer Schaefer, husband, and daughter Velda and son Marvin.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bredlow, Ellsworth, Merle and Marva Jean.

Mrs. Will Suckow, husband, and sons Dale, Marvin and Luther.

Clarence Bredlow.

Picnic Dinner Was Enjoyed

A picnic dinner was served on three long tables, under a huge tree at the beautiful home of Abe Geddes. The afternoon was spent visiting and listening to several beautiful piano selections, duets and other vocal numbers by the younger generation.

The re-union was closed with an ice cream luncheon, after which all departed with happy good-byes.

—Contributed.

ELDER HAS TOP HERD AVERAGE IN NO. 3

V. A. COOK COMES IN FOR CLOSE SECOND FOR JULY

John Bock, Albert Swanson And E. Blumer All Marked High

The herds as a whole show a decrease in production from the last month due to the poor pasture conditions and the disagreeable fly season. The herds, where no grain has been fed, show a much larger decrease in production than those herds where grain has been fed. The dairyman who fed grain when the pastures were in good condition are now being repaid for their foresight, at least the association records show this fact.

There were 321 cows on test during July. Two hundred and ninety-two were in milk, and twenty-eight were dry. From this number the averages were obtained. The average milk, 606.7 lbs., fat 23.82 pounds.

Elder Has High Herd Average

The highest average for herds was made by the mixed grade and pure bred herd of R. W. Elder of Klemme. This herd of eight cows, all in milk, averaged 1,027 lbs. of milk and 39.27 lbs. of fat.

V. A. Cook of Goodell was second with his herd of pure bred and grade Holsteins. This herd of 14 cows, all in milk, made an average of 991 lbs. of milk and 36.9 lbs. of fat.

John Bock of Klemme with eleven purebred and grade Holsteins, all in milk, averaged 908 lbs. of milk and 35.2 lbs. of fat.

Albert Swanson, of Klemme, with seven grade Holsteins, all in milk, averaged 978 lbs. of milk and 33.6 lbs. of fat.

Emil Blumer, of Garner, with eight grade Shorthorns, all in milk, averaged 891 lbs. milk and 33.1 lbs. fat.

William Haberkamp, of Garner, with his herd of grade Holsteins, 18 cows in milk and one dry, averaged 858 lbs. milk and 31.3 lbs. of fat.

The herd of R. W. Elder of Klemme, has completed a year of testing July 1. This herd averaged over 300 pounds of fat. Nonny, a grade Guernsey, was high cow producing 7,551 lbs. milk and 429 lbs. fat, giving her an average test of 5.7 percent. This cow has averaged 52 lbs. fat for the six months from Feb. 1st to August 1st, on twice a day milking.

Look for the No. 3 Association Exhibit at the County Fair.

—By the Tester of No. 3.

METHODIST CHURCH NOTES

A. W. Gauger, Pastor

Services for next Sunday will be as follows:

Morning worship and preaching service in Klemme at 10 o'colck. In Liberty at 11:30.

Sunday school in Klemme after the preaching service, in Liberty before.

Junior League on Saturday afternoon at 2:30.

Epworth League on Sunday evening at 7:15.

Evening preaching service at 8 o'clock.

MRS. HOCUM DIED AT IOWA FALLS SUN.

FUNERAL SERVICES WERE HELD TUESDAY AT IOWA FALLS

The Hocum Family Resided In This Place For Several Years

Klemme friends of the M. O. Hocum family of Iowa Falls were greatly shocked when the news of Mrs. Hocum's death was announced in Klemme Monday morning.

The Hocum family resided in this place for sevral years when Mr. Hocum conducted a grain and coal business at what is now the Farmers Elevator.

Mrs Hocum became seriously ill at her home last week Tuesday and an attempt to save her life by operating was made at the Iowa Falls hospital Sunday noon, but she was in such a weak condition that she did not rally and passed away Sunday evening.

Mrs. Hocum was forty years old and besides her husband leaves to mourn her death two daughters, Avis age thirteen and Helen age eight yeors, and numerous close relatives and many friends, both here and at Iowa Falls.

Funeral services were held Tuesday at 2:30 o'clock at the Congregational church of Iowa Falls and interment was made in the Iowa Falls cemetery.

Mrs. Hocum had been in poor health for a number of years but this did not prevent her from doing many deeds of kindness and she took an active part in church work, being gifted with an exceptionally sweet voice and was a member of the Congregational choir until a short time ago. Mrs. Hocum was a member of the Eastern Star and that lodge assisted in the funeral service at the church with their beautiful ritual.

Mrs. Hocum was a very kind and loving woman, devoted to her family and friends and her death is keenly felt. Speaking of Mrs. Hocum's work in the comunity, her pastor remarked that her influence for good has been strongly felt and this in itself is a monument in her memory.

The many Klemme friends of the Hocum family here extend their sincerest sympathy to the bereaved family and relativse.

The obituary of Mrs. Hocum will be published in The Times next week.

Miss Mildred Johnson rendered a beautiful violin solo at the Methodist Church Sunday morning. Miss Johnson is making wonderful progress in her musical career. She is spending a few weeks of her summer vacation here.

KLEMME REFORMED CHURCH

Calvin Grosshutsch, Pastor

8:30 a. m. Sunday school in the country.

10:00 a. m. German service.

11:00 a. m. Sunday school.

8:00 p. m. English service.

8:00 p. m. Saturday, Junior Choir.

The Young People's Bible Class will be discontinued until September.

There are a lot of corking good ideas still bottled up.

Dr. Missman And Family Enjoying Vacation In Wisconsin

Dr. and Mrs. W. F. Missman and son Byrnes are enjoying two or three weeks vacation at their cottage on a lake near Land O'Lakes, Wisconsin.

A card received from them states they left Klemme last Friday morning at 3:00 o'clock, arriving at their destination at 7:00 o'clock p. m., a distance of 458 miles without the least car trouble and no tire trouble and had an ideal day to drive. Dr. Missman reports that the lake is about four feet higher this year than usual and that a neighbor caught 13 black bass in front of their cottage a few days before Missmans arrived. Doc is inclined to believe it a "fish story." Evidently he is somewhat suspicious of the number, 13.

SPEED LAUNCH RACES WILL BE BAYSIDE ATTRACTION

Fifty-Five Piece Band From Woden Will Entertain Visitors

Bayside Amusement Park at Clear Lake, will again entertain its visitors next Sunday, August 14th, with speed launch races. But more boats will be entered and more cash prizes will be awarded than last Sunday. Around eight speed boats will race. Three of them will come to Bayside Park from other Lakes in Iowa. The races next Sunday afternoon will be fast and still more exciting as more speeders will be entered. They will be held on the Lake just in front of Bayside Park starting about four p m. Visitors will witness some real thrills next Sunday when the daring owners of eight or more speed launches cut up the water and spin around some sharp turns that the racing course demands. Bayside visitors will also ahve an opportunity to see Sandon's Negro Tigers of Mankato, Minn., in action against the Mason City O-P team at the ball park commencing at three o'clock. The Negro Tigers are wonderful ball players. The Woden fifty-five piece band will furnish the concerts at Bayside Park Sunday afternoon and evening The Manchester Girls band will play at Bayside Sunday, August 21st.

PAULINE STONER MARRIED

Klemme friends will be interested to know that Miss Pauline Stoner, former Klemme teacher, was married at Cedar Rapids June 22 to Mr. Marion Reed, of Miami, Florida. Rev Hyten performed the ceremony which was witnessed by the bride's brother, George, and a brother of Mr Reed. A wedding dinner was later served by the bride's sister-in-law. Mr. Reed was taken ill with the flu and their trip to their home at Miami was postponed for a few weeks. Miss Stoner was one of our most capable teachers and was principal in the high schol for two years. She is a charming young lady and was well liked by all of the students and she will never be forgotten as one of the faculty. Mr. and Mrs. Reed are now happily located in their home at Miami.

In the write-up of the Schwichtenberg re-union at Nashua last week the Times made an error, in that the following names were left out by mistake: Mr. and Mrs. Will Neuhring, Elsie, Hilda, Lester and Elmer of Rockwell were present.

Radio rumors are also quite often groundless.

A FLOWER GARDEN OF RARE BEAUTY

MRS. ART SCHOENWETTER HAS MANY VARIETIES IN YARD

Schoenwetter Farm Is One Of Best In Liberty Township

The farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Schoenwetter in Liberty township is one of the newer farms in this part of the county and is one of the best improved in this section, although Liberty township is noted for its many farms.

After one has admired the fine buildings on the farm, all of which are quite new, the beauty of the yard, the well-kept appearance of the lawn attracts the attention, and from the yard around the house is but a step to a remarkable garden located along the west side of the farm yard.

At this time of the year the garden is gay with more than fifty varieties of beautiful flowers, outstanding among them being three rows of beautiful gladiolas of all colors and tints, each row being one hundred and fifty feet long. This part of the immense garden Mrs. Schoenwetter takes real pride in and she is well versed in flowers and names the various varieties as one walks through the garden.

The vegetable garden is also a part of the flower garden and here is a fine variety of vegetables and not a weed can be seen growing. A large strawbery patch is located on the west side of the garden and it produced heavily of large berries this season. Fruit trees have also been set out and are growing well.

All around the lawn, near the fence grow red, white and yellow roses, double roses, snapdragons and perennials of all kinds and many different colors of each kind. The lawn is well landscaped and many bushes, shrubbery and flowers have been planted here and there and the effect will be most baeutiful when this has all grown up.

The rows in the garden are all planted exactly thirty inches apart so that the garden can be easily and quickly cultivated with one horse and a section of a corn cultivator.

The Schoenwetter house is a full two story square structure and is conveniently arranged and is lighted with electricity supplied from the farm lighting plant. Electricity is also used for lighting all of the farm buildings. The house and a couple of other buildings have recently been given another coat of paint which adds to the attractive appearance of the farm.

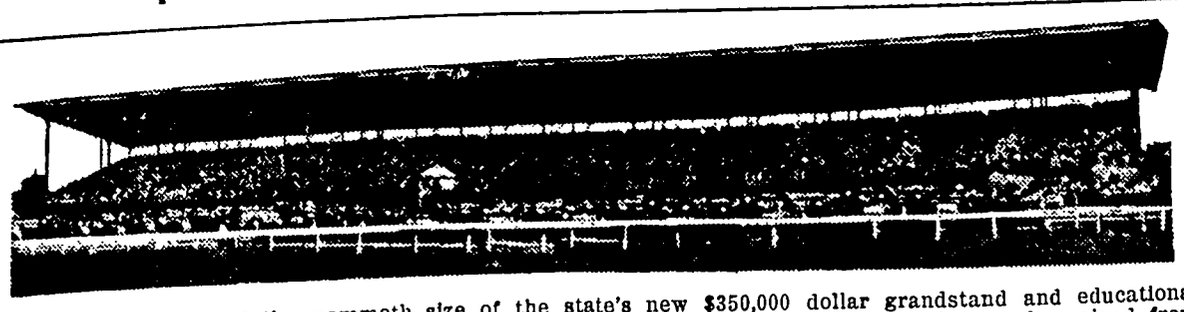
Mr. Schoenwetter has a sense of humor and when his wife was explaining the many varieties of flowers she had Art chimed in with, "Oh, shucks, that's nothing, e'Iv got a hundred and fifty varieties of pigs." The writer, being rather curious, investigated and found that many or more fine pigs, but hardly that many varieties, although Art has a pretty well mixed herd of Poland Chinas, Spotted Polands, Duroc Jerseys, and Chester Whites, including a couple of pink pigs, but we did not see any green, yellow or purple pigs in the lot. However, they were all fine looking animals.

As we stated, the buildings are all new a couple of years ago. The barn and some other buildings are a combination building block and wood construction. The buildings are put up on the three sides of a square to each other so that there is not much running around to do while doing chores and feeding the stock.

Mr. and Mrs. Schoenwetter and their daughter are happy and contended on their farm and have a right to feel proud of their fine farm.

Miss Marie Gauger returned home last Thursday from Cedar Falls where she has been attending summer school the past two months. She will teach in the Hampton school this fall and winter. Rev. and Mrs. Gauger and sons, Stanley and Harlan, drove down to bring her home last week.

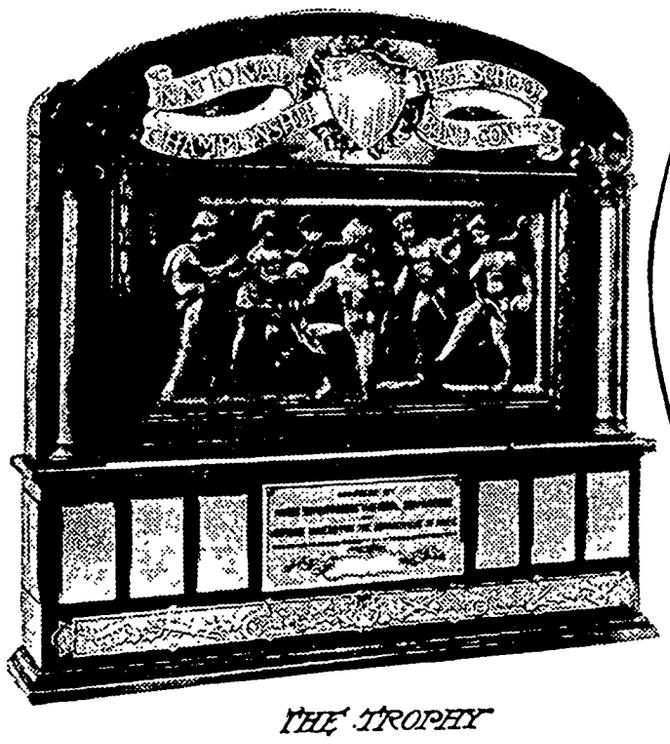
$350,000 GRANDSTAND



Some conception of the mammoth size of the state's new $350,000 dollar grandstand and educational building which will greet visitors to the Iowa State Fair, August 27 to September 2, may be gained from the above photograph. This huge structure is one of the largest in the country and will seat more than 12,000 spectators at the afternoon races and the evening fireworks, concert, and other entertainment programs at the fair. More than 90,000 square feet of exhibit space, devoted to the educational institutions of the state and to Boys and Girls' Club work, is provided on two big show floors which are a part of the building.

School Music and the Jazz Age

JOLIET, ILL., HIGH SCHOOL BAND



THE TROPHY

OSBOURNE McCONATHY

A. R. McALLISTER

FIFTEEN hundred high school youngsters, heads up, shoulders back, feet clicking in rhythmic step. Halt! Fifteen hundred instruments poised, fifteen hundred pairs of eyes trained on a single leader. The flourish of a baton and the biggest band in the world burst into music.

When the echo of the last note of "El Capitan" had died out in the distance, Osbourne McConathy, the conductor and America's foremost musical educator, turned from the vast field of bright-eyed boys and girls and voiced the verdict of the multitude that stood spellbound listening to the music:

"The jazz age can't do anything to a nation that can muster youngsters like these. Their music will doom the so-called 'flaming youth' and will put strength into the social fabric of America."

This scene was enacted in the city park of Council Bluffs, Iowa, the last Saturday in May, when twenty-three champion bands played as a massed concert ensemble under the direction of each of the judges to give a colorful finale to the National School Band contest. There were bands there from as far east as New York, as far west as California, as far north as Minnesota and as far south as Texas. Joliet was awarded the national championship by nosing out the Abraham Lincoln high school band of Council Bluffs by a fraction of a point. The Modesto (Calif.) high school captured third place, and fourth place went to the Nicholas Senn high school of Chicago. The national championship for Class B bands, limited to schools having enrollments under four hundred, was awarded to the Princeton (Calif.) band. Second place in this class was won by the band from Vermillion, S. D. Ida Grove, Ia., was third, and Cleveland, Okla., fourth. In addition, honorable mention for fine performance even though they did not win a prize, was given by the judges to the school bands of Quincy, Ill.; Marion, Ind.; Lockport, N. Y., and Flint, Mich.

The several winners in the contest were awarded prize tablets by the National Bureau for the Advancement of Music, which also rewarded the director and members of the first two winning bands in each class with silver and bronze medals respectively. Joliet still retains the national trophy which must be won by the school three successive times to be kept permanently. The judges in the contest, in addition to Mr. McConathy, were Herbert Clarke, director of the Long Beach (Calif.) municipal band; Taylor Branson, leader of the United States Marine band, Washington, D. C., and Joseph E. Maddy, supervisor of music in the Ann Arbor (Mich.) public schools.

The first really nation-wide school band contest was held in 1926 in Fostoria, Ohio, although previously there had been a number of sectional and district contests in various parts of the country. Thirteen bands, from ten different states, contested in this event. The contest at Council Bluffs this year brought together twenty-three bands, almost twice as many as the year before. To bring these bands together, twenty-six state and sectional band contests were held, each of which, in turn, had an average of twenty bands to vie for the state or sectional honors. It has been estimated that approximately $300,000 was raised this year by high schools, parents, clubs, business groups and individual business men to send these bands to the section, state, and national contests, which have for their object the raising of the standard of music in the schools.

Within the next decade, Mr. McConathy prophesies, music will be as much a part of the educational equipment of the high school boy and girl as reading, writing and arithmetic. They will be able to elect courses in instruction on their chosen instrument just as they elect to study Latin or Spanish, or choose between the liberal arts, a business or a technical course. And they will get the same credit for music that they do for any other subject.

"Because I am myself a musician, I think of music first of all as an expression of beauty," says this eminent educator. "But the high school band is one of the strictest schools of discipline a boy or girl can go through. It teaches team work, for in assembly playing every man has to do his own work and do it right. It curbs the ego, for the boy or girl who wants to be the whole show has little chance in a band. He learns to know his place and fill it. It teaches the lesson of service, for the band must be quick to respond to the need for music in any school activity. And, even more so now that the bands are meeting for these national contests, it teaches good sportsmanship, just as does the football and baseball team.

"There was one little band at the Council Bluffs meet whose story tells vividly what band discipline does for boys and girls. It was a Class B band from the Princeton (Calif.) high school. Princeton is a town of four hundred inhabitants. There are one hundred and three students in its high school. And 75 per cent of them are studying music. Six years ago, the 'band' in this high school consisted of three boys who played a mouth organ, a trombone, a saxophone and a girl pianist. They all played by ear. Today they have a forty-seven piece band that has carried off the Northern California championship four times, won the all-state championship three times, and this year took top honors as the best Class B band in America.

"But it was a long trip from California out to Iowa to the national meet. When Princeton was declared state winner over Arcata high school, its long-time musical rival, this little band began scrambling around to get the money for the trip. They gave concerts. They appealed to the citizens of Princeton. But they could not quite top the rise. At the eleventh hour came the Arcata high school. 'We will help you out,' and into the hands of the Princeton musicians they put their own hard-earned dollars. And the Princeton band came to the national contest. That is the kind of spirit you find in these boys and girls in the bands.

"The boy who can square his shoulders and blow big, full notes on a trumpet or horn is a healthy boy. He has got to be. No shallow-chested, short-breathed weakling can survive in these pick bands. And greatest contribution of all, each player has found a threshold into the great realm of musical literature; he is developing the cultural side of his life. He may forget the date of the discovery of the Pacific ocean; he may never be able to solve an algebra problem. But he can never forget his music. That is the one thing he will carry with him into the great world."

Nor is Mr. McConathy alone in his views on music in the schools. The other three judges in the contest were amazed at the splendid discipline and performance of these juvenile bands and at least one expressed himself as of the opinion that there are not more than ten or a dozen professional bands in the United States who could measure up to the standards of these school bands.

C. M. Tremaine, director of the National Bureau for the Advancement of Music, and secretary of the instrumental affairs committee of the Music Supervisors National conference, under the joint auspices of which the state and national band contests are held, is convinced not only of the value of the school band as a builder of character, but also feels that the band boy is a better student than his unmusical schoolmate.

"After listening to the performances of these juvenile bands," said Mr. Tremaine, "I am more than ever impressed with the importance of music in the lives of our young school people. It demonstrates team work, discipline and perseverance and gives evidence of what this playing in a band does for the youth as a builder of character in addition to its cultural advantages.

"The spirit of playing in this national contest is just another proof that boy musicians are just as eager to win band laurels as the members of a football or basketball team are to win achievements in athletics for their schools and themselves. A school is as proud of its band when it wins its state, section or national contest as when it takes home a trophy won on the gridiron or the baseball field.

"Music is a healthful influence and parents now are learning that the band is better than the 'gang' for their youngsters. Music is a fine mental stimulant and in a survey recently made in one middle western school, it was found that children who studied music averaged considerably higher in all lines of school activities than those who did not.

"Association with other young musicians is another great benefit for the boy or girl band member. No matter how much the child may put his heart into practicing at home and playing for his own and others' enjoyment, he is missing a great deal if he does not learn to work with others in the production of great masterpieces. It is absolutely essential for each member of the band to take his definite place in the group, to give others a chance, to come in at just the right beat, and to drop out at exactly the moment he is no longer needed. Temperament, sulks and overaggressiveness have no place in the band and the good director knows how to inculcate these lessons along with the other instructions.

"Health might also be mentioned as one of the beneficial aspects of learning to play an instrument, and becoming a member of the school band. Correct posture and breathing must be insisted upon. Physicians often will recommend a wind instrument for the boy with the undeveloped chest. Then, too, music steadies the nerves and has a relaxing effect on pupils who tend to be too high strung and undisciplined.

"Where a certain standard of scholarship considerably above the minimum for passing is required for participation in the school band for representing the school in a contest like the one held in Council Bluffs, this stimulus is often effective in bringing sagging grades up to the mark as it does with the boy trying to make the football eleven or the baseball or track team."

Mr. Tremaine's views on public school music has the enthusiastic indorsement of the department of superintendence of the National Education association, made up of the representative heads of public school systems throughout the United States, which at its recent Dallas convention adopted this resolution:

"1. That we favor the inclusion of music in the curriculum on an equality with the other basic subjects. We believe that with the growing complexity of civilization more attention must be given to the arts, and that music offers possibilities, as yet but partially realized, for developing an appreciation of the finer things of life. We, therefore, recommend that all administrative officers take steps toward a more equitable adjustment of music in the educational program, involving: Time allotment; number and standard of teachers; equipment provided.

"2. That we favor an immediate extension of music study to all rural schools, in the belief that no single development will so greatly increase the effectiveness of their work and so greatly lessen the extreme differences now existing between rural and urban education. We recommend as a guide the "Course of Study for Music in the Rural Schools" approved by the Music Supervisors' National conference.

"3. That we believe an adequate program of high school music instruction should include credit, equivalent to that given to other basic subjects, for properly supervised music study carried on both in and out of the school; moreover, the recognition of music by the high schools as a subject bearing credit toward graduation should carry with it similar recognition of its value by colleges and other institutions of higher education. We recommend further that the department of superintendence favor a study of present practices as to music credits.

"4. That, recognizing the great interest manifested at this meeting toward making music a more vital element in education, we recommend that this subject shall continue to receive the attention of the department of superintendence and be included in the discussion groups of its annual program."

What's the Answer?

Questions No. 10

1—Who said: "Go West, young man, go West!"?

2—What English author lived with and wrote about gypsies?

3—What is a pronounced peculiarity of the German Baltic coast?

4—What statue, generally regarded as the noblest exhibition of the human form, is on view in the Vatican at Rome?

5—What boat and in what year won the international race for the America cup?

6—What is lightning?

7—What is an alternating electric current?

8—For what queen was Maryland named?

9—How many vice presidents became Presidents and who were they?

10—What is wrong in this sentence from a court decision: "This case is the most unique of its kind ever presented here"?

11—Who said: "I know not what course others may take; but, as for me, give me liberty or give me death!"?

12—Who was the author of "The Man Without a Country"?

13—What composer of the Nineteenth century earned the title of "waltz king"?

14—How many times did Walter Hagen win the national open golf championship?

15—In physics, what is an atmosphere?

16—What is a "piece of eight"?

17—What outfit fired the first American shot in the World war?

18—What United States general directed the first automobile race in the United States, and when?

19—Wherein does the "backbone" of America differ from that of the Old World?

20—What is a moratorium?

Answers No 9

1—R. T. Jones, Jr.

2—A fish possessing organs capable of developing electric current.

3—It is an unconscious nervous action produced by the impression an occurrence creates on the brain.

4—Elizabeth, the "Virgin Queen."

5—Six: Washington, Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, Tyler and Wilson.

6—Stephen Foster; "Suwannee River," "My Old Kentucky Home," etc.

7—Europe: Vesuvius.

8—Louis Marie Julien Viaud.

9—Abraham Lincoln.

10—Tongass national forest in Alaska, 16,549,093 acres.

11—"Moby Dick," by Herman Melville.

12—The Caspian sea.

13—Mrs. Molla B. Mallory.

14—The smallest known part of matter.

15—Every third person works for a living.

16—$10,000,000.

17—Gen. Zebulon Pike.

18—Actor and theater manager.

19—William H. Vanderbilt.

20—About three-fourths.

Employ New Process for Coloring Wood

The use of colored woods in the construction of furniture has long been known, the material being stained after the necessary seasoning process. Within the last few years, however, a method of Austrian origin has been employed, whereby the wood is colored when in a green state.

By means of heavy pressure in a closed vessel the sap is driven out of the wood and is replaced by the coloring fluid, which may consist of a solution of the more permanent aniline dyes. The best kinds of wood for treatment are found to be birch, beech, alder, plane, elm and lime; oak, fir and pine being unsuitable because they do not stain uniformly.

The colored wood is used for furniture making and for the manufacture of doors and window frames. It can also be employed for outdoor purposes, in which case no painting is necessary, although a coating of varnish would seem to be a necessity. For the fitting of ships, railway cars, and similar purposes, this stained wood appears to be eminently fitted.

Early Coastal Survey

The records of the United States coast and geodetic survey show that an act authorizing a survey of the coastal waters of the United States was approved by congress on February 10, 1807, but that actual field work was not started until 1816, when a survey of the bay and harbor of New York was begun.

No Spank

A little girl who was visiting her friend had overstayed her time and knew that she would be late in getting home. She expressed the fear that her mother would give her a spanking for being late. Her little hostess rushed away to another room and quickly returned with a copy of Children, the Magazine for Parents, which she handed to her friend. "Take this home to your mother, tell her to read it, and she won't spank you," she said reassuringly.

TWO HOMES MADE HA

By Women Who Used E. Pinkham's Vegeta Compound.

"I have taken Lydia E. Pin Vegetable Compound and I t Is the mo derful m I ever tri the state made by Goldie Sho St Joseph nois. Sh clares that taking the pound she better than before Mrs. J. of 29 Lane Street, Paterson, writes: "I cannot speak too of your medicine and I reco it to all my friends."

These statements were take two enthusiastic letters whi of the help that has been r from using the Vegetable Com Both Mrs. Shoup and Mrs. were in a run-down condition caused them much unhap When women are suffering lack of strength and from we their own life and that of the fly is affected. When they fe and strong and are able to d housework easily, happy hom the result.

Are you on the Sunlit R Better Health?

FOR OVE 200 YEAR

haarlem oil has been a w wide remedy for kidney, live bladder disorders, rheuma lumbago and uric acid condit

GOLD MEDA HAARLEM OIL CAPSULES

correct internal troubles, stimulate organs. Three sizes. All druggists. on the original genuine Gold M

HANFORD'S Balsam of Myr For Cuts, Burns, Bruises, Sores

All dealers are authorized to refund your money first bottle if not suited.

KILL RATS SAFELY

You can now stop losses caused by and mice without risk to your stock poultry. K-R-O is the new safe way made from squill bulbs as recommend by Government Experts.

NOT A POISON

Severe tests have proved that K-R is harmless in any quantity to human beings, livestock, pets or poultry kills rats and mice every time.

Does not contain arsenic, phosphor barium carbonate or any other dea poison. At your druggist 75c. La size (4 times as much) $2.00. Or direct from us postpaid if he cannot s ply you. Satisfaction guaranteed.

K-R-O CO., Springfield, Ohio

K-R-O KILLS-RATS-ONLY

PARKER'S HAIR BALSA Removes Dandruff-Stops Hair Restores Color and Beauty to Gray and Fad 60c and $1.00 at Drugg Hiscox Chem. Wks., Patch

HINDERCORNS Removes C louses, etc., stops all pain, ensures com feet, makes walking easy. 15c by mail or gists. Hiscox Chemical Works, Patchog

Time is the chrysalis of eter Richter.

If you get all your knowledge books you may as well leare it

There IS no Substitute
KIRK'S ORIGINAL
COCOA HARDWATER
CASTILE
Try this wonderful soap now! Its selected cocoa oils produce a instant, magic lather in any kind of water. It is perfect for face, hands, bath and shampoo. Thousands use no other.

Men Marooned

By George Marsh

Copyright by The Penn Publishing Co
WNU Service.

STORY FROM THE START

Guthrie, Canadian war having to live in the on account of weakened to factor of a Hudson's post at Elkwan. He came from the conflict with a recently scarred face, which unless cost him the love of fiancee, Edith Falconer. Sir Lance Guthrie, his brother, is a profiteer. With Savanne, halfbreed, his friend, Garth meets Doctor Carter, geologist, and his sister Joan. Their schooner has stood ashore. Quarrier comments he has been robbed by a man known as "Laughing McDonald."

CHAPTER II—Continued

—3—

He fiercely resented the presence of the people whose boat was approaching the landing. Why had been sent him at this time—strangers? This hybrid ass of a factor would spread himself all over the place, demanding attention; doubtless ask him to go to Akimiski and save the stuff salvaged on the beach. Well, he would pack them off to Albany at once. But the sister was a different sort—nice eyes she had, straight, direct, but something else in them; a sense of humor, too, for she laughed flat in Quarrier's face at the McDonald story. So the free-trader was in the bay still? Strange, indeed. Did he mean to winter there? Good God, it would cut into the Christmas catch in foxes—would be bad for business. Daring chap, this McDonald. Who was he, anyhow?

The arrival of the boat cut short his reflection.

"I see you brought plenty of food," greeted the factor with a smile, as the sailors, under the direction of Carter, began unloading boxes from the heavily freighted craft.

"Yes, we didn't want to run short before reaching Fort Albany," replied Carter.

"Ah, the excess weight will bother you on these tide-flats." Then he continued: "Doctor, I regret that I shall not be able to put you in the trade-house with our men. I have a spare bedroom for Miss Quarrie. You will eat with the officers, of course."

"Oh, we don't expect much at a fur-trading post, Mr. Guthrie," replied Quarrier, magnanimously. "If you can make my sister comfortable, that is perfectly satisfactory."

The girl laughed. "As sister has put it, for three months with a most unsatisfactory two-by-five berth on a fur schooner, Mr Guthrie," she said, "I know I shall revel in your luxury."

She had shed her coat and sou'wester and Guthrie's eyes measured her with a quick glance. Taller, he thought, than she seemed in the boat, finely made. The eyes which he had seemed black, he saw were brown. Young, too, she was; much younger than her brother, and what hair!

She led the way across the clearing, wondered how the presence of the white woman would affect the girl with the dark skin who was slowly wasting her life away. He found himself embarrassed—at a loss for an explanation of the situation to his guests.

"Miss Quarrier," he forced himself to say, "we have a very sick girl in the house—it is unfortunate we are overcrowded, but I have no other room. I am giving you mine."

She had stopped as he spoke, and looked down at his moccasins; then raised, while her questioning eyes searched his face.

"Father came here at the spring trade and the girl sick—would have flickered out here as without proper food. Old Anne and I have done our best, but only milk and broth are all we had to give. And now it may be any day she is terribly anxious about her—has been home. You noticed it—when you arrived?"

"Yes, I noticed it," replied the girl. "I saw you were worried about something. I'm so sorry, Mr. Guthrie. It will be a great burden at such a time."

"Oh, it's not that. I have room for her and the others don't matter. But it will be unpleasant for you—in the house."

Miss Quarrier straightened, threw back her head and held his embarrassed glance as she quietly said:

"Would it help you to know that I was a nurse overseas through the last four years of the war?"

She went red under the deep tan. He did not mind Ninda, then—she, in agony and death had been all places.

"I am glad—you will understand. But she—she, somehow, wants me near her at the end—fears I'll not be there. I've promised her."

As he spoke, the quizzical look of amusement softened to one of pity.

"Now, I will help you."

* * * * * *

Under a sky flushed with the rose of the northern twilight, Joan Quarrier and her brother stood on the high bank of the Elkwan, whose flat surface caught and held the warm tones of the heavens. On guard before the factor's house, inside the stockade, lay the schooner Aviredale, satisfied, since his instruction, that these people were safe in the hands of a man with the consent of his wife but nursing, nevertheless, a dislike of the man with hairy ears who had dared attempt to rub the ears of the former mascot of the First battalion, Royal Montreals.

"So there's a dying Indian woman at the house?" Quarrier was saying.

"Yes. He asked me to see her. She has a frightful pulse and temperature. It's a matter of days—hours, I should think."

"Matter of squaw-man, also," sniffed Quarrier.

The girl's straight brows contracted with irritation. "No, I don't think so. It's a matter of big heart. Old Anne, the Cree cook, found her sick in a tipi, when the Indians were here in June for the trade. Out of sheer humanity, they took care of her."

"You believe that story?" scoffed the man of science.

The eyes of the girl hardened. "Well, Mr. Grundy, it's none of your business or mine, is it?"

"I should distinctly say it was my business—to have my sister, without so much as an apology to me, sharing his house with his—squaw," protested Quarrier in tones of outraged dignity.

"Very well. How would you like to have me sleep with you and the men in the trade-house? He's given me his room. What more could he do? And I'd advise you as a guest of Mr. Guthrie to be careful what you say. Did you notice his face?"

"You mean the scar?"

"No, I mean the mouth and the eye."

"What about them?"

"Just this, blind man. I'd feel very sorry for the person who was the cause of Mr. Guthrie losing his temper. Whether it's pity or affection, I don't know, but rather than have the last hours of this poor child disturbed, he'd throw you into the river and the rest of us with you."

"Nonsense. I'll report him to his superiors at Albany if he comes any high-handed business with me."

"Arch," she taunted, "you know that you're really a bit timid, underneath." The man flushed angrily and started to reply, but the girl stopped him with her raised hand. "You were pretty scared when that blow struck us—rather lost your head, brother." Then she said, soberly: "I advise you to be very careful how you bluster to the factor of Elkwan."

Guthrie appeared at the door of his house and called them in to supper. As Dr. Archibald Quarrier followed his sister into the living room where the table had been set for three, little in its meager furnishings escaped his roving eyes.

Why Had They Been Sent Him at This Time?

"We are very primitive here, you see," Guthrie said as he watched the geologist's minute inspection of his quarters, which terminated at the bookshelves. "And I cannot guarantee Anne's bread, it varies, but her caribou stew and broiled whitefish I hope you will like."

"My brother, as a scientist, Mr. Guthrie, is nothing if not thorough in his inspections," apologized Joan Quarrier with a grimace which failed to conceal from her host her embarrassment. "And I shall revel in your whitefish."

Quarrier turned petulantly. "There you go again, Joan, always making remarks at my expense," then addressed Guthrie. "I see from your books that you are not interested in science."

With a significant glance at the girl, Guthrie soberly answered: "No, I fear I haven't the scientific mind. I waste my time up here reading fiction and history—poetry, too."

"Poetry?" With silent deprecation, Quarrier shook his head as he took the chair Gordon offered at the table.

Old Anne shuffled in with the steaming stew and crisp whitefish, her wide, wrinkled face alight with pride in the dignity of her office. Quarrier was deep in the narrative of his summer voyage to the east coast of Hudson's bay in the interest of a Toronto syndicate, which had been formed to explore the region and to exploit, if commercially practicable, the copper and iron deposits known to exist, when the sound of coughing from an inner room brought Guthrie to his feet.

"Pardon me," he said, and left them.

Quarrier's thick eyebrows knotted. "He's paying the piper now. How an educated man, as he seems to be, can come up here in this Godforsaken country in the first place, and then take up with a squaw—Pah!"

The girl he addressed sat tense, with chin up, listening, as though she had not heard. In a moment Guthrie opened the door, his face gray with anxiety.

"Could you come—a moment?" he asked the girl who had risen from the table. "You said you could help—she's pretty bad?"

Joan Quarrier hurried to her medicine kit in Gordon's room, emerged, and followed him. There, to the annoyance of the man who ate heavily of Anne's cooking, they stayed until he had finished. At length, when the opiate had brought respite to the sufferer, Joan and Guthrie returned to the living room.

"I'm sorry, sir," said Guthrie, "that you should be disturbed—that I should need the services of your sister, but she's been a godsend."

Quarrier nodded stolidly, without removing his pipe from his mouth. Then, as if spurred by a sense of duty to the performance of a task not too disagreeable, cleared his throat and began:

"Mr. Guthrie, may I ask how you, a man of education and family, find yourself in a—minor position, so to speak, with the Hudson's Bay company?"

A corner of Guthrie's mouth lifted. His rather deep-set eyes shifted from the questioner to meet the glance of the girl, half amused at the abrupt question, half wondering at his answer.

"Your question is a fair one," he replied. "I came here for my health. I came back from overseas with gassed lungs."

"Ah, I see. Where was your home, may I ask?"

"Montreal."

"You—you can't be a relative of Charles Guthrie?" demanded the other, his interest suddenly aroused.

"Brother."

"You, a brother of Charles Guthrie!" Quarrier's prominent eyes bulged in amazement at the factor of Elkwam.

"You are more flattering to my brother than to me," and Guthrie joined Joan Quarrier in an amused smile.

"But you're not staying in this country—this business, since you've regained your health?"

"I don't know. I rather like the life."

"Charles Guthrie is a member of the syndicate which sent me to the east coast to examine those iron and copper deposits. He'll be interested to hear from you at first hand."

Again the firm mouth of Guthrie shaped a faint smile.

"I'm not so sure of that. He's rather given me up as a black sheep, you know."

"For staying up here, I presume?"

"Yes, for not coming home—this summer."

"Um!"

Guthrie rose, and lighting a candle, for the September night had fallen, carried it to the sick room, where old Anne was on guard. Returning, he lit the small living-room lamp. And in the mind of the woman who watched, surmise followed surmise concerning the factor of Elkwan, for in the room he had given up to her were three autographed likenesses of a beautiful girl.

Then Quarrier described in detail the accident to his power schooner off Cape Jones, the wild night on the bay with an improvised and useless rudder, and the stranding on the beach of Akimiski island.

"It was the next morning that this red-headed pirate, McDonald, discovered us and sent a boat ashore."

"You say he took some of your stuff?" asked Guthrie.

"Yes, he said he needed flour and gasoline."

"And he got it?" suggested the other, with a laugh.

"Yes, but instead of paying what it's worth here, on the bay, he paid me St. John's prices."

"Well, for a pirate, he was rather liberal, wasn't he? He hails from St. John's, they say. Has been up here two summers, but always went back in the autumn. This year he told some of the Indians that he would winter in a cove at the south end of the island. Akimiski is famous for silver and black fox."

"You're Not Hunting Geese Here, Are You?"

"I can't understand why the company doesn't run him out of the bay if he's hurting their business."

Guthrie laughed. "Why, man, he has as much right here as we, or the Revillon Freres. And as to running him out, I'm inclined to think that McDonald would take a lot of running. Did you happen to go aboard his schooner?"

"Yes, I went board to get my money."

"You didn't notice a machine gun or two lying around?"

"No!"

"Well, the Crees say he has them. Evidently, he has come to stay."

"So you're going to sit calmly here and let him get the fur?" snorted Quarrier, contemptuously.

"That's it," agreed Guthrie. "You see, we're a bit afraid of this wild man with the scarred face. The rumor has drifted up here that he had an impressive war record."

The irony was lost on the geologist.

"Afraid to fight for your rights, eh?" he ridiculed, oblivious of the bullet-furrowed cheek of the man who faced him.

At the reproach, the face of Guthrie lit with amusement, but a glint in the half-closed eyes prompted Joan Quarrier, mortified by her brother's gaucherie, to intervene.

"To a Canadian veteran, that remark is positively insulting. I fail to recall anything of a warlike nature in your manner with our pirate, Arch. As a matter of fact, you seemed quite overawed."

"Overawed? Ridiculous!" snapped Quarrier. "I was glad to sell flour and gas we couldn't take with us."

Guthrie's twinkling eyes met those of the girl. "They say his scarred mouth is rather awe-inspiring. Possibly scars are repulsive to your brother," he suggested. "They are—to some people."

The tone of the last—the sudden tightening of face muscles—the swift sobering of the eyes, spurred the quick intuition of the girl to pierce the armor of his raillery, to surmise what the seared cheek of the speaker might have brought to him of bitterness, and pain. But why? she wondered. The red line from eye to ear only lent dignity—distinction, to the cleanly modeled features. Why should this badge of service be the source of secret humiliation? But she was confident that it was.

Quarrier changed the subject. "By the way, Mr. Guthrie, when can you send for the stuff I left on the beach and take it to Albany? I can pick it up next spring when I return to the bay."

Evidently deeply occupied with his thought, for a space the man addressed made no answer; then he said, indifferently: "Some time this winter, possibly, when the ice sets hard in the strait."

"What? Not before then? There are some valuable ore specimens and stores—boxes of them. That pirate will come back for them."

"We'll be hunting geese until cold weather drives them south."

"You're not hunting geese here, are you? Why couldn't you go before you go on your hunt—tomorrow, in fact?"

"Archie!" The sharp challenge of Joan Quarrier at the callous insistence of her brother was checked by the level tones of the factor

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Honesty of Indians Shown by Old Record

John S. Rappe, who conducted a tavern and general store in the vicinity of the old Wyandotte Indian reservation in Ohio for many years prior to the removal of those Indians to another reservation west of the Mississippi river, adds his testimony to the volume of evidence on record as to the essential honesty of the Indian, comments the Dayton News.

When this tribe was transferred west of the Mississippi there were many members of it who were indebted to Rappe. Most of the indebtedness was in the form of small sums, but the aggregate was five or six thousand dollars. It was not a tribal debt; so the collective lands of the tribe could not be attached, and the individual debtors were beyond the service of judicial process. Besides, they were practically all judgment proof anyhow. But Rappe testified that he did not lose a dollar of it. Principal and interest were paid, to the last penny, and often, because of the inadequate means of transmittal in those days, it cost the absent debtor as much as the entire payment to send it; but it all came, in one way or another.

Teachers' Salaries

Expenditure for salaries of teachers amounts to approximately 75 per cent of the total current expenditure for elementary and secondary schools. In colleges and universities it constitutes a somewhat smaller part, or approximately 60 per cent of the total spent for operation and maintenance.

WEE PRINT WITH PLAIN POPULAR; CAPES AND DRAPES CONSIDERED

THOSE tiny print silks which came early in the season, and according to fashion's prophecy, will stay late, have completely captured the fancy of the fashionable world. Not only are they charming made up alone, forming their own self-trim, but they have such a companionable way of combining with other silks. These tiny flower-patterned prints seem to take on even more color glory, used with solid navies and blacks.

Compose costumes, such as here pictured showing wee print with plain, have gained a place of distinction in the season's styles. Another interesting point about the little patterned silks is that they plait so effectively. Note that the skirt of the frock illustrated is neatly plaited, its hemline adopting a narrow border of the solid silk. This solid border treatment is being much featured this season.

The blouse is navy, of course, for this color is at present outstanding. The drape which appears at the left is really a huge kerchief of the figured silk which may be worn in the pocket as shown or knotted about the shoulders at the sweet will of its wearer. That's the way of sports frocks this season, most of them have a matching, dashing silk square somewhere in sight if not loosely tied about the neck and shoulders.

The large navy milan hat which accompanies this costume deserves special mention, for it expresses millinery at its smartest. Not only is this costume timely for immediate wear, but it will serve admirably throughout the soon-to-be autumn days.

As to prints, the future promises revelations in the way of handsome patterned velvets with wee figures somewhat after the silks which are at this moment so popular.

These incoming costumes of print velvet follow the system of the summer silk prints, in that they are made entirely of the figured material or of print with plain. One can readily foresee the treat in store of a handsome black or navy velvet with panels, revers and other details of the patterned weave.

Advance novelty velvets show in addition to gay colored design, a fetching introduction of metal embellishment. The two-piece frock of velvet print, consisting of blouse and skirt, is among newest styles.

Very latest wrinkle is to match one's sheerest sleeveless frock with a cape. If the gown be of chiffon or georgette, its cape is usually full length and finely plaited like the one in the picture. This one is detachable, being caught to the neckline across the back with invisible snaps. There it is, ready to enwrap milady at her wish, but until called upon to do service, it is content to flutter and float and sway with enchanting grace.

To effectively wear one of these diaphanous capes is quite an art in itself. There's a way of drawing them about one's shoulders, "concealing yet revealing" the unsleeved arm. Then, too, a cape, such as here shown, seems to serve as a background against which the slenderized lines of the dress are accented.

A DISTINCTIVE COMPOSE

Apropos of the slender silhouette, the newest trick of fashion is to gather all superfluity of material into a single side drape (see picture), leaving unmolested the svelte, slim figure so coveted by women these days.

Of all important sheer fabrics none is more so than white georgette, especially for evening wear. It is this material which is chosen for the development of the winsome ensemble in this illustration.

But to return to the subject of capes, the vogue of matching them to frocks extends to daytime modes as well, with this difference: they are considerably shorter than the evening types. They extend to the hips and are just little straight plaited affairs, which gather into a ribbon neckband tying in a bow with streamers at the front.

SHEER ENSEMBLE COSTUME

If you have a navy or a beige georgette frock with a plaited skirt or trimmed in plaitings match it with a short plaited cape and the result will be a handsome ensemble. Very smart, too, is a cape-suit of crepe satin, especially black. Often the black satin costume cape shows a variation, in that it is cut circular.

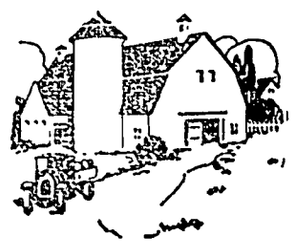
JULIA BOTTOMLEY.

(©, 1927, by Western Newspaper Union.)

150-200 lb Steam Cylinder Oil s old at E F Jacobs Hardware. 1tc

The Auxiliary will serve hot hambargers and coffee at their stand on Main Street Saturday night Everybody invited

Lowe Brothers
PAINTS - VARNISHES



Keep Your Barn NEW

Protect your investment in your barn with LOWE BROTHERS STANDARD BARN PAINT—a first quality barn paint that is easy to apply, covers a large area per gallon and removes all need for repainting for a long time to come.

See us before you paint.

E. F. JACOBS

LYRIC
Theatre
—GARNER, IOWA—

Presents The Following Attractions:-

FRIDAY and SATURDAY
August 12-13
Harry Hines in
"ALL ABOARD"
A side splitting comedy hit and
"15 Minutes From Hollywood"
Matinee Sat. 10-25c

TUESDAY and WEDNESDAY
August 16-17
Lewis Sargan in
"TIN GODS"
—Comedy—
"FELIX THE CAT"
Matinee on 10-25c

Klemme Local Items

Mr and Mrs. Lloyd Lau drove to Fort Dodge Sunday.

Fred Kluckohn and wife were at Clear Lake and Mason City Sunday.

PIANO and Violin Lessons. Miss Mildred Johnson. tfc

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Wiles of Ames were visiting with Klemme friends last Thursday.

Dorance Grange spent the day Saturday visiting with Buster Jorgenson.

Miss Dolores Koerner spent Friday with the Camp Fire Girls at the Lake.

Mr and Mrs Fred Gates entertained Mr. and Mrs. Ben Ridder and family Sunday.

Mrs Mary Waterman and Mrs Hattie Lanahan and Laura visited at the Fred Rdloff home Sunday.

Mr and Mrs Warren Stolard of Gowrie Iowa, were over Sunday visitors at the G Gobeli home

Mrs. Johnson, of Chicago, is visiting at the home of Grandma Schroeder

Martin Brinkman drove to Mason City Monday for a visit with his wife at the hospital She is getting along nicely.

Mr. and Mrs P W. Johnson entertained Mr. and Mrs. Paul Grange and Dorance and Mr P. M. Wilson for dinner Sunday.

Mr and Mrs. Adam Kole, of Meservey, and Mrs Henry Geisler, of Steele, North Dakota were visiting at the G. Gobeli home Wednesday The ladies are cousins of Mr. Gobeli

Mr. and Mrs. White of Estherville spent Friday and Saturday at the Paul Grange home. Friday the two families enjoyed an outing at Clear Lake

Conrad Quandt had his tonsils removed at Belmond Tuesday "Coonie" had enough "spunk" left to pilot his car home alone and even had to change a tire on the way home.

Mrs J N Day entertained a number of ladies Friday afternoon at her home in honor of her mother's, Mrs Wm Smith, birthday anniversary The afternoon was spent in a social way and later a delightful two course luncheon was served.

Earl Josten and Eric Josten left Tuesday morning in the latter's car on a camping trip through Minnesota and Dakota. They expect to be gone a week or more.

Grandma Schroeder, Mrs. Lena Schroeder, Max Barz, and Mrs. Marlin Croner and Dorothy spent Sunday afternoon and evening ot the Will Barz home at Garner.

Mr. and Mrs Albert Schroeder and Mrs. Henry Schroeder drove in from Chicago Tuesday afternoon to spend their vacation visiting relatives and friends here

NOTICE OF PROBATE OF WILL

STATE OF IOWA,
Hancock County, ss
To Al Whom It May Concern:

YOU ARE HEREBY NOTIFIED, That an instrument of writing purporting to be the last Will and Testament of Anna Rust deceased, dated Sept 24, 1924, having been this day filed, opened and read, Fonday the 29th day of August, 1927 is fixed for hearing proof of same at the Court House in Garner, Iowa, before the District Court of said County or the Clerk of said Cuort; and at 3:00 o'clock P M.o f the day above mentioned, all persons interested are hereby notified andrequired to appear, and show cause, if any they have, why said instrument should not be probated and allowed as and for the last Will and Testament of said deceased.

Dated at Garner, Iowa, July 25th, 1927.

CHRIS J JOHANSEN,
Clerk of District Court
(Publish July 28, Aug. 4-11, 1927.)

Avery Twp. News

(Special Times Reporter)

Mr Chris Anderson was a business caller at Mason City Friday.

Threshing is in full swing in this locality with all the rigs.

Leon Sherwood is doing some painting on his home.

Miss Eva Nelson, of Rockwell, is visiting at the Tom Nelson, Jr home

Mrs Tom Roths and Mrs. George Buseman helped Mrs Frank Roths cook for threshers Tuesday

Mrs Clarence Bachman spent Tuesday at the Earl Henry home at Ventura.

Miss Bonnie Bachman was a visitor with Maxine Bachman Wednesday afternoon.

Miss Irene Morshall spent Thursday afternoon with Avis and Verna Anderson.

The George Buseman family were Sunday evening visitors at the Rob Roths home

Mr and Mrs Fred Bachman and son Wayne and daughters Bonnie and Mrs Rob Roths were business callers at Mason City Thursday.

Mrs Frank Roths and Mrs. Rob Roths attended a birthday party Friday afternoon in honor of Mrs Wm Smith.

Mr and Mrs Will Bachman and daughter, Lela, were Thursday evening visitors at the Jake Bachman home

Mesdames Frank and Rob Roths and Fred Bachman attended the funeral of Mrs Polly Christie of Concord Saturday afternoon

Mr Hamo Beek and daughter, Minnie, of Austin, Minn, were callers at the John Bachman home on Tuesday

The Misses Anna and Wemkie Trampel and Miss Eva Nelson and Mrs Tom Nelson helped Mrs Verner Nelson cook for threshers Tuesday.

Mr and Mrs. Gus O'Krueg and Mr and Mrs. Harry Ruka spent Sunday at the Fred Bachman home.

Dave Ross of Garner was a business caller at his farm near Klemme, yMonda.

The Times is always glad to receive items of news. Please phone your items or mail them Thanks.

The political pot has started to boil in the Black Hills.

Healthy Play Tends to Check Morbidity

A New York physician, commenting on the perhaps unusual number of suicides that have occurred lately among boys and girls of high school and college age, says that his study of the subject has disclosed the fact that not one of the suicides was that of an athlete. His conclusion is that athletics makes for a condition of bodily health and of nervous equilibrium that preserves a boy or girl from the self-examination and worry that are so likely to break down the morale of the mind.

It is probable enough that this is so. The old Romans knew what they were talking about when they prayed for a sound mind in a sound body Plenty of lively exercise in the open air, cheerful association with others in the friendly competition of sport, regularly recurring periods when you are taken out of your preoccupation with yourself, your doubts and your problems by the necessity of exercising violently your muscles and your will, all help to keep youth normal and contented By such means the blood is urged to a healthy circulation, and the clouds and vapors that settle on a solitary and introspective mind are cleared away We agree with the New York physician that tennis golf, baseball track sports hockey football are all of them useful ministers to the mind that has any tendency to morbidity If your son or daughter is genuinely devoted to any of these games you need not have much fear that the idea of self destruction will ever occur to that son or daughter

Still more effective, of course, is genuine religious faith The young people who brood themselves into despair are those who have no conviction of the sacredness of life and no assurance of purpose in this world or of hope for the next. "Happiness" is their only goal, and when they find that life inevitably brings responsibilities disappointments, griefs and disillusionments, they become panic-stricken and look for the quickest way out Youth needs the firm support of faith as much as maturity or old age—more, perhaps, since it has not yet worked out its own philosophy of experience If parents will see that children are encouraged in the healthful exercise of their bodies and grounded in a strong and reasonable conviction of the meaning of life as a preparation for the existence that lies beyond, the newspapers will have no youthful suicides to talk about—Youth's Companion

Blood Has Its Tides

In the blood stream pumped from the heart to give us life there are daily tides like the ebb and flow of the tides of the sea Dr A F Bernard Shaw of Newcastle, England recently made this discovery while studying the white corpuscles of the blood These white cells, whose duty it is to fight disease germs which enter the blood are known to vary in numbers from time to time Doctor Shaw found that the number increases and decreases in two regular daily waves.

The high tide of white corpuscles usually comes just after midnight and again in the afternoon Doctor Shaw suggests that these tides may bear some relation to the hours of eating and sleeping, or may be due to changing positions of sun and earth - Popular Science Monthly

Ancient Deben Rings

For many years students of ancient Egypt have asked What is a deben ring?

Often they encountered the word in their studies, but they were never sure what sort of ring it was Now in the opening of the tomb of Queen Hetepheres at Gizeh men have found a box inscribed: "The mother of the king of Upper and Lower Egypt Hetepheres; box containing deben rings."

It is easy to imagine the eagerness with which the excavators awaited the opening of the box which would solve the mystery of that long lost word Soon the meaning of "deben" was made clear for inside the box were found two sets of ten anklets inlaid with dragon flies of lapis lazuli red cornelian and malachite

Clock Without a Dial

Lullington church Burton-on-Trent, England contains a public clock with neither face nor hands By striking the hours on the church bells it has given the parishioners accurate time for nearly four centuries.

Built in the Sixteenth century by the village blacksmith It comprises two heavy stones, a rope 30 feet long and a crude escapement It is wound daily by the sexton The winding barrels are of oak, like the beams in which the iron bearings work

A Burton clockmaker declares that there is no reason why the clock should not continue working for centuries.

"A Million-Dollar Smile"

We have heard the remark made before now: "That man's smile is worth a fortune to him." We have not seen many business men of whom we could say that However, there is one young lady we know of whom we can say "Her smile is worth a million" It is not a cultivated smile, either, but is natural and spontaneous. It does not matter whether it is the "old man" or his son, the elderly woman or her daughter, rich or poor, white or colored, she always greets them with a cheery, sunny smile We always feel better for having met her.—Bunceton Eagle.

Shoe Specials
For Fall

This is your chance to take advantage of our FALL SPECIAL in SHOES and provide yourself and family with quality goods at Bargain Prices. Fit the children out for school from this list. These Slippers, Oxfords and Shoes are all high grade, new merchandise in late styles.

MENS' and BOYS' OXFORDS
—Black or Tan—
Special At—
$3.50

LADIES and MISSES SLIPPERS
—They Are Real Values—
Special At—
$2.49 $3.95

MNS' WORK SHOEES
All Leather, Built For Service, Can't be beat anywhere for the low price we ask Special At—
$2.49 $3.39

Our entire stock of New Shoes For Fall are now on display. We have all the latest in Ladies and Misses Strap Slippers, Mens and Boys Oxfords and Shoes, and School Shoes for the children. We can save you money. Why pay more elsewhere?

Special stock of School Clothing for Children including Boys' Long and Knicker Trousers, Shirts and Blouses, Sweaters, Shoes, Stockings, etc.

G. W. Kluckhohn & Sons

For Electric Service

CALL 39 GARNER, IOWA
HOUSE WIRING—MOTORS—
LAMPS—
APPLIANCES—
—ALSO A FULL LINE OF RADIOS AND RADIO ACCESSORIES—

Prouty Electric Shop
GARNER — IOWA

It Is Open Window Time

Summer is here and the burglar has a nightly invitation to visit your house, with your windows wide open to catch what air may be stirring. Are you trying to protect your valuables in a bureau drawer, or just lettting them lie around loose? Valuables don't need air. Protection is their need. Our safe deposit vaults provide the protection of steel walls and constant care. Come in and see us.

First National Bank
KLEMME, IOWA.

Farm Champions of the World

WITH prize herds from America's greatest breeding farms—grains, fruits and farm projects from every corner of the state—the world's greatest agricultural and live stock fair welcomes you to Des Moines this summer.

Never has such a wealth of farm features been assembled as you will see in this vast exposition, covering more than 300 acres. Never have such amusements been provided, or such a perfect combination of education and entertainment for an ideal vacation.

Iowa's Annual Outing

National Live Stock Show of nearly 6,000 pure-bred animals.

Finest grains and produce from Iowa's best farms.

Boys and girls' live stock show, farm exhibits and judging contests.

A women's exposition filling two entire buildings, thirty-one county Farm Bureau displays; 40 acres of farm machinery; team pulling contests; lectures and displays on improved farming methods of all kinds.

And such entertainment—five days horse racing for $20,000 in purses, six days whippet dog races, two days auto races, Sousa and his 70-piece band, five other famous bands and orchestras; brilliant midway of 40 shows, fifteen hippodrome attractions, immense fireworks spectacle—"The Fall of Troy," society horse shows, mammoth new grandstand seating over 12,000

There's no substitute for a real State Fair outing. Join the 400,000 happy, vacation-seekers who will enjoy Iowa's great exposition this summer.

Sousa and His Band Every Day

Iowa State Fair
AUG. 24 - SEPT. 2
Reduced Railroad Rates

Goodell News

(By Special Correspondent)

Mart Kearney returned from Willmar Thursday.

Rev. and Mrs. Scott are entertaining company this week.

Paul Halfpop is working for Geo. Listie.

Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Chase were at Mason City Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Hemenway and Mrs. were Corwith callers Tuesday.

Clement Houghton spent the week end with his mother.

WONDERFULLY

Refreshing

With the warm weather now here, nothing is more cooling or refreshing than one of our fine Sodas!

Luscious ice cream, fresh ripe fruit, pure flavoring—that's what you get at our fountain.

Whenever you feel the need of a tasty, toothsome treat, stop in at our cafe.

Crystal Cafe

Conrad Quandt, Prop.

UNIQUE PARTY HELD AT THE U. B. CHURCH

"Birthday Party" Netted Over $60; One Table For Each Month

Many attended the birthday party at the U B Church Thursday. A very nice program was given in the nave of the building. Afterward the guests were taken to the basement which was prettily decorated. There were twelve tables decorated to represent each month of the year. The guests sat at the table which was the month of their birthday and gave an offering of as many pennies as they were years old, or more The month having the largest offering was January ($11) received a special birthday cake Refreshments were served Everyone had a very nice time The total amount taken in was about $67 00

Nada Wesenberg Given Birthday Surprise Party

Saturday afternoon Mrs. Wesenberg gave a surprise party on the lawn in honor of her daughter, Nada, it being her 13th birthday The entertainment had been well planned and the time from 2 30 to 5 30 o'clock was spent in various ways About 30 were present and Nada received many nice gifts At 5·30 a delicious supper was served by Mrs Wesenberg The girls all enjoyed the afternoon greatly.

Back From Dakota Trip

Mr and Mrs Jay Griggs and son Kenneth returned from their North Dakota trip Saturday night They report a fine time, the weather being favorable and the roads in fair condition for traveling They are having fine crops in Minnesota and Dakota this year due to the spring rains

Daphne Houghton left Sunday to visit friends in Northern Missouri.

Mr and Mrs. J J. Cook wree business callers at Galt Monday.

Viola Quigley returned to her home at Maple Hill.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherwood were Garner callers Saturday.

Mrs. Henning Sandberg and Bobbie are visiting at the Ole Sandberg home.

Many from out of town attended the birthday Party in the church Thursday.

Verdie Wilson had the misfortune to step on a spike which went thru his foot He is now using crutches

Redge Houghton gave a dance in his new barn last Tuesday night. "Abe" Scott furnished the music.

Friday the Missionary Ladies had a picnic on the school grounds. It was well attended

Mr and Mrs Fuller of Birchinal visited at the Jule Cook home Sunday Mrs Fuller is Mr. Cook's sister.

Lucille Boller who has been visiting at St Ansgar returned home last week Her friend Laura Johnson came with her for a visit

Quite a large crowd attended the dance at Goodell Saturday evening The music was furnished by Jenison, and Nolte Babcock and Anderson changed with them for a while

Mr and Mrs Remer and son f Le Mars, Mrs Remer and June of Garner and Mr and Mrs Gaylord Scott of Adel visited at the Jake Bachman home Saturday evening Mrs Scott was formerly Mildred Remer of this place

Avery-Twin Lakes News

(Special Times Reporter)

Threshing has been delayed a few days by rain

Miss Ada Sandrey helped Mrs. Justin Lynch one day last week

Leon Lemke is assisting with work at the Fred Etchen farm.

Florence, Carrie and Clarence Swalve visited at the Frank Sandry home last Friday.

Lester Buseman visited with Frances and Franklyn a few days last week

Mr and Mrs David Schwichtenberg and family visited at the B. A Reemstma home Sunday.

Miss Edith Haupt helped Mrs Josten last Wednesday with the work

Mr Wellemeyer delivered a fine new rug to the Dick Swalve home which has recently been remodeled.

Miss Emma Christians was a Sunday afternoon visitor at the Henry Buseman home.

Mr and Mrs. Watermilder and sons were Sunday evening visitors at the Dick Swalve home.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Buseman and family were Sunday visitors at the Dominy home near Goodell.

The Misses Edna Priebe, Florence Swalve, Lydia and Frances Haberkamp had Sunday dinner at the Geo Albers farm north east of Klemme

Mr Henry Josten returned Tuesday from the hospital at Cherokee where he had undergone an operation for cancer. He is feeling fine.

Mrs. Elmer Schlei, Mrs. Fred Etchen and Miss Edith Haupt helped Mrs. Will Wenz prepare dinner for threshers Friday.

Scientists say the sun will cool off in 33 million years. In the meantime go to work.

We have so many laws in this country that they have to take their turns at being enforced.

When will airports become as filling stations?

It is getting to be a great season for heroes.

The first need of the air mail is more letters.

Any Story About Dogs Finds Ready Believers

A dispatch from Winsted, Conn., tells a tale of a fifteen-year-old dog, belonging to a Winsted resident, who, finding himself alone in the house and becoming lonely, went to the telephone, knocked the receiver off and barked into the mouthpiece until companionship came in response to the appeal.

The ark probably produced the first dog story, but unfortunately we do not know what it was. Scripture is silent on the subject. From the time of the Flood onward, however, there have been dog stories in rapid succession, most of which still are to be found on record in the baked brick or the papyrus records of the ancients. There were tales of dogs in the semi-ancient, medieval and modern times. Everybody likes a dog story and everybody tells them. The dog always has had his day.

It is just 100 years ago this year as the record goes that Alfred Jingle told his story of a usually obedient hunting dog that refused to enter a certain field even under the urging of calls and whistles from his master. When the master jumped the fence he found the dog looking at a sign which read, "Any dog found in this field will be shot" That yarn of Alfred Jingle's was at least 500 years old before Jingle gave it to the ears of listeners unlearned in dog lore.

There is another dog story which they tell in newspaper circles in England daily and have been telling ever since newspapers first were printed. A dog was sent every evening by his master to bring his favorite paper from a dealer half a mile distant. As they tell the story in England the names of the newspapers are changed to suit the occasion When it was heard the last time the dog's master was a subscriber to the Times. One day copies of the Times had not been received by the dealer He offered the dog a Daily Telegraph, which the dog promptly refused to take.

There is nothing at all unbelievable about the tale of the Winsted dog. If occasion had required it he probably would have dropped a nickel in the slot and given the correct number, and then would have uttered a canine curse if he got the busy signal.

Spoke With Authority

The boulevards were perfumed with the odor of flowers. Two weeks of golden sun had brought the first abundant harvest. Near the Madeleine church carts were buried under violets, jasmine and lilacs. Every Parisian was buying a "bottle." A rubicund parish priest from the country on the way to the station stopped to select a little bouquet. He examined the wares of a big red-faced woman, but apparently not quite satisfied, he made as if to go to another stall. Then we heard the flower seller say: "Monsieur le cure, whatever you do, don't buy of that woman next to me. She has no conscience; you will be cheated; she is a good-for-nothing." "Ah, but," replied the old priest, "really this is no way to speak of your neighbor, my good friend" But the flower seller quickly added to support her opinion: "I know her; she is my own daughter, that!"—Pierre Van Paassen, in the Atlanta Constitution.

Reduces Accidents

Braking by electricity—the newest idea in street and interurban railway operation—is cutting down car accidents materially. A number of railways throughout the land are equipping cars with the magnetic airbrakes. A car so equipped carries flat shoes each about two inches wide with the face suspended above the top of the rail. When the power is applied—usually in emergencies—these shoes drop and the electric power stops the car in one-third the time required by airbrakes alone.

Direct Rail to Mexico

When the Southern Pacific of Mexico connects its rails at Salsu Puede bridge in the Barrancas (deep gorges) on the Jalisco-Nayarit state line, the western American states will be given direct rail communication with the Mexican capital. One may then depart from any point in the United States, travel down the west coast of Mexico to Mexico City, connect there with the railway to the Guatemalan frontier and thence continue on narrow-gauge rails into Central America.

Try Budgets on Babies

Economics experts at the University of Nebraska have worked out a system of household budgets for five-year-old girls. Early training in the budget system, the home economics ladies think, will prevent many future homes from ending on the rocks The Woman's Home Companion suggests facetiously that the training should begin still earlier—"and perhaps soon, at a certain important family event, the official attendants will include a doctor, a nurse and a budget expert."

Sharks to Be Capitalized

A new industry, which will depend upon the shark for its products is to be established in New Zealand. Products obtained from the shark include leather, a fertilizer, valuable oil, glue and a substance from the pancreatic gland for medicinal purposes. The aim of the promoters of the enterprise, among whom are some of the foremost men in the country, is to secure a daily catch of 1,000 sharks, which abound in New Zealand waters

Liberty News Notes

(Special Times Reporter)

Roy Schaefer and family drove to Hollandale, Minn., to see the sights.

Mrs. Herman Paul and children of St. Louis, Mo., are visiting friends and relatives around Klemme.

Ben Ridder and Will Lemke drove to Mason City Saturday morning on business.

Mrs. Eric Clark, of Garner assisted her sister-in-law, Mrs. John Lemke, cook for threshers Wednesday.

Miss Leona Fuller of Canton, South Dakota, is visiting this week at the Clyde Marshall home.

Vella and Emily Paul were out to see their new cousin at the Will Suckow home Thursday.

Mr. Ed. Schoenwetter and family were entertained at the home of Geo Schoenwetter Sunday.

Mrs. Will Lemke and children visited Tuesday with her sister, Mrs. Roscoe Baker at Britt

Victor Schoenwetter and family were in Mason City Sunday to ste her father at the Mercy hospital

Mrs. Emil Beier helped her sister-in-law, Mrs Ben Reamer with cooking for threshers Tuesday

Herman Lemke, who has been in the hospital at Mason City for some time will return to his home Thursday

Mrs. Jake Ter Hart and Mrs. Fred Ter Hart helped their mother, Mrs Albert Carolus cook for threshers, Tuesday.

Mrs. John Tanner's sister from California came last week to make an extended visit with the Tanner family.

Walter Lemke had the misfortune of crushing one of his fingers while threshing last week. Although he is able to help with the threshing

Mr Albert Carolus Sr. was operated upon last Thursday at the hospital in Iowa City. He is doing as well as can be expected at present.

Mrs Eric Clark and Mrs. Rudy Bohn assisted Mrs Rhine Lemke Friday cooking for threshers Carl and Rudy Bohn came down after work for supper.

Grandma Beier will celebrate her 85th birthday Sunday. She is as bright mentally as a woman years younger and enjoys fairly good health.

Mrs Herman Lemke was down to Mason City Monday to see Mr Lemke in the Mercy Hospital He is gaining fine and hopes to be home soon.

At the family re-union held at the George Schoenwetter home Sunday fourty-four persons were present They were from Klemme, Garner, Fenton and Alexander.

The W. F. M S of the Liberty Township Church held their August meeting in the basement of the church last Wednesday. A fair crowd was present.

A picnic dinner was enjoyed at the John Lemke home Sunday when all the Blumer children got together with their families Miss Minnie Blumer came from Jewell for the occasion.

Mrs. John Tanner, who has been in the hospital at Cherokee for some time is nicely recovering and is expected home within a week. Her many friends will bo glad to hear this.

Miss Bertha Miller came home to visit her brother Frank and her parents She has been at Watkins, Ia., visiting her sister, Mrs. John Woods. For the past year Miss Bertha has been in California with Mr. and Mrs. Gerald McCullough.

Paul Stromer and two sisters, Misses Norma and Dailla, who have been visiting in Minnesota and Dakota, returned to thtir home Saturday. They report a very nice time.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Anderson and family of Belleyue, Iowa, Mrs. Herbert Lee and daughter, Lola, and Mrs. Charles Dorweger of Britt, were visiting at the Rhine Lemke home Tuesday afternoon.

J. J. Stille and family, Elmer Schaefer and family, Will Suckow and family attended the big Stille reunion at Hayfield Sunday. A large crowd from Nashua were present Next year they plan on meeting at Nashua.

Personal Reason

She—How is it you were not at Westend's reception?

He—I stayed away on account of a personal matter.

She—May I ask what it was?

He—Well, they failed to send me an invitation.

Gold-Plated Cloth

Cloth, wood or metal may be gold or silver plated by a process just perfected by a German. The object to be plated is subjected to a bombardment from a filament of gold or silver in an electric vacuum tube.

Patent Example

Teacher—Give me an example of an abbreviation.

Bright Boy—A girl's skirt.—Boston Transcript.

Unwelcome Patronage

"I've just been to the bank."

"Drawing or depositing?"

"Drawing. I drew enough out of the inkwell to fill my fountain pen."

Explained

Husband—I've waited an hour for you

Wife—But I said I'd be five minutes late.

Homelike Cooknig

If you are sandwich hungry or ready for a juicy steak.

If you are "all set" for a good dinner or just want a "snack"—we're waiting for you—all set.

Good, substantial wholesome food.

HIGLEY'S LUXUS ICE CREAM

—is sold here in bulk or served as sundaes. Try a quart next time.

Give us the pleasure of welcoming you today—

New Cafe

M. O. BARR, Prop.

Farm

Loans

5%

Isaac Sweigard

Garner Iowa

PIANOS

Players & Grand

New and

Second Hand

M. N. ZEIGER

Jewelry & Optical Goods

GARNER, IOWA

Meats For Threshers

To feed a crew of hungry threshers is quite a task for the farmer's wife during the busy threshing season, but when your meats are purchased at Larsen's a large part of the task has been met.

Right now we are specializing in special cuts for the threshers' dinners and to meet the demand we are well stocked on—

TENDER ROASTS—both beef and pork

Choicest Hams—fine for serving either piping hot or cold sliced

STEAKS CHOPS COLD MEATS

For those morning and afternoon lunches for the threshers we suggest that you have on hand a supply of our Cold Meats for Sandwiches, Cheese—any kind, pickles, etc.

If It's For Threshers Meals and Lunches

We Can Serve You Well

Klemme Meat Market

A Good Hog House

Your Hogs deserve a good home. Hogs should have something more than just a shed, because the returns they give you depend largely upon the care they have.

Choose a Hog House that will be convenient, well-ventilated, permanent and attractive in appearance.

With our Lumber and full line of all kinds of Building Material and Equipment, you can build a modern Hog House at a very reasonable cost.

We offer you our Free Plan Service on any building and will be glad to quote you prices.

Build now and have your hogs properly sheltered for fall and winter.

Tell us your plans!

Northern Lbr. Co.

BAYER

Genuine

ASPIRIN

SAY "BAYER ASPIRIN" and INSIST!

Unless you see the "Bayer Cross" on tablets you are not getting the genuine Bayer Aspirin proved safe by millions and prescribed by physicians for 25 years.

DOES NOT AFFECT THE HEART

Safe — Accept only "Bayer" package which contains proven directions.

Handy "Bayer" boxes of 12 tablets
Also bottles of 24 and 100—Druggists.

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

Here's Speedy Relief for Tender, Aching, Swollen Feet

Your Druggist Says Emerald Oil Must Give Complete Satisfaction or Money Cheerfully Refunded.

Your feet may be so swollen and inflamed that you think you can't go another step. Your shoes may feel as if they are cutting right into the flesh. You feel sick all over with the pain and torture and pray for quick relief. What's to be done?

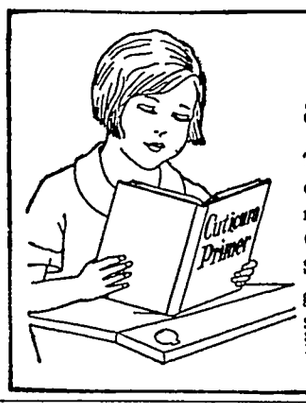
Two or three applications of Moone's Emerald Oil and in fifteen minutes the pain and soreness disappears. A few more applications at regular intervals and the swelling reduces.

And as for Soft Corns and Callouses a few applications each night at bed time and they just seem to shrivel right up and scale off.

No matter how discouraged you have been with powders, footbaths or other applications, if you have not tried Emerald Oil then you have something to learn.

It's a wonderful formula—this combination of essential oils with camphor and other antiseptics so marvelous that thousands of bottles are sold annually for reducing varicose or swollen veins.

Every good druggist guarantees the first bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil. It must end your foot troubles or money back.



Childhood's Lessons affect the whole life

Teach your children to use Cuticura Soap daily to keep the skin clear. Soothe and heal rashes, eczemas and other irritations with Cuticura Ointment. Shampoo with Cuticura Soap to keep the scalp in a healthy, hair-growing condition.

Soap 25c. Ointment 25 and 50c. Talcum 25c. Sold everywhere. Sample each free. Address: "Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. B 3, Malden, Mass."

Cuticura Shaving Stick 25c.

Stomach Ache? Get Quick Relief!

When something doesn't agree with your stomach, get quick relief by taking a little Chamberlain's Colic Remedy in water. Ask your druggist for this reliable remedy today. Keep it handy. For trial size, send 4 cents to Chamberlain Medicine Company, 712 6th Avenue, Des Moines, Iowa.

CHAMBERLAIN'S
GUARANTEED REMEDY FOR
COLIC AND DIARRHEA
THE FIRST AID IN STOMACH ACHE

The Other Side of It

Wife (at resort)—Oh, Robert, isn't it lovely here where the green waves come rolling in?

Hub—Yes. And the greenbacks go rolling out.

Stomach Disorders
are decidedly unpleasant
Green's August Flower
a gentle laxative, will act promptly in relief of stomach and bowel troubles and your freedom from pain and discomfort will make you feel that life is again worth living.
30c and 90c bottles. At all druggists.
G. G. Green, Inc., Woodbury, N. J.

Truly an Abnormality

From an exchange: "Daniel coming unscathed out of the fiery furnace was an abnormality." It was all of that, seeing that what he had entered was a lion's den.—Boston Transcript.

Honor Given Scottish Poet Somewhat Late

A memorial to Robert Ferguson, the Scottish poet, has been erected in the Moray aisle of St. Giles' cathedral, Scotland.

At present the only visible evidence that Ferguson lived and died in Edinburgh is to be found in the Canongate churchyard. It is the tombstone which Robert Burns erected 15 years after the death of the poet, to whom, on his own confession, he owed so much. Now, after 138 years, a memorial has been erected.

The memorial is the result of a contribution made by Hon. James Craigie, member of the legislative council of New Zealand. Doctor Macgillivray, R. S. A., king's sculptor for Scotland, made the model, which he had previously designed with such an object in view. The memorial has been erected under the auspices of the Burns federation.—Weekly Scotsman.

A Notorious Name

Recently a newly rich woman was invited to a meeting of the Boston Browning society, on which occasion a number of the poet's verses were read. Evidently they did not intrigue her greatly, for on her way out from the meeting she was heard to say:

"Well, if the samples we've been listening to are the best Browning can do in the way of writing poetry, and I had to listen to much of it, I couldn't blame 'Peaches' for leaving him."—Boston Globe.

Large trees uprooted by storms can sometimes be saved if quickly replanted and cared for.

Children Cry for

Fletcher's CASTORIA

MOTHER:— Fletcher's Castoria is a pleasant, harmless Substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Teething Drops and Soothing Syrups, especially prepared for Infants in arms and Children all ages.

To avoid imitations, always look for the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher
Proven directions on each package. Physicians everywhere recommend it.

Improved Uniform International

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D.D., Dean, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)

(©, 1927, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for August 14

DAVID BRINGS THE ARK TO JERUSALEM

LESSON TEXT—II Sam. 6:1-19; Ps. 24.

GOLDEN TEXT—We shall be satisfied with the goodness of thy house, even of thy holy temple.

PRIMARY TOPIC—David Worships God.

JUNIOR TOPIC—David Worships God.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How to Worship God.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Exalting God in Individual and National Life.

I. David Made King.

1. Over Judah (II Sam. 2:1-14).

Upon the death of Saul and Jonathan, David knew that the time had come for the fulfillment of God's purpose, but he carefully inquired of the Lord as to the proper movement to make. God directed him to Hebron, whereupon the children of Judah anointed him to be their king.

2. Over Israel (II Sam. 5:1-5).

After the death of Ishbosheth, the children of Israel came and formed a league with David, anointing him as their king. They assigned as their reasons:

((1) He was their brother (v. 1).

This is true of Jesus Christ, who has become our kinsman through the incarnation.

(2) He was their leader in war, even in Saul's time (v. 2).

(3) He was the Lord's choice (v. 2).

II. David's Unsuccessful Attempt to Bring Up the Ark (vv. 1-5).

This is an example of a wrong way of doing a right thing. That the Ark of the Lord of Hosts, the symbol of God's presence, should be brought to the center of the nation's life was a decision worthy of all praise. David gathered together the representative men of the nation in order that the movement might be a national one. That David was sincere in this measure cannot be doubted, but he was hasty and inconsiderate, for the procedure was an express violation of God's statutes. The dictum that it matters little what you do, just so you are honest and sincere is one of the devil's blackest lies.

III. God Vindicates His Law and Holiness (vv. 6-9).

The people were very joyful as they moved on toward Jerusalem with the ark, but suddenly there was a stop to the jubilant voices and music. At some rough place in the road the oxen stumbled and Uzzah, anxious for the precious freight on his cart, reached forth his hand to steady it. This resulted in his being stricken to death, as a man who touches a live electric wire. Ignorance does not make a man immune from the death which is in the touch of the heavily charged electric wire; neither does it in the case of the violation of God's laws. Since the ark was God's dwelling place among men, they needed to know that He was holy.

IV. The Ark of God in the House of Obed-Edom (vv. 10-12).

The homes where God is welcomed are always blessed. Obed-Edom was not better personally than Uzzah and David, but he openly received the Lord and properly related himself to Him. What had been death and dread to others was life and blessing to him. This was all because of his attitude toward it.

V. The Ark Brought to Jerusalem With Great Joy (vv. 13-19).

1. Sacrifices were offered after going six paces (v. 13).

David made the start and when convinced of God's approval, he made offerings. These were both burnt and peace offerings, typifying the self-dedication of the offerers and their thanksgiving (I Chron. 16:1).

2. David's great joy (vv. 14, 15).

The people joined him with great shouting and with the sound of the trumpet.

3. Michal's criticism (v. 16).

Even though David went to excess in his expression of joy, it was wrong in her to criticize, for God seems to have sanctioned David's rebuke of her (v. 23).

4. The grand celebration (vv. 17-19)

As a token of his gratitude to God, David generously treated the people.

5. The King of Glory, the Lord Jesus Christ, coming (Ps. 24:7-10).

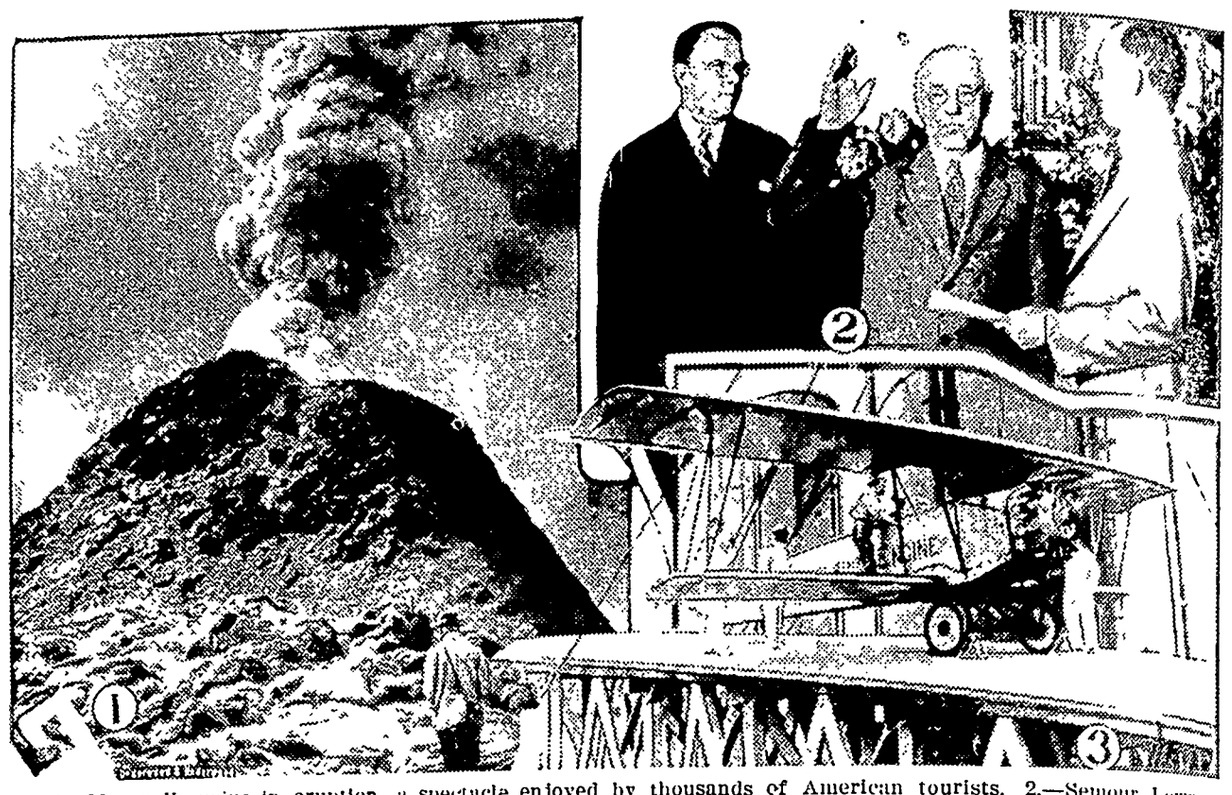
This was not the psalm composed by David for the occasion of bringing up the ark; that was Psalm 105. (See I Chron. 16). It is strange that such a suggestion should have been made. This 24th psalm pictures Christ as the coming and triumphant King. At that time the gates shall open to Him and the King of Glory shall come in

God Gives Us Power

God gives us power to bear all the sorrows of His making; but He does not give the power to bear the sorrows of our own making, which the anticipation of sorrow most assuredly is.—Ian MacLaren.

Asking

Asking" of me" is the one appeal of the most high. It is not enough that we should be able to vindicate a promise signed by the divine hand; we must plead it.—F. B. Meyer.



1.—Mount Vesuvius in eruption, a spectacle enjoyed by thousands of American tourists. 2.—Seymour Lowman being sworn in as assistant secretary of the treasury in charge of prohibition enforcement. 3.—Clarence Chamberlin about to make test take-off from runway built on the deck of the Leviathan.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Coolidge Startles Nation by Renouncing Chance of 1928 Nomination.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

NOT in many years has the United States had a political sensation equal to that caused by President Coolidge's statement removing himself from the list of candidates for the Republican nomination next year. The statement, handed to the correspondents at Rapid City without comment, was merely: "I do not choose to run for President in 1928." Obviously this is susceptible of several interpretations. While it is generally accepted that Mr. Coolidge does not seek or desire the nomination, many believe that if his party insists on "drafting" him he will not decline the honor. However it is evident neither he nor his supporters will make a pre-convention campaign, and therefore the field is open to all.

As to Mr. Coolidge's reasons for this unexpected action, one guess is as good as another for he has vouchsafed no explanation. The Middle West agricultural group are satisfied that he became convinced that he had not won over the farmers to his views on farm relief despite his vacation among them. Others think that, being a profound traditionist and a good judge of political trends, he became impressed with the danger of setting a third term precedent, as it might be considered, and that his popularity might wane with this; also perhaps he could foresee the end of the great reductions in public expenditures, in the probable new navy costs and in the necessity of putting out huge sums for flood relief and farm relief. In yet other quarters, especially in European capitals, it is thought that the main reason for the President's renunciation was the failure of the naval limitation conference in Geneva.

Every Republican politician who has called on Mr. Coolidge at the summer White House has assured him that the nomination was his for the asking, and to none of them had he intimated that he did not desire the honor. Mrs. Coolidge is said to have known of his intention and to have urged him to retire while at the height of his popularity and at the peak of his mental and physical strength.

Supporters of a dozen potential candidates for the Republican nomination got into action swiftly on the announcement of the President's decision. Of the possibilities, Frank O. Lowden had the best start, his friends being organized in various states. Next to him, perhaps, stands Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover, whose nomination is advocated by many party leaders. Both these men are popular in the South, Middle West and West, and neither is to be considered weak in the East. Vice President Dawes, an advocate of the McNary-Haugen farm relief measure, would have strong support if he went after the nomination, his personality making him very popular. But Mr. Dawes will not be a candidate so long as Mr. Lowden has a chance. Conservative Republicans in considerable numbers might be expected to favor Speaker Nicholas Longworth or Charles E. Hughes. Senator William E. Borah of Idaho must be considered among the possibilities, and the radical Republicans of the old LaFollette group are being lined up by Senator Brookhart for Senator Norris of Nebraska. In Ohio the Coolidge following turned to Senator Simeon D. Fess.

Probably the President's action will have no great effect on the contest for the Democratic nomination. However, if he is not nominated in spite of himself, the Democrats will be deprived of the "third term" issue, which might have been useful to them in the campaign.

JAPANESE delegates to the Geneva naval conference made a last hour attempt to save the parley by suggesting a compromise on cruisers and what amounted to a navy building holiday until 1931. But this was not acceptable to the British and little more so to the Americans, so with the plenary session on Thursday the conference came to an inglorious end. Since the British would not yield in their demands, which meant continued supremacy on the seas, the American delegates, especially the naval experts, were glad to have the conference close without their having to make humiliating concessions for the sake of reaching an agreement. At the final session each delegation made a formal statement, a joint communique was issued by the conference as a whole, and the delegates left for their homes without ill feeling.

It is stated unofficially that President Coolidge will call another naval disarmament conference before his term ends, early in 1929, and that he will ask that it hold its sessions in Washington.

GOV. ALVAN T. FULLER of Massachusetts, after his long and careful investigation of the case of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, decided that the condemned murderers should be executed on August 10. He said he was convinced that the two men were guilty of murder, that no evidence had been produced that warranted a new trial, and that their previous trial was fair and without prejudice. He could find no ground on which clemency could be claimed or granted. In reaching these conclusions the governor was aided by the advice of President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard, President Samuel W. Stratton of Massachusetts Institute of Technology and former Probate Judge Robert Grant. This commission arrived unanimously at a decision that was the same as that of the governor. Mr. Fuller spared no pains in his inquiry, interviewing the condemned men, the witnesses, the jurymen and Judge Thayer, who presided over the trial and who was accused of prejudice in its conduct. He also talked at length with Celestino Madeiros, the condemned murderer who made a confession that was designed to clear Sacco and Vanzetti of the charge against them. This confession, the governor was convinced, was false. The only remaining hope for the two men was that President Coolidge might intervene, but at Rapid City it was stated that this was not expected, since the President had always held that the case belonged wholly within the jurisdiction of the Massachusetts courts.

Word of Governor Fuller's decision was sent immediately to all American consulates and extra guards were provided in foreign cities where demonstrations in favor of Sacco and Vanzetti have occurred in the past. Radicals here and abroad, who have always held the men were convicted because they were radicals, tried to stir up disturbances in various places and it was announced that a general strike would be declared throughout Argentina. The radical press in Paris was enraged and undertook to create a sentiment there against the American Legion which is to convene in Paris.

PRESIDENT AND MRS. COOLIDGE journeyed to Deadwood Thursday and 300 Sioux Indians in full war paint and feathered headdresses welcomed him as the great white father and a big chief in their tribe. They kicked up their knees and bent their heads forward as the tomtoms beat out the message into the surrounding mountains that a new chief awaited their crown of eagle feathers, and Mr. Coolidge, equally pleased over his novel experience, looked forward to taking away with him the title of "Chief Leading Eagle."

Well to the fore were Chief Chauncey Yellow Robe, his daughter, Rosebud, and Chief Standing Bear, who were chosen to perform the coronation, and with them were Chiefs Kills a Hundred and Crazy Horse with a coronation speech in the Sioux language that was translated to the assembled crowd.

The celebration which President and Mrs. Coolidge attended, of which the Indian coronation was a part, was a reproduction of the frontier days in 1878, when Deadwood was the center of the Black Hills gold rush.

FIFTEEN planes are entered in the great aerial race from San Francisco to Hawaii for the $35,000 offered by James D. Dole. The race starts on August 12 and the prizes go to the first two to land on the island. Three of the aviators will make the flight unaccompanied. Among the others are two women, Miss Mildred Doran of Flint, Mich., and Mrs. W. P. Erwin of Dallas, Texas.

Another attempt of British aviators to make a nonstop flight to India failed when the plane piloted by O. R. Carr and E. C. Dearth was forced down in the Danube river near Linz. Neither man was injured.

After a lot of quarreling, Charles A. Levine and Maurice Drouhin, the French pilot, reached an agreement concerning the pay the aviator is to receive for flying the Columbia back to the United States and the insurance for his wife and family. It was understood the flight to New York might be started within two weeks.

For the benefit of the air mail service, Clarence Chamberlain made a successful test of taking off from a platform constructed on the deck of the Leviathan when the vessel was 80 miles out from New York. It was demonstrated that several hours could be saved in the landing of European mails.

SEYMOUR LOWMAN was sworn in as assistant secretary of the treasury in charge of prohibition enforcement, succeeding Lincoln C. Andrews. He said one of his greatest tasks would be the curbing of the radicals, both wets and drys, indicating that he would endeavor to pursue a middle ground policy. Next day he announced a shift in the machinery of his office. Positions of five zone supervisors were abolished. Maj. H. H. White was transferred from the post of assistant commissioner of prohibition to a new position known as general supervisor of field offices. Having just completed the reorganization of the Washington office of the prohibition bureau, Major White will now undertake the reorganization of branch offices throughout the country. Shakeups in some of the districts are in prospect.

IGNORING the wails of New York, Philadelphia and other Eastern cities, Tex Rickard decided last week that the Dempsey-Tunney prize fight for the heavyweight championship should take place in Chicago. The South park commissioners there agreed to lease the Soldier Field stadium to the promoter for $100,000 for the one night. At first September 15 was selected as the date of the battle, but Jack Dempsey said he would not be ready before September 22, owing to his wife's illness and other matters, so the latter date was agreed upon. It is expected that the fight will draw a gate of at least $2,000,000.

GOVERNOR DONAHEY and other Ohio officials were on edge all week with the prospect of serious trouble due to the determination of the coal operators of the state to reopen their mines on a non-union basis. The authorities at all mining centers were ready to do their best to keep the peace, and the governor was ready to send troops into the field as soon as it was evident civil authority had fallen down. He urged the miners and operators to reconvene their wage conference which ended in a deadlock at Miami last spring, and asked the co-operation in this plan of Governors Small of Illinois, Jackson of Indiana and Fisher of Pennsylvania.

AMERICAN tourists in Italy had a fine time witnessing the eruption of Mount Vesuvius, and throngs of them climbed to the summit of the volcano for a closer view of the sublime spectacle. Meanwhile the inhabitants of towns threatened by the outpouring of lava were abandoning their homes, though the director of the Vesuvius observatory thought the volcano would soon return to normal.

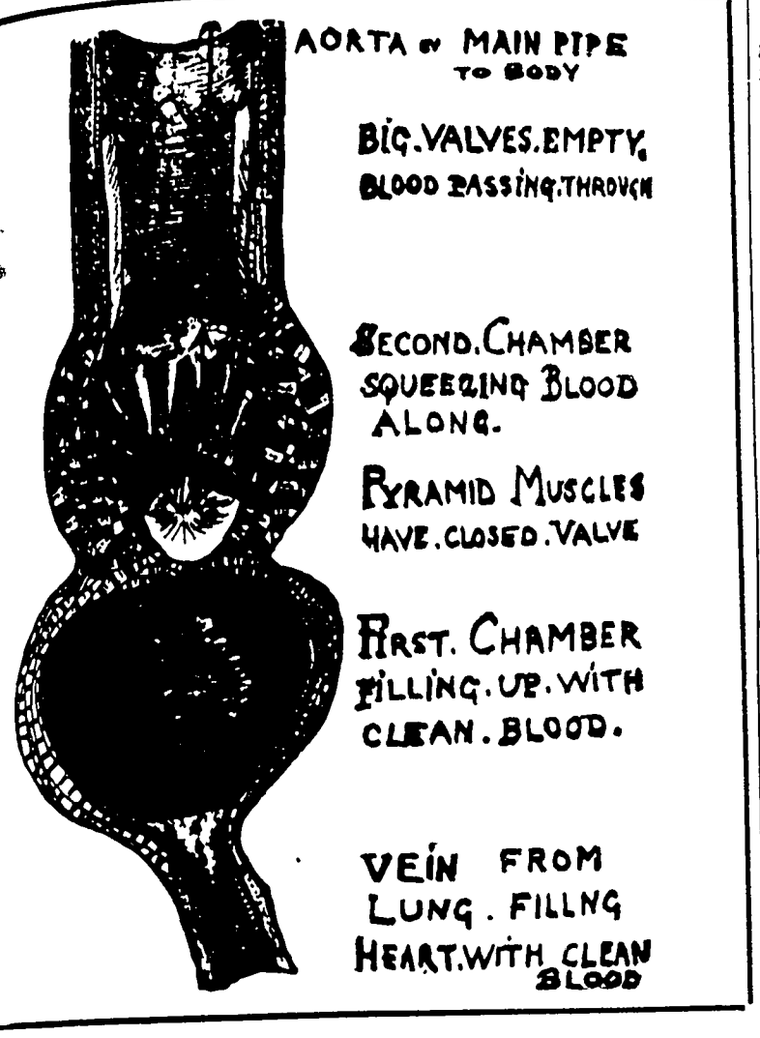
DOWAGER QUEEN MARIE of Rumania was put on the Rumanian pay roll at $125,000 a year by the national council. The boy king, Michael I, was granted $110,000 a year. Smaller grants were made to other members of the family of the late King Ferdinand.

Premier Bratiano has become virtual dictator of the country, for the regency is composed of three weaklings. Politically and militarily the premier is taking the fullest measures to frustrate any plans Prince Carol may have for gaining the throne.

YOURSELF and YOUR BODY

By WILFRED T. GRENFELL

THE PUMP AND PIPES



AORTA or MAIN PIPE TO BODY
BIG. VALVES. EMPTY, BLOOD PASSING THROUGH SECOND. CHAMBER SQUEEZING BLOOD ALONG.
PYRAMID MUSCLES HAVE. CLOSED. VALVE
FIRST. CHAMBER FILLING. UP. WITH CLEAN. BLOOD.
VEIN FROM LUNG. FILLNG HEART. WITH CLEAN BLOOD

"BUT father, how does the lymph get back?" "Every time you move a muscle or breathe, you squeeze it out of the spaces which end in openings into special little vessels. Valves keep it from ever getting back. So on and on it has to go into a large pipe, which empties at last into the blood through a big vein in the neck near the heart. It is pushed on also a little by the heart, and sucked on by the current in the vein. Moreover, it is helped along by the fact that it is different in composition from the other fluids, and so passes out into any fluid next to it. This process is called diffusion."

"But, father, what makes the blood go round to all the cells?"

"I don't wonder you ask. That is a real job, isn't it? For, you see, the cells cannot live as we can, on meals three times a day. They must get air and food brought to them day and night and all the time. So long as they get that, they do not care where they are, and they will therefore grow outside the body just as well as inside, if you also keep them warm. Then you must remember what an awful lot of pipes we must have to reach all the cells, and what an awful heap of pumping we shall have to make our pump do. Moreover, ours are far the most wonderful pipes in the world. They grow bigger or smaller just as they are told.

"There is a trap in the pipe. What makes the trap shut? Why, because it is a valve or trap which opens only one way, and the rubber, springing up again, sucks or pulls up the lid, and when you squeeze down, the lid closes again, kerplunk! It is exactly like the trap-door of our attic; and don't you remember the one we made to pump out our bout, with a wooden flap, a leather hinge, and a heavy coat of lead fixed on the trap-door to shut it down. Doesn't that work well?"

"Splendidly."

"Well, the heart has invented far better valves for itself, and it has built two bulbs to make it throw stronger than it could with one, and to give a more even flowing current; not one that jerks.

"We'll take the best pump in the world—a good heart. So we have two two-cylinder engines, as you see in the picture. One set pumps the impure blood into the lung, and the other pumps the pure blood into the body. This pure blood carries the food and air The pumps lie side by side and are joined together, making a shape something like the ace of hearts. They throw twenty tumblerfuls in a minute, and all the blood in the body in one and one-half minutes. But if you run a race or climb a high mountain all the blood in your body may pass through in one minute. The first pipes are large and are called arteries, or 'air thoroughfares.' They get smaller, and smaller, and smaller, like Alice in Wonderland, till they are mere hair tubes, or capillaries, and then these join together and get bigger and bigger again, till they are pipes called veins.

"The arteries are strong and thick and very elastic. Can you guess why?"

"Because the heart pumps hard right into them?"

"Yes, that is part of the reason. But there is another, and a very clever reason. You know those squeaker toys with elastic bags that you blow up, don't you? What makes them go on squeaking so long?"

"Oh, the elastic bag squeezes the air out slowly through the pipe."

"Exactly so. That is why the arteries are so elastic; because in between the strokes of the pump, they are squeezing out through the pipes the blood which was forced into them. The splendid result is that the stream flows onward evenly all the time through the hair tubes into the veins and back again to the heart on its never-ending round. The veins are soft and have thin walls, but they have fine valves to help the blood not to rush back into the hair tubes.

"Sometimes those valves give out. They are not very strong, and they have a heavy weight on them if they happen to be in the legs of a fat person. Then what happens is this: The blood does run back, and leaks out everywhere, and the legs swell up and turn blue and hurt, and the poor man cannot get his boots on.

"Where is your heart? Can you feel it?"

"Surely."

"What is it doing?"

"Thumping."

"How many thumps to the minute? Here is my watch. Count them. Seventy?

"Now lift this chair up five times. Now count again. How many thumps now? Eighty? Right. Every bit of work, you see, gives our hearts more to do. If you listen carefully you can hear that the pump rests for a fraction of a second after every two beats. That's all the rest it ever takes—less than ten minutes in twenty-four hours. Like every other pump, we shall have to grease it; otherwise it will get hot and jam, like the engine.

"We will hang it in an oil-bag That will help also to keep it in its place. The bag is slung by fine ties inside the box made by the ribs. Inside the bag there is a beautiful soft, moist lining, very thin, and covered with the same cells which prevent blood clotting in the pipes. The cells lining the oil-bag must, of course, manufacture their own oil. I wish the lining of our gasoline tank would do likewise.

"Every dog has to have a name to tell it from other dogs, and all these parts of the body have Latin names or Greek ones. They are very easy if you know Latin and Greek. But we do not really need them.

"The big pipes which are elastic remain open and are full of air after the body is dead, because, of course, the elastic has squeezed all the blood out of them. But that made doctors think that they always carried air, and so they called them 'air-teries,' and we still call them by the old name; just as the first bulb of the heart is called the auricle (which just means ear), and the second bulb is called the ventricle (which only means belly). Thus the pipe to the lungs is called the lung-pipe or pulmonary artery; and the pipe that carries blood to the whole body is called the aorta, or carrier.

"For the heart's guidance local offices exist, both in and on its walls. Some messages come direct by special wires all the way from the central office in the brain. These long wires are called the Wanderers (Vagi). Isn't it odd, these only bring messages to say, 'Go slow, brother,' exactly like the slang phrase 'keep your shirt on,' or 'keep cool'? All the messages to 'speed up' or 'hustle' come from offices close to the heart, and connected directly with the big wires in the spine, right alongside the heart.

"The hair tubes are so fine that it takes two to three thousand, side by side, to measure one inch. As people get old the arteries get very chalky and break easily. When an old person has a 'stroke' it is because an artery has broken inside the head office in the brain, and the managers are drowned. Just so the body dies eventually. But if we are careful not to overeat, and if we avoid toxins or poisons like alcohol, there is no reason that the pipes should not last a hundred years easily."

(© by the Boll Syndicate, Inc.)

Horticultural News

PICKING APPLES TO KEEP STORED

"Our apples do not keep well in ordinary storage," write a number of apple growers to the horticultural department of the North Carolina State college and they want information on how this may best be corrected.

The main trouble, according to W. A. Radspinner, assistant horticulturist, is that the fruit is not picked at the right time. Apples picked green will scald quickly and those picked too ripe will break down quickly. But those picked when the green undercolor begins to turn yellow will keep fine if conditions are right in the storage house and the fruit is not bruised in handling.

"The early fall varieties are more difficult to store because outside temperatures are not low enough for storage," says Mr. Radspinner. "Late varieties such as the Winesap and Stayman will keep better in common farm storage. The early ripening varieties should be kept out of doors protected from rain and sun until the low temperatures begin. The length of time fruit can be kept depends on how soon after picking the temperature of the storage house can be reduced to 32 to 40 degrees. Then it is a matter of the storage house. Temperature, humidity and air circulation in the storage house all affect good results."

Mr. Radspinner states that low temperature may be secured by opening the ventilators when the air is cooler outside than inside and closing them when the air is warmer outside than inside. Humidity in the air will prevent the apple from shriveling and may be secured by evaporating water in the house. Air circulation is necessary to carry off the gases coming from the fruit and may be secured by wrapping the apples in the special oil paper, or storing in slatted crates.

These things done, the apples will keep, states Mr. Radspinner.

Make Preparations to Gas Peach Tree Borer

All peach growers should be making preparations to gas the peach-tree borer, since the best time to kill him is the first week in October. Control of the borer is especially important. Almost perfect control is secured by using paradichlorobenzene which is far superior to digging the borers out by hand. As high as 98 per cent of the borers are killed by this chemical.

On trees six years of age or older one ounce of the material is distributed in a continuous narrow band about the trunk two inches from the tree and covered with several shovelfuls of finely divided soil. The dirt is then packed with the back of the shovel, making a cone about the tree. For trees three to five years of age, one-half ounce of the crystals will be sufficient. Care should be used in keeping the material away from the barks of the tree, as contact with the tree will injure it severely.

For orchard trees one and two years of age one-fourth ounce may be used, but this is not advised where absolute confidence in putting the material on correctly cannot be had, as injury may occur. It should be remembered that the moths lay their eggs as late as the last of September; therefore, the application of paradichlorobenzene should be made the first week in October for the best results.

Horticulture Notes

You cannot make a success of apple growing without good spraying.

* * *

Black raspberries, unlike most of the other cultivated raspberries, do very well indeed where some shade is given.

* * *

Arsenate of lead, and lime-sulphur are offered for sale in either the liquid or dry form, with directions for use printed on each package or container.

* * *

Some of the best pruning you can do on young trees is to rub off the buds that come in wrong places for limbs. You can shape up the trees that way with very little cutting.

* * *

Throughout the year the orchard should be kept free from pruning, dropped apples, cornstalks and other rubbish which may act as shelter or protection for the worms.

* * *

When the lime-sulphur was first used, many growers made it themselves, but of late the commercial product is used. No doubt it can be made cheaper, but it is dirty work.

* * *

Do not spray at all unless you are going to try to do it well. It will not pay.

* * *

Spraying takes some time and trouble, but it is great satisfaction at picking time to have fruits that are practically free of insect damage, and no waste.

* * *

A tower, even with a spray gun, is a great help. Often it will suffice to stand on the tank. A saw-horse type of support along the center of the tank is a safeguard against falling off.

Ask for

POST TOASTIES

They stay crisp in milk or cream

Crisp, delicious flakes of corn —good for both ends of a perfect day

For breakfast serve Post Toasties with their crisp and crunchy goodness. That's the correct start for a perfect day. Enjoy their true corn flavor and refreshing crispness for supper at night. That's the perfect end of a perfect day. Here is deliciousness that no one can resist, and no one wants to. Here is wholesomeness that anyone can eat at any time. The special toasting process of the Postum Company seals the true corn flavor in lasting crispness. Post Toasties stay crisp in milk or cream down to the last tempting flake at the bottom of the bowl. Ask your grocer for Post Toasties, in the red and yellow, wax-wrapped package that keeps them fresh and always ready to serve.

Use Health Products

© 1927, P. Co., Inc.

POSTUM COMPANY, INC., BATTLE CREEK, MICH.

Deadly Mushroom Is Enjoyed by Squirrel

Poisonous mushrooms seem to have no terrors for the lively red squirrel of the woods, according to Robert T. Hatt of the biology department of New York university. He noticed during his researches in the field that red squirrels fed freely on two poisonous species, and that they seemed to prefer them also when they came to store food for the winter. Incredulous, he tried mushroom diets on caged red squirrels, and found that they selected the same two species out of a variety of edible fungi offered them. The poisonous mushrooms are the so-called fly agaric, Amanita muscaria, which is reputed to be almost invariably fatal to human beings and is sometimes used as a fly poison, and a reddish-colored species known as Russula emetica, which has a disagreeable peppery taste and if eaten raw will provoke violent vomiting. The reason for the immunity enjoyed by the squirrels is as great a riddle as their apparent preference for these two toxic species.

Lesson From Old Negro

An old negro taught a motorist a real lesson over near Auxvasse the other day, the Review says. The motorist crashed into a rickety wagon being driven by the negro. The man in the car started to speed on without reckoning of the damage he had done. He had gone only a short distance when there was a loud explosion and a tire went flat. The negro crawled from the wreckage of the wagon, and went over to the motorist.

"Boss, you seems t' be in a heap o' trouble. Kin Ah be uv enny help to yer?" The motorist wilted, took a billfold from his pocket and peeled off several bills. Handing them to the aged negro, he said, "Yes, old man, you have helped me; take this money." —Kansas City Star.

Facts Right; Poetry Awful

Robert Frost, outstanding among the serious American poets, wrote a poem about apples while at Amherst, and, in revising it, wished to make sure that he had made no error in his natural history. An agricultural college being nearby, it was suggested that he send the manuscript of his poem to the authorities there, for their possible correction, relates Thomas L. Masson in the Dearborn Independent. They returned it a few days later with the statement that his pomology was quite accurate, but his poetry was awful!

Forced to Bob Hair

After spending the night in the top of a tree to escape the furies of flood and hurricane, Mrs. Paul Weidenbohm of Terrebonne parish, Louisiana, was forced to yield to her pet aversion and have her hair bobbed. The strands had become so entangled in the treetop that her husband had to break most of them to free her.

The United States is using 70,000,000 pounds of artificial silk made from wood each year.

Lots Like Jones

The death of Viscount Cowdray, the British oil magnate and contractor—he built the Pennsylvania railroad's Hudson river tunnels—led a New York oil man to say:

"Lord Cowdry had a humorous way with him. Once, when he was being criticized for his tunnel work by men who should have supported him, he laughed and said:

"'These men are like Jones. Jones, you know, would never stand by and see a friend abused. No sir, he'd join in.'"

Plain Talking

Teacher—What is a plain?

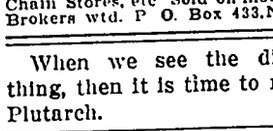
Johnnie—A place where all the hills are flat.

WANTED MINK—Live young females preferred State how many you have and price wanted. LOIS WARTA, BENSON, NEBR.

POCUS COMPOUND. Gall, Bladder and Liver troubles, treatment successfully used for years. Effective, inexpensive. Pocus Compound Co., Box 125, Red Bud, Ill

Kill All Flies! THEY SPREAD DISEASE

Placed anywhere, DAISY FLY KILLER attracts and kills all flies. Neat, clean, ornamental, convenient and cheap. Lasts all season. Made of metal, can't spill or tip over; will not soil or injure anything. Guaranteed.



Insist upon DAISY FLY KILLER from your dealer.

HAROLD SOMERS Brooklyn N Y.

10 to 15% Earned on Syndicate Investments. Mortgage Loans, Apartment Bldgs., Hotels, Chain Stores, etc Sold on monthly payments. Brokers wtd. P O. Box 433, New Orleans, La.

When we see the dishonor of a thing, then it is time to renounce it.—Plutarch.

"What are you going to take to the picnic, Mary?" "Two things are sure—Monarch Cocoa and Teenie Weenie Peanut Butter sandwiches." "Oh, say—let's go together!"

EVERY genuine Monarch package bears the Lion Head, the oldest trademark in the United States covering a complete line of the world's finest food products—Coffee, Tea, Cocoa, Catsup, Pickles, Peanut Butter, Canned Fruits and Vegetables, and other superior table specialties.

REID, MURDOCH & CO.
Established 1853
Chicago Pittsburgh Boston New York Jacksonville Tampa Los Angeles

Monarch is the only nationally advertised brand of QUALITY FOOD PRODUCTS sold exclusively through the men who own and operate their own stores.

MONARCH
Quality for 70 Years

Come to Borrow

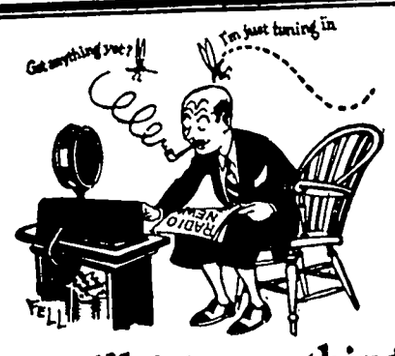
"Do you like your new neighbors next door?"

"Yes, but they won't stay there."

Absolutely

"Yes, I shun publicity."

"That ought to be good for a write-up."—Louisville Courier-Journal.



Pa Buzz will get something soon

FLIT spray clears your home of mosquitoes and flies. It also kills bed bugs, roaches, ants, and their eggs. Fatal to insects but harmless to mankind. Will not stain. Get Flit today.

FLIT

DESTROYS
Flies Mosquitoes Moths
Ants Bed Bugs Roaches

"The yellow can with the black band"

© 1927 STANDARD OIL CO. (N.J.)

D. D. Ross of Garner was in this vicinity on business yesterday.

A baby girl was born to Mr. and Mrs Lester Hartbeck this past week.

FOR SALE—14 inch gang plow, like new Peter Trampel 2tp

Mrs Harlan Triese is assisting at the M. O Barr Cafe She began work Monday.

Rev Grosshuesch, R A. Jorgenson and Wm. Gauger drove to Clear Lake Thursday afternoon to enjoy a swim

Carl Suckow and family, of Garner spent Sunday visiting at the H. L. Suckow home.

Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Day and son Dorance were visiting relatives at Mason City last Thursday afternoon.

Art Kudje and family drove to Britt Sunday for a visit with his parents and other relatives.

The Klemme Camp Fire Girls returned from Clear Lake Monday. They are report having had a most wonderful time at the Koerner cottage.

News of Klemme and Vicinity

Dr. R. W. Specht, Dentist, Garner, Iowa. adv

A. D. Gimer and family and Clarence Johnson and family enjoyed an outing at Clear Lake Sunday.

Mrs. Mark Geeting of San Diego, California, spent last week Wednesday with Mrs. P. M. Griesemer and Mrs. J. Gruetzmacher.

Miss Bonnie Beeler of Mason City and Miss Lillian Beeler of Garner spent Tuesday with Mrs. P. M. Griesmer and Mrs. J. Gruetzmacher.

Mrs Frank Kluckhohn and children and Mrs. Paul Stille and children visited in the country with Mrs. Harvey Stille Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Winters of Marian, Iowa, spent Tuesday night at the C. F. Keraus home. They are cousins of Mrs. Keraus.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Harvey and daughter, Enid, are expected home this week end from their eastern trip

Tuesday morning was the coldest we have had this summer and it came near frosting here that morning. Frost was reported at Emmetsburg that morning.

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Jorgenson and Buster and Mrs. Paul Grange and Dorance drove to Iowa Falls Tuesday to attend the funeral of Mrs. M. O Hocum.

Mr. and Mrs Frank Kluckhohn and children, Kenneth, Franklin and Carmen drove to Garner Sunday afternoon for a visit at the Myron Hukins home. They then drove to the Wm. Hempel farm where they were guests for supper.

Mrs. Chris Johansen of Garner was a caller at the R. A. Jorgenson home Tuesday Clerk of Courts Chris Johansen and wife expect to leave this week end on a vacation trip to Canada.

Mr and Mrs. Eniar Salling drove to Des Moines Saturday afternoon for a visit. Sunday evening they returned home and were accompanied by Mrs. Albert Anderson and Merle and Shirley who came for a visit.

Grandma Schroeder, Mrs. Croner and Dorothy, Mrs. Lena Schroeder and Max Barz from here, Will Barz and Norma of Garner, and Mr and Mrs. Albert Schroeder and Mrs. Johnson of Chicago, all drove to Ames this morning for a viist with Miss Adella Schroeder.

Henry Jost and family have rented the C. W. Wiles residence on Main Street and expect to move in soon. The Lau residence where they now reside has been leased by the Iowa Union Telephone Company for a central office. Mrs W. F. Lau has been secured as telephone operator for the Company She is an experienced operator.

Good work for the Camp Fire Girls or a Boy Scout would be to remove the Flag from a tree near the school house which is hanging there in the weather and with the stars down This was called to our attention this morning by a tourist It is not known how the flag got there, but it should be taken care of at once

Lester Stille was the victim of a painful acident last Thursday noon He was helping thresh and had unloaded a wagon load of grain and 't being noon he was in a hurry. He shut off the engine on the elevator and the grain belt was still traveling when he lifted the elevator to get it out of the way of he wagon when he accidently put his hand into the the cups. His left arm was badly bruised and cut and several fingers were badly cut and bruised.

Mrs. P. M. Wilson and daughter Gladys returned Tuesday morning from Rochester, Minn., where Mrs. Wilson recently underwent an operation. Miss Gladys had been with her mother for the past two weeks. Mrs. Wilson is getting along fine and is now making a rapid recovery.

Live stock shipments here continue heavy and the past week nine car loads were shipped out. Of this number the Shipping Association had one car load of hogs; C. A Larsen two car loads of hogs and two car loads of cattle; and the Linden Ranch shipped four car loads of cattle.

Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Day and Dorance and Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Smith enjoyed a picnic supper at Celar Lake Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Koerner, accompanied by Mrs. Carl Suckow and son, Warren, left early Wednesday morning for Colorado for a visit with the H. J. Stille family. Mr. Koerner will look after business matters also while there.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Gordon, of Holton, Kansas, visited at the R. A. Jorgenson home Wednesday night of this week. They were on their vacation trip to Northern, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan.

Mr and Mrs. Ed. Jacobs and son, Elwyn, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs Wistey of Clear Lake, drove to Decorah, Iowa, Sunday for a visit with relatives and to see the famous ice cave near there.

The Klemme Schools will open for the fall term Monday, September 5th, acording to A D. Gimer, president of the school board. Monday will be registration day only and school takes up Tuesday. All of the teachers are expected to arrive in Klemme for a meeting Saturday before school starts.

R. A Jorgenson and family, accompanied by Mr and Mrs. J Jorgenson of Garner, drove to Wesley Sunday afternoon to see the Grotto which has been recently completed in the cemetery southeast of there The Grotto is small but very beautiful. It was constructed by Father Doberstein, of West Bend, builder of the famous Grotto there.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Patet entertained a lot of company Sunday at their home. Those present were as follows: Mr. and Mrs. Palmer, of Clarion; Mr. and Mrs Geo Fluhrer and Ivy, Mr and Mrs Fred Fluhrer from Charles City; Mr and Mrs. W. C. A Gast, of Garner; Mr. and Mrs V Waldeck of Hayfield, Mr and Mrs J Meyer of Hayfield; Louis Sampson, Leonard Sampson and family and Levi Klotzbach, of Klemme

Monday Mr. Lew Lewis was ably assisted in the celebration of his 82nd birthday by the presence of a number of relatives and friends. A large table, nicely decorated and with a center-piece of a large cake brought from Wisconsin by his sister, had 82 candles burning on it. At the appointed time, and as is customary on such occasions, Mr Lewis blew the candles out and in one breath blew out eighyt of them which is, as far as we know, the world's record At least we proclaim Lew the champion birthday candle blower Those present to help him celebrate were his sister, Mrs. Emma Crane and husband of Beaver Dam, Wisconsin; Miss Snyder, of Beaver Dam; and the following from Klemme. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Lewis, Verner Lewis and family, Benn Coobs and family, Mrs. Asa Gibbs and Miss Anna, and Mrs. Emma Gibbs. All report they had a fine time.

The Court House at Garner is undergoing some needed repairs. The plastering in the upstairs rooms is in bad shape and some is being repaired. The bricks on the outside walls will also be repointed and other needed repairs made.

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Keraus, C. G. Waterman and family, and W. C. Keraus and family joined relatives from Iowa Falls and Geneva and had a picnic at the State Park at Clear Lake Sundy.

Office:— Masonic Bldg. GARNER, IOWA.

Phones:— Office, 149-J. Res., 149-L.

Dr. E. H. Phillips
OSTEOPATHIC PHYSICIAN

Physiotherapy, including Osteopathic treatment, diathermy, surgical diathermy, radiant heat, high frequency, chlorine gas and auto-condensation.

Coal

We have filled our bins with all kinds of Coal. We can supply you with Threshing Coal at reasonable prices. Now is the time to put in your supply of Furnace Coal for the winter. High grade coal for ranges, too.

Twine

We still have some Twine on hand at the low price for cash of, per pound—

13½c

FEED

We have plenty of Oil Meal and Tankage on hand. Our grinder works every day if you want oyur own feed ground here.

Klemme Co-Operative Grain Co.

BAYSIDE
AMUSEMENT PARK
—Clear Lake, Iowa—
— PROGRAM —

SUNDAY, AUGUST 14th

Great Speed Launch Races in front of Park about four P. M. About eight boats, fast and exciting races for big cash prizes. Sandon's Negro Tigers of Mankato vs. Mason City O-P team at boll park at three P. M. Woden 55 piece band, free movies and outdoor attractions. Entertainment, fun and thrills.

... DANCES ...

At Bayside on Wednesday and Friday Nights. At White Pier on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday nights.

ROLLER SKATING at Bayside Daily.

AT BAYSIDE——Best bathing beach on Lake, bath house, toboggan slide, roller coaster, little train, new fun house, merry-go-round, ferris wheel, fortune teller, concessions, free picnic grounds and tables, children's playgrounds, boats, fishing.

FUN FOR ALL ALL FOR FUN

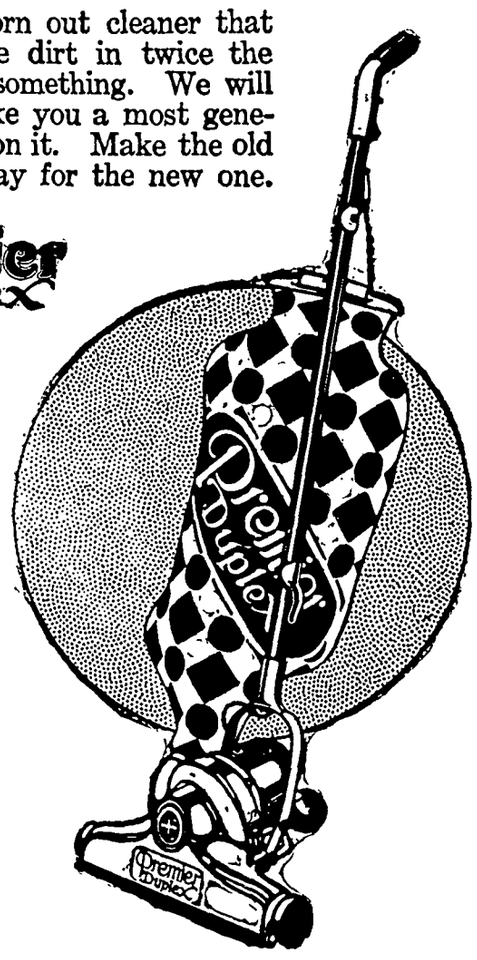
— Policed Parking Grounds For Cars 15c —

LIBERAL ALLOWANCE
on your old cleaner
toward a new PREMIER DUPLEX

YOUR old worn out cleaner that gets half the dirt in twice the time, is worth something. We will take it and make you a most generous allowance on it. Make the old one help you pay for the new one.

Premier Duplex

This is the famous double action vacuum cleaner—the one that cleans by powerful suction and a motor driven brush. And it needs no oiling, for both motor and brush turn on ball bearings. It has many features that commend it to housewives.



Only

$5.00 down

The rest can be paid in easy payments over a year's time.

Central States Electric Co.

August 14 - 19
NORTH IOWA FAIR
Mason City, Iowa
Agricultural Industrial Entertaining
RACES
AUTO HARNESS RUNNING

Aug. 19-Derby Day-Aug. 19

AUTOS THAT PASS IN HTE AIR

CIRCUS ACTS

REVUE BALLET

5 NIGHTS

SPECTACULAR FIREWORKS PRODUCTION

"Our Nations Glory"

August 14 - 19

5 NIGHTS

Threshing Coal

Now is a good time to lay in your supply of Coal for Threshing.

We have our coal bins filled with a high grade of coal especially suited for your needs at threshing time—and the price is right on our coal.

We always carry a complete lne of all kinds of coal. Right now we are also featuring high grade coal for kitchen ranges.

A full line of all kinds of feed on hand.

North Iowa Grain Co.

2800 Years Ago Aesop Said:

"Beware of the man who offers Diamonds for the price of Garnets!"—And today:-

Some Dealers Offer Fabulous Prices for Used Cars

That boy Aesop knew his Diamonds. If he had been an Automobile Dealer, he should have handled a car that contained all the value that the price suggested, and he should have offered only what a Used Car was worth.

He would have been a safe man to trade your car in with, because, though you may have received a smaller trade-in allowance, you would have been certain of receiving a car that contained full value for every dollar invested.

Take a Tip From Aesop:—Beware of the man who offers you a fabulous price for your car. It simply means that his new car is priced so high that he can afford to pay you More Than Your Car is Worth.

TODAY EASOP WOULD SAY:-

"It Will Pay You To Wait For The New Ford"

Garner Auto Company

Firestone Tires
Mobile Oils

Phone 92, Garner
Phone 77, KLEMME, IOWA.

THE KLEMME TIMES

...th Year—Number 1. KLEMME, IOWA, THURSDAY, AUGUST 18, 1927.

...N SHEETS BUYS ...C. FAIR GROUNDS

...SACTION WILL MAKE NO ...ANGE IN MANAGEMENT

...r Fair Will Be Held This Year September 13-14-15-16

...n Sheets has purchased the ...ock County Fair Grounds from ...Wheeler, manager of the Wheel-...mber Company at Fort Dodge, ...eal being closed last week. It ...e remembered that the Wheel-...mber Company held a mort-...on the property.

...s will not make any change in ...anagement or the holding of ...ir The fair will be held this ...s planned, on September 13-14 ... The deal makes it more ...ble that the fairs will contin-...Britt News-Tribune.

...'S SOME GOOD WAYS OF ...CLEANING SILVERWARE

...Should Be Kept Away From All Kinds Of Gases

...tte flannel cases for silver are ...tionalable because sulfur from ...leaching process may remain on ...annel and cause silver to tar-...Matches kept near silver or ...escaping from coal also cause ...h. Rubber bands should not ...t around bundles of silver be-...they also discolor it. Egg ...also form easily on silver. ...iting and jeweler's rouge form ...sis of most silver polish and ...made cleaners may bee made ...them Care should be taken to ...e best grades of these materi-...Cheaper grades are apt to ...n. A paste made of whiting, ...nd a little jeweler's rouge ...a very good polish. The lard ...it from scratching. Very soft ...cloths should be used in pol-...silver. A small soft brush, ...as a tooth brush, may be used ...move the cleaner from the de-...

...he silver is in a very bad con-..., home economics experts have ...that the electrolytic method is ...satisfactory with this method, ...ht tin pan is used to heat the ... One teaspoon of washing ...plus one teaspoon of salt is dis-...in just enough woter to cover ...ver in the pan. Place a piece ...y, clean zinc in the bottom of ...n and then the pieces of silver ...t they just touch each other ...e piece of zinc. (Instead of ...the tin pan and zinc, an old ...um pan may be used.) Let ...ter boil. A chemical reaction ...es the dirt

...RVICES AT THE KLEMME ...ORMED CHURCH SUNDAY

...re will be no services at the ...e Reformed Church Sunday, ...r. Grosshuech will speak at a ...n Feast at Hamburg, Minn., ...t date.

...ouncement of the services for ...llowing Sunday will appear in ...mes next week.

OBITUARY OF MRS. M. O. HOCUM OF IOWA FALLS

Former Klemme Woman Buried At Iowa Falls Last Tuesday

(Hardin County Citizen)

Mrs M O Hocum passed away Sunday evening at Ellsworth hospital, where she underwent an operation for peritonitis with little hope of recovery. She had been poorly for some time, but fatal symptoms did not develop until just before her death Services were held at the Congregational church Tuesday afternoon and were in charge of Rev C E Cushman The Eastern Star assisted in the service Burial was made in Union cemetery.

Effie May Wylie, the daughter of John and Ellen Wylie, was born at Gilman, Iowa, July 23, 1883 After some years of residence in Gilman she moved with her family to Grinnell, where the advantages of a higher education were possible Here Miss Wylie attended college With her talent for music she, at this time, rendered valuable service to both the college and the church

In 1910 she was married to M. O Hocum, also of Grinell. To this union two daughters, Avis and Helen, were born. The family moved to Iowa Falls in 1922 Mrs. Hocum was consistently interested in the best things of life. She was a true mother and a kind neighbor. For some years her health had been impaired so as to prevent her taking an active part in many activities in which she by nature had an interest. Few, however, realized the seriousness of her condition and her death on Sunday evening came as a great shock to all who knew her.

In her immediate family, Mrs. Hocum is survived by her husband and two daughters, Avis aged 13, and Helen, aged 8 She also leaves three brothers, James and William of Gilman, Ia., and Roy of Colorado Springs.

WOODMEN INVITED TO BAYSIDE NEXT SUNDAY

Woodman Ball Team Will Play The Mason City O-P Team

The Bayside Amusement Park at Clear Lake, Iowa, will have the biggest, entertaining program of the entire season next Sunday, August 21st A Parachute drop from an aeroplane around 2000 to 3000 feet in the air will be made by William Harris, a colored man, shortly after dinner next Sunday. Mr. Harris is the only colored man in the world who makes a parachute drop. The plan is to have him land in the ball park. A motorcycle polo game will be staged in the ball park ot 1.30 P. M. The Wisconsin Reds will battle the Iowa Whites This dangerous game will no doubt afford plenty of thrills, excitement and accidents Gates at the ball park will open at one o'clock. Next Sunday the Modern Woodmen of America ball team at Waterloo will play the Mason City O-P team on the Bayside diamond at three o'clock. A great game is expected. All Woodmen are especially invited to ocme The wonderful Manchester Girls Band will play popular concerts at Bayside Sunday afternoon and evening This noted girls band is one of the finest in the country and always draws a big crowd at Bayside Park.

Klemme Reformed Bible School

1st Row, bottom, left to right:—Elmira Greimann, Leo Brinkman, Alvin Bachman, Raymond Keeper, Arlene Kraus, Ada Wille, Max Barz, Paul Thiemann, Harold Kethenbeutal, Milvern Barz.

Second row:—Helen Albers, Ronald Barz, Franklin Buseman, Henry Smid, Stella Thieman, Dale Schlei, Gerald Barz, Francis Buseman.

Third row:—Marie Albers, Hilda Keeper, Mitchell Bock, Johanna Albers, Gladys Kothenbeutal, Ethel Barz, August Josten, Esther Greimann, Jennie Albers, Mildred Lemke.

Top row:—C. Grosshuesch, Raymond Barz, Werner Priebe, Edwin Thiemann, Carrie Swalve, Viola Thiemann, Emma Kothenbeutal, Emma Goll, Norma Wille, Miss Edith Haupt, Assistant Teacher.

FIND OIL NEAR GRIGGS FARM IN NORTH DAKOTA

High Grade Gasoline Well Found At Steele, North Dakota

A farmer near Steele, North Dakota was drilling a well on his place and had gone to depth where it was thought water would be plentiful Taking a cup to taste the new found water supply the farmer was amazed at its disagreeable taste and on further examination thought it smelled some what like oil He sent a sample to the state chemist for analysis whose report came back that the sample was practically pure gasoline and tested 63.

This gasoline well is located not far from Jay Griggs land which is also near Steele. Mr. Griggs was out there about a week ago on business and heard of the oil find. He investigated and found the rumors were true, saw the well and brought home a sample.

The sample looks like ordinary gasoline except that a fine, light oil floats on the surface and in the six or seven inches he had in a bottle there was about an inch of pure parafine on the bottom.

The farmer finds a ready sale for his product which works as good as any gasoline in cars. He pumps the liquid into a tank and dips it out with a bucket to separate the parafine, much in the way as one would skim cream off of milk.

Mr Griggs reports that a large concern has drilled a well near the place but they are keeping their activities a secret.

Who knows but what our friend Jay Griggs may become the owner of a number of oil wells? Mr. Griggs is watching developements with interest.

HANCOCK COUNTY REAL ESTATE TRANSFERS

A Weekly Review Of Sales And Trades In Property

E J Murtagh wife to J. W. Sullivan et al. W. D. date 3-31-12, $20,000 00. Und. ½ int. of all of 32-96-26.

Joe Wheeler wife to John Sheets. W. D, date 8-3-27, $8,200.00. E½ SE¼ of NE¼ 32-96-25.

Edward Hildman wife to Ihno A. Gerdes and Ex. St Bk. Wesley. Q. C D., date 7-26-27, $1.00, N½ NE ¼ 24-96-27, Kossuth Co. and W½ of NW¼ 19-96-26 Hancock County.

Paul Anderson wife to M. Iverson. W D, date . . $1 00. Und. ½ int in lots 10-12-11 block 14 Crystal Lake

First National Bank, Kanawha, Adm to Agnes L. Johnson Admrs Deed date 7-12-27, $3,500.00, 100' x142' in SW cor of SW¼ 22-94-25.

J C. Jessen to Calterin Jessen, W D., date 8-8-27, $1.00, NWfr¼ 4-97-23 ex 10 a.

E D. Phipps wife to J. J. Gaffney et al. W. D., date 8-11-27, $1.00. SWfr¼ 31-97-25.

Fred W Walkner wife to J. J. Gaffney et al. Q. C. D., date 4-1-27. $1 00, SWfr¼ 31-97-26.

AMES OFFERS FARMERS WHEAT SEED FOR ONE ACRE

Farmers Can Procure Famous Seed For Trial Now

Bushel and a half lots of Iobred and Ioturk, two rather new winter wheat varieties, are being offered farmers for trial this year, according to Joe L. Robinson, secretary of the Iowa Agricultural Experiment Association, Ames. This is enough seed for one acre. The cost for the seed, which includes the bags and handling charge, is $2.75.

Iobred has been distributed for several years in various parts of the state and has been giving satisfactory results. The Ioberd has been compared with other varieties of winter wheat in 83 places in the state and has averaged 1.63 bushels per acre more than the varieties with which it was compared. Iobred is very winter hardy.

The head of the Iobred wheat is a distinctly bronze color. A field of it is easily distinguished at some distance The kernel is short and plump in shape, resembling spring wheat

The Ioturk is a newer wheat and has not been distributed over the state. This is the first time it has been offered for general distribution by the experiment station. Ioturk is a selection from Turkey Red. It cannot be easily distinguished from Turkey Red by appearance.

Ioturk has yielded more bushels of grain per acre than any other winter wheat at the experiment station It has been coming thru the winters satisfactorily, but has not passed any severe winters to give it a thoro test, as has been true with Iobred.

If more than bushel and a half lots of these varieties are wanted, the names of growers with seed supplies may be secured from Mr. Robinson.

ERECTION OF CLARK STATUE RECALLS DASH TO OREGON

Is An Interesting Feature In This Issue Of The Times

Some thirty years ago the whole United States awaited with breathless anxiety news from an American battleship which was plowing its lonely way through the Southern seas. And when the word of its safe arrival off the coast of Florida was flashed over the wires there was nation-wide rejoicing.

A short time ago a little town up in the hills of Vermont honored the memory of one of the two great naval heroes that state had given to the country, and when the statue of Admiral Charles E. Clark was unveiled it recalled the stirring naval history of the Spanish-American war and the record breaking voyage which the battleship Oregon made around Cape Horn. That feat is one of the proudest traditions in American history and it's retold in an illustrated feature article, "Vermont Honors Her Naval Hero," by Elmo Scott Watson in this issue of The Times.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR MRS. IDA STEARNES HELD SUN.

Died At Cherokee Hospital; Buried In Belmond Cemetery

Mrs. Ida Stearnes, mother of Mr. Joe Stearnes who resides east of Klemme and William Stearnes, of Belmond, died at a Cherokee hospital and was buried at Belmond Sunday afternoon.

Mrs Ida Stearnes, nee Mundson. was born in Ohio on Apirl 18, 1855 and died at Cherokee, Iowa, Aug 11, 1927, at the age of 72 years.

She was the wife of Wm. Stearnes who died seven years ago. For a number of years they lived on a farm near Rowan and then later retired and moved to Belmond to live.

Mr Wellemeyer drove to Cherokee Friday morning to get the remains and bring her to Klemme. A short funeral service was conducted at Wellemeyer's Sunday at 1:00 p. m. by Rev. Gauger and the body was then taken to Belmond where funeral services were held at the Congregational church by Rev. Timbach and interment made in the Belmond cemetery.

She leaves two gons, Joe and Wm and a daughter at Belmond.

BALL GAME WITH GOODELL ON LOCAL DIAMOND SUNDAY

Independents Promise An Interesting Game With Neighbors

The Klemme Independents will play Goodell here Sunday on the local diamond

The last game played with Goodell on the Belmond diamond went twelve innings and the locals lost by a 5-2 score. Fans says it was one of the best games played at Belmond this year. Those who like a good, clean ball game, will no doubt get their money's worth here Sunday.

A good crowd was on hand Sunday to see Belmond play here but were disappointed when some of the visitors failed to show up and the game was called off

METHODIST CHURCH NOTES

A. W. Gauger, Pastor

Good attendance marked both morning services last Sunday. This is especially commendable since we are in a very busy season of the year This being so, we need these Sunday services to give us proper poise or balance for the duties of the rest of the week

We are planning to make the services of the coming Sunday as helpful as possible This is so, not only of the preaching service, but of the Sunday school and the Epworth League as well. All in turn have good things in store for those who may attend.

At the morning services of both Klemme and Liberty the election of a delegate and a reserve to the coming Laymen's Electoral conference held in connection with the Annual Conference, will be held. All members twenty one years and over have a vote at this election.

A Baptismal Service and for the Reception of members either on confession of faith or by transfer, is planned for the near future. The definite time will be announced later. Those interested will kindly bear this in mind.

NEBRASKA CROPS ARE GOOD THIS YEAR

BUMPER CORN CROP IN THAT STATE THIS YEAR

Looks Like Iowa Will Lose The Old Crown This Year

Ye Editor returned Sunday evening from a trip to Lincoln, Nebraska taking different routes going and returning in order to get a line up on crop conditions.

We hate to admit it, but Nebraska has Iowa licked to a frazzle this year on corn. Iowa will have to take a back seat this year and pass the crown to Nebraska.

The tall corn grows in Nebraska this year and they have the best prospects for the biggest bumper corn crop there in the history of the state. Corn stands tall, the stand is excellent, the fields look strong and healthy and large ears droop from every stock. We stopped to pick an ear and was surprised the way it was filled out and the size of the ears at this time.

Not only is Nebraska lucky in having a fine looking prospect for a big corn yield, but their small grain is also better than normal this year and in the wheat section bumper crops are reported, the wheat going around 25 bushels and more to the acre.

Threshing is about done and in many places much fall plowing has been done also.

Around Fort Dodge, Iowa, we observed and calculated that only ten per cent of the threshing had been done We did not learn why they were delayed, but it appeared they had more rain there. The corn in that section looked about the same as here, where in former years from Fort Dodge on west it is generally much advanced. In Southwestern Iowa the corn also looks good.

Southwest of Omaha they were visited by a cloud burst the day before we arrived It rained five inches in less than two hours and in his district many fields were flooded out, the corn laying flat on the ground and in other places in this same aera the corn was hailed out. This storm district extended more than thirty miles and west as far as Fremont, Nebraska.

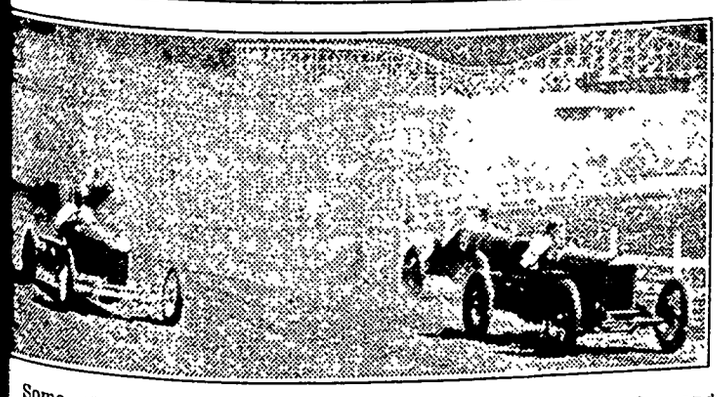
Returning home we drove north from Lincoln to Sioux City and then east to Fort Dodge. North of Lincoln and to Sioux City we found the corn just as big and prospects just as good as further south. Western Iowa this year will also come in for a big corn crop.

We have been making these annual trips for the past ten years but this is the first year we have thought Nebraska had the best on Iowa for corn. Nebraska farmers are lucky, and this is really the first good crop they have had since the war and they can stand a little prosperity.

However, Iowa is not suffering. Not by a long ways! We have fine crops in Iowa and old Hancock county looks about as good as any of them.

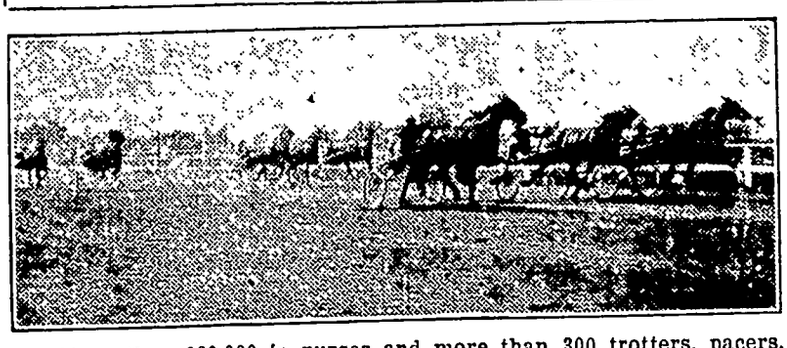
Next week we hope to give our readers some further dope on the crops in southern Iowa and Missouri as we are making a trip there this week end A few weeks ago we reported Iowa was ahead of Missouri on tall corn We will find out if we still hold the lead

NOTED DRIVERS COMING



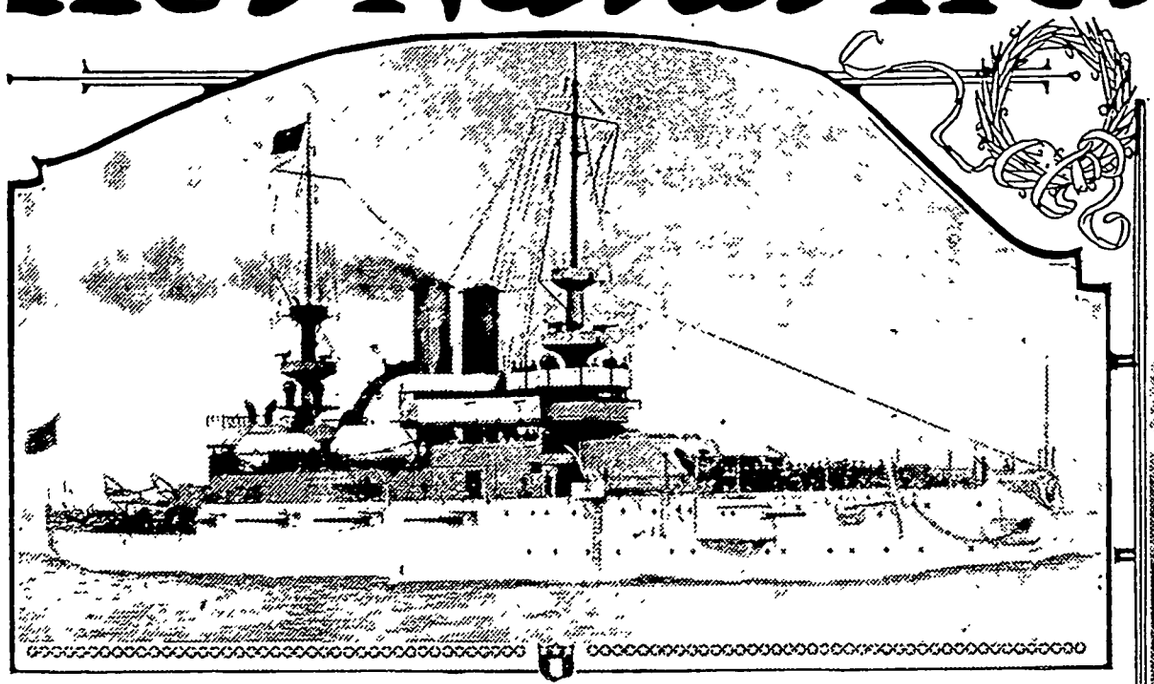
Some of the most famous auto race drivers in America and several new stars recently arrived in the United States from foreign ...cks have entered for the big two day auto race classics which ...ve been scheduled for the Iowa State Fair at Des Moines, on August ... and September 2. Thousands of dollars in purses and a schedule ...events ranging from the 25 miles Grand Sweepstakes to unusual ...dicap races promise to make these one of the most thrilling feat... of Iowa's great annual exposition.

YEAR'S BIGGEST RACING PROGRAM

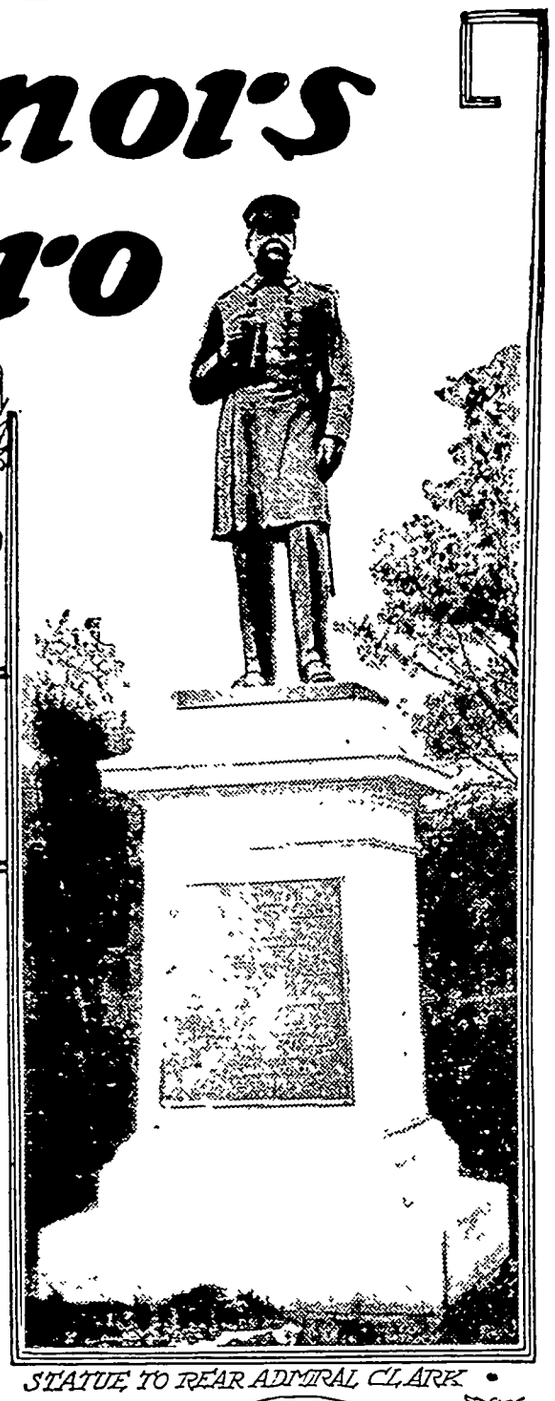


More than $20,000 in purses and more than 300 trotters, pacers, and running horses from stables throughout the midwest and southwest will feature the five day harness and running race program which headlines the entertainment at the Iowa State Fair, August 24 to September 2. The above scene shows one of the close finishes at the fair last summer. The opening Saturday of the fair, August 27, has been designated as Derby Day and will be devoted exclusively to running races.

Vermont Honors Her Naval Hero

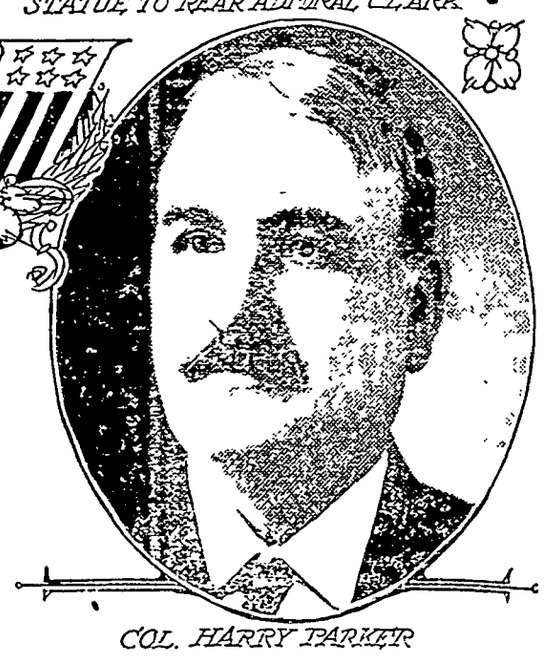


BATTLESHIP OREGON



STATUE TO REAR ADMIRAL CLARK

REAR ADMIRAL C.E. CLARK



COL. HARRY PARKER

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

OF ALL the New England states, which from the earliest days of American history have sent out her bravest and best to "go down to the sea in ships," Vermont is the only one which does not have a single mile of seacoast. Yet the Green Mountain state gave to the nation two great naval heroes and both did the deeds which gave them enduring fame at a time when the American navy was just beginning to make the United States a world power. The time was the Spanish-American war and the two men were Admiral George Dewey, the hero of Manila bay, and Rear Admiral Charles Edgar Clark, commander of the Oregon in her historic dash around Cape Horn.

Recently the little town of Bradford, Vt., where one of these naval heroes was born, honored the memory of Charles Edgar Clark by erecting in its memorial park a bronze statue of the man who helped make it famous. Several years ago Admiral Clark attended the dedication of Bradford's memorial park as a patriotic shrine for the community, little realizing that a short time after his death his own image in bronze was to be the dominant figure in it. And to a country publisher, Col. Harry E. Parker, editor of the newspaper, United Opinion, at Bradford, belongs the credit for both the memorial park and the Clark statue. It was his initiative which brought into being the park, a little triangle of grass and flowers and trees facing the picturesque Bradford town square, and his devotion to the ideal that his town should honor the men who had brought honor to it which resulted in the erection of the statue at the cost of an unlimited amount of work on his part, as head of the Bradford Memorial association, and the outlay of a considerable sum from his own personal funds.

But when his work was done thousands of people came to Bradford for the dedication ceremonies. Among them were Curtis D. Wilbur, secretary of the navy; Gov. Franklin S. Billings of Vermont; Mrs. Louisa Clark, widow of the gallant commander of the Oregon, Mrs. C. F. Hughes, his daughter, wife of Admiral C. F. Hughes, commander in chief of the United States navy, and many other notables. When they unveiled the monument there stood revealed the bronze figure of the navy hero, standing just as he so often stood on the bridge of the historic Oregon, and on the native Vermont stone base of the monument was a bronze tablet bearing the following inscription: "Rear Admiral Charles Edgar Clark, U. S. N. Born Bradford, Vermont, Aug. 10, 1843. Died Long Beach, California, Oct. 1, 1922—Entered Annapolis Naval Academy Sept. 29, 1860. With Farragut Battle Mobile Bay, Aug. 5, 1904. Race of U. S. S. Oregon from California to Florida Mar. 18-May 26, 1898. Battle of Santiago, Cuba, July 3, 1898."

This simple inscription tells only a small part of the life story of Charles Edward Clark, the scion of an old New England family, born in the same town, among the hills of Vermont where his great-grandfather, emigrating from Roxbury, Mass., early in the Nineteenth century, had settled and where both his father and grandfather were born. Clark once expressed his love for his native state in these words, "From my earliest childhood I never wearied of watching the ever-changing aspect of the different mountains and I felt the general devotion to them all, not uncommon perhaps, to boys brought up among the hills; but Mount Lafayette was the special object of my admiration, and one of my first extravagances was the purchase of a small telescope to bring this wonderful mountain nearer." Strange that this boy from the hills should answer the call of the sea! But when he did, he carried with him his love for them and for their heroic traditions. He once confessed that, when confronted with the most difficult problem of his whole career, he gained inspiration for his decision from the history of the gallant Vermonters who fought in the Revolution and the Civil war and his determination to hazard meeting the entire Spanish fleet single-handed at the time of the dash of the Oregon half-way around the world was in part the result of their heroic example.

Educated in the district schools of Bradford and the Bradford academy, Clark entered Annapolis at the age of seventeen and his twentieth birthday found him serving with the West Gulf blockading squadron. A year later he was following Farragut through the hell of gunfire which swept that commander's fleet when it steamed past the Confederate forts in Mobile bay. Although the Spanish-American war gave Clark his chance for world-wide fame, his superiors in the Navy department had known for a long time what sort of stuff was in him. In 1868 he was shipwrecked off the coast of British Columbia when the Suwanee founded and, through the loss of his ranking officers, he found himself in command of the 33 survivors. He organized them into a defensive party to hold off 400 hostile Indians and did it until help arrived.

In 1892 occurred another incident which showed the heroic strain in him. This was the explosion and fire in the magazine of the Mare Island navy yard in which 14 persons were killed. Clark, then a commander, was one of the first to arrive on the scene. Streams of water were being poured upon the smoking ruins of the brick filling house, and smoke was rising from the roof of No. 1 shell house in which all the small arm ammunition, fuses and boxes of detonators were stowed. Clark immediately ordered another hose connected up and, carrying the nozzle himself, entered the building and put out the fire that had almost reached the wooden ammunition containers. Later it was found that there was enough powder there to have caused an explosion which would have doubled the casualty list, had the fire reached it, and the first to have been sent to death would have been Clark.

Step by step Clark had risen from lieutenant in 1867 to captain in 1896 and his career had been a varied one. He had served on Pacific, West Indian and Asiatic stations, he had been stationed at several navy yards, he had been an instructor at Annapolis and he had spent three years in surveying the northern Pacific coast and four years in lighthouse inspection. Outstanding in his record had been the qualities of trustworthiness and resourcefulness. One of the questions contained in the fitness reports on record in the Navy department is this one, "Would you as commander of a ship or squadron consider ..... a fit officer to be intrusted with hazardous and important duty?" In the fitness report on Clark, made in 1893, the replies made by his fellow officers was without an exception in the affirmative.

So it was something more than chance that he was selected to command the battleship Oregon in March, 1898, when her captain was disabled for service by illness, and to bring her on the 14,000-mile run from San Francisco to the vicinity of Cuba where the first rumblings of war between Spain and the United States had already been heard. On March 16 the Oregon set out on the voyage that was destined to become the longest emergency run undertaken up to that time by a modern battleship. Clark had had just 48 hours in which to make his preparations for the trip after taking command of the ship and when he had started he was strictly "on his own." For there was no radio in 1898 by which he could keep in constant touch with his superior officers, and in case the formal declaration of war took place while he was still en route it meant the sealing of all ports in which the Oregon might be repaired in case of emergency.

When he arrived at Rio Janeiro on April 30 he was told that war with Spain had been declared and that the whereabouts of the Spanish fleet under Admiral Cervera, which had left the Cape Verde islands, was unknown. There the Navy department placed upon him the responsibility of deciding whether the Oregon should remain safely at Rio Janeiro or proceed to Key West, and by doing so risk meeting the Spanish fleet in a battle in which the Oregon would be hopelessly outnumbered. Clark was not long in making his decision. He immediately started north! Ever since he had left San Francisco the prayers of the nation had followed the Oregon as she steamed forth upon her lonely voyage and when he left Rio Janeiro the national anxiety was increased. Then on May 24 there was nation-wide rejoicing when the word was flashed that the Oregon had arrived safely at Jupiter inlet in Florida. Here he was compelled to make another momentous decision. In order to join Admiral Sampson's fleet he would have to over-ride the opinion of his chief engineer who advised him to go to Norfolk navy yard to have the Oregon overhauled. The Navy department had authorized this action, but again Clark made the decision in favor of getting to the scene of action as quickly as possible, despite the danger involved. Twice he had been authorized and almost invited to step aside for the moment from the hazards of war and twice he declined to do so and risked his reputation in doing so. Had either decision resulted disastrously it is probable that the nation would have been as quick to damn him as it was to acclaim him when the event turned out as it did.

On May 26 the Oregon arrived at Key West. Clark had covered the 14,000 miles of water in 67 days, the longest and quickest trip of any battleship then afloat and still a world's record. Today a battleship could go from California to Florida through the Panama canal in 20 days. Despite the strain that had been put upon the Oregon's machinery by the killing pace, she arrived at Key West fit for immediate service and a few days later joined Sampson's fleet. The nation had only a few weeks to see the result of the efficiency of the Oregon in both the care of the ship itself and the training of her crew.

In the great naval battle of Santiago on Sunday morning, July 3, the Oregon played a leading part. As the Spanish vessels attempted to flee and pass the American battle line, it was the Oregon, following closely behind Commodore Schley's Brooklyn, which developed the wonderful burst of speed in excess of that called for in her contract which brought her alongside the Spanish ship Viscaya until that vessel, riddled by the gunfire of the two American ships gave up the fight. Then the Oregon joined in the chase of the Cristobal Colon which was fleeing westward, far ahead of the pursuing American ships. At 1:15 o'clock in the afternoon a 13-inch shell from the forward turret of the Oregon, on which Clark had stood during the entire engagement, crashed into the Colon. Fifteen minutes later the Spaniard made for the shore as evidence of his defeat. The battle was over. It had lasted exactly four hours.

Later in the war the Oregon steamed from New York to Manila where she was on duty during American operations in the Philippines. Clark was advanced six numbers in rank for his distinguished service during the war, and at the age of fifty-nine he was promoted to rear admiral. He was retired from active service in 1905 on his sixty-second birthday and until his death in 1922 was carried as a rear admiral on the retired list of the United States navy.

The Oregon also went into honorable retirement after her notable career. One of the high spots in her last days of service as a part of the reserve fleet of the Pacific squadron occurred in 1915 when she led the International Naval pageant staged at the time of the opening of the Panama canal. In memory of her famous trip from the Pacific to Cuban waters in 1898 she was given the distinction of being the first battleship to pass through the canal. On board at the time were high government officials and some of the men who served on board her in 1898, who had been allowed to re-enlist for this historic occasion. After the pageant the Oregon proceeded to California. She lay at anchor in San Francisco bay where she was visited by thousands of visitors to the Panama-Pacific exposition.

During her last years she was used as a training ship for young sailors. In 1918 she came back again to San Francisco, where she had been built in 1890, and there the valedictory of her active service was pronounced in the following press dispatch:

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., May 17.—"Good-by, dear old Oregon," was the sentiment voiced by hundreds of men, women and children during the last week of the Victory Liberty Loan campaign, when they visited the famous old battleship for the last time as she lay at anchor in San Francisco bay. Within a few weeks the grim fighter of nearly a quarter century ago will take her place with the Constitution in the hearts of the American people; the Oregon will go out of commission and become a memory.

"Red Tape" Hampering Business in Poland

Like most governments of countries in economic difficulties, the Polish government has tried to improve matters by a network of regulations and prohibitions. Goods can still only be imported with a license and until lately it was very hard to send money out of the country. Such regulations, if applied at all by a not too well co-ordinated or experienced administration, must apparently affect the small as well as the great.

When the London Daily News correspondent was sent a pipe as a birthday present, which had probably cost $1 or so, to receive it he had first to trudge off to the ministry of trade and industry for a special import license. One lady wanted to send 25 cents in currency to cover postage of a parcel, to a friend in England. She asked a post office official how to do this and he is said to have replied, gravely and politely: "First, madame, you must have the permission of the minister of finance."

Progress Being Made in War on Bacteria

Disease-causing bacteria have many devices to perpetuate their kind in an adverse world. Bacteriologists of the Hooper Foundation for Medical Research, University of California, have shown that tetanus spores may resist the temperature of boiling water for ninety minutes, botulinus in vegetable juices for five and one-half hours and those of a closely related but harmless species, of eight and one-half hours. Other workers have proved that typhoid and other organisms may remain alive for years at refrigerator or lower temperatures. This constitutes a factor of great danger for man and animals which it is the function of scientific research to obviate, says Dr. George E. Coleman of the Hooper foundation. "The brilliant success," he states, "that has been attained already in which the experimental use of mice and guinea pigs has played a great part is constantly being proclaimed by statistical evidence of fewer botulinus poisonings and typhoid outbreaks as well as by increased protection from many of our other microscopic foes."

Still Find War Victims

That an average of 30 bodies a week are found in France and Belgium is the report of an official of the imperial war grave commission. The number is decreasing, as many as 100 being recovered in a week last year.

The finds are made by farmers redeeming land, by builders restoring devastated areas and by others searching for old metal in battlefields. A reward of 10 francs is offered by the British, the French and the Belgian governments, and paid according to the nationality of the body found.

Not Product of Panama

Panama hats are not made in Panama, as popularly supposed. They are manufactured almost exclusively in Ecuador and Peru. The misnomer arose from the fact that such hats were introduced to the world through the Isthmus of Panama.—Pathfinder Magazine.

An unwelcome guest is one of the best things going.

YOUNG WOMEN MAY KEEP WEL

By Taking Lydia E. Pinkham Vegetable Compound Here is Proof

St. Paul, Minn.—"Here is a l advice I would like to have you pu the papers," M Jack Lorberter 704 Dellwood Pl wrote to the Ly E. Pinkham M cine Company young women w to keep their hea and strength for next thirty years their lives, it is b to start in right n and take Lydia Pinkham's Ve table Compound. I have tried Compound myself and received fine sults from its use." In describing condition before taking the Compou she writes, "I was afraid in my o house in broad daylight, I used lock the doors and pull down shades so that nobody could see m One day a booklet advertising Vegetable Compound was left on porch and she read it through. In doing, she found a letter from a wom whose condition was similar to own. "I bought Lydia E Pinkha Vegetable Compound," Mrs. Lorber continued, "and have had fine resul My condition made me a burden to husband. Now I ask him, "How housekeeping?" and he says, "It is j like being in Heaven'" Are you the Sunlit Road to Better Health?

Minnesota Modern Farm Residence W large barn and 67 acres adjoining small to price, $8,000, being about cost of impro ments; also 110 acres pasture and hay la $40, and 160 acres partly improved at Owner old and resident of California, anxi to sell We have other desirable impro farms for sale. TRI-COUNTY INVESTME COMPANY, Appleton, Minnesota.

INVEST A THOUSAND AND REAP T Foxes can do it. H WRIGHT, Ames, Io Professor of Fox Husbandry

POCUS COMPOUND. Gall Bladder and Li troubles; treatment successfully used years. Effective, inexpensive. POCUS CO POUND COMPANY, Box 1-7 Red Bud,

HOTEL ELLIOT

219 Fourth Street - Des Moines, Io

A Pleasant, Home-like Hotel

Rates: $1.25 to $2.00. Centrally Loca

Stomach Ache? Do This

When stomach or bowel disorder causes pains or nausea, a little Chamberlain's Colic Remedy in water usually gives quick relief. Get this reliable remedy from your druggist today. Keep it handy. For trial size, send 4 cents to Chamberlain Medicine Company, 713 Sixth Avenue, Des Moines, Iowa.

CHAMBERLAIN'S GUARANTEED REMEDY FOR COLIC AND DIARRHEA

THE FIRST AID IN STOMACH ACHE

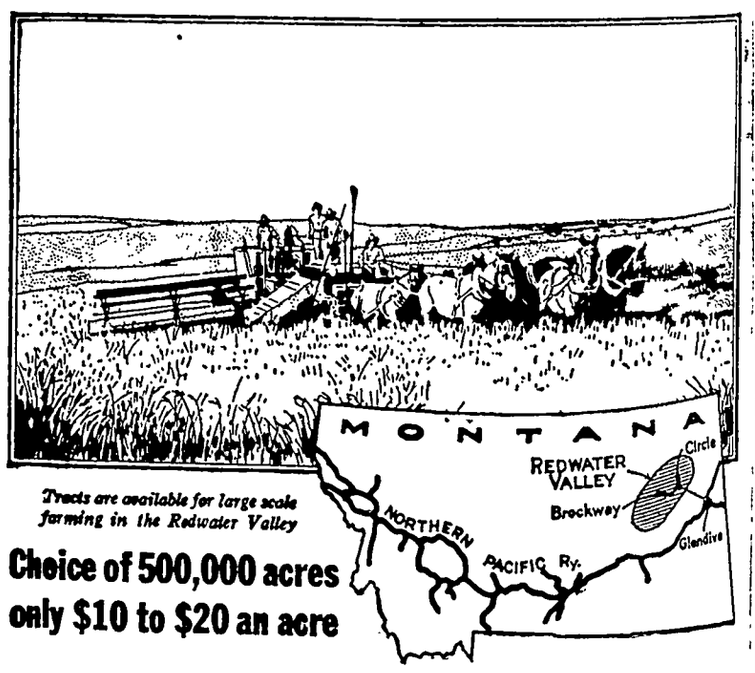
Callouses

Quick, safe, sure relief from painful callouses on the feet. At all drug and shoe stores

Dr Scholl's Zino-pads

Put one on—the pain is gone

MONTANA'S RICH REDWATER VALLEY OPENED BY NEW RAIL LINE



Choice of 500,000 acres only $10 to $20 an acre

RAPID development of the great farming country in the Redwater Valley of Southeastern Montana is seen in the opening of 1,000,000 acres by a new branch line of the Northern Pacific Railway running 63 miles from Glendive.

Here the Northern Pacific will sell direct to farmers a half million acres, obtained from the U. S. Government, at prices ranging from only $10 to $20 an acre, with 20 years to pay. Taxes are extremely low—only 10 to 16 cents an acre. Special advantages are available to neighbors and colonies desiring to settle together.

Diversified or mixed farming is successful throughout this area. Corn has increased by hundreds of thousands of acres in the last few years in Southeastern Montana. Hog production has grown rapidly. All classes of livestock are raised. The dairy industry is getting a good start. Communities already are established. Churches have been built. Schools are open. There is progress ahead. With the coming of the railroad markets will be closer. More farmers will come in. Land values will increase.

The Northern Pacific Railway will help farmers in getting started right. Settlers are wanted who seek a real chance for themselves and their families. The Northern Pacific will send a representative to talk the matter over, if desired. Investigate this opportunity. Let us send you booklets, prices and easy payment plan. All sent free.

NORTHERN PACIFIC YELLOWSTONE PARK LINE

MAIL COUPON!

J. M. Hughes, Land Commissioner, Northern Pacific Railway Co., St. Paul, Minn.

Without obligation on my part please send all information about Redwater Valley Country.

Name.....

Town.....

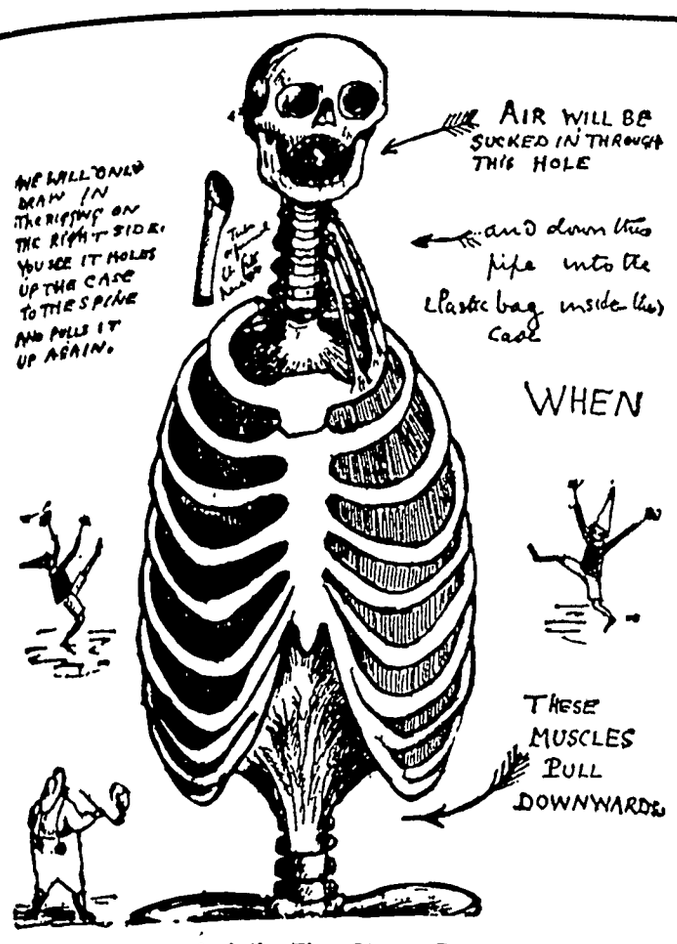
State.....

Planting trees and flowers does raise the taxes.

YOURSELF and YOUR BODY

By WILFRED T. GRENFELL

THE FURNACE HOUSE



WE WILL ONLY DRAW IN THE RIGHT SIDE. YOU SEE IT HOLES UP THE CASE TO THE SPINE AND PULLS IT UP AGAIN.
AIR WILL BE SUCKED IN THROUGH THIS HOLE and down this pipe into the plastic bag inside the case
WHEN THESE MUSCLES PULL DOWNWARDS

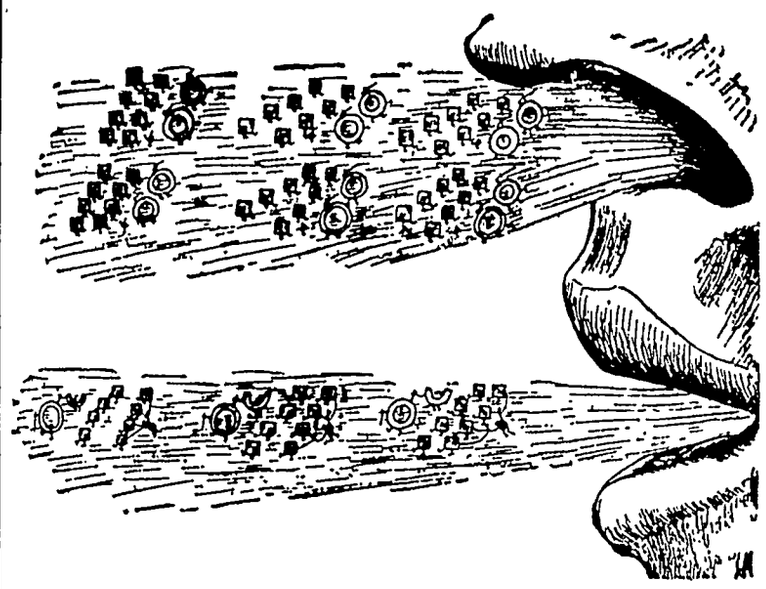
A Jolly Fine Strong Box.



Air Entering Nose. Nitrogen 8, Oxygen 2, Carbon Dioxide, a Trace.
Air Leaving Mouth. A Simple Mixture of Nitrogen 8, Oxygen 1½, Carbon Dioxide ½.

"HOW does the air clean the blood, father?"

"How do we clean most things?"

"We wash them."

"But how can you wash anything with air?"

"You bathe it in it long enough, of course. Our bodies teach us naturally to love bathing. Don't you just live in the water in summer? Well, your lungs love air in the same way, only more so. You cannot really give them too much. The breeze, the open air, the fresh air, and the cold air, all are our friends. Shut windows, closed or overheated rooms with lots of people in them, those are our enemies. Don't you remember how many beds with sick people were out in the hospital yield? What is there in the air that we should keep all those patients there?"

"Oxygen?"

"Yes, oxygen, of course. Oxygen is the thing that keeps things alive by burning up all the poisons.

"So you see what we want to do is to dip the blood into the oxygen in the air and wash it well with it. Only our laundry must go on all day and all night, washing our blood with fresh air, because only one-fifth part of air is oxygen."

"Do you mean breathing, father?"

"Yes, I do. Your lungs are rubber bags. You see, you expand your chest, that is, you make it much larger, and of course air rushes into the big elastic bag through the only opening there is, that is, your windpipe. Then you let the weight of your arms and body squeeze it out. The reason for having the bags made of elastic is that they can do enough squeezing out themselves, even while we sleep, if everything is O. K. They are more like the elastic bag squeaker even than the arteries. In fact, they are almost exactly like it, because it makes a noise as it comes out, which we turn into our voice, as I will show you later.

"When the mouth is shut, the soft curtain at the back of your throat is closed. Only the nose stays open. The bony rings around the pipe are to keep it open. The right way to breathe is not through your mouth, but through your nose.

"But, father, you haven't really told us how the blood got washed."

"Exactly as it got washed by oxygen in the water that rushed through the fish's gills. I say 'wash,' but it really is burning, just as gold is cleaned by being burned or refined. As we saw, fires burn only by having oxygen. It is the oxygen which burns up the dirt, and so makes everything clean. To do this the oxygen must be brought right to the object that is being burned, and so we must bring it right to the red corpuscles that want it first to burn up the garbage which they have brought back from the body, and also some to carry back to the ends even of the fingers and toes, burning up other waste right on the spot, wherever it finds any.

"We cannot very well have long fringes inside us. They would flop about and get hurt, because they must be so very fine. The solution of the problem is quite easy, however. We must fix the tiny vessels to the walls of the bag, and send the air round to them. Even Mahomet had to go to the mountain when it could not come to him. The big bag is divided up just like a cauliflower. To give room for all the Reds to get in the front row every single bit of it is hollow, and all the stems are hollow and end in rooms. There are about six million of these little rooms. Their sides are as thin as soap bubbles. The surfaces of all of them spread out would be a hundred times as large as our whole outside skin. They are ever so neat—all the same size—all heated with pipes over the walls. They have to be kept absolutely clean. If dirt collects in them we die of consumption. Coal miners, who work underground, breathe in lots of bits of coal, and some die; and the rooms of their lungs are found to be as black as coal. When you see a ray of sunshine coming through a closed window you can often make out how full the air is of dust. All that dust must be kept out of the inside rooms, so any number of guards are appointed to keep watch at all the entrances and hallways to the very threshold of the rooms, just as bees have guards at the doors of their hives who know every bee that goes in, and who throw out any strangers. These guards of ours catch all the dust and throw it back again, and often stick it all together as well. Sometimes we have to cough it up, there is such a lot of it. Usually we breathe it out.

"Our lungs do not only look like beehives; they are beehives—busy every second all our lives. Moreover, they are real furnace rooms, making the heat possible for our bodies by sending along oxygen in the blood to burn up the ashes. Just like the fires that burned the garbage in the Valley of Hinnom and Tophet, outside the gate of Jerusalem, these fires never go out.

"Every time we breathe we take in on an average about half a tumblerful of air. That is called the 'tide.' There is always about fifty times as much air left in, which never goes out. You cannot get the ribs quite flat together. With a very deep breath you ought to take in about another tumbler and a half—that is the measure of your 'vitality.' The air that goes in has about eight parts of nitrogen and two parts of oxygen, and a mere suspicion of carbon dioxide. (See picture.) When it comes out it has still all the nitrogen and one-half the oxygen, and much more than double the carbon dioxide, but in chains.

(© by the Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

What's the Answer.....?

Questions No. 11

1—Who discovered the Columbia river, and when?

2—How many Presidents died in office (not assassinated) and who were they?

3—What is the chief source of food for humans and animals?

4—What is energy?

5—What is the equine high jump record and who holds it?

6—What European composer incorporated Indian chants and negro spirituals into an immortal symphony?

7—What African river once had seven outlets to the sea, and now has but two?

8—In what poem is found the line, "A thing of beauty is a joy forever"?

9—Who said: "I am just mending my (political) fences"?

10—Is "ain't" inelegant?

11—Who said: "I mean to stir the Yankee blood as I stir this grog"?

12—What country holds the Davis International tennis championship?

13—What is the weight of the human heart?

14—What is a galvanometer?

15—What states were originally colonized by the Dutch?

16—How many Presidents have been assassinated and who?

17—What living composer writes music of rare and exotic charm that is so original in conception and so startlingly dynamic that it has been termed musical anarchy?

18—What bay, projecting far into the interior of North America, forms a vast inland sea?

19—What is Edmund Spenser's best-known poem?

20—What great innovation did Henry Ford establish in his plants?

Answers No. 10

1—John B. Soule, editor of the Terre Haute (Ind.) Express.

2—George Borrow.

3—The sand dunes parallel with the coast, which afford protection from the waves.

4—The Apollo Belvedere.

5—Resolute defeated Shamrock in 1920.

6—A violent electric charge between clouds or a cloud and the earth, caused by a great difference in potential.

7—A current that periodically reverses its direction.

8—Henrietta Marie, wife of King Charles II.

9—Nine: John Quincy Adams, Jefferson, Van Buren, Tyler, Fillmore, Johnson, Arthur, Roosevelt, Coolidge.

10—"Unique," meaning without a like or equal, cannot be compared.

11—Patrick Henry.

12—Edward Everett Hale.

13—Johann Strauss, the Younger.

14—Twice; in 1914 and 1919.

15—The unit of measurement of the pressure of the air.

16—The old Spanish piastre, so called because it was divided into eight reals.

17—Battery C, Sixth Field artillery.

18—Gen. Wesley Merritt, 1805.

19—Its direction is nearly north-south, while that of the Old World is east-west.

20—A period during which one has a legal right to delay meeting an obligation.

Passionate Love Song Fatal to Capercailzie

The male capercailzie ends his love song with such a passionate note that he is deaf to the world for its duration of about two minutes and hunters of this bird take advantage of the fact. In their quest of this largest variety of grouse found wild in wooded sections of Europe and Asia, the hunters operate only in the breeding season, for "the deaf one," the bird is called in Russia, normally has acute hearing. When the song is first heard the hunter advances as quickly and as close as he can before the love-call ends, then waits until the next period of song and deafness. It is said that the capercailzie can hear the snapping of a twig half a mile away when he is not singing and it sometimes takes a hunter hours to get close enough to shoot.

Ruminating Animals

Ruminants are a group of animals distinguished from all other animals by the fact that they "chew the cud." The chief ruminants are camels, deer, giraffes, antelopes, sheep, and goats. Their food, after being partially masticated and swallowed, is later brought back to the mouth to be further masticated.

One on the Bishop

At a dinner party a bishop was seated next a woman who made a somewhat lavish display of her charms. When dessert arrived the bishop placed an apple on her plate.

She expressed surprise, whereupon he said, "You must eat it. When Eve ate the apple she knew what she looked like, and was ashamed!"

The woman was equal to the occasion. She quietly asked the bishop, "Who gave Eve the apple?"—London Tit-Bits.

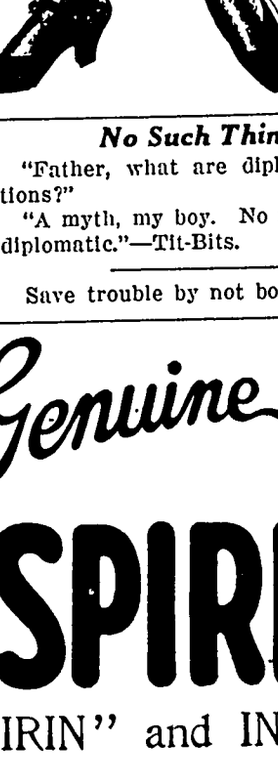
Present-day smokers find their sheerest enjoyment in Camels

THE people of this age spend millions for the good things of life. And they place Camel first among cigarettes.

Modern smokers make money, but when they spend it they insist on quality, and more people today buy Camels than ever bought any other cigarette.

Camel value has won the modern world. Money cannot buy choicer tobaccos, nor a more glorious blending. That's why increasing millions in the modern age single out this famous smoke as their favorite. You, too, will find it yours.

"Have a Camel!"



© 1927, R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, Winston-Salem, N. C.

Self-Regulating Iron

The iron equipped with a thermostat eliminates the effort involved in connecting and disconnecting the iron from the electric source and in cooling and reheating it again. The thermostat works automatically inside of the iron and controls the heat so the iron is never too hot for ironing, but maintains always an even temperature.

Tender, Aching, Perspiring Feet

Amazing Relief in 5 Minutes or Money Back.

Get a bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil with the understanding that if it does not put an end to the pain and soreness and do away with all offensive odors your money will be promptly returned.

Don't worry about how long you've been troubled or how many other preparations you have tried. This powerful penetrating oil is one preparation that will help to make your painful aching feet so healthy and free from corn and callous troubles that you'll be able to go anywhere and do anything in absolute foot comfort.

So marvelously powerful is Moone's Emerald Oil that thousands have found it gives wonderful results in the treatment of dangerous swollen or varicose veins.

His Position

"Things here will never be quite the same since old Roswell Ripp is gone," said Riley Rezzidew of Petunia. "When he finally shut up and departed for the Better Land a strange hush fell upon the village. He had differed with and from everybody else on religion, politics and every other subject on earth, and was at all times ready to so state. In his opinion there were just two sides to every question—his own side and infernal foolishness. He never argued; he simply stated his position and then attempted to outyell all opposition, and usually accomplished his purpose."—Kansas City Star.

CHILDREN CRY FOR "CASTORIA"

Especially Prepared for Infants and Children of All Ages

Mother! Fletcher's Castoria has been in use for over 30 years to relieve babies and children of Constipation, Flatulency, Wind Colic and Diarrhea; allaying Feverishness arising therefrom, and, by regulating the Stomach and Bowels, aids the assimilation of Food; giving natural sleep without opiates.

The genuine bears signature of

Chas. H. Fletcher.

Very Much So

Friend—Are you affiliated with a reform organization?

She—Indeed, I am. I'm married.

His Very Own

"Isn't it dangerous to go so fast?"

"I should say not! I've paid my last installment on this bus!"

Nature doesn't stop to explain. You've got to do that.

No Such Thing

"Father, what are diplomatic relations?"

"A myth, my boy. No relations are diplomatic."—Tit-Bits.

Save trouble by not borrowing it.

BAYER

Genuine ASPIRIN

SAY "BAYER ASPIRIN" and INSIST!

Proved safe by millions and prescribed by physicians for

Colds Headache Neuritis Lumbago
Pain Neuralgia Toothache Rheumatism

DOES NOT AFFECT THE HEART

Safe — Accept only "Bayer" package which contains proven directions.
Handy "Bayer" boxes of 12 tablets
Also bottles of 24 and 100—Druggists.

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

Wolves Threaten Industry

Patagonia, which is one of the great centers of sheep breeding, is in terrible trouble because of packs of dog-wolves which are destroying sheep by the thousand. These creatures are crosses between the native wolf and collies that have run wild. They have little fear of man and, indeed, have killed many shepherds. They are doing such terrible damage that the export of wool and mutton from Patagonia is rapidly decreasing.

Case of Nerve

"Don't worry," said the dentist. "I always give my patients—ah—something to—ah—quiet their nerves."

"Then what was that fellow in there yelling for?" demanded the skeptical sufferer.

"More!"—American Legion Weekly.

Revelations

"I never told you how my husband proposed, did I?"

"No, did he propose?"

Pa Buzz has a hot breakfast

FLIT spray clears your home of flies and mosquitoes. It also kills bed bugs, roaches, ants, and their eggs. Fatal to insects but harmless to mankind. Will not stain. Get Flit today.

FLIT

DESTROYS
Flies Mosquitoes Moths
Ants Bed Bugs Roaches

"The yellow can with the black band"

© 1927 STANDARD OIL CO. (N.J.)

Pat Fuuler of Goodell was in our city Saturday on business.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Patet took in the Mason City fair Monday.

Frances Cashman of Goodell was in Klemme Tuesday.

Mr and Mrs. Jass of Garner were visiting at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Emil Kraus and family last week Wednesday.

LYRIC
Theatre
—GARNER, IOWA—

Presents The Following Attractions:-
FRIDAY and SATURDAY
August 19-20
Tom Mix in
"THE BRONCHO TWISTER"
—Comedy—
"BROKEN CHINA"
Admission 10-25c

TUESDAY and WEDNESDAY
August 23-24
Barbery Bedford and
Lewis Stone In
"THE NOTORIOUS LADY"
From Sir Patrick Hasting's novel "The River."
"Many Scrappy Returns"
Admission 10-25c

Klemme Local Items

Arthur Kudje and family were Mason City visitors Sunday.

Worthy Usher, of Clarion, spent Sunday with Klemme relatives.

"Wearie" Christie of Goodell was a Klemme visitor Saturday evening

Lew Davis and family o fMason City spent Sunday at the Henry Freie home.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Christie of Goodell were Klemme callers Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Kraus were visitors at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Mueller Monday evening.

A. D. Gimer and family drove to Abbott Saturday for an over Sunday visit with relatives.

Mr. L. Spitler of Goodell was in Klemme on business Wednesday p m.

The Klemme Auxiliary ladies put on a hot hamburger and hot coffee feed on the vacant lot east of the Wellemeyer store again Saturday evening and report fairly good business.

Fred Bell and family visited with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Bell southeast of Klemme Thursday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Perkins and family of Oelwein visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Leitzinger Sunday.

C. G. Waterman and family drove to Swea City Saturday afternoon for an over Sunday visit with Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Mitchell.

Grandma Schroeder, Mrs. Marlin Croner and Dorothy, Mrs. Lena Schroeder and Max Barz drove to Renwick Sunday for a visit.

Ralph Blank, of Estherville, was in this vicinity on railroad business yesterday and so visited with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Blank over night.

Going to school this fall? What school? Will you get the service you expect? You are entitled to wo things—the right kind of service and a good position when you get through. The Hamilton University Mason City, Iowa. 1tc

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Mueller visited with Garner relatives Sudany and were guests at the 20th wedding anivesary of Rev. ana Mrs. Wrede of that place.

Mr. and Mrs. Elnar Salling and Mrs. Anderson and children of Des Moines wno are visiting here drove to Ringsted Saturday for a visit with relatives there until Sunday evening.

Mrs. J. Gruetzmacher, Mrs. P. M Griesemer, of Klemme, and Mrs. J. Schuler ond son, Edgar and daughter, Ruth, of Sioux City, were entertained at the F. J. Schuldt home at Garner Monday.

Emil Kraus is back on the job as cream hauler of the local Creamery. He took a vacation of several weeks as he had not been well. Emil is again feeling fine, we are glad to say.

Britt business men have backed the proposition to have a Junior College and the plans have all been laid out to begin Sept. 12th. The course of study will be the some as any first year college course and credits for work at Britt will be accpeted by the University of Iowa, State Teachers, Ames or any other college. Anyone interested may get full particulars of C. E. Cooper, Supt., Britt.

Bernard Smid is carying around a very sore left arm since Monday. He went up to Fred Haupt's home to do a small repair job on the family Ford and had to back the machine out of the garage. In some way "Smiddy" got tankled up in the garage door and about tore his arm loose before he could extricate himself The muscles on his left forearm are severelly wrenched as a result of the accident.

This Six-Room Bungalow Adapts Self to Any Lot

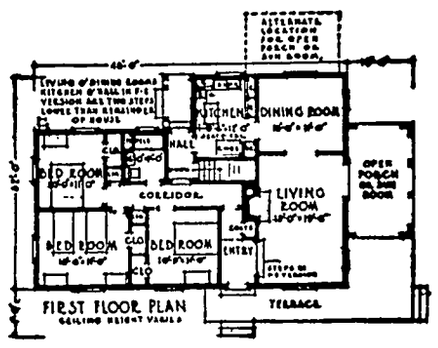
THERE is much to be said in favor of the one-story dwelling, and when the floor plan is as expertly arranged as in this Colonial bungalow the usual objections of lack of privacy and long distances to walk, are avoided.

This house may run either lengthwise or across the width of the lot. The exterior is of stained grey shingles with either a green shingled or tiled roof.

The trimmings should be white and the shutters green to harmonize with the roof.

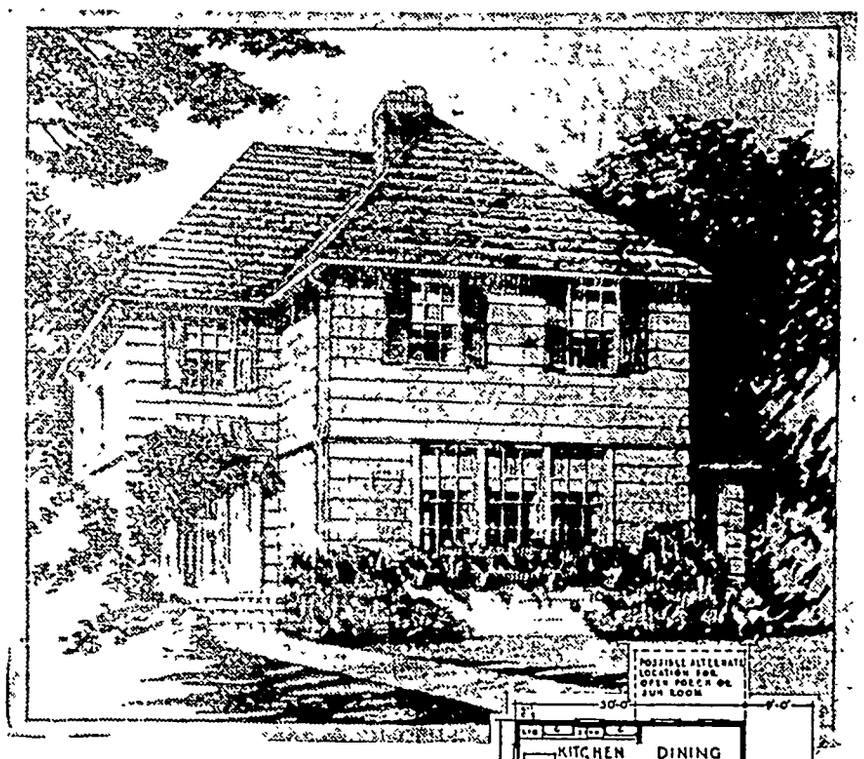
The three bedrooms are well shut off from the rest of the house. The large open porch or sunroom can be made to open off either the living or dining room. The kitchen has the desired built-in features, including the useful breakfast nook.

The cost of this house can be materially reduced by omitting the basement and allowing space on the main floor for a small boiler room. The walls and roof also are sheathed with celotex to keep the temperature at comfort point the year round.



©, Celotechnic Institute, Chicago, 1926.

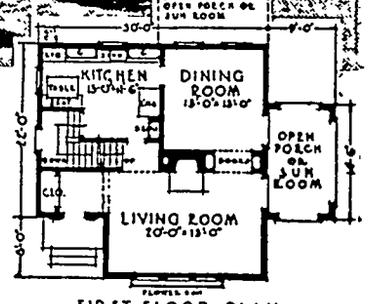
This Thrifty Home Brings Joy to the Rent-Weary

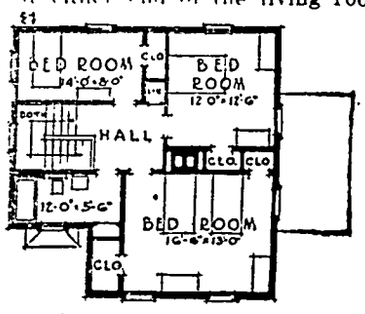


FOR THE family of four or five there is this attractive two-story, six-room house of beveled siding and slate or shingle roof.

One of the interesting features of this house is that every room has a double exposure, while the living room has three sides exposed Extra windows not shown in the plan may at slight expense be added at either end of the living room. While this type of house affords the utmost in light and cross-ventilation, it would be well to protect it against the extremes of cold and heat by insulation with celotex for the walls and roof. Such insulation will also cut down outside noises to a marked degree, as in addition to its insulating property, celotex is an efficient sound deadener.

The living room has the much desired open fireplace and cleverly arranged bookshelves flanking the entrance to the dining room. The sun porch may be put either to the side or the back of the house, according to the builders' wishes or to conform to the demands of the lot.





©, Celotechnic Institute, Chicago, 1926.

OUTLINES HIS WOES IN STYLE OF DAVID

English Clergyman Tells of Tribulations.

To write a modern parody of the Psalms of David has been often tried, but seldom with much success beyond achieving an occasional smart phrase without real application or point. Undeterred by the previous failures of others, however, a much perturbed London clergyman has sought this vehicle for the easing of the woes that beset his soul, and by the judicious use of solemn language diluted with a liberal allowance of up-to-the-minute slang, he has accomplished something that may, perhaps, be regarded as worth while. Thus, complaining of those who resent his air of solemnity, he writes as follows:

"Be he grave or serious in his demeanor: seeking to uphold the dignity of his cloth.

"He is said to be standoffish, 'pi,' and uppish: yea, the ungodly call him 'Holy Joe.'"

Similarly, he finds that, if he tries to be gay, greeting all and sundry with a merry jest, there are many whom he displeases, so that, in respect of his demeanor, he is very like the old man in the fable of "The Old Man and His Ass," who, trying to please everybody, ended up by pleasing nobody and lost his ass into the bargain. This good clergyman has his problems also with young men and maidens, for if he holds aloof from them they mislike him much:

"So that when to him they should turn as to a friend in need, with them he cutteth no ice."

It is, however, when he seeks to interfere with the widespread habit of tippling that he gets into really hot water:

"Again, if beholding overmuch intemperance in his flock: he exhorteth all men to abstain from strong drink.

"He is said to be a killjoy and inhuman: a very Stiggins whose mind is straightened.

"But if he entereth a tavern and putteth his foot upon the rail of brass: there be those who say, 'Behold a wine-bibber.'

"So when he bloweth froth, he committeth iniquity: and when he bloweth it not, he is like a sinner."

The conclusion to which the parson comes, surrounded by perplexities so dire, is doubtless the best thing in his Twentieth-century psalm:

"Let the servant therefore walk in the steps of his Master: and care nought for the opinion of men."

It is an undoubtedly wise decision and has the added merit of possessing a far-reaching application.

"Hand Shague" Common

"Hand shague," which caused President Coolidge to carry his hand in a bandage as a result of too much handshaking, is a very troublesome complaint, according to medical men. It belongs to the family of writers' cramp and tennis knee and other complaints that can be traced to a definite pursuit. Many persons in public life have suffered from it. Only the other day Mrs. Stanley Baldwin, wife of the British premier, suffered an attack of it after shaking hands with 600 women at a political meeting. The prince of Wales suffered from it badly on each of his tours to distant parts of the empire. Lloyd George and the earl of Oxford and Asquith have both been laid up with it. And Bernard Shaw has been heard to declare that he will never risk it again.

The Unkindest Cut

After months of careful nurturing, the fledgling mustache was just beginning to be noticeable on the lip of its proud young possessor, who walked manfully into the barber shop and demanded a shave. The hot towels were soothing and he half napped as the conscientious barber scraped off fuzz and lather with practiced strokes. The process completed, the youth roused himself and glanced into the mirror at his clean-shaven lip. Consternation flushed beneath the talcum.

"Where is my mustache?" he exclaimed.

"I haven't seen it," replied the puzzled barber.

Odd Power of Light Rays

By the use of cleverly controlled rays of colored lights and a refraction screen, a Washington artist is able to make things invisible, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. At a demonstration a person sitting in a chair was suddenly "dissolved from sight" while the chair remained. According to reports, the late Houdini was to have employed this system in causing an entire audience to disappear. The "magic" of the stunt is based on certain laws of light and vision and emphasized the fact that our eyes are dependent upon light rays for what they see.

Their Occupation

"What is going on here?" asked a visitor in Petunia. "I have noticed quite a number of young men sneaking around corners, peering into windows, hiding behind ash barrels, measuring places on the ground, remarking 'Hist!' and the like."

"Them's graduates of a College of Detection, up to Kay See, and they are trying to detect crime," replied Constable Slackputter, the well-known sleuth. "But as long as they don't do anything but try to detect, I can't very well arrest 'em."—Kansas City Star.

Golf Instructions

An absolute beginner was tolling round the links wondering if the game was really worth while and vowing, to his grizzled Scottish caddie, that this would be his last round.

"And what should I take now?" he asked a moment later, finding his ball in a terrible lie.

"Well, mon," replied the caddie, "you have three alternatives. For a start, you might take me and get me something to drink; secondly, you might take a' your clubs home and give up golf; thirdly, you might try throwin' the ba'!"

"The End of the Trail"

The statue of an Indian with a spear under his arm, sitting on a horse, in an attitude of utter abandon, is intended to symbolize the passing of a great race—the Indian, once the proud, unchallenged master of this continent and its plains and streams and forests, but who now, as the sculptor, James Earl Fraser conceives it, stands hopeless and despairing at "the end of the trail." The statue is very literally at the end of the trail, too, in Golden Gate park, San Francisco.

Oldest Forms of Writing

Writing is a very ancient art. The oldest forms of which there are existing examples are Babylonian and Egyptian. The Babylonian is cuneiform, that is, the characters are wedge-shaped. They were written on clay and the clay was baked into bricks which formed permanent records many of which have been un[illegible] and interpreted

For Electric Service
CALL 39 GARNER, IOWA
HOUSE WIRING—MOTORS—
LAMPS—
APPLIANCES—
—ALSO A FULL LINE OF RADIOS AND RADIO ACCESSORIES——

Prouty Electric Shop
GARNER — IOWA

UNDER GOVERNMENT SUPERVISION

What Saving Does

It brings peace of mind; it insures against emergencies; it promotes self-confidence and reliance; it provides for future comforts and independence. You, too, can attain all these if you will but save persistently, even though in a modest way.

We invite your account.

First National Bank
KLEMME, IOWA.

It's Play-Time for Iowa

RACES, fireworks, Sousa and His Band, circus thrillers—America's greatest attractions await you at the Iowa State Fair this summer.

An exposition so different—so interesting and entertaining it will surpass any outing you've ever enjoyed before. Plan NOW to see it.

Eight Great Days of Pleasure

$20,000 horse-racing program for five days.

Two days' auto races with America's foremost drivers.

Sousa and His Band

World's greatest hippodrome and circus performers.

Gigantic fireworks spectacle—"The Fall of Troy." 12,000 seats in new $350,000 amphitheatre, six days' whippet dog racing, society horse shows, six bands and orchestras, free 80-acre camp ground, eight days of thrilling entertainment.

America's largest agricultural and live stock fair, with nearly 6,000 head of horses, cattle, swine, sheep; acres of grain, fruits and produce displays; exhibits and contests by over 1,000 boy and girl farmers; complete women's exposition; machinery show of 40 acres; 90,000 sq. ft. of displays in new Educational Building; premiums over $137,000.

Be sure to see it. Bigger and better than ever—by far the finest summer vacation in the midwest!

Iowa State Fair
AUG. 24-SEPT. 2
Reduced Railroad Rates

Liberty News Notes

(Special Times Reporter)

Mr. J. J. Lemke and wife took in the fair at Mason City Monday.

Most of the schools are beginning the 5th of September this fall.

Miss Martha Whitney is visiting at the Will Lemke home this week.

A number of thresher rings finished threshing last week.

Mrs. Henry Lemke was calling on Mother Beier Monday afternoon.

WONDERFULLY

Refreshing

With the warm weather now here, nothing is more cooling or refreshing than one of our fine Sodas!

Luscious ice cream, fresh ripe fruit, pure flavoring—that's what you get at our fountain.

Whenever you feel the need of a tasty, toothsome treat, stop in at our cafe.

Crystal Cafe

Conrad Quandt, Prop.

Mrs. Otto Lemke has been rather under the weather lately.

Earl Kahler, wife and family took in the Mason City Fair Monday.

Rev. Gauger was making calls in this vicinity last week.

Ed. Schoenwetter, wife and children, were entertained at the Oscar Carlson home Sunday.

Herman Lemke returned home from the Mercy Hospital last Thursday, greatly improved in health.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Schaefer and children took in the Fair at Mason City Monday.

Mr and Mrs. Ralph Whitney and daughter were Sunday callers at the Wm. Lemke home.

Mrs B A. Reemstma and baby are much improved in health after being under the Doctor's care for some time.

A meeting was held at Wes Lenz's Monday afternoon about having a booth at the Hancock County Fair this year

Henry Beier and Elmer Beier drove up to Minnesota last week to stay for some time to do threshing with some of the rings there.

Dorothy Marshall and her friend, Leona Fuller, were visiting for a few days last week at Dorothy's grandparents.

Mrs. Klein, mother of Mrs. M. Thompson, and grandmother of Miss Ethel Thompson who works in the bank in Klemme, passed away Saturday Burial was made at Britt yesterday

Meats For Threshers

To feed a crew of hungry threshers is quite a task for the farmer's wife during the busy threshing season, but when your meats are purchased at Larsen's a large part of the task has been met.

Right now we are specializing in special cuts for the threshers' dinners and to meet the demand we are well stocked on—

TENDER ROASTS—both beef and pork

Choicest Hams—fine for serving either piping hot or cold sliced

STEAKS CHOPS COLD MEATS

For those morning and afternoon lunches for the threshers we suggest that you have on hand a supply of our Cold Meats for Sandwiches, Cheese—any kind, pickles, etc.

If It's For Threshers Meals and Lunches We Can Serve You Well

Klemme Meat Market

Let

The Times

Do Your

Printing

Mr. and Mrs. August Kropp and family enjoyed a picnic dinner at West Bend Sunday. They drove over to see the Grotto.

Miss Opal Poltere returned to her home in Waterloo Sunday after spending several weeks at the John Velau home.

Mae Fereleman, a trained nurse, is now taking care of Frank Rosendahl, who has been very sick for some time.

Mrs. Jake Ter Hart and Mrs. Fred Ter Hart from near Lake Cornelia, helped their mother, Mrs. Carolus, with threshers Thursday.

Mr and Mrs. John Lemke and Mrs. Henry Lemke Sr., drove to Clear Lake Sunday to enjoy the band concert.

Mr. and Mrs. George Schoenwetter and family went to Mason City Monday to take in the North Iowa Fair.

Mr and Mrs Wm Stille and daughter Elvira, Lester Stille, wife and daughter Ruth, were entertained at the Art Schoenwetter home Sunday for dinner

The new school house at the Stille corner will be the first brick school around this vicinity The oustide is nearly completed and probably it will be ready for use shortly after school begins.

Frank Pringnitz injured his foot quite severely last week when e slipped between some boards. Infection set in and an operation was necessary. At this time he is getting along fine

Mr and Mrs Harvey Wilkins and daughters, Leota and Delores, and Mr and Mrs John Koehn of St. Marys, Ohio, are visiting at the R R Lemke home. Mrs. Wilkins and Mrs Lemke are sisters.

Mr. and Mrs George Neimeyer and family, Mr and Mrs Harvey Wilkins and family, Mr. and Mrs. John Koehn, Mr. and Mrs. Rhine Lemke and family and Grandma Straatman all enjoyed a picnic at Ventura Heights Sunday

Sunday Mrs Emil Beier got up a fine dinner and asked several in to enjoy it as the day was Mother Beier's 85th birthday. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Will Beier of Goodell, Mr. and Mrs. Aug. Ridder and the Henry Beier family. Several friends dropped in during the day to congratulate Mother Beier, among those were Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Schaefer from Klemme and Mr. and Mrs. Wille of Klemme.

Monday morning bright and early Mrs. Lange and daughter Mary started on their way to New York State with Mrs. Lange's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Hammon and son of Garner. They have gone to visit a son of Mr and Mrs Hammon and also to visit other relatives there This is the first time Mrs. Lange has been there since she was a girl of twenty years. The Hammons lived in New York before they came to Iowa. They expect to be gone about three weeks.

Avery-Twin Lakes News

(Special Times Reporter)

Ben Swalve Sr. called at the Dick Swalve home Saturday forenoon.

Dick Swalve was a Garner caller on Tuesday.

Threshing is nearly finished in this vicinity.

Mrs. Edwin Josten helped Mrs. Emil Lau last Saturday.

Mrs. Elmer Schlei visited at the Lester Hartbeck home last Friday to see the new baby.

A niece of Mrs. Fred Etchen has been staying with them for a few days.

Henry Buseman and family called at the Rob Roths home Sunday evening.

Adella Kuhlman assisted with the work at the Les Hartbeck home the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Swalve and family were Sunday visitors at the Peter Trampel home.

Henry Barz and family called at the Les Hartbeck and Fred Neuhring homes Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Carl Wille and family were Sunday evening visitors at the Art Brouwer home.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Wille and daughter, Arlene, were visitors at the Ben Goll home Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Platt visited with Mr. and Mrs. Fred Etchen last Friday night.

The little son of Mr. and Mrs. George Johnson has been quite ill the past week but is much improved at this writing.

Mrs Dick Swalve and daughters from Avery township attended a farm bureau meeting at the home of Mrs George Johnson last Thursday.

Mrs. Carl Wille and daughter, Mrs Henry Josten, Mrs. Dick Swalve and daughters, and Miss Leona Buseman helped Mrs. Herman Priebe cook for threshers Monday.

Mrs. David Schwichtenberg and family and Miss Berdice Schwichtenberg attended the farm bureau meeting at Mrs. Johnson's last week Thursday. Delightful refreshments were served by the hostess. The art of dyeing was taken up.

Goodell News

(By Special Correspondent)

AVERY TWIN LAKE F. B. LADIES HAD FINE MEETING

Davenport And Chair Upholstered In Demonstration Study

The Farm Bureau Ladies Co-Operators of the training school of Avery and Twin Lake township held a joint meeting at the home of Mrs. W L. Thada. This was an all day meeting and the project taken up was upholstering furniture and was instructed by our efficient demonstrator, Miss Ramer.

The ladies covered a large chair and davenport which were very attractive after being completed.

This meeting was attended by the ofllowing ladies: Mesdames C. A. Arnold, Wm. Johnson, Effie Carpenter, W. L. Sherwood, Jay Griggs, L. Wilson and W. L. Thada of Avery township, and F Cordes, H Ness, E. Schneider, E. Ruka, H. Ruka, Landon, W. Greiman and A. Etchen of Twin Lake. Ruth Greiman, Iris Sherwood and Doris Schneider, being visitors.

Booth At Fair Planned

Plans for a Township Booth at the County Fair on Home Furnishing was also discussed at the noon hour lunch which was served by the hostess in cafeteria style.

The meeting adjourned at 4:00 o'clock and all present spent a very enjoyable day.

Frederick Schneider was at Mason City Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Hemenway called on relatives at Clarion Sunday.

Wm. Allaben had dental work done in Belmond Saturday.

Thomas Quigley has a new Essex coach.

Goodell and Coulter crossed bats on Belmond's diamond Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Griggs visited Mr. Lamer at Hampton Sunday.

Thomas Quigley was taken o Hampton Monday for an appendix operation.

Mrs. Gosnell ond two children, Mrs. Lamer and Robt. McNutt were at Hampton Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Alf. Carpenter and Richard returned from their western trip Wednesday.

Misses Thomas and Herndon of Meservey called at the Sherwood home Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jay Griggs visited the Osburn Farm at Hampton Sunday.

V. A. Cook's and Mr. and Mrs. Herrick attended the Mason City fair Monday.

Mrs. Gosnell and two daughters of Fort Dodge have been visiting at the Lamer home.

Mr. C. W. Lamer was taken ill very suddenly with appendicitis last week. He was operated on in the Lutheran Hospital at Hampton on Wednesday. At present he is not so well.

Carroll Cashman returned to Chicago Friday after spending his vacation with his mother.

Wayne Wesenberg gave a report of the Junior Endeavor Convention before the Sunday school Sunday morning.

Everyone was glad to see Gerald Burk return from the hospital. He was hurt by his pony while herding cows.

A nice crowd enjoyed the dance in Redge Houghton's barn Tuesdoy night. Scotts and Jenison furnished the music.

Martin Kearney and Emmet went to Williams Saturdav. Margaret Kearney returned with them Sunday for a visit with friends and relatives here.

Avery Twp. News

(Special Times Reporter)

Miss Elma Nelson was a visitor with Irene Marshall Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Bachman were callers at the Frank Roths home on Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Lube Albers and family were visitors Sunday at the Fred Albers home.

Mr. and Mrs. Dave Ross of Garner spent Thursday at their farm where D. A. Marshall now resides.

Mrs Rob Roths and Miss Vera Bachman helped Mrs. Fred Bachman cook for threshers Friday.

The Misses Margie, Avis and Leota Anderson were callers at the Herb Marshall home.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Anderson and baby spent Sunday at the Chris Anderson home.

Mr. and Mrs. Chris Anderson enjoyed a visit Friday with relatives from Waterloo and Cedar Falls.

Mrs. Clarence Bachman's sister and son, Russell, came down from Ventura to help her cook for the threshers.

Miss Dorothy Marshall and visiting friend, Miss Leona Fuller, spent a few days at the D. A. Marshall and Herb Marshall home.

Kenneth Bell, who was kicked by a mule a couple of weeks ago, is able to be up and around again at this writing.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bachman and daughter Maxine spent Sunday afternoon with the John Bachman family.

Mr. and Mrs. Verner Nelson and little daughter, Ardella, were Sunday visitors at the Tom Nelson Jr home.

Miss Leona Wilkins of Garner came down Friday afternoon to visit with some of her friends in this community.

Mrs Henry Helps and daughter, Dorothy, took Mrs. Help's sister back to Clarion Friday after a couple of days visit here.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bachman and family and Mrs. Bachman's ister, husband and family of Mason City, were dinntr guests at the Rob Roths home Sunday.

Miss Wava Bachman came down Sunday from Mason City to spend her vacation with her parents and other relatives. Miss Bachman is now working there since she finished her business school.

BANKERS HELPING

Three banks in South Carolina have inaugurated a plan to provide free of rent for two years a centrally located place to be used by the farmers of Greenville and neighboring counties for the purpose of establishing a creamery, a canning factory and a farm woman's club. The idea is to get the farmers to raise livestock, to raise their own food and feed and to have something extra to sell. The canning factory is intended to utilize the surplus garden and fruit products, and the club rooms for getting the support and co-operation of the farm women.

Georgia bankers have made great stridos in furthering a diversified farming program the past year. They induced farmers to sow fifty-five carloads of vetch seed, furnished local prizes in eighty counties for the corn contest, the state prize of $1,000 being

Ell Township News

(Special Times Reporter)

Arthur Schlawin is again at work after a few weeks of illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Thiemann and family spent Sunday at the Cornelius Wille home.

Miss Carrie Albers helped Mrs. Ed Buentenbach cook for the thresher Monday and Tuesday.

John Newberger purchased a new Imperial Landau Chevrolet sedan last week.

Mr. and Mrs. John Bock and family spent Sunday at the F. H. Greimann home north of Klemme.

Rev. and Mrs. Grosshuesch and family and Adella Kuhlman were entertained at the Fred Barz home Sunday.

Edwin Bock went back to work Monday morning Fred Arnold has been running his oil truck for him during his absence.

The Times is always glad to receive items of news. Please phone your items or mail them Thanks

Homelike Cooknig

If you are sandwich hungry or ready for a juicy steak.

If you are "all set" for a good dinner or just want a "snack"—we're waiting for you—all set.

Good, substantial wholesome food.

HIGLEY'S LUXUS ICE CREAM

—is sold here in bulk or served as sundaes. Try a quart next time.

Give us the pleasure of welcoming you today—

New Cafe

M. O. BARR, Prop.

Farm

Loans

5%

Isaac Sweigard

Garner Iowa

PIANOS

Players & Grand

New and

Second Hand

M. N. ZEIGER

Jewelry & Optical Goods

GARNER, IOWA

1.—President Coolidge in the headdress he received when made Chief Leading Eagle by the Ogalala Sioux. 2.—Giant coast guard railway rifle at Fort MacArthur, California, in action in test firing. 3.—Mounted police breaking up Sacco-Vanzetti sympathy meetings on Boston common.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Sacco and Vanzetti Given Twelve-Day Reprieve—Gen. Wood's Death.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

SACCO and Vanzetti, who were to have been executed August 11, were granted 12 more days of life by Governor Fuller of Massachusetts, after Justice Holmes of the United States Supreme court and Judge Anderson of the Federal Circuit court had denied appeals for a writ of habeas corpus on the ground that they had no right to issue the writ unless it was shown that the court which tried the case was without jurisdiction. The reprieve was given the condemned men with the approval of the state executive council in order to allow a ruling on a writ of error by Justice Sanderson of the state Supreme court which, if approved, would take the case to the full bench of the Supreme court. Celestino Madeiros, sentenced on another murder charge to die at the same time, was included in the respite. Justice Sanderson let the matter go to the full court.

It is to be hoped by all right-minded Americans that this new delay in the leisurely course of justice was not due in any way to the noisy, violent demonstrations which radicals and sentimentalists have been staging in nearly all parts of the world. That the bombs, threats and sloppy appeals of those people, who are certainly misinformed, to say the least, could have any influence on our courts and governors would be humiliating indeed. Meetings of protest against the execution of the condemned men were held, or attempted to be held, every day in Boston, New York, Chicago and other American cities and also in cities in Europe, and South America. Hostile mobs in various places threatened American embassies and consulates, and in Casa Blanca, Morocco, a gang of radicals tore down the American flag, desecrated it and burned it. The police, here and abroad, did what they could to break up these demonstrations and many arrests were made. Congressman Johnson of Washington, chairman of the house immigration committee, warned all aliens domiciled in this country that if they partook in anti-government demonstrations they would be liable to deportation under the act of 1919. Although President Coolidge has more than once let it be known that he does not consider he has any right to intervene in the Sacco-Vanzetti case, he was again asked to do so in a telegram from Victor L. Berger, Socialist congressman from Wisconsin.

ONE of America's very best soldiers and citizens and its most eminent colonial administrator passed away when Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood, governor general of the Philippines, died suddenly in a Boston hospital following an operation for a tumor in the skull. On Tuesday he was buried, with full military honors, in Arlington National cemetery among the dead members of the Rough Riders whom he led so gallantly in the Spanish-American war.

Born in New Hampshire in 1860, Leonard Wood was graduated from Harvard medical school and in 1885 entered the army as a contract surgeon. His rise thereafter was swift and spectacular. While serving with General Miles he captured Geronimo, the notorious Apache, and won the congressional medal of honor. When the war with Spain broke out he was made colonel of the Rough Riders recruited by Theodore Roosevelt and was promoted to brigadier general. As military governor of Cuba he did such excellent work that the islanders will ever revere his memory, and already they are preparing to erect a monument to him. President McKinley made Wood a major general in the regular establishment, and previous to the World war he was the most vigorous proponent of preparedness. When America entered the war, General Wood trained the Eighty-ninth division with characteristic skill and thoroughness, but President Wilson and Secretary Baker did not permit him to go to France as its commander. Instead he was kept in this country except for one observation trip to Europe. In 1920 he was a popular but unsuccessful candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination. President Harding appointed him governor general of the Philippines, and he held that troublous post until his death, administering the affairs of the islands with the greatest ability and firmness in the face of the continuous opposition of the native advocates of independence and of a change in the form of government.

THAT President Coolidge meant his "do not choose" to be a positive declination of a renomination is now accepted by nearly every one, but some of his strongest supporters still have hope that he can be successfully "drafted." Senator Simeon D. Fess of Ohio, who himself has been mentioned as a likely possibility for the nomination, visited the President in the Black hills and pleaded with him not to make his decision irrevocable.

"If they can't get along without me now, what will they say four years from now?" the President replied, according to Senator Fess.

Mr. Coolidge reiterated his thought that "this is not a one-man country," and gave Mr. Fess the impression that he wanted to be relieved of the burdens of the office.

Senator Fess told the President that the logic of the situation called for his nomination by the convention, and said he believed the convention would seek to draft Mr. Coolidge.

"Don't echo that sentiment," the President replied, according to Senator Fess.

Whatever the attitude of the President, Ohio will instruct her delegation for Coolidge or nobody, the senator said.

On Wednesday Mr. Coolidge went to Rushmore mountain, on the face of which Gutzon Borglum is to carve the heads of Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln and Roosevelt, and dedicated it as a national monument, delivering an address on "The Spirit of Patriotism."

VICE PRESIDENT DAWES, in his address at the dedication of the Peace bridge between Buffalo and Fort Erie, Ontario, created something of a sensation by his comments on the recent futile naval disarmament conference. Though he said the parley was not altogether a failure, he plainly indicated his belief that the inability of the American and British delegations at Geneva to agree was due to insufficient parliamentary preparation and the preoccupation of the conferees with the needs of their own countries. His implied criticism of the American delegates was resented by administration officials in Washington.

Secretary of the Navy Wilbur conferred with the President and it was stated that they saw no need for radical change in the administration's naval policy because of the failure of the Geneva conference. This policy is the completion of the moderate building program determined upon long before the conference at Geneva was called, and now to be carried out by congress as if this conference had never been held. The President sees nothing alarming in the situation. He does not think the Geneva conference will make an increase over this five-year program necessary. Consequently, there is a prospect of another contest in congress next winter between those who approve this moderate program and the advocates of a bigger navy.

WITH about a dozen planes almost ready for the race from California to Honolulu in competition for the Dole prize of $35,000, the flight committee and the Department of Commerce recommended that the start be postponed for not more than two weeks because some of the planes and crews were believed to be not yet properly equipped or qualified. The Honolulu committee vetoed the postponement, but all the pilots signed an agreement not to start before noon of August 16. The demand for better preparation was partly due to the death of two contenders, Lieuts. George W. D. Covell and Richard S. Waggener of the navy, when their transoceanic mount crashed near San Diego and burned.

SUIT has been filed in Cleveland against the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, alleging that notes, properties and securities "of little or no value" had been "unloaded" by the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers Co-operative bank there on the Brotherhood Investment company, the holding company of all the brotherhood's financial undertakings.

The suit, brought by two stockholders of the investment company, asks for an accounting of all profits made by the bank in its dealings with the investment company, and that all transactions be declared null and void which resulted in loss to the investment company.

ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY LOWMAN announces that the treasury's plans for the resumption of the manufacture of medicinal whisky this fall have been abandoned, because there is no shortage now and supplies in government warehouses should last for seven or eight years. Although no recent gauge of the amount of whisky actually on hand had been taken, it is estimated that at least 20,000,000 gallons of aged whisky is now safeguarded in bonded warehouses. Another 10,000,000 gallons of brandy and other medicinal beverages are available for prescription use. The withdrawals during 1926 were 1,889,338 gallons.

STANDARD OIL COMPANY of New Jersey got ahead of all other similar concerns the other day when its president signed an agreement with the German dye trust for the mutual exploitation and development of patents. The dye trust owns the Bergius process for making crude oil and gasoline from coal and lignite. The products of this process, it is expected, will be on the market soon. Also, the chemists predict that the by-products will yield rich returns. Although the details of the agreement were carefully guarded, there is a conjecture that many millions of dollars will flow from the United States to the fatherland as compensation for the dye trust's giving the Standard Oil the use of its patents.

KING FUAD of Egypt, on his way home from England, stopped in Rome for a visit and achieved the distinction of being the first sovereign of a non-Christian country to be formally received in private conference by the pope. Moreover, Pius XI decorated Fuad with the order of the Golden Spur, and the two exchanged miniature oil portraits of each other. The pope sent an elaborate escort for Fuad, but the latter, who had been the guest of the Italian government, had first to move to a hotel.

RESUMPTION of military operations in the Chinese civil war were seen in the mobilization by the Christian general, Feng Yu-hsiang, of 50,000 of his best troops on the border between Honan and Shantung provinces. He plans a flank movement against the northern troops controlling Shantung.

Seemingly the Japanese have failed to force a compromise between Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, the Nanking commander of Nationalists, and Marshal Chang Tso-lin. A Shanghai correspondent says:

"Since the Japanese are policing the entire Shantung railway for the obvious purpose of blocking a movement northward, complications are almost inevitable, particularly since General Chiang already has declared his intention of treating the Japanese troops the same as the northern militarists if the Japanese try to interfere. General Chiang recently seized several shiploads of German war supplies intended for Marshal Chang."

INDIANA wets rejoiced when Rev. E. S. Shumaker, superintendent of the state Anti-Saloon league, was adjudged in contempt by the state Supreme court and was sentenced to 60 days on the state farm and fined $250. Jess E. Martin, an attorney for the league, also was found guilty of contempt, but was not sentenced, being absent from the state. Legal steps to save Shumaker from serving his sentence were taken at once. The prohibitionists of the state and some ministerial organizations rallied to his support with offers of sympathy and money.

FAIR BREAKS RECORD

Bigger and Better Than The Best Ever.

Indications this week are that the seventy-third annual Iowa State Fair, which opens at Des Moines August 24 for ten days, will be the biggest in point of entries, amusement features, and attendance of any state fair in Iowa's history, and one of the biggest in the history of the entire country.

In fact, the plans for this year's exposition are on such gigantic scale that it is almost impossible to condense a description of them in any moderate space.

Probably the biggest feature will be the National Livestock Show which will comprise nearly 6,000 head of champion horses, cattle, swine and sheep valued at more than $2,000,000. Nearly all of the most famous breeding farms in the United States from the Pacific Coast to New England are represented in this year's entries. The list includes two of the national champion dairy cattle. One of these is the national champion milk producing cow and the other the national champion butter producing cow. These two cows will be on exhibition only and will not compete in the contests. The show also includes more than 1,000 calves, pigs, sheep and poultry raised by the boy and girl farmers of the state.

Another big feature of the fair will be the agricultural and farm produce show which will occupy one entire building. This includes farm project exhibits by thirty-one different farm bureaus, county and individual farm exhibits of grain and garden products, a complete horticultural exposition of apples, plums, nuts, other orchard products, and a big gladiolus show of approximately 500,000 blooms.

The second Annual Iowa Boys and Girls' 4-H Club Congress, in which more than 1,000 boys and girls from farms throughout the state will compete in exhibits, judging contests and demonstrations for statewide championships and more than $11,000 in cash prizes.

A big feeder cattle exhibit showing the types of stock which are the most profitable for the farmer, and the various rations which produce the best gains in feeding out such stock.

A mid season motor show of more than 100 different models of automobiles, trucks and tractors.

John Philip Sousa and His 70-Piece Band will appear in three concerts daily from August 27 through September 2.

JOHN PHILIP SOUSA.

Five other widely known orchestras, bands and drum corps in continuous concerts each day of the fair.

Five days of horse racing for purses totaling more than $20,000, including one full afternoon of running races, Saturday, August 27.

PETER MANNING.

Peter Manning, 1:56¾, world's champion trotting horse, in a special race for a new world record on the Iowa State Fair track Wednesday afternoon, August 31.

SIG HAUGDAHL.

Two big days of auto races, August 27 and September 2, with eighteen of the world's most famous dirt track drivers competing for big purses.

Six days of whippet dog racing with more than 100 fast dogs entered from the eastern courses.

Four nights of Society Horse Shows in which the finest show horse stables in the country will compete for prizes totaling more than $10,000.

Improved Uniform International

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D.D., Dean, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)
(©, 1927, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for August 21

GOD'S PROMISE TO DAVID

LESSON TEXT—I Chron., chapter 17.

GOLDEN TEXT—Thy throne, O God, is forever and ever a sceptre of righteousness as the sceptre of thy kingdom.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God's Promise to David.

JUNIOR TOPIC—How God Rewarded David.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How God Gives Us the Better Things.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—God's Great Promises.

I. David Desires to Build a House for God (vv. 1, 2).

Having subdued all his enemies, David sat down in his new and beautiful house to meditate. While thus musing, he is led to see the incongruity of dwelling in a house of cedar while the Lord's place was so common. A truly devout soul cannot be content to dwell in personal ease and luxury while the Lord's work is neglected. David's proposition met with Nathan's approval, but the next day he came with definite instructions from the Lord regarding it.

II. David's Desire Denied (vv. 3-8).

While fully appreciating David's motive, the Lord disapproved his plan. The rejection of his plan was not because of his nonappreciation of David, for He had taken him from the lowest walks of life and elevated him to the highest place among men. He assured him also that the cause would not suffer because of this change of plan. Two reasons may be assigned for God's prohibition of David's plan.

1. David was a man of war (I Chron 22:8; 28:3).

Since the kingdom of God is to be a peaceful kingdom, it was not fitting that a man of war should build the capital city. This was not a reproach of David for being a man of war. The enemies of the Lord must of necessity be put down. No peace or rest could be to God's people till the enemies were subdued. It showed, rather, that David had done his work and that the time had now come for another to take it up.

2. The time and circumstances were not fully ripe.

God's house should be a great house, therefore it would require a man's best energies to build it. The nation's treasury was no doubt much depleted by the wars. Since much money would be required, ample time was necessary to enable the people to accumulate funds.

III. The Lord Pledged Himself to Do More Than David Proposed (vv. 9-15).

1. David was to have a great name (v. 8).

David's name has gone down in history as one of the great men of the earth. It was a long way from herding his father's sheep to the throne of this great nation.

2. Israel to be established in a central place (v. 9).

The nation was not again to be moved away, nor to be wasted by the children of wickedness.

3. He was to enjoy God's continued favor and help (v. 10).

All his enemies were to be subdued.

4. Perpetuation of the kingdom in David's line (vv. 11-14).

(1) "Build thee a house."

This means a granting unto him of a posterity, a family line. David proposed to build a temple as a place in which to worship God. God purposed to establish the kingdom in David's line. This was to be perpetuated in David's seed after him.

(2) "Establish his throne" (v. 12).

This means the placing of him in a position of royal authority.

(3) The kingdom was to be perpetual (vv. 13, 14).

He was to be settled in his kingdom forever. Disobedience to God would be visited with chastisement (II Sam. 7:15), but the covenants were not to be abrogated. Chastisement has followed, but David's seed is destined to occupy the throne (Luke 1:31-33; Acts 15:14-17).

IV. David's Worship (vv. 16-27).

In his actual worship, note:

1. His humility (vv. 16-18).

Those who really worship God approach Him with great humility.

2. His praise (vv. 19, 20).

Out of a heart of gratitude he praised God for His faithfulness and grace.

3. His gratitude (vv. 21, 22).

He had an appreciation of God's fidelity and expressed his gratitude to Him for it.

4. His petition (vv. 23-27).

All praise and expressions of gratitude but lead up to the offering of definite petitions to God.

Peace of the Heart

Thou art the true peace of the heart; Thou art its only rest; out of Thee all things are full of trouble and unrest. In this peace that is in Thee, the one chiefest eternal good, I will lay down and sleep.—Thomas a Kempis.

Unselfishness

Unselfishness is a crown that scintillates glory long after the wearer has gone to his eternal reward.—Baptist Record.

Green's August Flower

is a mild laxative, and has been for sixty years for the relief of constipation, indigestion and similar stomach disorders. A trial will convince you of its merit. 30c and 90c bottles. At all druggists. G. G. Green, Woodbury, N. J.

Keep Stomach and Bowels Right

By giving baby the harmless, pure vegetable, infants' and children's regulator brings astonishing, gratifying results in making baby's stomach digest food and bowels move as they should at teething time. Guaranteed free from narcotics, opiates, alcohol and all harmful ingredients. Safe and satisfactory.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SYRUP

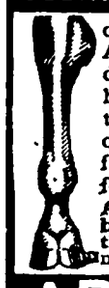
At All Druggists

Hanford's Balsam of Myrrh

For Cuts, Burns, Bruises, Sores

Money back for first bottle if not suited. All dealers

CLEAN OFF A BOG SPAVIN



or thoroughpin promptly with Absorbine. It is penetrating but does not blister nor remove the hair. You can work the horse the same time. $2.50 at druggists or postpaid. Describe your case for special instructions. Write for valuable horse book 4-S free.

A user writes. "Had one horse with bog spavin on both hind legs. One bottle Absorbine cleaned them off. He is now going sound and well."

ABSORBINE

TRADE MARK REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

W. F. YOUNG, Inc. 510 Lyman St., Springfield, Mass.

FRECKLES

can be removed. For real satisfaction use Dr. C. H. Berry Co's Freckle Ointment. It does the work. Ask your dealer or mail prepaid. $1.25 and 65c.

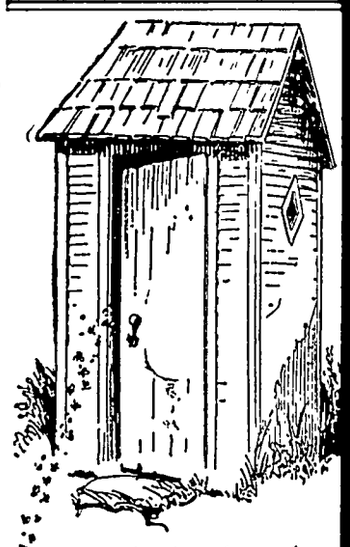
BEAUTY BOOKLET FREE

DR. C. H. BERRY CO.
2975 Michigan Ave. CHICAGO

Old Bank Note

The oldest note at present in possession of the Bank of England is dated December 19, 1699, and is £555.

Minor princes and chiefs of India wear squeaky shoes to impress their barefooted subjects. A British firm specializes in shoes that squeak loudly.



Here's the place where flies and disease germs breed

but it's easy and inexpensive to get rid of them this proven way

Flies and disease germs breed and live in filth. And flies carry the disease germs—especially those of typhoid fever—wherever they go, contaminating even the food you eat.

Physicians and health authorities everywhere recommend this simple method of getting rid of these deadly flies and germs: Simply sprinkle a can of pure, high-test Lewis' Lye in nothing else—into your outside toilet once a week. It kills disease germs instantly, absolutely prevents flies from breeding. Also removes objectionable odors and destroys rats.

Use pure Lewis' Lye this way regularly, especially during the summer and fall—and get your neighbors to use it. Remember that a single case of typhoid—even one that should not result fatally—will cost more than thousands of cans of Lewis' Lye.

Lewis' Lye is sold by reliable grocers. If you are unable to secure it from your nearest grocer, take no chances with substitutes, send us a postoffice money order for $1.80 and we will send you by express a dozen cans—a three months' supply.

In any case, send us your name on a postal card and we will mail you our book—"The Truth About a Lye"—containing hundreds of uses for lye and valuable recipes. Also our booklet on the prevention of Typhoid, Cholera, and a free sample of our new cleanser and water-softener—Perfex.

PENNSYLVANIA SALT MFG. CO.
Dept. 181
Philadelphia, Pennsylvania

You can't be sure of success unless you use

LEWIS' LYE

Send for FREE Books

YRIGHT by The PENN PUBLISHING CO.

TORY FROM THE START

arth Guthrie, Canadian war eran, having to live in the on account of weakened s, is factor of a Hudson's post at Elkwan. He came k from the conflict with a manently scarred face, which realizes cost him the love of fiancee, Edith Falconer. Sir rles Guthrie, his brother, is a illionaire war profiteer. With anne Savanne, halfbreed, his friend, Garth meets Doctor arrier, geologist, and his sis- Joan. Their schooner has fted ashore. Quarrier com- ins he has been robbed by a known as "Laughing Mc- ald." At Elkwan an Indian l, Ninda, tuberculosis victim, om Garth has befriended, is ng.

CHAPTER II—Continued

—4—

cause, at present, my duty is as you can see."

the man, whose intimate edge of the inanimate had ngly taught him little of men, ed rawly:

ur duty? Yes, I suppose when ur people get yourselves into a of this kind," he nodded toward oor, "you feel you have to see it gh."

n Quarrier rose from her chair, ed by the stupid brutality of emark—fearful of the retribution erved. Eyes black with anger, rie glared at his guest, who, sen- of his mistake, grinned sheep- , then flushed to the roots of his hair. The muscles in the face of factor knotted, the veins in the n neck above the flannel shirt ed with blood in his efforts at control.

—I went too far," Quarrier bled. "I didn't mean, of course—" he was cut off short with:

our bed is in the trade-house! know the way!"

e long arm of Guthrie pointed to door.

r a space Quarrier stared into the eyes; then, stung by the outrage s dignity, got to his feet in angry st.

What do you mean? You dare in- me—order me out of your house an inferior?" But there was in the face of the man whose arm indicated the door which wrung bluster from the geologist as wa- s wrung from a rag.

ou'll hear from this—this conduct ours. I'll report this to your su- ors," protested Quarrier, as he ed out of the room.

uthrie turned to the girl, who was ly swept by shame—stirred by an tion which left her weak, clouded fixed on the man who said in a e still thick with anger:

m sorry, Miss Quarrier—so sorry. went—too far."

ou were right—he was impos- e," she agreed in a voice raw with ust, with a slow nod of the dark . "He has always blundered— ys failed to understand."

want to tell you about her."

e turned on him almost fiercely. you think I, also, do not under- d?" she demanded.

r a space he searched her tense, e face; then replied, cryptically, u have served with the wounded; enough."

e went to the door and whispered ld Anne. Then he began:

She came here in June with some was, from far beyond the Elkwan waters, for this is a Cree coun- They were not her own people, convinced, but one of the men med to be her father. She was sure, for she had grown up with —didn't even know her age, but can't be more than eighteen. Old found her sick in a tipi—half neglected. We took her in, and a time the canned milk and the h worked a miracle. She was py—too; that helped.

When the trade was over and the dians started for their summer ps, they demanded her—and she ld hardly walk a hundred yards thout resting. Of course, they didn't lly want her; their purpose was nold me up. They asked for every- g in the store. They always do en such a thing happens—an In- girl stays behind, at the factor's rters.

You see they thought this was the situation—so did the Crees—in e of what Anne told them. They dn't understand. Well, I finally ry of her people—kicked them For weeks she was so happy."

uthrie tiptoed to the sickroom r, looked in, and returned.

In her last conversation with the lan who called himself her father, eard her repeatedly say 'Nin da, da!' She was so earnest about it. sked Etienne what it meant, and he d me it was Ojibwa for 'I stay here.' Pretty, isn't it? Nin da, I dwell here. She has chosen her home. So we called her Ninda. She was one of us.

"Miss Quarrier," went on the man whose face had softened—grown boyish, "it fairly tore my heart—the happiness, the gratitude of that sick child. Those big eyes of hers followed me like a dog's. I had rescued her, no doubt, from unspeakable misery. . . . It was only natural, I suppose.

"After a few weeks she began to fail, and in August, when they called me to Albany, I couldn't throw off the memory of the despair in her eyes when I left. You see she feared she would not live until I returned—wanted me there when it came. Her eyes haunted me—every mile of the coast.

"This last time when I went, she bade me good-by—was sure that it was the end. But we needed the geese—we had to go. . . . I've seen men die—my friends; but those wistful eyes! . . . It's tragic. . . . and she so young."

Guthrie stopped his pacing to run his fingers nervously through his dark hair.

"Oh, the dumb misery, here in the north! Think if she'd stayed with her people, to die in a tipi—neglected! I'm thankful if I've eased the loneliness—the pain—for one."

The sound of coughing, followed by Old Anne's frightened face in the doorway, summoned them to the other room. The effects of the opiate had worn off. The woman who had "served with the wounded" wiped the crimsoned lips that moved in vain attempt at utterance, as the large eyes, bright with fever, clung to the face of the man who sat beside the cot.

"You go to bed, Anne," said Guthrie to the wrinkled Cree. "I will be here the rest of the night." With muttered protest the old woman shuffled from the room.

Presently the dry lips of the sick girl again moved. "She wants to say something," said the nurse, and left them.

Guthrie bent over the pillow.

"You go—no more?" he faintly heard.

He smiled into the questioning eyes, as he shook his head. "No more—Ninda."

The heavy lids slowly drooped.

Through the slow hours of the night they sat beside the waif, who, out of the wilderness had come to Elkwan, and was now—returning. And in the intervals between her ministrations to the life which was slipping away, the guest of Guthrie learned much of the man with whom she shared the night watch.

In the candor of his explanation of the presence of the Indian girl at Elkwan, he had unconsciously revealed to the curious woman who studied him, intimate glimpses of heart. The emblem of the Distinguished Service order which he wore in the photograph in his bedroom vouched for his caliber as a soldier. But why, she mused, did the brother of the rich Charles Guthrie linger in the wilderness of the west coast when a girl of such loveliness as her three photographs suggested waited for his return? For the nature of their relations was established beyond doubt by the written sentiment on the photographs. Yet, his health returned, he seemed to be deliberately staying on in the north. What was behind it all, wondered Joan Quarrier; not pity for this poor child, who, in the manner of her kind, had given him worship for the only kindness life had vouchsafed her. That, clearly, would have anchored Guthrie at Elkwan while Ninda lived, but in face of the fact that the girl was desperately ill—could not live into the autumn, he had prepared to winter on the west coast. Why?

So, together, they kept their watch, where, through the halting hours, the spirit of the waif of the forests hovered, awaiting release. Once, after a paroxysm of coughing, the veil of delirium lifted and there was a moment of consciousness. He leaned to her and the fear which looked from the groping eyes faded as she recognized the scarred cheek. The wraith of a smile touched the drawn mouth.

As the stars paled above the purple tundra of Akimiski, again she recognized the face of Guthrie. Her lips moved. His straining ears caught a faint "Bo-jo," the Ojibwa farewell. . . . Then a crimsoned froth welled from the tortured lungs.

Joan Quarrier left him with his dead.

When she returned with Old Anne crooning her grief, she touched him on the shoulder.

"You must go now. We will care for her."

For a space he stood beside the cot, then said:

"Good-by, Ninda. As you wished it, you will stay—here, with your friends." He turned cryptically to the nurse. "She was a soldier; she did not flinch from wounds," and went out, followed by the puzzled eyes of the other.

Then, outside, in the cool dusk of the clearing rose a wail, mournful, unearthly, followed by another and another.

Joan Quarrier's face appeared in the doorway of the living room.

"It's too ghastly," she said with a shiver. "How do they know?"

"They always know—always wail for the dead." And he went out to quiet the dogs.

At the gate of the stockade stood the airedale, joining the huskies in their threnody under the fading stars. At Guthrie's command, the dog stopped and trotting up, with a muffled whine thrust his moist nose into his master's hand.

"Ninda's gone, Shot."

CHAPTER III

Daylight found man and dog on the high river shore. At times the man spoke to the airedale, who, sensing his master's mood, repeatedly returned from short excursions to nuzzle Guthrie's hand. Again and again, before the light came, the whimpering huskies had taken up their wailing, to be checked by the man on guard, whose thoughts traversed the swift weeks of the summer.

Out of the silent places, this doomed child of the valiant heart had come, and now—into the silence had gone. What must have been her despair, he thought, to have left her people and sought sanctuary among strangers. But it had been friends she had found.

But what a miracle to have had that schooner driven on Akimiski with the girl who had shared the watch with him! What a solace and rock she had been—those fine, straight-gazing dark eyes, and capable hands. It was because she had understood—had resented his thinking it necessary to explain the situation at Elkwan that he had been able to talk so freely of Ninda. She had proved her mettle—she, too, was a soldier. He pictured Ethel, with her horror of the ugly, thrown into the situation which Joan Quarrier had calmly met with delicacy and skill.

"You See He Found Two of Us."

That afternoon Etienne and Guthrie erected a spruce cross over the fresh grave in the little post cemetery and on the white wood of the arm, Guthrie burned with a hot iron the inscription: "In Memory of Ninda—A Soldier," which for years was to be the cause of much shaking of puzzled heads among the whites and the Crees who saw it.

At dawn the following morning, Guthrie's York boat with a Peterboro canoe in tow, slowly picked its way through the river mist of the Elkwan delta. In the stern, steering with a sweep hewn from a spruce sapling, stood the wiry Etienne, who knew the channels of the river mouths and the depths of the shoal coast from the Raft to Albany. To give the craft steerage way on the first of the ebb, the sailors of the shipwrecked schooner manned four long oars. In the bow, the geologist, still smarting from his humiliation, talked in low tones to his sailing master. Beside the steersman stood Guthrie, holding a compass, for the shores were invisible. Near him, with forefeet on the rail the airedale peered into the white wall of mist, his black nostrils dilating as he caught, at intervals, on the moist air, scents vague, illusive, enticing.

"You are losing valuable time from your goose hunt by taking us to Albany in your boat," suggested Joan Quarrier to Guthrie, who had found a seat beside her.

"After what you've done, I could not send you off in that ship's boat. You might have been days making Albany—had serious trouble getting ashore to make camp if the wind changed. It's a tricky coast. You're not much like your dignified brother," he answered, his face lighting in amusement as he glanced toward the sulking Quarrier. "He's hardly worrying about our goose supply for the winter."

The clean-cut mouth of the man beside her curled in the smile she had come to associate with the factor of Elkwan. Then her eyes, shifting to the dim ribbon of spruce edging the marshes, saw the face of the girl of the photograph at the post, and she wondered what was behind it all.

He studied the profile of Joan Quarrier, the musing eyes with the strongly marked brows, the half-parted lips, the frame of chestnut hair shot with gold. Fine, it was, he thought with the beauty of expression; but above its comeliness of line and skin—the stamp of strength, the essence of character. The absent look faded from her eyes.

"I can understand on a day like this," she said, "what you mean by this gray coast holding you. It's so untouched—so primeval. It seems almost as if we were the first to see it."

"It's like this for a thousand miles—the west coast," he replied, "with a few fur posts at the mouths of the rivers."

"A thousand miles of silence—except the call of the geese."

"You won't be here for the Black Brant and the Grand geese. They are the last to reach the west coast—they and the swans."

"Swans?"

He nodded. "You haven't heard the voice of the raw solitudes if you've missed the trumpeting of the swans, high against the October stars."

"Man, you're growing poetic."

"The swans and the gray geese," he went on, "typifying it all—the silence, the loneliness, the beauty."

For a space she sat, chin in hand, heavy brows contracted. Then she looked up with: "Like so many, the din and excitement of the war—the disillusion of its aftermath, has left you with abnormal nerves. This loneliness which attracts you now will make a hermit of you—a brooding eccentric. Go back to Montreal before it's too late."

"Not until I've had it out with Laughing McDonald," he laughed.

"But whatever do you do in winter here? You'll admit it's forlorn enough then. Is it hard to keep warm in this terrible cold?"

"Cold? Why, it's colder on the north shore of Superior, and there's not as much snow. Of course when the wind blows it's cold on the sea ice. It's cold anywhere then."

"And so you're actually not lonely," she persisted, "I've heard of men going mad."

"Oh, of course, there are times—" His wind-burned face darkened as he avoided her look. "But there are compensations, you know. Shot!" The airedale left the rail and pushing between Guthrie's knees, lifted his whiskered muzzle with a throaty rumble, his eyes searching his master's face.

"Here is one. I couldn't be lonely with Shot, could I, old man?"

His tail beating the air, the nose of the airedale wrinkled in a display of formidable face smiling down at him.

"He worships you, doesn't he?" said the girl.

"We went through the last months together—comrades. You see he found two of us—gassed—and brought help."

The brown hands of Guthrie rubbed the airedale's small ears. Closing his eyes, Shot grunted in ecstacy.

"No, but we tire of pork, so when the goose is gone, go after caribou."

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Little Visible Charm in Captured Mermaid

That the belief in mermaids should have survived all these years is extraordinary; but there is another curious side to the matter—that each successive mermaid seen through the centuries seems to have been uglier than its predecessor.

Of this there can be no doubt if one contrasts the description of the "mermaid" of the ancient Greeks with those of more recent times.

In an account of a "mermaid" captured off the coast of Natal, a writer describes it as having screamed like a woman when caught, and goes on to state that it had seven ribs on each side, lungs, kidneys and a heart about the size of an ox heart. According to the writer, the "mermaid" was 11 feet long, had a huge tail instead of legs, lacked a tongue and teeth, but had a heavy chin, flat nose, eyes, and a kind of hair that grew in tufts. Not a very prepossessing "mermaid"!

It is more than probable that this 800-pound monster was a dugong, which, though once a land dweller, is now an inhabitant of the sea and undoubtedly responsible for many of the "mermaid" legends.

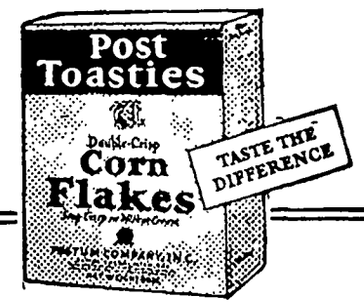
Slow Progression

The transformation in the United States from a low order of industrial organization to a higher order did not begin until the first half of the Nineteenth century and its full effects were not felt until the second decade after the Civil war.

Old Federal Bureau

The work of the bureau of engraving when started in 1862 by the first chief, with one male assistant and four female operatives, occupied one room in the attic of the west wing at Fifteenth street and Pennsylvania avenue, Washington. There was a gradual increase and by 1878 there was no additional space available for the growing bureau, and on June 30, 1878, congress appropriated $300,000 for the purchase of the site at Fourteenth and B streets, southwest, for the erection of a building, which now stands. The building was completed and occupied July 1, 1880.

Egotism spares one many wounds.



Ask for

POST TOASTIES

They stay crisp in milk or cream

Delicious hearts of corn toasted oven-brown and double-crisp

During these warm days, enjoy the cool and crunchy crispness of Post Toasties. Made from the hearts of succulent white corn, these delicious flakes are delicately seasoned, and toasted double-crisp by the special process of the Postum Company. They stay crisp in milk or cream down to the last inviting flake in breakfast bowl or luncheon dish. Serve Post Toasties often these summer days. You'll find a cooling freshness in their double-crispness and an appetizing goodness in their true corn flavor. Make sure that you get double-crisp Post Toasties that stay crisp in milk or cream. Ask for Post Toasties, in the red and yellow, wax-wrapped package that keeps them fresh and crisp.

© 1927, P. Co., Inc.

POSTUM COMPANY, INC., BATTLE CREEK, MICH.

Earliest Lifeboat

In 1785 Lionel Lukin, a coachmaker of an inland town near London, put afloat on the Thames a Norway yawl which he had fitted with water-tight compartments, a heavy iron keel and other essentials in buoyancy and stability, which are the cardinal and requisite features of the life boat of today.

Raleigh's Restless Spirit?

Beddington church, Survey, England, in which Sir Walter Raleigh is believed to have been married to the niece of Sir F. Carew, is to be restored. The headless ghost of Sir Walter is said to have been seen in the churchyard.

Life can never be wholly sunshine.

"And at the foot of the rainbow they found the treasure—Monarch Cocoa and Teenie Weenie Peanut Butter sandwiches. 'So much better than gold,' they exclaimed, 'for we can't eat gold—and we're so hungry.'"

Monarch is the only nationally advertised brand of QUALITY FOOD PRODUCTS sold exclusively through the men who own and operate their own stores.

EVERY genuine Monarch package bears the Lion Head, the oldest trademark in the United States covering a complete line of the world's finest food products—Coffee, Tea, Cocoa, Catsup, Pickles, Peanut Butter, Canned Fruits and Vegetables, and other superior table specialties.

REID, MURDOCH & CO.
Established 1853
Chicago Pittsburgh Boston New York Jacksonville Tampa Los Angeles

MONARCH
Quality for 70 Years

Trains Vacuum-Cleaned

Using the principle employed by some garages in this country for quick cleaning of automobiles, a railway in France has installed large vacuum tunnels for its cars. All that is necessary is to pull a train through an archway lined with brushes and vacuum-cleaning attachments, which are operated automatically, and the cars are thoroughly cleaned and polished when they emerge.

He's So Natural

Fair playgoer, to friend examining poster of famous actor—Whose Hamlet do you like best, dear?

Friend—Oh, Shakespeare's, by all means.—Montreal Family Herald.

There are many records of hens producing 300 or more eggs in a year, but the average annual yield in the United States is only 72.

Might Spare a Few

It is said that never was there a gentler critic than Doctor McClintock of Dickinson college. One day a young orator presented his speech for Doctor McClintock's approval. He evidently did not anticipate adverse criticism.

He received it, nevertheless, given in the doctor's gentle, humorous way, which never could offend.

"It's a good speech," he said, "but there is, perhaps, a little too much of a certain sort of rhetoric. For instance, I find two midnight owls, two midnight wolves, three American eagles and four unfurled banners. It seems to me the supply exceeds the demand."

Diplomatic

Grocer—"What do you think of these eggs?" Customer—"Too small for their age."

Ye Gods! Another Atrocity

Flyosan still killing flies and mosquitoes by the millions

ARE you still fighting flies and mosquitoes by swatting them one at a time? Or do you use Flyosan—original and best liquid spray (non-poisonous)—which wipes them out by the wholesale?

Mosquitoes and the common house-fly, the deadliest pests that invade the home, are loaded with millions of disease germs.

"Swatting" them scatters these deadly germs into the air which you and your family breathe.

Flyosan floats through your rooms. It destroys all these germs as well as all the flies and mosquitoes which carry them.

Here is the right insecticide for each insect:

FLYOSAN, Liquid Spray—kills flies and mosquitoes.

PETERMAN'S ANT FOOD—exterminates ants.

PETERMAN'S DISCOVERY, Liquid—exterminates bed-bugs.

PETERMAN'S ROACH FOOD—exterminates that cockroach army.

PETERMAN'S MOTH FOOD—protects against moths.

You must have a specific insecticide for each insect. No single insecticide will exterminate them all. We have had nearly 50 years' experience. We know that is true.

Peterman's has the right insecticide for each insect. On sale wherever drugs are sold.

Peterman's
200 Fifth Ave., N. Y. C.

Miss Marie Gauger left Wednesday to visit at Giard. Charles City, and Rudd

The Fall Term opens Tuesday, September the 6th The Hamilton University Mason City, Iowa. 1tc

Mrs John Schuler and son, Edgar, of Sioux City, called at the Rev. Gauger and Ed Schaefer homes on Monday evening.

Henry Lemke is on a forced vacation, being not so well and Joe E. Johnson is temporarily taking his place at the elevator

Mrs. Fred Blackstone and daughter Maude called on Miss Marie Gauger Monday evening.

"Kelly" Lauden is driving a new Essex sedan which he purchased last week.

Mrs. Harry Gram and daughter, and Mrs. George Ulrich report they are enjoying their visit in Clayton County.

Miss Fern Capellan, of Dows, came Friday for an over Sunday visit with her cousin, Miss Marie Gauger

News of Klemme and Vicinity

Dr. R. W. Specht, Dentist, Garner, Iowa. adv

A baby girl was born to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Neuhring Friday night.

Mr and Mrs D. D. Ross, of Garner, were visiting with Klemme relatives last Thursday evening.

WANTED—A Spaderdisk in good running order. Inquire at the Times Office 1tc

Mrs Fred Ridder and daughters, Neota and Mrs. S. A. Harvey were visiting at Mason City Monday.

Art Shook's dance here will be postponed from August 23rd to the 6th of September Karl Kraus. 1c

This vicinity had a heavy roin on Tuesday morning and a number of light showers during the day.

Frank and Donald Gibbs drove to Sioux City, Iowa, last Thursday, returning Saturday. They went to make arrangements for attending college this fall.

John Christians returned Sunday from San Jose, Ill., where he was called to attend the funeral of his niece, Anna Kleen, held there last Wednesday.

Dr. George Zinn was entertained at a Kartoffel-Pfannkuchen dinner at the home of Grandma Schroeder and Mrs. Marlin Croner Tuesdoy. "Doc' says he enjoyed the rare treat.

Ben Swalve, Sr. and bride returned last Thursday from Freeport, Ill. where they were married. That evening the charivari gang serenaded them for the forthcoming treats and to extend congratulations.

Mr and Mrs. C. G. Waterman and Marian drove to Clarion Thursday evening to take Mrs. Mary Waterman there to take a train for Iowa City She has been visiting in Klemme for three weeks.

Howard Terhufen and Frank Terhuten left early Saturday morning for Fertile, Minn., for a visit there with Frank's brother, Will for a few days when they expect to go to the North Dakota wheat fields to thresh Frank usually lands a good job up there as engineer.

266 students placed in positions from January 1 to August 1, 1927 That is your guarantee of a good position if you attend The Hamilton University, Mason City, Iowa.

Mr and Mrs Sam Harvey and daughter, Enid, returned Sunday afternoon from their five weeks visit with Mr. Harvey's relatives at Bloomfield, New Jersey. Enroute they toured and camped and visited places of interest including Niagra Falls. They report they had a fine trip and had paving all the way except in Iowa.

"Pickles" Gibbs and 'Wearie Christie returned last Wednesday afternoon from their two weeks trip in Northern Minnesota and Canada Their destination was Winnipeg and they report it was a beautiful place They found good roads all the way and had no trouble, outside of the fact they had to drive back from Emmons, Minn. to Goodell when "Wearie" discovered he had left his pocketbook there.

Wm Lau and son Emil might have received more serious injuries the other day while threshing at the latter's place south of town . Wm. and Emil were working in the granary where they have an engine to elevate the grain In putting the belt on while the engine was running something happened. All t once the air was full f flying belts, boards and timbers and both Emil and Wm. received some severe and painful bruises from the flying belt and lumber. However, they are glad it was no worse.

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Jorgenson and son, Buster, and William Gauger, left early Friday morning for Lincoln, Nebraska for a visit with Mrs. Jorgenson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Titus Davis and other relatives and friends. R. A. Jorgenson and Wm. Gauger returned to Klemme Sunday evening but Mrs. Jorgenson and Buster remained at Lincoln for a longer visit. Today they expeot to take the train for Kansas City for a visit there. R. A. Jorgenson and C. G. Waterman and family drove to Kansas City this morning and will return with them the first of the week.

Miss Martha Muehlmeier Married At Monticello, Wis., Aug. 11th

Klemme friends have received announcements of the marriage of Miss Martha Muehlmeier, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. A. Muehlmeier, of Monticello, Wis, to Mr. John S. Richards, on Thursday, August 11

Rev. Muehlmeier is an uncle of Rev. Calvin Grosshuesch, and was the pastor of the Reformed church here from about 1901 to 1909. Miss Martha is a twin and was one of the oldest children in the family.

Klemme friends extend congratulations.

Mr and Mrs Albert Schroeder, Mrs Henry Schroeder and Mrs. John son returned to Chicago Saturday morning after visiting in Klemme for about a week.

FALL OF TROY DEPICTED

Des Moines, Special: Some of the most famous battle scenes of history and one of the most famous love romances of all time are to form the background for the huge fireworks spectacle "The Fall of Troy", which will headline the evening entertainment program of the 1927 Iowa State Fair, August 24 to September 2.

The big spectacle will center around the story of the famous love affair between Helen of Sparta and Paris, which culminated in the carrying off of the most famous beauty in the world and the consequent ten year's siege of Troy. The great climax of the spectacle will depict the entry of the famous wooden horse within the walls of Troy and the ultimate destruction of the Trojans through this ruse. The staging of this production will require the construction and demolition of the walls, palaces and buildings of an entire city each day of the fair, and will require the use of many tons of fireworks and approximately 500 actors. The battle scenes and pageantry of the production are said to be the most elaborate ever planned by the Iowa fair management.

FUN-MAKER.

Here is one of the fifteen Hippodrome and Circus attractions which the Iowa State Fair has gathered from all corners of the continent to provide amusement for the thousands of spectators at the big exposition in Des Moines, August 24th to September 2. This is the latest portrait of Will Morris, the bicycling clown, newest sensation of the big circuses.

Only one car load of live stock was shipped out of here Saturday night, quite a come-down from the week before when nine car loads of stock were shipped. The Klemme Shipping Association handled one car load of hogs Saturday night.

Mesdames Aaron Greiman and F. Pavey were hostesses to the Ladies Aid Society at the Parrish home last Thursday afternoon A n lunch was served at the close the business meeting.

Office:— Masonic Bldg. GARNER, IOWA.

Phones:— Office, 149-J. Res., 149-L.

Dr. E. H. Phillips
OSTEOPATHIC PHYSICIAN

Physiotherapy, including Osteopathic treatment, diathermy, surgical diathermy, radiant heat, high frequency, chlorine gas and auto-condensation.

BAYSIDE
AMUSEMENT PARK
——Clear Lake, Iowa——
— PROGRAM —
——SUNDAY, AUGUST 21st——

2500 foot parachute drop from aeroplane by William Harris, colored man Only colored man in the world doing it. Motorcycle Polo Game at 1:30 P. M. Wisconsin Reds vs. Iowa Whites. Ball Game at 3 o'clock, Modern Woodmen of Waterloo vs. Mason City O-P team. Manchester Girls Band afternoon and evening concerts.

DANCES

At Bayside on Wednesday and Friday Nights. At White Pier on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday nights.

ROLLER SKATING at Bayside Daily.

AT BAYSIDE——Best bathing beach on Lake, bath house, toboggan slide, roller coaster, little train, new fun house, merry-go-round, ferris wheel, fortune teller, concessions, free picnic grounds and tables, children's playgrounds, boats, fishing.

FUN FOR ALL ALL FOR FUN
— Policed Parking Grounds For Cars 15c —

Coal

We have filled our bins with all kinds of Coal. We can supply you with Threshing Coal at reasonable prices. Now is the time to put in your supply of Furnace Coal for the winter. High grade coal for ranges, too.

Twine

We still have some Twine on hand at the low price for cash of, per pound—

13½c

FEED

We have plenty of Oil Meal and Tankage on hand. Our grinder works every day if you want oyur own feed ground here.

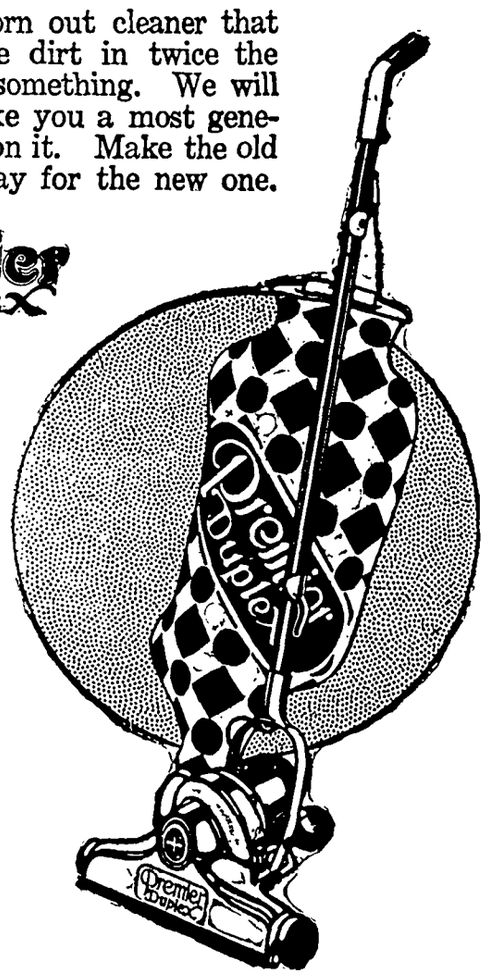
Klemme Co-Operative Grain Co.

LIBERAL ALLOWANCE
on your old cleaner
toward a new PREMIER DUPLEX

YOUR old worn out cleaner that gets half the dirt in twice the time, is worth something. We will take it and make you a most generous allowance on it. Make the old one help you pay for the new one.

Premier Duplex

This is the famous double action vacuum cleaner—the one that cleans by powerful suction and a motor driven brush. And it needs no oiling, for both motor and brush turn on ball bearings. It has many features that commend it to housewives.



Only
$5.00 down

The rest can be paid in easy payments over a year's time.

Central States Electric Co.

Now is the Time to Install Your Furnace For Winter

Now the time to order your Furnace and have it installed before the cold, damp days of fall begin and be ready for winter. We cary a full line of heating plants for any size home. Let us figure your requirments and quote you lowest prices:

PREMIER FURNACES
Pipeless Pipe Three-Way
Are Smokeless, Sootless and Dustless

GLOBE FURNACES
Pipeless Pipe Three-Way

GLOBE PARLOR FURNACES

For the house where it is not practical to install a furnace we recommend either a "Glo-Boy" or "Ray-Boy" Globe Parlor Furnace. You get furnace heat, air circulation and warmth in every room. Looks like a piece of furniture—cabinet style. Come in and let's give you some good pointers. We have them on display now.

Get Your Furnace And Stove Repairs And New Pipes Now!

E. F. Jacobs
"THE FARM SERVICE STORE"

Threshing Coal

Now is a good time to lay in your supply of Coal for Threshing.

We have our coal bins filled with a high grade of coal especially suited for your needs at threshing time—and the price is right on our coal.

We always carry a complete lne of all kinds of coal. Right now we are also featuring high grade coal for kitchen ranges.

A full line of all kinds of feed on hand.

North Iowa Grain Co.

Let The Times Do Your Printing

THE KLEMME TIMES

Fortieth Year—Number 2. KLEMME, IOWA, THURSDAY, AUGUST 25, 1927.

NORTH IOWA CORN LOOKING VERY GOOD

SOUTHERN IOWA CORN NOT SO GOOD THIS YEAR

Corn Near Kansas City and St. Joe Will Yield Heavy

As we stated in last week's Times we would give a further report on the corn crop through Iowa and part of Missouri.

After having traveled over quite a large area we have come to the conclusion that central and northern Iowa has nothing to "holler about" in the way of poor corn this year

And we further conclude that Hancock County has about as good a corn as any point south from here

Going south to Des Moines there is but little change in the appearance of the corn, although near Des Moines we saw several exceptionally fine looking corn fields that were further along than the average.

For a few miles south of Des Moines we found good corn, but very little oats and toward the Missouri line we ran out of both oats and good corn The corn in southern Iowa and Northern Missouri is very poor this year The stand is poor and the growth retarded considerable In this section the best crop is timothy hay and clover

Approaching the vicinity of St. Joseph, Mo., we again find some big fields of fine corn and continuing all the way to Kansas City. We took a trip east of Kansas City through Lexington and Excelsior Springs and the whole of this circle of over one hundred miles the corn fields looked beautiful The stand was good and the prospect for a large yield is most promising in that part of the state which is really the corn belt of Missouri We might add also that in this section we find many large stock farms and the principal type of cattle are the Herefords for feeders and Guernseys on the dairy farms.

Hancock County has nothing at all to worry about compared with other sections of the state and other parts of the country. With a late frost we will have a fair crop of corn The oats was fairly good and pasture and hay lands have been in good condition all spring and summer Some parts of the state have been dry and other sections have been flooded out.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

Klemme, Iowa,
July 7, 1927.

Regular meeting of town council held at the town hall.

All members of council present.

Motion made and seconded to allow the following bills:

L. E. Finn, June Salary	$75.00
L. A. Jorgenson, Publishing Council Proceedings	3.10
Henry Linne, Tiling	30.40
John Heginger, Hauling 61 Loads Gravel, and labor	64.10
Kitchen Auto Co, Supplies and Repairs	32.15
Northern Lbr Co., Brick Tile, etc	43.90
L. Larson, Typing Town Ordinances	4.05
Central States Elec. Co., June Str Lights	31.00
Jerry Gram Labor and Drayage	20.50
Hatt Parrott & Sons, Minute Book	7.11
C. E. Church, Bailey Pump Outfit	18.00

Bills allowed.

Bill of Iowa Union Telephone Co. not paid

Motion made by Suckow and seconded by Schuldt that: The Town of Klemme, Iowa, post a reward of One Hundred Dollars for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons responsible for threatening letters sent thru the mails to the members of the Council and for abusive literature written on the windows of the business places of Klemme, Iowa. Motion made in writing and signed by the Mayor and the Members of the Council.

Motion made by Larsen and seconded by Missman that the Commissioner's salary be raised ten dollars per month beginning July 1st, 1927, said raise to be in force only thru the pleasure of the council.

A committee was appointed by the mayor to look up a suitable pump for the water system.

Motion made that the meeting be adjourned

A. J Kudje, Clerk

Avery Twp. News

(Special Times Reporter)

Johnnie Trampel spent Sunday afternoon at the Will Johnson home

Harold Boren was a Sunday visitor at the Pat Fuller home.

Chris Anderson left Tuesday for Minneapolis, Minn, on business

Miss Vera Bachman has been sick during the past week.

School will start in District No 2 Monday, August 29, with Mrs Nettie Roths as teacher.

Mr and Mrs Fred Bochman and family were Sunday visitors at the Lathrop home near Belmond.

Mrs Rob Roths helped Mrs Walter Reed cook for threshers Saturday

Miss Margie Anderson left Wednesday for Ohio where she intends to make an extended visit.

Mr and Mrs. Fred Bachman and daughter returned Saturday from their trip to Lake Mille Lac, Minn

Robert Marshall has been spending some time at the home of his grandparents, the D A Marsholl family.

Mr and Mrs. Clyde Marshall and daughter, Dorothy were Sunday visitors at the D A and Herb Marshall home.

Mr and Mrs D A. Marshall are enjoying a visit from their daughter husbond and children from San Jose, Illinois.

Wava and Wayne Bachman attended the North Iowa Fair at Mason City Wednesday afternoon and evening

The Misses Florence ond Carrie Swalve were down Saturday to help Mrs Peter Trampel cook for threshers.

Mr and Mrs Alfred Merkel and family took Mrs. Merkel s father back to Des Moines Sunday after he spent a couple of weeks here.

A heavy rain and wind storm swept through this locality which did quite a bit of damage to corn, last Sunday The threshing was also delayed and is not finished yet

Mr and Mrs. John Trompel and daughters, Anna and Luella, of Blairsburg, were Sunday visitors at the Peter Trampel home The men are brothers

Mr and Mrs Ted Dutheridge and daughter Jane, John Ash, and Gertie and Johnnie Trampel were callers at the North Iowa Fair at Mason City Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bachman and daughter, Irene and Mr and Mrs. Clyde Marshall ond daughter Dorothy attended the North Iowa Fair at Mason City Friday.

Mr and Mrs. D. A. Marshall and son, Gilman, Mr. and Mrs Herb Marshall and daughter Irene and visiting relatives were all entertained as dinner guests at the Clyde Marshall home Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs Geo Lehenke of Manchester; Mr. and Mrs Ed. Timmons of Colesburg, and Mrs. Will Krause of Garner, visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Patet and Leonard Sampsons on Wednesday of this week. They reported seeing President and Mrs. Coolide and Mrs. Coolidge's fine dogs at the Black Hills Game Lodge.

JUSTICE SUCKOW PERFORMED EARLY MORNING MARRIAGE

Mason City Couples Can Get Real Service In Hancock County

In the wee small hours of Monday morning, to be more exact, about the hour of three a. m. and long before the first noisy rooster's crow, Judge Suckow was aroused from peaceful slumbers by an unearthly noise at his house in Northwest Klemme. As the "Judge" is a most sound sleeper at that time of night it took him a little time to fully wake up and in his haste to get dressed walked into a clothes closet and got all tangled up before his good wife came to his assistance and turned on a light so he could see Judge Suckow at first could not figure out what was going on and thought perhaps the Klan was gathering, or the town was on fire until someone shouted that they wanted to get married That brot H L out of his stupor and it was but a few minutes until Judge was dressed and had ushered the blushing couple and their witnesses into the parlor and Ray O. Redden and Miss Dorothy M. Walsh, both of Mason City were made man and wife in the Judge's best style

Judge Suckow was not the only one, however, to be aroused from a deep slumber early Monday morning Deputy Co Clerk J W Knadler, of Garner, was the first victim He was routed out at two a. m. to issue the marriage license.

H L. says he is on the job twenty four hours a day and is ready to tie a most secure knot night or day.

LINDY MAY RIDE FAST SPEEDER AT CLEAR LAKE SUNDAY

Speed Boat Races Again Big Feature On Bayside's Program

Col Charles A Lindbergh will be a guest Sunday, August 28th, of C. H. McNider, who has a cottage at Clear Lake Mr. McNider will use his speed boat to entertain the famous Lindy on Clear Lake a part of the day, Sunday Verne Petersen, who owns Clear Lake's fastest speed boat, Miss Betty, has offered it to Mr McNider for a while Sunday to entertain Lindy, his distinguished guest

Clear Lake speed launches and several from outside will race in front of Bayside Park Sunday afternoon for a number of cash prizes A representative of the Johnson Motor Co will probably be the starter

Other attractions which will be presented at Bayside Sunday include a concert band, ball game, free movies and other amusements.

NED HOWARD AND MINNIE MEDAUS MARRIED HERE

Mr Ned Howard and Miss Minnie Medaus were married at the Methodist Parsonage Tuesday evening by Rev A W. Gauger.

Both of these young people are well and favorably known in this comunity and their friends extend congratulations

KLEMME REFORMED CHURCH

Calvin Grosshuesch, Pastor

8:30 a. m. Sunday school in the country.
10:00 a. m. German service.
11:00 a. m. Sunday school.
8:00 p. m English service.
8:00 P M. Saturday. Junior Choir

LINDBERG WILL BE AT MASON CITY AIRPORT SUNDAY

A Number From Here Will Probably See New Airport Dedicated

This community will no doubt be well represented at the formal dedication of the Mason City Community airport next Sunday afternoon. A dozen pursuit planes from Selfridge Field, Michigan, two monster blimps from Scott Field, Ill., and a large number of commercial planes from far and near will participate in the program. Col. C. A. Lindbergh will be an unofficial guest of Hanford McNider at the affair and Clarence Chamberlin, Iowa's own ace, has been invited Receipts above expenses, according to American Legion officials in charge, will be used to provide lights for the field in the future. The program is scheduled to open at 1:00 o'clock.

HANCOCK COUNTY REAL ESTATE TRANSFERS

A Weekly Review Of Sales And Trades In Property

C. W. Erwin wife to H. R. Brooks. Q C. D, date 6-23-.. $1.00. Lot 15 block 2 Andersons add. Britt and lots 1-2-3-4-7-8 block 5 Brown and Hills add Britt and E½ lot 16 blk. 2 Andersons add Britt.

Amber Erwin et to H. R. Brooks. Q C. D, date 7-19-27, $1.00. Same description as above.

E. P Hanson, Sheriff, to Dora M. Rathbun, Executrix. Sheriff's Deed date 5-15-27, $1105.49. W½ SW ¼ 34-94-24.

T A. Potter wife to C. C. Shearlach Q. C. D., date 7-25-27, $1.00. A tract of land 22'x124' in E. cor. block 5.

Mary Lau to Geo. Lau. W. D., date 7-20-.., $1.00. Lots 9-10 blk. 7 Original Klemme.

Ela Johnson hus. to Lettie Kirchner et al. W. D., date 8-13-27, $1.00 Und. 1-6 int. in NW¼ 29 and NE¼ E of C R I and P Ry in 30-95-25.

MRS. KIRKWOOD ATTENDED BIG RE-UNION IN NEW YORK

Klemme Lady Enjoying Extended Visit In Her Girlhood Home

An interesting letter from Mrs. Amanda Kirkwood, written from Turin, New York, has been received by the Times and is of general interest to our readers. We reproduce Mrs. Kirkwod's letter as follows:-

Turin, New York,
Aug. 15

Dear Friends:-

As I see so many accounts of reunions in the paper I thought I would write and tell you about the Cook Reunion, that is my mother's people It was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Ball on the 11th of August. Mrs. Ball is a daughter of Jane Cook Davis. There were 60 people present ,all relatives of the Cook family and they were present from Utica, Watson, Lawnill, Turin, Glenfield and other places. The oldest person present was Marion Cook and the youngest, Virgina Peterson a great grand daughter of George Cook.

The officers elected after the picnic dinner was served were, President, Kent Dodge; Vice-Pres. James Ball; Chaplin, Bernard Davis; Secretary, Louis Ball, Treasurer, Mrs. George Kneisel. After dinner the afternoon was spent visiting and then all departed for their homes declaring the day was well spent.

I am enjoying myself very much seeing the places where I spent my childhood days. I will close for this time, thanking you for the paper. I look forward to the day it comes as I like to get it so well, altho I hear from home often.

Mrs. A. Kirkwood, Turin, N. Y.

P. S. This was the nineteenth annual re-union of the Cook family. They meet every second Thursday in August.

CROPS DAMAGED BY STORM HERE SUNDAY

A heavy wind storm accompanied by rain and in some localities, hail, did quite a bit of damage to some corn fields in this vicinity Sunday afternoon. Many fields in this section were flattened to the ground by the heavy wind and rain.

Liberty News Notes

(Special Times Reporter)

Mrs. Chas. Busch visited at the Vic Schoenwetter home Friday.

Frank Rosendahl is much better at this writing.

Mrs. John Tanner is home with her children and is feeling fine.

Miss Leona Smith, of Mason City, was at the Elmer Schaefer home last week helping cook for threshers.

Mildred and Novella Beier visited at the Emil Beier home all of last week.

Mrs. John Tanner, Luther, Bernice and Florence were Mason City visitors Wednesday.

Geneva Schuldt helped Mrs. Vic Schoenwetter with threshers last Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Marshall and family were visiting at the D. A. Marshall home Sunday.

This vicinity was visited by a heavy hail Sunday. The corn and gardens were stripped considerably.

Mrs. John Tanner returned home Tuesday from the hospital and all her numerous friends rejoice with he family over her recovery.

Mrs. Will Lemke is in Britt this week with her mother, Mrs. Whitney who was taken seriously ill Thursday of last week.

Carl Carlson is working in the Farmers Elevator taking the place of Henry Lemke, who is unable to work due to sickness.

Emil Beier was elected a delegate to the General Methodist Conference to be held at Webster City the last week in September.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Meckstroth and Miss Pearl Prull, of Garner, were entertained at the Herman Gast nome Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs Alvin Stokesbary and family were visiting in Minnesota last week. "Red" Carlson did their chores for them.

Miss Mabel Schaefer and Fern Stille returned Friday from the State Teachers College at Cedar Falls. Elmer Schaefer drove to Cedar Falls to bring them home.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Wilkins and family, Mr. and Mrs. John Koehn and Grandma Straatman were visiting at the Ed. Schoenwetter home Friday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs Harvey Wilkins and family and Mr. and Mrs. John Koehn of St. Marys, Ohio, left for thier homes Tuesday morning, after a visit with Mrs. Wilkin's sister, Mrs. Rhine Lemke and other relatives

BOYS AND GIRLS' CONGRESS

Preparations to feed more than 1,000 farm boys and girls each day in this huge dining hall on the Iowa State Fair grounds at Des Moines have now been made by fair officials in anticipation of the big statewide Boys and Girls' Club Congress, which will be one of the headline features of the coming fair, August 24 to September 2. The Fair Board will provide free dormitories, and meals at cost, for farm boys and girls from every county in the state who will be entered in this big Club Congress to compete for the farm championships of Iowa in the fields of Agriculture, Livestock, Home making, Farm management, and kindred subjects. It is said that this will be the largest club show ever held at any fair in America.

KLEMME PEOPLE HURT IN ACCIDENT

BEN MULLIN'S CAR IN WRECK NEAR GARNER SUNDAY

Several Persons Injured When Cars Collided On Pavement

Ben Mullins and family of near Klemme, riding in their Ford sedan, were struck by a Cadilac on the paving a few miles west of Garner Sunday, and members of the party injured

The following item clipped from the Garner Signal of yesterday, explains the wreck:-

"Another serious auto accident happened on the paving west of Garner Sunday evening shortly after five o'clock, three people were seriously injured and a fourth cut up some. The accident occurred a short distance west of the Schleusner sand pit, and in the same way that a bad accident happened a couple of miles west of there three weeks before, a driver pulling out of the string of cars to go faster and meeting a car coming from the other direction.

"Ben Mullins and his family of Klemme were going east in their Ford sedan. A family of six by the name of Hovey whose home is at Fort Dodge were going west in a Cadillac. Mr. Hovey pulled out to pass other cars not seeing the Mullins car. Mr. Hovey set the brake and his car skidded crosswise of the paving and meeting the head end of the Ford.

"The Mullins family was brought to Garner by Guy Geddes, and there being no doctor in town they were taken on to their home at Klemme. Mrs Mullins had a bad cut on her knee that took several stitches to close, but Mr. Mullins and the children escaped without injury.

"Irwin Lackore brought two men, an elderly lady and a young woman of the Hovey family to Garner, and some other car took another man and a little girl to Britt. After first aid was given by a doctor the two men and two women were taken to their home at Fort Dodge. The little girl had a badly cut nose and a Britt doctor took several stitches in it.

"After getting to Fort Dodge further attention was given he two young women and it was found the elderly lady had a broken hip, and the young woman's leg was broken and her arm broken in two places, and each of them was cut some about the head."

M. O. BARR SOLD CAFE TO C. F. BUSCH MONDAY NIGHT

New Proprietor Took Possession Of Business Tuesday Morning

Monday evening a business deal was closed in Klemme whereby M. O Barr sold his New Cafe to C. F. Busch of this place. Mr. Busch took possession Tuesday morning and is now well established.

Mr Barr started the New Cafe in March and has since enjoyed a good business.

Mr. and Mrs. Busch are now conducting the business and their son, Glenn, of Chicago, is expected to arrive home to help them.

HERMAN MERKEL & MARGARET CHRISTIANS MARRIED

According to announcements received Mr. Herman Merkel and Miss Margaret Christians were married Saturday noon.

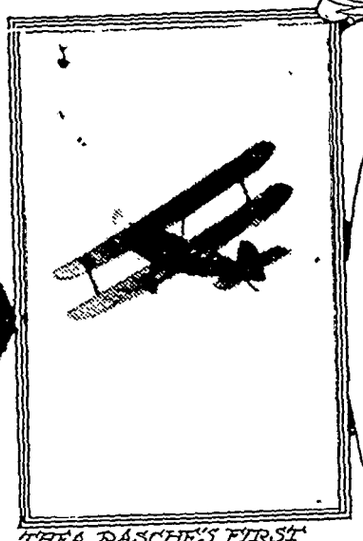
Both of these young people are well known in the comunity. Mr. and Mrs. Merkel are both fine young people and have a host of friends who extend every wish for a long and happy married life.

Six car loads of live stock were shipped out Saturday night. Of this number the Klemme Shipping Association handled three car loads of hogs; C. A. Larsen one car hogs and one car of cattle; and C. O. Evans shipped one car load of cattle which he purchased of Chris Anderson. Stock shipments are again picking up.

Bird Women

THEA RASCHE

GLADYS ROY



THEA RASCHE'S FIRST AMERICAN FLIGHT

RUTH LAW

CHARLOTTE ALEXANDER

MAXINE DICKS

TREHAWKE DAVIES

ADRIENNE BOLLAND

RUBY THOMPSON

Underwood & Underwood Photo

Photos by International

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

THE recent arrival in this country of Fraulein Thea Rasche, the foremost German aviatrix and stunt flyer, and her announcement that early next year, after doing some flying here, she will attempt to make a nonstop flight from New York to Germany, are a reminder that women are following closely in the footsteps of men even in aviation. It has long been a popular idea that the so-called weaker sex have little or no interest in those hazardous occupations which are supposed to be reserved for the hardier male sex. Aviation, where unshakable nerves and coolness in an emergency are prime necessities, theoretically has no place for the women, at least in performing some of the daredevil feats which the aviators perform.

But like so many other popular ideas this one in regard to women's nonparticipation in aviation is an erroneous one and there have been in the past and are now enough fearless bird women to prove that fact. Fraulein Rasche is only the latest one to command public attention. During her first flight from American soil at Roosevelt field when she took up her little Flamingo for ten minutes of exhibition flying, army pilots from Mitchell field pronounced her "a skillful and graceful flyer." She is preparing to show that she is also a fearless flyer by exhibitions of stunt flying which she will give in various parts of the country and she intends to pit her skill as a racing pilot in the New York to Spokane, Wash., air derby this month.

Fraulein Rasche, however, is only one of several women pilots who have attained more than passing notice in aviation. There is Mrs. Charlotte Alexander, who organized the only women's aviation corps in this country some years ago; there is Maxine Dicks, who is probably the only woman aviation "camera man" now pursuing that occupation; there is Trehawke Davies, the first woman to loop the loop in a plane; and there is Mlle. Adrienne Bolland, the French aviatrix, who was the first woman to fly across the English channel back in the days when that was regarded as a feat of considerable magnitude, and who added to her laurels by being the first woman to fly across the Andes mountains in South America.

Other bird women who have been in the news lately are Miss Ruby Thompson of Dallas, Texas, who was the first woman pilot to enter the proposed air race from Dallas to Hongkong, China, for the prize of $25,000 that has been offered for that feat, who will be accompanied on the flight by a navigator as well as a co-pilot; Miss Mildred Doran, a school teacher of Flint, Mich., who flew from her home in the Middle West to the Pacific coast within the last few weeks with the announced intention of attempting a flight to Honolulu with Augy Pedlar as pilot; and Miss Gladys Roy, who together with Lieut. Delmar L. Snyder, a former army aviator, is planning to attempt a New York-to-Rome flight. Miss Roy is a well-known stunt flyer who, not satisfied with risking her neck on the wing of a plane, added a sensational touch by doing her work with her head encased in a black bag. Among the other well-known women stunt flyers are Miss Gladys Engle, the California aviatrix whose favorite stunt was to jump from one plane to another, flying just overhead, and then, after making her flying leap, to hang by her heels from the upper wing of the plane on which she had just landed, and Miss Lillian Boyer, a girl of nineteen who, several years ago, gave the crowds a thrill by swinging from a cable beneath her aeroplane with only the grip of four slender fingers between her and the risk of a dash to the earth a thousand feet below.

Mention of Trehawke Davies' distinction of being the first to loop the loop recalls the feat of Laura Bromwell, a twenty-three-year-old girl who on May 15, 1921, made a loop the loop record when she executed 199 successive loops in one hour and twenty minutes. It also recalls her tragic death when her plane fell a thousand feet at Mitchell field near Mineola, Long Island, the next month (June 5, 1921) and she was dashed to the earth. Miss Bromwell was not the first bird woman to meet her fate in the air. Probably the first fatality among women aviators occurred in the early days of aeronautics when on June 5, 1912, Auguste Bernard and Mme. Rose Amicel, two French aviators, lost control of their machine near Buc, France, and came crashing to the earth where both were killed.

But stunt flying has not been the principal contribution of bird women to the progress of aviation. Mlle. Bolland's flight across the Andes, made in the infancy of aviation, was a practical demonstration of the possibilities of the aeroplane as a means of transportation to which high mountains could offer no barrier. She left Mendoza on the Argentine side at 6:32 on the morning of April 1, 1921, and soared high above the lofty peaks of the Andes with their treacherous air pockets where an accident meant instant death on their rocky slopes, or possibly starvation in the wilderness even in case of a safe landing. However, the trip was made without mishap, and she landed at Santiago, Chile, at 10 o'clock, less than three and a half hours after she had set out from the Argentine city. To Miss Phoebe J. Fairgrave, an eighteen-year-old girl, goes the credit for making a parachute jump which was a record for women at that time and probably still stands. On July 11, 1921, at the Curtis flying field, near St. Paul, Minn., Miss Fairgrave stepped out into space at an altitude of 15,200 feet, shot down with terrific velocity, and then as the silken umbrella opened, she floated gracefuly to the earth.

But of them all there is one who was acclaimed "Queen of the Air" some ten years ago and she still retains the major part of her claim to that title. For the altitude record for women aviators made on September 27, 1917, at Peoria, Ill., by Miss Ruth Law, still stands and that record is 14,701 feet. Establishing this record, however, was not Miss Law's first triumph. That had occurred the previous year when on November 19-20, 1916, she made what was then the longest nonstop flight record, from Chicago to Hornell, N. Y., a distance of 590 miles, thereby breaking the record of 452 miles, made by a man flyer earlier in the month. Her feat at that time was heralded as one of the greatest in the history of aviation, and it is interesting to read the following account of it which appeared in the columns of the Outlook Magazine for November 29, 1916:

THE HIGHEST MARK IN AMERICAN AVIATION

No less interesting than the scientific features of the record-breaking flight of Miss Ruth Law, from Chicago to New York, is the human significance of the accomplishment. Miss Law says the fact that she is a woman makes no difference, but it does.

The fact that the new American nonstop record was made by a 120-pound woman of twenty-eight, in a rebuilt aeroplane of almost obsolete type, doubles the prominence of this achievement in the public mind. General Wood reflected the popular admiration for Miss Law, when as he helped her from her seat at the end of her flight, at Governor's Island, he said, "Little girl, you beat them all."

In a nutshell, this is what Miss Law did. In a 100-horsepower, two-year-old biplane she flew without a stop from Chicago to Hornell, N. Y., a distance of 590 miles, thereby breaking the record of 453 miles made by Victor Carlstrom in the New York Times flight on November 2. Flying on to Governor's Island with a stop at Binghamton Miss Law completed the entire trip of 884 miles, from Chicago to Governor's Island in 8 hours 55 minutes and 35 seconds. Carlstrom's total time in the air from Chicago to New York was 8 hours 17 minutes.

With true sportsmanship, Carlstrom was one of the first to congratulate Miss Law, pronouncing her flight "the best performance to date in American aviation."

Few persons took Miss Law seriously when she announced her intentions of attempting the Chicago-New York flight. Although she holds the woman's record for altitude, she had never before flown more than 25 miles across country. Moreover, her machine is less than half as large as the one in which Carlstrom made his record, and carried only 53 gallons of gasoline as against 200 gallons carried by Carlstrom.

Miss Law's record has been stamped as official by the Aero Club of America.

The following contemporary account from the New York Sun is also worthy of reproduction because of the parallel in many respects between Miss Law's feat and the recent record-breaking one of Col. Charles Lindbergh. In it is reflected the same cool daring of the lone adventurer who set out almost casually on a great undertaking and the same modest wonder at all the popular acclaim which followed. The Sun article says:

Miss Law tried to buy a bigger machine such as Carlstrom had used, but Mr. Curtiss was afraid to sell her one for fear she would be killed. He thought it would be too powerful for her. But when he heard Sunday night of the record flight from Chicago to Hornell he called the Aero Club of America on the long-distance telephone and said she could have a new machine any time she wanted it, and she will likely want it for now she is going to try a nonstop flight from Chicago to Governor's Island.

Carlstrom, whose nonstop record was bettered by Miss Law, had the best equipment that money and science could produce and back of him was the entire Curtiss organization. His plane would carry 147 gallons more fuel than the machine Miss Law flew. He trained for weeks and waited day after day for favorable winds before making his start. Miss Law, who never had flown more than 25 miles in a single flight before, just had some new gas tanks put on her aeroplane, notified the Aero club to make the flight official, and started.

Miss Law was thoroughly chilled when she arrived, but seemed to be in the pink of condition, resourceful and not disposed to take herself seriously. She is slight, fair-haired, and weighs only about a hundred twenty pounds. She was openly pleased at the reception the army officers and Aero club officials gave her, but she was a little bashful at first and looked as though she was wondering just why they were all there. Although this woman has been flying since 1912, she is only twenty-eight. She has had an uphill fight without financial backing, risking her life in machines that were none too good and she seemed hardly to realize that she had at last attained a goal of popularity, publicity and official recognition of the Aero club and that she is the peer of any male flyer in America. Miss Law has always been in competition with men, flying in machines that were inferior to their's and this time she won out.

What's the Answer.....?

Questions No. 12

1—What crew won the Harvard-Yale two-mile rowing race in 1920?

2—What states were originally colonized by the Spanish?

3—What army surgeon became secretary of war; in whose cabinet?

4—How does the beach get its sand?

5—How deep is the deepest part of the ocean?

6—What was the origin in the theater of the Astor place riot, which resulted in the death of 26 people; in what city and what year did it occur?

7—Where is the group of islands which is the unsubmerged portion of a mountain system?

8—What great American novelist became a permanent resident of England?

9—Who said, when he heard of the battle of Bunker hill: "The liberties of the country are safe!"?

10—Are common stocks of corporations ever redeemed?

11—What novelist is considered the founder of the American school of realism?

12—Who was the leading pitcher in the American league in 1920?

13—What are "fighting fish"?

14—What was the "Flying Dutchman"?

15—Who patented the first revolver, and when?

16—When was the Panama canal opened?

17—What genius of the Renaissance was painter, sculptor, architect, scientist, engineer, mechanician and musician?

18—Where are situated the thousands of small lakes formed by the Laurentian glacier?

19—Who said: "Let me die in my old American uniform, in which I fought my battles. God forgive me for ever having put on any other"?

20—What are the three leading sources of national income of the United States?

Answers No. 11

1—Capt. Robert Gray, 1792.

2—Three; Harrison, Taylor, Harding.

3—Plants.

4—The ability or capacity to perform work.

5—Great Heart cleared the bar at 8 feet ½ inch.

6—Antonin Dvorak, in his "New World" symphony.

7—The Nile.

8—"Endymion" by John Keats.

9—John Sherman.

10—In America, yes; in England, no.

11—Major Pitcairn, before the battle of Lexington.

12—The United States.

13—The average human heart weighs nine and one-half ounces.

14—An instrument for detecting the presence of an electric current or measuring its strength.

15—New York, New Jersey.

16—Three: Lincoln, Garfield, McKinley.

17—Stravinski.

18—Hudson bay.

19—"The Faery Queene."

20—The five-day week.

Nonshrinkable Wool Supplied by Ovibos

The musk-ox—scientifically, the ovibos—is one of the interesting animals of the Arctic region. It is something like a cow and something like a sheep, but is not a cross, though the name, ovibos, means a sheep-cow. It seems to be a relic of an animal that lived in the Stone age, when the hairy rhinoceros and the mammoth were common, writes the travel editor of the Pathfinder Magazine. It feeds on grass herbs, moss and the shoots of trees. Not only is its meat very good to eat and the hide good for leather, but the wool from its coat is softer than cashmere and it has the advantage over all other wool that it will not shrink. One can smell the ovibos when it is still a quarter of a mile away, and this gives it its popular name of musk-ox. But the musky smell does not taint the meat if the butchering is carefully done.

Stopped Traffic for Duck

Traffic on a busy main road near Bourne, England, was held up for ten minutes while a duck laid an egg. A policeman had halted automobiles when the duck started to waddle across the road. Halfway over she sat down. After she had laid the egg, she continued her journey. The egg was salvaged and the procession of halted cars proceeded.

Milk Without Cream

A cow that possessed "a perfectly adjusted separator" has been reported by a correspondent to the Sydney Bulletin. "She gave a lot of milk and her calves were the fattest and biggest in the herd, but for household purposes her milk was useless," according to the correspondent. "The milk could be run through a separator without a drop of cream appearing either on the dish or in the interior of the machine. By no method of milking could she be enticed to give any cream."

Improved Uniform International

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D.D., Dean Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)
(©, 1927, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for August 28

NATHAN LEADS DAVID TO REPENTANCE

LESSON TEXT—II Sam. 11 1, 12:23.

GOLDEN TEXT—A broken and contrite heart, O God, thou will not despise.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God Shows David His Sin

JUNIOR TOPIC—Nathan Calls David to Repentance

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Confessing and Forsaking Sin.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Repentance. What It Is, and What It Does.

I. David's Crimes (II Sam. 11).

1. Adultery (vv. 4, 5)

He by his kingly authority brought Bathsheba, the beautiful wife of Uriah, one of his brave soldiers, into his harem.

2. Murder (vv. 14-18).

David sought to cover up his shameful act of adultery with Bathsheba by calling Uriah from the field of battle and giving him a furlough at home with his wife. (He first gave him honorable recognition by sending a portion of meat from the royal table, v. 8.) Uriah's high sense of military duty and propriety would not allow him to do this.

Failing in this, David corrupted him by making him drunk, with the expectation that Uriah would thus go home. When these schemes would not work he resorted to the terrible crime of exposing Uriah to the most dangerous place in the battle where he would surely be killed.

II. Contributing Factors in David's Fall.

1. Idleness (11 1)

It was the king's responsibility to go forth with his army to battle. David tarried at Jerusalem because of indolence or self-indulgence.

2. He looked upon a beautiful woman (11:2).

As he was lounging in idleness, the temptation was too great for him. He yielded to his lustful impulse and sent his servants to bring the woman to him. This action on the part of David is absolutely inexcusable. David had the power to turn from this sin and thus escape temptation.

III. David Rebuked by Nathan, the Prophet (12:1-12).

What David had done displeased the Lord (11:27). What he had done gratified his own carnal lust, but the serious thing is that it displeased the Lord. Because David was God's child God could not let the matter rest, and therefore sent Nathan, His prophet, to him.

1. The parable of the ewe lamb (vv. 1-6).

Among the Jews it was customary to have pet lambs which were brought up with the children of the family and therefore regarded with tender affection. Nathan pictures before David a poor man whose sole possession consisted of one such lamb, and a rich neighbor when entertaining a guest had appropriated unto himself this lamb instead of drawing upon his numerous flock. This so aroused David's anger that he declared that the rich man should restore fourfold and in addition forfeit his life. More than declared: "Thou art the man." In spite of David's awful sin, he had a burning indignation against the wrongdoer.

2. Sentence of judgment (vv. 7-12).

Perhaps no history records a more dictment so terrible as this one.

(1) He recounted unto David God's peculiar favor (vv. 7, 8).

God had taken him from the sheepcote and lifted him to the throne, made him king over all Israel, and had delivered him from Saul's murderous plots and he had taken over Saul's royal possessions.

(2) David's shameful treatment of God's law (v. 9).

He pointed out that he had violated both tables of the law by worshiping the God of passion and had practiced covetousness, robbery, lying and murder.

(3) The awful judgment pronounced (vv. 10-12).

The prophet declared that the sword should never depart from David's house. He had used the sword to slay Uriah. God in His retributive justice permitted the sword to remain in David's house.

IV. David's Confession (vv. 13-23).

The confession of sin was so real that David declared that he had not only been committed against God (Ps. 51:4). He now was made fully conscious of his broken condition. He realized what it meant to be without a conscience. Though he confessed his sin, as recorded in Psalm 32, and God forgave him, he had to suffer its consequence. "Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap."

The Coward

To die in order to avoid the ills of poverty, love, or anything disagreeable is not the role of a man, but of a coward. For it is cowardice to shun the misfortunes and trials of life, not undergoing death because it is honorable, but to escape evil.—Aristotle.

Prayer, a Golden Key

Prayer is a golden key which can open the morning and lock up the evening.—Bishop Hopkins.

MEN MAROONED

By GEORGE MARSH

Copyright by The Penn Publishing Co.
WNU Service.

STORY FROM THE START

Garth Guthrie, Canadian war veteran, having to live in the open on account of weakened lungs, is factor of a Hudson's Bay post at Elkwan. He came back from the conflict with a permanently scarred face, which he realizes cost him the love of his fiancee, Edith Falconer. Sir Charles Guthrie, his brother, is a millionaire war profiteer. With Etienne Savanne, halfbreed, his firm friend, Garth meets Doctor Quarrier, geologist, and his sister Joan. Their schooner has drifted ashore. Quarrier complains he has been robbed by a man known as "Laughing McDonald." At Elkwan an Indian girl, Ninda, tuberculosis victim, whom Garth has befriended, is dying. Joan, trained war nurse, cares for Ninda, but the girl dies. Garth tells Joan part of the reasons for his presence at Elkwan. He takes the Quarriers to Albany, from whence they can proceed to Montreal.

CHAPTER III—Continued

—5—

"And that is what keeps you here s winter," she hazarded, "when it ght be Montreal; your love of hunt—the wilderness?"

She is thinking of the pictures of el, Guthrie surmised, and wonders y I stay. As the York boat trav- l, pushed by the following breeze, gaze swept the shimmering waters the gray strait to the sunlit barrens the island. Then he faced her nkly.

"I'm not sure what keeps me here. pulls me—the country, this life. er the war, everything was changed. ntreal had grown callous. No one ed for anything but pleasure—and ney. It seemed as if the whole rld had forgotten them—the ones o 'went west,' and what they died . I grew to hate it—the office. My res were a bit jumpy from the gas, uppose. I was off color, of course, t everybody who had been in it had ard pull to readjust—to settle into grind again. It was all new to —business, the works, and I wished was back with the battalion—with mud, and the rest of it."

She nodded. "I know just how you t. There were times after I re- ned when I was simply homesick my wounded and the hospital life. e really dreamed of it."

"It gets you, doesn't it? although you rse it while you're in it?" His gray es lit with memory.

She smiled in understanding. "It s hard, and awful—yet it does get e, as you say. It was life in the w, stripped of the veneer—the ams. That is the reason, I sup- se."

"Yes, stripped of the shams—that's " He frowned, then went on. "Shot, re, misses it terribly—the noise, and citement, and the men. He fights it over again in his dreams. I know en he hears the guns or sees a itz. He looks like a mad porcupine ll quills, as he thrashes in his sleep. , Shot? . . . Stand to!"

With a low rumble in the hairy oat, the war dog leaped back, stiffning from nose to cocked tail, ears icked, quivering nostrils testing the , as the hair lifted on mane and ck.

"Bravo, Shot!" she cried, reaching pat the tense head of the dog. But e airedale ignored her, his small rrier eyes questioning Guthrie's face the reason for the familiar lerte," which stirred wild memories black nights shot with flashes of ht; of noises great and small; of en crawling—running; of men lying ill.

Guthrie calmed the excited dog. ou see, like the rest of us, he hasn't rgotten."

"Good old Shot!" And Joan Quarer stroked the head of the dog who d returned to them. But her oughts were of the girl in Montreal, d the riddle of Guthrie's exile.

* * * * * * *

Through the September day the ork boat followed the coast south. mid-afternoon Guthrie anchored the Big Willow river and going hore in the canoe, made camp that an Quarrier might have hot tea and od, and sleep, while he and Etienne, ith the sailors, stayed with the boat.

The following afternoon, on the high uth shore of Albany island, they saw e quaint, square roofs of the Oblate ission, and that night three men t in the traderoom at historic Fort lbany, where each autumn, for two nturies, men had watched the last edges of the gray geese fade into the uth; seen the coming of the long ows and the ice bridge the river annels; starved or feasted through e slow beat of the desolate days. ere, in the red years of the Seventh century, the old log fort, built the English, was stormed, retaken nd stormed again, in the bitter war ith the French for the fur trade. ere, generations of men had lived nd loved and died, marooned in the mes bay silences.

The talk of the three men in the raderoom centered on the meeting the free-trader with Quarrier and e news that McDonald was to winter the west coast.

"Major," said Hugh Cameron, the ctor, dubiously shaking a grizzled ad, "this fellow's wintering at Akiaki will ruin our fox trade. He'll e so handy to their traplines that ey'll dribble in their pelts as fast as ey get 'em, for his trade goods and roceries."

"Etienne counts on the loyalty of the older hunters. We intend to keep in touch with them."

"Keep in touch? How're you going to cross that strait before January? It'll be full of drifting ice."

"The ice won't be set hard, but we intend to make it with a canoe on our sled. We'll carry the sled in the canoe or the canoe on the sled, as the conditions change."

"Risky—that's a bad piece of water. I've seen the ice set and break up again three times before January. And when you get there, how're you going to keep them away from his schooner?"

"We'll make a try, anyway," replied Guthrie. "Etienne and I don't intend to let our share of the trade slip through our fingers by hugging the fire at Elkwan."

"Well, good luck to you!" sighed the old trader. "Since the French company came to the bay, the Indians have forgotten the years we kept them from starving. They're out of hand now. Do what you can."

For a space Cameron seemed to dream of the past glories of the company he served, then suddenly asked: "You know what he did in August?"

"No."

"Why, he sailed into Charlton island and tried to buy gas and flour at the depot. McMann laughed at him, of course; but that red-headed freebooter coolly announced that when he needed it, he would come and take it—said if we wouldn't sell it to him, he had government authority to seize it."

"He was right there; Ottawa's made that ruling, you know," suggested Blaikie, Cameron's clerk.

"Yes, they've made the ruling," rasped Cameron, "but do you think he'd get supplies from me when he's come into the bay to rob us of the trade?" The columns of smoke that the factor blew from his mouth were the measure of his irritation.

"Oh, by the way, Guthrie," asked Blaikie, with seeming innocence, "what was your trouble with this puffy old boy, Quarrier, you brought here today?"

Alive to the fact that the story of Ninda and his summary handling of the geologist had received due embellishment when Quarrier met Cameron on the arrival of the York boat, Guthrie suspected the motives of the clerk, and he had no intention of discussing the Quarrier episode or of subjecting the memory of the dead girl to the comment of a stranger.

"I've made my report to Mr. Cameron," he said with finality. "You heard Quarrier tell his story this afternoon. What are you after?"

Blaikie choked with anger, but the scarred cheek and the war record which had followed Guthrie to James bay in a letter from the Montreal headquarters of the company had made its marked impression at Albany. The clerk retreated behind a cloud of pipe smoke.

"Now, since that's settled," said Cameron, loudly clearing his throat and meeting Guthrie's look with a wink, "let's get back to business. Where do you suppose this McDonald gets his backing?"

"There are plenty of people in Newfoundland who'd back him after the haul he made last year on the east coast."

"He's going to be a thorn in our side, Guthrie. He's no ordinary chap; he's got nerve and ability. Queer thing happened when he came into Charlton. One of the half-breeds there stared at that face of his and laughed. McDonald grabbed the Indian by the throat and shook him like a rabbit; then roared: 'Laugh, d—n you! It's funny, is it? A thousand Canadians died the day I got that!"

Profoundly stirred, Guthrie's sympathy went out to this stranger with the twisted mouth. What raw torture, what secret agony must have been his—facing the world with a grimace! How well he sensed the impotent fury—the bitterness of this man, doomed to the pitiless stares—the callous curiosity of the rabble.

"I wonder what day that was," queried Guthrie, aloud, unaware that his fingers touched the cicatrix on his cheek.

"If he'd only do something illegal," Cameron hastened to say, "the company could run him out of the bay."

There was a glint, frankly combative, in Garth Guthrie's eyes as he heard the future of a Canadian veteran so cavalierly disposed of.

"That might not be so easy. From what the Indians say, he carries Lewis guns. Do you know any of our people who would relish meeting Laughing McDonald at the butt end of a machine gun?"

"He wouldn't dare fight us—shed blood on this bay!"

"Cameron," said Guthrie, and the glitter returned to his eyes, "I'm inclined to think that the company had better avoid any attempt at force with an overseas man with a mutilated mouth. He's apt to run amuck—to forget the war's over."

As he studied Guthrie's brooding eyes, Cameron knotted his thick brows, vaguely aware that the scar on the face of the speaker had prompted the remark.

"Well, however that may be, he's a dangerous competitor. After dropping that scared company Indian like a bag of salt, according to McMann, he asked if there were any more slackers who wanted to laugh at the kiss of a Hun shell—There weren't any!"

"It Seems So Lonely and So—Unnecessary."

Guthrie smiled, his thoughts colored by memories.

"Yes," continued Cameron with a sigh, aware that the man he addressed was not listening, "it looks bad for Kapiskau and Elkwan this year."

Later, by the light of a candle in the small room assigned to him by the factor, Garth re-read two letters he had found waiting at the post. The letter of his brother, dictated to his secretary, and typewritten, expressed extreme shock at the failure of the wanderer to return; deplored his indifference to the future of the Guthrie Steel company and to his own; condemned his callous and shabby treatment of the lovely girl who worshiped him; had grown floridly eloquent in its emphasis of the distinction lately conferred on the Guthrie family in Charles' knighthood, and resented profoundly the blot which its hitherto stainless escutcheon had sustained by Garth's inexplicable action.

In the name of his proud war record, his honor as a gentleman, and his future participation in the councils and direction of Guthrie Steel, now almost a household word in the Dominion, Charles commanded his errant brother to return where love and duty called.

Holding this intimate communication, which the busy Charles had seen fit to share with his secretary, over the flame of the candle, Garth grimly watched it burn.

Clara, characteristically, had approached from a different angle. Although his letters, she wrote, had not mentioned his health, she was confident that he was still ill. He had tried that cold, cruel north. Why not give the country near home a chance, where his devoted family and a broken-hearted girl pined for him. If he could have seen how stanchly Ethel had taken the blow. She was showing a brave face to the gossips—was going everywhere, but hiding a wounded heart. They called her "The Widow," and, of course, people were mystified, but she and Clara were only counting the days when dear old Garth would return to them.

She finished with: "Ethel and I are like sisters, inseparable. And she's so proud of Charles' new honor. 'Think of it!' she said the other day, 'to be the sister-in-law of the great Sir Charles Guthrie!' So you see, Garth, she is still the same old Ethel, loving you—forgiving all."

"Yes," the man who read agreed, a corner of the mouth lifting, "she's the old Ethel." And he blew out the candle.

Earlier, at the Church of England mission, where Joan Quarrier and her brother were staying until Cameron could send them to Moose, he had said good-by, for at dawn he was to start for Elkwan. The manner of Reverend Swan, who opened the door to Garth's knock, was distinctly cool, but as he had avoided the missionary during his year at Albany, and developed a warm friendship with Pere Rousseau, the Oblate, the inhospitable reception was anticipated and ignored. The little man with the pale hair and eyes, fidgeted with embarrassment at the appearance of Garth.

"I am in doubt as to whether Miss Quarrier's brother would wish her to see you," said the clergyman, with as brave a show of dignity as his five-feet-four could command in the snubbing of the man whose eyes twinkled in frank amusement at the effort.

Then, in a voice which Garth knew would be clearly audible to the girl he wished to see, he said: "Miss Quarrier will decide without her brother's assistance whether she wishes to see me. Will you tell her I am here?"

Holding his position in the doorway, undecided as to his next move, the missionary reddened with anger at the trick. Then footsteps sounded behind him and the low voice of Joan Quarrier asked: "Is there someone to see me, Mr. Swan? Oh, it's Mr. Guthrie! Good evening." And she pushed past the disgruntled missionary to take Garth's extended hand.

"Do you mind talking outside? Mr. Swan fears that your brother doesn't approve of me," Guthrie flung at the figure in the door as he moved away with the girl, who sensed what had passed. "You see, your good brother has already poisoned the clerical mind," laughed Garth as they walked slowly to the clearing. "I'm leaving early tomorrow and came to say good-by."

The moon was up and Guthrie's sidelong glance caught the sobering of her face. She was looking straight ahead and the light which drew a shimmering trail over the quiet surface of the Albany brushed her heavy hair with sliver.

"You're worried about your geese—it was fine of you to waste precious time bringing us here."

"I am still in your debt, Miss Quarrier," he said, and as he watched the profile of the girl walking beside him, with its straight nose and firm chin, the realization that she was passing out of his life—this woman whom chance had thrown into the tragedy at Elkwan—came swift as a blow. The old sense of loss, felt so often in the days when a friend—a comrade—"went west," returned to him. The vivid color and tang of her personality—the splendid strength of her—were stirring him with an appeal hitherto unsensed. Now that the brief days of their comradeship were over, the memory of Joan Quarrier's instant comprehension of the nature of the pity, approaching affection, which Ninda inspired in him—of how the salve of her sympathy had eased the raw bitterness—poignantly returned.

And now this friendship—born of chance—was to be cut short off by the wall of a thousand miles of forest.

She glanced curiously at the man who walked beside her in silence.

"I shall think of you often up there with Etienne, and Shot, and old Anne," she hazarded. "It seems so lonely and so—unnecessary."

But Guthrie avoided reference to the cause of his exile. "We shall remember you—all of us. Without you, it would have been unthinkable."

"It was strange—that storm, and meeting as we did. Poor little Ninda!" she said, dreamily watching the silhouette of a belated canoe from the whitefish nets drift into the path of moonlight.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Sealing Wax Now Put to Decorative Uses

Sealing wax is perhaps less important than it was before mucilaged envelopes came into use, but never was sealing wax so versatile as now, nor so useful artistically. Many a delicate decorative object that appears to be enamel ware or carved and painted wood or colored glass turns out to be merely molded sealing wax. Pendants and beads and artificial flowers, plaques and vases and candlesticks are among the objects beholden for their beauty to this material. Molding it, many an untrained woman has done something in home craftsmanship.

A lump of sealing wax on the end of a steel knitting needle melted over a flame and cooled in a glass of water, shaped with a molder and decorated by melting in other colors becomes a handsome bead. A metal-rimmed pasteboard tag covered with warmed sealing wax and embellished with drops of wax, shaped when soft into bunches of grapes or flowers, becomes a "drop" to finish the necklace. Earrings and pins and hat ornaments are made in the same way.

Centenary of the Lucifer

The year 1927 marks the centenary of the original lucifer match, which was first made by John Walker, Stockton - upon - Tees, England. These matches became immensely popular but Walker refused to capitalize his discovery financially It was also just a hundred years ago that gas for illuminating purposes was introduced in New York city, although in 1792 an English manufacturer used it.

A Constant Process

"Look, Augustus, there goes Mr. Plummkuten. He has been in Doctor Isbeen's hands for ten years on account of a nervous breakdown.

"Oh, yes, he has cured him several times. But every time Plummkuten gets the doctor's bill he has such a shock that he gets another nervous breakdown and the doctor has to take him in hand again."

Salaries of Engineers

The average graduate of engineering colleges starts with $1,500 a year, receives $4,000 ten years later and $7,500 thirty years later. About 10 per cent work up to $30,000 or more a year by the time they are fifty.

SATIN FROCKS FOR AUTUMN; COLORFUL VELVET CHAPEAUX

NOT in fashion's realm will "silver and gold have I none" be voiced, for early arriving autumn frocks gleam with touches of not only gold and silver, but of copper, steel, brass and, yes, tin if you please. It is a fact, some genius has devised an extremely novel trimming which accomplishes a handsome effect by riveting bits of tin over multi-colored strands of silk.

Autumn's style horoscope is proclaiming the metal vogue in no uncertain terms. Imagine such a frock as this, and it is, to say the least, "perfectly stunning"—black satin one-piece model studded all over with steel nailheads which are riveted into the very fabric. At the proper waistline a belt is simulated by working in gold metal nailheads, in solid form. The effect is thrilling, and presents a season of fascinating revelations in the way of metallic embellishment.

Adorned With Metal Embroidery.

The picture shows the enlivening effect of metal embroidery on black satin. Seems as if black crepe satin frocks are crowding the style stage in numbers greater than ever. A surprising quota gleam with unique and exceedingly handsome touches of metal, after the manner of this illustration.

Dressy afternoon ensembles of black velvet are also written in the book of fashion—and their appearance will not be deferred until late fall, for nowadays velvet is so sheer and supple it lays claim to being an all-year-round fabric. Owing to its suppleness velvet is indulging in any amount of shirring. Often the skirt fullness is accomplished in this way. In harmony with the trend toward metal decoration, the blouse, preferably of white or flesh georgette, is embroidered in gold and silver paillettes.

There is also a discreet use of metal on many a simple cloth frock, such as a few nailheads on cuffs and collar or an outlining of metal clasps on hem edges.

Velvet is apparently going to have a marked influence on the new season's millinery. Even now women of smart fashion are choosing cunning velvet models for midseason wear.

At last, judging from the "advance guard" of millinery for fall, we are going to have some hats that are really different, so that when we go strolling down the street we are not going to have the feeling that every other hat we come face to face with is first cousin to the one we have on. In other words fashion is doing little tricks of decoration here and there that are making millinery decidedly more feminine and taking it out of the realm of monotony.

Interesting variety is achieved in a number of different ways. Just take a look at the upper left hat which comes from the studios of the famous French creator, Madame Agnes. She deftly takes two strips of harmonizing velvet in the colors of wild rose and sistine, cuts them with large sawtooth edges which just match when sewn together; and then shirrs these joinings so that when pressed down they give the exact effect of crushed roses.

Then the hat in the center introduces a new idea which comes from the clever fingers of Eliane. This is of "buccaneer" red velvet which is very finely stitched in unique diamond and diagonal patterns.

In the hat at the upper right Eliane gives us a sample of entirely different type of stitching and shirring in a hat which is more formal and made of silk velvet in the color called "Mother Goose." The unique shirring effect is carried on to the crown tip; and as this hat is worn well down on the neck and tipped back, it gives a very interesting effect.

Madame Georgette gives a touch of something different again in the hat at the lower left, which is along cloche lines of black velvet with an applique design of white appearing all over it and worked under the softly folded portions.

At the lower right Germaine-Page introduces a decorative note on a cloche of navy-blue velvet with a ceinture of camellias of glacier-blue velvet which are held down flat with a tiny nose-veil of double coarse mesh.

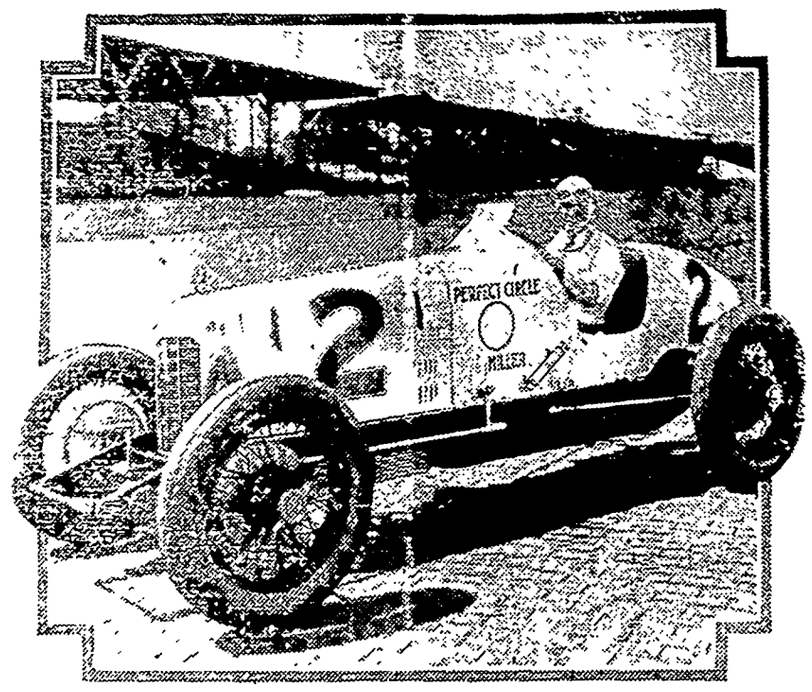
Some Midseason Hats.

JULIA BOTTOMLEY.

(©, 1927, by Western Newspaper Union.)

FRANK LOCKHART, AMERICAN AUTO ACE, FINDS ALL SPEEDWAYS ALIKE TO HIM

Youthful Driver Feels at Home on Dirt, Concrete and Brick Tracks as He Establishes New Marks—Travels 171.02 Miles an Hour.



MUD or dust, concrete or boards, rain or shine—these make no difference to young Frank Lockhart, of Los Angeles, who today at 24 is the fastest automobile driver in the United States, if not in the world.

Few motorists, even of the hardened professional racers, have had the varied experience of Lockhart, who has driven on almost every kind of track.

His best record—and he is after more—was set on a dry lake bed at Muroc, near Los Angeles, California, last April when he whirled over the alkali sands at 171 02 miles an hour—a figure comparable to that of Major H O D. Segrave, the Briton, who drove his "Mystery Sunbeam" at 203 79 miles an hour at Daytona Beach, Florida. Major Segrave holds the British record, of course, and Lockhart the American.

Previous to Lockhart's feat, the best American record was established by the intrepid Tommy Milton, who a few years before he retired whizzed along at 156 4 miles an hour at Daytona Beach

What makes Lockhart's figures more remarkable than even Major Segrave's is the fact that the American used a car with a displacement of only 91.5 cubic inches, as compared with the displacement in the Englishman's machine of 1200 cubic inches.

Rain likewise holds no terrors for Lockhart for racing fans recall that he won the Decoration Day race on the Indianapolis Speedway last year in a driving rainstorm. So sudden was the deluge and so dangerous did the track become that the Speedway officials immediately cut the usual 500 miles down to 400 miles.

Lockhart, driving without relief shot his tiny car around the brick track 160 times at an average speed of 94.63 miles an hour and finished five miles ahead of his nearest rival. Harry Hartz, also of Los Angeles.

Then he followed up that victory by running first on last September 18th at the Altoona Speedway, with a speed of 117 miles an hour. He interspersed those two notable winnings by capturing the Charlotte, N. C., race on August 23, with an average speed of 120.54 miles per hour, faster than either of the other two races.

For some time Lockhart was in "disgrace" with the American Automobile Association for taking part in dirt track competition, most of which he won handily. He had considerable experience on dirt tracks and in 1924 he ran first in the Thanksgiving Day race at Ascot Park, Los Angeles.

His most notable recent victory this year was in May when he drove his machine 147.729 miles an hour at the Atlantic City Motor Speedway. It established a new record for board tracks.

In the following month, just to show his versatility, Lockhart won a dirt track at the Michigan State Fair Grounds, on June 5. The track had been treated with calcium chloride and it was dustless, firm and, as Lockhart explained later, ideal in every respect for automobile racing

---

There will be quite a bit of moving going on in Klemme the 1st of September H F. Jost and family will move into the Wiles residence W F Lau and family will move back from Minnesota into their own residence vacated by the Jost family J. J Poort and family will move o Sac City and Geo. Johnson and family will move in om the country to the place vacated by Poorts. We understand Arley Blickendorfers will move into the Busch place and C. F. Busch and family will move into the rooms over the Schaefer building to be close to the cafe htey purchased. A short time ago Harlan Triese and family moved inot the Johnson house, north of Joe Johnson's residence

SALE

As I am moving away from this community I will sell the following list of goods at Public Auction at my residence at the southeast corner of the Park, Klemme, Iowa, on:—

Sat., August 27

Sale Will Begin Promptly at 1:30 P. M.

1 10x12 Chicken House. 1 10x12 Chicken House with a double floor and paper. 2 6x6 Chicken Houses, both have double floors. 1 400-egg capacity Incubator, fine shape. 1 Brooder. About 30 rods of Poultry Fencing and some Steel and Wood Posts.

125 PURE BRED WHITE LEGHORN PULLETS 125
SOME HOUSEHOLD GOODS, ETC.

5 Small Pigs Other Articles, Tools Etc.

Terms Of Sale Are Cash

J. J. POORT

B. A. Reemstma, Auctioneer.

Blanket Sail Saved Life of "Jeff" Davis

Use of a blanket as a sail once saved Jefferson Davis, later to be president of the southern Confederacy, from death at the hands of hostile Indians, a writer in the Kansas City Star recalls. He was Lieutenant Davis then and had been sent to superintend the cutting of timber on the banks of the Red Cedar river in northern Wisconsin. His task consisted mainly of cutting logs, dragging them to the water, fastening them together in rafts, and guiding them down the Chippewa river and thence to the Mississippi.

Once Davis' party, paddling along a stream, was halted by a party of Indians who demanded a trade of tobacco. Davis and his men paddled over to the bank to parley Some one in the party discovered that the peaceful ones of the Indians were merely a cloak to hide their hostility and warned Davis of the danger. The soldiers hurriedly pushed out into the stream and the indians followed. Realizing what little chance white men had against such experienced paddlers, Davis conceived the idea of rigging up a sail with a blanket. A strong wind made this rather dangerous, but as it was a chance between death from the indians and possible death from drowning, they were willing to take the risk The sail was quickly hoisted and it worked well. They soon sped on far ahead of their pursuers.

Happiness in Labor Great Joy of Life

I believe the right question to ask, respecting all ornament, is simply this: Was it done with enjoyment—was the carver happy while he was about it? It may be the hardest work possible, and the harder because so much pleasure was taken in it; but it must have been happy, too or it will not be living

We are not sent into the world to do anything into which we cannot put our hearts. We have certain work to do for our bread, and that is to be done strenuously; other work to do for our delight, and that is to be done heartily; neither is to be done by halves and shifts, but with a will; and what is not worth this effort is not to be done at all Perhaps all that we have to do is meant for nothing more than an exercise of the heart and of the will, and is useless in itself; but, at all events, the little use it has may well be spared if it is not worth putting our hands and our strength to.—John Ruskin, in "The Seven Lamps of Architecture."

Awaiting a Decision

A youngster visiting his indulgent aunt partook heartily of cream cake. When asked if he hadn't had all that was good for him, he replied that he didn't know.

"But what do you think?"

"It isn't any use thinkin'."

"Well, you're a funny boy," said his aunt. "When will you know?"

"In half-an-hour."

"And how will you know then?"

"Well, that's easy enough. If I'm not ill in half-an-hour, I'll be sorry I didn't take more, and if I'm ill I'll be sorry I took so much. That's the only way to tell."—Stray Stories.

Collodion's Origin

Collodion, used in medicine, surgery and photography, was first discovered by Dr. Josiah Curtis, who was born in Connecticut.

Maynard of Boston is believed to have first perfected the process for the manufacture of the fluid, but Doctor Curtis is said to have originated the idea and was the first to make use of collodion in surgery It is made by dissolving guncotton and alcohol in a mixture of ether, other ingredients being added for the different uses of the substance.

Its chief surgical use is as a protection against inflamed surfaces.

Anniversary of Birth

The word "birthday" has two recognized meanings. It may mean the day on which a person is born, or it may mean the anniversary of his birth. It is equally correct to speak of February 22 as Washington's birthday or as the anniversary of his birth. This meaning of the word birthday was accepted already in the time of Shakespeare. The poet has Cassius say in "Julius Caesar": "This is my birthday; as this very day was Cassius born."—Exchange.

Ancient Millionaire

Croesus, asserts the Detroit News, really was rich—the gift presented by the king of Lydia to Delphi in the Sixth century B. C. would be valued at about $300,000,000 in modern currency. The gift included a pyramid surmounted by a lion, both constructed of precious metals; two bowls of solid gold with a capacity of 5,400 gallons each, and a present of $13 to every man in the city.

Phrase Became Famous

It is supposed that the German chancellor, Von Bethmann-Hollweg, used the phrase "a scrap of paper" in reference to England's entry into the World war, 1914. He is quoted as saying that England was going to war for Belgian neutrality, "just for a scrap of paper." His phrase was widely understood as expressing the German attitude toward the Belgian treaty and hence toward all treaties. —Washington Star

Avery-Twin Lakes News

(Special Times Reporter)

Ben Swalve, Sr., called at the Dick Swalve home Monday morning.

Mr. Dick Swalve drove to Clear Lake last Tuesday on business.

A heavy rain fell Sunday afternoon at about 3:00 o'clo k.

Mr Norskow of Belmond, who is an auto salesman, was in this vicinity last Friday.

Threshing was finished in this vicinity Saturday at the Bill Greimann nome.

Mr and Mrs Wm Wenz were at the Lippo Wessels home one day last week.

School will soon commence in Twin Lake Township No. 1. Miss Edith Haupt will teach.

Herman Bruns from Twin Lake township was a Klemme caller one day last week

Mrs. Sam Hammon was a visitor at the Owen Neuhring home Monday

Mr. and Mrs Fred Etchen, accompanied by Leon Lemke and Adolph Cramer, and Rhine Schlawin and family, drove to Mason City to attend the fair last Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs Dick Swalve and family drove to Meservey Sunday morning to attend church services They then drove on to Thornton and visited relatives Coming home they were caught in the severe storm east of Goodell

Verner Priebe, who is visiting at Sheboygan, Wisconsin with his uncle and aunt. Mr and Mrs Ing. Lauritsen and Bennie Swalve, Jr., expects to return the latter part of the week Mr and Mrs Ing Lauritsen were former Klemme residents The men are now rapidly progressing at the carpenter trade

For Electric Service

CALL 39 GARNER, IOWA
HOUSE WIRING—MOTORS—
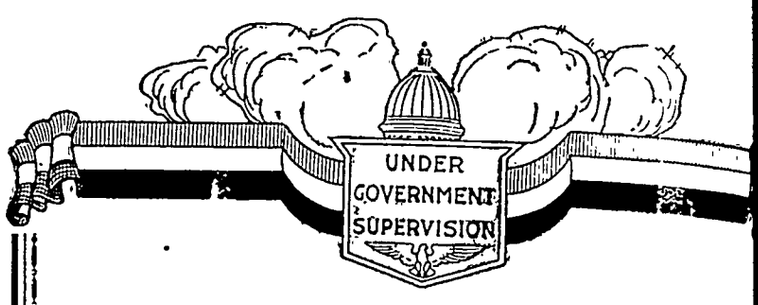
LAMPS—
APPLIANCES—
—ALSO A FULL LINE OF RADIOS AND RADIO ACCESSORIES——

Prouty Electirc Shop

GARNER — IOWA



Strength-- Safety

If you requir ein your bank strength, safety and solid, dependable financial counsel, we believe you will find it to your advantage to favor us with your patronage. We specialize in giving the fullest co-operation at all times, and we are always glad to act in any advisory financial capacity.

First National Bank.

KLEMME, IOWA.

Beginning Thursday

Merkels' Nine Day Nine Cent Sale

AUG. 25th TO SEPT. 3rd

The Greatest Sale Event in North Iowa

It is a clear fact, to everybody who looks into the matter, that here are the largest socks of dependable goods in Norh Iowa——and at the lowest prices. Upon the basis of assortments and savings, it is fully conceded that the MERKEL NINE CENT SALE is the GREATEST SALE in North Iowa. Thursday morning, August 25th, this long awaited Event opens the doors of opportunity.

Except For a Few Price-Restricted Items

Every Dollar's Worth of Goods in the Store Reduced in Price

An outstanding feature of the Sale is, that with few exceptions, the entire great stocks are on Sale at a straight-forward lowering of Prices. These reductions include New Fall Goods for person and home. With selections more attractive—advantages greater than they have ever been before—the MERKEL NIN ECENT SALE will be ready Thursday, August 25th.

Formerly Killians Inc., But Now The Merkel Co.
—named after owners who have been in active management for several years

The Merkel Co.

Formerly Killians, Inc.
MASON CITY, IOWA

School Begins Sept. 5th
In Klemme

Be all set when the school bell rings on Monday, September 5th with a supply of articles needed from our big department of School Supplies:-

Ink and Pencil Tablets — Pencils
Automatic Pencils — Fountain Pens
Loose Leaf Covers — Note Book Fillers
Note Books — Inks — Pencil Box Sets
Rulers — Erasers — Pen Holders — Pens
Lunch Boxes — Thermo Lunch Boxes
School Sweaters — School Blazers
School Shoes — Oxfords — Hosiery
Caps — Ties — Shirts — Belts — Boys Pants

—See Us Before The School Bell Rings—

QUALITY GOODS AT LOWEST PRICES—

G.W. Kluckhohn & Sons

Delicious Fresh Meats

You should serve meats at least once a day to get the maximum of vigor during the summer months.

Fresh meats, kept fresh and cut the way you like them at this shop.

Our meats are not only clean and fresh but they are juicy and tender.

Every cut that leaves this shop is the very best.

For the school lunch box we have all kinds of cold meats for sandwiches, as well as nice cheese, pickles, olives, mustard, ketchup, sardines, etc.

Klemme Meat Market

Central States Electric and Gas System Grows

To meet the increasing demand for public service, this Company has again been obliged to add to the station's capacity of the Iowa Falls Power Plant, and has arranged for the immediate installation of a 3,500 KW steam turbine unit equaling 4,250 Horse Power.

This will more than double the present capacity of the Iowa Falls Plants ,and it is planned to ultimately install additional units to bring the capacity of this one plant to 30,000 KW capacity.

This splendid plant will be the LAST WORD in electric power stations, and with the other power sources of the system, will provide at all times for 100% LIGHTING ond POWER SERVICE to all territory served by this Company.

A cordial invitation is extended to all to inspect our property and observe its substantial and reliable character.

Respectfully,

Central States Electric Company

—General Offices—

515 Merchants National Bank Building

CEDAR RAPIDS - - - IOWA

Scrubbed Floor Didn't Win Expected Praise

[illegible] mon is a more than ordinarily painstaking housekeeper, especially in the matter of cleanliness. Rooms must be swept and dusted just so often, window draperies washed and the kitchen floor scrubbed, "whether they need it or not," as her husband says; and it is one of her little secret grievances that John does not always notice the improvements unless she mentions them.

"I suppose you'd never know I'd done a thing to that kitchen floor if I didn't call your attention to it," she says now and then.

"Why, yes, my dear, it looks fine. Shines like a new penny," says John graciously, and Mrs. Damon sighs and resigns herself to the inscrutable ways of men.

One day last summer, when his wife was to return from a little vacation, Mr. Damon thought he would prepare a surprise for her. So he got out the mop, the scrubbing brush and the pail and after half an hour's hard work felt that the kitchen was immaculate.

When Mrs. Damon came in she looked round somewhat suspiciously, but made no comment. In a spirit of fun Mr Damon remarked: "I suppose you'd never know I'd done a thing to that kitchen floor if I didn't call your attention to it."

Mrs. Damon looked at it more closely. "Why, no, dear," she said. "Have you?"—Youth's Companion.

Yes, He Could Recall Just One Exception

In Dr. E. C. Dudley's autobiography "The Medicine Man," is a story Doctor Dudley says was told him by Dr S. Weir Mitchell, the novelist-physician, when the two medicos were dining together one night in Philadelphia soon after Doctor Mitchell had returned from a trip through the South, where he had been the guest of southern colonels all the way around.

At one plantation near Newburn, N C., Doctor Mitchell announced to his host his intention of taking an early morning walk. That precipitated a lively discussion as to whether any gentleman ever should walk, the colonel insisting that "no gentleman, sir, in this country ever walks," either for pleasure or exercise.

"But," persisted Doctor Mitchell, "have you never walked in your life?"

The colonel was getting warm.

"No, sir," he said, "I tell you no gen —well, sir, yes, sir, I did walk once— I walked 400 miles with that d—n scoundrel Sherman behind me."

Saved Pup From Shark

A mother collie dog, belonging to a lighthouse keeper on the south coast of Australia, recently exhibited unusual courage in an attempt to save one of its pups. The young dog fell over a cliff into deep water and while the owner was attempting to rescue it with a boathook a shark appeared on the surface of the sea. The other dog, which until then had merely been watching the proceedings jumped in the water and landed on top of the big fish As the dog fell heavily with a great splash the shark fled. Both dogs were rescued.

Early Recollections

With plenty of patience, paper and a pencil, it is possible for you to remember what happened when you were six months old, asserts Dr. E. Pickworth Farrow, English psychologist, in Popular Science Monthly For periods of one or two hours at a time, he says, write down any and every thought which occurs to you. Repeat the process several times Then, as memories of recent happenings gradually are "worked off" on paper, you will go back to recollections of your early life.

Puzzles Radio Experts

In a Toronto flower shop it has been discovered that everything that is broadcast from a nearby radio station is received and made audible by the faucets of a metal sink, the sink itself acting as a loud-speaker. Music can be clearly heard ten feet or more from the taps. It is also said that in London a certain metal lamp pole has been found to act in the same way. Radio experts have so far been unable to explain these newest mysteries of wireless transmission.—Youth's Companion

Misunderstood

"You're back early, Michael," remarked the farmer's wife to the hired man who had been to a theater in town.

The other nodded a silent agreement and proceeded to enjoy a pipe and study his program.

"Enjoy the play?" asked the woman.

"No," replied the man. "Didn't see the end."

"Why not?"

"Well, take a look at the program here. The second act takes place in two years' time."

Naming American Cities

Nashville, Tenn., was first called Nashborough, in honor of General Nash, an officer of the Revolutionary war. This was changed in 1874 to Nashville. Los Angeles, meaning "the Angels," was at one time an old Spanish mission and got its name from California's early settlers. Detroit was given its name by the French settlers In French the word means "the Straits," which was given the new settlement because of its location on the broad Detroit river connecting L. Erie and Lake Saint Clair

Three National Capitals

The nation's capital was moved from New York to Philadelphia on December 1, 1790, for a period of ten years, ending December 1, 1800, prior to its removal to Washington. After the burning of the capitol during the War of 1812 a strong movement arose for removing the capital from Washington. In fear of such a result the local interests formed the Capitol Hotel company, and erected a building for government occupancy until the repairs on the capitol were finish. It was occupied from 1814 to 1819 and was afterward known as the "Old Capitol" and was used in the Civil war as a military prison.

Supreme Torture Is Deprivation of Rest

Deprivation of rest is one of the severest forms of torture. If continued long, the victim will resort to almost any end to relieve it. His behavior may become as frantic as that of a dope addict deprived of his drug. He will do anything, sign anything and say almost anything that promises a chance of sleep, says the Pathfinder Magazine. Confessions obtained under such circumstances should be regarded as obtained by torture.

"During the Middle ages prisoners who were actually innocent confessed the crimes charged to them to gain removal from the rack, even though confession brought death by hanging, burning or breaking on the wheel. A scientist, who has undergone many long periods of experimental insomnia, says the discomforts he then suffers are almost indescribable and that his dread of future experiments exceeds his dread of any other form of physical pain. Our own observations indicate that after sufficient deprivation of sleep and rest a person is, at least, at times, neither mentally nor normally responsible. Facts and confessions obtained under such circumstances should be given their proper values by the courts," remarks a re-

Mr and Mrs Louis Cheadle and two daughters, of Gary, Indiana, came Wednesday for a visit at the Fred Kluckhohn home. The ladies are sisters. The Cheadle girls are quite noted entertainers and often appear on Chautaqua circuits. Today all went to Clear Lake to see the sights there.

The Russel Sage Foundation says 95% of the people of this country are incompetent because they are not trained correctly. HAMILTON TRAINED students succeed. The Hamilton University, Mason City, Iowa. 1tfcfi

Jack Wellemeyer, Clarence Elder, and Bobbie Merten left Saturday evening via. auto for Guthrie, Oklahoma, Bobbie's home. Clarence and Jack expect to stay in Oklahoma for a week and wil probably take in the Ozarks on their way home. Bobbie will remain at Guthrie. He spent his summer vacation in Klemme.

Mr. and Mrs. Silas Griewe of Cleghorn, Iowa, and Mr. and Mrs Omar, parents of Mrs Griewe, of Paulina, Iowa, visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Griewe and Mr. and Mrs. Emil Patet Sunday and Monday. Mr. Griewe will be superintendent of schools at Cleghorn this coming year. For the past three years he held that position at Southerland, Iowa.

Ben Greimann, Klemme's Burbank, we might say, brought us in a fine mess of fruit the other day which our better half cooked up nto delicious sauce. The variety Ben gave us was a cross between a plum and a cherry and say! Some flavor! Ben has a mighty fine orchard on his farm, and any one wanting to plant real fruit trees should consult with Ben first before taking a long chance on buying from a smooth-talking nursery stock peddler.

A card received by the Times the other day from M. F. Penrod carries the following message: "I have been seized by a homesick feelin' which I can't lose and am going back to Pulaski, Ia., for week. They will hardly kill the fatted calf but may execute a fowl in my honor. Send Klemme Times there this week. Yours, Penrod." Mr. Penrod will probably be in Klemme ext week, providing he does not founder himself partaking of too much of his mother's rich food. Here's welcoming him back again!

Goodell News

(By Special Correspondent)

Mr. and Mrs. L. G Avery spent Wednesday in Belmond.

Audrey Griggs spent the week at Ventura with his brother Presley.

Late Mass was held in the Catholic Church.

Miss Margaret Kearney returned to Williams Sunday.

Margaret and Agnes Fuller were at Klemme Saturday.

Martin Kearney was a Klemme caller Monday.

Lyle La Rue is working in the Drug Store again.

Frank McNutt has been substituting for the postmistress.

Threshing was delayed several days last week on account of rain.

Miss Irene Ness of Des Moines is visiting her parents.

Mr. and Mrs Gosnell and family of Fort Dodge spent Sunday here.

Mr. and Mrs. Gus O'Krueg attended the funeral of Mrs. Klein at Britt Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs Ed. Kahrs of Ventura attended the funeral of C W Lamer, Thursday.

Mrs. Ina Smith of Meservey spent Thursday with her mother, Mrs Mary Ahrenkeil.

Quite a number of people took Communion Service at the U. B. Church Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Busse of St. Cloud, Minn., are visiting at the Henry Busse home.

Miss Dalia Stromer spent a few days at the J. Griggs home this week.

Fernon and Mae Griggs, Dalia Stromer and Raphael Kernan visited the Fair Grounds at Fort Dodge Sunday.

This vicinity was visited by a very hard rain and some hail Sunday afternoon and evening. We have had sufficient rain for quite a while

Miss Helma Burgess returned from Cedar Falls Saturday. Her girl friend of Clarion came with her

Mr. and Mrs J. Griggs were Meservey callers Friday evening

A very small number were in attendance at the Avery Township Farm Bureau meeting held Monday night at the Avery Center School Mrs. Sherwood had arranged a program. Refreshments were served.

Dale Conklin reported from the C E. Convention at Sunday School, Sunday. It was a very good report The attendance at Sunday school was 100. Dr. Duncan spoke at the church services Sunday evening. The rain was a hindrance to the attendance.

The funeral services for C. W Lamer held Thursday in the U B Church were well attended. The floral offering was beautiful. The Rev. Scott officiated and three very beautiful hymns were rendered by Mesdames Snearly and Scott and Messrs Newgard and Carpenter The relatives from out of town attending the funeral were Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Gosnell and daughters Mary and Georgine of Fort Dodge, Mr. Lamer of Ashton and Ray Dennis of Sioux Falls, S. Dak. The remains were shipped to Newton for burial. The friends of the family extend their sincerest sympathy toward them in their bereavement

Ell Township News

(Special Times Reporter)

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Barz started on an auto trip Wednesday of this week They plan on visiting in the Dakotas and Minnesota.

The Misses Edith Haupt and Adella Kuhlman visited with Miss Ella Barz at her home Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Barz and family left Tuesday on an auto trip They are going to visit different places in Minnesota.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Wille and daughter Arlene spent Sunday at the home of Mr and Mrs. William Schlawin.

Ada Wille, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Wille, has been visiting at the Werner Schlawin home the past week.

Miss Lydia Bock, Wm. Bock, Alvin Schlichting and Mr. and Mrs. Philip Bock and family visited with Mr. and Mrs. Henry Schlichting and family near Rockwell last Sunday.

Miss Alvina Buss returned Tuesday morning after a week's visit with relatives in Belmond.

Mr. and Mrs. John Bock and family were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bell last Sunday

The Misses Dora Swanson and Hallie Greimann returned home last Friday after attending a session of Summer School at Cedar Falls.

A number of relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Edd. Buentenbach arrived here Monday evening from Davenport They are visiting relatives in this part of Iowa.

Mrs. Elko Buss, Gail and Edgar, Mr. and Mrs. Sylvan Johnson and family and Mr and Mrs. Harbert and family of Goodell, all motored to West Bend Sunday to view the Grotto and other places of interest

Quite a number of people attended the North Iowa Fair at Mason City last week as the rain here put a stop to threshing for a few days and gave everyone an opportunity to go.

Edd. Buentenbach and a brother-in-law who is visiting here, Martin Jensen and Walter Anderson left here early Tuesday morning for Minneapolis They returned home the same evening.

LYRIC
Theatre
—GARNER, IOWA—

Presents Tho Following

"THE UNKNOWN SOLDIER"
Friday and Saturday
August 26-27

The outstanding picture of the season.

Admission 10-25c

"DOWN UPON THE SWANEE RIVER"

Great picture, Voudeville road show, Singers, Dancers, Musicians, Jubilee, Vodvil, Performers. Free band concert before show

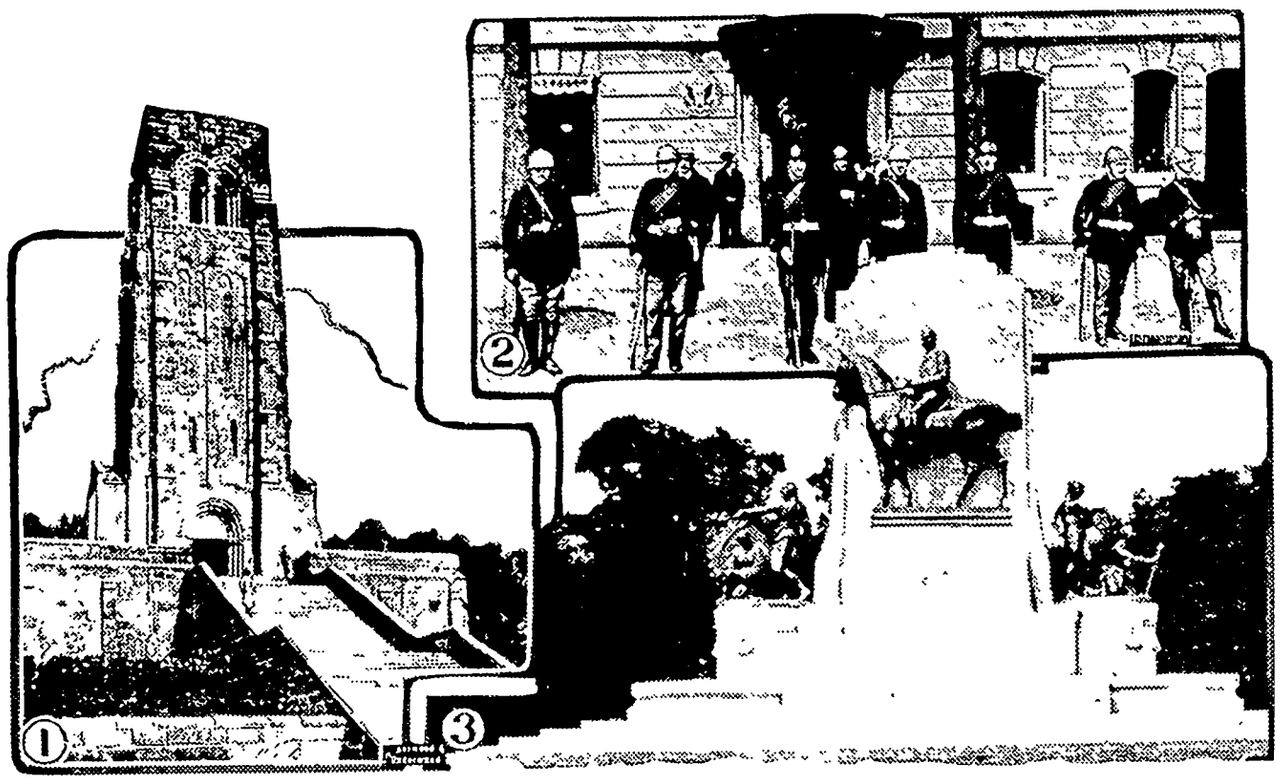
Thursday, Aug. 25

"THE SEA TIGER"
Milton Sills in his greatest picture

Tuesday and Wednesday
August 30-31
Admission 10-25c

Farm
Loans
5%
Isaac Sweigard
Garner Iowa

PIANOS
Players & Grand
New and
Second Hand
M. N. ZEIGER
Jewelry & Optical Goods
GARNER, IOWA



I.—Design for American memorial chapel at Aisne-Marne near Belleau Wood, France. 2.—American embassy in Paris guarded by gendarmes during the Sacco-Vanzetti demonstrations. 3.—Memorial erected by citizens of Dayton, Ohio, to the late John H. Patterson, manufacturer and philanthropist.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

"Air Derby" to Honolulu Is Won by Art Goebel in the Plane Woolaroc.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

SOMETHING new under the sun—an "Air Derby" across the Pacific ocean from Oakland, Calif., to Honolulu—was the feature of the week's news. After a deal of preparation eight planes started in the race for the James Dole prize of $35,000, of which $10,000 was for the second to reach the goal. Four met with disaster at the take-off, but the other four winged their way over the waste of waters. The Woolaroc, piloted by Art Goebel, movie stunt flyer, and with Lieut. William Davis, U. S. N., as navigator, won the race. The Aloha, with Martin Jensen of Honolulu as pilot and Paul Schluter as navigator, was second.

At this writing the two other planes are missing, and are being sought by airplanes and naval ships. These are the Miss Doran, with Augie Pedlar as pilot, Lieut. V. R. Knope as navigator and Miss Mildred Doran of Detroit as passenger; and the Golden Eagle, of which Jack Frost was the pilot and Gordon Scott the navigator.

The Woolaroc made the flight in 26 hours 19 minutes and 33 seconds. The Aloha took 28 hours 17 minutes. Lieutenants Maitland and Hagenberger of the United States army made the trip in 25 hours and 50 minutes several weeks ago, while Ernie Smith and Emory Bronte, the first civilians to fly to Hawaii from California, landed at Molakai island 25 hours 26 minutes after leaving the mainland.

Goebel's plane was equipped with a radio outfit that functioned well and he was in frequent communication with ships. The army navigation officers at Honolulu, who charted the course of the aviators as the radio reports were received, agreed that the flight of the Woolaroc was almost perfect and was a triumph of the highest order for scientific practice in air navigation. The plane was kept in line constantly with the radio beam beacon at San Francisco.

Pilot Jensen took the Aloha by the northern route and overshot his mark somewhat. He said he skimmed the surface of the sea nearly all the way, while the Woolaroc was kept at an altitude of between 600 and 800 feet. The successful aviators were given a warm welcome in Honolulu, but the celebration was marred by anxiety concerning the missing flyers.

DOWN at San Diego, Calif., the navy's PN-10 seaplane broke two world's records and established a third. The plane weighed at the time of take-off approximately 11 tons. It carried 1,100 pounds of sand, 1,222 gallons of gasoline and 120 gallons of lubricating oil. For a plane carrying this dead weight, these records were established:

Duration—20 hours, 45 minutes, 40 seconds.

Distance—1,568 miles.

Speed—78.56 miles an hour.

The plane was piloted by Lieut. Byron J. Connell. He was accompanied by Lieut. H. C. Rodd, radio engineer, and Comar Vincent, aviation chief machinist's mate.

EARLY in the week two big Junkers planes, the pride of Germany, started from Dessau to fly across the Atlantic. One, the Europa, had New York as its goal, and the other, the Bremen, was to fly as far as Chicago if its gasoline lasted. The Europa ran into stormy weather and after getting over the North sea it developed motor trouble and was forced to turn back, landing at Bremen. The Bremen kept on until it had crossed Ireland and out over the ocean some distance. Then the storm grew worse, the gasoline was being used up too fast, and the aviators gave it up and with great difficulty made their way back to Dessau. It was thought a third Junkers plane might attempt the Atlantic crossing, but on the other hand experts thought the time for such a flight had passed for this year.

THE full bench of the Massachusetts Supreme court overruled the exceptions by Sacco-Vanzetti defense counsel to decisions by Justice George A. Sanderson of that court and by Judge Webster Thayer of the Superior court and refused to grant a writ of error

This meant that the two men must be executed after the termination of their respite, midnight of August 22, unless some further means of saving their lives were found.

AMERICA'S greatest "captain of industry," who might better be termed a generalissimo, passed with the death in New York of Judge Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the board of the United States Steel corporation. Though almost eighty-one years of age, he was still in active control of the mighty concern which was the creation of his imagination and genius and whose destinies he directed from its beginning. Gary was one of the most important figures in modern finance and business, and his part in the affairs of the nation, in both peace and war, had much to do with present industrial conditions. Though long the advocate of the eight-hour day in the steel mills and fought for many years by labor leaders, he was held by many as a real friend of humanity, the masses in particular, and as a philanthropist and a benefactor of church and science. During the World war he was the indefatigable aid of the government. Judge Gary's body was taken to his old home in Wheaton, a suburb of Chicago, and the funeral was held in the beautiful memorial church which he built there. His successor as chairman of the steel corporation has not yet been announced.

J. Ogden Armour of Chicago, another of America's leading business men, died in London after several months' illness. The son of P. D. Armour, famous pioneer meat packer, he succeeded his father as head of the business and expanded it into a world-wide organization, winning one of the country's great personal fortunes. In the period of post-war deflation this fortune dwindled with astonishing swiftness, and Mr. Armour withdrew from active participation in many of the concerns with which he was connected, these including banks and railways.

John Oliver, premier of British Columbia, died in Victoria at the age of seventy-one years. He had been ill for some time and had been relieved of his official duties by the naming of J. D. McClean as acting premier and leader of the Liberal party.

Other deaths worthy of note were those of James Oliver Curwood, popular American author, and Rhinelander Waldo, well-known New Yorker.

FOLLOWING a conference with Mr. Coolidge in Rapid City, Director of the Budget Lord announced that the President had approved large increases in appropriations for both the army and the navy. Among the expenditures for national defense authorized by the President are: Funds for completion of the six cruisers authorized by congress in the last session; funds for completion of the remodeling of the battleships Oklahoma and Nevada; and funds for 1,800 first-class planes for the army and 1,000 planes for the navy. There was only one naval appropriation which the President did not approve. That was for three submarines, asked for in 1916, on which investigation work still is being done.

Pessimists at once began figuring that the increased defense estimates, together with the necessity of spending a lot for farm relief, would make impossible any extensive reduction in taxes by the next congress. But the official opinion in Washington was that taxes would certainly be cut at least $300,000,000 during the coming session. In order to bring this about the Democratic leaders and some Republicans will, if necessary, combat the practice of applying all receipts from foreign debts to national debt reduction. President Coolidge holds that tax reduction next year is feasible if congress does not indulge in excessive money spending.

GENERAL PERSHING called at the summer White House and discussed with Mr. Coolidge conditions of American cemeteries in France, also submitting to him the accepted designs for various memorials and chapels on the battlefields. The President went to the Pine Ridge reservation Wednesday and saw a pageant and parade in which some ten thousand Indians participated. He received from the Sioux national council a memorial reciting the loyalty and complaints of the Indians and in reply assured them of the government's sympathy and close study of their problems. Next day Mr. Coolidge, accompanied by Mrs. Coolidge and their son, John, inspected the government hospitals for World war veterans at Hot Springs, S. D. Plans were made for the Presidential family to spend a week in Yellowstone National park.

COLLAPSE of the Nanking Nationalist group in China seems imminent. After his armies, which were advancing on Peking met with severe defeats and were driven back to the south of the Yangtse, Gen. Chiang Kai-shek resigned his leadership and appealed for unity of action between the Nanking and Hankow factions. But the northern troops kept on going south and at last reports had occupied Pukow and were bombarding Nanking, across the Yangtse. Both foreign and native residents of that city were fleeing. Meanwhile the foreigners in Shanghai were preparing to defend the place against invasion by the disorganized hordes of fleeing Nationalist soldiers. American, British and French troops were placed in strategic positions, the British being in an advanced line about Shanghai's environs, outside the international settlement. The barricades between the French concession and Chinese territory were reconstructed. The situation there was complicated by a quarrel between the British authorities and the Chinese officials. An English airplane had been forced to land in Chinese territory and the native officials seized the wings and refused to comply with a British ultimatum that they give them up immediately. The Chinese contended that flying British planes over Chinese territory is a violation of international law as well as the international airplane convention, to which both Breat Britain and China are signatories.

Japan, asserting its preferential claims in Manchuria and Mongolia, has served notice that it will not tolerate any opposition there to its policy. The Chinese, especially in Manchuria, are deeply resentful of the Japanese actions and plans, and the Mukden Chamber of Commerce stated an intention to boycott Japan.

WHAT is denominated an "economic Locarno" in the form of a commercial treaty was signed by France and Germany after three years of dickering. The pact provides for a mutual favored nation agreement on practically all products passing between the two countries and paves the way for intertrade such as the two nations have never experienced. French agriculture will receive the greatest benefit. Practically all the tariffs are lowered, while Germany agrees not to increase the existing ones on cotton, wool, silk, leather goods and metallurgical products, soap and perfumery.

PRESIDENT COSGRAVE'S government of the Irish Free State narrowly escaped overthrow at the hands of a combine of three parties after De Valera and his followers had taken the oath of fealty to the king and occupied their seats in the Dail. A resolution of lack of confidence was introduced and the vote was a tie which was broken when the speaker cast his vote in the negative. As a matter of fact, Cosgrave was saved by Alderman John Jinks of Sligo, a member of the Redmond party, who slipped away just before the vote was taken. He says he never had any intention of voting the government out. Cosgrave is expected to gain strength in the general elections in October.

BOLIVIA was greatly alarmed by a big uprising among the Indians, who largely outnumber the whites in that country. But quick action by the government troops isolated the disaffection in certain sections of three departments and gave assurance that the trouble would soon be quieted. Many chiefs were captured and heavy penalties were inflicted, and thereafter thousands of Indians returned to their work in the fields.

TWO WOMEN FOUND HELP

Their Sickness Banished by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Mrs. Nina Matteson, Box 206, Oxford, N. Y., writes—"If it had not been for your medicine, I could not have done my work as it should have been done. Mother told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I had read in different papers what it had done for different women. She wanted me to try it, so my husband got me one bottle at first; then I took two others. Now I am feeling quite strong again."

Mrs. Ernest Tangnay of Adams, Mass., says she was ill for four years and could not sleep nights or go out on the street. She read about the Vegetable Compound and decided to try it. After taking eight bottles she was able to do all her work and go anywhere and is quite herself again.

This dependable Vegetable Compound is a household word in thousands of homes. The fourth generation is now learning the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

For more than half a century, this reliable medicine has been used by women with very satisfactory results. If the Vegetable Compound has helped other women, why shouldn't it help you?

Creme Joun, the Perfect Bleach Cream prevents and cures sunburn, freckles, acne and all other facial blemishes. One dollar Sesame Company, 415 Aldrich, Minneapolis, Minn.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM
Removes Dandruff-Stops Hair Falling
Restores Color and Beauty to Gray and Faded Hair
60c. and $1.00 at Druggists.
Hisc. Chem. Wks. Patchogue, N. Y.

FLORESTON SHAMPOO—Ideal for use in connection with Parker's Hair Balsam. Makes the hair soft and fluffy. 50 cents by mail or at druggists. Hiscox Chemical Works, Patchogue, N. Y.

Almost a Vacuum

The nearest approach to the creation of a vacuum has been accomplished by Prof. R. W. Sorenson at the California Institute of Technology at Pasadena. In connection with the electrical switching mechanism of the high-tension transmission plants, he has made a glass bulb containing only one-millionth part of its original content of air. This near-vacuum prevents arcing when the curent is suddenly shut off as it is often necessary to do.

Swept City Streets

Dr. C. H. Marvin, president of the University of Arizona, recently swept the streets of Tucson, seat of the university. He had vowed that if his home city should be defeated by Phoenix in an American Legion membership race, he would himself clean the main thoroughfare of the university town.

It is difficult at once to relinquish a long-cherished love.—Catullus.

Wonderful Animal Is the Sea Crab

The sea crab is a wonderful animal and could teach man something that would greatly enhance his chivalry, says Robert O'Neil of Tampa, Fla. The females shed their shells during the early spring, which leaves their bodies white and tender and a lure for small fish, at whose mercy they would be in short order, but Mr. Crab attends to all this in true husband style. While his mate is feeding along the shore in shallow water he follows closely and guards every attack with his strong claws. I have watched this performance often with interest from the shore for some distance. The female wanders leisurely along apparently unconcerned, while the male is kept busy grabbing at the numerous fish as they constantly make a rush for a bite. Should he cease his vigilance for a moment his mate would soon be seized and devoured. When the male crab eats or sleeps is a mystery.

Endless Track for Plane

Landing skids consisting of endless belts are being tried on airplanes in France. Preliminary tests have indicated their feasibility. The belt, or "traveling track," is mounted on a set of ballbearings between two aluminum shells. The belts are said to reduce the chance of the plane's overturning, to simplify the task of landing on rough ground, and to ease the shock of alighting.

Carves Pieces in Twenty Years

After twenty years' work in his spare time, William Andre, a Swiss guide, has just completed a hand-carved wooden bas-relief, which contains 600 figures, each perfect in detail. He has refused an offer of $10,000 for it. His only tool was an ordinary penknife. The work depicts a procession of mounted cavaliers approaching an ancient castle through meadows.

We Eat 'Em

Wife—"What would you like for dinner?" Hub (fed up)—"Anything but company."

There IS no Substitute For—
KIRK'S ORIGINAL
COCOA HARDWATER CASTILE
Instant, billowy foam in any kind of water. Dirt leaves skin. Beauty comes.

HANFORD'S
Balsam of Myrrh
For Piles, Corns Bunions, Chilblains, etc.
All dealers are authorized to refund your money for first bottle if not suited.

FOR OVER 200 YEARS

haarlem oil has been a world wide remedy for kidney, liver and bladder disorders, rheumatism lumbago and uric acid condition

GOLD MEDAL HAARLEM OIL CAPSULES

correct internal troubles, stimulate vital organs. Three sizes. All druggists. Insist on the original genuine GOLD MEDAL

Poetry is the music of the soul, above all of great and feeling souls Voltaire.

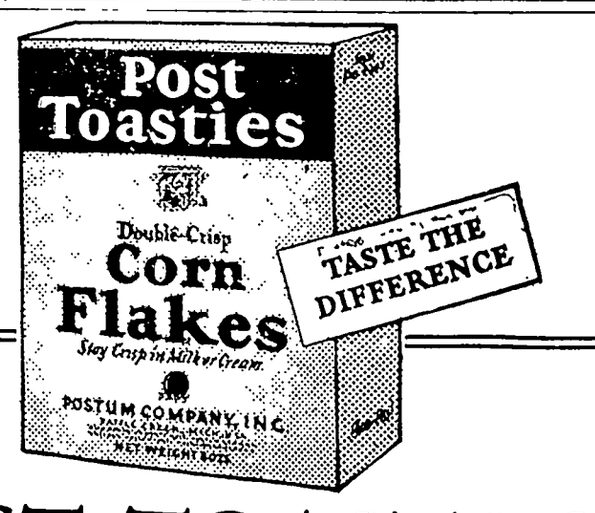
"The woodland fairies sent a gentle breeze to wake the children—and then brought a big pitcher of delicious hot Monarch Cocoa and a plate of Monarch Teenie Weenie Peanut Butter sandwiches."

EVERY genuine Monarch package bears the Lion Head, the oldest trademark in the United States covering a complete line of the world's finest food products—Coffee, Tea, Cocoa, Catsup, Pickles, Peanut Butter, Canned Fruits and Vegetables, and other superior table specialties.

REID, MURDOCH & CO.
Established 1853
Chicago Pittsburgh Boston New York
Jacksonville Tampa Los Angeles

Monarch is the only nationally advertised brand of QUALITY FOOD PRODUCTS sold exclusively through the men who own and operate their own stores

MONARCH
Quality for 70 Years



Ask for

POST TOASTIES

They stay crisp in milk or cream

Delicious hearts of corn—flaked and toasted double-crisp. Try them!

Until you have tasted Post Toasties you have no idea how good golden flakes of corn really are. Flaked from the hearts of tender white corn, deliciously seasoned and toasted double-crisp, Post Toasties have the true delicate flavor of the corn. Have them tomorrow morning for breakfast. Treat everyone at the table with a bowlful of these golden flakes that stay crisp in milk or cream. Try them for supper, too—and add this season's luscious fruits. A delightful combination. Be sure that you get genuine Post Toasties in the red and yellow, wax-wrapped package. They're always fresh and ready to serve.

Post Health Products

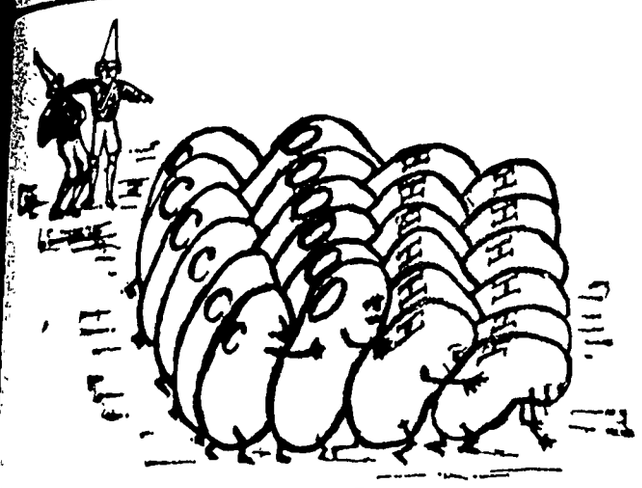
© 1927, P. Co., Inc.

POSTUM COMPANY, INC., BATTLE CREEK, MICH.

OURSELF and YOUR BODY

By WILFRED T. GRENFELL

THE BUILDING DEPARTMENT



AIR to keep good has got to be like something else, it has got to 'keep moving.' Once a lot of students were up in a tight glass room. Their ettes went out, the men wilted fozed; a fan inside started and e air in motion, and immediately tudents were as well as ever . It was the same air, but it was ng about. There is no dangerous nt of carbonic-acid gas from peo- even in big meetings. Just 'keep ir moving.'

ere is another thing which is even valuable to know. You realize our bodies have lots of enemies. might think that carbon-dioxide which we have to throw out of us, our enemy So he is. But our is wise enough to make him into friend."

ow ever do they make him a dd?"

Exactly like an alarm clock. When re asleep, if we have got our head the pillow like the little prin- in the tower, we should turn and die. But long before that e ugly-looking carbon molecules d have rung up central in our office, and messages would have pouring in from every side, say- 'We carbons are getting over- ded. Something is wrong. Please be deeper and quicker.' And if brain would not listen, they would up the muscles, and the muscles ld 'get busy' and send that pillow g—so, really, the enemy carbon e become our best friends.

So it is with drafts. Too much of thing may be an enemy and de- by us. It is for want of a draft ast we get so sleepy in a crowded oom, where the doors and windows re shut.

"Remember this, too: 'Cold is the riend of our bodies.' The strong aces come from the North, not the ropics. Germs cannot work properly n the cold.

"Here is a thing that the world eeds to believe more than all I have old you. It, and it only, can save the orld from wars and murders."

"Why, what is that, father?"

"It is the one and only way to get id of our enemies. There is an old tory that to cure the cat that ate too many cockroaches, you must give it a ose of chopped-up beetle; or to cure silly boy who is smoking cigarettes, ive him a 'whacking big' cigar. What did we do to save our soldiers from dying of typhoid in the war? We vac- inated them. How did the world get id of smallpox, which once killed mil- ions of people? Vaccinated every one. How do we prevent colds nowadays? We vaccinate against them. Yes, we make the germs cure themselves. You only get rid of your enemies by mak- ing them your friends."

"What are our bodies built of, fa- ther, and who does the building?"

"They are built of clever little cells, which are doing the work of building and repairing all our life long.

"The cells have five main wires to the central office. These are called the senses. One is for our tongue, others for our nose, eyes, ears, and touch ma- chines.

"All the tiny particles in our food are stuck together by energy. Isn't that a strange kind of cement? But it is really the same that keeps our old world buzzing around the sun, and glues the stars in their places. Our food is like charges of dynamite, which tiny detonators inside us can force to shoot off its energy, all ready for us to use."

"Then don't we make our own strength, father?"

"Oh, no, our bodies do not create one bit of new matter, any more than an automobile does. We must put gas- oline into the tank all ready made, or the car will not go. Our bodies are the same. They are mere machines, and we get out of them only what we put in Fortunately for the world there is one thing in it that can create more dy- namite out of waste, especially out of the waste of our bodies after we have thrown it away. You would never guess what it is. It is called the 'green- o'-leaf' (Chlorophyll), and is the sub- stance that makes any leaf green. That is why I take off my hat to all green plants. The world could not last any time without chlorophyll. That breaks up waste, and catches the energy of the shinshine, and sticks the particles together in new blocks, and then hands them to us as new, ready made food cartridges. If it is a potato, or flour, or corn, or porridge cartridge, we call it starch. The storehouse cells keep these with the sugars. They are all labelled 'carbohydrates,' because there is carbon and water in them.

"A chemist recently said that the necessary ingredients to make a man out of are as follows:

"Items: Fat enough for seven bars of soap; iron enough for one medium- sized nail; sugar enough to fill a shaker; lime enough to whitewash one chickencoop; phosphorus enough to make two thousand and two hundred match tips, magnesium enough for one dose of 'salts'; potash enough to ex- plode one toy cannon, and sulphur enough to rid one dog of fleas. Even at post-war prices you could buy the whole lot for 98 cents.

"It is easy to remember that the body uses the starches for fuel to burn up meats, proteids, and fats, or hydro- carbons.

"Of course every cartridge must have a cap to set it off and enable any one to make use of its energies, just as a stick of dynamite must have a detonator. That is exactly what the supply cells do, they set off the cart- ridges which the plants make; or you can say that the cells are playing the great game of life, and the plants keep sending down the things to play with. Now we will label each player. H does not stand for Harvard, but for hydrogen; O not for Oxford, but for oxygen; C not for Columbia, but for carbon; N not for Newfound- land but for nitrogen. The plants ar- range these players into regular teams. We start them marching down the red lane, and the cells set them free to play. The cells know exactly how to use each team, because they know how many there are of each kind of play- ers in each group. Thus the Starch Team has 2 C's, 6 O's and 12 H's. That is the team, as you now know, which gives us energy the quickest. You will learn about the other teams some day. Each has the same kind of players. (See picture.)

"There are a few special things which the supply cells must have to do their work. These things they can- not manufacture; and for them we have got to go back once more to our friends the plants. These things are to put life into the players—some- thing like the lemons which people throw the football team at half-time— so we call them 'vitamines.'

"The United Cell Company are a very remarkable crowd. They not only do all the upbuilding, but they get to- gether and practically tell you and me what they want, and make us give it to them. When they shout out, we know what they want, and we call it 'liking a thing.' As a rule they call up central about three times a day, for they have a wonderful habit of look- ing ahead, and they want to have sup- plies just where they can get them when they need them. Thus we call their shout for H and O being thirsty because two H's and one O make wa- ter. By the way, do you know that about three-fourths of our whole body is water? Sometimes they call out: 'Sugar, please.'

"Too much fat is a sort of poison. Never get fat."

(© by the Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Kill rats wholesale

Get rid of them safely. Here's a new sure way. K-R-O, a fine non-poisonous powder, kills 'em off in a hurry Made from squill bulbs, the new safe way urged by govern- ment experts.

Safe for poultry and pets

Actual tests proved that it killed rats and mice every time but other animals and poultry were not injured by the largest doses. Think what that means to farmers and merchants.

Not a poison

Use K-R-O freely. Place it around your home, your barn, your granary or farm- yard. Contains no arsenic, phosphorus or barium-carbonate. At your druggist 75c. Large size (4 times as much) $2.00. Or sent direct from us postpaid if he cannot supply you. Satisfaction guaranteed

K-R-O CO., Springfield, Ohio

NAUSEA?

Recover Quickly!

When food or water disturbs your stomach, cramps and nausea sometimes result. For prompt relief take some Chamberlain's Colic Remedy in a glass of water Soon you feel fine. Ask your druggist for this old, reliable remedy today For trial size, send 4c to Chamberlain Medicine Company, 700 Sixth Avenue, Des Moines, Iowa.

CHAMBERLAIN'S
GUARANTEED REMEDY FOR
COLIC AND DIARRHEA
THE FIRST AID IN STOMACH ACHE

POCUS COMPOUND Gall Bladder and Liver troubles treated successfully used for years. Effective, inexpensive POCUS COMPOUND COMPANY, Box 125 Red Bud, Illinois.

MOVIE MYSTERIES REVEALED IN NEW book "Your Chance in Hollywood." Send $1 or will mail C O D R M. WALTER, Room 408, 1658 Broadway, New York City

W. N. U., DES MOINES, NO. 35--1927.

Something for All

Two high school boys were walking downtown one afternoon when they were approached by a newsboy.

"Paper, paper, all about the big scandal. Want a paper?"

"Too bad," said one of the boys, "but I can't read."

The newsie was ready with a re- ply: "Sure, but you can look at the pictures."

Adult Butterflies and Moths Eat Little

The chief difference in habit be- tween moths and butterflies is the fact that with one of them most work during the day shift and with the oth- er most work the night shift, writes William Atherton Du Puy in Nature Magazine. The chief difference in form is the way most of them wear their wings. Most butterfies put the wings on as shutters are put on a window. They are worked back and forth like shutters. Most moths, on the contrary, fold them down on the back.

Neither moths nor butterfies feed to any extent as adults. The winged state constitutes their day of glory and of mating. They sip a bit of nectar from a flower here and there, but this is by no means a serious at- tempt at food-g tting. They could quite well get along without any food at all. The eating of a lifetime is done in the caterpillar stage. Most caterpillars are leaf feeders.

Panama "Home of Orchid"

The designation, "Home of the Or- chid," has been applied to Panama because of the great varieties of or- chids found there. It has been ex- plained that this is due to the fact that, though Panama is small, it has a great variation of climate, ranging from the humid lowlands of the jungle to the mountains of Chiriqui, which attain an altitude of more than 5,000 feet. From the earliest times Panama has been a fruitful field for the orchid collector, and the first pro- fessional collector of which there is a record was Luis Nee, a French bot- anist, who visited Panama in 1784 and in 1789.

To Patrol Forests

William Finlayson, minister of lands and forests for the province of On- tario, reports that his department has purchased and is bringing from Eng- land, four seaplane "moths" for use in connection with forest patrol work in northern Ontario, and for detection and fire-fighting work in the northern forests. These planes have a wing spread of 30 feet, compared with a wing spread of 86 feet of some of the airplanes now in use by the depart- ment. They have a speed of from 80 to 90 miles an hour.

A man can be insincere in his anger when anger is expected of him.

Lindbergh is one of our coming men who has arrived.

Uncle Buzz is bored by visitors

FLIT spray clears your home of mosquitoes and flies. It also kills bed bugs, roaches, ants, and their eggs. Fatal to insects but harmless to mankind. Will not stain. Get Flit today.

FLIT

DESTROYS
Flies Mosquitoes Moths
Ants Bed Bugs Roaches

"The yellow can with the black band"

© 1927 STANDARD OIL CO. (N.J.)

Cuticura Soap Shampoos Keep the Scalp Healthy

Regular Shampoos with a suds of Cuti- cura Soap and hot water, preceded by light applications of Cuticura Ointment, are most effective. They do much to cleanse the scalp of dandruff, allay irri- tation, stimulate circulation and promote the healthy condition necessary to a luxuriant growth of hair.

Soap 25c. Ointment 25 and 50c. Talcum 25c. Sold every- where. Sample each free. Address: "Cuticura Labora- tories, Dept. B3, Malden, Mass."

Cuticura Shaving Stick 25c.

Oh, Dot!

When little Dorothy Kitchen, film comedienne, applied for a part, Wil- liam Lord Wright, supervisor of the unit, looked her over and exclaimed: "My, where did you get those great big eyes?"

"Father and mother gave them to me for a birthday present," said Dor- othy demurely.

Cause for Alarm

A local parent has become suddenly concerned over the younger genera- tion. Last night his five-year-old boy said: "Papa, give me a thousand dollars."—Detroit News.

A. W. O. L.

The new minister was calling on the Smiths. Alone for a minute with Bobby, eight, he was getting some of the family history without whitewash or varnish. "And what is your fa- ther's religion?" asked the minister. "Well, from what mother says every little while, I guess he is a Seven Day Absentist."

Cash in Hand

Wife—I saw my doctor today, dear, about my loss of memory.

Husband—What did he do?

Wife—He made me pay in advance. —Tit-Bits.

FACTS
—AND THE OPEN MIND

THE MOST important element in business success—and the most difficult—is to be sure that you have all the facts before you act.

TO GET them all, from every possible source, is the first objective in General Motors. The Research Laboratories contrib- ute some. These are nuggets, left in the crucible, after hundreds of ideas that looked good have been burned away. The Proving Ground contributes others. Dealers contrib- ute. The public contributes. Every depart- ment contributes. Through the whole organization runs a spirit of inquiry and of rigid insistence on proof.

OUT OF such thinking come the new models announced from time to time by Chev- rolet, Pontiac, Oldsmobile, Oakland, Buick, LaSalle, Cadillac—all with Fisher Bodies. And by Frigidaire. Each new model is a tested step forward. Nothing goes into it as a result of habit or guess or pride of opinion.

Nothing counts but hard-won facts, gathered and used with an open mind.

CHEVROLET
Chevrolet
Pontiac
Oldsmobile
OAKLAND
Oakland
Buick
Buick
LaSalle
Cadillac
Fisher Bodies
GMC
General Motors Trucks
FRIGIDAIRE
The electric refrigerator

GENERAL MOTORS

"A car for every purse and purpose"

Mr and Mrs Fred Barz and two children and Mrs. Henry Barz and two children, left Thursday for Tracy, Minn , and Valley City, North Dakota for a visit with relatives.

Mr and Mrs Albert Barz and children left Tuesday for Tracy, and Blue Earth, Minn. At the latter place they will visti the Palmbys. The ladies are sisters.

F W Dingman and family moved to Britt today Mr. Dingman will work in a barber shop there The Carson family has rented the place vacated by Dingmans and they expect to move in soon.

Mr. and Mrs R. A. Jorgenson and son Buster, and Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Waterman and daughter, Marian, returned Monday evening from a few days visit at Kansas City, Mo., with Mrs Jorgenson's sister and husband Mr. and Mrs Hugh Chapman.

The Times is always glad to receive items of news. Please phone your items or mail them. Thanks.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Johnson and daughters, Nina and Pearl, and son Walter, drove to Chariton, Iowa, last Sunday morning to attend the funeral of a cousin. They returned home Monday evening.

Dr. and Mrs. W. F. Missman and son, Byrnes, returned Monday evening from their outing of two weeks spent at their cabin at Land O'Lakes, Wisconsin. They report a very good time.

Marshall Earl Finn has a few days vacation over the week end and he and his family are visiting with his parents at Belmond and her parents at Goodell. Benn Coobs is on the job as Marshall and Street Commissioner until the first of the week when Mr Finn expects to return

News of Klemme and Vicinity

Dr. R. W. Specht, Dentist, Garner, Iowa. adv

Milo Patet will leave Saturday for Chicago to resume his art course.

Paul Grange and family were at Mason City on business Wednesday.

Otto Lemke and family were at Iason City on business last Friday.

The Joe and Alvin Stokesbary families drove to Nebraska last week for a visit with relatives.

Rev. G. D. Elliker of Waukon, Iowa, was a caller at the Grosshuesch home Friday.

Mrs. Ralph Ludeke will be hostess to the W. F. M. S. next Thursday, Sept. 1st.

Mrs. Christine Hosmer of Mason City is visiting relatives here this week.

Clark Bredbenner and family attended the fair at Mason City last Thursday.

Benn Coobs and family took in the North Iowa Fair at Mason City last Thursday.

Paul Grange and family, Happy Johnson and family and Benn Coobs and family drove to Ames Sunday.

Mr and Mrs R. W. Elder and daughter, Reva, took in the fair at Mason City last Wednesday.

Mr and Mrs. Wm Trafford, of Belmond, were visiting with Klemme friends last Wednesday.

Walter Dirkson, of Woden, purchased an Essex Coach of the Pritchard Auto Co. here Saturday

The fall term opens Tuesday September the 6th. The Hamilton University, Mason City, Iowa 1tc

Mrs Lena Schroeder and Max Barz went to Garner Wednesday morning for a short visit.

Mrs. C A Arnold and Miss Minnie Lenz drove to Watertown, S Dak., Friday for a visit with relatives.

Mr and Mrs. Paul Stille and the children are in Dakota where they will remain until school starts.

Kenneth Patet went to Iowa City last Wednesday to take some treatment before school sarted

You can get a good position if you get your training at The Hamilton University, Mason City, Iowa 1tc

Miss Arlene Ell, of Mankato, Minn spent last week visiting with Klemme relatives and frineds.

Mr and Mrs. Wm. Smith, Mable, and Dorance Day took in the fair at Mason City last Thursday.

The Misses Nina and Pearl Johnson returned from Cedar Falls last Friday They have been attending school there this summer.

Art Wellemeyer drove to Cedar Falls Friday to bring his daughter, Ethel, home. Miss Wellemeyer has been attending summer school there

The Misses Mabel Schaefer, Dora Swanson and Fern Stille have returned home from Cedar Falls where they attended summer school.

Rev. K. Knieger and wife of Wabasha, Minn , spent a few days at the home of Rev. and Mrs Calvin Grosshuesch last week.

Gerald Koerner, Glen Terhufen, Clarence Gram and Hugh Hummel left for northwest Minnesota Tuesday to work in the threshing season.

Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Koerner and Mrs. Carl Suckow and son Warren, returned last Thursday from their Colorado trip.

The R. W. Elder, W. F. Pavey and Emil Patet families and Mr. and Mrs. Chris Gram took in the big Odd Fellow picnic at Clear Lake Sunday.

C A. Larsen and family drove to Garden City, Minn , Sunday for a visit with Albert Yahnke and family.

George Johnson has been hired by the Farmers Elevator as their second man He expects to begin work about September 1st. He and his family will move into the J. J. Poort residence.

A slight change has been made and the Garner Auto Co. of Klemme will hereafter be called The Pritchard Auto Co John Pritchard is in charge of the business here.

Mrs Fred Ridder, Miss Neota and Mrs. S. A. Harvey and daughter, Enid, drove to Watertown, S. Dak., Tuesday morning for a week's visit with relatives and friends

Rev A W Gauger and family drove to Eagle Grove Monday afternoon to see the corner stone laid for a new Methodist Church building.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Crane, Mrs Emma Crane and Erma Snieder who have been visiting at the Lew Lewis home, left Saturday morning for their home at Beaver Dam, Wis.

Mrs Wm. Wahlbrink of Wright, Missouri came Monday for a visit at the Gilbert Schaper home and at the home of her brother, Frank Rosendahl and family.

J J Poort and family will move to Sac City, Iowa, the first of next week They will hold a sale Saturday afternoon Read the ad in this issue

Mr and Mrs. C. F. Keraus drove to Des Moines Tuesday morning to stay until next Monday taking in the State Fair They will camp at the Fair Grounds while there.

Mrs Clarence Kluckhohn is enjoying a visit from her parents, Mr. and Mrs Metzgar, of Buffington, Indiana, who came Wednesday for an extended visit.

John Day and family drove to Sioux City Sunday for a visit with Mr and Mrs Donald Nissen They returned to Klemme Wednesday evening

A new merry-go-round has been installed at the school grounds and has already been tried out by the kids who have placed their O K. on the proposition

Somehow or other the burglar alarm at the State Savings Bank went off about 9 30 the other evening and kept ringing until after midnight It couldn't have been burglars as it is a well known fact that not a red penny is in the vault

BAYSIDE

AMUSEMENT PARK
—Clear Lake, Iowa—
— PROGRAM —

SUNDAY, AUGUST 28th

Speed Launch Races in front of Bayside. Clear Lake and side speed launches will compete for big cash prizes. C Lindbergh, guest of C. H. McNider, may be on the Lake to them. Ball Game at 3 o'clock, Charles City vs. Clear Yankees. Band concerts, Free Movies, and Out-Door attrac DANCES—Friday night, August 26th, will be last regular at Bayside. Dances at White Pier every Tuesday, Thu and Saturday night. Roller Skating at Bayside daily.

AT BAYSIDE——Best bathing beach on L bath house, toboggan slide, roller coaster, little train, new house, merry-go-round, ferris wheel, fortune teller, concess free picnic grounds and tables, children's playgrounds, b fishing.

FUN FOR ALL ALL FOR FUN
— Policed Parking Grounds For Cars 15c —

FEED GRINDING

Our Feed Grinding Mill is "raing to go" and all it needs is to have you farmers bring in your grain and get your feed ground the way you want it. Our mill does excellent work and turns out real ground feed.

Coal for Winter

Fill your bins now for winter as coal prices are steadily advancing. Our bins are full of good furnace and stove coal and right now the price is right.

Klemme Co-Operative Grain Co.

Furnace and Stove Repairing

Don't put oc getting your Furnace or your Heating Stove over-hauled and put in first class condition before cold weather sets in. Get the job done now.

To get the best heating results and to save fuel, your furnace should be looked over, re-puttied where necessary, new smoke pipes installed, new grates put in and any other repairs made. Do this now and save worry and trouble when it is needed this fall. We are already overhauling furnaces and stoves. Give us your order and we will look over your furnace and put it in first class shape at a reasonable price.

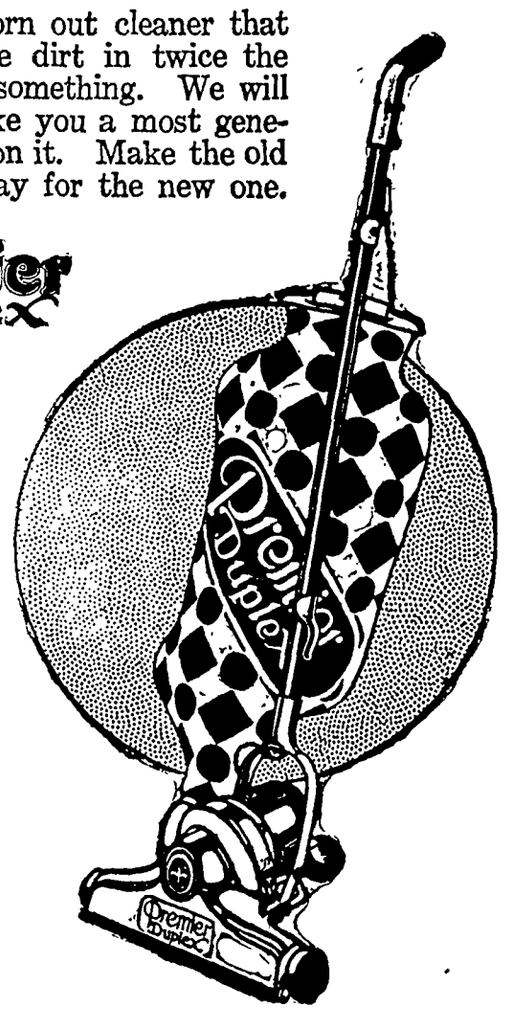
Give us your order for new furnace or stove pipes, gates and repairs for any make or furnace or stove on the market and we will get them for you.

If you ae figuring on a new furnace or heating stove let us show you our line—we can save you money.

E. F. Jacobs
"THE FARM SERVICE STORE"

LIBERAL ALLOWANCE on your old cleaner toward a new PREMIER DUPLEX

YOUR old worn out cleaner that gets half the dirt in twice the time, is worth something. We will take it and make you a most generous allowance on it. Make the old one help you pay for the new one.



Premier Duplex

This is the famous double action vacuum cleaner—the one that cleans by powerful suction and a motor driven brush. And it needs no oiling, for both motor and brush turn on ball bearings. It has many features that commend it to housewives.

Only $5.00 down

The rest can be paid in easy payments over a year's time.

Central States Electric Co.

Threshing Coal

Now is a good time to lay in your supply of Coal for Threshing.

We have our coal bins filled with a high grade of coal especially suited for your needs at threshing time—and the price is right on our coal.

We always carry a complete lne of all kinds of coal. Right now we are also featuring high grade coal for kitchen ranges.

A full line of all kinds of feed on hand.

North Iowa Grain Co.

TIRE SALE

Here Are Our Prices On Tires

30x3½ Cord	$6.20
30x3½ Extra Size Cord	$6.95
29x4.40 Balloon	$7.95

Compare These Prices

With any other First Grade Tire and then come in and let us show you our values.

PRITCHARD AUTO Co

Phone 77 Klemme. Iowa

THE KLEMME TIMES

th Year—Number 3. KLEMME, IOWA, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 1, 1927.

REE ARE HELD ER BOOZE RAIDS

AGENT STONER HERE TO MAKE ARRESTS

Cress And Deputies Assist In Booze Round-up

ther big booze raid was pull- here last Thursday night and morning when a complete boiler type still, about twelve s of sugar alcohol and a small ity of wine and other liqours taken State Agent H. M. of Des Moines with the as- ce of Klemme officers, made rst haul which resulted in the e of several gallons of booze e arrest of Levi Ridder. The next morning was staged by Agent Stoner and Sheriff Cress is deputies from Mason City, the state man had called to him on a series of raids for morning in Klemme.

a result of the several raids who wtre arrested and bound o the grand jury under bonds 000 each are Levi Ridder, who rrested about seven weeks ago deral Ag nts and who is at "- under bonds from a former ; C. M Bredbenner and A. G. er.

w days prior to Thursday ev- the hiding place of a quantity or was found in the two corn just west of Klemme. John er, in whose field one lot was on the south side of the road, ired to cut four rows of corn ound the hiding place. The s presumed that the owner of uff would probably show up to it before it had been exposed corn. At about 11:30 that as the officers lay in waiting Ridder showed up in the corn nd was placed under arrest by Agent Stoner, as it is alleged was the owner of the booze me to get it. On information y County Attorney White in Suckow's Court Friday Levi plead not guilty to the charge al possession of intoxicating. s bound over to the grand jury leased when he furnished the d bonds of $1,000.

ay morning the officers con- their raids and captured the nd a gallon and a half of liq- Bredbenner's barn. Bred- was placed under arrest and until he was given a hearing before noon He is at liberty $1,000 bonds and is bound the grand jury for Sept. 26. A. G Koerner place was raid- some wine and a small quan- liquor seized which was found barn. Mr Koerner entered a not guilty and was bound the grand jury on a $1,000 other places in Klemme, the Pavey blacksmith shop and ed Ridder residence were in th of the raiders but nothing und at either place.

liquor and the still and other taken in the raids were tak- Garner by Deputy Sheriff M. er and placed in the court vault.

FIRE GIRLS GIVE MEMBER FAREWELL PARTY

Girls Received Degrees In Camp Fire Work

Camp Fire Girls hiked to the ridge west of Klemme Tues- ternoon. It was a farewell honor of Leona Poort who ing our camp. We have en- having Leona belong to our and are sorry to lose her as ber. We hope she will con- to be a Camp Fire Girl and nsfer her membership to Sac here they are moving.

ce Wellemeyer and Irene became Wood Gatherers, the first degree and Leona became a Fire Maker, which second degree. At the last Gracka Quandt, Reva Eld- Valeria Koerner were made Gatherers.

next meeting will be at the Lucille Kraus.

W. C. FIELDS STARS IN GRIFFITH COMEDY AT GARNER

"Sally of the Sawdust" Is Popular Laugh Maker

Since the time when D. W Griffith made the first motion picture comedy, he has been preparing himself for the great comedy that is now produced under the title, "Sally of the Sawdust," a United Artists Corporation release, coming to the Lyric Theatre, Friday and Saturday Sept. 2-3 at Garner.

When Mr. Griffith made the first comedy called "The Curtain Pole," it was roundly denounced as an uswise investment by the financial advisers of the company.

Their answer was an imediate success and great profits, and there was launched into films a new type of picture that has ever prospered.

Incidently, one Mack Sennet, an unknown chorus boy, was employed in that first comedy, and then got the idea which later developed into his rich success as a maker of comedies.

Since that first comedy, Mr Griffith has gone far from the fields of laughter with his great dramas and spectacles such as "The Birth of A Nation," "Way Down East," Etc, but has long waited for a comedy story suitable to the talent available.

He found it in a stage success by Dorothy Donnelly and employed W. C. Fields, creator of the stage role, to play in the filming. Fields is now star comedian of the Zelgfeld Follies. With Carol Dempster, Mr. Griffith had found his perfect cast for a great comedy and the result is "Sally of the Sawdust," which has been acclaimed as one of the greatest entertainments ever given to the screen.

Dont' miss this picture at the Lyric at Garner Friday and Saturday.

Ell Township News

(Special Times Reporter)

Mr and Mrs C J Wilie and family visited with relatives at Meservey, Sunday.

Mrs John Bock and daughter, Stella, were in Mason City on business Tuesday.

Miss Ruth Johnson had the misfortune to fall and sprain her ankle last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Radloff and Frieda and Lawrence were visiting at the Wm. Schlawin home Sunday

Mr. and Mrs. Werner Schlawin and daughter La Von visited at the Frank Rosendahl home Sunday.

Mr and Mrs. Wm. Schlawin and Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Wille were callers at Mason City Tuesday afternoon.

The B W S. Thresher Co is holding their "Settle Up" thresher meeting tonight (Wed) After the business meeting refreshments will be served

Emma, daughter of Mr and Mrs Fred Kothenbeutal, was taken to the Hampton hospital where she underwent an operation for appendicitis Tuesday morning She is reported as getting along fine.

Mr. and Mrs John Bock, Mitchell and Stella, and Miss Edith Haupt, went to Des Moines early last Friday morning to take in the State Fair. They returned the same evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Schlawin and Mr and Mrs. Carl Wille and daughter, Arlene, left early Wednesday morning for Shenandoah. There they visited Henry Field's Seed and Nursery House and other places of interest Thursday they started for Des Moines from there to spend a few days at the State Fair, returning home Saturday, having had a very enjoyable trip.

Woodmen Please Take Notice

There will be a regular meeting Tuesday evening, Sept. 6th. Important business.

C G. Waterman, Clerk.

SEPT. 13 IS COUNTY FAIR ENTRY DAY

GOOD PROGRAM PROMISED FAIR VISITORS THIS YEAR

Boys And Girls Club Show Will Be Interesting Attraction

Arrangements are being completed for the Hancock County Fair to be held at Britt, Sept 13-14-15-16. Sept 13 will be entry day Entries are already coming in the livestock department The prospects are that the barns will be filled to overflow again this year.

The boys and girls club show will be bigger than ever There will be 29 baby beeves, 40 dairy heifers and 12 market pigs, all raised by club members. The corn club will have an exhibit in the floral hall The Girls Home Furnishing clubs will put on a big exhibit again this year.

In the way of entertainment, the Fair Management has arranged for fast baseball games each day Two fast harness races each day. Plenty of good band music and free attractions Night program will be featured again this year and good entertainment is assured for each night.

The Fair is late enough this year that the threshing and urgent farm work will be completed With good weather the attendance at the Fair should exceed that of former years

Andrew Wellemeyer, who recently took a course in undertaking at Des Moines, successfully passed the state board and was notified that he will be issued a certificate as a licensed embalmer Eighty-six took the examination but less than one fourth of that number were admitted by the board.

Mr and Mrs Wm Stubbe and Mr and Mrs Frank Lang and family of Winslow, Illinois, came last Thursday and spent a few days visiting at the Leonard Sampson home, before going on to Jackson, Minn., to visit other relatives

ELDER LEADS AGAIN IN HANCOCK NO.3

VICTOR HUENEMAN HOLDS THE SECOND PLACE FOR MONTH

Elder Also Had High Cow For The Month Of August

Twenty four herds were tested in the Hancock No. 3 Cow Test Association for the month of August. 321 cows were on test, 268 in milk and 33 were dry It is from the total number of cows in the sasociation that the averages are figured.

Average Milk	498 lbs.
Average Fat	20 93 lbs
Average Fed Cost per pound of Fat	13.42 cents.

Twenty five cows produced over 40 pounds of fat and five over 50.

The highest average for herds was made by the mixed Grade and Pure Bred herd of R W. Elder of Klemme This herd of eight cows, all of which were in milk, made an average of 1048 pounds of milk and 40 6 pounds of Fat

Victor Huenemann, of Garner, was second with his herd of ten P. B and G. Holsteins, all in milk. This herd averaged 855 pounds of milk and 32.9 pounds of Fat.

The P. B. and G. Holstein herd owned by Virgil Cook, of Goodell, thirteen cows in milk and one dry, made an average of 733 pounds of milk and 29 pounds of Fat.

John Bock of Klemme with a herd of eleven P. B and G. Holsteins, all in milk, made an average of 737 pounds of milk and 28.2 pounds of Fat.

Has High Cow For Month

Paul, a Grade Holstein, owned by R. W Elder, of Klemme, was high cow for the month. This cow produced 2046 pounds of milk and 73.6 pounds of Fat for the month, on twice a day milking.

Victor Huenemann, of Garner, owned the second high cow, Inko, a P B Holstein, produced 1404 lbs. milk and 56 pounds Fat

PLANES SHOW 55 TIMES MORE DUST IN CITY THAN IN COUNTRY ATMOSPHERE

Federal Observer, Who Aided Lindbergh, Studies Particles to Show Effect of Showers and Time of Day—Suburban Air Seems Good.

AIRPLANES are now being used to determine the amount and nature of dust particles floating in the atmosphere, dust particles that have been blown skyward from the earth.

Dr. Herbert H. Kimball, United States Weather Bureau meteorologist, who has been prominent in the news recently because of the data he supplied to Lindbergh, Chamberlin, Byrd and other aviators for long distance flights, has been making a special study of atmospheric dust.

His figures show that country dust has 2,000 particles to the cubic inch; suburban air 30,000 particles and 115,000 or more to the cubic inch of city air.

Tests in the airplanes have shown that in the morning more dust is found near the ground than in the afternoon and, further, that more dust is found near the ground than at a height of from 2000 to 7000 feet.

Showers, of course, will reduce the number of dust particles and a country breeze has the same effect.

Other scientists have made various studies as to the effect of certain chemicals on laying dust. Foremost of those has been calcium chloride a white and flaky chemical which attracts moisture to itself, dissolves when exposed to the air and combine with the road surface to which it is applied.

FOUR CARS STOCK SHIPPED OUT SATURDAY NIGHT

Four car loads of live stock constituted the shipment from the local yards Saturday night. The entire shipment were hogs, billed for the Chicago markets.

C. A. Larsen shipped three cars and the Klemme Shipping Association had one car load.

Avery-Twin Lakes News

(Special Times Reporter)

Ben Swalve was at his farm picking apples one day last week.

Mr. and Mrs Dick Swalve were at Garner Thursday afternoon.

Gerald Back is staying this week at the Henry Church home.

Herman Priebe hauled corn one day this week.

Adolph Cramer called at the Dick Swalve home Monday evening.

Mrs. Dick Swalve and daughter, Carrie, were at Garner last Monday afternoon.

Adolph Cramer was a caller at the Herman Priebe home last week Thursday evening.

Miss Emma Christians spent Sunday afternoon with Miss Leona Buseman.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Tanner and children spent Sunday with Mrs. Schwichtenberg.

Herman Priebe was a caller at the Henry Josten home Friday afternoon.

Mrs Frank Sandry was at Goodell Monday helping her father, Mr Busse cook for threshers.

Mr and Mrs. Ben Swalve were entertained at the Dick Swalve home Sunday afternoon.

Miss Minnie Haupt from near Belmond is working at the Lester Hartbeck home.

School started in Twin Lake twp. District No. 1 Monday morning with Miss Edith Haupt as teacher. Miss Haupt taught this school last year.

Mr. and Mrs. David Schwichtenberg and family, Wemkie and Anna Trampel were Sunday evening visitors at the D. Swalve home.

Miss Ava Sandrey, who has been spending most of her summer vacation with relatives in Minnesota, came home last week. While in Minnesota she also took treatments

Mrs. Alma Behrens and children came last week for a visit with her parents and other relatives. She is a sister of Emil Lau and Mrs. A Schmidt.

Verner Priebe came home Tuesday from a ten day vacation which he spent with his uncle and aunt, Mr and Mrs. Ing. Lauritson at Sheboygan, Wisconsin.

Mr and Mrs. David Schwichtenberg and family were at Clear Lake last Sunday, and also at Mason City visiting at the home of Mrs. Schwichtenberg's sister, Mrs. Frank Ryan, and family.

Mrs. Alvin Swalve, of Ocheyedan, Iowa, came last Thursday for a week's visit at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Wenz. Saturday Mr. and Mrs. Wenz took her back in their car and to remain for a few days visit with relatives. They returned home Monday.

A very interesting Farm Bureau meeting was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Etchen last Thursday. Odd furniture, such as chairs, were covered and made into very pretty and useful furniture. At the close of the meeting delicious refreshments were served by the hostess.

TWO FAMILIES HAVE REUNIONS SUNDAY

RELATIVES FROM OHIO WERE GUESTS OF HONOR

Sunday Was A Big Day For Visitors At Farm Home

There have been a number of family gatherings and re-unions in the vicinity of Klemme this summer, and another large gathering of relatives wos held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Schroer, Sunday.

The occassion was to honor relatives from Ohio who were in this vicinity on a visit. All brought well filled baskets of good things to eat and the dinner was served in cafetria style.

The list of relatives who were prsent and as given to The Times are as follows:

From Ohio. Mr and Mrs. W. W Katterhenrich, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Pfaadt, Mr. and Mrs Ernest Miars and daughter, Margaret, Mr. and Mrs. Wil Meckstroth, Laura and Kenneth. Mr and Mrs. Fred Warner, of Mason City, Iowa.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Thiemann, Alvin, Edwin and Mildred of Klemme, Iowa.

Mr and Mrs. George Neimeyer; Mr and Mrs. Louis Katterhenry, Mr and Mrs. Fred Simmons, Aaron. Victor, Emily, Ruth, Donald and Evelyn; Miss Rose Vandracek; Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Katterhenry and Morris; Mrs. Fred Katterhenry; Mr. and Mrs. Otto Schroer, Orville, Julia, Eunice and Leona, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Katter, Sr.; Miss Minnie Katter, Mr and Mrs Otto Schlawin, Mathilda, Myra, Sadie and Helen; Henry Boulwin; Mr. and Mrs. Walter Woiwood, Eugene, Donald and Vincent; Mr and Mrs. Henry Kirchefer.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Bredlow, of Hayfield.

FAMILY GATHERING HELD AT H. L. SUCKOW HOME SUNDAY

Big Chicken Dinner Was Enjoyed By Many Relatives

Another family gathering was held Sunday at the home of Mr and Mrs. H. L. Suckow in Klemme. At the noon hour a big chicken dinner was served on the cafeteria style and which was greatly enjoyed by all

All of the children and their families of Mr. and Mrs. Suckow were present, with the exception of one daughter, Mrs. Lawrence Schaeefr, of Milwaukee, Wis. The affair was held as a sort of farewell for Mrs. Herman Paul and children of St. Louis, who have been visiting in this vicinity for the past three weeks and who expect to leave for home this week.

Those present Sunday were John Suckow and family; Carl Suckow and family; Will Suckow and family; Mis Annabell Carlson; Mrs. Herman Paul and children; Lou Suckow, Henry Suckow, Jr.; and Will Brouwer.

A fine time was enjoyed by all.

HANCOCK COUNTY REAL ESTATE TRANSFERS

A Weekly Review Of Sales And Trades In Property

Cathtrine G. Pritchard to J. H. Noble. W. D., date 8-22-27, a tract of land 66x132' W of SW cor of lot 22 block 47 Garner.

Wm. H. Boyce, Trustee in bankruptcy of Hawkeye Oil Co to Rex Oil Company. Trustees deed date 7-15-27, $500,000.00, W 50' of lot 2 block 18 and W 50' of lot 1 block 18 Kanawha.

W. A. Lee et al to Anton Rezabek W. D, date 8-1-27, $1.00 NW¼ 11-96-25.

L. H. Gray wife to First National Bank, Britt. W. D. date 3-12-23, $1.00, E½ of NE¼ block 2 Stubblns add to Britt.

Ole L. Halverson to Carrie Halverson, wife. W. D., date 10-2-26, $1.00, SW¼ 13 and NE¼ NW¼ 24-97-23.

Labor Day, 1927

WILLIAM B. GREEN—PRESIDENT OF THE AMERICAN FEDERATION OF LABOR

SAMUEL GOMPERS—"THE GRAND OLD MAN OF AMERICAN LABOR"

JAMES J. DAVIS—PRESENT SECRETARY OF LABOR.

WILLIAM B. WILSON—FIRST SECRETARY OF LABOR.

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

LABOR DAY this year has a special significance, if we accept the statement of John R. Commons and his associates in the book "The History of Labor in the United States" in which they say "We place the beginning of the American labor movement in the year 1827 at Philadelphia. In that year and place, American wage earners for the first time joined together as a class regardless of trade lines in a contest with employers." The contest referred to was a strike of building trade workers for a ten-hour day and other improvements in their working conditions, a strike which ended successfully for the workers. So Labor Day this year may be regarded as the high spot in a centennial year for organized labor and for that reason has more than passing interest.

The day itself has a much shorter history, for it goes back only 45 years at the most. The idea of a Labor Day celebration was first suggested in 1882; it was first officially proclaimed by the American Federation of Labor in 1884, but it was not until 1894 that it was first made a legal holiday and that only in the District of Columbia and the territories. The first suggestion of a Labor Day holiday was made in New York City Central Labor union in May, 1882. Its officers held that, although the country had other holidays symbolical of the military, civil and religious spirit, there was none which represented the spirit of the workingman.

Accordingly it suggested the observance of the first Monday in September as a festival day with parades, picnics and speeches and staged such a celebration that year with great success. Two years later the American Federation of Labor officially recognized the suggestion by proclaiming the first Monday in September as Labor Day and urged all laborers to observe it. State legislatures were asked to make this day a legal holiday and eventually 32 of them did enact laws making it such.

Labor Day is also an appropriate time for reviewing some of the history of the labor movement in this country and for considering some of the forces which have contributed to the establishment of organized labor in its present important position in the social structure of this country. That these forces began to operate as far back as 1607 is shown in the brilliant essay with which Prof. Ralph Henry Gabriel of Yale university introduces Malcolm Keir's pictorial and verbal story of "The Epic of Industry" in the "Pageant of America" series which the Yale University Press is now bringing out. In this essay he tells of that historic movement when "In the Seventeenth century on the wooded banks of the James river a busy group of Englishmen unloaded from three small ships a quantity of axes and adzes, hoes and firearms, including some small cannon. Soon after a redskin, trained to hunt with bow and arrow, bore to the Indian village up the river the news of the coming of the whites. The age of iron had come suddenly into contact with the age of stone." He then traces and interprets the successive stages of industrialism in the United States down through 300 years to the present age which he summarizes as follows:

By the time the Twentieth century opened, industrialism had become a factor of first importance in American life. The passing of the frontier and the completion of the greater part of the national network of railroads freed capital for industrial development, and in America this capital was gathered into the greatest financial combinations the world has ever known. Large-scale production and the bringing of a succession of manufacturing steps under a single control, resulted in an efficiency which made possible American competition with foreign producers who paid lower wages to their laborers. Scientific investigation was accelerated as laboratories became a part of the equipment of many industrial establishments. Nature was ransacked in a systematic manner for every element and every source of energy that might be turned to the amelioration of human life. In the processes of industry, the iron man steadily replaced the human hand. The automatic machine controlled by the giant corporation is the triumph of the age of industry. But all too frequently it reduces the worker to a mere automaton who spends the years of his life feeding a senseless monster.

Labor has prospered with industry, yet the wage earnor has had many a difficult problem to solve. The growth of manufacturing put vast economic power into the hands of a successful few. Many of the iron dukes were predatory. The employee fought at times for better working conditions and for wages which measured his standard of living. For two centuries and a half most Americans had owned a farm or a business; a relatively small part of the population had worked for hire. Industrialism brought to America a growing group of men and women whose sole dependence was a job. And a job was not like a piece of land or a stock of goods in a store; it might vanish when times grew hard and no one know why it had gone. To protect himself against the vicissitudes of his economic position, the wage earner sought to organize. In the 'seventies and 'eighties he developed the spectacular Knights of Labor which, after claiming a membership of a million, fell suddenly into collapse. Other organizations have followed and have gained power far beyond that of the Knights in the heyday of their greatness. Yet, in America labor organizations lag in their growth behind those of England. Perhaps one of the reasons may be found in the character of the American wage earning group.

The rapid exploitation of the natural resources within the United States brought about one of the world's important population movements. Millions of Europeans crossed the ocean to share in the opportunities which America lavishly offered. They built railroads, dug mines, and tended the machines in clattering factories. They brought with them prejudices and inherited national hatreds. Their first problem was to learn the ways of a new nation and to adjust themselves to a new environment. As a group, this polyglot mass did not possess common idealism and the workers that passed through the factory gate as the whistle blew spoke a multitude of languages. The organization of such a group presented at times insuperable difficulties. It has never been fully accomplished. Again and again the natural leaders of the wage earners have risen out of the group to become managers. Opportunity has not failed genuine ability. But organization has come, and has aided in improving the lot of the laborer. Co-operation also between employer and employee has increased as the chaotic early years of industrialism have passed and as the customs and ideals of the new indulstrial civilization have taken shape. Meanwhile the United States, passing the middle point of the second century of its national history, has become the industrial colossus of the world.

How that organization of the laboring man came about and the various steps taken in its development is traced in the chapter on "Organized Labor in Industry" which contains this introduction to the main theme of the illustrated narrative in that chapter:

In 1920, out of our population of one hundred five millions, there were forty-one million wage earners. Whatever concerns labor is vital to the well-being of the nation. Industry has advanced from the small-scale local individual enterprise to the gigantic corporation whose business and plants are spread over the nation and even the globe, and various corporations have united in one way or another for economic or political purposes. In like manner labor has forsaken individual bargaining with an employer and has united into great organizations for group negotiations concerning wages, hours or working conditions with aggregations of employers. The hostler once might haggle with the village liveryman, but the locomotive engineers have been forced to organize a brotherhood to deal with the railroad executives of the country. Labor organization has paced evenly with industrial organization.

The history of labor shows that organization develops under four conditions. (1) The worker must be separated from the ownership of the tools or the means of production. (2) Laborers in the same trade must be able to come into close contact with one another. (3) Opportunity for especially gifted workmen to rise above their class must be shut off, with the result that these men, denied individual advancement, become leaders in the efforts for the improvement of their class. (4) The condition under which work is done must be burdensome so that the men engaged in the work feel that they have a common grievance. These conditions were not satisfied until after 1830, and then only partially until after the Civil war.

There could be no effective labor organizations in the United States in the earlier years of its industrial development. The early artisans in general each carried on his own business. The shoemaker owned his tools and his shop, bought his leather and sold his finished product. With the coming of the first factories employees were gathered together under the same roof and worked for wages with the tools and materials of other men. Under the industrial conditions that prevailed before the Civil war labor unions sprang up from time to time but none were able to maintain an existence over a period of years. The rapid growth of the nation that was still undeveloped gave opportunities of many kinds. Industry itself was growing and disgruntled employees might get better jobs in new enterprises. Cities were expanding and the laborer might set up for himself a small commercial enterprise. The frontier always beckoned those who preferred being their own masters to working for hire. The abler members of the labor group were always finding opportunities to improve their condition.

Following the Civil war the great labor organizations of the United States have developed. Many forces have operated to bring them about. Their influence has increased in the development of industry. They are an inevitable and an important part of the new industrial order. At first these unions directed their attention to the betterment of the economic condition of the workers and this aim still remains foremost. But of later years some unions have been paying particular attention to gaining some kind of partnership in industry and may next reach out for a measure of political control.

The complete story of the rise of organized labor in the United States as given in this chapter, is an interesting one. It goes back somewhat farther than the beginning established by Commons and his associates, to the time soon after the Revolutionary war when the shoemakers and printers on several occasions organized to protest and strike against the abandonment of the apprentice system which brought a depression of wages. As a result they were haled into court on charges of conspiracy and these cases checked the growth of unionism in its inception. The year 1814 saw the first wage agreement entered into by the bricklayers of Cincinnati and this marked a definite trend in the labor movement.

Social reform was one of the first efforts of American labor and so in the 'thirties we have the romantic history of the Utopian New Harmony (Ind.) experiment with which are associated the names of Robert Dale Own, "Fanny" Wright and her newspaper, the Free Enquirer; the Brook Farm experiment and Albert Brisbane and a similar community enterprise at Red Bank, N. J., all of which ended in failure. In the 'twenties the first of the agrarian reformers came to the fore with Thomas Skidmore as principal leader. and in the 'forties George Henry Evans proposed a scheme similar to Skidmore's.

As early as 1828 labor entered politics when the first workingmen's party in this country was organized by mechanics in Philadelphia, but labor as a separate party has never been able to figure decisively in national elections. "After the 'nineties, organized labor did not officially enter politics as a separate party except in 1924," says Keir. "Instead, it has adopted the policy of 'Vote for friends, defeat our enemies.' This means that labor studies candidates and their political records and then, regardless of party, votes for the individuals who seem to lean most favorably toward labor's desires. This policy has brought organized labor rich reward in the form of desired legislation." Among the first of these was the creation of a separate Department of Labor in 1913 and the placing of a labor representative in the President's cabinet. The first secretary of labor was William B. Wilson, an ex-officer of the United Mine Workers' union, who became a member of President Wilson's cabinet. The present secretary of Labor, James J. Davis, was once an iron worker in Pennsylvania and a steel worker in Indiana.

Labor's participation in the national councils and its commanding position in America today have been due to organization. One of the first attempts at this was the formation of the National Labor union immediately after the Civil war. The first convention was held in 1866 and its principal effort was to bring about a shorter work-day program and to secure an eight-hour day for labor. By the time the second convention was held in 1867, it was apparent that this union was going to depend upon political power to attain its ends, and as a result it soon lost ground. Although the Knights of Labor, founded by Uriah Smith Stephens in Philadelphia in 1869, once rose to a membership of a million members, its power in the 'seventies and 'eighties soon began to wane and it gave way eventually to a young craft union, later famous as the American Federation of Labor. One of the founders of the organization in 1881 was Samuel Gompers, of whom it has been said, "Gompers gave the American labor movement a brain, a soul and a clenched fist. He must be ranked among the great executives of his time." It was during his presidency that labor rose to its greatness, the greatness which Labor Day celebrates

Improved Uniform International

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D.D., Dean, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)
(©, 1927, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for September 4

SOLOMON'S WISE CHOICE

LESSON TEXT—I Kings 3.4-15.

GOLDEN TEXT—Happy is the man who findeth wisdom and the man that getteth understanding.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Solomon's Wise Choice.

JUNIOR TOPIC—A Young Man's Wise Choice.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Choosing Things Worth While.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Best Things in Life.

Following the death of David, Solomon was anointed king (I Kings 1:5-40). David had failed to show the people who should be king after him (v. 20). Though an old man, he is stirred into action by the combined appeals of Bathsheba and Nathan. He immediately sent for the faithful three—Zadok, Nathan and Benlah, and commanded them to anoint Solomon king

I. God's Gracious Offer (vv. 4, 5).

Solomon made a lavish sacrifice to the Lord. The magnitude of the offering shows that he had strong impulses toward God and that he was unwilling to hold anything back from God. Following the sacrifice, the Lord made to him this gracious offer. This offer was not on the basis that the Lord cared for the number of animals, but the attitude of the man's heart toward him. "Ask what I shall give thee," placed very wide possibilities before the king. God, as it were, signed blank checks and turned them over to Solomon to fill in any amount that his heart desired. This was not a reckless act on the part of God, for He foreknew what was in Solomon's heart to ask. This offer to Solomon is no exceptional one, for opportunities equally limitless are placed before us. God is saying to every one of His children, "Ask and it shall be given you." The matter with its limitations is placed before us in John 15:7. "If ye abide in Me and My words abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will, and it shall be done unto you." These unlimited offers are open to those who abide in Christ and let His words abide in them.

II. Solomon's Wise Choice (vv. 6-9).

The Lord's gracious offer brought the king face to face with the responsibility of making a choice. There was no middle course open to him. God deals with all His children in such a way that a choice must be made by them. Solomon was keenly aware of the difficulty and responsibility of his position. David was a great king. For a young man to take up the work of an illustrious father and push it to completion is a most difficult task. Comparatively few ever succeed. Besides this, he had to deal with the disturbing elements which had been set in motion by the usurper, Adonijah. Being made to shoulder so great a responsibility so suddenly, brought him to keenly feel his insufficiency. In his reply to God he pleaded that his being king was not of his own choice but an act of God's loving kindness. He argued that, since God had made him king, He was bound to qualify him to fill the place. All who have been called of God to fill positions of honor and trust can surely exercise that same boldness of faith. When called to positions of honor and trust we should humbly present ourselves before God for help. To feel ourselves unworthy and unfit for great and responsible work and to cast ourselves upon God for help is not cowardice, but a good sign that we shall not fail at the critical moment. Solomon's object in asking for wisdom was not for display but for the good of others.

III. God's Unstinted Gift (vv. 10-15).

Solomon's speech pleased the Lord. God gave him more than he asked. Because he put wisdom first, God saw that he could be trusted with material good also. Christ saw the same thing when He said. "Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and His righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you" (Matt. 6:33). He who puts God and spiritual things first in time and importance can be trusted with temporal things. That which God promised him above what he asked was riches, honor and length of days. All who feel the lack of wisdom can go to God with confidence (Jas. 1:5). God blessed Solomon with a singularly comprehensive mind (I Kings 4:29-34). He was a botanist, zoologist, architect, poet and moral philosopher.

Christian Life

"The perfection of the Christian life is to lose sight of oneself completely and to make everything of Christ."

No Man His Own Master

No man is his own master; he is either governed by Christ or governed by Satan.—Echoes.

God Is Faithful

God is faithful, and He can never allow anyone to be empty in His blessed presence.—Echoes.

Humility

Humility is to make a right estimate of one's self.—Spurgeon.

WOMEN CAN NOW DO M

Because Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compou Keeps Them We

Fifty years ago there w occupations for women. Som school, s housework, found work home and took up nur Today th very few occ not open to Today they factories wi dreds o women an There a women ar lawyers, dentists, executives, a lators. But all too often a wins her economic independenc cost of her health.

Mrs. Elizabeth Chamberla works in the Unionall factory overalls writes that she got "wo results" from taking Lydia E ham's Vegetable Compound. Chamberlain lives at 500 Mo St., Trenton, N. J. She reco the Vegetable Compound to her in the factory and will gladly any letters she gets from women about it.

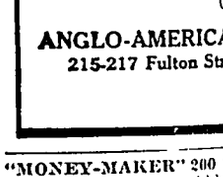
If Lydia E. Pinkham's Ve Compound has helped other why shouldn't it help you?

How to Have Streng Endurance and Cour

Many men and women w happy to know that the sec good health lies in a daily ment of the bowels.

The Kidneys, Liver and B must be active, they must be lated to remove the poisons the system.

If you suffer from Consti Sick Headache, Indigestion, B ness, Tired out and Achey fe CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER P will help They are coated, s easy to s and do no tain Calom



Druggists, 25c. & 75c red

"Cutting teeth is made e MRS. WINSLO SYRUP

The Infants' and Children's Reg At all druggists Non-Narcotic, Non-Alcoholic Oakland, Nebr., Feb. 23, Anglo-American Drug Co., Gentlemen.

I am more than glad to tell of the experience and result obta from your wonderful Baby Medic Our second baby is now seven mon old and has never given us a moment trouble. The first and only thing has ever taken was Mrs. Winsl Syrup. She has four teeth and is ways smiling and playing. Cu teeth is made easy by the use of Winslow's Syrup. Most sincerely, (Name on req

ANGLO-AMERICAN DRUG 215-217 Fulton Street, New Y

"MONEY-MAKER" 200 ACRE DAIR adjacent town, The kiddies back fo subsoil, low confidential price eas possession October 1. No agents Write Manager 1 Anstison, Dennis

POCUS COMPOUND Gall Bladder a troubles treated successfully t years. Effective, inexpensive. Poc pound Co., Box 1 Red Bud, Ill.

Stop Falling Hair! Use Dand-rid! K druff. Quickens growth of hair New, pure. Trial jar 50c. Send today Flet 3240 Fremont Ave. So., Minneapo

W. N. U., DES MOINES, NO.

Two in One

"I'm going to marry a pre and a good cook"

"You can't. That's bigamy."

Rashness is the faithful but py parent of misfortune.—Full

As We Grow Older

Proper Kidney Functio More Than Ever Impor

AS we grow older, there is a gradual slowing up of bodily

The kidneys are the blood filters action becomes sluggish they do oughly cleanse the blood of wastes. This tends to make one achy, with often a nagging drowsy headaches and dizziness mon symptom of imperfect kid is scanty or burning excretions.

Elderly people recommend Doa This tested diuretic is endorsed t over. Ask your neighbor!

DOAN'S PIL STIMULANT DIURETIC Foster-Milburn Co. Mfg Chem

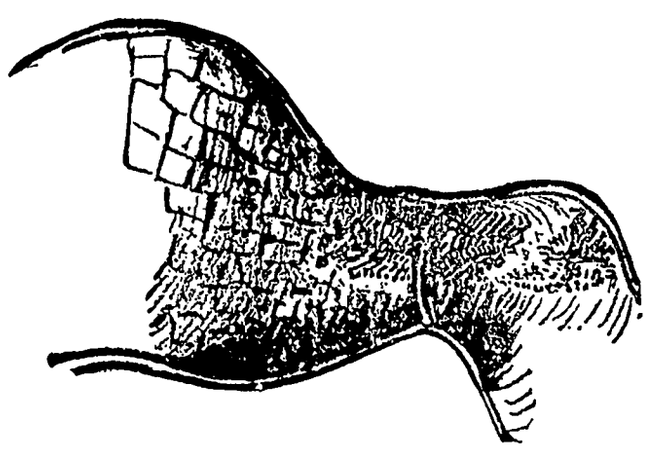
OURSELF nd YOUR BODY

By WILFRED T. GRENFELL

HOW THE MACHINERY WORKS

OF PIPE IS OPEN
BREATHING IN AIR WHILE CHEWING UP BANANA IN FIRST MILL
SOFT PALATE PULLED UP TO KEEP BANANA OUT
LID OR AIR PIPE IS CLOSED WHILE TONGUE THROWING BANANA PIECES INTO GULLET.
NONE GOING DOWN THE WRONG WAY
LUNGS
GULLET GRABBING BANANA PUSHES DOWN INTO STOMACH

e Fight at the Great Gate of the Stomach to Let Supplies Through.



nd of Fight—Great Gate Shut, Some Reds Trapped—But Supplies Gone Through.

TODAY let us look at the machinery. Here is a banana. What is the first thing to do? Take it to the Ivory Gates sk admission, of course. Sentries lways on duty. Two are called and one is called Nose, and unthey give the word, the Ivory will not open, and the banana never get into the receiving room, n we call the mouth. When they atisfied, in it goes, and messages to fly around to central and back e big jaw muscles to get the mills he great cutters first chop it up, the great tearers tear it, then reat grinders grind it. Round and d it goes, and backward and for, up and down, tongue and s and teeth working like Tro-Meanwhile, six fountains pour ater on it and soften it all up, chemicals in the water dissolve ough places, just as Mary uses onia to dissolve out stains, or a ent called yeast to explode the h cartridges and make the bread lways give these helpers time to . Chew well, and you will avoid troubles. The most important ical in the mouth is the one that starches into sugars, so that can be absorbed through the of the red lane into the blood. called ptyalin.

here is another sentry station to before the banana can go on its journey. There are a lot of cells d taste buds. They are long cells ding in bunches at the back of ongue. They examine it carefulnd if they like it, wire central to so, and at once the back door, or te, is opened; up goes the tongue, goes the banana, down goes the ver the air passage (see picture); doors to the nose and ear tubes ; the muscles round the jaws he throat grab the banana like arms of an octopus would, and eze it down into the tunnel to ext big mill station. Along every of the way are electric buttons ing messages to central, giving password, 'O. K.,' and so the ba- is squeezed on and on, the way being greased all the time as oes along, and the gate being ed ahead by a special message; 'plop'—and in she goes through the -door in the roof of the second This mill is mostly for meats proteids. It is called the stom-Lobsters have their teeth in r stomachs, and chickens, having teeth, swallow little grinding es with their food, and these d it up in the powerful machine ed the gizzard, which is an extra just before their stomach; while s throw it up again into their ths and grind it up over and over n. We call that chewing the cud. in our stomach, however, we use chemicals—acids and ferments—nufactured in thousands of little ps. Round and round, to and fro, the mill. Muscles, arranged thwise and crosswise, churn and eeze and roll the banana. It takes t of work to do it well."

What is an acid, father?"

Well, here is a dirty old copper I am going to drop it into the acid in this saucer. Watch it. It is getting quite bright. An acid is an eater-up of most things."

"And how does a ferment work?"

"Do you remember the tins of milk that blew up? Well, that is how ferments work. They blow up. Yeast is a ferment. It blows up the dough and makes light bread, full of gas. When we fill the mill too full it blows up tight, and as the heart and lungs rest right on the top of it, we feel our heart beating hard, and also get short of breath. A pint and a half is all that the mill is supposed to hold, but nearly every one puts too much in it at a time.

"At the other end of this mill house, another very clever cell guard is kept. Among the guards are certain ones that can tell when it is better to open the door and let some of the ready-made material be passed on. So they warn the other guards who form a strong heavy ring right around the fare-way entrance, and they open the gate, and then the first order of building material goes through at once with a rush. No large piece can get through. The guards see to that. But anyhow very soon there is a 'snap,' the gate is shut almost immediately and the mill goes on again, grinding, rolling, and getting more stuff ready.

"The trouble is this. Inside the mill, as I told you, the guards have to be Red guards, or acids, while outside the door they have to be Blue guards, or alkalies. Of course that keeps both sides very keen. When the acids get strong enough inside, they force the Blue keepers to open the door. Then some Reds get through and attack the Blues. (See picture.) That stirs up the Blues so that they instantly make central shut the door and call up allies, who swallow up all the Reds that have gotten through.

"The only rest the poor stomach cells ever get is when there is nothing at all left in the big store-mill. Then the door is closed until the next meal, and they can get strong again and be ready for more work.

"In the meantime, lots of other cells inside have hurried and cleaned everything up. All the doors of all the small shops are closed up also. No acid is allowed out, and everything is washed up carefully and carried away by other cells, just as I showed you in the lungs. Then other guards oil the whole of the inside, while the machinery is stopped. That is why this mill must have rest. Some foolish people will not give it any rest. They are all the time filling up the storehouse with food or drink, and then they are awfully surprised if the whole machinery breaks down, or if all the workmen go on strike. This they certainly will do, and will send you an ultimatum, which you call 'pain in the stomach.' Then there is nothing for it but a good rest and a good washing out. That is the best thing to have done, almost always. It is quite simple and generally satisfies them.

"When at last the store is all ready again, other watch cells at once warn central; and central rings the hunger bell for the next meal. What it says is: 'More raw material, please.'"

(© by the Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

KEEP STORAGE BATTERY YOUNG

Evaporation of Water During Summer Needs Attention.

Experts who gather vital statistics on storage batteries say that the average battery's life span is only 14 months. A few wise car owners know how to lengthen battery life to 22 months. How do they do it?

In caring for your storage battery, you are in much the same position as a doctor caring for a patient's health. Too much heat will kill a battery, just as too much fever will kill a man. A battery will die of laziness if not kept at work.

Feeling a Battery's "Pulse."

Charging and discharging generates battery heat, which in turn causes evaporation of water. Therefore, keep the cells filled. In summer, when evaporation is greater, this will require weekly attention. Unscrew the cap of each cell and pour in distilled water. Distilled water is necessary because it contains no acid or impurities to start counter action. The solution should be about half an inch above the tops of the plates. Be careful not to overfill, because water on the top of the battery corrodes terminals. Dry the top of the battery and occasionally coat the terminals with vaseline.

To determine the strength of the solution, use a hydrometer gauge. The more nearly the gravity reading approaches 1,280—indicating a specific gravity of 1.28—the more nearly is the cell charged. If a cell goes dry, look for cracks in the jars. Don't run with the battery overcharged or undercharged—the meter on the dash will tell you if the battery is getting its supply of current. Overcharging ruins the battery by making it too hot. Undercharging means dim lights.

Changing Plates.

When plates need changing, it is really more economical to change the negative as well as the positive plates, even if the negative plates look "all right." Although it costs more to renew both sets of plates, a battery rebuilt with the old negative plates will cost more in the long run than would an entirely new battery, because the partly rebuilt battery lacks capacity.

Addition of new separators in the battery will often add many months to the battery's life.

Jay Walkers Punished by Paris Authorities

It costs a pedestrian 4 cents to cross a Paris street outside the traffic lanes. This is not a toll charge, but the minimum police fine, now authorized by the court of cessation in a recent decision that stripped the jay walker of what he thought were his rights.

Safety zones were resented in Paris and old-fashioned citizens twice took cases to the highest court when arrested for cutting across streets outside the dotted line.

Four cents isn't much, but the public arrest, trip to the police station, appearance in court and the expense of an attorney are the real penalties.

Various Traffic Rules Confusing to Drivers

An operator of a motor vehicle in the United States when driving any time and anywhere is probably breaking one or more traffic rules without being aware of it. It is almost impossible for the car owner to know all the traffic laws enforced throughout the country. Every state, city and town has its own pet rules of the road. During last year alone more than 2,500 new traffic bills were introduced in state legislatures, and the number which were made into laws averaged about a dozen for each state.

Safety Last

Lies slumbering here one William Lake; he heard the bell, but had no brake.—Detroit News.

At 50 miles drove Allie Pidd; he thought he wouldn't skid, but did.—Rome Times.

At 90 miles drove Eddie Srawn; the motor stopped, but Ed kept on.—Little Falls Times.

Here he sleeps, one Johnny Fonker; he rounded a turn without a honker.—Scranton Scrantonian.

Down in the creek sleeps Jerry Bass; the bridge was narrow; he tried to pass.—Wilkes-Barre Times-Leader.

Beneath this stone sleeps William Raines; ice on the hill; he had no chains.—Harrisburg Telegraph

Here lies the body of William Jay, who died maintaining his right of way.—Boston Transcript.

And here's what's left of Samuel Small; he paid no attention to "slow" sign a-tall.—Capper's Weekly.

John William Jones lies under this thistle; he didn't heed the choo-choo's whistle.—Railroad Data.

Here lies all that's left of Harry; at the railroad crossing he did not tarry—Railway Life.

Here sleeps John Henry Jones, a bounder. Drove a car with one arm around her.—W. H. Lloyd.

Spare Tire Useful as Bumper on Truck Front

On many trucks there is no suitable place to mount the spare tire, so one truck owner attached it in front of the radiator, as shown. The framework is made by fastening pieces of heavy flat iron to the tie-rod between the headlights and to the part of the chassis below the radiator, the ends of the frame being bent at right angles. Mounted in this position, the tire will not interfere with the cooling and it also acts as a bumper.—Dale R. Van Horn, Walton, Neb., in Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Spare Tire Forms Front Bumper.

AUTOMOBILE ITEMS

And once more the traffic arrest score becomes interesting.

* * *

The annual bill paid by taxicab riders in the United States is estimated at $400,000,000.

* * *

There is nothing so forlorn as a summer vacationist wearily wobbling home on flat tires.

* * *

When a man wants an open car and his wife a sedan or coupe, the argument generally develops into a closed incident.

HANDCUFFED TO CAR WHILE ON LONG TRIP

Photograph shows Sheriff Wm. Traeger at the Hall of Justice at Los Angeles, handcuffing Jack Vance to the wheel of his car. Vance will stay that way on his 90-day trip to each governor in the United States and three Canadian provinces. On the hood of the car is a sign sponsored by the National Fire Chiefs' association, asking the people of the United States "to prevent fires and the loss of life." R. J. Palmer, millionaire clubman of Los Angeles, has wagered Vance $10,000 that he will not complete the 15,000-mile trip. Vance holds an endurance record of 127 hours and 56 minutes chained to the wheel of his machine in continual motion.

BUT ONE SHIP LEFT IN WHALING PORT

New Bedford's Sea Era Drawing to Close.

New Bedford, Mass.—Another heroic chapter in the history of New England, filled with the exploits of strong men in combat with the giants of the sea, is drawing to a close.

This old-time port, that has been home to hundreds of sail of whalers, now can boast only one whaling ship. The schooner John R. Manta may be the "last of the whalers," for most of the old-time whalemen are dead, and the Manta's only hope of recruiting a crew is to sail across the Atlantic ocean to the Azores.

A few still live who remember the heyday of whaling, when this port teemed with the activity of the whaling barks, when men sailed away on seemingly interminable voyages, when wives and families of seamen and captains haunted the "widows' walks" on the old-time houses, hoping to catch a glimpse of a returning ship. But those who remember are growing old and some are nearing the century mark.

Recalls Whaling Thrills.

Among those who remember keenly those earlier days is Capt. Ulysses E. Mayhew of West Tisbury, on the Island of Martha's Vineyard. His youthful appearance and spirit belie his fourscore years. In his life he has had adventures and experiences that would cram more than one movie "thriller."

As a boy in his 'teens he sailed his first whaling voyage during the Civil war. On that trip he learned about stalking the whale in small boats, harpooning, the downward rush of the wounded whale and the peril to the small boat as the rope ran off from the shrieking windlass. And he learned how the "kill" at last was effected, with lance or bomb-gun.

Last Survivor of Lafayette Crew.

Captain Mayhew believes he is the last survivor of the crew of the bark Lafayette, burned and sunk with two other Yankee ships off Fernando de Noronha, Brazilian convict island, by the Confederate warship Alabama.

After a series of adventures he was sent back by the United States consul from Brazil and promptly shipped on another whaler. On this next voyage he saw the U. S. S. Kearsarge at Fayal, in the Azores, just after it had sunk the Alabama.

It is a far cry, he says, from those old days to the modern times that have seen the typical old whaling barks Greyhound and Wanderer pass on. Of those proud times, only the schooner John R. Manta remains. And New Bedford has long since turned from whaling to its great cotton textile mills.

Wives Jealous, Taxicab Drivers Change Plans

Brooklyn, N. Y.—A new angle of the bitter controversy among members of the South Brooklyn and Bay Ridge Taximen's association over the advisability of admitting women into the organization came to light recently at a meeting in the Admiral Dewey council clubhouse.

The association was on the verge of capitulating to the amazons of the highways when somehow the wives of several members got wind of what was going on and now the chances of putting through this co-membership plan don't look so good.

This latest development was revealed by Harry Carlson, an officer of the organization, who admitted that when his wife heard about the plan "she wasn't at all in favor of it." Carlson added:

"You know yourself that if the wife of one of our members should come in here during a meeting some night and find her husband sitting between two strange women it wouldn't look so good for him."

And so the resolution which would admit the feminine gear shifters to membership definitely has been relegated to the table, on which it was placed several months ago, and the members admit that the only way it can be taken off is by a change of heart on the part of their better halves, which they seem to sense is not likely.

Who Cares About 'Whom,' 'Shall,' or 'Will'? Asks Jury

Chicago.—A jury of 222 authors, editors, business men and teachers, who returned their verdict to Prof. S. A. Leonard of the University of Wisconsin, acting for the national council of teachers of English, has put an O. K. on misuse of "shall" and "will" and "who" and "whom." Among 45 locutions banned from speech and writing by the jury, however, are these:

"None of them are here."

"Will you be at the Browns' this evening?"

"Who are you looking for?"

"There's a dangerous curve and you'd better go slow."

"It is me."

"There is a bed, dresser and two chairs in the room."

"Can I be excused?"

"That clock must be fixed."

"Try and get it."

Some members of the jury said they would accept all these idioms. Virtually every member of the jury said the hidebound rules of rhetoric were fast giving way. Nice distinctions between "shall" and "will" and "may" and "can" are passing in everyday speech in favor of originality and forcefulness.

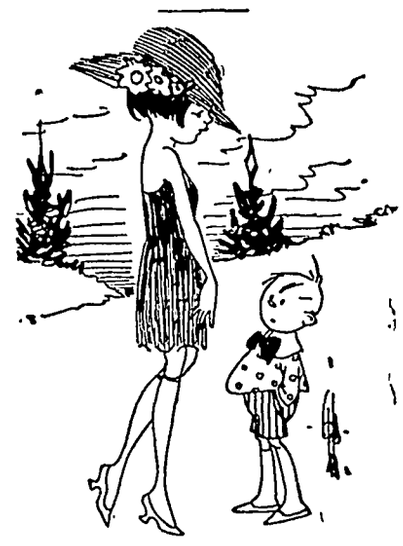
A REASONABLE TIME

A boss carpenter at the state prison in Charleston, S. C., had the assistance of a trusty on one of his jobs. At noon the piece of work was not quite completed, so the carpenter left for lunch, remarking to his helper:

"We'll have to finish that up later. You'll be here when I come back, won't you?"

"Yes," replied the laconic inmate, "if you get back inside of 20 years."

COULDN'T BE SEEN



Sis—When Mr. Jones calls this evening, remember that little boys should be seen and not heard.

Bobbie—How can I be seen when you two sit in the dark all evening?

Strikes

The clock struck five,
The fans filed out;
For the last man up
Had just struck out.

The Other Half

The grocer said—I've got just one peck of the finest peas, madam, already shelled.

Customer—I'll take half a peck.

The grocer divided the peck of peas.

Customer—Is that half?

Grocer—Yes.

Customer—I'll take the other half.—Tit-Bits, London.

The Hero

Governor—Why do you think I should pardon your client from the penitentiary?

Lawyer—I can prove that on April 7 of this year he had a good chance to purloin an iron bar from the prison machine shop and hit the warden over the head with it, and he didn't do it!

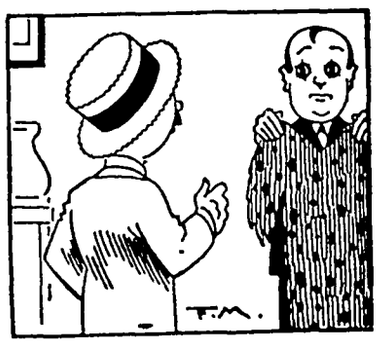
Flying Wrong Plane

"Maybe we oughtn't to have let this aviation get so big a start on us," said Senator Sorghum.

"What's the objection to it?"

"It makes heroes too suddenly. A little thing like a flight of oratory cuts no figure whatever.—Washington Star.

ONLY GOOD IN SPOTS



Dealer—So you don't like this beautiful leopard-skin rug?

Customer—No, it seems to me to be good only in spots.

When a Feller Needs a Friend

Of all sad words
A man to jar;
"Another note
Due on your car."

Close Harmony

Hotel Manager—Hey! Wake up your saxophone player! He's sitting there asleep!

Orchestra Leader—Sh-h! You see he snores and makes better music when he's asleep than when he's awake.

A Little Foolish

"Don't you think he's crazy, getting engaged?"

"No, not crazy—just sentimentally defective."—Everybody's Weekly.

What He Needed

Doctor—You are in bad shape and you must take a vacation.

Patient—But, doctor, I'm in the midst of my vacation now.

Doctor—Then you must take a vacation from your vacation.

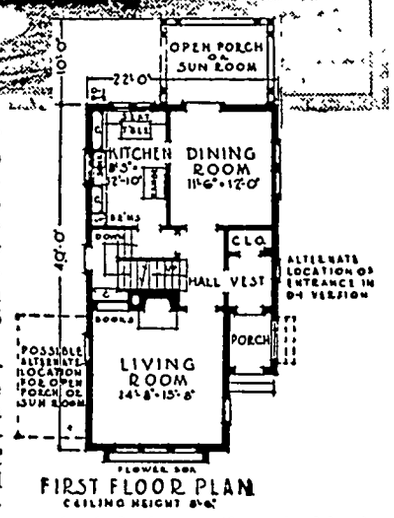
One at a Time

Wife—Are you very tired tonight, dear?

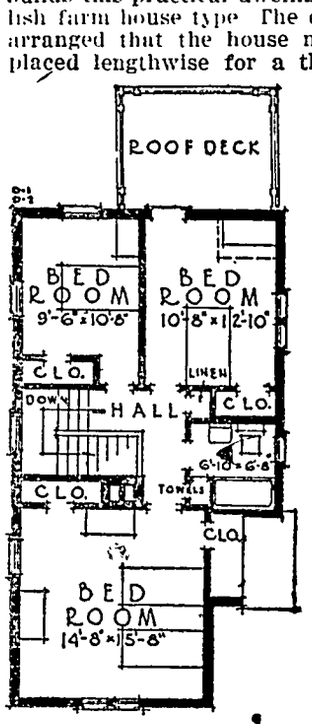
Husband—Not very. Why?

Wife—Well, if you aren't, I thought I would be.

Old World Charm Meets New World Conveniences



FIRST FLOOR PLAN
CEILING HEIGHT 8'-0"



SECOND FLOOR PLAN
CEILING HEIGHT 8'-0"

PLACING your house according to your lot is the privilege of the person who builds this practical dwelling of the English farm house type The entrance is so arranged that the house may either be placed lengthwise for a thirty-foot city lot or crosswise for a 60 or 75 foot lot.

The design here calls for a combination of stucco and stained siding with the roof of dark weathered shingles

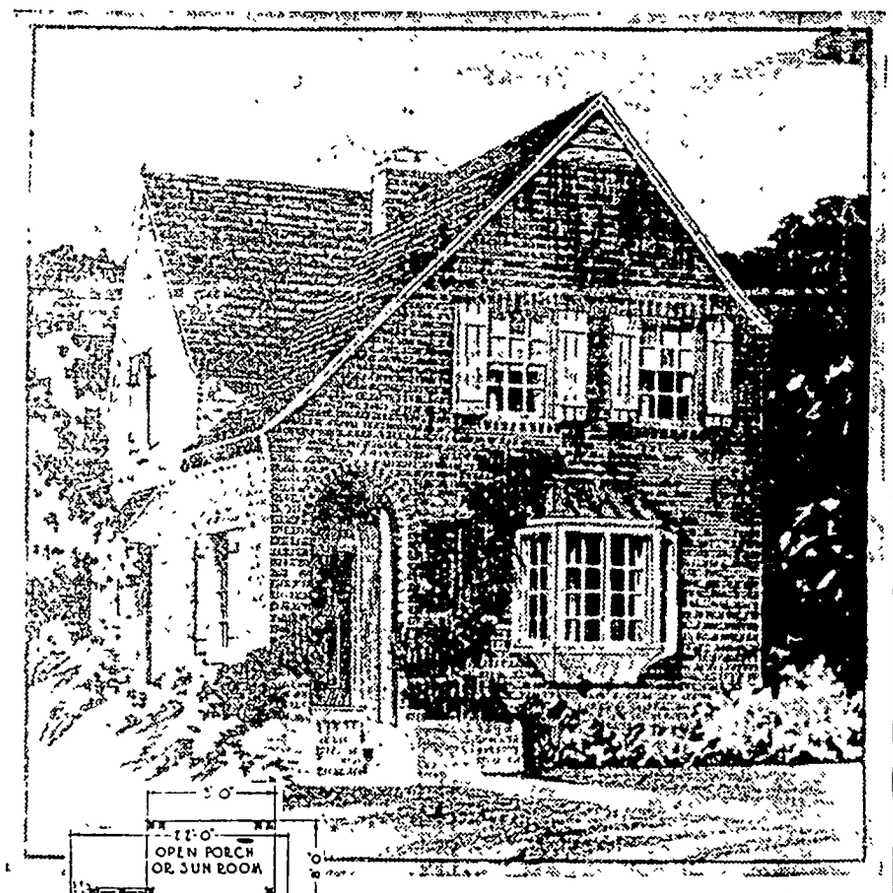
The pleasing features of the living roon include its windows on three sides, open fire place and built-in book shelves. The open porch or sunroom may open off from either the living or dining room. The kitchen has all the details that delight the housewife—cupboards, broon closet, breakfast nook and double windows over the sink.

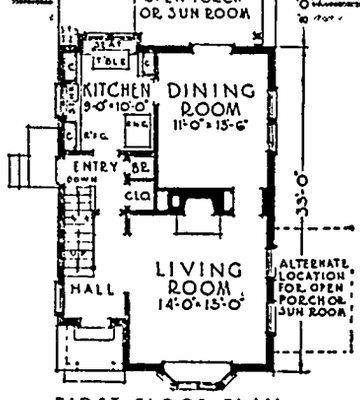
The three bedrooms all have double exposures and are well provided with clothes and linen closets. The bathroom is so placed as to be equally accessible from each bedroom. The attic is ventilated and makes a serviceable storage or playroom by sheathing the rafters and sides with celotex, which serves both as a wall-board and insulating material.

This small home so light and spacious, yet compact and adapted to doing without a servant, is a typical 1926 product. The poky, dark houses of fifteen or even ten years ago with their fussy little hallways and poor planning would be scorned by the modern housewife who has learned to expect comfort built right into her home and to have everything planned for her convenience in working. Cold, draughty houses are also out of date. All well built houses, are insulated as this one is, with celotex sheathing on the exterior walls under the stucco. This effects a great saving in fuel in the winter and resists the intense heat of the sun in summer.

©, Celotechnic Institute, Chicago, 1926.

Home-Builder Gets Good Investment Plus Comfort



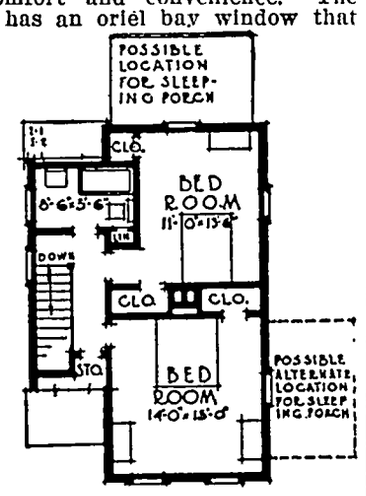


FIRST FLOOR PLAN
CEILING HEIGHT 8'-0"

ECONOMY of space in this five-room English town house has not meant a sacrifice of an artistic exterior. Built of variegated or common brick, whitewashed with a roof of stained shingles or slate, it presents an unusually attractive and compact appearance. The portico is arched and roofed, and has a red brick floor. The shutters of solid, weathered boards give an interesting departure from the usual New England type.

A number of features provide for exceptional comfort and convenience. The living room has an oriel bay window that gives light from three directions and affords a window seat or fernery within. Every room has windows on two sides, giving cross-ventilation. The house is insulated, walls and roof, with celotex as protection against cold and waste of fuel in the winter, and the hot rays of the sun in summer The floors are hardwood throughout, and have a layer of celotex placed between them to deaden noises within the house, a feature that is especially appreciated where there are small children and noisy boys in the house.

The living room has an open fireplace and built-in book case. The porch or sun room may open off the living room or dining room, and can well have a sleeping porch above if extra sleeping quarters are needed. The service entry is conveniently placed at the side, to save the housewife steps. The kitchen has built-in cupboards, ironing-board and breakfast-nook.



SECOND FLOOR PLAN
CEILING HEIGHT 8'-0"

©, Celotechnic Institute, Chicago, 1926.

Klemme Local Items

School starts in Klemme Modnay.

Fred Kluckhohn and family were visiting at Mason City Tuesday.

Mrs. Sumner Trumbell was on the sick list last week with the flu. She is again able to be about.

Paul Grange and family drove to Ruthven Saturday for an over Sunday visit with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Sumner Trumbell were visiting with Mrs. Christie at Goodell Sunday.

Miss Dalia Stromer began teaching near Kanawha Monday of this week.

Ed. Jacobs and family and Mrs. Wisty drove to Des Moines Monday to take in the State Fair.

Mrs. C. A. Arnold, Miss Minnie Lenz and Eva Stokesbary returned Friday evening from their visit at Watertown, South Dakota.

C. S. Carlson who works for Mrs. C. A. Arnold, went to Des Moines Tuesday afternoon to take in the Fair.

"Abe" Lauritsen came home Tuesday from Greeley, Colorado, where he has been attending summer school.

Miss Eunice Braund has receiv d her license as a cosmetician, issued by the state board. In other words the state has granted her a certificate to operae a beauy parlor.

Miss Eunice Braund went to Clear Lake Saturday evening for a visit at the Lou Davis cottage and also to take in the doings at he air port.

Dr. and Mrs. Missman entertained Mr. and Mrs. Ely and Miss Gertrude Ely of Belmond Sunday. Miss Ely had just returned from an extended trip abroad.

The Ladies Aid meets Thursday afternoon, September 6 at the Parish house with Mrs. Barr and Miss Viola Freie as hostesses. An election of officers will be held.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Grange and son, Dorance, Mis Leona Lau, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kluckhohn drove to Cherokee yesterday for a visit.

Louis Griffen and wife were State Fair visitors the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Gimer of Riceville, came the other day for a visit at the home of their son, Art and family.

Mrs. P. M. Griesemer and Mrs. J. Gruetzmacher were visiting with relatives and friends at Bagley, Iowa, a few days the past week, returning to Klemme the fore part of hte week

YOU can be holding a good position and earning a real salary before this time next year. Business men of Mason City employed 266 HAMILTON TRAINED students during the first half of 1927. The Hamilton University, Mason City, Iowa. 1c

Ernest Shuldt returned home last week fro mthe Mercy Hospital at Mason City. Mr. Schuldt is much improved in health. His many friends are glad to see him home again

Mrs. Lou Davis enertained at a six o'clock dinner at their Clear Lake cottage Tuesday evening, Mr. Henry Freie and Viola, George Lawhorn, Eunice Braund, Claire West and Marlin Ridout.

Jack Wellemeyer and Clarence Elder returned Monday evening from their trip to Guthrie, Oklahoma, where they took Bobie Merten home. They also visited at Kansas City on the way down. Returning they came through a part of the Ozark Mountains and then east to S. Louis. They said hey had a fine time and the old fliver performed like a packard.

R A. Jorgenson and family spent Sunday at the Lyle Llebendorfer home at Mason City, and also took in the airplane stunts at the Legion Field dedication there. Others from Klemme whom we saw at the field were Ed. Jacobs, Sam Harvey, Chris Gram and wife, Clarence Newberger and wife, and Fred Ridder. It was estimated that over 25,000 people wree on the grounds. Around one million dollars worth of Army airplanes, and the big blimp, were represented.

John Swalve and family were at Sheyboygan, Wisconsin last week for a visit with relatives and friends.

KLEMME REFORMED CHURCH

Calvin Grosshueach, Pastor

8:30 a. m. Sunday school in the country.

10.00 a. m. English service.

11:00 a. m. Sunday school.

8:00 p. m. Saturday, Junior choir.

In our morning service Sunday an offering will be lifted to aid theological students at our Mission.

BAYSIDE EXPECTS MANY WEEK END VISITORS

Labor Day Will Be Celebrated At Clear Lake Resort

Next Sunday, September 4th, the Bayside Amusement Park at Clear Lake, Iowa, is expecting many north Iowa visitors who will arrive on Sun day and stay over Labor Day making a two day outing. The Bayside management invites everyone to use the free camping grounds, the free picnic grounds and tables and the children's playgrounds. This is an ideal time of the year to enjoy the out of doors. Next Sunday the Mason City O-P team will play the Wall-Nash team on the Bayside diamond at three o'clock. Both of these Mason City teams have defeated the Mason-Whippet team of Clear Lake. This will be a "grudge" game and a good battle is anticipated. In addition to the ball game, free vaudeville and free movies will entertain Sunday visitors at Bayside Park. All of the amusement concessions will help to make next Sunday a fun day for young and old at the Park

Rise of the Bathtub

The grand old Potomac river is designated by Fairfax Downey as the "bathtub of Presidents." It is said to have washed George Washington, as well as numerous other succeeding Presidents, for it was not until the inauguration of Fillmore as the head of the American government that the first bathtub was installed in the White House, this being in 1850. This tub is said to have served other Presidents following Fillmore until the Cleveland administration, when new and better facilities appeared to be in order.

The contrast with today, when two bathtubs in the small home are common, is remarkable.

No Sale

A Salem woman called a ticket agent on the telephone and asked him to route her to some obscure place in a Southern state. The agent never heard of the place, but he went through the railroad guide and figured out a route necessitating numerous changes and connections. Armed with all this information he returned to the telephone, gave it to the inquirer, and then heard her say: "Well, do you suppose a letter would make it in the same time? I was writing one to the town and wanted to know how long it would take to get there." Despite all his trouble he didn't sell the woman a ticket.—Salem News.

Fine California Gems

From near Ramona, Calif., come lovely spessartite garnets. very fine gems of from three to six carats each, and deep red to light yellow in hue. One mine produces spessartite garnets of from one to six carats—flawless beautiful gems of the finest quality, that are retailed at $20 a carat. Other mines farther south furnish alluring essonite or hyacinth garnets. some of them very large in size and of the best quality. Some of them are very rich in color, with fulvous shades of red and yellow, or a beautiful orange-red peculiar to certain localities in our Southern wonderland of gems.

Complimentary

Seldom was old Tamson, the road-mender, to be seen in the local church, yet on this particular occasion he had managed it somehow.

The minister, as he came out after the service, was quick to notice the old chap as he hobbled toward the gateway.

"Hello, Tamson!" called the minister. "Did you like my sermon?"

"Aye, sir," answered the old fellow "It was jist like water tae a droonin man!"—London Tit-Bits.

Ring Cures

Until quite recently the belief that rings could cure disease was held by many. The London Medical Journal for 1815 reports that a silver ring worn constantly by the patient cured a case of epilepsy when ordinary medical means had failed. There was a superstition in Somerset that a gold ring rubbed on the eye was a certain cure for a stye. In the absence of a gold ring the mere rubbing of the ring finger on the part would have the same effect.

For Electric Service

CALL 39 GARNER, IOWA

HOUSE WIRING—

MOTORS—

LAMPS—

APPLIANCES—

—ALSO A FULL LINE OF RADIOS AND RADIO ACCESSORIES—

Prouty Electric Shop

GARNER — IOWA

UNDER GOVERNMENT SUPERVISION

The Part Of Wisdom

Protected by a safe deposit box in our fire-proof, burglar-proof, mtoh-proof vaults, your valuable documents are frec from dange. For a few cents a day, you can provide protection for treasures which, if lost, stolen or destroyed, could never be replaced. Come and inspect our vaults. You will be amazed at what this service can mean to you, especially if you consider its low cost.

First National Bank

KLEMME, IOWA.

Supporting Your Own Business

It always pays to support your own community, your own town—and "your own business." When a business man joins a co-operative buying association to you suppose he then buys from some other concern? He does not—as his good judgment would not recommend such methods.

The Klemme Co-Operative Creamery Co. was organized by the f community for the purpose of marketing the dairy products from their herds to realize the most profit. Therefore, the owner of every dairy herd should feel greatly interested in its success.

Are you supporting YOUR business or helping build up the business of YOUR COMPETITOR? The Creamery needs the co-operation of every one in the community.

A WORD ABOUT QUALITY CREAM

Every patron of the creamery should take pride in delivering only the very best grade of cream as it means extra money in his pockets. When we receive quality products from the dairyman, we are able to produce a higher quality butter which sells at a premuium—You get the benefit!

HOW TO PRODUCE EXTRA QUALITY CREAM

By Cleanliness. By keeping the cream cool. Frequent deliveries. The production of high test cream.—In other words, "Clean, Cold and Rich" cream answers the question. Also keep your barns clean, use clean pails, clean hands, separator properly cleaned and adjusted. All this will pay you extra dividends.

WE THANK YOU!

Klemme Co-Op. Creamery Co.

Office:—
Masonic Bldg.
GARNER, IOWA.

Phones:—
Office, 149-J.
Res., 149-L.

Dr. E. H. Phillips
OSTEOPATHIC PHYSICIAN

Physiotherapy, including Osteopathic treatment, diathermy, surgical diathermy, radiant heat, high frequency, chlorine gas and auto-condensation.

Delicious Fresh Meats

You should serve meats at least once a day to get the maximum of vigor during the summer months.

Fresh meats, kept fresh and cut the way you like them at this shop.

Our meats are not only clean and fresh but they are juicy and tender.

Every cut that leaves this shop is the very best.

For the school lunch box we have all kinds of cold meats for sandwiches, as well as nice cheese, pickles, olives, mustard, ketchup, sardines, etc.

Klemme Meat Market

House Your Farm Machinery

He licked his boy for whittling on the tongue and scratching his initals in the paint on a new cultivator——

But he lets the "imps of nature" hack and hammer his costly farm equipment without ever thinking a thing about it.

It costs money to build an Implement Shed, yes—but it costs more in depreciation to leave your equipment out in the open all year exposed to all kinds of weather.

A good shed will more than double the life of your implements. Let us show plans and give you prices. No obligations. Do it now.

We will gladly show you our free plans and figure prices on any building you are planning to build. We carry everything in the building material line. Our prices are right, too.

Northern Lbr. Co.

Avery Twp. News

(Special Times Reporter)

Kenneth Bell spent Wednesday afternoon at the Tom Nelson home.

Miss Elma Nelson was a visitor with Bonnie Boren Thursday afternoon.

Johnnie Trampel and John Ash left Tuesday morning for the Iowa State Fair at Des Moines.

Miss Florence Swalve spent Sunday afternoon at the Peter Trampel home

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Gifford were callers at the D. A. Marshall and Herb Marshal home Saturday.

Mr and Mrs. Will Johnson's visiting relatives have returned to their home in Illinois.

Mr and Mrs M. O. Barr were callers at the Clarence Bachman home Friday evening

Mr and Mrs John Lass and family were visitors at the Peter Merkel home Sunday

Mrs Walter Newberger is a visitor at the Leon Sherwood home for a couple of days.

The Marshall Threshing machine finished their run Friday forenoon at the Alfred Merkel home.

Jane Dutheridge was a visitor with Gertie Trampel Sunday afternoon

Mrs. Effie Carpenter left some time last week for Ohio to visit with relatives and friends.

Mrs Ed Bachman and children of Garner were down to help Mrs. John Bachman cook for threshers

Mrs Will Waddingham and daughters Belle and Doris, have been helping Mrs Alfred Merkel with the work.

Mrs Clarence Bachman and Maxine, and Miss Lela Bachman, were business callers at Mason City Tuesday

Will Waddingham is doing some painting on the buildings on his farm which greatly adds to the appearance of his place.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Marshall and daughter Dorothy and son Robert were visitors at the D. A and Herb Marshall home Sunday.

Mrs Rank Buss and daughter, Nada, were visitors at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs Frank Roths, and with otner relatives.

Mr and Mrs. Harnes Cunningham and family left Monday morning for their home at San Jose, Illinois, after spending a week with relatives and friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Roths and daughter, Mrs. Rank Buss and Nada, were callers at the George Buseman home Wednesday.

Mr and Mrs. Harnes Cunningham and family spent a few days at the Clyde Marshall home Mrs. Cunningham and Mr Marshall are brother and sister.

Mrs. C. A. Arnold, Miss Minnie Lenz and Eva Stokesbary have returned from their visit at Watertown, South Dakota, where they were guests at the home of their sister and family, Mrs. Adolph Ridder.

Mesdames Chris Anderson, Walter Reed and Clarence Bachman and daughter, Maxine, spent Saturday at the John Bachman home.

Mrs. D. A. Marshall and daughter and Mrs. Harnes Cunningham were callers at the Leon Sherwood and Fred Bachman homes Thurday afternoon.

Miss Wava Bachman has returned to her work at Mason City, after spending a couple of weeks at home with her parents. They took her back Sunday afternoon.

Miss Carrie Swalve spent a couple of days at the home of her friends, the Misses Anna and Wemkie Trampel. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Swalve were down Thursday evening and brought her home with them.

Goodell News

(By Special Correspondent)

Thomas Quigley returned from the hospital Tuesday.

Verdie Wilson visited friends in Staples, Minn, last week.

Verner Christie went to Canada last week.

Mrs. Chase of Garner was down at her farm Thursady.

The Wesenberg family are spending a week at the State Fair.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Carpenter were at West Bend Thursday.

Gerald Chase of Rolfe visited his brother Clifford Saturday.

Misses Agnes and Margaret Fuller were in Miller Monday.

Verner Hamilton went to Des Moines Tuesday.

Frederick Schneider was in Ames last week.

Margaret and Agnes Fuller were in Klemme Saturday.

Mrs. Neilson assisted Mrs. Houghton with threshers Saturday.

Many from here attended the barbeque at Thornton Thursday.

A number from here attended the dance at Belmond Friday night.

Martin Grover and Marjorde, of Chicago, are visiting at the White home.

Mr. and Mrs. Hemenway visited Grandma Hemenway at Mason City Sunday.

The Glosnell family of Ft. Dodge spent Saturday night and Sunday at the Lamer home.

Bert Lowen and son of Belmond have been stacking straw in this vicinity the past few days.

Goodell and Coulter played ball at Belmond Sunday. The score was 1 to 2 in favor of Coulter.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Jorgenson and Buster, visited at the Jay Griggs home Monday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Newberger spent a couple of days at the Sherwood and Cook homes last week.

Mrs. Ruby Wooden and children, Mr. Hill and Gerald of Clarion, visited their sister and daughter, Mrs. Hemingway, Saturday.

Mrs. Buchanan spent a few days at the home of her son, Jay. She is "head cook" in one of the fraternity houses in Iowa City.

Mrs Avery, Mrs. Houghton, Mrs. Neilson, Lela Griggs helped Mrs. Ed Hemingway with threshing work Thursday.

Martin Grover, Marjorie, Mammie and Mrs. White, also the Allie White family, of Klemme, spent Sunday at Bayside.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Cook and Dolores, and Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Sherwood and family, visited Pilot Knok Sunday. The Sherwood family also visited at the Ben Reibe home.

Mrs. Hubbard entertained quite a number of friends at a quilting party last week. They all enjoyed the afternoon greatly and a very delicious luncheon was served by the hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Strasburg and Mae, and Mr. and Mrs. J. Griggs and family visited the State Park at Forest City Sunday afternoon and then took in the motor boat races at Bayside.

Liberty News Notes

(Special Times Reporter)

Miss Fern Stille drove to Garner Tuesday to see Supt. Baggs.

Mrs. Herman Paul and children visited at the Roy Schaefer home on Friday.

The Tanner school started this week, the first one in the community to open.

The Farm Bureau mteting will be held the 8th of September at the home of Henry Greiman.

Mrs. George Schoenwetter and children visited at the Emil Pringnitz home Wednesday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Otto Lemke were business callers at Forest City Monday.

Mrs. Charles Velau stayed at the Will Velau home Friday and Saturday while Will took in the Fair

Miss Ruby Goll left last week on Wednesday for Des Moines to attend the Fair. She returned to her home Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Griffen and Mr and Mrs. Will Lemke drove to Des Moines the first to take in the State Fair for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs Wm Haberkamp motored to Shenandoah Sunday On their way home they took in the State Fair.

August Kropp, wife and small children left early Tuesday morning for Missouri to visit relatives of Mr Kropp.

Mr and Mrs. Rhine Lemke and daughters, Meta and Irene, visited the Grottos at Wesley and West Bend Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs Roy Schaefer and Mr and Mrs Ben Ridder drove to Des Moines Tuesday to take in one day of the Fair.

John Larson and son Harry, Fred Klinge, Jr., "Buzz" Carlson and Wayne Lemke are attending the Iowa State Fair.

Albert Borchers and wife and Frank Bredlow, wife and family drove up to Fremont, Minnesota, Sunday to see a Japanese Garden

Mr. Frank Rosendahl is reported a little improved in health He has been under the care of a trained nurse for some time.

August Kropp and family were entertained Sunday for dinner at the home of Will Schlichting, near Goodell.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Gast and Charles Ax and wife left Wednesday morning early for Des Moines to take in the State Fair and visit points of interest in the city.

Hog Cholera is reported in thi locality again, but most herds are immune this year as nearly all the farmers vaccinated early to prevent loss.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Reemer and Mr and Mrs. Emil Blumer and little daughter drove to Des Moines early Saturday and spent the day and the evening until after the fireworks Mrs. Fred Gates took caro of the little girls for them.

Mrs. Albert Carolus, Sr., went to Iowa City Saturday and returntd on Monday. She found Mr. Carolus much improved in health. He has had two operations on his arms and is able now to help himself more than he has been able to for some time, but the doctors say he is not able to be released from the hospital yet.

Grandma Schroeder, Mrs Lena Schroeder, Miss Adella Schroeder, Mr. Clarence Whistler and Mrs. Marlin Croner and Dorothy drove to Eitzen and Caledonia, Minnesota, last Saturday and remained until Tuesday visiting.

Rev. and Mrs. A. W. Gauger and Carlyle drove to Des Moines Monday for a couple of days visit at the State Fair.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Finn spent Sunday at the Joseph Kral home at Miller.

Mrs. Minnie Josten came from Garner Sunday for a few days visit at the Rev. Gauger home.

The Klemme Independents will appear in the base ball tournament at Coulter, Sunday and Monday. The other teams are Coulter, Hampton and Meservey. The games begin at 1:30 o'clock. The winners of Sunday's games play for the world's championship Monday.

FINE FOOD FOLKS

There's a difference in the way vegetables, meats, etc. are cooked and you will recognize it the moment you eat them here.

We serve only the very best the market affords, all well cooked.

As with everything, we think the best is none too good for our patrons.

Drop in for lunch or any meal anytime, at—

Crystal Cafe
Conrad Quandt, Prop.

LYRIC
Theatre
—GARNER, IOWA—

Presents The Following

Friday and Saturday
September 2-3
D. W. Griffith's
"SALLY OF THE SAWDUST"
A Circus Picture
—Comedy—
"THE MERRY WANDERER"
Admission 10-25c

Tuesday and Wednesday
September 6-7
Sena Owen, in—
"SHIPWRECKED"
—Comedy—
"HONEST INDIAN"
Admission 10-25c

Farm
Loans
5%
Isaac Sweigard
Garner Iowa

PIANOS

Players & Grand
New and
Second Hand

M. N. ZEIGER
Jewelry & Optical Goods
GARNER, IOWA

Hancock County FAIR

September 13, 14, 15, 16 Britt, Iowa

Big Live Stock Show. Boys and Girls Club Show. Plenty of Entertainment. Fast Harness Races. Ball Games. Free Attractions. Big Show Every Night. Come!
REMEMBER THE DATES and DON'T FAIL TO ATTEND!

Big Night Show

Men Marooned

By GEORGE MARSH

WNU Service. Copyright by The Penn Publishing Co.

STORY FROM THE START

Garth Guthrie, Canadian war veteran, having to live in the open on account of weakened lungs, is factor of a Hudson's Bay post at Elkwan. He came back from the conflict with a permanently scarred face, which he realizes cost him the love of his fiancee, Edith Falconer. Sir Charles Guthrie, his brother, is a millionaire war profiteer. With Etienne Savanne, halfbreed, his firm friend, Garth meets Doctor Quarrier, geologist, and his sister Joan. Their schooner has drifted ashore. Quarrier complains he has been robbed by a man known as "Laughing McDonald." At Elkwan an Indian girl, Ninda, tuberculosis victim, whom Garth has befriended, is dying. Joan, trained war nurse, cares for Ninda, but the girl dies. Charles Guthrie writes reproaching his brother for not coming home. Charles' wife assures him Ethel still loves him, but Garth in his heart knows better.

CHAPTER III—Continued

—6—

"It was an act of Providence. I wonder," he hesitated, then went on, "if you would care to send word of yourself to an exile, this winter?"

He saw her brows contract in thought. For a moment she seemed in doubt, then turned to him, tense in her earnestness. "You are not merely courteous—you really wish to hear from me?"

His face reflected his pleasure. "You will write then, to the exile?"

There was a sudden gleam of white teeth, a whimsical flash in her eyes, as she asked: "Wouldn't it be ungrateful to refuse so modest a request from one who has rescued the shipwrecked?"

"It would be most ungrateful and cruel," he laughed. "If you'll write, I'll have a little spruce waiting for the Christmas mail, and hang your letter on the tree, with candles."

"Unread?"

"Unread till Christmas morning. Then Shot and I will read it together—our Christmas, from you."

"And the other letters?" she queried, avoiding his quick glance.

"The others? Oh, they'll not be interesting—with their criticism and advice and news of my distinguished brother's doings."

"None of them?" Joan Quarrier's voice was strangely throaty as she gazed out over the shimmering river.

"None of them," was the quiet reply. He thrilled to the realization of the absolute sincerity of his answer.

Without meeting his eyes, she turned impulsively to the airedale who accompanied them. "Good-by, Shot! I'm going to miss you, boy!" And she took the head of the dog in her hand. As Shot's tail beat the air, his hairy throat rumbled. Then he bared his great fangs and made little snaps at the girl bending over him.

"Why, you've made a conquest!" cried Guthrie. "He does that with no one here."

The girl looked up as she rubbed the dog's ears. "He's only saluting a brother—I mean a sister—in arms."

"One who served, as he did, with the wounded," added the man.

They were at the door of the mission.

"Good-by! The days will drag up there in the snow, waiting for the Christmas mail," said Guthrie, puzzled at his emotion—strangely reluctant to leave her—wondering at himself.

"Good-by, Mr. Exile!" She gave him her firm hand.

Hardly conscious of his purpose, he bent to search the dark eyes, frankly meeting his look. She smiled, he thought, wistfully as he said: "What you did for a comrade in distress—he will never forget. Good-by, Healer of Wounds."

Her eyes widened. Groping for his meaning, she watched him straighten, bring his hand to his forehead in a military salute, and turning, walk rapidly away. Until his tall figure was lost in the shadows, she stood, lips parted, wondering; then slowly opened the door and went in.

CHAPTER IV

Little did those whom Garth Guthrie had brought to Albany in his York boat sense what this act of friendliness to strangers might mean in days of drudgery—precious days lost from the goose hunt which was nearing its end—for the men from Elkwan. As the boat drifted down the south channel of the delta past the scrub-grown shores of Albany island, Guthrie's thoughts traversed the days since the storm and the meeting with the girl back at the Albany mission, who was going down the coast and out of his life, as the "wavies," from the Arctic, linger through the soft September weather, until the sting of the first norther sends them down the wind. But the "wavies" return. There would be no return to the west coast for Joan Quarrier.

He had left her, the night before, puzzled by the elation her promise to write him by the Christmas mail had aroused. And, always, as he strove to analyze the nature of his response to the appeal of her genuineness—her level-eyed meeting of life—the blond loveliness of Ethel, with her shrinking from the unpleasant—the inevitable—intruded with the knowledge of disillusion. Ethel was growing so vague—so shadowy—here in a land where raw life admitted of no subterfuge—no compromise. And yet, Ethel would wait for the brother of Sir Charles Guthrie, he told himself, with a tightening of the lips; of that he had no doubt.

The York boat reached the open water of the bay as the sun lifted, bringing an easterly breeze. As they worked up the channel to the post, a sense of loneliness chilled the heart of Guthrie. There would be no welcome, which, through the weeks of the summer, he had grown to cherish, on his homecoming—no joy in the wistful eyes of the girl who waited. All that remained to him now was the memory of a devotion—self-immolating, complete. Poor little Ninda!

Old Anne and the wife of Etienne stood on the shore while the voyagers made the boat fast to its buoy. As the men paddled in, it was evident that news awaited them.

"Somet'ing happen," said Etienne. "Marie ver' mooch excite' w'en she not stan' still."

"Bon jour, ladies!" called Guthrie, as he approached the chattering women on the beach. "What seems to be on your minds?"

"Oh, dey have come here—dos men!" cried old Anne.

"What men?"

"De man in de beeg boat—she was here. Dat one wid de bad face—McDonald Ha! Ha! de Injun call heem."

Guthrie and Etienne started incredulously at the speaker.

"What did he want?"

"He want talk wid you. He leave dis." Old Anne handed Guthrie a folded sheet of paper. Opening it, he read:

"The Hudson's Bay Company, Elkwan:

"This is to save you a trip to the island after the stuff left on the beach by that walrus-faced geologist, Quarrier. I can use most of it, and will pay St. John's prices for it on my return home. Have made an inventory.

"McDONALD."

"Well, he's a cool one!" commented Guthrie.

Etienne shook his black head. "He steal dat stuff, he steal all de fur on Akimiski."

"Not if I know it! If he thinks he's going to get our share of the Akimiski hunt, he'll have to fight for it. He'll find he can't bluff us," replied Guthrie, with increasing irritation at the thought of the high-handed methods of the unknown. In the north a cache was inviolate, and the stores of Quarrier on the Akimiski beach had not been abandoned, but cached, to be recovered later. McDonald's appropriation of them under the circumstances was a distinct breach of northern custom. If this was a sample of what could be expected from him later, in the fight for the Akimiski fox trade, the winter and spring would hardly be dull on the west coast. As soon as they had shot their winter supply of geese, he would have a talk with Graham and Boucher, at Attawapiskat and Kapiskau.

"Too bad, Etienne, we were not here to meet Mr. Laughing McDonald. What did you think of him, Anne? He's a big man with red hair, isn't he?"

"Oh, ver' beeg, strong man, wid hair lak fire. Hees face!" Anne stopped to shudder. "He got de crazy face all tam, from hees hurt mout'."

"Poor devil!" thought Guthrie, "branded for life with that grin! Then he asked: "Who came ashore with him?"

The question was a signal for an emotional outburst from Marie. "Dey were bad men, M'sieu Guthree. One beeg one, wid de barbe noir, black beard, he try kees me, de femme of Etienne Savanne." The black eyes of the comely wife of Etienne flashed with anger at the memory.

"W'at! Dey try dat wid you, dees peopl'?" The sinewy fingers of the half-breed worked nervously as if groping for a knife handle. "W'at you do, Marie?" he demanded.

"McDonal' Ha! Ha! broke in Anne, "he talk ver' cross to de black beard—give heem push lak he was littl' boy. Dis McDonal', dey all scare of heem, dose men. Den dey paddle out to de boat."

"Good enough! McDonald seems to be boss all right," laughed Guthrie. "Black beard; that must be the Newfoundland whaler, Etienne, the captain of the schooner."

The face of Etienne hardened. "He mak mooch troubl' on dis coast—dis McDonal' Ha! Ha!—mooch troubl'."

"It looks like a lively winter for us, eh, Shot?" And the factor of Elkwan bent to rub the ears of his dog.

* * * * * * *

It was early October on the west coast, hunting weather, when the geese restlessly crossed and recrossed the wide flats between the timber and the sea, and the duck, in flocks of thousands, endlessly rose from the shallows to skirt for a space, the rim of the tide, only to settle again, and shortly repeat the flight. When they had shot two back-breaking loads, Etienne and Guthrie started for their camp out where a boulder-strewn sandspit thrusting seaward rendered the launching of a loaded canoe possible at the height of the tide. A mile from the tent on the sandspit, Etienne lifted his lowered head banded by the tump-line which held the flour bags filled with geese. Then he swung round to the bent figure following, eyes on the ground.

"Boat at de camp."

Guthrie straightened until his range of vision included the sandspit. Below the boulders at the nose of the spit lay a ship's boat. A boat could come only from the schooner of McDonald. What were they after?

Nearing the camp, the packers dropped their loads and continued with their guns. If these people had abused Shot, chained to his stake—Guthrie's pulse quickened at the thought. Near the tent three men idled, evidently waiting for the owners.

"You keep out of this, Etienne. You're sore. Let me do the talking," warned Guthrie, as he approached the camp. Suddenly breaking into a run, he shouted: "Stop baiting that dog, or I'll turn him loose on you!"

Standing out of reach, a young sailor tossed sand into the face of the infuriated airedale, straining at his leash.

"All right! Turn him loose," was the truculent reply, and retreating, the sailor cocked his shotgun.

"Put down that gun, you young fool;" commanded the elder of the three strangers to the boy, as Garth reached the camp.

"I Kicked Him Out, So He Wants His Revenge."

"What are you people after—trouble?" demanded Guthrie, fighting for his self-control, for the badgering of his dog had left him hot.

The man addressed grinned good-naturedly and extended his hand. "Good day, Mr. Hudson's Bay; we ain't runnin' away from none. We saw your tent and rowed in to get some shells, if you have any—to sell."

Guthrie took the hand of the speaker, a heavily built man, with a beard. The anger left his face as he said: "Oh, you're not going to take the shells, then?" He was conscious, as he spoke, of the curiosity in the eyes of the man he faced, as they lingered on his scarred cheek.

"No," drawled the other. "You must think we're pirates. We pay as we go."

"But you robbed that cache on Akimiski—you left a note at Elkwan to that effect."

"McDonald will pay for that stuff—it would spoil in the rain."

"Well, we don't touch a man's cache in the north. By the way, where is this McDonald from?"

"We all hail from St. John's, Newfoundland."

"But McDonald?"

"Well, he hails from there, too," was the reply, but from the tail of his eye Guthrie caught a look in the face of the companion of the spokesman which belied the accuracy of the statement.

"You say you'll sell us some shells?" continued the speaker.

"No, we can't give you any!" It was Guthrie's turn to smile. "We need every shell we've got." He glanced at the muzzles of the guns of the strangers. "Our shells wouldn't fit those cannon of yours, anyway. We use twelve gauge guns with No. 6 shot. At close range it gets more geese than this big stuff.

"McDonald gets 'em with a Lewis—fires a burst into a flock and kills a half dozen."

"So you've got Lewis guns, eh?" abruptly demanded Garth.

"Oh, yes! We're heeled, if you people should take the notion to try to run us out of the bay."

"Why, man! you've got as much right here as we have, but if you don't play straight, we'll run you out—that's all."

The blue eyes of the sailor met the chill gaze of the soldier in a long, unwavering stare, and from that mutual appraisal, the reaction in the mind of each man was identical.

"You may—but you'll sweat some. Now, I want to give you fair warning that some of your people have come to us this summer of their own accord. There's an Injun who claims you stole his daughter—"

"What! That skunk of an Ojibwa? He tells you that?" Guthrie sickened at the thought of Ninda's memory being made the catspaw of Indian gossip.

"That's what he claims. It's none of my business, but he's got it in for you, so don't blame us. He's working for us, of course, for the fur."

"A girl he claimed as his daughter came to Elkwan in June, dying with tuberculosis," said Garth quietly. "She couldn't travel—we took care of her till she died. He tried to hold me up—for stuff. I kicked him out, so he wants his revenge. Just tell him, Mr. —" "Skene," prompted the other. "Just tell him for me, Mr. Skene, that I'll give him to the dog if he shows up at the post. He knows Shot."

"Looks like a tough old veteran!" commented Skene, admiringly, glancing at the airedale, tense as a statue, hair and tail up, bristling at his stake.

"He is. He's an overseas man. He'd tear that Indian's throat out in one snap."

"There's another matter, too," continued Garth. "When your people came to Elkwan when we were down the coast, one of them—fellow with a black beard—tried something that will get him knifed if he shows up at the post again." At the words, Etienne slowly moved up to a position beside Guthrie, his right hand resting carelessly on his hip, the fingers touching the bone handle of his sheath knife. The bearded leader of the sailors glanced curiously at the flint-like face of the half-breed, and smiled indifferently at the threat. "Just tell him for me, will you, to keep away from Elkwan?"

"Oh, you mean Black Breault. He's sailing master—owns the schooner. I'm the mate. He's a bit rough, I'll admit, but don't make any mistake about who's boss. McDonald's running this party."

"That's why I'm asking you to tell McDonald that we won't stand for manhandling women on this coast," insisted Guthrie.

"Right-o, I'll tell him. Well, we'll be off," said the big sailor, offering his hand, which Garth shook. "I'm glad to meet a reasonable Hudson's Bay man and one who wasn't sitting snug on the bay when we had our backs to the wall in front of Amiens."

And as Garth stood pondering the remark, Skene turned and joining his men, walked to his boat with a limp. He, too, thought the man who watched, is wearing his service stripe. The sailors launched their boat in the rising tide, and poling it out to the deeper water, rowed away.

So the memory of Ninda was to be mouthed on evil tongues? The story was going out among the Crees that the factor of Elkwan had taken her from her family. It was the kind of tale only too readily believed. Judging from the coolness of Swan, the missionary, Quarrier, without doubt, had published it in Albany; soon it would be the property of the whole west coast. Poor, loyal Ninda! Then, the thought of one who had seen and understood came like a breath of clean air from the spruce. He saw her again, her heavy hair touched by the moonlight, her fine, dark eyes with the questioning look, as she said: "Good-by, Mr. Exile!"

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Character of Glass Only Recently Known

The manufacture of glass antedates authentic history. It is only about three-quarters of a century, however, since its true character was ascertained. It is now generally conceded to be a salt—a chemical compound resulting from the union of an acid with a base. The acid is silica, the same that is found in quartz, or the quartz particles of sand. Hence the use of sand in its manufacture.

The base may be potash (or soda), together with alumina and lime—or lead may take the place of lime. Lime makes a hard glass, one less susceptible to acids and suited to windows and chemical purposes. Lead, a softer, more fusible and more lustrous article, suitable for optical instruments.

All acids act to some extent on glass, especially if the latter has an excess of alkali. Even wine may corrode the bottles wherein it is contained. The moisture of the air often dissolves out the alkali, causing the rainbow-like colors (iridescence) of some window panes.

Find Old Reflectors

In an iron case, concealed behind a wall, the first of the two great telescope reflectors with a 4-foot aperture, constructed 139 years ago by Sir William Herschel, the famous astronomer, for his 40 foot astronomical telescope, has been found during alterations to an old cottage adjoining the observatory house at Slough, England. Sir William Herschel devoted his life to the construction and use of reflecting telescopes for astronomy, and the fame of his instruments was rapidly spread by the brilliant discoveries which he accomplished by their aid.

Genuine BAYER ASPIRIN

SAY "BAYER ASPIRIN" and INSIST!

Unless you see the "Bayer Cross" on tablets you are not getting the genuine Bayer Aspirin proved safe by millions and prescribed by physicians for 25 years.

DOES NOT AFFECT THE HEART

Safe — Accept only "Bayer" package which contains proven directions. Handy "Bayer" boxes of 12 tablets Also bottles of 24 and 100—Druggists.

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

Americans Use More Electricity Nowadays

The ordinary daily life of the average American is growing more electrical every year. In 1925 the average home in this country used 365 kilowatt-hours of electrical current or about enough in a day to operate 20 ordinary house lamps one hour. In 1926 the consumption had grown to 400 kilowatt-hours per family, an increase of about 10 per cent. The rates throughout the land experienced a slight decrease so that even though people used one-tenth more electricity, the average family bill for the year 1926 was only $29.24 as compared with $27.89 the year before. These statistics are the result of a nation-wide survey made by Electrical Merchandising.

Rats

London has always had a large rat population, but now it is assuming menacing proportions.

The old English black rat was almost displaced by the Norwegian variety, which in turn is being driven out by the small black "ship rat" that can get into places no other rat could reach. Rodents of the latter type have even been known to travel on telephone wires.

Now a new brand has been discovered in large numbers in the neighborhood of Piccadilly. They are albino rats, with pink eyes, white hair, and white skins, and are quite as fierce as the other kinds. It is suggested they have bred from escaped tame specimens.

Chicks in Airplane Ride

Within a day after they had pecked their way into the world 350 chickens took an airplane ride from their native city of Sussex, England, to their present home in the Rhine-Hessian village of Gernsheim. Hardly were they out of their shells when they were packed in a crate, rushed to the Croydon airport, and taken by airplane to Cologne. There a truck rushed them to the railway station and a fast passenger train landed them in their new home before sundown. Not a single chick was lost on the trip, and all chirped most of the way and on arrival. They were taken into Germany to improve certain German strains.

Result Worth the Cost

The American dead and wounded toll from eight years' fighting in the American Revolution was 20,000.

An industrious person seldom has a busy tongue.

Changing Motor Figures

There is an automobile for each five citizens of the United States, or was when the count was made. Since then mortality among pedestrians may have changed the ratio.

INDIGESTION

If you are troubled with indigestion, dyspepsia, constipation or similar disorders

Green's August Flower

will help you. Has been used successfully for more than half a century. 30c and 90c bottles. At all druggists. G. G. Green, Inc., Woodbury, N. J.

CORNS

Ends pain at once!

In one minute pain from corns is ended. Dr. Scholl's Zino-pads do this safely by removing the cause—pressing and rubbing of shoes. They are thin, medicated, antiseptic, healing. At all drug and shoe stores. Cost but a trifle.

Dr Scholl's Zino-pads

Put one on—the pain is gone!

CHOLERA MORBUS (Summer Complaint)

Food or water may cause diarrhea and stomach cramps. For prompt relief take Chamberlain's Colic Remedy in water. Ask your druggist for this old, reliable remedy today For trial size, send 4c to Chamberlain Medicine Company, 702 Sixth Avenue, Des Moines, Iowa.

CHAMBERLAIN'S GUARANTEED REMEDY FOR COLIC AND DIARRHEA

THE FIRST AID IN STOMACH ACHE

Hanford's Balsam of Myrrh

For Wounds and Sores

Money back for first bottle if not suited. All dealers.

Why It's There

Customer—The bread you sold me had sand in it.

Grocer—Yes, ma'am, that was to keep the butter from slipping off!—Progressive Grocer.

LAST STAND of the cockroach army

No use waving that white flag!

Peterman's will get him

EVERY cockroach in thousands of homes has been exterminated by Peterman's this season.

You must have a powder for roaches. Peterman's Roach Food is the right powder. It entices cockroaches from their nests.

They get just a little on their legs. Back to their nests they go—behind baseboards, under floors, where no spray could reach them.

Every cockroach they touch, their young, every egg is exterminated. Nothing is left but a little dry dust. No odor.

Here is the right insecticide for each insect:

PETERMAN'S ROACH FOOD—exterminates cockroaches.

PETERMAN'S ANT FOOD—exterminates ants.

PETERMAN'S DISCOVERY (Liquid)—exterminates bedbugs (used through spout on can).

FLYOSAN—kills flies and mosquitoes.

PETERMAN'S MOTH FOOD—protects against moths.

You must have a specific insecticide for each insect. No single insecticide will exterminate them all. We have had nearly 50 years' experience. We know that is true.

Peterman's has the right insecticide for each insect. On sale wherever drugs are sold.

Peterman's 200 Fifth Ave., N.Y.C.

What's the Answer?

Questions No. 13

1—Who used the pen name George Eliot?

2—What was the longest game in the American league?

3—How many secretaries of state became Presidents and who were they?

4—What state was named for a king of England of the House of Stuart and who was he?

5—What is biology?

6—In what branch of painting, besides portraits, was Thomas Gainsborough celebrated?

7—What is the name of the largest lake in Russia?

8—What country is the turkey a native of and how many species are there?

9—How many letters are there in the French alphabet?

10—Where in the Bible does this verse occur: "And he set the sea on right side of the east end, over against the south"?

11—Which of Tolstoy's novels deals with Russia's wars with Napoleon I?

12—What is record and who made it for one mile walking?

13—Who was the last President elected by the Whig party?

14—What Confederate general led a raid into Ohio during the Civil war?

15—What is chemistry?

16—What master among composers wrote many of his greatest works after becoming almost totally deaf?

17—What country has the greatest irregularity in outline?

18—What is a tulip and how many species are there of it?

19—Where is the Basque language spoken?

20—Where is the word "show" spelled "shew"?

Answers No. 12

1—Harvard.

2—California, Florida.

3—Dr William Eustis in James Madison's administration.

4—By the washing up of particles of rock broken away by the action of water.

5—The deepest spot in the Atlantic is 27,366 feet; in the Pacific it is 30,000 feet.

6—Jealousy between the adherents of the tragedians, William Charles Macready and Edwin Forrest, on the occasion of the visit of the former to New York city in 1849.

7—West Indies.

8—Henry James.

9—George Washington.

10—Only when the companies cease business.

11—William Dean Howells.

12—Grove of the Athletics.

13—A native fish of the southeast of Asia, remarkable for its pugnacious propensities.

14—A phantom ship said to be seen in stormy weather off the Cape of Good Hope, and thought to forebode ill luck.

15—Samuel Colt, 1836

16—January 1, 1915.

17—Leonardo da Vinci.

18—Northern United States and Canada.

19—Benedict Arnold.

20—Manufacturing, agriculture and mercantile business.

Effect of Sanitation on Literary Manners

Literary manners have altered, not only as a result of the enlargement of the audience—though that was bound to have an important effect on literature—but as a result of changes in the manners and customs of everyday life.

The increase of privacy, the improvement of sanitation, the growing custom of cleanliness both of habits and of the body, and the abolition of many gross usages, have resulted in making many things that once were the comic contretemps of ordinary life seem now merely offensive irrelevancies.

Probably improved sanitation has had more influence on literary manners than anyone yet suspects.

You will notice that what its enemies call prudery is most general in countries in which sanitation has made the greatest progress.

If Rabelais were to return as an Englishman or an American today, he would probably find himself blushing like a Victorian girl at having made some of his own jokes. This is not to belittle the jokes of Rabelais, but merely to recognize that the manners and convictions that were the natural soil of many of those jokes no longer exist today.—Robert Lynd in the Atlantic Monthly.

Coin Bank Idea Old

The use of coin banks as thrift inculcators can be traced back far beyond the Christian era. Probably the oldest coin bank is that found by Count de Prorok and now in possession of the National City bank. This savings utensil, which is in the form of a closed urn of baked clay with a slit in the top, was found in the ruins of Utica, an ancient Phoenician city on the African coast near Carthage. It is believed to be at least 2,500 years old.

SUITS OF NOVELTY TWEEDS; FOX FUR NECKPIECE POPULAR

SEEKING enlightenment as to fall suit trends? Well, here is a "last word" model which speaks for itself in its mannish tweed fabric, its short skirt with its adroit plaits at one side and its swagger-cut coat. It is Marion Nixon, she who holds forth in moviedom to the delight of vast audiences, who has stepped into the autumn picture clad as you see.

With this eminently correct and "easy-to-look-at" suit Miss Nixon wears a ravishing red suede vest. It tones the whole outfit. A bit of the red suede escapes from the vest to do duty as a boutonniere and on the pocket and collar as a "note of color." A sports felt hat of tan, with matching shoes and bag, give a perfect finesse to this ensemble.

A Handsome Fall Suit.

The sturdy rough tweed suits now so fashionable are directely in contrast to the elaboration movement of woman's costume which marks this season. For that reason they achieve a more than usual distinctiveness. As to length of skirts, this depends whether one is considering the subject from the American or Paris standpoint. French couturiers are inclined to somewhat longer lengths, but women here, especially the flapper age, are proving quite defiant, many of them insisting on continuing a display of knees. Of course Paris usually wins in the finals, but just now brevity is the rule, especially for the youthful style enthusiasts in America.

Another item of interest—the smartest suits have not an inch of fur in sight as actual trimming, this because of the vogue for the separate fur piece. Every one who can afford it is going to own a beige or platinum fox fur scarf this fall.

Seems as if browns are to have their inning this season, lovely chestnut shades, cocoa, deep leaf tones and the like, which of course establishes the color trend for novelty cloth suits.

More formal type suits appear in black and also in leafy-colored broadcloths, but it is the sports suit which is the "nifty" thing for general wear.

Bravo for the girl who has remained constant to her fur neckpiece throughout torrid summer days. Now is the time of her reward, for autumn breezes do begin to blow, and what so "comfy" as well as satisfying to her vanity on a fickle fall day, as a good-looking fur about shoulder and throat.

To say that these fashionable neckpieces are "foxy" describes them in more ways than one. From the modish standpoint they are all of that. When it comes to the fur itself every branch of the fox family tree is represented in autumn's style parade. There is pointed fox in all its glory, blue fox, red, platinum and beige. As to white fox it holds its own triumphantly, regardless of the fact that it has been doing strenuous duty the whole summer through.

Imagination cannot picture anything more "swanky" in the way of a fall costume or suit enhanced with a flattering fox scarf. The autumn landscape will be crowded with just such.

A fox neckpiece never fails to enrich the dressy three-piece ensemble, as this pictures so charmingly proves.

With the smart tweed suit of autumn vogue, there is nothing so swagger as a handsome fox fur piece, preferably in beige or in platinum.

Perhaps the newest in fox fur pieces are the double or twin animal types. These two-in-one models are necessarily luxuriously long, joining as they do two furs at the back of the neck, which is in keeping with the trend toward heavily furred effects for fall and winter.

In neckpieces there is also a marked tendency to wear sable. This fur, by the way, is receiving marked attention in the styling of garments of distinction.

Flat-fur coats richly collared and cuffed with fox are conspicuously present in advance style showings.

JULIA BOTTOMLEY.

(©, 1927, by Western Newspaper Union.)

Fox Fur Gives Style Touch.

Around Orchard

SHREDDED OILED PAPER FAVORED

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The method of controlling apple scald in boxed apples by wrapping the fruit in oiled paper, as developed by the United States Department of Agriculture, has proved so satisfactory that a modification of the method is being tested for barreled apples. When the barrel pack is used it is impracticable to wrap each apple, but satisfactory results can be obtained by scattering throughout the pack a quantity of shredded oiled paper. The department has tested the efficacy of the modified method in a commercial way for three seasons and reports that when properly distributed in the barrel or other package, shredded oiled paper has proved highly efficient in the control of the disease.

Nineteen different tests covering seven different varieties were made. In the untreated barrels from 24 to 96 per cent of the apples, or an average of 67 per cent, were scalded to such an extent as to be discriminated against on the market. On the other hand, the barrels containing shredded oiled paper showed only an average of 4 per cent of the fruit scalded. Eight of the treated barrels were entirely free of the disease. Tests have also been made with apples in hampers, baskets and boxes with equally good or somewhat better success.

It is generally estimated that the shredded paper adds 20 to 25 cents a barrel to the cost of packing the apples. If the fruit is to pass into consumption early in the season, there may be little chance of recovering this amount in the selling price, but when it has been held beyond the peak of the season for the variety, profits several times greater than the cost have often been realized.

Shredded paper is not a guaranty against all misfortune, says the department. However, when properly applied so that each apple comes in contact with the oiled paper, it can usually be made a source of profit to the grower, and by adding to the keeping quality of the apples it contributes a stabilizing effect to the apple industry.

To Advertise Apples Is Plan of Fruit Growers

Apple growers of the country have formed an organization known as Apples for Health, Inc., and are setting out to raise $4,000,000 with which to advertise apples as a food. The objective is to put apples back into the position out of which they have been crowded in recent years. The plan is to spend $1,000,000 a year in a four-year campaign, says Capper's Farmer. In this, apple growers are following the lead, also, of the orange, banana, pineapple, prune and raisin growers.

Last year a large apple crop brought the growers less money than a short crop brought three years ago. This, the growers believe, was due to the failure of demand to keep pace with production, so they propose to increase demand, and cite the cases of oranges and raisins as evidence that it can be done.

"In twenty years," says John W. Gorby, secretary of the growers' organization, "California orange growers have increased their annual sales from $12,000,000 to $75,000,000. In ten years the raisin growers have increased their sales from 70,000 to 200,000 tons a year. Pineapple growers of Hawaii have educated the public away from eating fresh pineapples and taught them to use canned pineapples instead. These are only three of more than fifty examples that might be cited where growers have build up their industry by well conducted advertising and merchandising methods. It is now the apple growers' turn at bat."

Cultivation to Produce Vigorous Cherry Trees

By planting, tending and bringing into bearing under different treatments a large number of cherry trees of the standard commercial varieties, the Missouri College of Agriculture has found that cultivation produces trees that are much more vigorous, come into profitable bearing more quickly and produce much larger crops than trees grown in sod.

Again comparing trees grown in sod without fertilizer and those grown in sod but fertilized with nitrate of soda or sulphate of ammonia, the college has demonstrated that the fertilized trees are healthier, larger, more vigorous and much more productive than those receiving no fertilizer.

Control of Codling Moth

To return to specific insects and diseases, the codling moth immediately reasserts itself. Although arsenate of lead is the standard material used in its control the fact remains that it has not given the control desired. Summer oil sprays were resorted to in several parts of the country, but they are being abandoned. Instead, arsenate of lead sprays are being supplemented with the almost forgotten practices of banding, scraping the bark, destroying debris, etc.

Ask for

POST TOASTIES

They stay crisp in milk or cream

Crisp, delicious flakes of corn
—good for both ends of a perfect day

For breakfast serve Post Toasties with their crisp and crunchy goodness. That's the correct start for a perfect day. Enjoy their true corn flavor and refreshing crispness for supper at night. That's the perfect end of a perfect day. Here is deliciousness that no one can resist, and no one wants to. Here is wholesomeness that anyone can eat at any time. The special toasting process of the Postum Company seals the true corn flavor in lasting crispness. Post Toasties stay crisp in milk or cream down to the last tempting flake at the bottom of the bowl. Ask your grocer for Post Toasties in the red and yellow, wax-wrapped package that keeps them fresh.

© 1927, P. Co., Inc.

POSTUM COMPANY, INC., BATTLE CREEK, MICH.

Righto!

Teacher—What is the hardest thing to learn about farming?

Student—Getting up at 5 a. m.

Plural

Parent (anxiously)—Nurse, is it a "him" or a "her"?

The Nurse—It's a "them"!

"When the goblin army had been conquered the King celebrated the victory with a great banquet of Monarch Teenie Weenie Peanut Butter sandwiches and wonderful cake made with Monarch Cocoa."

Monarch is the only nationally advertised brand of QUALITY FOOD PRODUCTS sold exclusively through the men who own and operate their own stores.

EVERY genuine Monarch package bears the Lion Head, the oldest trademark in the United States covering a complete line of the world's finest food products—Coffee, Tea, Cocoa, Catsup, Pickles, Peanut Butter, Canned Fruits and Vegetables, and other superior table specialties.

REID, MURDOCH & CO.
Established 1853
Chicago Pittsburgh Boston New York
Jacksonville Tampa Los Angeles

MONARCH
Quality for 70 Years

Uncanny

Author—How are my novels going?

Bookseller—I can't figure it out—unless it's shoplifters.

Soviets Buy Horses

For the Soviet government. $19 per head was paid for 20 odd head of horses at Ashcroft.

Children Cry for

Fletcher's CASTORIA

MOTHER:— Fletcher's Castoria is especially prepared to relieve Infants in arms and Children all ages of Constipation, Flatulency, Wind Colic and Diarrhea; allaying Feverishness arising therefrom, and, by regulating the Stomach and Bowels, aids the assimilation of Food; giving natural sleep.

To avoid imitations, always look for the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher
Absolutely Harmless—No Opiates. Physicians everywhere recommend it.

Buzz guests make a hit

FLIT spray clears your home of flies and mosquitoes. It also kills bed bugs, roaches, ants, and their eggs. Fatal to insects but harmless to mankind. Will not stain. Get Flit today.

FLIT

DESTROYS
Flies Mosquitoes Moths
Ants Bed Bugs Roaches

"The yellow can with the black band"

© 1927 STANDARD OIL CO. (N.J.)

FEED GRINDING

Our Feed Grinding Mill is "raing to go" and all it needs is to have you farmers bring in your grain and get your feed ground the way you want it. Our mill does excellent work and turns out real ground feed.

Coal for Winter

Fill your bins now for winter as coal prices are steadily advancing. Our bins are full of good furnace and stove coal and right now the price is right.

Klemme Co-Operative Grain Co.

LIBERAL ALLOWANCE on your old cleaner toward a new PREMIER DUPLEX

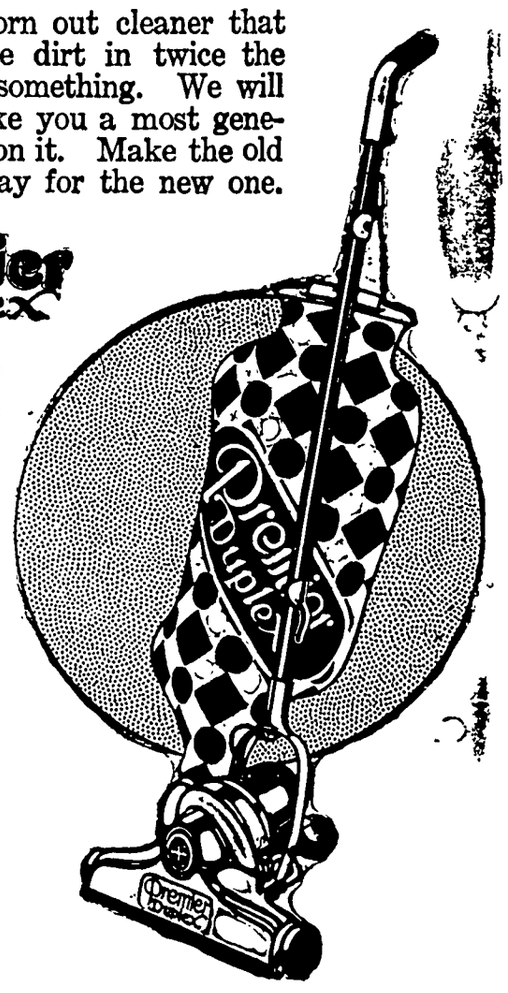
YOUR old worn out cleaner that gets half the dirt in twice the time, is worth something. We will take it and make you a most generous allowance on it. Make the old one help you pay for the new one.

Premier Duplex



This is the famous double action vacuum cleaner—the one that cleans by powerful suction and a motor driven brush. And it needs no oiling, for both motor and brush turn on ball bearings. It has many features that commend it to housewives.

Only

$5.00 down

The rest can be paid in easy payments over a year's time.

Central States Electric Co.

Threshing Coal

Now is a good time to lay in your supply of Coal for Threshing.

We have our coal bins filled with a high grade of coal especially suited for your needs at threshing time—and the price is right on our coal.

We always carry a complete lne of all kinds of coal. Right now we are also featuring high grade coal for kitchen ranges.

A full line of all kinds of feed on hand.

North Iowa Grain Co.

News of Klemme and Vicinity

Dr. R. W. Specht, Dentist, Garner, Iowa. adv

Elmer Arnold and family took in the state fair at Des Moines.

Jim Pavey and family are visiting at the W. F. Pavey home this week.

Art Kudje and family took in the fair at Des Moines Sunday.

NOTICE—All who owe for sand from the Wm. Stille pit please settle with Lester Stille. 2tc

W. C. Keraus and family visited the State Fair at Des Moines Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm Lemke were callers at the Ed. Schaefer home Friday.

Mrs Ben Coobs and Melvin and Mrs. W. F. Pavey and children were Mason City visitors Thursday.

Dr Zinn is driving a new Chevrolet coupe which he purchased yesterday.

APPLES FOR SALE—from spray-trees. Choice, juicy Wealthies. fine flavor. John Josten. 1tc.

Emma Kothenbeutal was operated on at Hampton Tuesday for appendicitis She is reported as getting along nicely.

Marvin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Barz was injured yesterday when a horse fell on him, bruising his leg severely.

Mr. and Mrs. August Rdder have been visiting their son, Will, at Waterloo, and also taking in the Camp Meetings there.

Miss Madeline Griffen left Sunday to spend the week end visiting with friends and relatives at Elkader, Iowa.

Mr. and Mrs. Verner Lewis and family left for McGregor Thrusday morning to visit with Herman Coobs Sr.. and other relatives. They returned to Klemme Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. M. O. Barr and La Vonne drove to Des Moines Saturday afternoon for an over Sunday visit with Elmer Fuller and family and to take in the State Fair.

E. G. Gary and family, of Lehigh, were visiting with Klemme friends the first of the week. They were on their way to Rockford, where Mr. Gary will teach this year.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C A. Gast and daughter, Myrtle of Garner, spent Sunday with Leonard Sampson and family, and enjoyed an outing supper.

Mr. and Mrs C G. Waterman and daughter, Marian, acompanied by Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Mitchell of Swea City, took in the Fair at Des Moines Sunday.

The Fall Term opens Tuesday, September the 6th. The Hamilton University, Mason City, Iowa 1tc

Mrs. Ralph Blank and children, Katherine and Fred, returned to their home at Estherville Tuesday after visiting for several days with Klemme relatives.

Mrs. R. A. Jorgenson went to the Mercy Hospital at Mason City Wednesday of this week for treatment. She expects to have her tonsils removed there the first of next week.

Otto Behrens and family of Elkport, Iowa, arrived Saturday to spend a few days with Mrs. Behrens parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Lau, of Klemme.

Rev. A. W. Gauger and Byrnes Missman drove to Rudd. Friday and brought Canlyle home. He has been working for his uncle on the farm all summer.

Mrs. Herman Paul and children left last evening for their home at St. Louis, Mo, after visiting for about three weeks with her parents, Mr and Mrs. H. L. Suckow and with other relatives and friends.

Mr and Mrs. Will Stille and son, Donald, and daughter, Elvira, left Friday morning in their car for California where they will make their home while Elvra attends the University there.

Mr and Mrs. Geo. Schenke, f Manchester and Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Timmins of Colesburg, and Mrs. Wm. Kraus of Garner, were visiting at the Leonard Sampson home last Wednesday.

In just a few more days. literally thousands of young people will be starting to school—starting on the road to good positions—will you be one of them? Next Tuesday is the opening date of the Fall Term. The Hamilton University, Mason City, Iowa. 1tc

Mrs Marlin Croner and Dorothy, and Mrs Lena Schroeder and Max Barz drove to Ames Friday morning and had diner with Mrs. Sarah Behringer Miss Adella Schroeder, who completed her summer school work, and Clarence Whistler, of Cedar Rapids, returned to Klemme with them.

Mrs. Alvin Swalve from Sibley, Iowa, returned home last Saturday, after visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs Wm Wenz. They took her home in their car and returned to Klemme Monday Mr. and Mrs. Wenz were on top of the big hill near Ocheyedan, which is supposed to be the highest point in Iowa. John Wessels did the chores for them while they were away.

The Times is always glad to receive items of news. Please phone your items or mail them. Thanks.

BAYSIDE

AMUSEMENT PARK

——Clear Lake, Iowa——

— PROGRAM —

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 4th

Ball Game at 3 o'clock. Mason City O-P team vs. Wall-Nash team, a "grudge" battle. Both teams have defeated Clear Lake Mason-Whippets. Free vaudeville, free movies, amusement concessions, etc.

DANCES—At the White Pier Thursday and Saturday night, September 1st and 3rd. Big Labor Day Dance Monday night, September 5th. Roller skating a Bayside daily.

AT BAYSIDE——Best bathing beach on Lake, bath house, toboggan slide, roller coaster, little train, new fun house, merry-go-round, ferris wheel, fortune teller, concessions, free picnic grounds and tables, children's playgrounds, boats, fishing.

FUN FOR ALL ALL FOR FUN

— Policed Parking Grounds For Cars 15c —

Another Woman HUNG!

HER ARMS AROUND HER HUSBAND'S NECK AND BEGGED HIM TO BUY HER ONE OF OUR NEW KITCHEN RANGES!

We have another big display on our floor of the newest South Bend Malleable, Globe and Quick Meal Kitchen Ranges in a variety of styles and finishes—A range to suit your particular desire.

SOUTH BEND MALLEABLE

Finished in White, Grey and Tan—in stock

QUICK MEAL RANGES

Finishes in White, Grey and Blue

GLOBE RANGES

In an assortment of finishes and styles

GLOBE PARLOR FURNACES

In two sizes, walnut finish. Give real satisfaction and used where it is not practical to install a hot air furnace. Look them over!

FURNACE and STOVE REPAIRS

Order your repairs, new pipes, grates, etc. now and be prepared for fall and winter.

E. F. Jacobs

"THE FARM SERVICE STORE"

School Supplies

Parker Pens and Pencils

Special

Tablets 2 for 5c

See Our Window

Wilson's Pharmacy

Klemme Iowa

Our Big Tire Sale Will Be CONTINUED

As long as the present Stock Holds Out

30x3½ Cord $6.20

REGULAR PRICE $7.35

30x3½ Extra Size Cord $6.95

REGULAR PRICE $8.45

29x4.40 Balloon $7.95

REGULAR PRICE $9.45

COMPARE THESE PRICES With Any Other FIRST GRADE TIRE and then come in and let us show you are values. Remember the regular prices will be in effect as soon as the present stock is exhausted. Buy Tires Now and Save Money.

PRITCHARD AUTO Co

Phone 77 Klemme. Iowa

THE KLEMME TIMES

Fortieth Year—Number 4. KLEMME, IOWA, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 8, 1927

KLEMME SCHOOLS OPEN MON. MORNING

OVER SIXTY STUDENTS ARE ENROLLED IN HIGH SCHOOL

Grade Attendance Now Numbers Close To One Hundred Pupils

The school bell was again rung by Emil Patet, our janitor for the past few years, on Monday of this week and a lot of young Americans answered the summons Over 60 came to our high school and near ninety to our grades Others we learn are to enroll soon Books ordered before the superintendent left for his summer vacation were here waiting for use and our new teachers, who came last week end, ably assisted Mr Penrod to get the machinery going again

Our school board showed their interest in the children of our community by installing for them some strong and attractive playground equipment, a swing and teeter-totters. Both are in great demand and at recess are covered with youngsters Some inside painting has been done which contributes no little to the appearance of our building, while blackboards have been given a fresh coat of paint.

Our boys and girls have come with a good attitude and the new teachers have spoken very highly f them. We hope the genuine good will which now prevails may be maintained throughout the year.

The Seniors have already ordered their class pins and rings and seem bent on carrying on in full fledged senior style

Our Freshman class made up f non-resident pupils in large part are shown unusual interest thus far and we hope it may be maintained 15 of them out of 20 in the class came from the rural schools and this number added to 18 more rural students outside our district previously enrolled, constitute over half of our high school, 54 per cent

We regret not seeing here this week some whom we expected back that were enrolled last year as Albert Keeper, Lona Buseman, Irene Bridges, and Dorothy Helps. We regret to see these young people pass by their one chance in a life time to get an even start with other young people of their own age. It will not be so easy in the future for young folk to get on in the world of occupations without a high school education More and more young people every year are completing the courses in the American high schools and it will be this class in general who will manage and lead and be well paid for their services while those not so well informed nor well trained must take what is offered at less attractive wages or salaries. Besides, a high school graduate should be able to enjoy more of what is in the world to be enjoyed. His should be a richer and more satisfactory life among his fellows. His pleasure should be greater because he feels more nearly equal to his fellows. Discomfort arises when we mingle with folk whom we recognize as our superiors. We are ill at ease when we are conscious of our inferiority to those with whom we must associate. It is not too late for other enrollments. There should be from eighty to ne hundred enrolled in Klemme High School. At the present rate of increase in high school enrollment Klemme may expect to enroll this number inside of ten years.

Why should anyone able to get a high school education today carelessly consign him or herself to the most humble positions of life at the lowest wages, to occupations less desirable because they involve great objection to others. However, the world's labor can not all be done by leaders. There must be those content to be followers, to be directed by others, to have their work outlined for them, and to receive for their services less than those directing them. Only so many can lead and direct and get the highest compensation. We make the choice os where we are placed by our willingness or unwillingness to qualify above others for positions of leadership Many others are over and above us because they were willing to pay the price of getting there.

Meet The Teachers!

It may interest some who have not had the chance to learn just who are now employed in our local schools to list the names of our school faculty. They are:

Miss Lenora Wheatman, Primary Instructor, same as last year.

Miss Mildred Wheatman, sister of our Primary teacher, in grades 3 and 4, both of Decorah, Iowa

Miss Phyllis Root, of Dows, n grades 5 and 6.

Mr. Carl Heiden, of Dennison, Ia., Coach and Manual Arts.

Mr. Donald Lewis, of Corning, Ia , Physics and Orchestra in H. S.

Miss Lena McGinnis, of Kellerton, Iowa, History and Home Economics, Girls Physical Director.

Miss Wilma Trumbell, of Belmond High School Principal and English teacher.

M F Penrod, Supt. His home is at Pulaski, Iowa.

Visitors Are Welcome

Parents and friends of our school are welcome to our class rooms at anyt ime to meet their children's teachers and to confer with them about problems which might arise concerning their children. We believe our teachers can be trusted to do all that can be reasonably expected of them in the interest f their children. We anticipate a successful school year.

DECLARE THREE WEEK OPEN SEASON ON PHEASANTS

Waterloo, Ia , Sept 7 (A P.)—The open season on pheasants in Iowa will continue for three weeks this year with hunters allowed to take the birds three days of each week of the open season, according to word received here today from I G Rhodes, secretary of the state fish and game department of Iowa

Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays will be open dates for shooting. The season begins Oct 4 and ends Oct. 22 A bag limit of five birds—three cocks and two hen pheasant—will be allowed daily.

The season will be optional with the people of the state, each county being required to obtain a petition containing the names of 150 farmers and land owners before the county is allowed an open season on the birds Last year sixteen counties in the state had open season on pheasants.

BIG RODEO AT BAYSIDE FOR THREE DAYS

Many Noted Cow Boys and Girls To Appear In Western Stunts

The Bayside Amusement Park at Clear Lake, Iowa, will present a mammoth Rodeo Saturday, Sunday, and Monday, September 10th 11th and 12th. The George V. Admas Co. will bring 150 wild horses, 30 longhorned Texas steers and 50 cow boys and girls to Bayside for these three days and will stage one of the most thrilling Rodeo programs ever offered in Iowa Hippodrome races, an Indian Pow Wow, riding bucking broncos and steers, fancy trick riding, relay races, a battle with steers and many other Western thrillers will be features of the big program to be presented by real western cow girls and cow boys There will be thrills, spills, excitement and entertainment every minute during the long performance which will start each afternoon at 2.30 o'clock. No evening performances will be given Among the fifty cow boys and cow girls in the George V Adams Co. is Miss Marie Gibson, all around cow girl, from Hevre, Montanna. She just returned from Chicago where she appeared in a big western program at the stadium there Miss Gibson took second money for fancy trick riding, hippodrome racing, broncho riding and other daring stunts. Miss Esther Hughes, cowgirl from the western coast, will also entertain in many death-defying stunts with bronchos and steers. This remarkable Rodeo performance wil be one of the greatest thrillers ever brought to Bayside Park, according to manager Charles Ritz The admission will be 75c for adutls and 25c for children

CARLOAD OF BUTTER SHIPPED TUESDAY

KLEMME CREAMERY NOW SHIPS BUTTER IN CAR LOAD LOTS

1927 Business Gains Rapidly Over Same Period Last Year

The Klemme Creamery has come to the point where it can now ship out its golden product by the car load and the first car load lot of butter was shipped by the Klemme Co-Operative Creamery Tuesday and was sold to Wm G. Ilolbrock Co , at New York

Means Better Market Price

There are a number of advantages in being able to ship in car load lots The butter grades better as it all comes from one plant; a lower freight rate is given and money is saved on "stop charges"

These advantages mean added prices paid for butter fat and go right back to the dairyman who is a patron of the creamery.

For a number of years the Titonka, Woden, Crystal Lake and Klemme creameries bunched their shipments in one car and shipped in that way However, Klemme's creamery has grown to such capacity that it no longer needs to ship in small lots with nearby creameries. At the present rate of production the local factory will ship a car load of butter every ten to twelve days, and in the spring and early summer about once a week.

The creamery prepared for this some time ago when they rebuilt the refrigerator which is now large enough to store a full car load of butter.

The car load shipment Tuesday consisted of 307 tubs or 22,411 lbs. of butter.

The business has shown a wonderful increase during the months so far in 1927 and represents at least a 30 per cent increase in business

Folowing is a comparative table showing the number of tubs of butter made in the first eight months of 1926 and also 1927.

	1926	1927
January	526	599
February	571	639
March	717	772
April	725	793
May	917	1120
June	998	1159
July	826	968
August	728	855

This shows the big increase of the number of tubs shipped each of the eight months and is a substantial increase over last year.

Ten Routes Serve Farmers

There are now ten cream routes radiating out from the Klemme Co-Operative creamery and five truck drivers strive to give prompt nd couteous service to the farmers far and near on these ten routes. The truck drivers are Einar Swartz, Emil Kraus, Harold Leitzinger and Fred Osborne. These men are all good fellows and if you do not already know them, or you do not sell your cream to Klemme, just hail them anytime and they will be on the job to serve you and tell you why you can do better by selling your cream to the Klemme Co-Op. Creamery

And at the Creamery you will find a fine bunch of men: A. D. Gimer, chief butter-maker and manager; Paul Mueller, assistant butter maker, and Harl Gimer, general helper. Valentine Josten is the efficient secretary and does a lot of field work as well as getting the checks out on time The board of directors are all farmers and fine men to know.

The men all say they are doing all they can to boost business but they want to give the farmers of this community the most credit for cooperating by delivering fine cream, their loyal patronage during the past years and boosting for good dairying in general.

At this time there are OVER 400 patrons selling their cream to the local factory; and this list is steadily growing—there must be a good reason, ask your neighbor who sells his product to the local creamery!

KLEMME WINS BALL TOURNEY AT COULTER

KLEMME DEFEATED HAMPTON IN FINAL GAME MONDAY

Finn, Of Kremme, Gets Only Home Run In Tournament

The Klemme Independents came through with colors flying at the little baseball tournament held at Coulter Sunday and Monday in which teams from Coulter, Hampotn, Meservey and Kleme battled for the championship honors.

The four teams drew and places which resulted in Hampton and Coulter playing the first game which resulted in the score of Hampton 4, Coulter 3 Meservey and Klemme played a ten inning game the next round and after a tough battle the locals finally downed their enemy in one of the most brilliant games of the tournament, Klemme 8, Meservey 7

For the first round of the second day's scramble Meservey and Coulter played a one side battle resulting in 5 for Coulter and a goose-egg for Meservey. This was a consolation game for the losers of the first games.

The last game of the tournament, between the winners of the first day and for championship honors, was between Klemme and Hampton. This was a fast game and when the smoke of battle had cleared away Klemme had the long end of the score—13 to 10 over Hampton and with it went first money and all the honors of the tournament.

The Independents have showed up good this season and have played some fast teams.

Following is the box score of the games Klemme played:

Klemme 8—Meservey 7

Klemme:

	Pos.	AB	H	R	E
Stokesbary, 2b		6	2	2	0
Finn, c. f		6	5	2	1
Tanner, c.		5	5	2	2
Lauritsen, p.		5	2	0	0
Thomas, r. f.		5	2	2	0
Smith, 3b.		5	1	0	1
Leitzinger, s. s.		5	2	0	1
Greiman, l. f.		3	1	0	0
Gibbs, 1b.		5	1	1	2
Chapman, l. f		2	1	1	0
Total		47	22	8	7

Meservey:

	Pos.	AB	H	R	E
Johnson, s. s.		6	3	2	1
Peters, c. f		6	4	2	0
Chambers, 2b		6	1	1	2
Timmerman, l f.		5	3	1	1
Jacobson, c.		5	4	1	3
Obrecht, 3b.		5	1	0	1
Smith, 1b.		5	0	0	0
Timmerman, r. f.		5	1	0	1
Obrecht, p.		5	0	0	1
Totals		48	17	7	10

Summary:

2 base hits, Johnson, Peters, Finn, Stokesbary, Tanner, E. Smith, Leitzinger; 3 Base Hits, Johnson 1. Timmerman 2. Home Run, Finn. Umpire Tom Finn. Time 4:00.

Klemme:

	Pos.	AB	H	R	E
Stokesbary, 2b.		5	1	0	1
E. Finn, c. f.		5	3	1	1
L. Peters, l. f.		5	4	2	1
Hemested, 3b.		5	4	4	0
Tanner, c.		5	2	2	0
Smith, 1b.		5	2	2	0
Thomas, r. f.		5	4	1	0
Leitzinger, s. s.		5	2	1	2
Chapman, p.		3	0	0	3
Nuemlen, p.		2	1	0	0
Totals		45	23	13	8

Hampton:

	Pos.	AB	H	R	E
Parks, l. f.		6	3	3	0
A Luke, s. s.		6	3	1	1
F. Luke, p.		6	4	1	2
McCauley, 2b.		5	2	0	0
Marshall, c. f.		5	0	0	0
Wolf, c.		5	0	0	1
Hifme, 3b.		5	1	2	1
Coonley, 1b.		5	0	1	1
Hildibrand, r. f.		5	3	2	0
Totals		48	16	10	6

Summary:

2 base hits, Stokesbary, Peters, Finn, Tanner, Smith, Thomas, Parks A. Luke, Hibine; 3 base hits Hemested3, F. Luke 1, Leitzinger 1. Umpire, Tom Finn. Time 3:45.

Will Play Cartersville Sunday

Klemme will play Cartersville on the Klemme field Sunday. The Shell Rock Valley League closed its season Sunday and the four Hanson brothers are again back with Cartersville for the balance of the season. This will assure a fast game here Sunday. Don't miss it.

EIGHTY-NINE ATTEND NASHUA FAMILY RE-UNION

Little Brown Church In The Vale Is Scene Of Happy Gathering

(By Wm. Neuhring, Rockwell, Ia.)

The lawn of the Little Brown Church in the Vale near Nashua, Ia., was the happy scene of the family gathering of sisters, brothers, aunts, uncles, cousins and descendants of the Neuhrings and was attended by relatives from far and near who chose this beautiful place as a centrally located place for a big family re-union, Sunday, September 4th.

At the noon hour the table was arranged and the feast put on and the dinner served in cafeteria style. When a count had been completed it was found that there were eighty-nine persons present, who enjoyed the big dinner.

Those who were present at this gathering were:

Mr. Wm. Neahring, Sr., of Belmond.

Mr. Deitrich Nuehring, of Postville.

Mr. August Nuehring of Garner, and Mrs. Minnie Knoke; all of whom are brothers and sister.

Following are the other relatives who were present:

Mr. and Mrs. Deitrich Nuehring; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Heins and family; Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Nuehring and family; Mr. and Mrs. John Schrader and Mr. William Earstman, all of Postville, Iowa.

Mr. Eddie Nuehring; Mr Alfred Nuehring, of Belmond.

Mr. and Mrs. William Nuehring and family of Rockwell.

Mr and Mrs. Otto Nuehring and family of Goodell.

Mr. Fred Nuehring and sno Erwin and Mr Henry Nuehring and daughters Florence and Helen, of Kanawha.

Mr. Owen Nuehring and daughters Dorothy and Clara; Mrs. Minnie Knoke; Mr. and Mrs. Art Knoke and family; all of Klemme.

Mr. and Mrs. August Nuehring; Mr. and Mrs. Sam Hammon and family, of Garner

All families were present with the exception of seven, who were, John Nuehring and family of Luanna; Fred Knoke and family of Elkader; Jake Groh and family of Chicago; Emil Nuehring of Chicago, Charley Smith and family of Mason City; William Bachman and family of Klemme and Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Bachman of Klemme. Herman Nuehring and family of Goodell, and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Haupt and family of Montanna.

The re-union was a great success and no doubt a similar gathering will be planned for next year n September

As this seemed to be a lucky day for the young people at the Ltitle Brown Church, there being five couples married that day at the Little Brown Church. Who can beat that? And all at the re-union reported they had a fine time. All will try and come next year if health will permit them to do so.

METHODIST CHURCH NOTES

Rev. A. W. Gauger, Pastor

Our services next Sunday will be featured by things different from the regular order of services

The rites of baptism will be administered in both churches at the morning service. Such wishing to have their children baptized will bear this in mind. Adults desiring the same service will please inform the pastor.

Reception of members by transfer or on confession of Faith will take places at these services.

The general rules of the church will be read and commented upon as required by the discipline

Special music will feature in both services.

A Standard Bearers Society is o be organized in Liberty Church on Sundoy evening. This is a Missionary Society for young girls who have outgrown the King's Herald Society.

HANCOCK COUNTY FAIR HELD NEXT WEEK

FAIR PROGRAM THIS YEAR HAS MANY ADDED FEATURES

Night Fair This Year Will Be Great Entertainment

Plans have been completed and everything is i nreadiness for the big Hancock County Fair to be held at the Fair Grounds at Britt, Sept 13, 14, 15 and 16.

Many entries have been made in the digerent departments and the prospects are that the agricultural and livestock show will be as big as ever. The Boys and Girls Club show will far exceed that in previous years.

In the way of entertainment, the Fair Management has been able to arrange a program of horse races, ball games, free attractions and music that will be well worth attending. One of the big features of the night program will be the Four Horsemen, popular radio quartet from WHO. This quartet sang at the Lindberg reception at Des Moines, and is one of the best groups of singers in the country. Six big free acts will be put on in the afternoon and evening. Fast horse races every afternoon and a good ball game every day. A grand display of fireworks will be put on Thursday and Friday evenings An old fiddlers contest will be put on Wednesday night. Ralph Parcaut and his Flying Circus will bo there each day with thrilling stunts and parachute drop.

The following program is for the three fair days and entry day:

Tuesday, Sept. 13

Entry Day All articles must be entered by 6.00 p. m. All livestock must be in place. Articles may be delivered to the Floral Hall until 10:00 a. m. Wednesday, but must be entered Tuesday.

Wednesday, Sept. 14

All articles must be in place at 10:00 a. m.

10:30, Judging in all departments.

1:00 p. m. Judging of Baby Beeves, Dairy Heifer and Market Pig Clubs as well as judging in all other departments.

2:00 P. M. Program before the Grandstand. Horse Races, 2:22 trot, 2:22 pace. Six big acts free attractions. Music by the Britt band. Baseball games, Forest City vs. Leland.

Aeroplane stunts and parachute drop by Ralph Parcaut and his Flying Circus.

Ford Pulling Contest.

8:00 P M Old Time Fiddlers Contest. Anynoe interested in entering this contest should get dn touch with the Secretary.

Concert by Britt Band.

Six big acs of free attractions.

Program by tho Four Horemen.

Thursday, Sept. 15

Completion of judging.

Boys and Girls livestock judging contest.

Girls Club demonstrations.

1.00 P M Program before the Grandstand.

Music by Woden 60 piece band.

Ball game, Woden vs. Corwith.

Horse races, 2:16 trot and 2:18 pace.

Mule race.

Six big free acts.

Parachute drop and aeroplane stunts by Ralph Parcaut.

Fire Extinguishing demonstration.

8:00 P. M. Six big acts of free attractions.

Program by the Four Horsemen.

Grand Display of Fireworks.

Friday, Sept. 16

1:00 P. M. Program before the Grandstand:

Fast horse races, 2:14 trot, and 2:12 pace.

Ball game: Winners of two previous days.

County running race.

6 big acts of free attractions.

Parachute drop and aeroplane stunts by Ralph Parcaut.

Fire extinguishing demonstration.

Livestock parade.

8:00 P. M. 6 big acts of free attractions.

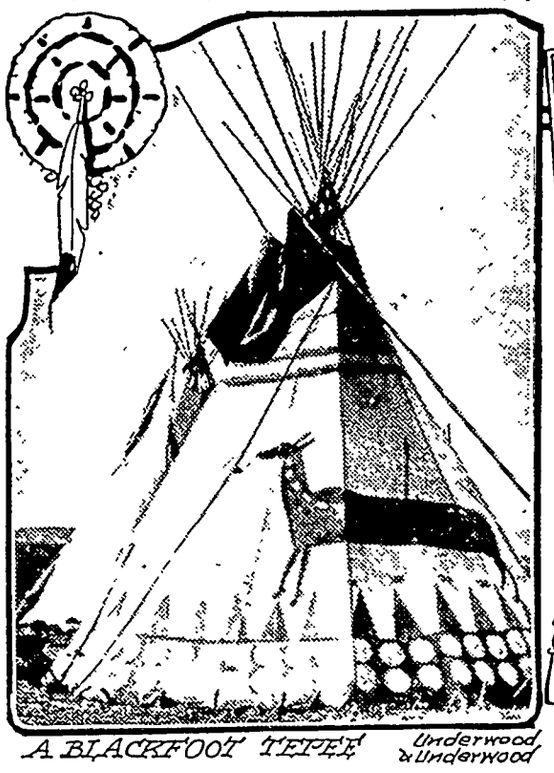
Program by the Four Horsemen.

Grand display of fireworks.

The Noble Red Man—Old and New Styles

TYPES OF EARLY AMERICANS. Painting by Carl Bodmer. From the "Pageant of America" Yale University Press

KICKING BEAR



A BLACKFOOT TEPEE Underwood & Underwood

BOARD OF INDIAN COMMISSIONERS

©Harris & Ewing

FRANCIS LA FLESCHE
Photo by Underwood & Underwood

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

WHEN the Illinois legislature in 1919 designated the fourth Friday in September as American Indian day and the governor of Illinois on July 28 of that year approved the measure, establishing the day as a state holiday, a decidedly forward step was taken in paying a just tribute to a race which has greatly enriched our national traditions.

The first celebration of American Indian day in Illinois, which brought together representatives from 14 tribes, saw also the first meeting of the Indian Fellowship league, an association fostered by various civic and patriotic organizations in Chicago. The purpose of the league was the promotion of more cordial relations and a better understanding between the two races by bringing to the attention of the whites the many accomplishments of the Indian and by giving the Indian a better idea of American life as he must live it in order to become an effective citizen.

Since this first celebration seven years ago, the event has been observed annually in Illinois and the idea of American Indian day has spread to other states. Although it has not yet become established as a general holiday, it is indicative of an increasing interest in the Indian and that interest has been added to by various large gatherings of red men from time to time in recent years which have attracted national attention. Notable among these have been the big reunion held in Tulsa, Okla., in 1924, under the auspices of the Society of Oklahoma Indians, which was attended by more than 10,000 members of 183 tribes in the United States, Canada and Mexico; the meeting of the first national Indian congress at Spokane, Wash., in 1925, where 30 tribes were represented; and the big pow-wow at Lawrence, Kan., last year when Indians from all parts of the country gathered for the dedication of a new stadium at Haskell Indian institute.

Dr. Hubert Work, secretary of the interior, who was the principal speaker at the Haskell dedication, declared that the event was a forecast of further development of Indian progress. He pointed out the fact that the stadium project, which was financed entirely by Indians, especially the older Indians, was the first united effort of the red race to advance in modern sports. Since one of the greatest battles in the educational campaign among the Indians has been against ill health and disease, he looked upon the fact that the Indian realized the wisdom of providing for physical education as significant of even greater progress to be made by the red race in the coming years.

While at all of these gatherings there were enough councils and ceremonials, barbecues and native games, native songs and dances, tepees and tribal costumes to be reminiscent of the old days when the Indian ruled the continent, yet the striking fact about these meetings was that they were dominated by a new style of "noble red man" and that the underlying purpose of all was for the representatives of the various tribes to confer on how the Indian shall meet the problems of modern life when he, as a part of the citizenship of the United States, is confronted with them. In the old days the Indians' leaders led them in ways of war; in these days they are leading their brethren in ways of peace.

Perhaps no more striking contrast between the "noble red man," old style and new style, can be shown than in the case of two Indians whose portraits appear above. One of them is Kicking Bear of the Miniconjou Teton Sioux, a typical war leader of the old days, and the other is Francis Le Flesche of the Omaha tribe, who was recently given the honorary degree of doctor of letters from the University of Nebraska.

Kicking Bear (Mato-Bear; Wanartaka-Kicking), born in a Sioux tepee somewhere in the Dakotas, fought with his people, the Miniconju Sioux, against the white man in the early Plains wars and was among those whom the campaigning of Gen. Nelson A. Miles drove across the Canadian border in the Sioux war of 1876-77 after the Custer battle. In 1879 Kicking Bear returned to the United States and surrendered to Miles, and he and his people were placed on the Cheyenne river reservation in South Dakota.

Late in the eighties an Indian fanatic in Nevada, named Wovoka or Jack Wilson, began preaching the coming of an Indian Messiah, who was to wipe out the white race and restore the land to the Indians. Delegations from various tribes visited him and were taught the ghost dance. In 1890 the ghost dance religion had spread to the Sioux and Short Bull of the Brules and Kicking Bear became its high priests. When some of the agents for the Sioux lost control of their charges during this religious excitement, troops were ordered into the country and the so-called "ghost dance war," the high-lights of which were the killing of Sitting Bull and the Wounded Knee tragedy, followed.

Upon the arrival of the troops some of the Sioux stampeded to the Bad Lands and defied the soldiers, and Kicking Bear was the principal leader of these hostiles just as he had been the leader in the ghost dance. Eventually, however, the hostiles were overawed by the number of troops in the field and were forced to come in to the agency and surrender to General Miles, who was in charge of the military. Kicking Bear and Short Bull with several others were held as hostages for the good conduct of the Sioux and later sent to Fort Sheridan, Ill., as prisoners of war. So Kicking Bull goes down in history as the principal leader in the last gesture of defiance against the white man made by one of the old-time type of Sioux war leaders.

Frances La Flesche, also was born in an Indian tepee on the plains of Nebraska. He was the son of Estamaza, head chief of the Omahas, and although as a boy of fifteen he was riding to the buffalo hunts with his people and living an aboriginal life, even though it was spent on the reservation of the Omahas, his footsteps were turned in the paths of peace. He attended a Presbyterian mission school on the reservation and there laid the foundation of his later education. In 1878-79 he accompanied the Ponca chief, Standing Bear, on his eastern tour and interpreted his presentation of the wrongs his people had suffered in the removal from their homes in South Dakota. During an investigation of the Ponca removal by a committee of the senate, La Flesche served again as interpreter and attracted the attention of the chairman, Senator Kirkwood of Iowa, by the impartial manner in which he performed his work.

When Senator Kirkwood became secretary of the interior in 1881 he called La Flesche to Washington and gave him a position in the office of Indian affairs, a position which he held for more than thirty years. During this time he continued with his education and in 1893 was graduated from the National university law school. He also became interested in the study of the history, religion and folklore of his tribe, the Omahas, and collected a great amount of material on the subject which was published by the bureau of American ethnology of the Smithsonian institution. He has made ethnological collections for a number of institutions of learning and is a member of several learned societies.

It is such Indians as Francis La Flesche who are the "noble red men," new style. Others of his kind are Dr. Charles A. Eastman of the Sioux, noted as a doctor, author and lecturer; the late Dr. Carlos Montezuma of the Apaches, another physician, writer and lecturer; Rev. Joseph K. Griffis (Chief Tahan) of the Kiowas, a minister and author; Dr. Sherman Coolidge of the Arapahoes, who holds a high position in the Episcopal church; Chauncey Yellow Robe of the Sioux, who recently initiated President Coolidge into his tribe and who is head of an Indian school at Rapid City, S. D.; Chief Red Fox (Skiuhushu) of the Blackfeet; Thomas L. Sloan of the Omahas and a host of others, all of whom have risen high in their respective professions. Most of them have been actively engaged in the fight waged for citizenship for their people and they have seen their efforts rewarded in recent years.

The struggle for citizenship has been a long one. As far back as 1817 provision was made in a treaty with the Cherokees by which any member of the tribe who desired might become a citizen of the United States. The United States Supreme court ruled that the Fourteenth amendment to the Constitution did not confer upon the Indian, by severing his tribal relations, the right to become a citizen. No general law provided a means for citizenship of all Indians until 1887 when congress passed the general allotment act, which provided for the allotment of lands in severalty and declared all Indians born within its limits who shall have complied with certain conditions, to be citizens of the United States. The broad citizenship provisions of this act were modified by congress when on May 8, 1906, it passed the Burke act. Since the enactment of this law the issuance of a fee simple patent has been the primary legal requirement for citizenship of Indians.

It rests with congress to determine when and how the tribal relation may be dissolved and the guardianship brought to an end and whether the emancipation shall at first be complete or only partial. The Supreme court of the United States has stated that "citizenship is not incompatible with tribal existence or continued guardianship, and so may be conferred without completely emancipating the Indians or placing them beyond the reach of congressional regulations adopted for their protection."

The progress of the Indian in modern times has been greatly aided by the United States board of Indian commissioners, first organized in 1869 under a law which provided for the appointment by the President of ten "men eminent for their intelligence and philanthropy to serve without pecuniary compensation." The present board is composed of George Vaux, Jr., Philadelphia, chairman; Warren K. Moorehead, Andover, Mass.; Samuel A. Eliot, Boston; Frank Knox, Manchester, N. H.; Daniel Smiley, Mohonk Lake, N. Y.; Hugh L. Scott, Princeton, N. J.; Clement S. Ucker, Savannah, Ga.; Flora Warren Seymour, Chicago; John J Sullivan, Philadelphia; Malcolm McDowell, Washington, secretary; and Earl Y. Henderson, assistant secretary. In the photograph above are shown (left to right) Samuel A. Eliot, Cambridge, Mass.; Gen. Hugh L. Scott, Princeton, N. J.; the late E. E. Ayer, Chicago; Mrs. Flora Warren Seymour, Chicago; Malcolm McDowell, secretary of the board, Washington, D. C., and Daniel Smiley, Mohonk Lake, N. Y.

Victims of Sleeping Sickness in England

More than 5,000 people have died from encephalitis lethargica, the so-called sleeping sickness, in England and Wales in the last five years, according to an announcement recently made by the minister of health. Health authorities in England are expressing alarm over the encaphalitis situation even though the number of cases has been reduced from 5,000 in 1924 to 2,267 in 1926. It has been estimated that about 30 per cent of all cases die, and that 70 per cent of the recoveries show various disease manifestations ranging from mild conduct disorder to complete paralysis. The London county council has made efforts to provide for the treatment of partly recovered victims, but this meets the needs of only a comparatively small group. It has been pointed out to the home secretary that there is need of providing an institution where children can receive special treatment, for its after effects are recognized as a contributing cause of delinquency. Active need of scientific research to combat this scourge is urged.

BABIES CRY FOR "CASTORIA"

Prepared Especially for Infants and Children of All Ages

Mother! Fletcher's Castoria has been in use for over 30 years as a pleasant, harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Teething Drops and Soothing Syrups. Contains no narcotics. Proven directions are on each package. Physicians everywhere recommend it.

The genuine bears signature of

Chas. H. Fletcher.

United States Ahead of World in Reading

Some self-confessed intellectuals question the high plane of the American's taste for reading matter but they cannot deny that the American reads more than the other peoples of the world. Government statistics disclose that there are 20,091 newspapers in the United States and that the country's book business last year was $130,000,000. The nation consumed 10,000,000 tons of paper last year. In face of these amazing figures none can complain that Americans do not read enough. If we don't all read classical literature all of the time we at least read and that is a healthful sign. A comparison of paper consumption reveals that more paper is required for the United States than for all of the rest of the world and that this country's consumption per capita is more than twice as great as that of the next largest user of paper. —Eangor Commercial.

The Wrath to Come

President Guth of Goucher college told at a tea in Baltimore an examination story with a moral.

"A student," he said, "took it easy through the year, and when examination time came he failed in all seven of his examinations.

"'Poor father!' he thought, 'and he so proud of me!'

"So the student hurried to the telegraph office and telegraphed to his sister:

"'Failed in all seven examinations. Prepare poor father.'

"His sister telegraphed back:

"'Father prepared. Prepare yourself.'"

Hens Out of Work

Thousands of hens have been thrown out of work as mothers in California, according to Farm and Fireside, which reports the biggest hatchery known has been found in Petaluma, Calif., where a single setting requires 1,800,000 eggs.

Cat

"How well you are looking, my dear."

"Thanks."

"Aren't you putting on weight?"

There IS no substitute for
KIRK'S ORIGINAL COCOA HARDWATER CASTILE
It lathers instantly in any water and removes stubborn dirt and grime. Leaves skin glowing!
JAMES S. KIRK & CO. CHICAGO

When Auntie's Ears Burned

London Hostess—I see they are bringing in a bill to prevent antiques from leaving the country.

Young Caller—How annoying! Just as Aunt Jane was making up her mind to go abroad.

It's so easy to give your dresses, hose or lingerie lovely new colors with

RIT

FAST DYES OR TINTS

Nothing New

Mrs. Wix—Do you still believe in the rod by way of developing children?

Professor—I believe it is the natural way to make them smart.

Pity the mortal who has ceased to chase at least one rainbow.—Forbes Magazine.

Your Kidneys

Must Function Properly for You to Be Well.

LATE hours, rich foods and stimulating drinks are all hard on our kidneys. If their action becomes sluggish, they do not thoroughly cleanse the blood of poisonous wastes.

Such impurities are apt to make one dull, tired and achy, with often a nagging backache, drowsy headaches and dizziness. A common warning of imperfect kidney action is scanty or burning excretions.

Thousands have learned the virtue of Doan's Pills, stimulant diuretic. 50,000 users have publicly recommended Doan's. Ask your neighbor!

DOAN'S PILLS 60c

STIMULANT DIURETIC TO THE KIDNEYS

Foster-Milburn Co. Mfg. Chem. Buffalo, N.Y.

Guard British Food Route

Imperialism has increased insect pests by cleaning jungles and planting crops, thus upsetting nature's equilibrium. One-fifth of man's tropical harvests are eaten by insects, and as half the British empire is in the tropics, and Dominion farms are in the front line of attack, Britain has established an emergency bureau to discover parasites that can do more than cruisers to keep the food route guarded.

BAYER

Genuine ASPIRIN

SAY "BAYER ASPIRIN" and INSIST!

Proved safe by millions and prescribed by physicians for

Colds Headache Neuritis Lumbago
Pain Neuralgia Toothache Rheumatism

DOES NOT AFFECT THE HEART

Safe

Accept only "Bayer" package which contains proven directions.

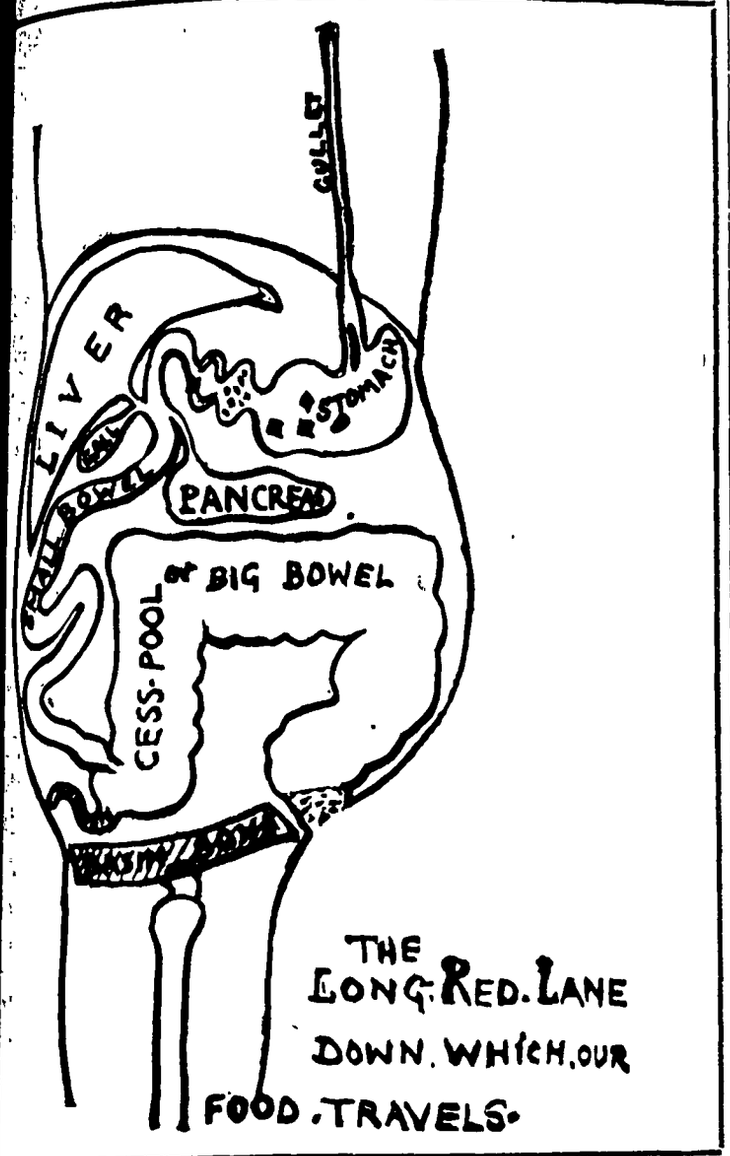
Handy "Bayer" boxes of 12 tablets
Also bottles of 24 and 100—Druggists.

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

OURSELF d YOUR BODY

By WILFRED T. GRENFELL

PARTMENT OF PUBLIC HEALTH



ET us suppose today that we are traveling along after our old friend, the banana, while the machinery is working. that wo have just heard esame,' have dashed through ds at the gate, and have heard snap behind us. We now find s in a marvelous place. It ke the subway, though it is nly about 20 feet long, and another closely guarded gate. ed, just like the rooms in the department, with endless and it has all along it things ok like hurdles, or obstacles ce. They really are put there nt our friend, the banana, and er building material from along so quickly that the n in the various departments e sides of the tube cannot get time to get in their work on it sses. Also, of course, the sur- ng wavy like the inside of the the central office, there is a al more frontage on the main nd so there can be many more which will have their front n the road. There is as much quare feet of surface.

at first our tube is pretty ut there are very sharp turns In fact, the whole tube has to d up in circles, like the road mountainside; otherwise you ot get it into the space. (See) It is beautifully arranged pported, being held to the per- lar spine by stout stretches of ties; and also all around it, here on the outside, is a beau- oiled membrane, so that how- uch the spine jumps about, gets hurt inside the tube.

blood vessels run down along and end in little hair canals around tens of thousands of yramids, and as these are all e hurdles everywhere, they are lons. In the pyramids are the g canals, and the material is passed through into them, and away to the place where it is . All the fats that we use, as you before, go directly by pri- anals up into the great big ear the heart, and so straight e blood. If we eat, too much surplus is stored up, mostly front of the belly, and we have it around everywhere.

along the tube by which we are ng and which, by the way, peo- l 'the small intestine,' we shall millions of little factories. They ke little holes. The little doors everywhere—some single ones, n groups. Out of them comes of juice. They supply drink, , but the drink has very impor- hings in it, one of which acts e wood ash that the women in lor get by burning wood, and they use to boil up with seal any old fat to make soap. As er of fact, that is exactly one that these little factories (or , as some people call them) do. help make the fats into soap. urse, you cannot actually boil ng inside the intestines, so they o make a clever chemical stuff makes soap in the cool. All marvelous chemicals have long and I am afraid you will never ber them, so we will not bother hem now.

u know how easily soap sinks lings. That is why it is so good shing the dirt off your hands. ig fat cells cannot go through membranes, so all the fat you s to be made into soap before get through the walls into the . But, most wonderful of all, t gets through the walls it is no longer soap. If it stayed soap of course it would get back through the thin wall again. But hidden right in the wall itself lurks a ferment which makes the soap back into fat just as it is getting out into the canal.

"I didn't tell you that in the first part of our tube there are offices especially for sending messages, like a secret police. Directly the big gates open and some supplies come along, messengers are at once posted into the blood pipes near by, and are hurried off to warn the drug shops and factories for chemicals.

"There is a rest period, as you know, between meals. But this bile work is a drainage system, and so must go on all the time. The result is that it must have a tank somewhere to collect in, just like the drainage tank in the garden. This is called the gall bladder. Unfortunately, sometimes the bile dries into little stones, and these get blocked into the pipe, and won't let the bile out, and then the whole body turns yellow. This trouble is called jaundice. The red corpuscles cannot rest up to die, or choose exactly where to die. Like us, most have to go on working, while others are dying and being buried all the time. The liver is their main cemetery. The spleen, which looks like a small liver, is fastened near the stomach, is an overflow cemetery, as well as a factory for baby Reds. Here ends one life and here begins another. The liver is really a huge warehouse and an exchange store for everything, especially sugar, and electricity, and red corpuscles.

"Now to go back to our tube. It is surrounded like all the rest with muscle cells arranged in layers around it, and also in long battalions all along it. They go on contracting, wave after wave, and driving the food material over the obstacles and between the pyramids, until at last what has not leaked into the lymph canals and blood pipes comes to the gate at the other end. They do it without our telling them, or even knowing about it. They 'work while we sleep.'

"There is one thing I want to tell you which is very interesting and important. If you eat too much meat or proteids you cannot store them up on the outside like you can fats. Storing up fat is bad enough, but it is much worse if you send too much meat along. It gets changed into real poisons, which make you feel heavy and give you headaches, and poison even the canal walls themselves, and so make them brittle, and they break.

"Now we have come to the gate at the other end of this small intestine. It is called a valve, and it is a very large one. Once through that and we shall find ourselves in a large tube, about eight feet long. The valve is an odd one. It is like this. Whatever goes through it can never get back. "Where is our banana now?

"I must say one thing about this last eight feet, or large intestine. Even there, nothing is wasted. Of course it is really the cesspool of the body. But it is mighty useful all the same. To begin with, it is very usefully wrapped around all the delicate parts of which we have been speaking, forming great big cushions which keep everything nicely and firmly packed and thoroughly warm in our bellies. A perfectly healthy person should empty the big bowel as regularly as clockwork, every morning and every evening. If you do not feel this warning, something is wrong. Go anyhow, and wait on nature. To stay constipated is to risk poisons getting into your system which should be cast out."

(© by the Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Best Fertilizer Less Expensive

Increasing Demand Has Resulted in Higher Concentrated Mixtures.

The growing demand for good fertilizers has resulted in the production of highly concentrated mixtures which in the end are less expensive to use.

"The tendency to use high-analysis fertilizers has resulted in such mixtures as 36-6-6, 30-5-5, 18-6-6, and 16-8-8, which are highly concentrated compounds," says S. K. Jackson, fertility agronomist at the North Carolina State college. "Since the price of fertilizers is based on the cost of materials and the general expense of mixing, bagging, storage, commission and freight, it is less expensive to buy such mixtures than the old low-grade materials. One ton of a 16-8-8 mixture contains the same amount of plant food as two tons of an 8-4-4 mixture. When a farmer buys two tons of the 8-4-4 goods, he pays expense charges for two tons of a mixture compared with expense charges of only one ton when he buys a 16-8-8 mixture. Then, too, the high-grade mixtures are made from only the very best of materials which furnish plant food in a readily available form."

Several Questions Arise.

Mr. Jackson states that a number of questions have arisen regarding the use of these highly concentrated mixtures. Farmers want to know the effect upon germination of seeds and the condition of the fertilizers when mixed and stored. All of these problems are now being investigated by the federal bureau of soils and the agricultural experiment station. This work has been done in North Carolina for two years and the results indicate that these highly concentrated mixtures may reasonably find a place in fertilizer practice. More facts are needed, however, as to the effect on crop yields and the investigations are still in progress.

Use Various Soil Types.

Most of the research work with these mixtures is being done in co-operation with farmers of the state. The various soil types are being used and the crops which are important in a given locality are being tested. Mr. Jackson believes that the high-analysis goods will eventually come into more general use.

Small Amounts of Salt Not Dangerous for Hen

In the mineral mixture for poultry, Professor Bittenbender, Iowa College of Agriculture, uses about one part of salt in ten parts of the total. This means that with 10 per cent of minerals in the mash (the hens consume about equal parts of scratch and mash) about ½ per cent of the total ration would be salt.

In this connection you will be interested in knowing about the recent work done by Prof H. H. Mitchell, L. E. Card and G. G. Carman of the University of Illinois. They find by actual experiments that the presence of small amounts of salt in feeds for poultry is not so dangerous or toxic as has commonly been believed. Their experiments showed that as high as 8 per cent salt in the ration of birds nine to twenty-one weeks of age was without "apparently detrimental effects."

It appears, then, that chickens are like pigs; they can stand much more salt than a good many folks think.

Great Dessert Delicacy

The strawberry is the most widely cultivated of the small fruits, being grown to some extent in every state in the Union. It is heralded far and wide as the greatest dessert delicacy one could wish. To mention strawberries arouses the thirst of the palate, and a whiff of the pleasant aroma from the freshly picked fruit excites the appetite. It is little wonder that this king of the small fruits is so widely grown.

Agricultural Notes

Sheep are gradually coming back.

* * *

Coal ashes have practically no value as a plant food.

* * *

Keep the manure hauled out if you would hold the flies down in the summer.

* * *

Some weed seeds can live as long as twenty-five years under favorable conditions.

* * *

Most farmers should value their time at from one-half a cent to one cent a minute.

* * *

Buckwheat will do well on the same land two years in succession if the land is reasonably fertile.

* * *

On soils long under cultivation highest yields are possible only when rotation and the use of fertilizers are practiced together.

* * *

One of the most profitable forms of permanent improvement on a farm is to drain the low, wet places in otherwise entirely tillable fields.

* * *

Loafing hens in the farm flock eat up the profits the busy biddies make. Good poultrymen keep them just long enough to consign them to a poultry dealer.

Camel

The cigarette you can smoke with real enjoyment

If all cigarettes were as good as Camel you wouldn't hear anything about special treatments to make cigarettes good for the throat. Nothing takes the place of choice tobaccos.

© 1927, R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, Winston-Salem, N. C.

Of Course

Sue—Is Madge well dressed?

Prue—No, she is—er—well—half dressed.

Don't Be Silly

Rod—Are you married, my man?

Bum—Do you suppose I could be loafing if I wasn't single?

He Knows

"What's a superman, pop?"

"A woman, son."—Pathfinder Magazine.

Ask for

POST TOASTIES

They stay crisp in milk or cream

So deliciously seasoned—these crisp and golden flakes of corn

Made from the hearts of tender white corn, exquisitely seasoned, Post Toasties have the true delicate flavor of the corn. And their unequalled flavor is sealed in lasting crispness by the special toasting process of the Postum Company. Order a package of these refreshing flakes from your grocer. Note how the golden flakes crackle as you pour them into the bowl. Now add milk or cream, and taste their crisp flavor and goodness. Be sure that you get the real Post Toasties, the flakes that come crisp and ready to serve in the red and yellow, wax-wrapped package.

Post Health Products

© 1927, P. Co., Inc.

POSTUM COMPANY, INC., BATTLE CREEK, MICH.

Fresh Youthful Skin Maintained by Cuticura

Daily use of Cuticura Soap, with touches of Cuticura Ointment when required, will do much to prevent pore-clogging, irritating rashes, roughness and other unwholesome conditions of the skin.

Soap 25c. Ointment 25 and 50c. Talcum 25c. Sold everywhere. Sample each free. Address: "Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. B 2, Malden, Mass."

Cuticura Shaving Stick 25c.

Men sometimes become wiser as they grow older, but they seldom become less foolish.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM

Removes Dandruff—Stops Hair Falling
Restores Color and Beauty to Gray and Faded Hair
60c. and $1.00 at Druggists.
Hiscox Chem. Wks. Patchogue, N. Y.

FLORESTON SHAMPOO—Ideal for use in connection with Parker's Hair Balsam. Makes the hair soft and fluffy. 50 cents by mail or at druggists. Hiscox Chemical Works, Patchogue, N. Y.

UGLY FRECKLES

Positively removed by Dr. O. H. Berry Co.'s Freckle Ointment. Your dealer or by mail 65c. Booklet Free. Dr. O. H. Berry Co., 2675 Mich. Ave. Chicago.

Hancock County

FAIR

BRITT

IOWA

SEPT. 13, 14, 15, 16

SEPTEMBER 13—ENTRY DAY

3 BIG DAYS 3
BIG NIGHTS

Big Livestock & Agricultural Exposition -- Boy's and Girls Club Show

Fast Ball Games

Forest City vs Leland

Corwith vs Woden

Winners Play Last Day

FAST HARNESS RACES—2:22, 2:18 2:14 Trot; 2:22, 2:18, 2:12 Pace.

THRILLING PARACHUTE DROP EACH AFTERNOON AND AIRPLANE STUNTS

By Ralph Parcaut and His Flying Circus

Music By Britt, Woden, and Duncan Bands

NIGHT FAIR Program by The FOUR HORSEMEN, that Popular Radio Quartet, don't fail to hear 'em

OLD TIME FIDDLERS CONTEST
—Wednesday Night—

GRAND DISPLAY OF FIREWORKS
Thursday and Friday Nights

Big Free Attractions Each Night

Bowery Dance

High Class Orchestra

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF HANCOCK COUNTY, IOWA

L. A ANDREW, STATE SUPERINTENDENT OF BANKING PLAINTIFF

vs.

STATE SAVINGS BANK OF KLEMME, IOWA DEFENDANT

NOTICE OF TIME AND PLACE OF HEARING ON APPLICATION TO SELL NOTE AND MORTGAGE.

To the Creditors and Depositors of the State Savings Bank of Klemme, owa, and to All Other Persons Whom It May Concern:-

You and each of you are hereby notified that an application has been filed with the Clerk of the District Court of Hancock County, Iowa asking authority to sell and assign to F A Arnold a certain note and mortgage given by the Wellemeyer Company of Klemme, Iowa for the sum of Ten Thousand Dollars to L. A Andrew, as Superintendent of Banking and Receiver of the State Savings Bank of Klemme, Iowa; said mortgage covering the following described property, to-wit:

Lots 5, 6, 7 and 8 in Block 7, Original Town of Klemme, Iowa Also Lots 4, 7, 8, 9 and 10 in Block 1; Lots 1, 4, 5, and 6 in Block 4; Lots 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11 and 12 in Block 2; and tracts 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5; all located in Morningside Addition to the Town of Klemme, Iowa.

For further particulars see petition on file.

That a Judge of this Court has made an order on said application, fixing September 12th, 1927 at two o'clock P. M as the time for said hearing and the Court House at Forest City. Iowa as the place thereof

You are further notified that any one interested in the settlement of the receivership of said Bank may appear a the time and pace stated above and object to said order being granted and take such further proceedings in the matter as may be proper in the premises; and that said Judge, at said time and place, will make such order in the matter as may appear to him to be just and proper

L A ANDREW,
Receiver State Savings Bank of Klemme, Iowa
By WICHMAN and HASTINGS,
His Attorneys.
(Publish Sept. 8. 1927.)

Ell Township News

(Special Times Reporter)

Mr. Alfred Josten had his tonsils removed at Belmond last week He is reported as getting along fine

Mr and Mrs Arthur Brouwer and Miss Golda Moberly and Mr Alvin Goll attended the Iowa State Fair a few days last week

Mr Peter Josten and Rev. Calvin Grosshuesch went to Sutton, Nebraska, to attend the Synod, which meets there this year School opened Monday morning with thirteen pupils enrolled. Miss Ethel Wellemeyer is the teacher.

Marvin Barz, who fell with a horse and injured his foot quite seriously last week is getting along very nicely at this writing

Mr. Herman Buentenbach and son Arthur of Davenport arrived at the Edd Buentenbach home Saturday for a few days visit

School started in District No 7 on Monday with Miss Stella Bock as teacher This is Miss Bock's second year of teaching in this school. 22 pupils are enrolled now

Mr and Mrs C. J. Will and family and Mr. and Mrs. F H. GGreiman and family visited at the home of Mr and Mrs. Werner Schlawin Sunday.

Emma Kotheubeutal who underwent an operation for appendicitis some time ago is getting along very nicely and is expected to be home in a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Thiemann and family left last Friday for Lane, South Dakota, for a visit with relatives. They are expected home in a few days.

Mrs. Elko Buss, Edgar, Gail and Alvina, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Buss and family and Mr and Mrs. Sylvan Johnson and family all attended a large family re-union tt Marshalltown last Thursday. A large picnic dinner was enjoyed at noon.

Many young folks of the neighborhood enjoyed a picnic at the Werner Schlawin home on Monday evening. The evening was spent with dnacing and at a late hour refreshmets were served after which everyone departed, having had a very nice time.

Office:—
Masonic Bldg.
GARNER, IOWA.

Phones:—
Office
Res.

Dr. E. H. Phillips
OSTEOPATHIC PHYSICIAN

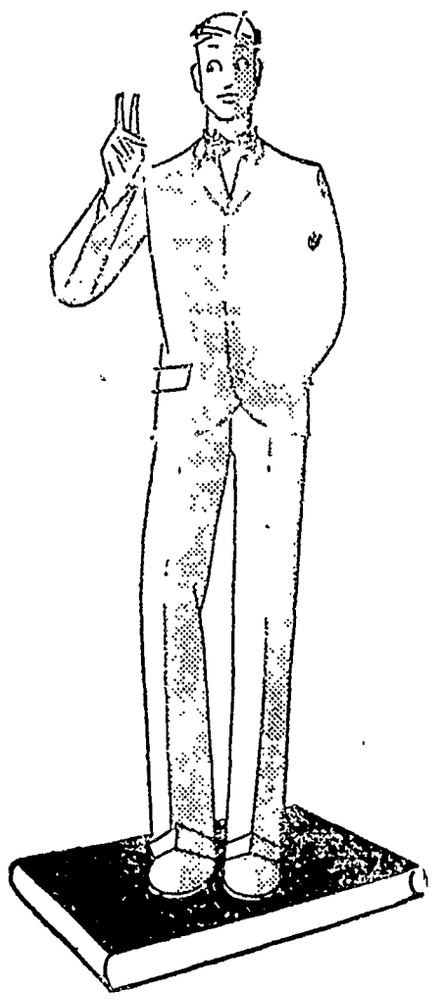
Physiotherapy, including Osteopathic treatment, chemistry, surgical diathermy, radiant heat, high frequency, chlorine gas and auto-condensation.

UNDER GOVERNMENT SUPERVISION

Fire Shows No Mercy

Every year, fire destroys millions of dollars of property,—much of the personal possessions which might have been saved if kept in secure places. It is not wise to keep stocks, bonds, deeds, wills, jewelry or other valuables in an office safe or at home, at the mercy of fire and thieves. Boxes in our fire and burglar-proof safe deposit vaults may be rented from $1.00 per year up, and we will welcome the oppotunity to serve you.

First National Bank
KLEMME, IOWA.



Even Our Oxfords Are Different

Braeburn Royal Oxfords

are of a fine worsted cheviot, skillfully woven into designs that are unlike any you will see elsewhere. They will wear well, make a splendid appearance. We have them in plain and decorated—at forty dollars.

Oxfords sound the new note in color for Fall.

BraeBurn
Smart Styled Clothes For University Men
Tailored At Rochester
$37.50 $42.50

PATTON BROTHERS
9 and 11 South Federal Ave.
Where a dollar does its duty
Mason City, Iowa

Liberty News Notes

(Special Times Reporter)

Mrs. Albert Lange is visiting relatives in New York.

Miss Lizzie Kurtz has been attending the Iowa State Fair

Walter Bredlow and family were guests at the Elmer Bredlow home near Hayfield Sunday.

The No. 7 School started Monday with Annabelle Carlson as teacher. They are having school in the old building now until the new one is completed.

Clarence Haberkamp, Reuben Lemke and their friends attended the fair at Algona Tuesday.

A very heavy rain fell Tuesday afternoon in this vicinity which pleased most every one.

Oscar Carlson has rented the old John Miller farm for the coming year

Mr and Mrs Oscar Carlson, Irene and "Buzz" visited at Goodell Sunday

Mr and Mrs Will Lemke and family shopped in Mason City Friday

Aaron Stromer is now farming for himself in Liberty township Many of his friends are wondering who the lucky "one" will be He has recently purchased a car load of cattle to feed this winter

Mr. and Mrs Ed. Schoenwetter entertained the George Schoenwetter family Sunday.

Fern Stille is teaching the No 9 school this year. This is her first year of teaching.

Mabel Schaefer started her first year of teaching at the No 8 school Monday.

Charley Smith and family of Mason City visited at the Elmer Schaefer home Sunday and a tthe home of Elvina Griffen Monday

Mabel Griffen started to high school Monday at Klemme. She will stay with her grandmother, Mrs Schlawin this year.

Emil Pringnitz and family drove over to Fort Dodge Sunday and visited with Mrs Pringnitz' sister, Miss Myrtle Schoenwetter.

Mrs John Lemke visited her sister, Minnie Blumer, in Jweell from Friday until Sunday when Mr Lemke went down and got her.

Quentin Still has rented the Will Stille farm for next year This farm is the one formerly rented by Harvey Stille

A birthday party was given in honor of Miss Irene Carlson Sunday evening Many of her friends were present and a good time was enjoyed by all

Miss Stella Webner is staying at the Clyde Marshall home with her friend, Dorothy, during the absence of Dorothy's folks

Mr A Carolus, Sr returned last Thursday from Iowa City where he has been for several weeks in the State Hospital. He is much improved in health and is able to be around as usual.

Mr and Mrs Clyde Marshall and Mr and Mrs Herb Marshall and daughter Irene, left Saturday morning about one o'clock for Mason City Illinois and other points for a two weeks visit with relatives and old friends

A meeting of the booth committee of the ladies of Liberty Township Farm Bureau was held Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs W G Lenz They made plans for the booth which is to be put on at the Hancock County Fair

Mr. and Mrs. Otto Lemke were visiting relatives and friends at Whittemore Sunday They also visited the Grotto at West Bend and Wesley Otto states that the corn fields and pastures are very dry around there.

Quite a few young people started to the Klemme High School this fall from this vicinity Dorothy Carolus, Robert Tanner, Francis Tanner, Mildred Gast, Lorreane Lemke, Ethel Lemke, Bernerd Pringnitz and Mabel Griffen all entering the Freshman class.

Last Sunday was Mrs. Bredlow's birthday so her daughter, Mrs. Herman Gast, had a surprise on her and invited in Mr and Mrs. Griewe and dauger, of Klemme, John Griewe and daughter, Frank Bredlow and family, Albert Borchers and wife, and the Aug. Kropp children for dinner They all had a very pleasant afternoon long to be remembered and all wished Mrs Bredolw many more birthdays like this one

A large picnic was held at the Methodist Camp at Clear Lake last Sunday when the Roy Schaefer and family, Emil Beier and wife, Emil Blumer and family, Ben Reemer, wife and daughter, Ben Ridder and family, Harold and Walter Ridder, Mr and Mrs. Fred Gates and daughters, Ed. Schaefer and family, and August Ridder and wife from Liberty township and Klemme, and Mr and Mrs. Reemer, Harry Quintus and Horace Merril of Garner, drove over after services in the morning and ate a big picnic dinner andspen t a social afternoon together.

The ladies of Liberty Township held a very interesting meeting Monday afternoon at the Rhine Schlawin home. Various things were taken up and during the business hour it was discussed whether or not a booth was to be put on at the county fair. Being brought to a vote it was decided to put one on. A committee of five was chosen: Mrs John Goll, Mrs. Rhine Schlawin, Mrs W. G. Lenz, Miss Frieda Schuld and Miss Sadie Schlawin. These are to over-see the planning of the booth, etc.

Avery Twp. News

(Special Times Reporter)

Frederick Groh is helping with the work at the D A. Marshall farm.

Henry Helps shelled some corn Mart Bachman Thursday.

Ben Swalve was a caller at the Peter Trampel home Tuesday.

Mrs Geo Griggs was a caller at the John Bachman home Wednesday afternoon.

Johnnie Trampel and Julius and Willie Groh were Sunday visitors at the Will Johnson home.

Some from this community attended the Iowa State Fair at Des Moines last week

Robert and Dorothea Marshall and friend Stella Webner spent Monday at the D A. Marshall home

Mr and Mrs Clyde Marshall spent Friday evening at the D. A Marshall and Herb Marshall home.

Ted Dutheridge and Ernest Helps are enjoying a visit from relatives from Illinois.

Loue Knoke trucked some hogs to Mason Cty Saturday for Clarence Bachman.

Elmer Bachman and Henry Beek spent Sunday afternoon with John P. Trampel.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bachman and daughter, Maxine, were visitors with relatives at Ventura Sunday.

Hamo Beek and son Henry of Austin, Minn, arrived Sunday for a week's stay in this locality.

Mrs Tom Roths helped Mrs. H. Busse cook for threshers one day last week.

Mrs Ernest Helps and visiting sister and baby were Monday afternoon visitors at the Clarence Bachman home.

Jesse Chase who has been helping with the work this summer at the home of his brother, has returned to his home in Garner.

Miss Mildred Smith has returned to her home at Belmond after spending a couple of weeks with her sister, Mrs. Tom Roths and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Swanson and children were Sunday evening callers at the Peter Trampel and Ted Dutheridge homes.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Trampel and family attended the Harvest Home Festival that was held at Kamrar, Iowa, Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Marshall and Mr. and Mrs. Herb Marshall and daughter, Irene, left Saturday morning for different parts of Illinois to visit with relatives and friends.

Peter Trampel and son John were business callers at Ventura Mon.

D A Marshall and son Gilman were business callers at Mason City Monday.

Mrs. Will Baohman and daughter, Lela, were callers at the Clarence Bachman home Saturday afternoon

Ted Dutheridge and Will Johnson took some hogs to Mason City for Verner Nelson Saturday.

Avery-Twin Lakes News

(Special Times Reporter)

..Miss. Stella. Bock. visited, Miss Haupt's school last Wednesday. ...

Raymond Barz spent Sunday afternoon visiting with Verner Priebe.

..Robert Greiman was hauling tile last week. .....

..Mr. Emil Lau and Leo Olish were at Mason City one day last week. ..

..Frances and Franklyn. Buseman went fishing last week one day. ..

..Mr. and Mrs. Dick Swalvo and Mrs David Schwichtenberg were at Ackley Friday of last week. .....

..Mr. Henry Buseman was a caller at the Burr Church home Thursday forenoon. .....

..The heavy rain which fell Tuesday was a great benefit to crops and was appreciated.

..Mrr. Fred Etchen vsited with her sister, Mrs. Rhine. Schlawin near Garner last Wednesday. .....

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Priebe and family were visiting at the Henry Josten home Sunday evening.

..Miss Pearl Johnson spent Wednesday and Thursday of last week at the Dick Swalve home.. Miss Johnson will teach this year near Ventura where she taught last year. ..

..The North Iowa Grain Co. have been doing some trucking in this vicinity last week. .....

. Miss Stella Thieman was at the Herman Priebe home a few days of last week. .....

..Several from this vicinity attended the free movies at Klemmo last Thursday evening. .....

..Mr. and Mrs. Dick. Swalve and family visited at the John Swalve home near Titonka Sunday. .....

. The Frank Sandrey children visited the Henry Buseman children last Saturday afternoon. .....

..Miss Mildred Willer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hans Willer from east of Klemme, was visiting last week at the Henry Buseman home. ....

..Gerald, son of Mr. and Mrs. Chris Back. returned home Saturday after having spent a week at the Henry Church home. .....

..Miss Carrie Swalve, Miss Leona Buseman and Miss Mildred Willer visited Miss Haupt's school last Friday afternoon. .....

. Mr. and Mrs. John Watermiller and three sons of Meservey were visitors at the Dick Swalve home Friday evening. .....

Mrs. Herman Priebe helped Mrs. Henry Josten with the work Monday. Mrs. Josten returned home Saturday.

Carl Beier, who for some time has been working at the Edwin Josten farm, quit work to help his father move to Minnesota. John Wessels is taking his place. .....

..Lorraine, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Tanner, who has been spending most of the summer with her grandmother, Mrs. Emma Schwichtenberg, is still here and is attending the school which Miss Kessler of Belmond teaches. .....

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Buseman of this community and Mrs. W. F. Pavey and Wayne and Juanita of Klemme, left Friday morning. for .McGregor. and, also. ta. take in the scenery around there.. Ben Coobs helped with the chores during Mr. Buseman's absence. .....

Announcements received here recently by relatives, front. Mr. and Mrs. Roy Jennison state the birth of a baby daughter, Mardell Mae. Mrs. Jennison was before her marriage, Miss Vera. Schwichtenberg. of this community and who now resides at Chicago. .....

Klemme News

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Stille, Donald and Elvira, who are on their way to California, took in the wonders of the Black Hills and the Yellowstone on the way They expect to reach their destination in time for Miss Elvira to attend colege

Frank and Donald Gibbs returned Friday afternoon from their hike to Indiana and back. They were gone about two weeks and covered around 2,000 miles—riding most of the way. They visited a number of relatives in Indiana and Ohio.

FOR SALE OR RENT—a well improved 160 acre farm, 2½ miles east of Hayfield, 2½ miles west of Miller. Will sell reasonable, small down payment and low interest, or will rent. C. F. Keraus, Klemme, Iowa. 2tp

Miss Marie Blank is working in the dry goods department of the Wellemeyer Store, taking the place of her sister, Mrs Usher, who has moved to Clarion with her husband who has a position there in a store Miss Blank shows real ability as a clerk.

Mrs. R. A. Jorgenson and Mrs J N Day both had their tonsils removed Monday morning at the Mercy hospital, Mason City. They were able to come home Tuesday. Hillary GGreiman had a like operation Tuesday morning and came home the following day All are making a good recovery.

Rev. Calvin Grosshuesch and Mr Pete Josten left Monday in the former's car for Sutton, Nebraska, to attend a Reformed Church Synod. A stop at Yankton, South Dakota and again at Meno, South Dakota for a short visit with relatives, had been planned as a part of the trip. They expect to be back in Klemme the fore part of next week

A farewell party was given Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Poort one evening last week and their friends presented them with an electric coffee percolator. Those who attended were Mr. and Mrs Ciff Swartz, A. R. White and family, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Helps, Mr. and Mrs Harlan Tries, Mr. and Mrs. Emory Schaefer, Mrs. Henry Griffen, Alvina Griffen and Mabel, Leppo Blank and daughter, Grace and Ralph Larsen. A good time was enjoyed by all.

Mr. and Mrs. Harlan Tries and son were Clear Lake visitors Sunday.

THE NEW MENACE

Hitch-hiking its way towards the nation's corncrib, the European corn borer is threatening to destroy crops to the value of billions of dollars and chase skyward the cost of production. If it worms its way into the Wabash and Mississippi Valleys, it can readily float downstream, spread out and become more difficult to control. Proper cooperation of all concerned will, no doubt, enable us to continue to grow corn profitably—Agricultural Bulletin, American Bankers Association.

For Electric Service

CALL 39 GARNER, IOWA

HOUSE WIRING—MOTORS—
LAMPS—
APPLIANCES—

—ALSO A FULL LINE OF RADIOS AND RADIO ACCESSORIES——

Prouty Electric Shop

GARNER — IOWA

HAM and BACON

SALE!

Saturday, Sept. 10

Armour's Star Brand SMOKED Ham

Picnic Hams

Bacon

At Special Prices

Klemme Meat Market

BAYSIDE

AMUSEMENT PARK
——Clear Lake, Iowa——

Ride 'em Cowboy

GEORGE V. ADAMS COMPANY ——Will Present——

Manmouth Rodeo
Hippodrome Races
Indian Pow-Wow

— AT BAYSIDE AMUSEMENT PARK —

Saturday - Sunday - Monday

SEPTEMBER 10, 11 and 12

——Each Afternoon at 2:30 O'clock——
NO EVENING PERFORMANCES

150 WILD HORSES. 30 LONG-HORNED TEXAS STEERS
50 COW BOYS and COW GIRLS

— Thrills — Spills — Excitement — Entertainment —

Miss Marie Gibson of Hevre, Montanna, Miss Esther Hughes and other Cow Girls will do fancy trick riding, appear in hippodrome races, relay aces and other daring stunts.

This will be one of the greatest thrillers ever staged at Bayside Park. Daring boys and girls from the West in death-defying feats with broncos and steers.

Admission—Adults 75c, Children 25c

Choicest

FOODS

Folks, there couldn't be any eating place, no matter how expensive or how flossy, give you a better selection of high grade foods than we do.

And Oh! How we do cook 'em!

Drop in for dinner or a lunch tomorrow.

DELICIOUS—
Try our ice cream, a number of flavors, ice cold pop, and malt.

A full line of Cigars and Tobacco, at—

Busch Cafe

FINE FOOD FOLKS

There's a difference in the way vegetables, meats, etc. are cooked and you will recognize it the moment you eat them here.

We serve only the very best the market affords, all well cooked.

As with everything, we think the best is none too good for our patrons.

Drop in for lunch or any meal anytime, at—

Crystal Cafe

Conrad Quandt, Prop.

LYRIC

Theatre
—GARNER, IOWA—

Presents The Following

Friday and Saturday
September 9-10
The year's greaest Melodrama
"BEAU GESTE"
With Roland Colman
—Comedy—
"MOVIE LAND"
Admission 15c, 40c

Tuesday and Wednesday
September 13-14
A Peter B Kyne Story—
"THE GOLDEN STRAIN"
Cowird or here in the wide open spaces?
—Comedy—
"LYIN TAMER"
Admission 10-25c

Farm

Loans

5%

Isaac Sweigard

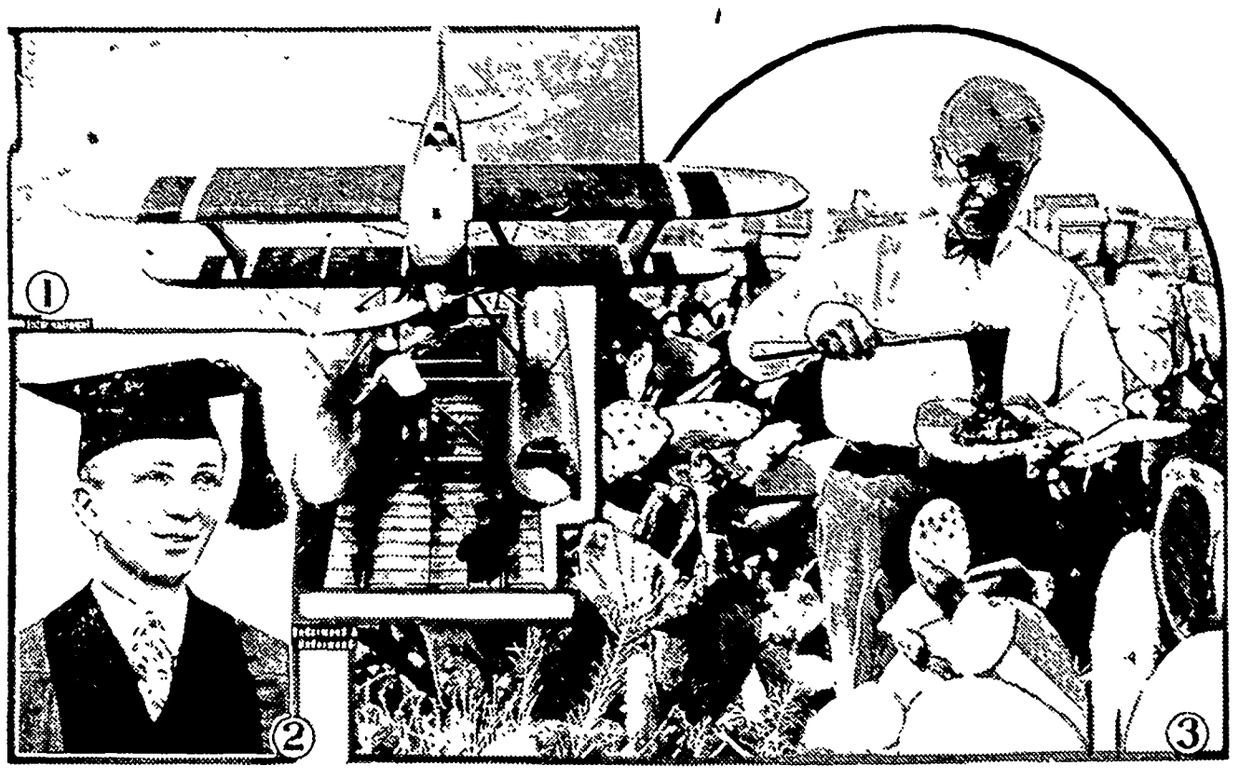
Garner Iowa

PIANOS

Players & Grand
New and
Second-Hand

M. N. ZEIGER

Jewelry & Optical Goods
GARNER, IOWA



1—Lieut. Al Williams' mystery plane that may win the Schneider cup races at Venice. 2—Clarence Chamberlin, transatlantic aviator, in cap and gown after receiving honorary certificate in engineering from Iowa State college, his alma mater. 3—Dr. John C. Wichmann of Los Angeles who says he has discovered a method of making rubber from cactus plants.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

G. O. P. Men in Legion Plan to Boom Pershing for President of U. S.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

POLITICAL leaders in Washington have learned that there is a full-fledged movement within the American Legion to promote the nomination of General Pershing for the Presidency by the Republican party. The general is to go to France on the Leviathan as the guest of the Legion, and it is said that influential members of the organization who are also influential Republicans will be aboard with him and will take the opportunity to arrange the details of the plan. Then, at the Legion's convention in Paris, the boom is to be sprung as the climax of a series of demonstrations. It will be easy to keep the former commander of the A. E. F. in the limelight over there, and the boom will be brought back to the United States all developed, according to the plans of its promoters.

Ever since General Pershing returned from France after the war he has been intermittently boomed for the Presidency. In 1919 a movement for his nomination in the 1920 convention was started, but it failed to develop sufficient momentum to place him actively in the field in the preconvention contest. His name figured occasionally in the discussions during the convention, which finally selected Warren G. Harding.

If General Pershing should become a serious contender for the nomination next year he would be the oldest candidate in the field. He will be sixty-seven years of age on September 13. Frank O. Lowden will be sixty-seven next January. Charles E. Hughes was sixty-five last April, while Charles G. Dawes is sixty-two and Herbert Hoover fifty-three.

Vice President Dawes and Secretary Hoover are still leaving their booms in the hands of their friends, both having said they were not seeking the nomination. Mr. Lowden, on the other hand, is out in the open as a contender and has appointed as his preconvention manager Fred Starek, former director of the war finance corporation. Just before President Coolidge left Yellowstone park he was visited by a party of Wyoming editors, nearly all of whom told him they and their communities favored the nomination of Hoover because he helped frame the Coolidge policies, is a good administrator and, they believed, would safely carry on the present national prosperity.

Reports have been current in official circles in the summer capital in Rapid City that Secretary Hoover will offer his resignation to President Coolidge within the next few months and devote his energies to winning delegates. Campaign committees for Hoover are ready to spring into existence in many states and headquarters will be opened in Washington and directed by his present secretary, George Ackerson.

DEMOCRATIC leaders hear that there is a prospect that many states, especially in the South, will send uninstructed delegations to the Democratic national convention for the purpose of avoiding, so far as possible, the bitter factional strife that characterized the convention of 1924. Some of the backers of William G. McAdoo in that contest are among those responsible for the uninstructed delegation policy. Their original thought was to bring about harmony by agreeing in conference at convention time upon the nomination of some one other than either McAdoo or Gov. Al Smith of New York.

EARLY among the President's callers after his return to the Black Hills was Senator Wesley Jones of Washington. He is chairman of the senate merchant marine committee, and after his talk with the Chief Executive he declared himself in favor of keeping the American merchant marine afloat and insisted that if it were necessary to accomplish this the government would continue to operate the fleet and would provide funds for replacement. He said he agreed with the President's view that the government should get out of the business, but did not think the United States should get off the seas. "It appears to me now," said the senator, "that unless we continue to operate the ships that is what will happen. Other plans of placing the American shipping on a parity with foreign shipping by a subsidy such as exists in most countries have failed to enlist the support of congress. It appears that we can do nothing through a subsidy to help private concerns engaged in shipping. Therefore, the situation is plain to me the government must continue to operate the ships and vast sums must be expended to keep our fleet abreast of competition."

Senator Jones told the President that in his opinion it would be wise to call a special session of the senate in October for the consideration of the cases of Senator-elect Smith of Illinois and Senator-elect Vare of Pennsylvania. He said the pressure of business made this advisable so that legislation should not get jammed. Senator Reed of Missouri, chairman of the senate campaign funds investigation committee, while in Chicago to attend the funeral of J. Ogden Armour, issued a call for a meeting of that committee in Chicago on September 7 to take up the matter of destruction of the Pennsylvania ballots. He said there had been no developments that called for further consideration of the case of Smith by the committee.

TRANSOCEANIC flights, successful and otherwise, are becoming matters of almost daily occurrence. W. S. Brock and E. F. Schlee in the plane Pride of Detroit made a fine flight from Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, to Croydon, the London airport, and then continued their journey to Munich, to Belgrade and to Constantinople in their projected flight around the world in what they hope will be record-breaking time. Another pair of flyers started from London, Ont., for London, England, but were turned back by bad weather. Charles A. Levine, tired of waiting for Drouhin, his French pilot, jumped into his Columbia plane at Paris and flew alone to Croydon where he just barely managed to make a safe landing. The British airmen were astonished by his nervy performance. Levine selected Capt. W. C. Hinchcliffe, an English war ace, to pilot the Columbia back to America but afterward said he might change his mind and fly eastward.

The spectacular flight of the week was that of Capt. Leslie Hamilton and Col. F. F. Minchin of England, with Princess Lowenstein Wertheimer as passenger, from Upavon, England, across the Atlantic to Ottawa, Canada.

The princess, who financed the flight, is sixty-one years old and has been a licensed pilot for thirteen years, usually flying under her maiden name, Lady Anne Saville. Minchin and Hamilton are old-timers at the flying game.

RENEWED hope that Paul Redfern, who disappeared in his flight from Georgia to Brazil, might be found came with the report that a plane was seen two days after his start, over the delta of the Orinoco river in Venezuela. It was said to be moving southeasterly, and later another report from a government telegraph operator at Ciudad Bolivar said a plane had been sighted flying over the village of Macarieto. It was believed Redfern might have landed safely and was making his way out to civilization.

DESPERATE fighting in China took place between the northern troops of Marshal Sun Chuang-fang and the armies of the south which were trying to keep possession of Shanghai. Though the northerners were reported to have met with a severe defeat in a four days' battle along the Yangtse, later advices said they were hanging on and steadily pushing men across the river. The southerners apparently had abandoned Nanking and withdrawn to prepared positions south of that city. Chinese cruisers in the river at first fought against the northern troops that were crossing, but afterward held aloof, probably having been bought off by Marshal Sun.

The Twenty-sixth Nationalist army is in and about Shanghai, under the command of Gen. Chou Feng-chi, but its loyalty to the Nationalists was questioned. This matter worried the foreigners there, for the men of that army were supposed to be anti-foreign as well as communistic.

ASSISTANT SECRETARY OF THE TREASURY LOWMAN intends to stop the smuggling of liquor from Canada if it can be done, and has been conferring with members of the royal Canadian commission with that in view. The United States is seeking a supplementary agreement under which Canada will attempt to prevent liquor shipments to the United States instead of limiting its activity to merely giving notice that such shipments have been declared. Canada, on the other hand, wants the United States to do its utmost to stop smuggling of industrial alcohol to Canada, for the reason that such shipments are seriously cutting into the dominion revenues.

Mr. Lowman said the border patrol westward from Buffalo, including the Detroit river area, would be increased from 200 to 400 men, and that it might be necessary to enlarge the coast guard fleet on the Great Lakes. The prohibition bureau instead of the customs service is now handling the liquor smuggling prevention work.

VISCOUNT CECIL, chancellor of the duchy of Lancaster, created a sensation by resigning from the British cabinet, giving as his chief reason the attitude of the cabinet toward the United States in the recent futile naval disarmament conference. He also let it be known that he expressly opposes the tyranny of the big powers over the affairs of the League of Nations, in the procedure of which he has been a dominating factor.

"I have resigned because of the handling of the disarmament question generally, culminating in the failure of the naval conference," Lord Cecil told the correspondents. "I was not in sympathy with the instructions I received from the British cabinet and I believe an agreement could have been reached without any sacrifice of the British interests."

Lord Cecil's withdrawal from the League of Nations, and the resignation of M. de Jouvenal, the French delegate, were believed in Geneva to open the way to Foreign Minister Stresemann of Germany to become the dominating figure in the league. It was said he would have the solid support of the smaller nations and the war-time neutrals if he would honestly stand by the covenant regarding disarmament.

CHICAGO'S moving picture theaters, 350 or more in number, were shut up tight last week by their owners because of disputes with the Motion Picture Operators' union. A few independent houses undertook to operate, but film distributors cut off their supply of pictures. Both sides were apparently determined to make it a fight to a finish, and there were prospects that the strike and lockout might be extended to other territory. It was estimated that the theaters were losing $225,000 daily, and that 25,000 employees were out of work. Attorneys for the union applied to the Federal courts for an injunction against the film distributors to force them to deliver films to the independent theaters.

ECHOES of the Sacco-Vanzetti case are heard daily, in the form of riotous demonstrations, quarrels among the radicals over the defense fund, and threats against the American Legion by French communists. The General Confederation of Labor, representing a great majority of French unionized labor, gave way to the radical element and voted after a stormy meeting not to participate in the national holiday activities in connection with the Legion on September 19.

SO-CALLED "ease and desist" orders charging them with fraud and deception in the promotion of Texas oil stock schemes have been issued against Shepherd & Co., a Chicago stock brokerage firm, and eight similar companies, all of Texas, by the federal trade commission. The orders are the first results of an investigation into "blue sky" securities undertaken several months ago by the commission.

Improved Uniform International

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV P. B. FITZWATER, D.D., Dean Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)
(©, 1927, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for September 11

SOLOMON DEDICATES THE TEMPLE

LESSON TEXT—I Kings, chapter 8.

GOLDEN TEXT—I was glad when they said unto me, let us go into the house of the Lord.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Worshiping in God's House.

JUNIOR TOPIC—A Young Man's Love for God's House.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Love for God's House.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Value of God's House to a Community.

The first task of Solomon after his coronation was the building of the temple, a privilege which was denied to his father, David. In his preparation for this task he secured wood from King Hiram of Tyre, stones for the foundations from the Phoenicians, skilled workmen also from King Hiram. It was located on Mount Moriah (II Chron. 3:1). The suitableness of this place was due to the fact that the Lord had appeared here to Abraham. Its dimensions were 90 feet long, 30 feet wide, and 45 feet high. It contained the brazen altar, the laver, the golden candlesticks and cherubim. The dedication of the temple was arranged to take place at an auspicious time. The dedicatory services consisted of:

I. Bringing Up the Ark (vv. 1-11).

The ark of the covenant was typical of Jesus Christ. God dwells among men through Jesus Christ (John 1:14). The ark was God's holy dwelling place. This, therefore, must be brought up first and placed in the temple. For the manifestation of the divine presence was the real dedication. When the house of God was to be dedicated the king arranged for a representative gathering of the people, consisting of the elders, princes and heads of the tribes. There were many great men present, but only the priests, God's appointed ministers, moved the ark. The fatal experience of Uzzah in David's time was doubtless clear in their minds. Solomon profited by the blunder of his father. Connected with this service was a very great sacrifice, one in keeping with the occasion. The ark with the two tablets of stone under the mercy seat shows God manifesting Himself to His people on the ground of a law perfectly kept and since atoned for by the shedding of blood. At the completion of the sacrifice, the temple was filled with the glory of the Lord.

II. Solomon's Address to the People (vv. 12-21).

He points out to the people that God had chosen David to be king, yet for certain reasons He would not allow him to build the temple, promising that his son should do the work. Now that the work was done, the temple was built and the ark of the covenant was in its place, they could be assured that God had raised him up in the room of his father.

III. Solomon's Dedicatory Prayer (vv. 22-53).

The ark having now been placed in the most holy place, and the address to the people being ended, the king pours out his soul to God in prayer. In this prayer Solomon gratefully acknowledges God's goodness in the past, giving glory to Him, and pleads that His promise to his father be verified (vv. 22-26); he prays that God's eyes might be continually open toward the temple which He had now taken possession of (vv. 27-33); so that (1) in case of contention between parties He would judge between them (vv. 31, 32); (2) in case of being smitten by the enemy, even though they had sinned, upon confession of the same, God would forgive and restore (vv. 33, 34); (3) in case of famine as chastisement for sin, upon confession and prayer before the temple, God would forgive and send rain (vv. 35, 36); (4) in case of pestilence and sickness, if they pray to God toward the temple, God should hear and forgive (vv. 37-40); (5) in case of the coming of the foreigner who comes at the news of God's greatness, and prays toward Jerusalem, his prayers should be heard (vv. 41-43); (6) in case of going out to battle, their cause should be maintained (vv. 44, 45); (7) in case of being in captivity because of sin, God should hear their prayers and restore (vv. 46-53).

IV. Solomon Blesses the People (vv. 54-61).

On the strength of the covenant promises, he invokes His presence always with them to keep them faithful, and exhorts the people to have their hearts perfect before God, walking in His commandments and statutes.

V. Solomon and the People Offer Sacrifices of Thanksgiving (vv. 62-66).

Ideals Like Stars

Ideals are like stars; you will not succeed in touching them with your hands; but, like the seafaring man on the desert of waters, you choose them as your guides, and, following them, you reach your destiny.—Exchange.

Charming Human Beings

It is always good to know, if only in passing, charming human beings. It refreshes one like flowers and woods and clear brooks.—George Eliot.

"What is my present car worth in trade?"

OCCASIONALLY you hear a car owner say: "I'm going to buy such and such a new car because the dealer has offered me the best deal on my present car."

But without understanding the economics of trade-in transactions, you cannot be sure that the largest allowance offered means the best deal for you.

These are basic facts:

1 Your present car has only one fundamental basis of value; i. e., what the dealer who accepts it in trade can get for it in the used car market.

2 Your present car has seemingly different values because competitive dealers are bidding to sell you a new car.

3 The largest allowance offered is not necessarily the best deal for you. Sometimes it is; sometimes it is not.

4 An excessive allowance may mean that you are paying an excessive price for the new car in comparison with its real value.

5 First judge the merits of the new car in comparison with its price, including all delivery and finance charges. Then weigh any difference in allowance offered on your present car.

Remember that when you trade-in your present car you are after all making a purchase, not a sale. You are simply applying your present car as a credit toward the purchase price of a new car.

GENERAL MOTORS

"A car for every purse and purpose"

CHEVROLET • PONTIAC • OLDSMOBILE • OAKLAND
BUICK • LaSALLE • CADILLAC • GENERAL MOTORS
TRUCKS • YELLOW CABS and COACHES
FRIGIDAIRE—The electric refrigerator

Inefficiency is the soil that does not grow success.

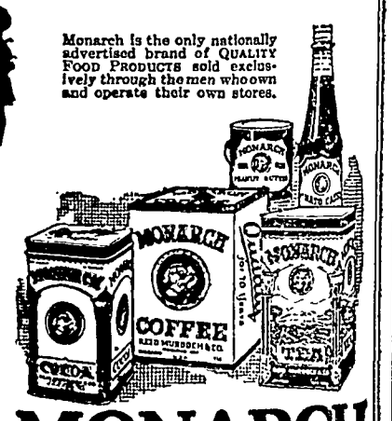
Investments, like charity, should begin at home

"When the King promised to grant any wish he made, the brave boy smiled and said, "Please tell them to give me Monarch Cocoa and Monarch Teenie Weenie Peanut Butter sandwiches every day."

EVERY genuine Monarch package bears the Lion Head, the oldest trademark in the United States covering a complete line of the world's finest food products—Coffee, Tea, Cocoa, Catsup, Pickles, Peanut Butter, Canned Fruits and Vegetables, and other superior table specialties.

REID, MURDOCH & CO.
Established 1853
Chicago Pittsburgh Boston New York Jacksonville Tampa Los Angeles

Monarch is the only nationally advertised brand of QUALITY FOOD PRODUCTS sold exclusively through themen whoown and operate their own stores.



MONARCH
Quality for 70 Years

Dr. Caldwell's 3 Rules Keep You Healthy

Dr. Caldwell watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are of their health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time regardless of how much one tries to avoid it. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, hence his remedy for constipation, known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a mild vegetable compound. It cannot harm the most delicate system and is not a habit forming preparation. Syrup Pepsin is pleasant-tasting, and youngsters love it. It does not gripe. Thousands of mothers have written us to that effect.

Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their system. In a practice of 47 years he never saw any reason for their use when a medicine like Syrup Pepsin will empty the bowels just as promptly, more cleanly and gently, without griping and harm to the system.

Keep free from constipation! It robs your strength, hardens your arteries and brings on premature old age. Do not let a day go by without a bowel movement. Do not sit and hope, but go to a druggist and get one of the generous bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Take the proper dose that night and by morning you will feel like a different person. Use Syrup Pepsin for yourself and members of the family in constipation, biliousness, sour and crampy stomach, bad breath, no appetite, headaches, and to break up fevers and colds. Always have a bottle in the house, and observe these three rules of health: Keep the head cool, the feet warm, the bowels open.

W. B. Caldwell M.D.
AT AGE 83

We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.

Men Marooned

By GEORGE MARSH

Copyright by The Penn Publishing Co. WNU Service

STORY FROM THE START

Garth Guthrie, Canadian war veteran, having to live in the north on account of weakened lungs, is factor of a Hudson's Bay post at Elkwan. He came back from the conflict with a permanently scarred face, which he realizes cost him the love of his fiancee, Edith Falconer. Sir Charles Guthrie, his brother, is a millionaire war profiteer. With Etienne Savanne, halfbreed, his best friend, Garth meets Doctor Quarrier, geologist, and his sister Joan. Their schooner has drifted ashore. Quarrier complains he has been robbed by a man known as "Laughing McDonald." At Elkwan an Indian girl, Ninda, tuberculosis victim, whom Garth has befriended, is dying. Joan, trained war nurse, cares for Ninda, but the girl dies. Charles Guthrie writes reproachfully his brother for not coming home. Charles' wife assures him Rachel still loves him, but Garth knows his heart knows better. Three of McDonald's party visit Elkwan seeking to buy gun shells. From them Garth learns of evil talk among the Indians concerning Joan and Ninda.

CHAPTER V

—7—

The winter wood cut, the geese salted and cached, the whitefish platform groaning with the spoil of the nets that would not be lifted until the ice, Guthrie and Etienne sat in council of war.

"How many of our people are winterin' on the island?" asked Garth.

The half-breed closed his small eyes, his face contracted into a network of lines as he counted the families which had, through the summer, crossed the strait to hunt on the mainland, instead of taking the fall trail for the forest and muskegs of the Elkwan headwaters.

"We got twelve—fifteen hunter wit' Attawapiskat and Kapiskau got plenty dan dat."

"That means a lot of fox pelts if rabbits and rabbits are plentiful, and the litters came through the summer."

Etienne scowled. "We not get much of eet," he muttered. "Dem Cree geeve de hunter beeg price."

It was true. Cut off from the island by the ice set hard, as the post and while the hunters could reach the schooner wintering at Seal Cove and get more for their fur, the outlook was indeed gloomy. But Garth had no idea of allowing these strangers to come into his territory and take the profitable fox trade of Akimiski away from him without a struggle. While he remained in the employ of the company, he would give the best that was in him of loyalty and service. His future was involved; and as he searched for a solution of the problem with the presence of this schooner represented, the desire to beat this free-trader in his bold try for the priceless silver and black fox of Akimiski obsessed his thoughts.

Tom Graham at Attawapiskat and Boucher at Kapiskau, he anticipated little aid or comfort. The former was an inactive, oldish man with a large river trade, and Boucher, according to Cameron at Albany, already in a panic over the rumor of the machine age aboard McDonald's schooner. So Garth had decided that he would ignore his colleagues on the coast south of him and play a lone hand.

For a space the two men nursed their pipes in silence; then the face of the white man suddenly lighted.

"Saul Souci!" he cried. "Why didn't I think of him before? Etienne, we'll hunt up old Saul and send him to winter on the island. He's got two or three sons there, and besides being Chief of the Crees, is a sort of medicine man, shaman, isn't he?"

Slowing a cloud of smoke through his teeth, the half-breed grunted his disapproval. "He winter on de Little Elkwan—up een de Winisk countree. Ees weel tak' long tam to find heem."

"Oh, I know it will be difficult to get him across the strait before the ice, but we'll put him over somehow."

"We get frozen een wid our cano' on de riviere," protested the hard-headed Scotsman.

"We'll take a birch canoe and leave it to carry the little toboggan to come back with—the dogs can follow the ice are going up," urged the enthusiastic Guthrie.

Knowing the country, Etienne realized only too well the difficulty of travelling between seasons; breaking through young ice in the quiet reaches of the river until compelled to abandon the canoe; then the wait for the closing of the stream and the snow. For it lacks the thin ice of the Elkwan would be a trap for the unwary dog team. To the trail-wise Etienne, it was a foolish venture; to the man whose only thought was the salvage of the fox trade, a necessity.

"How you get heem' to de island?"

"If the channel and strait are open, we'll take him in the York boat. We can wait for the wind and if there isn't too much flow ice, we'll get him across."

Etienne knocked out his pipe. His bright eyes snapped as he looked at Guthrie. "Eef you say so, I go. But we are two dam' fool."

"But we've got to give these people a fight for that fur—it's worth thousands to us."

"All right, boss, we fight." But when the veteran voyager told his wife of the mad purpose of Guthrie, her dark face grayed with fear at the thought of the November journey over the thin ice of the Elkwan.

For a week, with his two best huskies, Castor and Pollux, and Shot, following opposite banks of the river to avoid fighting, Garth and Etienne poled and paddled and tracked past black spruce and poplar grown shores from the latter of which the frost had stripped the leaves.

At the mouth of the Little Elkwan the winter suddenly shut down, locking lakes and deadwaters with a shell too thick for their battering poles to break a channel through for their canoe, and the men in search of Saul Souci were prisoners. Somewhere up the little Elkwan ran the trap-lines of the man, to reach whom they had slaved for days with ice-crusted poles and paddles, and freezing hands, while their hot breaths rose in columns on the keen air; but until a fall of snow, or some bitter nights to bridge the river trail, they could not move. However, there were five hungry mouths to feet, so they hunted back in the muskeg for caribou. At last, when severe frost had sealed the slower flowing reaches of the river with three-inch ice, they hitched the huskies, and started. Shot, who the winter previous had learned to draw Garth's trapping sled, refusing to team with the larger dogs, ran loose.

The second day out they learned from an Indian that Souci's main camp was two sleeps up the river. And thanks to the trained eyes of Etienne, the sled avoided the traps of shell ice over the swift water and the second night turned in to a winter camp.

At the challenge of his dogs, Saul Souci, Treaty Chief of the Elkwan Crees, lean, grizzled, taciturn, with bony features, over which leather-like skin lined with wrinkles was tightly drawn, pushed through the flap of his tipi.

"Kequay!" he said, showing no surprise at the strange appearance of the Elkwan people one hundred and fifty miles inland at a time when no sane Indian traveled the river. The three shook hands and, first feeding and chaining the dogs to trees, entered the smoky tent where Saul's wife and two sons were eating from a copper kettle.

Not until his guests had been served with caribou stew and tea did Souci question them as to the purpose of their coming. Then he said in Cree, which Etienne interpreted to Garth: "You take a hard moon to travel up the Elkwan."

"We could not wait, so started in the canoe," replied Etienne in the same language.

"You did not break through the ice."

"No."

"The geese have passed: it will not be long now until the big snow," vouchsafed the hunter, lighting his pipe.

"How are the game signs since the snow?"

"There are plenty of mink and otter, but the lynx and fox seem to have left the valley."

Etienne's eyes brightened at the remark.

"There is much fox sign on Akimiski." This was hearsay over a month old, but the half-breed knew he would need every possible argument to gain Souci's ear to his proposition.

"My sons will be glad. Three of them are there."

"We have come to talk to you about the island."

Souci's bony face clouded as he met the frowning look of his wife.

"I told you at the spring trade I would not go."

"But there is much news since then," replied Etienne in the same colorless tones as the other.

"News? What has happened?"

Then the astute Savanne displayed his knowledge of the Indian temperament. Slowly, without emotion, he described the coming of McDonald, the free-trader, to the west coast, with a ship full of cheap trade goods, and inferior flour, tea and sugar. It was sudden wealth he was after, and to get it he would bribe the hunters, receive them with what looked like better prices in trade for their fox skins. But in a year—two years—he would be through—would not return, and they would come to the company again, begging for a "debt." But the company, who had taken care of their fathers and grandfathers through many lean years, would remember who had gone to the free-trader. There would be no "advance" for these in the years to come, and their women and children would whimper through the long snows.

He, Saul Souci, a man held in great esteem by the company, could save these hunters from the cheap guns and trade goods of McDonald, who cared nothing for the Crees. The company, whose goods were honest, as he knew, whose sugar was not sanded, whose powder never failed, and whose tea soothed the stomachs of the Crees, was as ancient as the hills, and as permanent. It would always remain on the bay to trade with the Indians with goods that never changed. He, Saul Souci, his father and his father's father had been the friend of the Hudson's Bay—had never failed it. Would he fail it now when he was needed to turn the young hunters at Akimiski from their folly?

"What Do You Want?"

For a long time the smoke-filled tipi was silent as the swart face of Souci was grave with thought. Avoiding the anxious eyes of his wife, he sat cross-legged staring into the small fire in the center of the wigwam. With eyes red and throat raw from the smoke of the tipi fire, Garth impatiently watched the old Indian's stolid face.

The wife of Saul, unable to stifle her fear, at length loosed upon him a torrent of reproach—only to be silenced by a stern command. At last, the Indian, evidently having come to a decision, turned to the half-breed who waited for his answer.

"My trap-lines reach far into the four winds. My fish and meat cache is heavy. There are many caribou in the muskeg; at Akimiski there are none—only rabbits and wolves and foxes."

Ignorant of the drift of Souci's remarks, Garth watched Etienne's impassive face. Suddenly his heart quickened, as a faint gleam entered the slit-like eyes of his friend. Would old Souci come, after all?

"It is true," continued the Indian, "the company is my friend. It was the friend of my father. It is better that the young men trade with it than with these people who come and go. If I go, how shall I live, for I have no cache at Akimiski? How shall I cross the water if the ice has not set?

Etienne's dark face wrinkled with pleasure. Souci would go. "The company will make you its man, if you will go," he said. "We will set you across the open water in the York boat and give you supplies for the winter, and your sons—what they need. And if you hold the young men, there will be new guns for you and your sons and a debt double the hunt your family brings in." Etienne extended his hand to seal the bargain.

"We may not cross the water before the Christmas trade—then we will lose the fur, for the trade will go to their camps," suggested Saul.

"We will cross you to the island at once, if you will return with us now."

The wife of Saul was already wailing in protest at his decision, but the dark faces of his sons betrayed no feeling.

"My sons and my wife will stay here," said the Indian without a glance at those interested. "I will go down river with you, for the winter will not wait."

Etienne turned to the smiling Guthrie. "You see, he will go with us at once. Now, we will mak' de troubl' for McDonal' Ha! Ha! to get all dose fox skin." And he repeated his conversation with Saul.

* * * * * * * *

Through the stinging air of the blue dawn, two dog teams hurried down river. On the second night, arriving at the cache of caribou hung in a tree for the return trip, they found that wolverines had destroyed the meat. To feed seven dogs it was necessary to hunt, for Saul had come with a light sled.

The following morning, as the east grayed, the men started for the neighboring muskeg in search of the early feeding caribou. With Shot, whose rigid war training to absolute silence and obedience made it possible to take him on a still hunt, which was out of the question with the yelping and uncontrollable huskies, Garth waited on the edge of a barren for the light.

"Smell something, Shot?" he asked the dog, who stood beside him in the spruce scrub, dilating his nostrils as he sniffed the keen air. As yet the dusk hung over the white barren in a gray blur. If the blue-coated deer of the north were out there scraping with round-toed hoofs the snow from the moss, the light would soon betray them. Trembling with excitement, for the great airedale had served his novitiate the winter previous on the Raft, and knew for what they waited, Shot tested the air. The man whose mittened hand rested on the shaggy back beside him wondered, as the two crouched waiting for the daylight, if to the memory of his dog returned the ghosts of similar watches in Flemish shellholes and listening posts. As his eyes strained to pierce the graying blanket which shrouded the muskeg, Guthrie found himself tracing the parapets of imagined trenches — listening for suspicious sounds. Then the first light filtered over the barren, and he searched for the gray-blue shapes against the snow.

Suddenly the dog at his side stiffened on his toes, his iron dorsal muscles set, and the tremor which swept the shaggy body, with the suppressed whine, signaled the taint in the air.

"Steady, Shot!"

The trained war dog crouched mute—athrill with the scent of game in his nostrils. Gradually the exploring eyes of the hunter made out dim shapes, a long rifle shot distant. Slowly, with his dog at his heels, Garth circled the barren up-wind under cover of the scrub, until he had an easy shot at two cows and a bull.

"Steady, Shot!" he whispered, and took careful aim. At the flash of the Ross, the bull leaped forward, ran a few feet into the wind and crumpled on the snow. As the bewildered cows circled up-wind, Guthrie fired again. A hurt cow plunged forward, seeking the scrub edging the barren, and reaching it, disappeared.

"Go get 'em, Shot!" Like a wraith, the airedale crossed the barren in pursuit, as Guthrie followed, upbraiding himself for his poor shooting. A hundred yards inside the scrub he found the caribou pulled down and dispatched by the dog.

Replacing his rifle in its skin case and resting it against a spruce, Garth was hastily dressing out the meat before the hide froze, while Shot explored the game trails of the vicinity, when a low laugh sounded behind him. Looking up, he saw, watching him, the Ojibwa, Joe Mokoman, who called himself the father of Ninda.

Guthrie casually rose to his feet, skinning knife in hand, as he measured the sinister face of the man who faced him, fingering the action of his gun. It was clear from the glint in the small eyes that the Ojibwa still nursed the memory of his expulsion from the trade-house. How far would he dare go? Garth asked himself.

"Bo'-jo'! The caribou are fat this year," he said coolly, moving toward the Indian. But the Ojibwa pointed the muzzle of his rifle at Garth's chest as he stepped forward.

"You move, I shoot!"

The threat of the despised Indian deeply flicked the pride of the Canadian veteran, but he was helpless. It was inconceivable that Mokoman meant to wreak personal vengeance of such a nature on a Hudson's Bay factor—shoot him in cold blood. Yet what was he after, then?

With a great show of rage and surprise, Garth burst out with: "What d'you mean by throwing a gun on me? You know what you'll get for this? What d'you want?"

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Army Makes Extensive Use of Finger Prints

The largest collection of finger prints in the world, 5,023,881, is in the office of the adjutant general of the army, Washington, according to the American Medical Journal. The finger-print system was adopted in 1906 on the recommendation of a board, of which Brig. Gen. Walter D. McCaw, medical corps, was a member. Finger prints have proved invaluable to the government in the administration of the adjusted compensation act, and have made possible positive identification of more than 2,800,000 applicants. They serve to assist civil authorities, also. For example, a man disappeared in 1917, and in 1924 he was declared legally dead by a court; his family claimed his life insurance. June 30, 1926, a deserter from the army surrendered to military control, and was identified by his finger prints as the man in question. In the last fiscal year 3,406 "undesirables" were discovered by means of the army finger prints.

Son Breaks the News

On a hunt with his small son a farmer shot at a hawk, but missed. A second shot brought it down.

"Whatcha going to do with him, pop?" asked the boy.

"Oh, I guess we'll have him for dinner," replied his father jokingly. On the way to the house the hawk was dropped into the pig pen unseen by the boy. They found the minister at the house and a chicken already killed for dinner. Dinner time came and just as the minister was being served the boy piped out:

"D'you know pop had to shoot twice to get this hawk?"

Ancient Jewish Tribunal

Sanhedrin was the name of the supreme judicial council of the Jews from the time of the Maccabees to the destruction of Jerusalem by the Romans under Titus in the year 71 A. D. This council consisted of 70 members, including the chief priests, elders and scribes, and was presided over by the high priest. Its jurisdiction extended to every Jewish settlement. After Judea became a Roman province the power of inflicting the death penalty was taken from the Sanhedrin.

One Valuable Point

"Ancestor worship," said Hi Ho, the sage of Chinatown, "is valuable if it reminds us that we ought to so demean ourselves as to deserve respect from future generations." — Washington Star

What's the Answer?

Questions No. 14

1—What is the high standing jump record?

2—Who invented the sewing machine and when?

3—What vice president was later tried for treason?

4—What is geology?

5—With what three remarkable roles are the name and fame of Mrs. Fiske principally associated?

6—Which is the highest mountain in Great Britain?

7—What legends are the subject of Tennyson's "Idylls of the King"?

8—What is the umbrella bird and what is its most conspicuous ornament?

9—Is this statement correct: "I expect that you have eyestrain"?

10—What is the third verse in Chap. 1 of the Book of Job?

11—What European sea coast is known as "cote sauvage"?

12—What is the record for the national collegiate run of 100 yards?

13—When was Labor day made a legal national holiday?

14—What President later became a member of the house of representatives?

15—Where are emeralds found?

16—What English author, essayist and lecturer was most famous as an art critic?

17—What are the "Biglow Papers"?

18—What is vanilla, what its uses and where grown?

19—Which is correct, "would rather" or "had rather"?

20—What is a psalm?

Answers No. 13

1—Mary Ann Evans.

2—Philadelphia defeated Boston 4-1 in a 24-inning game September 1, 1906.

3—Six; Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, John Quincy Adams, Van Buren, Buchanan.

4—Carolina, for Charles II.

5—That branch of knowledge that treats on the science of life.

6—Landscape painting.

7—Ladoga.

8—It is a native of North America and there are but two species, the Yucatan and Central American.

9—Twenty-five.

10—II Chronicles; Chap. 4, v. 10.

11—"War and Peace."

12—G. H. Goulding of Canada walked it in 6 min. 25.8 sec.

13—Millard Fillmore.

14—Gen. John H. Morgan.

15—That branch of science that deals with the properties of different kinds of matter.

16—Beethoven.

17—Scotland.

18—It is a genus of early blooming plants belonging to the lily family and there are about forty-five species.

19—By the people inhabiting the western Pyrenees.

20—In the Bible.

Shakespeare Held as Leader of New Art

The masterpieces of one art were produced at its birth. The theater was a new institution in the social life of Shakespeare's youth, and the first playhouse built in England was not a dozen years old when the great poet arrived in London. The Middle ages had gratified its love of mimicry by miracle plays, which devolped into moralities and interludes. The middle of the Sixteenth century Latin and Greek plays were crudely imitated in English, but of poetic, literary, romantic, intellectual drama England knew practically nothing until Shakespeare was of age.

"Here," it seems he must have said, "is a land just discovered—I shall be the leader of its exploration." A young man of twenty-two, burdened with a wife and three children, he had left his home in his native town about 1586 to seek his fortune in the great city. He had few friends and no money. Though his ambition was to be an actor and to write his own plays he sought and won a job as call-boy at one of the newly founded theaters and was only after some delay promoted to humble duties on the stage itself. He tried his hand at the revision of an old play, and the manager, recognizing the youth's gift, aided him on his climb. But for seven or eight years he worked in obscurity and it was not until his "Romeo and Juliet" was produced that he was hailed as the prophet of a new world of art.—Kansas City Star.

The Horse in History

Domestic breeds of horses existed in Europe from prehistoric times. The first mention of the British horse occurs in "Caesar." Though used extensively in warfare and other pursuits, agriculture seems to have been the first use to which horses were put. The earliest suggestion that horses were used in agriculture is derived from a piece of Bayeux tapestry where the horse is represented as drawing a harrow.—Washington Star.

THIS NURSE NOW HAS GOOD HEALTH

Praises Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for some time and I would not be without it in the house. As I am a children's nurse, I have to be on my feet a great deal and your medicine has helped me wonderfully. I was hardly able to do my housework when I began taking it, and now I am a strong and well woman, able to do all that and go out nursing besides. I have also used the Sanative Wash and found it beneficial."—Mrs. Gertrude L. Stewart, 103 Davis St., Greenfield, Mass.

Valuable for Weakness

"I have found Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a valuable medicine for weakness."—Mrs. J. A. Pietsch, Box 397, Lancaster, Pa.

Hundreds of letters like these are received by the Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. Grateful women from Pennsylvania to Washington, from Texas to Illinois and from Rhode Island to Nebraska say that their health has improved since taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

FOR OVER 200 YEARS

haarlem oil has been a world-wide remedy for kidney, liver and bladder disorders, rheumatism, lumbago and uric acid conditions.

GOLD MEDAL HAARLEM OIL CAPSULES

correct internal troubles, stimulate vital organs. Three sizes. All druggists. Insist on the original genuine GOLD MEDAL.

HANFORD'S

Balsam of Myrrh

A Healing Antiseptic

All dealers are authorized to refund your money for the first bottle if not suited.

Country's Many Smiths

About one person in every one hundred in this country is a Smith. The last census found 1,30-1,300 Smiths in the United States. In other words, there are enough Smiths in the nation to replace the entire population of any one of these states: Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Rhode Island, Delaware, Florida, Oregon, Colorado, Utah and eight less populous Western states. The renowned Smiths occupy 17 pages in "Who's Who in America."—The Outlook.

Tracing Term "Bachelor"

The origin of the term "bachelor" is uncertain. One explanation is that it is associated with the old French word "bachelor," which originally meant a young man.

DODD'S PILLS

3rd FOR TWO GEARS

DIURETIC STIMULANT TO THE KIDNEYS

The Dodds Medicine Co.

DIURETIC STIMULANT TO THE KIDNEYS

Standard for Generations.

Mrs. J. Earl, R. F. D. No. 3, Oneida, N. Y., writes as follows:

"I want to tell you how much good your Dodd's Pills did for my husband, who has been laid up with sciatica for sometime. He tried every medicine he heard tell of until he was finally persuaded to try Dodd's Pills. After taking two boxes he secured quick relief."

At all druggists, 60c per box, or The Dodd's Medicine Co., Inc., 700 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y.

KILL RATS SAFELY & SURELY

No danger to children, stock or poultry. Use K-R-O freely in the home, barn or poultry house with absolute safety. Severe tests have proved that it kills rats and mice every time but other animals and poultry are not injured by the largest doses.

NOT A POISON

K-R-O is made of powdered squill—the new safe way urged by Government Experts. Does not contain arsenic, phosphorus, barium carbonate or any other deadly poison. At your druggist 75c. Large size (4 times as much) $2.00. Or sent direct from us postpaid if he cannot supply you. Satisfaction guaranteed.

K-R-O CO., Springfield, Ohio

K-R-O

KILLS-RATS-ONLY

FEED GRINDING

Our Feed Grinding Mill is "raing to go" and all it needs is to have you farmers bring in your grain and get your feed ground the way you want it. Our mill does excellent work and turns out real ground feed.

Coal for Winter

Fill your bins now for winter as coal prices are steadily advancing. Our bins are full of good furnace and stove coal and right now the price is right.

Klemme Co-Operative Grain Co.

LIBERAL ALLOWANCE on your old cleaner toward a new PREMIER DUPLEX

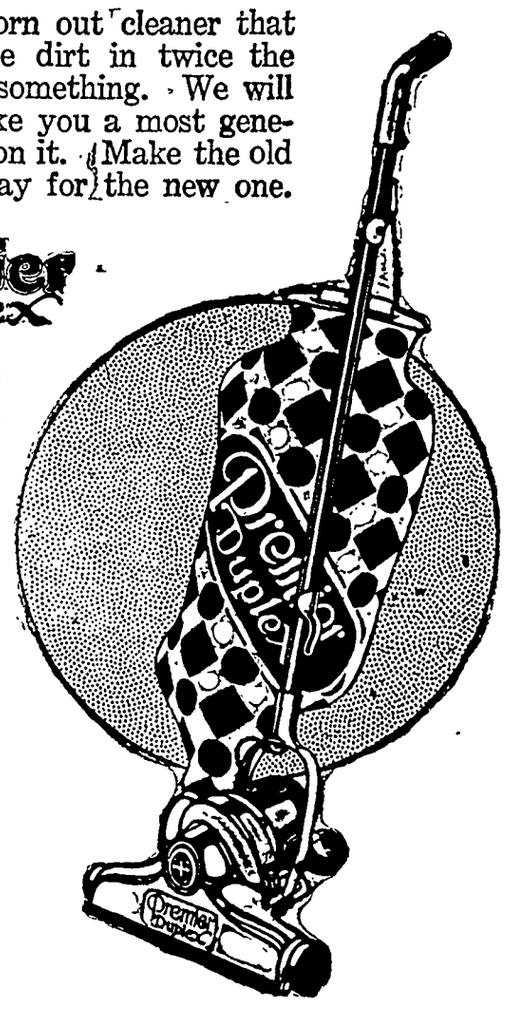
YOUR old worn out cleaner that gets half the dirt in twice the time, is worth something. We will take it and make you a most generous allowance on it. Make the old one help you pay for the new one.

Premier Duplex



This is the famous double action vacuum cleaner—the one that cleans by powerful suction and a motor driven brush. And it needs no oiling, for both motor and brush turn on ball bearings. It has many features that commend it to housewives.

Only

$5.00 down

The rest can be paid in easy payments over a year's time.

Central States Electric Co.

News of Klemme and Vicinity

Dr. R. W. Specht, Dentist, Garner, Iowa. adv

Geo Gruetzmacher, of Garner was in Klemme on business Tuesday.

Ben Coosb and family were at Mason City Wednesday.

Mrs. R. W. Elder, Clarence and Reva, werea t Mason City Saturday.

R. W. Sinclair, of Garner, was in Klemme on business yesterday.

Mr. and Mrs. Worthy Usher have moved to Clarion where he works in a store.

Mr and Mrs. Wm. Knisely, of Rockwell were visiting in Kemme Saturday.

Mrs. Henry Josten was at the Mercy Hospital at Mason City Friday for treatment.

The Misses Ada, Ava and Katherine Sandrey were visiting with Miss Berdice Schwichtenberg Sunday

Mr A Carolus, Sr., came back from the Iowa City hospital last week, greatly improved in health.

Miss Elsie Nuehring, of Rockwell is visiting relatives south west of Klemme this week.

The Liberty W F. M S met Wednesday and held an electino of officers.

Mr. and Mrs Paul Mueller were visiting with relatives at Garner Sunday

J. J Poort and family moved to Sac City Saturday They expect to go on a small farm in the spring

Wait for Ludeke's Poland China and Chester White Hog Sale, Oct 15th, Klemme, Iowa. 1tc

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Doyle, of Mason City, were visiting with relatives and friends last week

Mr and Mrs G. Gobeli and grandson, James, took in the celebration at Thornton last Thursday.

Mr and Mrs. Herman Schuldt were visiting relatives in Minneapolis last week

Mr and Mrs Hans Hanson and Miss Ruby drove to Wesley and West Bend Sunday to visit the Grottos there.

Miss Adella Schroeder left last week for Keswick, Iowa, to begin duties as Home Economics teacher in that high school

A D Gimer and family drove to Mason City Monday evening to take Elwood Fouts over where he is attending the Hamilton University

Rev Gauger and family were at Garner yesterday to attend the Golden Wedding Annivesary of Mr. and Mrs. Merten.

Blanche Gimer returned home Sunday from Riceville whree she spent a couple of weeks visiting with cousins.

Mr. and Mrs. John Greiwe and daughter, Marie, of Minneapois, visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Griewe and other relatives and friends over the week end

As Rev GGrosshuesch is at Sutton, Nebraska this week, three will be no ervices at the Klemme Reformed Church Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Gimer from Abbott, Iowa, are making an extended visit at the home of their son, A D Gimer.

Mrs R A. Rankin, wife of Editor Rankin of the Belmond Independent, was a pleasant caller at the Times Office this morning.

Mr. and Mrs. M. O. Barr drove to Grundy Center Saturday evening to spend Sunday with Mr and Mrs. "Stub" Lewis.

Mrs George Johnson and sons, and the Misses Gertrude, Ruth and Ethel Johnson were Mason City visitors last Wednesday

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Jahnke of Mankato, Minn came Saturday for a few day's visit with Klemme relatives and friends

NOTICE—All who owe for sand from the Wm. Stille pit please settle with Lester Stille. 2tc

Mr and Mrs. Henry Buseman and Mrs. W F. Pavey and children, Juanita and Wayne, drove to McGregor last Friday for a visit until Sunday at the H Coobs home.

Mr and Mrs. Clyde Marshall and Mr and Mrs Herb Marshall and daughter left Saturday morning for Illinois fo a week's visit with relatives.

Mrs Fred Ridder and daughters. Neota. and Mrs S A Harvey and Enid returned last week Wednesday from their week's visit at Watertown, South Dakota.

Rev A W Gauger and family drove to Hampton Friday afternoon to take Miss Marie there in time for the teachers' meeting Miss Gauger will teach in the Hampton schools this year as a grade teacher.

Mr and Mrs Sumner Trumbell drove to Conrad, Iowa, for a week end visit with Dr and Mrs J L Hesselhuus They report them as well and happy and that the Doctor is enjoying a fine dental practice.

A D GGimer and family spent the week end with relatives at Riceville, Iowa, returning Sunday evening and acompanied by Elwood Fouts who made a short visit in this city

Jay Griggs drove to Bancroft on business Tuesday Jay sells the Elto Outboard motor, for row boats and has quite a arge territory. He has sold a large number of motors this year and expects to sell twice as many next year.

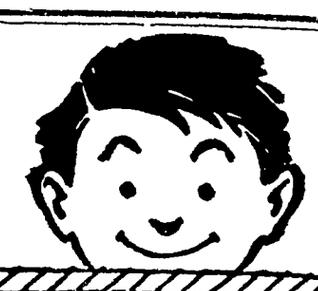
Furnace Coal..

SEMI-ANTHRACITE COAL—we have a car load coming soon. This is the best Furnace Coal on the market. Put in your order at once if you want some.

We have our bins loaded with high grade Kentucky Coal for immediate delivery. Plenty on hand. The price is much lower on coal now than it will be this winter so it will pay you to buy now.

Full lne of Feeds on hand.

North Iowa Grain Co



EN-AR-CO MOTOR OIL

JUNK TO SOME IS ANTIQUE

TO OTHERS—

En-ar-co Motor Oil keeps your car from being junked.

Our guarantee assures your satisfaction.

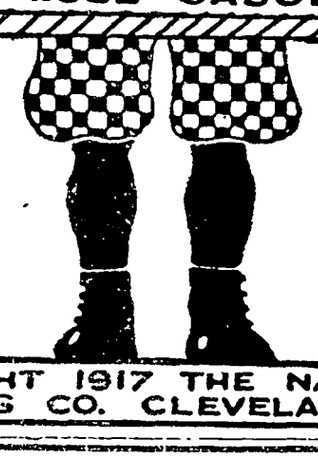
E. F. Jacobs

"Your Farm Service Hardware Store"

NATIONAL LIGHT KEROSENE

EN-AR-CO GEAR COMPOUND

WHITE ROSE GASOLINE



COPYRIGHT 1917 THE NATIONAL REFINING CO. CLEVELAND, OHIO

Cream Checks

$50.00 And Over--

Here's The List--

FOR FIRST HALF OF AUGUST—

C. Scheppelman	$100.55
Fred Rothenbeutel	$92.50
Herman Lemke	89.93
J. J. Hrubes	81.09
C. A. Bode	80.50
A. Psotka	78.70
James Kurtz	78.10
J. W. Heifner	77.18
V. A. Cook	75.90
W. F. Butz	65.68
Harry Gibbs	63.79
John Christians	60.03
J. J. Stille	59.80
Wes Lenz	59.47
D. A. Marshall	58.42

PAID TO PATRONS—

Wm. H. Greiman	$58.32
Jim Virba	55.89
H. Barkema	55.89
Clarence Johnson	55.29
F. Kohlsdorf	54.92
Tom Burgess	53.03
John Bock	52.90
C. J. Janssen	52.07
J. R. Junty	51.85
Henry Barz	51.85
Ben Reemstma	51.47
Earl Kahler	51.42
Oscar Carlson	51.29
Robert Smith	50.23

HIGHEST TEST ..... 40 PER CENT
Pounds of Butter Fat from August 1 to August 15th 23,114.6
PRICE PAID, per pound ..... 46 cents

Valentine Josten, Secretary.

Klemme Co-Op. Creamery Company

Get in on our big TIRE SALE RIGHT NOW As our stock is going fast—We have only

A Few Left!

—and when the present stock is sold out the regular prices will go into effect again.

COMPARE our prices with Mail Order House Prices on high grade Tires. We can save you money—but you will have to hurry as we have only a few tires left.

30x3½ Cord $6.20

REGULAR PRICE $7.35

30x3½ Extra Size Cord $6.95

REGULAR PRICE $8.45

29x4.40 Balloon $7.95

REGULAR PRICE $9.45

COMPARE THESE PRICES With Any Other FIRST GRADE TIRE and then come in and let us show you are values. Remember the regular prices will be in effect as soon as the present stock is exhausted. Buy Tires Now and Save Money.

Pritchard Auto Co.

Phone 77 Klemme. Iowa

THE KLEMME TIMES

rtieth Year—Number 5. KLEMME, IOWA, THURSDAY , SEPTEMBER 15, 1927.

NDEPENDENTS WIN VER CARTERSVILLE

UNDAY'S BALL GAME DREW A FAIR SIZED CROWD

Klemme Independents Have Easy Victory Over Visitors

The ball game here Sunday between Klemme and Cartersville did ot come up to the expected standard as the Independents had an sy walk-away with what was preumed would be a tough battle The artersville boys were strengthened the return to their team of the ur Hanson brothers but they did ot show up as well as was expected owever it was a good, clean game nd the Cartersville team showed emselves to be good sports and ept right on smiling as the locals ok a long lead right from the first.

Following is the box score:

Klemme Independents

Pos.	AB	H	E	R
okesbary, 2nd	5.	.2	..0.	.2
inn, c. f	5	...2	0	2
anner, c	4	.2	. 0	...2
auritsen, p	4.	..1	...0	0
mith, 3rd b	6.	. 1.	1	1
eltzinger, s s	4.	..3 .	1	1
reiman, l f.	4.	.2...	0	1
bbs, 1st b	4.	1. .	0.	.1
ickman, r f	4..	.1....	0 .	1
Totals	39	.16	...2..	11

Cartersville

Pos	AB	H	E	R
. Angell, 1st	4.	...0	. .1..	0
Teaver, s s	4.	...0	0	...0
ill Hanson, 2nd , p.	4	.2	. 2	1
l Hanson, p	4.	...1	... 0	1
ittenberg, l f , c.	4.	...1	.. .0.	.0
mil Hanson, r. f.	3.	..0.	..1	0
red Hanson, 3rd b.	3.	...1	1	.0
. Frenz, c. f.	3.	...0	....0.	.0
. Angell, c l f	3.	...0	....1.	0
Totals	33.	.5	..6 .	2

Strike outs, Lauritsen5; Al Hanon, 6, Bill Hanson 3. Substitutions, Hanson for Hanson; Hanson r Angell

Double plays, none.

Hit by pitcher, 1.

Bases on balls, 3.

Umpire, Braund.

Ordinance No. 1
OWERS AND DUTIES OF THE COUNCIL

An Ordinance defining the Powrs and Duties of the Council.

Ordinance No. 2
OWERS AND DUTIES OF THE MAYOR

An Ordinance defining the Powrs and Duties of the Mayor.

Ordinance No. 3
OWERS AND DUTIES OF THE CLERK

An Ordinance defining the Powrs and Duties of the Clerk

Ordinance No. 4
OWERS AND DUTIES OF THE TREASURER.

An Ordinance defining the Powrs and Duties of the Treasurer.

Ordinance No. 5
OWERS AND DUTIES OF THE MARSHALL

An Ordinance defining the Powrs and Duties of the Marshall.

Ordinance No. 6
ALARY ORDINANCE.

An Ordinance providing for the ompensaton of Offcers and Employrs.

Ordinance No. 7
RE DEPARTMENT.

An Ordinance Establishing and egulating a Fire Department.

Ordinance No. 8
OLL TAX.

An Ordinance Providing for Poll ax.

Ordinance No. 9
OG LICENSE

An Ordinance Providing for the censing of Dogs to Run at Large d Prescribing a Penalty for Violaon.

Ordinance No. 10
UBLIC DANCE HALL AND SKATING RINK.

An Ordinance Defining, Regulatg and Licensing Public Dance alls and Prescribing Penalties for olation.

Ordinance No. 11
OOL AND BILLIARD HALLS AND BOWLING ALLEYS.

An Ordinance Providing for the egulation and Licensing of Pool d Billiard Tables and Bowling or n Pin Alleys kept for hire, and oviding a Penalty for Violation.

Ordinance No. 12
UISANCES.

An Ordinance Prohibiting, Providg for the Assessment of the Cost Abatement, and Prescribing Penties for Violation.

Ordinance No. 13
FFENSES.

An Ordinance Defining Offenses d Prescribing Penalties For Violaon.

MORALS
PEACE
HEALTH
PUBLIC PROPERTY
PRIVATE PROPERTY
STREETS SAFE
STREETS CLEAN
ANIMALS
DANGER FROM FIRE
GENERAL.

Ordinance No. 14
ELECTRIC WIRES AND POLES

An Ordinance Controlling Electric Wires and Poles and Prescribing Penalties for Violation

Ordinance No. 15
EXPLOSIVES AND OILS

An Ordinance Regulating the Sale and Keeping of Gunpowder, Oils, and Other Explosives Materials, and Prescribing Penalties for Violation

Ordinance No. 16
MOVING BUILDINGS

An Ordinance Regulating the Moving of Buildings Along or Over the Streets and Alleys and Prescribing Penalties for Violation

The above Ordinances, Numbers 1 to 16, inclusive, were authenticated this 6th day of June, 1927

PAUL GRANGE,
Mayor
A J KUDJE,
Clerk

Revised Ordinance No. 17
CLEANING AND REPAIRING SIDEWALKS

An Ordinance Providing for the Repairing and Cleaning of Sidewalks and for Assessing the Expense thereof against the Abutting Property

Passed, adopted and approved this 21st day of June, 1927.

PAUL GRANGE,
Mayor.
A J KUDJE.
Clerk

Ordinance No. 18
TRAFFIC ORDINANCE

An Ordinance Regulating the Use of the Streets, Alleys and Highways by Vehicles of All Kinds and Prescribing Penalties for Violation

The above Ordinance was authenticated this 6th day of June, 1927

PAUL GRANGE
Mayor
A J KUDJE,
Clerk

Ordinance No. 19
WATER RATES AND REGULATIONS

The above Ordinance was authenticated this 21st day of June 1927

PAUL GRANGE
Mayor
A J KUDJE.
Clerk

Old Ordinance Number 31 to be known as New Ordinance Number 20.

Old Ordinance Number 34 to be known as New Ordinance Number 21.

Old Ordinance Number 36 to be known as New Ordinance Number 22.

Old Ordinance Number 37 to be known as New Ordinance Number 23.

Old Ordinance Number 37 to be known as New Ordinance Number 24.

Old Ordinance Number 38 to be known as New Ordinance Number 25.

Old Ordinance Number 39 to be known as New Ordinance Number 26.

Old Ordinance Number 40 to be known as New Ordinance Number 27.

Old Ordinance Number 41 to be known as New Ordinance Number 29.

Ordinance No. 28
WEED ORDINANCE

An Ordinance Providing for and time of cutting of weeds in Streets, Alleys and Vacant Lots

The above Ordinance was authenticated this 21st day of June, 1927

PAUL GRANGE
Mayor
A J KUDJE.
Clerk

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

Klemme, Iowa
August 1, 1927

Regular meeting of the Town Council held at the town hall.

All members of council present.

Motion made and seconded to allow the following bills:

Iowa Union Telephone Co Damage to Cable	46 62
Community S S Co., Gasoline	19 38
E. A. Finn, July Salary.	85 00
Central States Electric Co. July Str. Lights	42 30
C D Smock, 2 hours of Labor	80
White Phillips Co., Bonds	1000.00
P. Grange, Phone Calls.	1 25
Frank Pierce, Secretary League Dues	10.00
Klemme Times, Publishing Budget Esimate	9 45
A. C. Meyers, Repairing Well	46 05
Senneff, Bliss, Witwer and Senneff, to Fees Counsel	5 00
Fairbanks Morse Co., Ignition Arm	4.47
Standard Oil Company, Gasoline	21 84
Lloyd Lau, Drayage	2.50

Bills Allowed.

Meeting adjourned.

A. J. KUDJE, Clerk.

"THE TIMBER WOLF" WITH BUCK JONES IS VIRILE DRAMA

For thrills and speed, virile drama, enacted by competent players, "The Timber Wolf" starring Buck Jones, popular Wm Fox actor, takes the cake This fast moving outdoor drama will be shown Friday and Saturday, Sept 16-17 at the Lyrich Theatre, Garner

The story is of a man of the north woods, the owner of a vast timber lands, whose rugged methods of dealing with men has earned him the name of Timber Wolf A mine, hidden in a mysterious canyon; crooks and a dishonest sheriff figure importantly in the action With such a combination a plentitude of action is bound to result In fact, "The Timber Wolf" exceeds the wildest expectations.

FIRST WHITE MAN FOUND OIL IN U. S. 300 YEARS AGO

It was just 300 years ago that an Iroquois Indian led a French monk to a spot in the wilderness of New York where oil bubbled up through the crust of the earth Thus the first white man "discovered" petroleum in the United States and since that time this country has seen petroleum develop into one of its industrial giants, second only to agriculture in importance.

Although the Empire state gave the nation the gift of oil it was her sister state, Pennsylvania, where the first oil well, which marked the beginning of the giant industry, was drilled In this issue of The Times, there is an illustrated article about the recent tercentenary celebration of the discovery of oil in New York which gives an interesting view of the whole romantic history of oil Be sure to read "Black Gold's 300 Years." by Elmo Scott Watson, in this issue.

JURORS FOR SEPTEMBER TERM ARE DRAWN

A Number From This Vivinity Will Perform Jury Duty

Following is the list of Jurors drawn for the September Trem of the Hancock County Dilsrict Court as issued by the Clerk:

Frank Clark	Goodell
Ida Slack	Garner
Lela Rice	Garner
Tillie Deibler	Kanawha
Mrs Harry Ricketts	Britt
Ed Rhodes	Goodell
Richard Van Horn	Wesley
Chas Halfpop	Goodell
C H Anderson	Britt
Ida Meckstroth	Forest City
Mrs H. A Schaefer	Britt
Nellie Robinson	Britt
Clara Carr	Garner
J V. McKee	Britt
Roscoe Wiles	Goodell
Mrs Lillie Koerner	Klemme
Wm Baughman	Corwith
Bertha Carothers	Garner
Chas Hoeft	Garner
Henry Busse	Goodell
John Etchen	Klemme
K S Fokedahl	Garner
Rose Cordes	Goodell
W. J Jurgemeyer	Garner
Gene Loebig	Wesley
Rita McDermott	Garner
Portia Johnson	Corwith
Mart Kearney	Goodell
Heiko H. Veldhouse	Kanawha
Otto Schroer	Garner

HANCOCK COUNTY REAL ESTATE TRANSFERS

A Weekly Review Of Sales And Trades In Property

Chris Jacobs wife to Saint Paul Lutheran Congregation of Garner. W D, date 8-2-27, $5600 00, lots 5-6-7 block 27 Garner.

Barney Muehe wife to Raymond Hansen et al W. D, date 9-28-26, $1 00, W½ of NE¼ 6-96-26, 97.03 acres.

J. A Kramer wife to Heiko Stohr. W. D., date 9-3-27, $400 00. Lot 4, block 5 Woden.

Jennie Anneburg to H. R. Brooks. Q. C. D, date 9-2-27, $1.00 Lot 15 and E½ of lot 16 block 2 Andersons add. Britt

Farmers National Bank, Crystal Lake to F. J. Smith, W. D., date 6-27-25 E½ of S 122 feet of block A Crystal Lake

F. J. Smith to Pearl Smith. W D date 9-9-27, $1 00. Same description as last above

Lewis Larsen wife to Loius Wollenberg. W. D., date 7-22-27, $500. A tract of land 32x132 feet of lot 14block 4 and a tract 54x132 feet lot 16 block 4 Corwith.

John G Anderson wife to Magnus Anderson et al. W. D, date 8-25-27 $1 00 SW¼ 34-97-23 and NW¼ 4 and SE¼ NE¼ 5-96-23.

Mrs N H Foster husband to B. A. Noonan W. D date 8-26-27, $75 00. E½ of lot 5, all of lot 6 block 8 Britt.

Geo H Croot wife to Della F. Croot W. D., date 8-11-27, $1.00. E 3-4 of NE¼ 19-97-25 120 acres.

Della F. Croot to Geo. H. Croot. W D, date 8-12-27, $1 00, E 3-4 of NE¼ 19-27-25 120 acres.

Olga Schliewert husband to W. J. Barz. W. D., date 8-5-27, $1.00. Lots 1-2 and N½ NE¼ 9-97-25.

Fannie Heath to Arley Blickendorfer. Q C D., date 6-15-27, $1 00 S½ E½ of outlot 2 Klemmes 1st add to Klemme.

Frank Rayhons wife to John J. Rayhons. Q. C. D., date 8-30-27, $1; N½ of SW¼ and N½ of S½ of SW¼ 15-96-24 120 acres.

First National Bank, Fort Dodge, Iowa, to First National Co, of Fort Dodge W. D. date 6-28-27, $1.00 NW¼ 24 and N½ SW¼ 24-94-23.

Trade Name: L. H. Medgaarden, owner under trade name of Kanawha Auto Co.

James L. Manuel wife to Union Central Life Ins. Co., W. D, date 7-1-27, $1.00, N½ of SE¼ and SW ¼ SE¼ and SE¼ SW¼ 28-96-24.

FOREST HILLS SCHEDULES BIG TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIPS FOR THIS SUMMER

Many Great Players From Overseas Will Compete at Famous Long Island Courts Where Dust Has Been Outlawed—Betty Nuthall Expected.

FOREST HILLS, Long Island, with its beautiful tennis stadium, will again be the scene of stirring tournaments this summer, with considerable amount of the limelight focussed on women players.

The Wightman Cup matches of 1927, which decide the women's team championship between this country and England has been scheduled for August 12 and 13 by the International Play Committee of the U. S. Lawn Tennis Association.

Since 1923 this is the third time this feature has been on the lists of the West Side Tennis Club at Forest Hills. Wimbledon was given the honor in 1924 and last year.

Among the American candidates are Miss Helen Wills, Mrs. George W Wightman, Mrs. Molla B. Mallory, Miss Elizabeth Ryan, Mrs. Marion Z Jessup, Miss Eleanor Goss, Miss Martha Bayard, Mrs. A. H. Chapin, Jr., Mrs. J. D. Corbiere, Miss Margaret Blake, Miss Penelope Anderson and Miss Helen Jacobs.

The English nominees will be unusually strong this year, led in all probability by the brilliant Miss Betty Nuthall, who beat Mrs. Mallory so handily in June though the English girl is only sixteen and was still in pinafores when Mrs. Mallory won her first championship; Mrs. Kitty K. Kane Godfrey, Miss Joan Fray and Miss Evelyn Colyer.

Then will follow the women's national championships, scheduled for August 22 and played as usual at the Long Island stadium.

Finally the season will wind up in glory with the men's national championships from September 12 to 19 which promises to be the most exciting in years.

So the tennis fans are likely to see some good sport this year on the fast Forest Hills grounds, considered by many spectators the nearest to ideal in the United States.

It is the only tennis stadium in the world that is built of concrete and has accommodations for 13,000 spectators The enclosure, approximately an oval, is 145 feet in width and 195 feet in length, with space for three courts and ample room around them.

For the comfort of the fans, as well as the players, hardly a speck of dust is allowed to float into the atmosphere. The grounds are rolled, manicured constantly and any loose earth is treated with calcium chloride to keep it from flying about.

This material is also used on the championship clay courts to lay the dust and give a fast resilient surface for championship play.

MAY HAVE A FALL CELEBRATION IN KLEMME SOON

Boosters for a Fall Celebration circulated a subscription paper in Klemme yesterday and met with fine results.

At this time the date has not been definitely set but Friday, Sept. 23, was mentioned as being the likely date.

The program will be worked out tonight at a meeting of business men and plans completed.

However, keep the date in mind and watch for further particulars and advertising matter.

"THE CAMPUS FLIRT"

If you want a college education in the course of an hour, one devoid of study, yet teaching the latest in laughs, go to the Lyric Theatre at Garner. Tuesday or Wednesday, Sept 20-21

The reason is Bebe Daniels' She's back again Bebe is cast as a "miscast" a girl who is sent to an American co-educational college because it is her father's alma mater. He feels that his daughter's snobbish, arrogant ways are merely a veneer through which the girl's true character will come smiling after a period of shoulder-rubbing with other students.

Of course, Bebe gets off on the wrong foot. How she changes and finally "finds" herself creates and causes an ocean of laughs.

R. KAHL GIVEN JAIL SENTENCE OF THREE MONTHS

Picked Up In Wright County On A Bootlegging Charge

Ray Kahl was arrested by Wright County officials Friday night when it was alleged he sold liquor to a state agent.

Kahl was taken before Judge Clark at Boone Monday where he plead guilty and was sentneced to three months in the county jail at Clarion and fined $300.

Kahl is a son-in-law of J. A. Keever, of Klemme, but is little known here as he has been residing in St. Paul, and recently moved to Belmond.

STUDENTS ENTERTAIN SCHOOL FACULTY

HIGH SCHOOL GIVES PICNIC FOR TEACHERS AT CLEAR LAKE

All School Activities Now Organized And Great Interest Shown

Recognizing the need for social development of our young folk we were very glad to have the high school students plan a reception for our new faculty members. Both high school students and faculty including our grade teachers sought refuge from the heat at the bathing beach at Clear Lake on Wednesday evening of this week. Not all went in for a plunge but many did and others enjoyed watching those who did. Later all motored around the lake to Bayside Amusement Park where a fire was built and roasted weiners, marshmallows, etc. were relished by all After the repast some took a ride on the roller coaster and several took a fling at roller skating.. Tho tumbles and spills were frequent on the floor, no one suffered any but minor bruises.

Baseball And Orchestra Work

The second week of the school year finds everyone pretty well established in the work. Base ball practice has been begun with over a dozen boys out to make the team Altho the gap left by the departing Seniors will be hard to fill, yet some promising material is being discovered and will be developed.

Our orchestra assembled for their first practice on Monday night of this week and several have shown an interest in this school activity We hope to see a lot of interest aroused in both athletics and music this year as both are of considerable value to those participating and both contribute much to the school spirit of our institution.

Means Sacrifice To Participate

We hope parents will make the necessary sacrifice for their children if they show a relish for either or both athletics and music. However, pupils should not spend time on these outside activities to the later neglect of their regular school work. But many students can find time to do their school work well and also participate in one or both of these lines of interest with profit to themselves, and when they are able, a way should be found if possible to give them a chance. School days are rare opportunities for our young people and when gone by, a lot of the chances for all-around development pass with them.

Two Days Vacation This Week

On Thursday and Friday our students will welcome a release from the confines of our school building while our faculty are at Britt attending the annual county teacher' institute

Some of our students will no doubt attend our County Fair at the same place one or both these days while others tell us they expect to seek employment at good wages that they may have some spending money.

Should Enroll By Sept. 19th

Those who purpose enrolling in our schools this year should not enroll later than Monday, Sept. 19. We can provide room for others in either grades or high school and believe we can make it worthwhile for those who may see fit to cast their lot with us this school year.

P. T. A. Meeting, September 27

A brief program and election of officers will be the order at our next P. T. A. meeting. Date set for meeting, Sept. 27. We wish all parents might join with us in trying to make this a banner year in P. T. A. work and attendance

HANCOCK COUNTY COURT WILL CONVENE SEPTEMBER 26

Judge M. H. Kepler of Northwood Will Preside

The September term of the Hancock County District Court will convene at Garner, September 26 with Judge M. H Kepler of Northwood, presiding.

The docket shows about forty new cases, the majority being law and esuity, a few criminal cases and 3 divorce petitions.

FARMER WOMAN IN OKLAHOMA

Praises Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Because It Gave Her Health and Strength

In a sunny pasture in Oklahoma, a herd of sleek cows was grazing. They made a pretty picture. But the thin woman in the blue checked apron sighed as she looked at them. She was tired of cows, tired of her tedious work in the dairy. She was tired of cooking for a houseful of boarders, besides caring for her own family. The burdens of life seemed too heavy for her failing health. She had lost confidence in herself.

One day she began taking Lydia E. Pinkham s Vegetable Compound and her general health began to improve. She took it faithfully. Now she can do her work without any trouble, sleeps well and is no longer blue and timid.

This woman, Mrs. Cora Short, R. R. 9, Box 387, Oklahoma City, Okla., writes: "Everybody now says: 'Mrs. Short, what are you doing to yourself?' I weigh 135 and my weight before I took it was 115. I have taken seven bottles of the Vegetable Compound."

Other women who have to work hard and keep things going may find the road to better health as Mrs. Short did, through the faithful use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Ask your neighbor.

For Old Sores
Hanford's Balsam of Myrrh
Money back for first bottle if not suited. All dealers.

Deafness—Head Noises
RELIEVED BY
LEONARD EAR OIL
"Rub Back of Ears"
INSERT IN NOSTRILS
At All Druggists. Price $1
Folder about "DEAFNESS" on request.
A. O LEONARD, INC 70 FIFTH AVE., N. Y.

REDUCE PUFFED ANKLES

Absorbine reduces strained, puffy ankles, lymphangitis, poll evil, fistula, boils, swellings. Stops lameness and allays pain. Heals sores, cuts, bruises, boot chafes. Does not blister or remove hair. Horse can be worked while treated. At druggists, or $2.50 postpaid. Describe your case for special instructions. Horse book 5-S free.

Grateful user writes: "Have tried everything. After 3 applications of Absorbine, found swelling gone. Thank you for the wonderful results obtained. "I will recommend Absorbine to my neighbors".

ABSORBINE
TRADE MARK REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.
W. F. YOUNG, Inc. 510 Lyman St., Springfield, Mass.

Long Family Homestead

Coursing westward toward Manchester, Conn., along an old highway at Ellington, the tourist's eye is caught by a dignified square brick house of a former period. If curiosity leads him to make inquiries, he will learn that this place, since 1717, has been the Pinney homestead, where seven successive generations of the family have lived and that the only deed ever given to the property is the one that the first settler of the town, Samuel Pinney, took from the Indians before building his log cabin in that year.

Too Late

She—You have papered that wall quite nicely, Harry. But what are those lumps?

He—Ah! Now I remember, I must have left the pictures on the wall.—Vancouver Province.

Next Question

"What's new in th news?"
"Beautiful blonde wants freedom."
"Is she married or in jail?"

Slowing Up?
You Can't Feel Well When Kidneys Act Sluggishly.

OVERWORK, worry and lack of rest, all put extra burdens on the kidneys. When the kidneys slow up, waste poisons remain in the blood and are apt to make one languid, tired and achy, with dull headaches, dizziness and often a nagging backache.

A common warning of imperfect kidney action is scanty or burning secretions. Doan's Pills assist the kidneys in their eliminative work. Are endorsed by users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

DOAN'S PILLS 60c
STIMULANT DIURETIC TO THE KIDNEYS
Foster-Milburn Co. Mfg. Chem. Buffalo, N.Y.

Stomach Disorders
are decidedly unpleasant
Green's August Flower
a gentle laxative, will act promptly in relief of stomach and bowel troubles, and your freedom from pain and discomfort will make you feel that life is again worth living.
30c and 90c bottles. At all druggists, G. G. Green, Inc., Woodbury, N. J.

W. N. U., DES MOINES, NO. 38–1927.

COPYRIGHT by The PENN PUBLISHING CO.

STORY FROM THE START

Garth Guthrie, Canadian war veteran, having to live in the open on account of weakened lungs, is factor of a Hudson's Bay post at Elkwan. He came back from the conflict with a permanently scarred face, which he realizes cost him the love of his fiancee, Edith Falconer. Sir Charles Guthrie, his brother, is a millionaire war profiteer. With Etienne Savanne, halfbreed, his firm friend, Garth meets Doctor Quarrier, geologist, and his sister Joan. Their schooner has drifted ashore. Quarrier complains he has been robbed by a man known as "Laughing McDonald." At Elkwan an Indian girl, Ninda, tuberculosis victim, whom Garth has befriended, is dying. Joan, trained war nurse, cares for Ninda, but the girl dies. Charles Guthrie writes reproaching his brother for not coming home. Charles' wife assures him Ethel still loves him, but Garth in his heart knows better. Three of McDonald's party visit Elkwan seeking to buy gun shells. From them Garth learns of evil talk among the Indians concerning him and Ninda. With Etienne's help Garth wins the friendship of Saul Soucl, "medicine man" of the Crees, and gets his promise to persuade the Crees to take their furs to Elkwan instead of to McDonald. Garth is ambushed by Joe Mokoman, Ninda's reputed father, whom the factor had driven from Elkwan.

CHAPTER V—Continued

—8—

The Ojibwa leered. "You tak' de woman. You kick Joe Mokoman. W'at you do wid de woman?"

"She is dead," said Garth, quietly.

"You tak' de woman to Albanee. You geeve Joe Mokoman mooch debt?" The face of the speaker knotted with hate of the man who was measuring the distance which separated them and—wondering.

"What do you want—how much trade goods?" temporized the white man as he covertly edged a foot forward in the snow.

"You geeve sled-load; flour, tea, blanket, gun?" The face of the Indian lighted with the thought of the spoil which awaited him at the post.

"You want a four-dog sled-load? Garth scratched his knotted forehead, as if debating the value of the goods. It was twenty feet—he couldn't make it. He must get nearer, somehow, he thought.

The Indian nodded. "Four-dog team—flour, blanket, all de—" With a quick movement he brought the gun to his shoulder as the white man slid a moccasin nearer. "Beka! Stop!" he cried, his swart face purple with rage. "You move, I keel you!"

It was no use. There was no chance of getting close enough for a lunge. Garth changed his tactics as the evil eyes of the other narrowly watched him. Turning his back, Guthrie calmly proceeded to finish the dressing of the caribou.

For a space the Ojibwa stood holding the gun on the back of the white man, his face picturing amazement and doubt. Then he said: "You geeve me dis stuff?"

"Sure," replied the man, busy with his knife, as he mentally groped for a way out of his predicament—puzzled as to whether the Indian would shoot if he rushed him.

"You lie—I feex you!" warned Mokoman.

For a space there was no answer from the man using the skinning knife; then suddenly getting to his feet and facing the Indian, who warily covered him with his rifle, Garth said good naturedly: "You'll get the sled-load," but the eyes of the man who smiled had seen something which had started his heart pounding in his throat. His fingers, blue with cold, shut on the handle of his knife, turning the knuckles white. "Oh, yes! I'll give you—the stuff," said Garth, jerkily, his muscles stiffening like clamped springs as he waited. "You come to Elkwan—and I'll give you—all the stuff—you can—

"Get 'em, Shot!" roared Garth, lunging forward and to one side, while a blur of black and tan catapulted into the Indian's back, carrying him headlong to the snow, as the rifle exploded. With a snap of powerful jaws, the hood of the Ojibwa was torn from his head—a lunge and the long fangs met in the flesh of the shoulder; then Guthrie dragged the maddened dog from the shrieking man who writhed in the snow, arms shielding his face.

With a grip on the collar of the struggling dog, Garth picked up the rifle on the snow and regained his own, while the Indian whined over his lacerated shoulder.

"Well, how about it now?" rasped Guthrie with a hard laugh, stroking the neck of the excited airedale.

"Hold dat dog!" cried the Ojibwa, getting to his feet and backing away from the black and tan fury who strained toward him, hot with lust of battle.

"I'll hold the dog. He won't bother you. And you stay where you are. You're going to tell your story to Saul Soucl."

The evil eyes of the Ojibwa widened in surprise. "Soucl?" he muttered.

"Yes! Soucl is going to Akimiskl to watch you people. He'll put devils into some of you before the winter is over. Now what did you throw that gun on me for? I ought to give you a good hammering."

The Indian essayed a smile but his face showed his fear. "I not shoot—I—" Then he asked weakly: "You lie w'en you say you geeve de trade good?"

"I lied," was the dry reply. "Now we'll start for the lake. Mush!"

When Etienne and Saul returned from the Muskeg, Garth told his story

"By gar, dat good dog. Shot!" And Etienne rubbed the dog's ears.

"Yes," and Guthrie took the hairy head in his hands as he smiled into the dog's worshiping eyes. "He did the trick for Garth, didn't he?" he said as he bent and rested his face against the airedale's neck.

"Dis man, I t'ink cum up riviere for McDonald Ha! Ha!" said Saul.

"You think he is working to get the up-river trade away from us, too?"

Saul nodded. "He was here before de ice, some hunter tell me."

Garth turned to Etienne. "So McDonald is out to swamp us—hog all the fur this year? Well, we'll give him a fight for it, Etienne," he said, savagely smarting with stung pride at the cool attempt of the free-trader to steal the river trade from under his nose.

"W'at you do wid dis skunk?" And Etienne nodded toward the prisoner, sitting dejectedly on the opposite side of the fire.

Saul looked hard at the white man, who did not answer, then said in Cree to Etienne: "This weasel of an Ojibwa only makes trouble. It is better to send him back to McDonald Ha! Ha! under the ice," and the Cree drew a sinewy hand suggestively across his throat.

At the words and gesture, Joe Mokoman slowly changed color. His hands shook with fear. Drops of sweat stood out on his forehead. The small eyes of Etienne twinkled with amusement as he repeated the remark to his chief.

"It would serve him right, Saul, but I want him to take a message to McDonald."

That morning, with sleds heavy with caribou meat, the three started for Elkwan with the agent of McDonald Ha! Ha!

CHAPTER VI

—

When the last ice-cap, which imprisoned the north, receded, leaving in its wake the great inland sea of Hudson's bay with its long arm piercing the hinterlands to the south, among the many islands scattered in its track, by far the largest was Akimiskl. And through the centuries Akimiskl came to be known as a favorite haunt of the black, the black-cross, and the silver-gray foxes. And each winter, the Hudson's Bay company sent hunters there to seek the precious pelts. Then came the Revillon Freres, and they also sent men to winter on the island, for the spoil of its wind-harried tundra, which paralleled the west coast for sixty miles, was priceless.

And now to this land of the little foxes of the glossy black and silver pelts, for which fair women would pay fabulous prices in the markets of the world, had sailed the schooner of a stranger seeking the loot of the Akimiskl barrens—a man of daring, who had sailed straight to the course, and whose little schooner already lay locked in the shore ice of Seal cove. Here, while the tides, freighted with broken ice, still patroled the strait, barring the birchbarks of daring hunters, cutting off the shore posts from all trade, McDonald Ha! Ha! was prepared to welcome the trappers of Akimiskl with his flour and sugar and tea, his tobacco and cloth and gewgaws.

Garth Guthrie sat in his trade-room with old Saul and Etienne, in council of war. For days after their return from up river, the wind had made the strait impassable to the York boat, which had been left at its summer anchorage in the channel for this use. The tide had kept the lower river open and with the right wind the thing could be done, Garth had reasoned. But the Indians had shaken their heads. It was sure madness not to wait for the cold, which would set the ice far out from each shore. Then they might hazard it with the canoe on the sled.

As for Joe Mokoman he had spent the days in whimpering over the sudden death which awaited him in the attempted crossing. But Guthrie had a message for McDonald, which Mokoman was to carry. It was the penalty, Garth told him, with a twinkle of the eye, for throwing a gun on a Hudson's Bay factor.

But the severe frost might hang off for weeks, until after Christmas, in fact; and the hunters would take their fur to the schooner, Guthrie argued, and the man who had lived for four years with risk in each breath he inhaled, in every measured minute, insisted that the attempt be made to cross the strait at once. So one morning they put out with a westerly wind and by much rowing and battering and dodging of drifting ice, landed Saul with his dogs, and Mokoman, on the shore ice of Akimiskl, ten miles across the strait from Elkwan point.

Saul set out with his dog team for the camp of his sons, while the Ojibwa started down the coast with Guthrie's letter to McDonald, which ran:

"Mr. McDonald,

"Schooner Ghost, Seal Cove, Akimiskl Island.

"Dear Sir:

"The bearer of this letter, Joe Mokoman, the Indian you sent up river to steal the trade from me, is returned to you with thanks. He tried to ambush me at Elkwan lake, and it is solely owing to the fact that I could use him as a messenger, that you look upon his handsome face again.

"The purpose of this communication is to announce that, as you intend to hog the trade of Akimiskl from your strategic position at Seal cove, I shall use my position on the Elkwan to insure that trade going to me alone, so you may spare yourself the trouble of sending any more Indians up river, for you'll never hear of them again. As to the island trade, I was here first, and I'm going to fight you for it.

"GUTHRIE, ELKWAN."

Then the two men started back in the leaking York boat, and after a day of slavery at the sweeps, with the help of the northeast wind and the tide, reached Elkwan, and warped the craft up out of harm's way to her winter berth on the high shore.

The fight was on, but the saving of their share of the Christmas trade in foxes, when the pelts were prime, depended on the ice. Saul had a free hand to pick up all the skins he could get hold of for Guthrie at a good price if the Indians would wait, but the lure of the schooner's trade-goods, within easy reach, would be too much for the mercurial Crees, unless the strait froze and they could cross to Elkwan for the New Year's festivities. The strait impassable, Garth and Etienne knew that the bulk of the valuable fur would go to McDonald. That was the problem they faced as they sat in the trade-house on their return, and made their plans.

"What makes you think that Saul can get them to hold their fur and keep away from the schooner?" Guthrie asked. Since Etienne's two evenings of smoke talk with old Saul, in his shack at Elkwan, before the Treaty Chief was landed on the island, the head man had acquired an optimism which somewhat puzzled his superior.

The black eyes of the half-breed snapped "I t'ink Saul weel mak' de medicin' for dem. He ees beeg shaman wid dose Elkwan an' Kapiskau Cree."

"Can he control all his own people?"

"Some ov dem—some not, mebbe."

"What has medicine making got to do with getting our share of the trade, anyway?"

Again Etienne's leather-skinned face broke into a net-work of fine lines as his eyes lighted with amusement. "You see, M'sieu' Guthrie, w'en he start to work."

Garth was interested. He had thought only of Saul's influence as Treaty Chief The use of magic in the defeat of McDonald's plans lent a new angle to the matter.

"You mean that he's going to hold a pow-wow of some kind and declare that the schooner is bad medicine—haunted by evil spirits?"

"Well," mebbe he have dream dat schoonair breeng bad luck, yes. Mebbe he see devil on dat schoonair, I don' know. He tell me he weel mak' de medicine-lodge on de islan'."

"Well, I'll be d—d!" It had never entered Garth's mind that the reputation of old Saul as one having intimate relations with spirits, good and evil, could be put to use on the island. But the wily old Cree had evidently taken it for granted that he was to set his powers as a conjurer against the odds which confronted the factor of Elkwan.

"Etienne, it's a great idea! If he can bewitch that schooner, we'll lick 'em yet!"

"Old Saul say he not know what he do. Some hunter ovair dere are stranger. He tak' de dog an' go see dem, den he mak' medicine-lodge and breeng all the Injun to hear de spirit talk."

The idea was masterful. If the old shaman could convince the hunters of Akimiskl that the schooner was "tabu," forbidden ground to the Crees—that it was the haunt of demons and spirits who had taken this method to lure the Crees to perdition, he could hold much of the trade for Elkwan. Nervously pacing the floor, Guthrie voiced his enthusiasm for old Saul's plan.

"Etienne, if he can bewitch the schooner, we'll make them work to get that fur. Why, we can use the very name against them—'The Ghost.' Haunted with devils! The Devil Ship! That's the idea! Laughing McDonald may not get the haul he figures on, after all."

Into the night, the two discussed the plan of the old Indian to undermine the operations of McDonald Ha! Ha! against the fox pelts of Akimiskl. But when he sought his bed, the thoughts of Garth Guthrie were of the short, swift days when a girl with dark, straight-gazing eyes and a mass of unruly hair whose errant tendrils defied restraint, had noiselessly taken charge of the house and the stricken Ninda—who had, with such delicacy, eased the sting of the tragedy which followed his homecoming.

To the girl who, in her blond loveliness, smiled from his dresser, in the dim candle light, Garth vouchsafed the acknowledgment of a doubtful shake of the head. "The sister-in-law of the great Sir Charles Guthrie," he quoted from Clara's letter. "No, you haven't changed, my dear. You're the same old Ethel." And he blew out the candle. But before he slept, he told himself that whatever Christmas might bring in the way of ill luck to Elkwan, it would be compensated for by the arrival of the mail team from Albany with Joan Quarrier's promised letter.

* * * * * * * *

Frozen in under the lee of the timberless hills circling the cove, the schooner of Laughing McDonald lay sheathed with ice and snow, snugly wedged in her winter berth, her bare poles and stack, from the galley, alone marking her in the litter of broken ice.

In the cramped area of the little cabin, piled with boxes, sat three men: Skene, the middle-aged Newfoundland mate, with the short leg; Breault, the master, big, black-bearded, beefy, with small, hard eyes, which shifted overmuch as he talked; and on a strongly made wooden box with a heavily stenciled end, was doubled the third. Although hunched on the box of ammunition, his long arms clasping his knees, the lean bulk and length of the man were manifest. From the sleeves of his arctic overshirt, wrists and hands, eloquent of the bone and thews muffled in the thick clothes, protruded. Anywhere between Whale river on the east coast and Elkwan, the face of this man would have furnished his identification. Below rebellious russet hair and cold blue eyes, the devastation left by a shell fragment had baffled the art of the plastic surgeons. The patched semblance of a mouth, twisted with its gashed cheek into an endless leer, like a gargolye on a gothic tower, stamped the face of Laughing McDonald with an aspect fiendish, diabolical. Young, with the body of a Viking, this man with eyes blue as the bergs which sweep its coast had returned to Canada from the war, wearing for features a comic mask, which, according to their kind, shifted the eyes of the beholders in pity, or drew the stealthy snigger of derision. But most, who for the first time looked upon the great-shouldered giant with the ice-blue eyes and mangled mouth, turned to marvel what a man for the eye must have been he who was now "Laughing McDonald."

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Indians Resent Terms Derogatory to Race

Melvin R. Gilmore of the Museum of the American Indian in New York says that the Indians resent having the words "squaw" and "papoose" applied to their women and children. "The use of the terms 'buck,' 'squaw' and 'papoose' is not only an offense against refined speech," according to Gilmore, "but those who use such terms are thereby incapacitated to fairly appreciate the Indian, or anything of Indian culture. The psychological effect of the use of such terms is to inhibit the mind of one who uses them from estimating Indians in their proper human relationship. And I may say that of all the wrongs and injustices suffered by the Indian race, the native American race, none causes more bitter, burning resentment, and naturally so, than this of declassing Indians apart from all human kind by the use of these reprehensible and derogatory terms."

Strength Tests

Tests of strength have been made, and the followlng are given as the average figures for the white race: The "lifting powers" of a youth of seventeen is 280 pounds; in his twentieth year this increases to 320 pounds; and in the thirtieth year it reaches its height—365 pounds; at the end of the thirty-first year the strength begins to decline, very slowly at first By the fortieth year it has decreased 81 pounds, and this diminution continues until the fiftieth year is reached, when the figure is 230 pounds. After this period the strength falls more and more rapidly until the weakness of old age is reached.

Book Buyer Got Bargain

A recent issue of the Boston Herald announces the presentation to the Harvard College library of "A Book for Boys and Girls," by John Bunyan, and published by "Nathaniel Ponder at the Peacock in the Poultrey, London." Ordinarily a child's story book would not be of great interest to Harvard librarians, but this book is different. Perhaps Miss Miller, the former owner of the book, can best realize just how different this book is from the other books, for she purchased it from a peddler for about six cents and only a few months ago sold it at auction in London for $10,000.—Market for Exchange.

Paris' Lone Oak

Paris, which contains more than 100,000 trees, has only one oak tree. The commonest ones are platanes, chestnuts, elms and maples.

The Racer

When I'm burning up the miles—every cylinder working overtime at tremendous temperatures—there's at least one thing I know won't go wrong—and that's spark plugs. I insist on Champions!

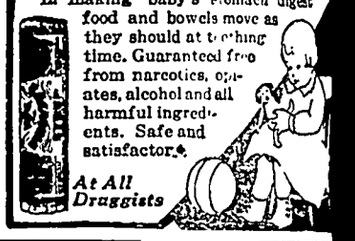
Champion is the better spark plug because of its double-ribbed sillimanite core—its two-piece construction and its special analysis electrodes.

Champion X—for Fords 60¢
Champion—Cars other than Fords 75¢

CHAMPION
Spark Plugs
TOLEDO, OHIO

For your protection be sure the Champions you buy are in the original Champion cartons.

Keep Stomach and Bowels Right
By giving baby the harmless, purely vegetable, infants' and children's regulator,
MRS. WINSLOW'S SYRUP
brings astonishing, gratifying results in making baby's stomach digest food and bowels move as they should at teething time. Guaranteed free from narcotics, opiates, alcohol and all harmful ingredients. Safe and satisfactory.



At All Druggists

Bunions
Quick relief from pain. Prevent shoe pressure.
At all drug and shoe stores
Dr Scholl's Zino-pads

Put one on—the pain is gone

German Airplanes Far Superior to British

It was not coura[ge] alone that ga[ve] the German air forces their decide[d] superiority over the British early [in] 1917, just before the United Stat[es] entered the war, points out Floyd Gi[b]bons, noted war correspondent, in [an] article in Liberty "German technic[al] genius and industrial efficiency we[re] responsible in no small degree for th[e] successes of her flying forces. The[y] brought out their new spring mod[el] planes at least six months before th[e] British could deliver theirs at th[e] front.

"For this failure on the part [of] home production in England," Gi[b]bons declares, "scores of young Brit[-]ish flyers paid with their lives. The[ir] old, last-year machines, slow and cu[m]bersome, were hopelessly outclasse[d] by the new German scouts. The Ge[r]man machines could literally fly ci[r]cles around their adversaries; could outclimb and outmaneuver any Bri[t]ish plane in the air."

Civilization is all "unfinished bus[i]ness." Don't try to make laws to bring it about instantly.

If you are rich enough, you may be allowed to live as simply as the poor.

Practical women fast dye their dresses and hose with RIT
FAST DYES OR TINTS

FARMS Low Priced, Easy Terms, Eastern North Dakota, Western Minnesota. Write
ED C. ANDERSON
Box 335, Opposite Post Office, FARGO, N. D.

List of 20,000 Married Women in Chicago on Addressing Plates. Your envelopes, post cards or folders addressed at $3 per M. ADVANCE ADDRESSING & MAILING CO., Pontiac Bldg., Chicago, Ill.

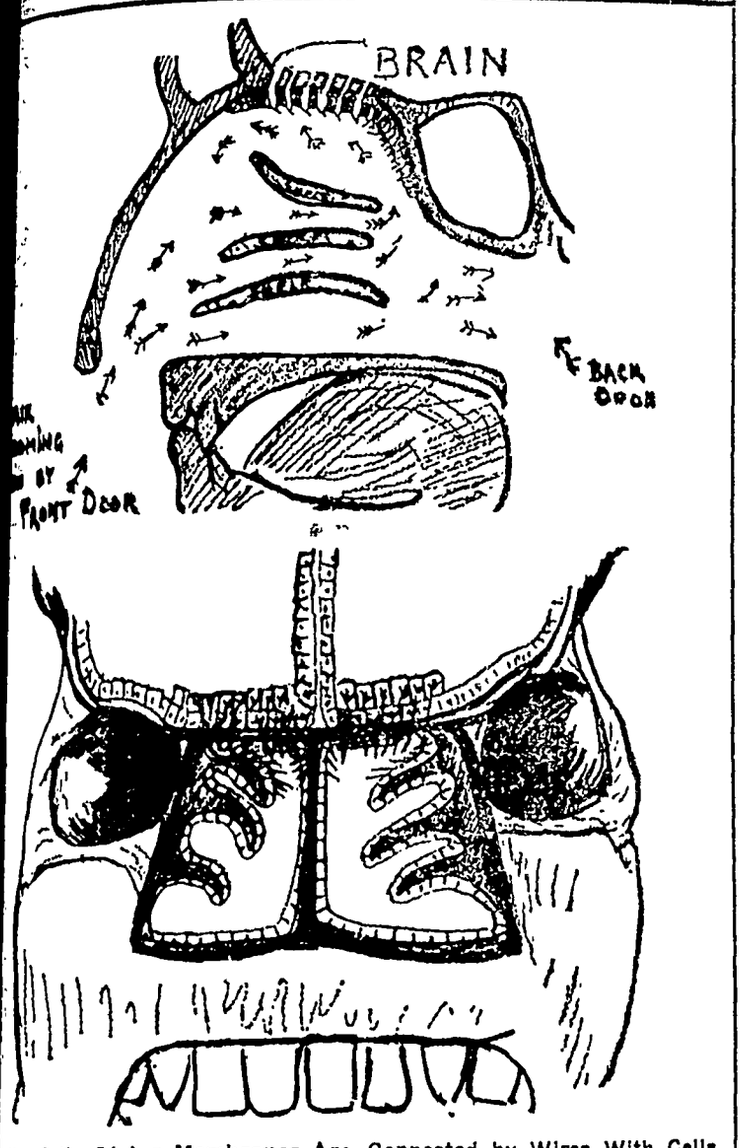
HOTEL ELLIOTT Des Moines, Iowa
219 Fourth Street
A Pleasant, Home-like Hotel Centrally Located
Rates: $1.25 to $2.00.

PARTNER with some capital wanted for established 160 acre Poultry, Dairy and Truck farm 3 mi. from Oklahoma City. Investment amply secured. A real opportunity. Person, Capitol Hill Sta., Oklahoma City, Okla.

OURSELF nd YOUR BODY

By WILFRED T. GRENFELL

IAL SENTINELS OR CONTROLS T HELP US GUIDE OUR MACHINE



lls of the Lining Membranes Are Connected by Wires With Cells In Central.

HERE is one other thing you ought to understand, and that is how you are to know if you are putting too much ttle into your machinery. You measure the amount of fuel u are supplying to your ma- by feet or inches, or by pounds ts, or by dollars and cents. We have some other kind of meas- . So we have been obliged to something which we call 'cal- Since we must keep our bodies die, we can measure the value rything given them by the that it can heat, whether it is or a turnip.

kes about three thousand cal- day to keep my body right in y weather. Big folks, hard nd cold weather use up more tle folks, warm weather, and But it is easy for anyone to much they ought to put in the ecause you can get a list which ou exactly how many calories g gives you, from a slice of k to a cupful of milk. You can a list of how much you should your size and circumstances. have to keep up the heat of y or you cannot have strength rgy. So watch your diet, learn trol, and pass a law of pro- against your own mouth when ve had enough.

controls are of two kinds; the u and I have a share in—and e don't We share in at least trols, seeing, hearing, smelling, g, tasting and voluntary muscle in the pumping, balancing, draining and vessel manage- nd many others, we have lit- rol or none. They need an ex- we could not give.

let's look at the smell con- rst. How does this machine I've told you everything we of in this world depends on nt for existence, and all these s depend on movements that ictures, like my hand moving n along makes these words, form pictures in your eyes and n wired to your brain, and you t what I want. You call that ." Now the smelling control is accurate and very simple ma- Some animals trust to it more any other. Clever as Reynard is, I have seen him walk right nd over an open marsh into y arms, almost, of a hunter, as kneeling perfectly still and a chirpy noise, like a mouse grass. The wind was blowing ll particles that come off even anest man, like off everything the opposite direction. And d was trusting entirely to his d not to his eyes. I have lain a flat marsh and shot at a herd . The smoke of my rifle was easy to see. But the deer d—looked at it and then came on near me, with their eyes pen and their ears alert. The particles were again blowing er way, and they did not trust yes. No one control should be . Look at this glass of water you drink it?"

by its looks."

ll, if you did you would very die of typhoid fever. Your eye ee the germs."

h control is a machine, and an ect one, and each is dealing iolent forces. Thus the light es of a brilliant lightning flash estroy the eye, the smell par- of a skunk can kill a dog, the sound-waves of an explosion can burst an ear-drum.

"All the control machines are closely guarded, like King Tut's tomb. In the smell-machine small particles are first sniffed up through two doors, called nostrils, which can open and shut as a first guard. Then in the chamber inside are lots of short hairs to filter or keep out big strangers that might do harm, like flies or dirt. The linings of the chambers are all wrinkled up to make a big surface over the hot pipes that warm and moisten the air as it comes in. Over these are again spread guard cells, that throw out a sticky jelly called mucous, to glue little germs and dirt into bundles so that our lungs, or force pumps, can drive up blasts of air through the back doors into the chambers and blow the whole lot out, and so get rid of it. We call that 'sneezing.' A cold is caused from failing to get rid of germs. Then higher up, right at the very top, are a lot of fine cells from which are wires going right through the bony ceiling, which is the floor of the skull. They go in groups, direct to central. (See picture.) These cells have very fine hairs on them; and small particles, such as all smelling things throw off, bang into these, and set them moving like tuning-fork prongs, even if they do it by being dissolved in the moisture that keeps them damp and banging the hairs chemically. This at once makes messages travel along the wires to central, and as they arrive, a picture of the smell is made on the records of the central office. That is how you know the smell again; e. g., like violets. The record offices are called 'memory.' They are real records, lasting as long as central lasts. If you destroy them, then central cannot recognize a sweet rose smell from a bad drain odor. And lucky for us it is that our smell center isn't like a blood-hound's or a setter dog's. The air is probably as full of smells as it is known now, by the radio, to be full of sounds, and if we could smell them all, we would have to go about with croquet clips on our noses. As it is, we have taught ourselves not to notice some smell pictures, while we have taught hounds to notice them, however faint they are. Have you noticed how dogs won't eat anything hardly, without smelling it first? We would hardly dare to smell at each dish that the waiter hands to us at a dinner-party. By neglecting to educate the smell-cells, however, our noses fail to notify us of even some of the worst gases; we may lose our lives as the result. Still smells do often warn us of danger long before we ever see anything. For example, a poisonous drain, and we can still discern one eight-millionth of a grain of musk, and it is said one twenty-five trillionth of one of mercaptan.

"If the fine hairs on the lining-cells dry up, they can't work. Nor can they if dirt collects on them. There is a sluice over the eye that sends water all the while to wash and keep moist the front of the eye. This water is then led through a pipe in the inner corner of the eye, down into the nose. This washes the hairs, and then the hot pipes make it evaporate and keep them moist, like a cut-flower stem in a glass of water, even on a hot day. One of my patients once had his whole nose cut off. The hairs then got dry and dirty, and I had to make a celluloid nose fitted on to his spectacles, to keep the moisture in. I'm sure I can smell dinner—run away and get ready for it."

(© by the Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

What's the Answer ?

Questions No. 15

1—What is the name of the highest peak of the Pyrenees?

2—Who was the winning running horse of 1926?

3—What was the first steamship to cross the Atlantic and when?

4—When was the first census taken?

5—What is copra?

6—What composer and master of the pianoforte created the form known as the symphonic poem and wove into it the folk songs and dances of his nation?

7—Who was called "The Good Gray Poet"?

8—Of what country is the Raphia palm a native and where does it grow?

9—What is the meaning of "Innocuous desuetude"?

10—In what chapter of Proverbs is this verse: "It is an honour for a man to cease from strife; but every fool will be meddling"?

11—What range of hills is called the backbone of England?

12—Who was the winner of the New York-Port Chester marathon?

13—In whose administration were the alien and sedition laws passed?

14—What President served two terms with an interval of another administration in between?

15—Who was the first to make an airplane flight to the North pole?

16—What movie comedian in America, prior to Charlie Chaplin, achieved celebrity for his acrobatic clowning?

17—Where did Bret Harte die?

18—Where are Gobies found and on what do they live?

19—Why is the sentence "This is the best of the two" incorrect?

20—What is the remainder of the 5th verse, 37th chapter of Isaiah, which reads: "So the servants of King Hezekiah came—"?

Answers No. 14

1—L. Goehring made it in 1912 by jumping 5 ft 5¾ in.

2—Elias Howe, 1846.

3—Aaron Burr.

4—The science that treats of the history of the earth and its life.

5—Becky Sharp, Tess of the d'Urbervilles and Leah Kleschna.

6—Ben Nevis.

7—The Legends of King Arthur and his Round Table

8—A tropical bird of South America whose most conspicuous ornament is a high rounded crest of slender feathers drooping forward over the end of the bill

9—No; the word used should be "suspect."

10—"And there were born unto him seven sons and three daughters."

11—Brittany, in France.

12—Locke of Nebraska made it in 9 9 10 sec.

13—1894.

14—John Quincy Adams.

15—In Colombia, South America.

16—John Ruskin.

17—Two series of humorous satirical poems and articles written by James Russell Lowell during the Mexican and Civil wars.

18—It is a genus of orchids, of commercial value as the source of an extract widely used in flavoring chocolate, ice cream, etc., and is native to North and South America.

19—The latter. The former is affected by some would be purists, without justification.

20—A sacred song.

Witty Retort That Put End to Heckling

The late Rev. S. S. Henshaw, primitive Methodist minister, will long be remembered in Sheffield, says an English periodical. In earlier days he was an active radical, and did much to help the parliamentary candidates of his party. A little man, he had a cutting wit. On one occasion, at election time, his candidate was being badly heckled by a giant publican, who had come to smash the Liberals. The member found him a difficult customer. At last the little preacher plucked his sleeve and whispered: "Let me deal with him." Advancing to the front of the platform, he asked blandly: "Now, sir, what is it you want?" The burly publican, thumbs in the armholes of his waistcoat, eyed him scornfully for a few moments, and then growled: "Thee! Why, man, I could ate thee!" "I dare say you could," flashed back Mr. Henshaw, smiling; "but if you did, you would have more brains in your stomach than you have ever had in your head." There was no further trouble.

Famous Richmonds

Richmond is the name of three well-known places. Richmond, in Yorkshire, England, is noted for its fine Norman castle, now used as barracks. It is a place of great natural beauty. Richmond, in Surrey, England, was formerly called Skene. The view over the Thames is celebrated. The capital of the state of Virginia, on the James river, is the city of Richmond. It was the capital of the Southern Confederacy during the Civil war.—Montreal Herald.

Camel

The cigarette that makes smoking a genuine pleasure

You can smoke Camels all day long without thought but of the pleasure and refreshment that each one brings. That's the advantage of choice tobaccos and skilful blending.

© 1927, R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, Winston-Salem, N. C.

May Shed More Light on Maya Civilization

The ruins of a large Maya pyramid, which may mark another important archeological zone in Mexico, have been found about seven miles from Comitan, a town in Chiapas, according to a report from the secretary of education of Mexico. The discovery was recently made by a federal inspector of rural schools, and descriptions and photographs of the sites have been received by the department of archeology. A large emerald, now said to be in the possession of the President of Guatemala, was reported to have been found in a cave near the pyramid, where amateur explorations had been made. The report of the inspector also states that near the town of Tupachula, also in Chiapas, southern Mexico, a carved stone monument has been discovered, believed to be a stela with numerous Maya hieroglyphics.

Twist of Fate

During the recent medical convention here, Doctor Barlow remarked: "A little more common sense applied to everyday life would save a great many doctors' bills. Too many people are like the young man who went to an oculist with his eyes in terrible condition.

"'I don't understand,' said the oculist, 'how you could have gotten your eyes into such a condition. Surely your work does not tax them to this extent.'

"'No,' admitted the young man, 'they got this way while I was reading a big fine-printed book on "Care and Treatment of the Eyes."'"—Los Angeles Times.

War Price of Wheat

Much argument has resulted from the mistaken notion that the government fixed the maximum or the minimum price of wheat at $2.20 a bushel during the World war. This was the basic rather than the maximum price. Two dollars and twenty-six cents was guaranteed for all wheat of a certain grade at a certain place. The actual price was usually lower or higher, depending on the grade of the wheat and its location.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Appreciative Youngster

A fourteen-year-old Illinois boy wrote to Ambassador Herrick in Paris, asking for his autograph and those of "any other French officials." The ambassador sent the boy five, including those of Foch and Poincare. Then to show that he had been well brought up the youth sent the ambassador a letter of thanks, inclosing a dime, "so that you may buy yourself a good cigar."

Starting Right

Victor—"I would go through anything with you, dear." Vera—"Let's begin with your bank account."

Her Status

He—You were no spring chicken when I married you.

She—No, I was a little goose.

You arrive at truth through poetry; I arrive at poetry through truth.—Joubert.

Huge Statue of Washington

Tourists entering the state of Washington through any one of the four principal roads leading to the commonwealth will be welcomed by a huge statue of the first President mounted on a pedestal 40 feet high, according to Popular Mechanics Magazine. Officially, Washington is the only state in the Union entitled to use such an emblem. The model is being prepared by Alonzo Victor Lewis, a Seattle sculptor.

Truth in Jest

Arthur—Distance makes the heart grow fonder is quite true.

Mary—Yes. It's easier to admire a man when he's well off.

Affection's Root

Larry—"She kisses you every time she asks for money?" Harry—"Yes, she's very affectionate."

The whole world notices when a great man doesn't keep his word.

Fashion Suits Flies

A plague of horseflies is causing the women of Brigend, England, to abandon short dresses. They are taking to longer sleeves, high necks and woolen stockings, too. The voracious insects dote on the bare necks and lengths of silk hose.—Exchange.

Of Course Not

Cook—I've bought some mushrooms today, ma'am.

Madam—Are they edible?

Cook—No, ma'am, they're good to eat.

Subject Matter

"I am going to write a book."

"What about?"

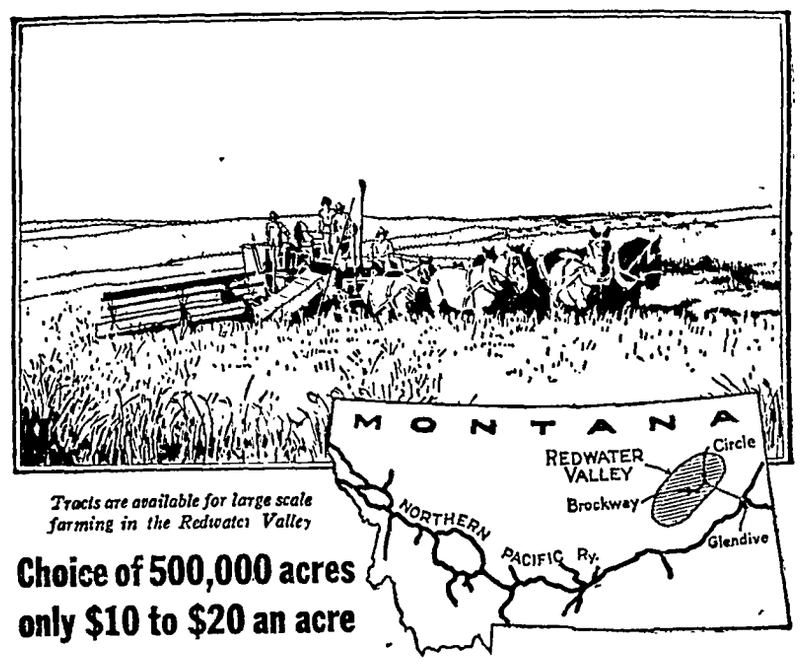
"About 50,000 words."

Barbered Wealth

"Her rich uncle cut her off with practically nothing.'

"Ah, a sort of bobbed heiress."—Hardware Age.

MONTANA'S RICH REDWATER VALLEY OPENED BY NEW RAIL LINE



Choice of 500,000 acres only $10 to $20 an acre

RAPID development of the great farming country in the Redwater Valley of Southeastern Montana is seen in the opening of 1,000,000 acres by a new branch line of the Northern Pacific Railway running 63 miles from Glendive.

Here the Northern Pacific will sell direct to farmers a half million acres, obtained from the U S. Government, at prices ranging from only $10 to $20 an acre, with 20 years to pay Taxes are extremely low—only 10 to 16 cents an acre. Special advantages are available to neighbors and colonies desiring to settle together

Diversified or mixed farming is successful throughout this area. Corn has increased by hundreds of thousands of acres in the last few years in Southeastern Montana. Hog production has grown rapidly All classes of livestock are raised. The dairy industry is getting a good start.

Communities already are established. Churches have been built. Schools are open. There is progress ahead. With the coming of the railroad markets will be closer. More farmers will come in. Land values will increase.

The Northern Pacific Railway will help farmers in getting started right. Settlers are wanted who seek a real chance for themselves and their families. The Northern Pacific will send a representative to talk the matter over, if desired. Investigate this opportunity. Let us send you booklets, prices and easy payment plan. All sent free.

NORTHERN PACIFIC YELLOWSTONE PARK LINE

MAIL COUPON!

J. M. Hughes, Land Commissioner, Northern Pacific Railway Co., St. Paul, Minn

Without obligation on my part please send all information about Redwater Valley Country.

Name.....

Town.....

State.....

African Prickly Pear Has Its Good Points

The prickly pear is said to be so tenacious of life that a leaf or even a small portion of a leaf, if thrown on the ground, strikes out roots within a short time and becomes the parent of a fast-growing plant.

Mischievous though the African prickly pear may be, it is not without its good qualities. Its juicy fruit, though rather deficient in flavor, is delightfully cool and refreshing in the dry heat of summer, and a kind of treacle is made from it.

Great caution is necessary in peeling this curious fruit, the proper way being to impale the fruit on a fork or stick while one cuts it open and removes the skin. The person who undertakes to pluck this treacherous fruit with unguarded fingers meets with an experience he does not soon forget. Concentrated essence of stinging nettle seems all at once to assail hands, lips and tongue, and the skin wherever it comes in contact with the ill-natured fruit, is covered with a group of minute bristly hairs, apparently growing from it, and venomous and irritating to the last degree.

In dry weather these spiteful little stings do not even wait for the newly arrived victim, but fly about, light as thistle-down, ready to settle on anyone who has not learned by experience to give the prickly-pear a wide berth.

Fruit Said to Bear Mark of Eve's Teeth

A fruit supposed to bear the marks of Eve's teeth is one of the botanical curiosities of Ceylon. The tree on which it grows is known by the significant name of "The Forbidden Fruit," or "Eve's Apple Tree."

The blossom is said to have a very pleasant scent, but the really remarkable feature of the tree, the one to which it owes its name, is the fruit. It is beautiful and hangs from the tree in a peculiar manner. Orange on the outside and a deep crimson within, each fruit has the appearance of having had a piece bitten out of it. This fact, together with its poisonous quality, led the Mohammedans to represent it as the forbidden fruit of the Garden of Eden and to warn man against its noxious properties.

The mark on the fruit is attributed to Eve. Why the bite of Adam did not also leave its mark is not explained, but as only one piece seems to be missing, its loss is ascribed to the woman.

Move for World Peace

The first international peace conference around 1900 was called by Czar Nicholas of Russia, May 18, 1899. This was a preliminary conference and a second was called for October 21, 1904. Many questions of international law and procedure were discussed and a later conference assembled in 1907 when such items as humanizing war agencies, the establishment of neutral territory, the freedom of the seas policy, and many others were discussed. Preliminary steps had been taken to call a third conference in 1915, when many matters were to be finally adjusted. This conference was halted by the World war.

Riches of Golden State

The poet who spoke of "jeweled peaks" must have had California in his mind's eye, for some mountains in southern California are fairly studded with whole mines of gems and precious stones—so much so that the Golden state is one of the world's greatest producers of gems and precious and semi-precious stones of great value. Nearly every lovely jewel known to man and adored by woman is found somewhere within the confines of the state, and splendid collections of them are in the world's great museums, both in this country and in England and Europe.

Invention of Radio

Modern radio is the result of a long series of inventions and discoveries in the various fields of science. It cannot be said that any one man invented or discovered radio. However, Guglielmo Marconi, the Italian "wireless wizard," is usually regarded as the "father of radio." He patented the first commercially successful wireless system in 1897. The next revolutionary step in radio was about 1906 when Lee De Forest, an American, invented the audion or three electrode vacuum tube.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Changing the Subject

Dickie is five years old and goes to kindergarten but he realizes that education, for him, has just begun. The other day an intelligence test was given him by some of the older boys.

"Spell pig," said one of the boys.

"P-i-g," Dickie responded.

"Spell telephone," the boy suggested

"Well," declared Dickie, after a moment's hesitation, "we might just as well talk about something else."

Information Wanted

The midday rush was at its height in a big self-service grocery department when a dear old woman sidled up to one of the busy clerks.

"Have you any more jam like I had last time?" she asked.

"What kind was that?"

"Well, now I really forget what it was called. But it was very nice and I thought perhaps some of you might remember."—Vancouver Province.

Use of Green Foods Common in All Ages

Lettuce is one of the oldest vegetables known and was eaten fully 500 years before the Christian era. Aristotle praised it highly. Spinach was introduced into China from Persia about 100 B. C., but was new to Europe in the Sixteenth century. Botanically, one of the most interesting products of the garden is the cabbage family. Kale, brussels sprouts, savoy cabbage, red cabbage, collards, kohlrabi, cauliflower and broccoli are all varieties of one species. Carrots were eaten by the ancients, but they were not very popular. Watercress, growing naturally in all north temperate regions, has been eaten as a salad since the Greek and Roman ascendancy and has been cultivated since the Sixteenth century. Peas were used by ancient Egyptians and others, but were not common food in Europe until the Eighteenth century. It is believed they were grown in the earliest American settlements. Thomas Jefferson recorded the growing of tomatoes in Virginia in 1781, yet it is said than an Italian could not persuade the people of Salem, Mass., to taste them in 1802.—Kansas City Times.

Wise Man Cultivates Orderliness of Mind

Most of us have, at one time or another, gone into a shop to ask for an article and been kept waiting while the distracted shopkeeper searched high and low for the object asked for, often without success. He has such an accumulation of stock dumped here, there and everywhere, just as it was delivered, that he has no idea where anything is.

These disorderly little shops are typical of some people's minds. With their heads crammed full of all sorts of knowledge, they are unable to make use of their mental stock simply because it is so ill-arranged, and has been gathered with so little system or order that when a particular call is made on it the needed knowledge is not forthcoming.

Information to be of use must be capable of ready application. Unless we can arrange our knowledge in decent order, so as to be ready for service, our mind will be little better than a lumber room and our accumulation of mental stock a sheer waste of time.—Exchange.

A Whole Process

Education means much more than instruction. Education is a whole process, of which instruction is only a part. Education is the orderly development of lives, according to scientific principles, into the fullness of their powers, the realization of all their possibilities, the joy of their world, the utmost rendering in efficiency of their service. It includes the training of powers of thought, feeling, willing and doing; it includes the development of abilities to discern, discriminate, choose, determine feel and do. It prepares the life for living with other lives; it prepares the whole of the life, developing the higher nature, the life of the spirit, for living in a spiritual universe.—Henry F. Cope, in "Religious Education in the Family."

Many Tales Told of Production of Pearl

Although pearls have an ancient history, the beliefs of how they are produced have been largely a matter of the imagination. These views have resulted in the production of some of the prettiest fairy tales that human imagination has achieved. It seems almost a pity that these must be replaced by the prosy findings of the science of today.

Some of the ancient tales date back for more than 5,000 years in Chinese history, where we are told that pearls were used to adorn not only favored human beings, but the images of their deities. One of their legends tells of a certain pearl so brilliant that its radiance made it possible to cook rice a hundred yards away. Mystic qualities are even now ascribed to pearls by the Chinese, for we find them prescribed by their old school doctors, crushed to a powder or dissolved in acid, as medicine.

They are mentioned in the Vedas, while the Old and New Testaments, the Talmud and the Koran all exalt them as symbols of beauty and purity. The Persians, long before Christ, valued them, as is shown by their medals and coins and actual pearls found in their burial places.—Exchange.

Had Long Experience With Moving Pictures

A burly man sauntered into the offices of a film-producing company and managed to reach the managing director's office without being accosted.

He told the director that he wished to secure an engagement with the company. As the applicant looked a most unlikely person for such a post, the director asked if he had had any previous experience.

"I get Saturday afternoons off," said the would-be player, "an' I reckon I might as well pass the time actin' for pictures."

"But have you had any experience in moving pictures?" asked the director, who was rather doubtful on the point.

"Have I?" exclaimed the man, and his voice was full of scorn. "I've been driver for the Shiftum Transportation company for five years."—Los Angeles Times.

Ell Township News

(Special Times Reporter)

Miss Lydia Bock was a Garner caller on Monday.

Emma Kothenbeutel visited Miss Stella Bock's school all day Wednesday of this week.

Mrs. Henry Josten has been very ill the past week. She has a nurse, Miss Ferleman, caring for her.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Sanderfeld are the proud parents of a baby boy, who was born to them this week.

Mr. John Bock was in Belmond on business on Wednesday morning of this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wille visited at the Wm and Werner Schlawin homes Sunday afternoon and evening.

Carl Pearson has been plowing on the farm now occupied by Fred Hoffman. The Pearson family will move there in March.

Mrs. Ulrich and children and Mrs. Halverson and baby were visiting at the Peter Merkel home Tuesday. The ladies are both daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Merkel.

Mr and Mrs. Henry Thiemann and family returned Monday evening from South Dakota where they spent about ten days visiting with relatives.

Miss Stella Bock was a Garner caller last Saturday and took some school material, which was made in District No. 7, to the County Superintendent's office for the Hancock County Fair.

As there will be no school on Thursday and Friday of this week on account of Teachers' Institute at Britt, many people are planning to attend the Hancock County fair which promises to be very good this year.

Mr and Mrs. Fred Barz and family, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Barz and family, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Barz and family, Mrs. Lena Schroeder and Max Barz, all enjoyed a family reunion at Pilot Knob last Sunday. A large picnic dinner was enjoyed by all at noon.

Avery-Twin Lakes News

(Special Times Reporter)

Mr Owen Nuehring called at the Dick Swalve home Monday morning.

Mr. Frank Roths was at the Henry Buseman farm Wednesday.

Arthur Klinkhammer is assisting with work at the Ewdin Josten place.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Priebe were at the Henry Josten place Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Buseman drove to Belmond last Monday.

Miss Elsie Nuehring of near Rockwell spent last week visiting with relatives in this vicinity.

Mr. Julius Priebe was at the Henry Josten place Sunday and Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Swalve and children spent Monday evening at the Ben A. Reemstma home.

Albert and Verner Priebe were callers near Ackley Saturday of last week.

Mr E. W. Jass and J. Young of Ventura called at the Dick Swalve home Monday afternoon.

Mr and Mrs. Dick Swalve and son drove to Kanawha to visit the U Smidt family, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. David Schwichtenberg and sons were at Mason City Wednesday. Mrs. Ryan returned to Klemme with them.

Mrs. Frank Ryan and son came Wednesday morning for a visit with relatives here. She returned with her sister, Mrs. Schwichtenberg.

Mrs. Herman Bruns, of Twin Lake township, was taken to the Hampton hospital last Tuesday where on Wednesday morning she underwent an operation. She is getting along fine now.

The Misses Berdice Schwichtenberg and Elsie Nuehring were visiting at the Albert Tanner home north east of Klemme Friday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Lau and family were visiting at the home of Mrs. Lau's parents, Mr. and Mrs. August Haverkamp Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Swalve and son Clarence were visitors at Hampton Saturday to see Mrs. Herman Bruns in the hospital there. They also visited at Sheffield with relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Rust, of Goodell, and Mr. and Mrs. Emery Schaefer of Klemme, spent Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dick Swalve.

Mr. Albert Koerner has been in this vicinity repairing telephones.

Mr and Mrs. William Nuehring and famly of Rockwell vsited at the home of her mother, Mrs. Emma Schwichtenberg, Sunday.

METHODIST CHURCH NOTES

A. W. Gauger, Pastor

Delightful services were ours last Sunday.

Seven little folks were baptized n this day or within the week They were Iva Dell Ruth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Blumer; and Eunice Erden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C A. Larsen, in the Klemme church. Wava Irene and Wayne Clair, twin daughter and son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Schoenwetter; Jesse Donald, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Schwichtenberg; Ronald Eugene, son of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Bredlow, in the Liberty Church.

Walter Vernon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Tanner was baptized on Thursday.

All services are planned to be helpful to those who may come to worship with us.

The pastor has been invited to attend the re-opening service of the Hayfield church and a home coming on Sunday afternoon and evening. He is to speak at the afternoon service and to preach the sermon at the evening service.

We have the promise for a speaker at our evening services in Klemme, so all services will be regular.

Only two weeks remain until Conference and any work or business which needs to be done should be attended to at once

Five persons were received into the Liberty Church last Sunday.

KLEMME REFORMED CHURCH

Calvin Grosshuesch, Pastor

Our congregation will worship with our neighboring Ell town congregation Sunday. Services at Ell town in morning and afternoon.

Our Sunday school will meet at 9:00 o'clock Sunday morning so that all who wish to attend both our S. S. and services at Ell town may do so Confirmation class will commence at 9:00 o'clock Saturday morning. We will organize a new class offering a two year course in Bible and Catechism Students of 12 years of age and over are welcome.

Junior Choir Saturday evening.

Mrs. John Gruetzmacher and Mrs. P M Greisemer entertained a ix o'clock dinner Wednesday evening, Mrs Groh, Mrs Alfred Gruetzmacher and children and Mrs F. Waterman, of Chicago, and Mr and Mrs Frank Gruetzmacher and daughter, Glenna, of this place.

MORE NAMES ADDED TO LIST NUEHRING RE-UNION

Mr. Nuehring writes from Rockwell and mentions the fact that the names of nine more families are to be added to list published in the Times last week of the re-union of the Nuehrings held at Nashua on September 4th.

Here's the list to be added:

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Earstman and family; Mr. and Mrs Walter Ruckdashel and family; Mrs Christ Ruckdashel, all of Postville.

Mr. and Mrs. Art Schroder and family of Castalle; Mr and Mrs. Alvin Nuehring and family of Cartersville; Mr. and Mrs Clarence Bachman of Klemme; Mr and Mrs. Wm. Nuehring, Sr.; Mr. and Mrs. Aug. Rafa and family; Mr and Mrs. Rudolph Nuehring and family, all of

BIRTHS THIS WEEK

A baby girl was born to Mr. and Mrs. John Bachman Tuesda eve.

A baby was born to Mr. and Mrs. Joe Bivens this week.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. Ray Haberkamp, a baby girl this week.

A baby boy was born to Mr. and Mrs. Carl Sanderfelt this week.

BASEBALL UMPIRES HAVE EASIER JOB THIS SUMMER ON DUSTLESS DIAMONDS

Ruth-Gehrig Race for Homers Spurs Others to Better Ones—Grounds Improved in Various Sections of Country, Sports Writers Declare.

BASEBALL umpires every day are getting to be better insurance risks principally because dust, once the bane of the blue-clad arbiter's existence, is being eliminated.

Sports writers all over the country are taking notice of the improvement, even in the wildcat leagues of Texas and the Far West where the old-fashioned "skin" diamonds are being replaced by grass-sod affairs that compare favorably with major league grounds.

In the older days, decisions at the bases and at home plate were always close because the runner tore up the ground so viciously that he invariably raised a cloud of dust, a dust screen—to borrow the nomenclature of naval strategy, that hid his efforts from the umpire.

In that cloud of dust the umpire was frequently at his wits' end to decide the play properly. His uncertain attitude was frequently misunderstood by the fans, with the result that pop-bottles, thrown with great force, were aimed at the judge of play.

Now he has an easy time, speaking comparatively, for dust is scarce. Sporting writers who have studied the matter this year explain the lack of dust as due to several factors.

First, of course, has been the better diamonds. Increased [illegible] baseball has enabled the c[lubs] to build better plants, with [illegible]ing betterments in equipme[nt]. diamonds cost money but [illegible] are supporting baseball m[ore] ously than ever and t[he] "gates" have gone to gir[ls] who pays better surroundi[ngs].

On a grass diamond, wh[ere] a diamond with grass infie[ld] as grass outfield, there [is] little earth, chiefly on t[he] around the plate, and th[e] box. That small amount of [earth] be rolled easily, much more [evenly] economically than when the [infield] field is made of earth, the [old] "skin" diamond.

In addition to the rolling, [there] both on the small amount [of earth] surrounding the grass diam[ond] even on the skin diamond[s] keepers have learned to la[y down] with various chemicals, th[e best] which is calcium chloride.

Another factor producing [better] baseball has been, strange t[o say], baseball itself, which seems [to be] usually lively this year.

Home runs are more frequ[ent] ever and the wonderful race [for] run honors between Babe [Ruth] Lou Gehrig is causing gre[at] ment over the whole country.

Office:— Masonic Bldg. GARNER, IOWA.

Phones:— Office, [illegible] Res., [illegible]

Dr. E. H. Phillips
OSTEOPATHIC PHYSICIAN

Physiotherapy, including Osteopathic treatment, diathermy, surgical diathermy, radiant heat, high frequ[ency] chlorine gas and auto-condensation.

UNDER GOVERNMENT SUPERVISION

A Little Cash Or The Lack Of It

—has frequently changed the course of a man's life. No man is going to be independent—his own master—until he learns to save money. A handsome salary or an inheritance does not materially alter the condition because it is what you save, not what you spend, that makes you wealthy. The best time to save is now and the best place is a Certificate of Deposit.

We invite your business.

First National Bank
KLEMME, IOWA.

The Cause of Low Testing Cream

Perhaps you do not know that there are a number of reasons for low testing of cream and which can often be easily remedied. We would suggest that you check over your separator thoroughly. Here are a few reasons for low test cream:

1. Ceam screw turned too far from center of separator bowl.
2. Clogging of skim-milk outlet with dirt.
3. Excessive inflow of milk into the separator bowl.
4. Speed of separator bowl too slow.
5. Milk too high in temperature.
7. Too much skim-milk or water used in flushing separator bowl.

If your separator is not delivering cream that is testing between 25 or 40 per cent fat you should check up on some of the above possible reasons and see if you cannot remedy the trouble. It is high testing cream of good flavor that means fancy butter and consequently more for your cream.

Clean, barns, clean pails, clean hands, means clean milk. A clean separator and the cream immediately cooled and kept nice and sweet are other factors the successful dairyman thinks of. Keep up the quality during this hot spell and deliver to us nice, sweet cream and you will be repaid for th extra effort.

We want to thank you for the co-operation you are giving us in our request for high quality cream. Keep it up!

Klemme

Co-Op. Creamery Co.

——GET THE——

Demsey-Tunney Fight

Thursday, September 22, 1927

—— ON AN ATWATER-KENT RADIO ——

We are authorized Dealers on ATWATER-KENT RADIO, Philco Eliminators & A Batteries, Everyready B Batteries.

Phone Us For A Demonstration—We Will Glady Demonstrate In Your Own Home

Prouty Electric Shop

GARNER — IOWA

Fall Fencing

Now is a good time to do your Fall Fencing. For a quick, satisfactory job we recommend RED TOP Steel Posts, either for a temporary fence or a permanent line fence. We carry a full line of AMERICAN Woven Wire in all sizes, also Barb Wire, all kinds of wood posts, corner posts and steel gates.

Cement Work

Now is a good time to build that Feeding Platform you have been planning on. We have lots of cement on hand now. This is good weather for cemet work of any kind.

WHATEVER YOU NEED—

—for your September building or repairing, we have it.

We can supply any size, qualtiy and finish of lumber.

A "full yard" of high grade building material available at all times in any quanity at right prices.

Tell us your needs and we are glad to estimate the cost.

Northern Lbr Co.

Avery Twp. News

(Special Times Reporter)

Andrew Nelson sawed some wood Tuesday.

Mrs. C. A. Arnold was a business caller at Goodell Friday afternoon.

Mrs Fred Bachman was a caller at the D. A Marshall home Thursday.

Will Bachman was a business caller at the Frank Roths home Thursday morning

Earl Henry and son and daughter of Ventura were visitors at the Clarence Bachman home Thursday

Charley Bielefeld, of Goodell, was a business caller at Klemme Tuesday

Mrs Clarence Bachman and little daughter, Maxine, were visitors at the Will Bachman home Friday.

Hamo Beek was a caller at the Peter Trampel home Saturday morning

The North Avery Threshing Co held their annual meeting at Klemme Saturday afternoon.

The pupils in District No. 2 received a new flag for their school which they put up Friday.

Some of the farmers in this vicinity have been busy putting up hay on the prairie.

Mr and Mrs. Alec Groh and sons Frederick, Lester and Calvin were business callers at Garner Tuesday

Quite a few from this locality attended the ball game in Klemme Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Fred Bachman was a caller at the John Bachman home Monday.

Mrs Clarence Bachman and little daughter, Maxine, were visiting with relatives at Clear Lake Monday.

Mr and Mrs John Bachman are the proud parents of a baby girl born to them Wednesday, September 14th.

Miss Alvina Buss is the teacher in District No 3 This is the second year Miss Buss has taught this school

Little Maxine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs Clarence Bachman, spent a couple of days at the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Will Bachman.

Mr. and Mrs. Herb Marshall and daughter, Irene, and Mr. and Mrs Clyde Marshall returned Monday after a ten days visit with relatives and old friends in Illinois.

Mrs. C. A. Arnold is enjoying a visit from relatives and friends of Chicago, Illinois for a couple of days.

Miss Clarice Johnson was a caller at the Ted Dutheridge home Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. John Watermiller and sons, Jake, Raymond and Nealo, and Henry and Johaness Pals of Meservey, and the Misses Florence and Carrie Swalve were visitors at the Peter Trampel home Sunday.

Hamo Beek left Saturday for his home at Austin, Minn., after spending a week in this vicinity. Mr. Beek is going to move back to Klmeme next year, on the Cherry farm. He put up some hay while here.

Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Fredin and little son, Jimmie, left Thursday for their home at Watertown, S. Dak., after spending a week visiting with relatives and friends. Mrs. Fredin was formerly Miss Dorothy Ridder.

Mr. and Mrs H. Malone returned to their home in Illinois after a weeks visit with the Ernest Helps and Ted Dutheridge families. A brother of Mrs. Holps also returned home with them after a several weeks stay here.

The Home Furnishing Club met on Saturday, September 10, at the home of Clarice Johnson. Seven members were present. During the business meeting it was discussed whether or not a booth was to be put on at the county fair. Being brought to a vote it was decided not to have one this year, as the girls did not have anything ready for the fair. After the business meeting basket weaving was taken up which was followed by a delicious lunch. The meeting then adjourned.

Liberty News Notes

(Special Times Reporter)

Mrs. Roy Schaefer and Florence Gates drove to Garner Tuesday.

Mrs. Art Schoenwetter and daughter visited in Garner Saturday.

George Schoenwetter and family were Garner visitors Saturday.

George Schoenwetter and Victor Schoenwetter drove to Mason City Thursday afternoon on business.

Wayne Lemke left for Iowa City Saturday morning where he will enter the University.

Milton and Homer Schaeper visited at the Tanner home a few days last week.

Herman Gast drove to Garner on Tuesday evening to see his father, who is very ill at this writing.

Will Suckow, Walter Bredlow and Herb Bredlow drove to Manchester, Sunday.

Emil Beier and wife and Chris took in the Hancock County Fair at Britt, Wednesday.

Albert Lange and family visited at the Herman Gast home Sunday evening

Floyd Franklin from near Garner has rented the Chris Schaefer farm for the following year. He is doing some plowing there now.

Mrs. Wesley Lenz, Sadie Schlawin, Miss Freida Schuldt and Mrs. Rhine Schlawin were at Britt Tuesday to fix the booth for the fair.

Otto Lemke and John Lemke drove to Mason City Tuesday to see their brother Henry in the Mercy hospital.

Fred Carolus, of New Hartford, drove in on Albert Carolus, Sr., and family Friday and gave them a very pleasant surprise. He is a brother of Mr. Carolus.

Herman Gast and family drove to Britt Wednesday to see the County Baby Beeves and Dairy Calves judged Kenneth and Lorain each having one there.

Wil Lemke acompanied his brother Henry and wife and Dr. Missman to Mason City Tuesday to be with Henry during his operation that morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Rhine Lemke, Mr. and Mrs. Otto Lemke and Grandma Lemke were over to Mason City Wednesday to visit Henry Lemke, who is in a very serious condition, following an operation.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Marshall and Mr. and Mrs. Herb Marshall and daughter, Irene, returned Monday evening fom their vacation at Mason City, Illinois, and other parts, visiting friends and relatves.

Ben Ridder and family, Herald and Walter Ridder spent Sunday at the Aug. Ridder home, as their brother Will and family were here from Waterloo, and a family re-union was held.

The School Children will have 2 days vacation this week, Thursday and Friday, because of the Teachers' Institute at Britt. This will give them a chance to go to the county fair at Britt.

A Standard Bearer Society was organized at the Liberty Township Church last Sunday evening. Mrs. Van Meter came out from Garner to help Mrs. Abele, the Superintendent with the work.

Emil Beier and wife and Chris drove to Mason City Saturday to see Mrs. Beier's brother, Carl Reemer. He was operated upon last week and is getting along nicely at this time.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Blumer and daughter were Mason City visitors Thursday. They were visiting Carl Reemer, a brother of Mrs. Blumer, who is in the Mercy Hospital recovering from an operation he underwent last week.

Mrs. Albert Lange and Mary, returned from a month's visit in New York state, Saturday. They report a wonderful time and enjoyed the trip, except for quite a bit of rain when they were in Illinois and eastern Iowa.

Rev. Gauger baptized four babies Sunday at the Liberty M. E. church, the Ed. Schoenwetter twins, Wayne and Welma; Frank Bredlow's boy, Roland; and Jesse Donald, son of Dave Schwichtenberg; also took four new members into the church.

Mr. and Mrs. Rhine Lemke and son Walter left early Sunday morning for Iowa City, where Walter will enter the University. This is Walter's third year at Iowa. On the way home Mr. and Mrs. Lemke stopped at Cedar Rapids to do some shopping and to visit Mr. Lemke's sister, Mrs. James Lilly.

Goodell News

(By Special Correspondent)

J. Griggs was a business caller at Manly Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Cook spent Sunday with relatives at Iowa Falls.

Tom Roths trucked two loads of hogs to Mason City Monday.

George Christie is the owner of a new Essex coach.

Frank Patterson, of Ventura, was a business caller near Goodell

Mr and Mrs. George Johnson, of Iowa Falls, spent Saturday and Sunday at the Sherwood home

Mrs. Clifford Chase and Eliza Cashman were Mason City shoppers Tuesday.

The Township Trustees held a meeting in the town hall Saturday evening.

Mr and Mrs. A C. Carpenter were elected delegates to attend the U. B. Church Conference at Des Moines.

Mr. and Mrs. Gus Okrueg returned from their weeks visit with relatives near St. Paul, Minn.

Mr. and Mrs Jim Elder, of Madison, Wis., are visiting at the Trumbell homes.

Geo. Sherwood returned to Iowa Falls Sunday, after spending the week with his brother, Leon.

Dr. and Mrs. Snearly made a professional call to Hampton, Wednesday.

Mrs. Ivan Baker and children visited relatives in Minnesota last week.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Grosz, of Meservey, called at the J. Griggs home Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Nelson visited with Meservey relatives Sunday evening.

Jay Griggs went to Milwaukee, Wisconsin, Monday to transact business.

Mrs. Patton, of Davenport, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm Deiger.

The School Board of Avery township have purchased merry-go-round swings for the children's playgrounds.

Mr. and Mrs. Malone who have been visiting friends and transacting business here, returned to Illinois last week. Mrs. Malone was formerly Miss Addie Gitner and lived here a few years ago

Mrs. Boren entertained a number of young folks at a party Friday evening in honor of Forest, who left for Grundy Center Monday to attend school. The evening was spent in dancing. Refreshments were served and everyone had a very nice time.

KLEMME WELL REPRESENTED AT THE COLLEGES

Klemme will again be well represented at the various colleges and universities this year. The following will go, or already have left for school:

Kermit Koerner, forestry, Ames; Vernon Turgasen, dairying, Ames; Clarence Elder, journalism, Ames; Fred Arnold, Jr., mechanoical engineering, Ames; Morris Greiman, electrical engineering, Ames; Wayne Lemke, medicine, Iowa City; Walter Lemke, liberal arts, Iowa City; Mabel Cullinan, liberal arts, Iowa City; Elvira Stille, liberl arts, University of California; Frank Gibbs, liberal arts, Morningside, at Sioux City; Harl Gimer, liberal arts, Morningside.

Anglers' Patron Saint

Fishing has produced a tremendous literature. The most famous work on the subject is the "Compleat Angler" by Izaak Walton, which was first published in 1653. It has been read and enjoyed by thousands of persons not in the least interested in obtaining information of the piscatorial sort. The "Compleat Angler" is a delightful idyll.

Its author was so revered that the cottage in which he lived was preserved as a museum down to a short time ago, when a fire destroyed it. Only the objects of historic interest of the interior were saved.

FINE FOOD FOLKS

There's a difference in the way vegetables, meats, etc. are cooked and you will recognize it the moment you eat them here.

We serve only the very best the market affords, all well cooked.

As with everything, we think the best is none too good for our patrons.

Drop in for lunch or any meal anytime, at—

Crystal Cafe

Conrad Quandt, Prop.

LYRIC

Theatre

—GARNER, IOWA—

Presents The Following

Friday and Saturday

September 16-17

Buck Jones in

"THE TIMBER WOLF"

—Comedy—

"CAR SHY"

Adm. 10-25c 1st show 7:30

Tuesday and Wednesday

September 20-21

Bebe Daniels in

"HT ECAMPUS FLIRT"

—Comedy—

"KISS PAPA"

Adm. 10-25c 1st show 7:30

Farm

Loans

5%

Isaac Sweigard

Garner Iowa

PIANOS

Players & Grand

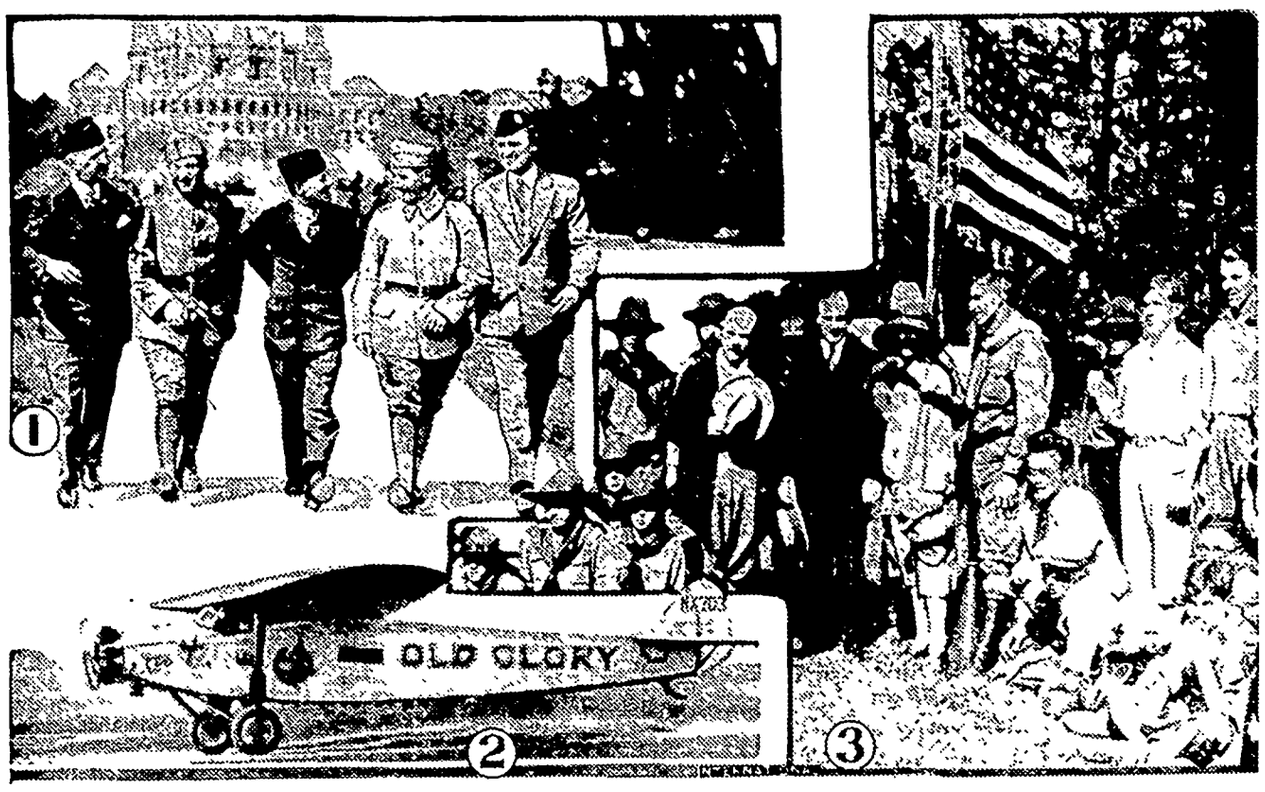
New and

Second Hand

M. N. ZEIGER

Jewelry & Optical Goods

GARNER, IOWA



1—American Legionnaires with French soldiers on the Champs de Mars, Paris, talking over war experiences. 2—Old Glory plane, supposedly lost in Atlantic ocean, taking off for flight to Rome. 3—President Coolidge dedicating Custer state park boy scout camp in the Black Hills.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Five More Aviators and Two Planes Thought Lost in Atlantic.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

FIVE more lives apparently have been sacrificed to the overweening ambition of aviators to make transoceanic flights. And there may be further additions to the list before this reaches the reader. Tuesday the great monoplane Old Glory, owned by William Randolph Hearst, took off from Old Orchard, Maine, on a projected nonstop flight to Rome. Lloyd Bertaud and James D. Hill, both experienced flyers, were the pilots, and with them as passenger was Philip A. Payne, managing editor of the New York Mirror. Near midnight the plane was sighted about 350 miles east of St. Johns, N. F., flying well, though the night was foggy and the sea rough. About four o'clock Wednesday morning steamers and shore stations received the dread S O S call from the plane. The radio men and the ships sent out frantic calls for position and six minutes later came the reply:

"Five hours out from Newfoundland bound west."

The steamships Carmania, Transylvania, California and American Merchant, all somewhere near the estimated position of Old Glory, carefully searched the sea for hours. but no trace of the plane had been discovered up to the time of writing. Seemingly it was lost without there being an inkling of what had happened to it, even as was lost the St. Raphael and other land planes in which transoceanic flights have been undertaken. Anthony H. G. Fokker, designer of the plane, said he thought only engine trouble would bring the plane down. Doctor Kimball of the weather bureau eliminated the weather as a cause saying there were no severe storms in the plane's path, although there was fog and cloudiness.

There was some hope that the plane might still be afloat even though rescue ships were unable to find it. The huge gasoline tank had a dump valve by which it could be speedily emptied and it would then provide buoyancy for some time. A collapsible rubber raft was carried, but probably the sea was too rough for its use.

On board the Old Glory was a wreath which the pilots had prepared in tribute to the French flyers who had made the first attempt. On it was written, "Nungesser and Coli: You showed the way. We followed. Bertaud and Payne and Hill."

Undeterred by bad weather and ignorant of the supposed loss of the Old Glory, Capt. Terry Tully and Lieut. James Medcalf in the plane Sir John Carling hopped off from Harbor Grace, N. F., for the last lap of their trip from London. Ont., to London. England, on Wednesday. At this writing nothing has been heard of them, and it is assumed they, too, perished in the ocean.

Schlee and Brock in the Pride of Detroit were making good progress in their globe circling flight for a new time record, despite the fact that they were delayed at Constantinople by red tape. The most perilous part of the trip was the jump from Calcutta to Rangoon. At this writing they are in Hongkong. In Tokyo they planned to install a new motor for the flight to Hawaii via Midway island and thence to San Francisco. Their Detroit friends were trying to persuade them not to undertake the flight across the Pacific, and Schlee's brothers chartered a boat to meet them at Tokyo and bring them to San Francisco, believing that in that way they could still lower the round-the-world record.

Frank Courtney and four companions, who started from Plymouth, England, for New York, via the Azores, in the flying boat Whale, ran into head winds and were forced to land at Corunna, Spain.

Numerous persons around the Macareo river in Venezuela saw a plane, supposed to have been that of Paul Redfern, on August 27. It was headed southeast toward the delta of the Orinoco, which is uninhabited except for a few Indians. There is a chance that the Georgia flyer may be found in the jungle.

CHARLES EVANS HUGHES returned last week from a two months' trip through France, in robust health and so chipper that the reporters who met the boat said he had never been so genial. At once he was put high in the list of possibilities for the Republican Presidential nomination, and though he declared to the interviewers that he believed Mr. Coolidge would be renominated and reelected, he declined to say that he still stood on his "too old to run for the Presidency" statement, made last May. Politicians in Washington think that of all the potential nominees Hughes would be the one favored by Mr. Coolidge. Many persons have thought Hoover was the President's first choice, but the indications are that these two men are not in such accord as formerly.

In the Eastern states, according to wise observers, the Republican leaders think Vice President Dawes has the best chance to win the nomination, though they admit Lowden will be hard to beat and that Hoover is perhaps the ablest man in the field.

Among the Democrats not much is heard except "Smith" and "anti-Smith." The popular governor of New York was attacked by Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Lowman in an address at Buffalo for the failure of prohibition enforcement in the Empire state. Explaining why the federal government does not step in and police the state of New York, he declared that in the face of the "open opposition of the state and local officers, it would require an army of 30,000 prohibition agents to handle a proposition like that."

Congressman Boylan, Democrat, of New York, sent to Secretary of the Treasury Mellon a vigorous protest against Lowman's speech as a "gross abuse" of his federal office.

NEW ENGLAND coast guardsmen are involved in another liquor scandal. In Boston five of them and six other men were indicted by a federal grand jury for a rum-running conspiracy. Federal investigators charged that protection was obtained in landing liquor by payments of a certain fixed sum per case. It is further charged that coast guard boats were used in assisting in landings which would otherwise have been difficult. One of the accused men was executive officer of the coast guard base in East Boston.

While on the subject of booze, it may be noted that the province of New Brunswick, Canada, ended its eleven years of prohibition last week. The intoxicating liquor act went into effect and retail liquor stores under control of the government were opened. Purchase permits are not required.

PROHIBITION lost its ablest supporter when Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel and legislative superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, died at a sanitarium in Battle Creek, Mich. He had been undergoing treatment for a kidney ailment and was taken to Battle Creek for an operation, but had improved so much under treatment that it was decided not to operate. Then he took a sudden turn for the worse and died on Monday afternoon. The funeral was held in Columbus, Ohio, and Mr. Wheeler was buried beside his wife, who was burned to death a few weeks ago.

Whatever may be thought of the merits of national prohibition and of Mr. Wheeler's methods in bringing it about, there can be no question about the skill and perseverance with which he conducted the affairs of the league. He repeatedly demonstrated his power in influencing legislation and the selection of men for office, and as the general of the dry forces proved himself to be one of the shrewdest politicians in the country. The league could scarcely find one man to fill his place, and it is believed two will be named to take over his work. E. B. Dunford. Wheeler's confidential legal adviser, may become general counsel, and some one else the legislative superintendent. The three leading candidates for the latter position are: A. J. Davis, superintendent of the New York State Anti-Saloon league; Rev. A. J. Barton of Nashville, Tenn., a member of the national league's executive committee, and James White, former superintendent of the Ohio State league.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE'S last week in the Black hills was uneventful, and he started back to Washington much benefited physically by his summer vacation and ready to tackle such big matters as taxes, ambassadorial appointments, naval building and other questions. The White House, renovated, repaired and with a fine new roof, was all ready for his return. All the inhabitants of Rapid City gathered at the station to bid Mr. and Mrs. Coolidge farewell, and the President made a little speech expressing his appreciation of their hospitality. The eastward trip was interrupted briefly Saturday at Brookings, S. D., where the President dedicated the Lincoln Sylvan theater, built for lectures and entertainments for students of agriculture.

LAST week was not a good one for Russian Communists. Down in Bolivia the government made public conclusive proof that the Third Internationale was plotting communist revolt there and in other countries of South America; and at the same time a number of Red leaders were arrested in La Paz and quantities of explosives were seized. French Nationalists and Conservatives united in demanding the resignation or recall of Christian Rakovsky, soviet ambassador to Paris, because he signed the Trotzky manifesto urging "all foreign soldiers to join the great Red army" and inviting the Reds of all countries "to work actively to defeat their own governments." The French foreign office sent such strongly worded dispatches to Moscow that Chicherin, soviet foreign minister, had to disavow the manifesto, and Rakovsky tried hard to persuade the French that he was not trying to stir up trouble in France. At the annual meeting of the British Trade Union congress in Edinburgh the Communists were overwhelmingly outvoted and a resolution was adopted cancelling all relations with the Russian trade unions and the Third Internationale. The Pan-German league adopted resolutions demanding the dissolution of the Communist party in Germany and the suppression of its organs. The league represents the Nationalist extremists and bases its demands on the recent world-wide demonstrations in favor of Sacco and Vanzetti.

OPENING its eighth annual assembly in Geneva, the League of Nations was a decidedly gloomy gathering. This was due to the failure of the league's disarmament conference in the spring and the collapse of the Coolidge naval parley in August, to which was added the fact that the economic conference was practically devoid of results. Among the notable absentees were Lord Robert Cecil and M. de Jouvenal resigned, and Baron Ishii of Japan. Dr. Alberto N Guani, Uruguayan minister to France, was elected president of the assembly Supported by the Belgians, French, Germans and Hollanders. Beelaerts van Bloklands of Holland submitted a resolution asking for the revival of the nonaggression protocol of 1924, declaring the failure of conferences of the past year had proved that actual disarmament was impossible for the time being. Japanese and Swedish delegates criticized the league severely for its failure to bring about reduction of armaments and to curb the quarrels of some of the nations of Europe. Poland's demand for an eastern Locarno guaranteeing its security against Germany and Russia was supported by France, but Sir Austen Chamberlain and the British delegates looked on it coldly.

CHINA'S Nationalist government has disclosed the contents of an agreement with Japan whereby the Nationalists undertake to guarantee the protection of lives and properties of Japanese in Nationalist territory. It is said this agreement led to the Japanese decision to withdraw their troops from Shantung, which movement was accomplished last week. The Christian general, Feng Yu-hsiang, wired the Nationalist government that he was launching an offensive against the Northern troops in Shantung province from Honan.

Improved Uniform International Sunday School Lesson

(By REV P B. FITZWATER, D.D., Dean Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)
(©. 1927 by Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for September 18

THE KINGDOM DIVIDED

LESSON TEXT—I Kings 12:1-24.

GOLDEN TEXT—Pride goeth before destruction, and a haughty spirit before a fall.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God Punishes a Foolish King

JUNIOR TOPIC—God Punishes a Foolish King.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Folly of Pride.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How to Prevent Divisions.

The movements leading up to the disruption of the kingdom had begun in Solomon's reign. He saw in Jeroboam the leader of insurrection and endeavored to kill him. Jeroboam fled to Egypt until Solomon's death (I Kings 11:40). Having been informed by the prophet Abijah that he was to have ten tribes over which to rule, as soon as he heard of Solomon's death he returned to be ready to take up his work.

I. The Demand of the People (vv. 1-4).

This was occasioned by the burden of excessive taxation and enforced labor, which was required by Solomon in order to build costly houses and temples for his heathen wives. The people were groaning under its weight. Upon the accession of the new king Rehoboam, the people, through their leader Jeroboam, came with the request that their burdens be made lighter, promising loyalty to him on the condition of lightened burdens.

II. Rehoboam's Foolish Decision (vv. 5-15.)

1. Rehoboam consulted with the old men (vv. 5-7). These were men of experience who had been Solomon's advisers. Being acquainted with the condition as imposed by Solomon, and knowing the temper of the people, they advised that the people's request be granted.

2. Rehoboam consulted the young men (vv. 8-11). These young men had grown up with him, possibly were his half-brothers, sons of Solomon's many wives. Being thus brought up in the luxury of the harem, they were ignorant of the legal right of the people. Therefore they advised that the burdens be increased,

3. Rehoboam followed the advice of the young men (vv. 12-15). At the appointed time he announced his purpose to the people. He even answered them roughly, asserting his purpose to increase their burdens and sorrows. He assumed that it was his right to rule and that it was the people's role to obey regardless of conditions.

III. The Revolt of the Ten Tribes (vv. 16-24).

Upon Rehoboam's announcement of his rash purpose all Israel cried out, "What portion have we in David? . . . to your tents, O Israel."

1. Rehoboam's attempt to collect tribute (vv. 18, 19). As he endeavored to collect tribute from the ten tribes, Adoram, his tribute gatherer, was stoned to death. So violent was the opposition on the part of the people that Rehoboam had to flee to Jerusalem to save his life.

2. Jeroboam made king over Israel (v. 20). They seem to have lost no time in selecting a head so as to be strong in their opposition to Rehoboam.

3. Rehoboam's attempt to compel the ten tribes to return to David (vv. 21-24).

To effect this, he assembled his army of 180,000 men. Through the prophecy of Shemaiah, which forbade them to go against their brethren, they were pursuaded to return.

IV. Jeroboam's Scheme to Unify the Ten Tribes (vv. 25-33).

1. He established calf worship (vv. 31-33).

(1) He built houses and high places (v. 31). This was against the direct command of God. God had directed His people to destroy the high places and to break down the idolatrous centers. So we see that Jeroboam, by the demands of his sinful heart, disobeyed God.

(3) He changed the day of the Feast of the Tabernacle (v. 32). The time of this feast was set by the Lord (Lev. 23:33, 34). Jeroboam argued that the change in the time would be better suited to their northern climate, but God, who made the climate, ordained the time of the feast. It was his business, therefore, to obey God.

(4) Jeroboam himself intrudes into the priest's office. The act of presumption on his part was the climax of his godless acts, all of which grew out of his wicked heart.

God Established Prayer

God has established prayer to communicate to His creatures the dignity of causality.—Pascal.

The Business of Life

The business of life is largely made up of minute affairs, requiring only judgment and diligence.—Beecher.

Be Not as Water

Be not as water which takes the tint of all colors.—Syriac.

Ask for

POST TOASTIES

They stay crisp in milk or cream

Flaked hearts of corn toasted double-crisp and full of flavor

Post Toasties make breakfast a real event. Their delicious flavor and lasting crispness make them the favorite of millions. There is a crunch of goodness in every spoonful — crispness that lasts to the very bottom of the bowl. Have them often, for a delightful lunch or supper as well as breakfast. Be sure that you get the true Post Toasties — the flakes that stay crisp in milk or cream. See that you get the wax-wrapped, red and yellow package that keeps Post Toasties oven-fresh and always ready to serve.

© 1927, P Co. Inc.

POSTUM COMPANY, INC., BATTLE CREEK, MICH.

It Played Dead

Auto Salesman—It speaks for itself on its performance on the road.

Customer—Ah, the last one I had was a performing one, too.—Passing Show, London.

Probably Not

"Yes, she is going to do some broadcasting."

"She's cute?"

"It isn't so easy to be cute over the radio."

"When the good fairy had driven away the big, ugly giant, she called the children to a wonderful feast of cake made with Monarch Cocoa and Teenie Weenie Peanut Butter sandwiches and they ate and ate."

EVERY genuine Monarch package bears the Lion Head, the oldest trademark in the United States covering a complete line of the world's finest food products—Coffee, Tea, Cocoa, Catsup, Pickles, Peanut Butter, Canned Fruits and Vegetables, and other superior table specialties.

REID, MURDOCH & CO.
Established 1853
Chicago Pittsburgh Boston New York
Jacksonville Tampa Los Angeles

Monarch is the only nationally advertised brand of QUALITY FOOD PRODUCTS sold exclusively through the men who own and operate their own stores.

MONARCH
Quality for 70 Years

Heavy Stuff

"I want a book," said the girl.

"Something light?" inquired the librarian.

"Oh, no; that doesn't matter. I've a young man waiting outside to carry it home."—Tit-Bits.

If two men are arguing bitterly and you feel a desire to put in your oar, go away.

Furtive Peak

"There is a mountain here, isn't there?"

"Yes, but you must have a guide if you want to climb it."

"Is it so high and dangerous, then?"

"No, but it's so hard to find."—Megendorfer Blaetter, Munich.

Reform is a medicine that every politician wants others to take.

Left to right—Charlie Owen, "Ab" Johnson, Feeder Buyers for Byers Bros.

"Byers is Buyers"

These two men on the left do most of the cattle feeder buying for our customers.

Charlie has been with us for 20 years, and for 20 years has been buying feeders for your neighbors.

"Ab" is a younger man, but got his education in the cattle business. He knows feeders, and is well qualified for his position.

Your orders will be filled in the most careful manner, with the come-back finish and selling quality properly considered.

Buy your feeders at the big Omaha feeder market through the house whose buyers are pleasing your neighbors.

Byers Bros. & Co.
L. S. Commission Corp. Omaha, Nebr.

BOY CLUB BUYING

Buying calves for Boy Club feeding is one of our hobbies. The boys send for us to come out and judge fatted calves for entries at the state fairs.

Recently "Ab" judged a lot of 20 head in two classes, and scored them almost exactly the same as the Ames College man, who unbeknown to "Ab" had judged them the day before

BOYS—Let these experts buy your calves.

You Must Have Strength Endurance and Courage

Mr. W. B. Towner, New York, writes: "Never have I felt better in my life than since taking CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS. I find they keep my bowels active; headaches and indigestion never bother me now. I enjoy my sleep and get up refreshed, ready for a hard day's work."

Millions all over the world have found this doctor's prescription a relief for every day ailments. CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS, the purely vegetable laxative, are small, easy to swallow and move the bowels in a gentle manner free from pain. They are not habit forming and do not contain Calomel,-Mercury or poisonous drugs.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS in red packages, 25c. and 75c.

Try them to-night—To-morrow refreshed—All druggists.

BLACK GOLD'S" 300 YEARS

DRAKE MONUMENT, TITUSVILLE, PA.

SENECA INDIAN OIL SPRING, CUBA, N.Y.

UNVEILING THE MONUMENT at CUBA, N.Y.

Photograph of Drake monument, from "Pageant of America," Yale University press; photographs of Seneca Indian oil spring and Cuba (N. Y.) monument, courtesy Elmer E. Conrath, Cuba, N. Y.

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

THE other day a crowd of more than five thousand persons gathered at a woodland spring under the shadow of the towering hillside near the little town of Cuba, N. Y., for the unveiling of a marker. As the American Stars and Stripes and French Tricolor which had draped the marker were drawn aside, there was revealed a huge bowlder and on it a bronze tablet bearing these words:

1627—SENECA OIL SPRING—1927

This history forms the first chapter in the development of the petroleum industry in the United States—a gigantic world enterprise transforming modern life.

1627—Oil on American continent first recorded in this region by the Franciscan friar, Joseph de la Roche d'Allion.

1656—Spring mentioned by the Jesuit father, Paul Le Jeune.

1721—Prior to this year, spring visited by Joncaire, the elder.

1767—Oil from this spring sent to Sir William Johnson as a cure for his wounds.

1797—Spring permanently reserved by Indians in treaty of Big Tree.

1833—Description of spring by Prof. Benjamin Silliman of Yale university.

Erected as a tercentenary memorial on July 23, 1927, by the University of the State of New York and the New York State Oil Producers association.

Thus was perpetuated in bronze and stone the beginnings of that gigantic industry which after one hundred years is second only to agriculture as a wealth-producing industry. Today nearly 1,000,000 barrels of petroleum are required every day to satisfy the needs of the nation, and it is estimated that annually Americans use about 2,000,000 barrels of petroleum for their motor cars, trucks, busses, artificial gas plants and the innumerable by-products from petroleum. Approximately 70 per cent of the world's petroleum industry is in the United States. Ten billions of capital is invested in it—half the valuation of the national railroad system. It employs nearly one million people and its pipe-line system, which criss-crosses the country, totals about eighty-five thousand miles. In the crowd which gathered at the tercentenary celebration in New York were representatives of the Seneca Indians, who still hold possession of this land; of the Franciscan monks who have a monastery a few miles away and of the petroleum industry from all parts of the United States, and their presence there recalled the whole romantic history of the discovery of oil on the North American continent.

It was some unknown member of the great Iroquois confederation who first looked upon this oil spring, but how far back that was nobody knows. Arthur C. Parker, director of the Rochester (N. Y.) Municipal museum, who is compiling a book of Iroquois legends, which is to be published next year, made public at the time of the celebration the legend of the oil spring which is to be the opening chapter of his "More Skunny Wundy Stories." The tale follows:

A village was stricken by strange fevers and many of the people died slow, lingering deaths, in which they were convulsed by chills and then burned by fever. Gone Goose, the medicine man, had effect no cure, nor could he determine what caused the disease.

It was then that Skunny Wundy, a youth, unable to sleep, crept out upon the roof of the bark house and watched the near-by pond. To his amazement he saw the hummucks of grass rise up, shrouded by long wisps of vapor. Like gray ghosts, these queer beings danced upon the surface of the pond and as they opened their mouths a shrill ringing sound was heard. Skunny Wundy looked and saw swarms of mosquitoes coming from the gray throats of the ghosts. These attacked him, driving him back to his bed and under the protection of a buffalo skin. Then he fell to dreaming. He saw in a vision a strange spring whose guardian spirit was a hunch-backed dwarf with a naked red cap. Near-by he saw an enormously fat she-bear sporting about. A dream guide told Skunny Wundy to find the spring and talk to the dwarf, for in that manner his tribe would be freed from sickness and given a great treasure.

The next day the boy sought out the spring. At first he was afraid of the fat bear, but when she talked to him he lost fear and asked her about the dwarf. She laughed and told him to watch her.

Poising upon a fallen tree she dove into the pool and splashed about, becoming very thin. Her fat dissolved and floated upon the water. When she came out the dwarf popped up and sprang to the bank. He greeted Skunny Wundy and asked him what he wanted.

"I want to master the gray witches that dance in the haze of the ooze," came the answer. "I dreamed that you would tell me how."

"Then take the oil and pour it upon your pond," said the dwarf. "Run with it as fast as you can; when you get tired rub it on your joints and it will make you run faster. It is good medicine and you must give it to the world."

Skunny Wundy took a pot of the oil back to his village and poured some on the waters of the pond, at which the gray witches shrieked and sank into the ooze, becoming "hummocks of sedge." Then he rubbed it upon the bodies of the sick people and made them well.

To his uncle, Rumbling Wings, Skunny Wundy told the story of his discovery. "The dwarf says it will make people run faster," concluded the boy.

"Aye," answered Rumbling Wings. "Verily I do believe that you have found the great medicine that will make the whole world run faster."

Although the Seneca oil spring was known to the people of the Long House (Iroquois) for many years, the first white man to look upon it was Joseph de la Roche d'Allion, a Franciscan monk, who was making his way through the wilderness of western New York in the summer of 1627. An Indian friend told him of a sacred spot in the neighborhood which he should see, and on July 18 the Indian led him to the place where the monk saw oil bubbling up through the crust of the earth. This experience he describes in a letter from Huronia to a friend in Angiers, France, in which he gives a careful description of the land, its people and its products. Among the latter he mentions "a touronton," a mineral oil, which he saw in an oil spring in that region. Without a doubt this was the famous Seneca oil spring near Cuba and so to Father d'Allion goes the honor of being the "discoverer of oil in America."

From that time on this spring is repeatedly mentioned by the early chroniclers. In the "Jesuit Relations" for 1656 there is a reference to a spring where "one finds heavy and thick water which ignites like brandy and boils up in bubbles of flame when fire is applied to it. It is moreover so oily that all our savages use it to anoint and grease their heads and bodies." In Galinee's map, published in 1670, one of the first maps of the Great lakes region, there is marked a "Fontaine de Bitume" which is the Seneca oil spring, and it is by this name that it was known by most of the early historians. Pierre Francois Xavier de Charlevoix, a Jesuit, one of the most talented and scholarly of the French missionary pioneers and also one of the most prolific writers, is among those who wrote about the Fontaine de Bitume, and in 1721 he was directed to the spring by Joncaire, a French explorer, and from Fort Niagara he wrote of "the water that looked like oil and tasted like iron."

The Seneca Indians, who from historic times have owned the land around the spring, placed such a high valuation upon its medical worth that they refused to relinquish title to it. When the treaty of Big Tree was signed in 1797, giving most of western New York to the white man, the Senecas insisted that the spring should be reserved in a tract of land of one square mile. Later a land company took possession of the surrounding property and sold it. In 1856 Phillenus Pattison bought the tract, cleared and fenced eighty acres and commenced to farm the land. So the Indians went into court to regain their favorite spring and offered in testimony an old map, showing the Indian reservation outlined in red with the oil spring within it. It was this map which enabled them to retain title. Although the present Seneca reservation, where most of the tribe lives, is some distance away, one Indian family is at all times located at the oil spring to preserve the tribe's title to it. However, the Senecas, recognizing the importance of the tercentenary celebration held there recently, granted the committee in charge a right of way for a road to the spring and also the land for 75 feet around it. This road connects the spring with a state highway near by so that this historic place is now more easily accessible than it ever has been before.

The unveiling of this monument is not the first, however, to be erected to "Black Gold," for years ago a monument was erected near Titusville, Pa., on the spot where the first oil well was drilled. This well was known as the Drake well, and it came into being because in 1850 capitalists in New York and New Haven organized a company to procure, manufacture and sell petroleum for illuminating purposes. They sent "Col." Edwin L. Drake, a conductor on the New Haven railroad, to western Pennsylvania to discover oil. Drake was instructed to drill for oil as if for artesian water and for this purpose he engaged the services of William Smith, a salt well digger, and his sons, William Smith, Jr., and James Smith.

In this connection it is interesting to note that there is still living in Titusville a man, who as a boy of sixteen, had a part in drilling the first oil well. He is Sam Smith, son of the William Smith, mentioned above. In describing the historic achievement, Sam Smith tells that the spot for locating the original well was selected because at that point a pool of surface petroleum had collected for years. The Indians had been accustomed to scoop oil from the puddles to mix the paint with which they adorned themselves and later the white men had dipped it to lubricate the machinery in saw mills nearby. However, the amount obtained thus was only a few gallons a day.

After weeks of hard work and many disappointments, at last on August 27, 1859, at a depth of 69½ feet, Drake struck oil which rose to within a few feet of the surface. A pump and tank were installed and every day except Sunday from 20 to 30 barrels of crude petroleum were pumped from the well. From the beginning Drake had been looked upon as something of a fool, but his success made him a hero. Immediately there was a rush to the region around Titusville, and Oil Creek valley, which until this time had been a remote lumbering region with only a few scattered farms, became the goal of an excited multitude which expected to make its fortune from the "black gold" which Drake had brought to the surface. The story of this boom camp is the story of many others.

Cities sprang up between days, Pithole, a few miles from Titusville, being the most famous. When the first flowing well came in, there was such a rush started that within three months the town had 10,000 people, then 20,000, and, it is said, at one time a permanent population of 30,000. Including transients it is even asserted that the number reached 50,000. The first pipe line was from Pithole to the railroad, four miles away. Three railroad lines were later graded into Pithole and trains ran on one of them. Big hotels were built, an oil exchange established and the post office business was exceeded only in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh among the Pennsylvania cities. Petroleum sold up to $10 a barrel and even higher, but at other times it was as low as 10 cents a barrel.

The first excitement soon died down to the humdrum activity of every-day industry, and after the oil resources of that region ran dry the mushroom towns that had sprung up soon passed out of existence. Drake himself had made a fortune, but he soon lost it, and he and his family were reduced to poverty. They were facing starvation when the state of Pennsylvania granted him an annuity of $1,500 a year. This pension and the monument erected to his memory near Titusville were all that Edwin Drake received for his gift of "black gold" to the world.

Genuine BAYER ASPIRIN

SAY "BAYER ASPIRIN" and INSIST!

Unless you see the "Bayer Cross" on tablets you are not getting the genuine Bayer Aspirin proved safe by millions and prescribed by physicians for 25 years.

DOES NOT AFFECT THE HEART

Safe — Accept only "Bayer" package which contains proven directions.
Handy "Bayer" boxes of 12 tablets
Also bottles of 24 and 100—Druggists.

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

Ambitious

Kind Old Lady—Surely a strong man like you could get a job in some business.

Hobo—What, and sacrifice my career?—Boston Transcript.

The weakest point in every man is where he thinks himself to be the wisest.—Emmons.

That's That

"Won't you join our culture club?"

"I don't care to have culture clubbed into me."

Anxiety always steps on itself.—Shaw.

Care won't kill a man if he doesn't worry about it.

Children Cry for

Fletcher's CASTORIA

MOTHER:— Fletcher's Castoria is a pleasant, harmless Substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Teething Drops and Soothing Syrups, especially prepared for Infants in arms and Children all ages.

To avoid imitations, always look for the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Proven directions on each package. Physicians everywhere recommend it.

Inventor of Oilcloth

Michael Nairn of Kirkcaldy, Scotland, is credited with having invented and manufactured oilcloth about 1847.

A timid man gets his right here on earth.

Garden Hint

You will reap what you sow, but not necessarily what is pictured on the seed packet.—Montreal Family Herald.

Instinct is animal strength.—Webster.

Every Woman NEEDS This Book

"THE Modern Method of Preparing Delightful Foods," Mrs. Ida Bailey Allen's New Book, contains nearly 300 new and unusual recipes, suggestions and hints for better cooking and home-making.

Once you try the recipes in this book, you will understand why Mrs. Allen is recognized as one of America's leading cooking experts. Merely fill in the coupon below and mail it with 10 cents (stamps or coin) and you will receive your copy by return mail.

MAIL THIS COUPON TODAY!

Send ten cents (stamps or coin) with this coupon and you will promptly receive your copy of Ida Bailey Allen's new book, "The Modern Method of Preparing Delightful Foods," containing nearly three hundred new and unusual recipes. Address:

CORN PRODUCTS REFINING CO.
208 E. ILLINOIS STREET, CHICAGO, ILL.

Name_____

Address_____

Town_____ State_____

George Gruetzmacher, of Garner, was a business caller here Monday.

Abe Laursen of Renwick was an over Sunday visitor in Klemme

Mrs Henry Josten is quite ill at this writing

Wil Ridder and family of Waterloo visited at the Aug. Ridder home Sunday

LOST—8x3 truck tire and rim, between Klemme and Stone school. Reward Emil Kraus. 2tp

Frank Gibbs left for Sioux City last week to attend Morningside College

Choicest

FOODS

Folks, there couldn't be any eating place, no matter how expensive or how flossy, give you a better selection of high grade foods than we do.

And Oh! How we do cook 'em!

Drop in for dinner or a lunch tomorrow.

DELICIOUS—
Try our ice cream, a number of flavors, ice cold pop, and malt.

A full line of Cigars and Tobacco, at—

Busch Cafe

Wayne Lemke left Saturday for Iowa City to begin his second year at the University.

J. E Wichman and grandson, "Wicky" Hint, of Garner, were in Klemme this morning.

Wait for Ludeke's Poland China and Chester White Hog Sale, Oct. 15th, Klemme, Iowa. 1tc

Mr. and Mrs "Kelly" Lauden returned yesterday from several days visit in South Dakota.

Dr. and Mrs. Barbour, of Mason City, were Klemme callers Monday afternoon.

Rev. and Mrs. Grosshuesch were Garner visitors Wednesday afternoon.

Rev. Guager went to Kanawha Tuesday to conduct a funeral there at the Methodist church.

Mr and Mrs. Theo Wright, of Belmond, were visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs Sumner Trumbell Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Elder drove to Vernon Center and Mankato Saturday and visited until Monday with relatives and friends

Mr and Mrs. John Braund and daughter, Geneva, and son, Jay, of Williams, were visitors at the Henry Freie home Sunday.

Rev and Mrs Grosshuesch drove to Meservey today to attend a Mission Feast of the Reformed Church there.

Mrs Minnie Josten, of Garner, and son, Walter, of Detroit, were visiting at the Rev. A. W. Gauger home today Mr Josten is an artitect in Detroit

FEED GRINDING

Our Feed Grinding Mill is "raing to go" and all it needs is to have you farmers bring in your grain and get your feed ground the way you want it. Our mill does excellent work and turns out real ground feed.

Coal for Winter

Fill your bins now for winter as coal prices are steadily advancing. Our bins are full of good furnace and stove coal and right now the price is right.

Klemme Co-Operative Grain Co.

News of Klemme and Vicinity

Dr. R. W. Specht, Dentist, Garner, Iowa. adv

According to news received from Wm. Stille and family, they arrived at their destination, Los Angels, Cal September 8th.

Rev. and Mrs. A. W. Gauger drove to Mason City Monday on business and to visit Carl Reemer at the hospital.

Rev. and Mrs. Gauger entertained Mr and Mrs. John Schuldt of Vancouver, Washington at supper Wednesday evening.

Mrs Tries and Lonnie and Manford, of Clear Lake, came Sunday for a visit with their son and brother, Harlan Tries and family.

Henry Lemke underwent a major operation at the Mercy hospital at Mason City Tuesday morning. Reports are that he is getting along as well as can be expected.

Mr. E. H. Schuldt enjoyed a visit from his brother and wife of Washington who came Monday. Mr. Schuldt has not been feeling so well the past few days.

Mr and Mrs. Jim Elder and baby of Madison, Wis., visited at the Sumner Trumbell home and with other relatives and friends here last week.

Mrs Ed Jacobs and son, Elwyn, were visiting with the former's aunt, Mrs. E S Viken, near Ventura, last week from Tuesday until Friday.

C G. Waterman and family and W. C. Keraus and family went to Mason City last Thursday evening to see the style show.

H J Thieman and family returned Monday evening from a ten days trip and visit at Lane, South Dakota Mrs. Thieman's parents, brother and sister reside there, as well as other relatives and friends.

Dr. Zinn, Grandma Schroeder, and Mrs Marlin Croner and daughter Dorothy, drove to Algona Sunday to spend the day at the Vern Gross home where they enjoyed a chicken dinner.

A D Gimer and family drove to Sioux City Saturday to take Harl back to school. Harl wil begin his second year at Morningside College. He will board and room with Mr. and Mrs Herb Bailey this year who have a home but a block from the campus The Gimer family returned to Klemme Sunday evening

Mr and Mrs. J. Groh, Mrs. Alfred Gruetzmacher and three children, and Mrs. F. Waterman, all of Chicago, came last week for a visit at the F Gruetzmacher home and with other Klemme relatives and friends They returned to Chicago today

Miss Margaret, daughter of Mr. and Mrs Joe Stokesbary, who live north of Klemme, and Mr. Clayton Babcock of Kanawha, were married at Miller by Rev. Okland, pastor, Saturday morning. Only immediate relatives were present.

Mr and Mrs. Albert Barz and children, Henry Barz and family, Fred Barz and family, Mrs Lena Schroeder and Max Barz, all of this place, and Wil Barz and family, of Garner, all enjoyed a picnic at the Pilot Knob state park Sunday.

At the regular meeting and election of officers held at the Ladies Aid meeting at the Parish House on last Thursday afternoon, Mrs. A. W. Gauger was elected president, Mrs. J N Day vice president, Mrs. C. G Waterman, secretary and Mrs R W. Elder, treasurer.

Rev Calvin Grosshuesch and Mr. Peter Josten returned Monday evening from Sutton, Nebraska, where they attended the Reformed Synod. They were acompanied to Sutton by Walter Grosshuesch, brother of Rev. Grosshuesch, who joined them at Algona Enroute, they visited with relatives at Yankton and Meno, S. Dak

Sunday re-dedication services are to be held at the Ell Township Reformed church north of Klemme. The church has recently been rebuilt and redecorated and wired for electric lights and new pews are to be installed Rev O J Vriesen, of Greenwood, Wis., will be the principal speaker, and will be assisted by many visiting pastors in the morning and afternoon services.

Mr and Mrs Herman Beek, of Davenport drove here for a visit with relatives for the balance of the week. Mr Beek is an insulation engineer and has a good position in Davenport Mr and Mrs Beek came to this country about four years ago from Germany They both speak the American language very fluently now They will receive their full citizenship papers next spring

Furnace Coal..

SEMI-ANTHRACITE COAL—we have a car load coming soon. This is the best Furnace Coal on the market. Put in your order at once if you want some.

We have our bins loaded with high grade Kentucky Coal for immediate delivery. Plenty on hand. The price is much lower on coal now than it will be this winter.

so it will pay you to buy now.
Full line of Feeds on hand.

North Iowa Grain Co.

Your Fall Painting

Now is a good time to plan on your Fall Painting. Get your buildings in first class shape before winter—it will pay you.

We carry a complete line of paint for every purpose, a full line of supplies, brushes, etc, and our prices are right.

LOWE BROS. BARN PAINT

Bright Red. Also Lowe Bros. Semi-Paste Barn Paint.

LOWE BROS. HOUSE PAINTS

All colors. Porch Floor Paint. Outside Varnishes, Porch Ceiling Paint, Etc.

JOHN WITTE HOUSE PAINT

Special Price per gallon

at

E. F. Jacobs

"THE FARM SERVICE STORE"

Good Electric Service

And Plenty Of It

Central States Electric Company has a deserved reputation for continuous electrical service,—the only kind that is to be depended upon.

Through a network of hydro-electric, steam, and Diessel Oil engine power plants, interconnected by substantially built transmission lines eqiupped with approved switching, safety, and other devices, a continuous flow of electricity for lighting and power is assured to every customer of all the Communities served by this Company.

No expense has been spared to guarantee to its customers an adequate supply of the tremendous force of electricity, no mattr how much the individual needs. . . . . .

Generating equipment and line capacities are being constantly added to, and new power sources developed, even in advance of any possible demand that may be made at any moment.

As evidence of the Compny's forehandedness, witness the quadrupling of the power plant at Iowa Falls, Iowa, now under way on plans that contemplate one of the largest sources of electric power supply in the whole Midwestern Section of the United Sates. . . . . .

All of this is at the service of every householder, merchant and factory owner in this great territory.

COURTESY SERVICE SATISFACTION

Respectfully

Central States Electric Company

General Offices

RAPIDS IOWA

Our Big Smoked Meat

SALE!

Will Be Continued!

Owing to the fact that we have purchased a HALF TON (1,000 pounds) of Armour's STAR BRAND HAMS, besides PICNIC HAMS, and BACON we have decided to continue this sale for a few days longer and wil move the balance of this stock at a very close margin.

HERE ARE THE PRICES:-

Picnic Hams, lb. 18c
Hams, lb. 25c
Bacon 30c, 32c, 35c, 40c 25c

Take advantage of these prices we are now offering. There is nothing finer than a STAR BRAND HAM. You cannot afford to pass up this big meat sale.

Klemme Meat Market

THE KLEMME TIMES

Fortieth Year—Number 6. KLEMME, IOWA, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 22, 1927

NEW CASES FILED IN DISTRICT COURT

HANCOCK COUNTY COURT WILL CONVENE MONDAY

Following List Of ases Were Filed Since May Term Of Court

L. A. Andrew, Recciver Commercial State Bank vs. Geo. Fillenworth Plaintiff asks judgment against defendant for $600.00.

L. A Andrew, Rec. Com'l State Bank vs. George Morgan et al. The plaintiff asks judgment for $11,153.84 and foreclosure of chattel mortgage

C L. Swanson vs. Wm. A. Hood. Plaintiff asks judgment for $7,586.71 and foreclosure of mortgage on SW¼ 25-94-24.

Hawkeye Securities Fire ns Co. vs. Antony Baker et al. Plaintiff asks judgment for $27,146.40 and foreclosure of mortgage on NE¼ 29-96-25

J F. W Vrba vs. Drainage District No 130 et al. Appeal from drainage assessment.

The Wellemeyer Co. vs. Rose E. Houghton Plaintiff asks judgment on note for $1,595.36.

Richard Dimond vs. John Dimond et al. Plaintiff asks judgment for $4,232 00 and foreclosure of mortgage on SW¼ and W½ of SE¼ 8-95-25.

Minneapolis Iron Stove Co. vs. Ernest Punke Plaintiff ask sjudgment on acount for $182.41.

Edson Weith Chicago Merchantile Co. vs Mrs. Jennie Wood. Plaintiff asks judgment on account for $171.63

Security Savings Bank of Boone vs. S A. Skrommo et al. Plff. aske judgment for $4093.33 and landlords attachment.

Wm C Brietsprecher vs. Phoebe A White Action in partition of S½ of SW¼ 2 5and NW¼ 36-94-23.

Kate McAlpine et al vs. Frank Quigley et al. Action in partition of N½ 24-94-24.

Blanche McCormick vs. Harold M Cormick Plaintiff asks that she be divorced from defendant.

Federal Reserve Bank, Chicago, vs. Leon Gifford. Plaintiff asks for judgment on notes for $273.14.

W C Pyle, Receiver vs. Chris Gilstrap. Plaintiff asks judgment for $4250 00 and foreclosure of collateral mortgage.

L. A Andrew, Receiver Coml. St Bank vs Frank H. Healy et al. Plff asks judgment for $7604.91 and the foreclosure of mortgage on S 20 ft. of lot 3 and N 4 ft. of lot 4 block 7 Andersons add Britt and lots 7 to 12 inclusive in Lillie H. Healy estate.

L. A. Andrew, Receiver Coml. St Bank vs. Walter H. Healy et al. The Plaintiff asks judgment for $4039.69 and foreclosure of interest in the Lillie H Healy estate.

Winnebago Co. State Bank vs. G. A. Schram. Plaintiff asks judgment for $190 00 on note and account.

Jno. A. Senneff vs. Floyd R. Fiero. Plaintiff asks judgment for $245. and for landlords attachment for rent.

Charity E. Brand vs. Fred Brand. Plaintiff asks that she be divorced from defendant.

Frank W. Senneff vs. Clarence W. Terpstra et al. Plaintiff asks judgment for $350.00 and foreclosure of collateral mortgage.

Adam Habig. vs. J. T. Gatchel. Plaintiff asks judgment on note for $522.25.

Bankers Life Co. vs. H. D. Foster et al. Plaintiff asks judgment for $7850 37 and foreclosure of mortgage on part of N½ f SW¼ 27 and part NW¼ 27-96-25.

Henry Heimendinger vs. E. H. Arnett et al. Plaintiff asks judgment fr $24,760. and foreclosure of mortgage on lots 17-18 of Auditor's plat and S½ of SW¼ 33-96-25 and W½ of NW¼ 4-95-25.

Guy Knox vs. Martin Greggerson. Plaintiff asks judgment for general farm labor in sum of $400.00.

H. R. Brooks vs. John Suurballe, Treasurer et al. Plaintiff asks that title be quieted in lot 15 block 2 and E½ lot 16 block 2 Andersons odd Britt and lots 1-2-3-4-7-8 block 5 Brown and Hills add to Britt.

E. U. Miller vs. J. A. Englet. Plff. asks judgment for $2081.98 and the foreclosure of mortgage on lots 4-5-6 block 22 Calls 1st add Kanawha.

Emil Witek vs M W Arnett et al Plaintiff asks judgment on note for $2,000.00

Union Bond and Mortgage Co. vs J A Bailey et al Plaintiff asks judgment for $908 55 and foreclosure of mortgage on W½ SW¼ 22-96-25.

Mary Greeling vs Rec First Nat. Bank Britt. Plaintiff asks that her claim of $3,900 00 be established against deft bank etc

Hattie H Perton vs Harry R Perton. Plaintiff asks that she be divorced from defendant.

Chicago Jt St. Ld Bank vs Mamie Costello et al. Plaintiff asks judgment for $6,880 94 and foreclosure of mortgage on S½ of NW ¼ and NW¼ of SW¼ 16-94-23

Plymouth Clay Products Co. vs Drainage District 5 and 87 et al Action asking for payment of certain drainage warrants.

Laura Roban vs. M. W. Arnett et al. Plaintiff asks judgment for $210.16 on acount of labor.

E A. Couper vs Katie Turner et al Plaintiff asks that his judgment for $1,000.00 against defts. be impressed with a lien against a certain note and mtg. etc.

Herman Julson vs. Mabel Clingman. Plaintiff asks judgment on notes for $3877 41 and for writ of attachment.

C. E. Somers vs F J. Wenck et al Plaintiff asks judgment for $5,616-00 and foreclosure of mortgage on lot 14 block 34 and lots 4-5 block 14 Garner and lot 4 block 2 Morningside add Klemme.

W. C Pyle, Receiver vs R E Hunsley et al. Plaintiff asks judgment for $18,800 00 and foreclosure of mortgage on NW¼ 11-96-26.

Jno P. Spalla vs. W. A. Lee et al. Plaintiff asks judgment for $2,925.00 on note.

Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. vs Jos. E Johnson et al. Plaintiff asks judgment for $43,917.74 and foreclosure of mortgage on S½ 34-95-23

N Y. Life Ins. Co vs. J. O. Prescott et al. Plaintiff asks judgment for $7704.50 and foreclosure of mtg. on N½ of NE¼ and SE¼ NE¼ of 5-97-24.

Equitable Life Assur. Soc. vs. M. S. Burgitt et al. Plaintiff asks judgment for $9540.00 and foreclosure of mortgage on SE¼ 16-96-25.

Standard Oil Co vs. Bert Veland. Plaintiff asks that deft. be enjoined from removing from lots 13-14 blk 3 Corwith, etc.

Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. vs. Link H. Gray et al Plaintiff asks judgment for $40,847 44 and foreclosure of mortgage on N* 7-95-25.

Metropolitan Life Ins. Co. vs. G. A Kahler et al Plaintiff asks judgment for $7318 15 and foreclosure of mortgage on W½ SE¼ 15-95-24.

Chicago Jt. St. Ld. Bank vs. H J Griswold et al. Plaintiff asks judgment for $4976 06 and foreclosure of mortgage on E½ NE¼ and SW ¼ NE¼ and SE¼ 22-97-25.

H M Morine vs. Bessie L. Russel et al Plaintiff asks judgment for $2752.82 and foreclosure of mtg on NW¼ 3-97-26.

LYRIC THEATRE PROGRAM THIS WEEK AT GARNER

A typical Bowery saloon of 1904, a black and white political poster over the bar carrying the legend, "Vote for Alton B Parker for President oosevelt means hard times," the big free lunch counter with its fat and jovial attendant, long rows of mirrors, a half dozen bartenders busily mixing drinks, an "old soak" here, an "old soak" there. This is one of the many colorfull settings in "Silence," a fine underworld melodrama picture which will be shown Friday and Saturday, Sept. 23-24 at The Lyrich Theatre at Garner.

Hilarious Fun Fest Is Promised

Johnny Hines will be the feature next Tuesday and Wednesday, Sept. 27-28 at The Lyric at Garner, in "White Pants Willie," which is said to abound in humorous sequences, one of the most hilarious being a fast polo match played by crack players with the comedian being mistaken for a polo champion, thrust into the game and forced to win or lose the girl. Naturally the comedian's white pants play an important role and supply moments of genuine humor, starting the picture off with a gale of laughter that dosen't cease until the final fade-out.

Next Friday Will Be A Big Day In Klemme; Korn Day Program

"KLEMME KORN DAY" WILL BE CELEBRATED SEPT. 30th

Plenty Of Entertainment For All For All Day Long

Next week Friday, Sept. 30th, is the big day in Klemme this fall, when the business men of Klemme wil stage a "Klemme Korn Day," or fall celebration.

There will be something going on every minute of the day—no long waits or dull moments Klemme invites you and your friends and your families to come early and stay late.

This will undoubtedly be the last celebration in Northern Iowa this fall and elaborate plans are being made to make the day a big success, and one that everyone will enjoy.

Stunts For The Kiddies

In planning the celebration the committee in charge of sports have not overlooked the kiddies. There will be prize stunts and contests for them, as well as stunts and contests for he bigger boys and girls, and for men and women. $100 in cash will be divided and given to the winners in the street sports.

Free Acts On Program

The committee in charge of attractions promise they will have a number of high class free attractions and acts on the program both for the afternoon and evening.

There will be all kinds of concessions and the Main Street will be a regular "mid-way" of concessions, attractions, etc

Bi gBand Engaged For The Day

Negotiations are under way and we are practically assured that the 24-piece band from Meservey will be here for the day and evening and a good program of music will bo arranged for the day.

Real Ball Game Lined Up

The fast Coulter team and the Klemme Independents will put on a ball game that is expected to be exciting from start to finish. Both of these teams have played some fast games this year and stand about an even show of taking the long end of the gate money. For the fans of this vicinity this will be about their last chance to see a good ball game this year as most teams have already closed their season on the diamond.

Entertainment For Evening

A good program for evening entertainment is being arranged and in addition to the free acts, band concert, a big dance, there will be other entertainment planned for old and young.

Streets Wil Be Decorated

"Klemme Korn Day" is something new and may be mado an annual event. The streets and business places wil be decorated with corn stalks and corn, the electroliers will be dresed with corn and pumpkins which will present a novel appearance.

Come to Klemme on "Korn Day" and bring the whole family. The big program starts at noon, but there wil be something going on all day—so come early and stay late!

Friday, September 30th is the big day

KLEMME REFORMED CHURCH
Calvin Grosshuesch, Pastor

Services for next Sunday are as follows:

9:30 a. m. Sunday school in the country.

10:00 a. m. German service.

11:00 a. m. Sunday school.

7:30 p. m. English service.

The services during the week are as follows:

8:00 p. m. Wednesday Young People's Bible Class.

8:00 p. m. Saturday, Junior choir.

Confirmation Class, 9:00 a. m. Saturday; 11:15 a. m. and 1:00 p. m. Tuesday.

NEW RECORDS FOR PLAYGROUND USE IN NATION EXPECTED THIS YEAR

Over 1,000,000 Men, Women, Children in Attendance Represents Present Figure—Communities Report Increase Over 1926—New York Leads.

BIT by bit children are winning back for their use as play grounds the land won from them in the last fifty years by the march of commercial progress.

Aided by various associations and individuals throughout the country, communities are setting aside more money each year to give children what the authorities call the children's birthright, according to data now being compiled to cover 1927

More than 1,000,000 men, women and children every day found play and recreation on public playgrounds last year, according to the Playground and Recreation Association. That figure is expected to be exceeded greatly this year. In 758 cities the municipalities spent $19,202,123 for recreation purposes on 5600 outdoor playgrounds.

So far this year 790 towns and cities have reported recreational facilities at 19,123 centers, everyone supervised or directed in some fashion to give the greatest good to the greatest number

For this year, New York State is in the lead with 1,416 recreation centers in 74 cities Pennsylvania is second with 906 centers and Massachusetts third with 807 playgrounds.

California, however, spent more than any other state, with a total of $2,671,-

Illinois was second with $2,397,106 and New York State was third with $2,331,262. In New York City alone the expenditure was $939,263.

In the last ten years, it is estimated the number of public recreation centers has been multiplied by more than two and a half. The increase has been due in large measure to provision made by realty men for recreation centers in new sub-divisions.

Model playgrounds today include kindergarten, swings, slides, merry-go-rounds, pavilions, field houses, wading pools and, of course, an open play area where the larger children may romp to their hearts' content, with ball games, top matches and marble tournaments.

No grass could stand the punishment of hundreds of feet and the modern practice is to roll the ground firmly and bind the surface with some agent, usually calcium chloride, which keeps the dust laid even in extremely dry weather.

Such playgrounds have an added value in keeping children off the streets, the experts assert, and thereby reduce the number of deaths from automobile accidents. Some cities, notably New York, have reported substantial gains in child-saving by this means.

ALBERT FIXES NEW DATES FOR OPEN PHEASANT SEASON

Hancock County Will Get Five Days In October

W. E. Albert, state game warden, has set Oct. 14, 15, 21, 222 and 29 as the dates for pheasant hunting in Hancock, Winnebago, Worth, and Butler counties.

In Mitchell, Floyd, Blackhawk, Hardin, Wright, Franklin, Chickasaw, Kossuth, Palo Alto, Humboldt, Cerro Gordo, Grundy and Howard counties the hunting days are Oct. 21, 22 and 29.

The dates were set pursuant to a demand by farmers for an open season on the birds which they claim are destructive to crops. The daily bag limit is three male birds.

No hen may be taken, according to Mr. Albert. Shooting must be between a half hour before sunrise and sunset on the open dates.

The new dates are oiffcial.

HANCOCK COUNTY REAL ESTATE TRANSFERS

A Weekly Review Of Sales And Trades In Property

Chas. Yineman to Carl M. Yineman et al. W. D., date 9-10-27, $1. S½ of NW¼ 23-97-24.

August Hartwig et al to Charles Hartwig. Q. C. D., date 10-3-1919, $1.00. SW¼ of SE¼ 23-94-26.

Lucy V. Weldon to Chas. C. Waldon. W. D., date 9-9-27, $1.00. Lot 1 block 20 Crystal Lake.

Ora Christensen to Henry Christensen. W. D., date 9-13-27, $1.00. E½ of SW¼ 35-96-26.

H. R. Kluver wife to Crystal twp. W. D., date 8-26-27, $1.00. 1 acre adjoining cemetery in SE¼ NW¼ 16-97-25.

SARATOGA, N. Y. SAW ONE OF "FIFTEEN DECISIVE BATTLES"

One hundred and fifty years ago this month one of the "Fifteen Decisive Battles of the World" was being fought on American soil. It was the battle near Saratoga, N. Y. where the sesquicentenial celebration that is now being held there, commemorates not only the turning point of the American Revolution but also this epoch-marking ovent in world history.

In this issue of The Times there is an illustrated feature article telling of the romantic history of Burgoyne's surrender at Saratoga, when the American patriot first definitely set his feet in the path to vicory. Be sure o read "The Turning Point of the Revolution," by Elmo Scott Watson, in this issue.

METHODIST CHURCH NOTES
A. W. Gauger, Pastor

All services will bo regular next Sunday.

Special music will feature again next Sunday.

Rov. Gauger Assisted At Garner Funeral

Rev. A. W. Gauger assisted in the funeral services of Mr. Wm. Gast, Sr., in Garner on Wednesdav afternoon. Interment was made in the Liberty Township Cemetery. The following people from Klomme attended: Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Schaefer, Mrs. H. L. Suckow, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Sampson, Erick Josten and Henry Griewe.

BEN GREIMAN RAISED 1,003 BU. OF IOBRED WHEAT

Crop Averaged Over Thirty Bushels To The Acre; Had 30 Acres

It may be of interest to the farmers to know how Ben Greiman's 30 acre field of Ames Iobred wheat turned out. Mr. Greiman had approximately thirty acres which went 1,003 bushels by machine measure, or about 33 1-3 bushels per acre. By weight the crop would go bettere and is of an excellent quality, testing out 64.

Ben says he wil put in about 35 acres next year of the same wheat. He is disposing of practically his entire crop this year for seed, of which there is a big demand for this particular kind.

P. T. A. WILL MEET TUESDAY EVENING

RECEPTION WILL BE GIVEN BY COMMUNITY FOR TEACHERS

All Parents Are Urged To Attend First P. T. A. Meeting

A reception for the teachers has been planned by the parents of the P. T. A. to be held Tuesday evening of next week, Sept. 27th at 7:30 o'clock at the high school gym.

The comittee in charge has arranged the following program to be given:

Words of Welcome to our Faculty
Mr. A. D. Gimer, President of the School Board.

Response, Miss Wilma Trumbell
High School Principal.

General Discussion of the subject.
"What Should be the Program of our P. T. A. this school year? Also should we plan to employ a school nurse?"

Election of Officers.

Refreshments will be served free to those remaining for a social time

This wil provide a chance for parents to meet their children's instructors. Both should become acquainted with each other in the interest of the pupils. Earnest and friendly co-operation should prevail between our teachers and parents if the maximum is done for the children. And it is the children's welfare with which all are concerned. Let's make this meeting a record breaker from the standpoint of attendance. Let every parents represented in the school put business aside Tuesday evening of next week and attend the P. T. A. Program, that the school year may start off right.

Everyone intreested in school is cordially invited to attend.

County School Matters Arranged

Our pupils, no doubt, welcomed the two days vacation given them last week while the faculty were attending the county institute at Britt.

Supt. Baggs provided a competent corps of instructors for the institute and we felt tho time was well employed while there. We also were able to spend an evening at the County Fair Grounds and see the exhibits and enjoy the program furnished by the Farm Bureau.

The County Schoolmasters Club reorganized by electing Supt. Thomson, president; Supt. Wolf, of Kanawha, vice president; and the Klemme Superintendent for secretary-treasurer.

It was decided to hold the Preliminary County Declamatory contests at Klemme and Britt and the final at Garner Klemme will again contest against Hayfield, Garner, and Goodell, in the first round about Jan. 31.

The County Basket Ball Tournament will again be held at Britt on Feb. 24 and 25, if permission can be obtained from the State Athletic Board of Control.

Base Ball Team To Play Friday

Our base ball team played a team picked up hurriedly from town on Tuesday evening of this week and showed during most of the game pretty good form They seemed to lose control however, during the last two innings and permitted the town fellows to overcome a lead of two scores and win by a score of 9-5. Orville Stokesbary and Oral Gibson constituted the high school battery with Gibson receiving and Stokesbary on the mound.

We go to Goodell on Friday evening of this week for a game, after school. We hope many of our fans in town can get away for this opening game of the season. Coach Heiden has been giving our boys some good training in the national game and with the same spirit that now prevails there is promise of good work by our team. We should not be over confident, however, for several of the team are not experienced players. But all are out to do their best whether winning or losing.

Glee Club Organized Here

Mr. Lewis has discovered an interest among the girls of our high school in a glee club. They met on Wednesday evening after school and had their first rehearsal.

The Turning Point of the Revolution

SURRENDER OF BURGOYNE
From Painting by John Trumbull

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

IT WAS a campaign which, on paper, had every prospect of success; when put to the test of execution it failed miserably. So American history added to the roll of the "Fifteen Decisive Battles of the World" the name of Saratoga, and it is at Saratoga, N. Y., where the unsuccessful Burgoyne campaign culminated, that there is being held on October 6, 7 and 8 the greatest in the series of sesquicentennial celebrations staged by the state of New York this year. Because of the far-reaching results of the events that took place there 150 years ago, the Saratoga celebration has nation-wide significance.

In the spring of 1777 the British ministry decided to make a supreme effort to crush her rebellious colonies. Accordingtly Lord Germain, the English minister, conceived the plan of separating the colonies into manageable units, and more especially cutting off "the head of the rebellion," New England, by sending a force down the Hudson from Canada, another up that river from New York City and a third through the Mohawk valley from Oswego, all converging on Albany.

But no sooner were the plans laid than several vital mistakes were made. In the first place, Gen. John Burgoyne, a pleasure-loving man of letters, playwright and social lion, who had but little military ability, was placed in command of the expedition from Canada instead of the capable Sir Guy Carleton. More than that, he was given positive orders as to exactly what he was to do and he had no authority to alter his plans to meet changing circumstances. But the greatest blunder of all was this: Lord Germain wrote out the order for General Howe in New York to cooperate with Burgoyne, laid it aside on his desk, forgot about it and went off to visit a country house without sending the order. The result was that Howe sailed away from New York on a perfectly useless expedition against Philadelphia and Burgoyne plunged into the wilderness to meet Howe without knowing that the latter was actually running away from him!

Having started, Burgoyne proceeded to make a few mistakes of his own which assured the failure of the campaign. He underestimated the ability of the Americans who opposed him under the leadership of Gen. Philip Schuyler; he underestimated the difficulties of traveling through the wilderness ahead of him, loaded himself down with useless baggage and failed to provide himself with adequate means of transportation for his supplies, and he deceived himself in the belief that the Loyalists would rally to his standard as he approached. Not only did they fail to rally, but Burgoyne soon found that in employing Indian allies, over whom he soon lost all control, he completely alienated any who might have been friends and he soon stirred up a veritable hornets' nest.

When his army of some 7,000 men, nearly half of them Germans under Baron Riedesel, embarked on Lake Champlain on June 17, 1777, it carried with it one of the finest artillery trains ever seen up to that time on the American continent. At first everything seemed to point to the success of the expedition. For the British were not the only ones who made mistakes. General St. Clair made a serious one when he failed to fortify the hills overlooking Fort Ticonderoga—and Burgoyne captured this fort and with it 128 guns. Crown Point had been taken previously and Fort Independence and, a little later, Fort Ann also fell before the invader. These successes led the Englishman to believe that within a few days he would be in Albany and his view was shared by the home government. There is an amusing story that when the news of the fall of Ticonderoga reached King George III, he dashed into the queen's room with the glad cry of "I have beat them, I have beat the Americans!" He did not realize that they, like John Paul Jones, had "not yet begun to fight, although Burgoyne soon realized it.

The historic Fort Edward was the next to fall into his hands. But by this time his greatest difficulties had just begun. The prudent and skillful General Schuyler, as he retired before the British advance, did everything in his power to delay the enemy. The inhabitants of the country withdrew with Schuyler's army, taking with them all of the provisions and stock possible and destroying the remainder. Bridges were broken down, rivers and creeks choked up and giant trees cut down across such roads as there were through the woods. Burgoyne was forced to cut his way through the wilderness. It took him 30 days to cover less than 25 miles and during that time he was forced to build some 40 bridges!

The New Englanders were threatening his flank, but his instructions forbade him to turn aside and strike a blow at them. The messengers which he tried to send through to Howe were captured by the Americans and he had no idea of what that general was doing. Finally the food situation became desperate. Then Burgoyne attempted the ill-advised expedition under Colonel Baum, the Hessian leader, to Bennington, Vt., to capture the American supplies there. The result is history—the defeat of Baum by grim old General John Stark and the defeat also of Colonel Breyman, who had been sent to Baum's assistance.

In the meantime another disaster to the ambitious British plan had taken place. Col. Barry St. Leger, who was to deliver the Mohawk valley coup, failed to capture Fort Schuyler (formerly Fort Stanwix) and this, like Bennington, was another factor which contributed to the final downfall of Burgoyne. But despite these reverses, he determined to push on. On September 13 he took the decisive step, crossed the Hudson and moved his whole force to Saratoga. In doing this he had cut off his communications with Lake George and Ticongeroga. All he could do now was to press forward and trust to luck.

There was one element of luck in the situation in another blunder by the Americans. Politics in congress had resulted in the replacement of General Schuyler by Gen. Horatio Gates, a leader inferior in every way to Schuyler and even to some of his subordinates, notably Daniel Morgan and Benedict Arnold. But even that fact was not enough to save Burgoyne from the fate which awaited him. The American camp was pitched at Stillwater, 12 miles further down the river. Burgoyne advanced to attack and on September 19 the bitter fight at Bemis Heights took place. Burgoyne had failed to dislodge the Americans and the attempt had cost him 500 men.

The predicament of the British general at this point is well described in Wrong's "Washington and His Comrades" in the Yale University Press' "Chronicles of America" as follows:

> Burgoyne's condition was now growing desperate. American forces barred retreat to Canada. He must go back and meet both frontal and flank attacks or go forward or surrender. To go forward now had most promise, for at last Howe had instructed Clinton, left in command at New York, to move and Clinton was making rapid progress up the Hudson. On the seventh of October Burgoyne attacked again at Stillwater. This time he was decisively defeated, a result due to the amazing energy in attack of Benedict Arnold, who had been stripped of his command by an intrigue. Gates would not even speak to him and his lingering in the American camp was unwelcome. Yet as a volunteer Arnold charged the British line madly and broke it. Burgoyne's best general, Fraser, was killed in the fight. Burgoyne retired to Saratoga, and there at last faced the prospect of getting back to Fort Edward and to Canada. It may be that he could have cut his way through, but this is rather doubtful. Without risk of destruction he could not move in any direction. His enemies now outnumbered him nearly four to one. His camp was swept by the American guns and his men were under arms day and night. American sharpshooters stationed themselves at daybreak in trees about the British camp and any one who appeared in the open risked his life. . . . His horses were killed by rifle shots. Burgoyne had little food for his men and none for his horses. His Indians had long since gone off in dudgeon. Many of his Canadian French slipped off homeward and so did the Loyalists. The German troops were naturally dispirited. They died, a score at a time, of no other disease than sickness for their homes. . . .

In the face of all this there remained for Burgoyne nothing but surrender. On October 8 he sent a flag of truce to Gates, asking what terms he would give. The British general indignantly refused the first demand for an unconditional surrender and after much argument finally signed the articles, called "The Convention of Saratoga," under which the British army was allowed to march out with the honors of war, pile their arms at an appointed place and then be marched to Boston, from whence they were to be allowed to return to England on the condition that they would not serve again in America.

Although Gates was not a particularly admirable figure in this campaign, in that he connived to supplant Schuyler and basely refused to give the credit due Morgan and Benedict Arnold for their brilliant work against Burgoyne's army, he does deserve credit for his treatment of his fallen foe. When Burgoyne handed him his sword with the remark "The fortune of war, General Gates, has made me your prisoner.," the American general immediately returned it with a bow and the gracious remark "I will be ready to testify that it was through no fault of your excellency." It can also be said to the shame of congress that it repudiated the terms given the British by Gates, held them as prisoners of war in Boston and later in Virginia and although the officers were exchanged from time to time, the army, as a body, never got back to England and eventually disintegrated. By the time peace came in 1783 Burgoyne's soldiers had been merged into the American people and it may be that some of their descendants may participate in the celebration this month at Saratoga where American and Briton clashed in deadly conflict and wrote with their blood the name of another history-making battle. For Saratoga led directly to French aid and it was the biggest step taken by the American patriot in his march to Yorktown and to victory.

"So the prince and the gentle maid were married, lived happily ever afterwards and had all the fine cake made with Monarch Cocoa and Monarch Teenie Weenie Peanut Butter sandwiches they wanted."

EVERY genuine Monarch package bears the Lion Head, the oldest trademark in the United States covering a complete line of the world's finest food products—Coffee, Tea, Cocoa, Catsup, Pickles, Peanut Butter, Canned Fruits and Vegetables, and other superior table specialties.

REID, MURDOCH & CO.
Established 1853
Chicago Pittsburgh Boston New York
Jacksonville Tampa Los Angeles

Monarch is the only nationally advertised brand of QUALITY PRODUCTS sold exclusively through the men who own and operate their own stores.

MONARCH
Quality for 70 Years

IT is interesting to know that KARO, America's most popular and most delicious syrup contains a large amount of body-building Dextrose. And this, of course, explains why children thrive on KARO.

So give your children all the KARO they desire—on sliced bread, biscuits, pancakes or waffles—it's a great energy food for them.

KARO

MAIL THIS COUPON TODAY!

Send ten cents (stamps or coin) with this coupon and you will promptly receive your copy of Ida Bailey Allen's new book, "The Modern Method of Preparing Delightful Foods," containing nearly three hundred new and unusual recipes. Address:

CORN PRODUCTS REFINING CO. ★
208 E. ILLINOIS STREET, CHICAGO, ILL.

Name.....
Address.....
Town.....State.....

Diminutive Babies

English parents are vying with one another for the honor of having the lightest weight baby. One entry from Paddington was a little girl who for three weeks was fed with milk from an eye-dropper. She has now graduated to spoon feeding. The child is the tenth in the family. From Christchurch, New Zealand, came a mother's claim that her fifteen-year-old daughter weighed 14½ ounces at birth and was also fed with an eye-dropper.

Resourceful Financier

"When I started out in the world I had but a dollar."
"What did you do with that?"
"Wired home for some more."

World's Oldest Bush

According to Dr. Edgar T. Wherry of the Department of Agriculture, a box huckleberry bush in Perry county, Pa., is the oldest bush in the world. This remarkable bush is a mile and a quarter long and covers the entire side of a hill. Doctor Wheery estimates that it grows six inches a year. Taking that as a basis, the plant must be something like 12,000 years old.

No Amateur

"Jack," she cooed as they sat on the beach in the moonlight, "have you ever been engaged before?"
"Why," he answered, "you don't think that this is my first vacation, do you?"

Old Folks Say Doctor Caldwell was Right

The basis of treating sickness has not changed since Dr. Caldwell left Medical College in 1875, nor since he placed on the market the laxative prescription he had used in his practice, known to druggists and the public since 1892, as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

Then, the treatment of constipation, biliousness, headaches, mental depression, indigestion, sour stomach and other indispositions that result from constipation was entirely by means of simple vegetable laxatives, herbs and roots. These are still the basis of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is a combination of senna and other mild laxative herbs, with pepsin.

The simpler the remedy for constipation, the safer for the child and for you, and the better for the general health of all. And as you can get results in a mild and safe way by using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, why take chances with strong drugs?

A bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will last a family several months, and all can use it. It is good for the baby because pleasant to the taste, gentle in action, and free from narcotics. In the proper dose, given in the directions, it is equally effective at all ages. Elderly people will find it especially ideal. All drug stores have the generous bottles.

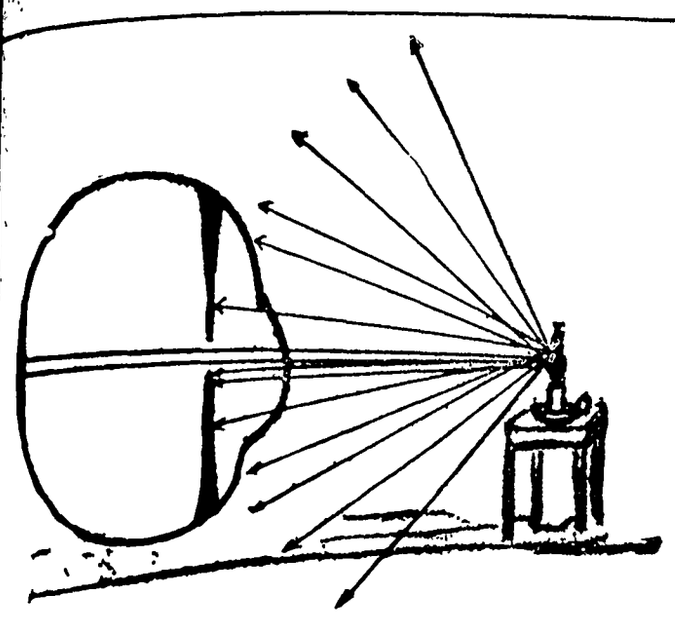
We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE

YOURSELF and YOUR BODY

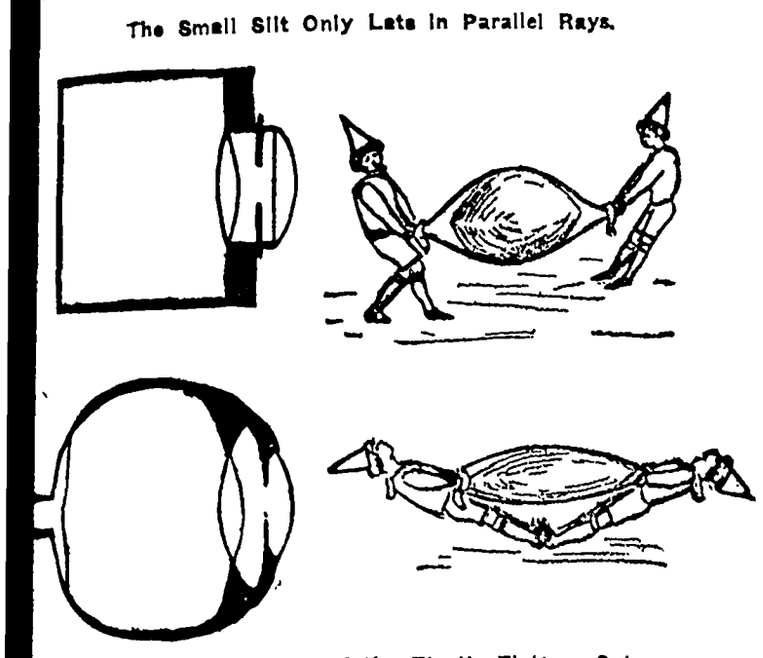
By WILFRED T. GRENFELL

SENTINEL NUMBER TWO

The Eye



The Small Slit Only Lets in Parallel Rays.



Pull on the Bag and the Elastic Flattens Out.

THE second control, the eye, is also very simple, and we control it much more perfectly. It is exactly like a camBut it, too, is imperfect, very ted, and often deceives us. It is ted on purpose, because if we ed about seeing like a microscope would be frightened to death by sight of the millions of dangerous s that are in our air, our water, food. As it is, we see so much in those rays of light coming in ugh the window that we almost to breathe it in. While if we saw the things that are in our atmos-e, like a walking human telescope, like some kind of radio-telescope t do, we should not be able to our lives on this planet at all. As tein shows, everything on this h is relative, and our powers have e relative, too, or we couldn't exist

Now look carefully at the light ing in through this slit in the win-. See how it travels in straight s. That is because it comes from lions of miles away, so that all the seem parallel. But now that I this electric bulb close up to the see how its rays get wider and er apart as they go. However, tically all light rays entering the from over twenty-five feet away parallel, because the opening of eye-shutter is so small it really lets parallel rays in. (See pic-.) Now you see this prism or lens. when it stands in the way of the how it turns them? They can't el through glass as easily as ugh air, so the rays on the out-, only having very little glass to through, go quicker, and the col- of rays gets bent, as you see. It ike a regiment of soldiers march-straight ahead and coming to a sh. Those who have only a little to pass through get ahead of those are in the bog longer.

This makes the outside men curve ard the center so that eventually will meet in one point. This is ed the focus. Now look at the In front of the lens, the cham- is filled with water, which is ped exactly like the marsh, and ch not only bends the rays, but cools down the rays of light so they don't burn the film. Put r finger here, where I focus this shine, which ordinarily seems so fectly cool."

"Wow, it burns!"

"Well, the water in front and the id jelly that is behind the lens, which fills the dark chamber, pre- that. The dark chamber is lined h black cells."

"Why?"

"Well, just like the camera. If it e lined with looking glass or white, re would be confusing rays of light ected by the million, and your pic- would be spoiled. But those k fellows that stand all around chamber, shoulder to shoulder, lit-ly swallow all the rascally rays t creep in at wrong angles. Men h black skins don't burn, even in ica; their skin takes the rays right

"What's the good of the inside ?"

"Oh, lots of good! If all the objects want to see were always the same tance from us, it would not be ded, but they move nearer or farther from us, and our eyes want to follow them—so as the rays are one time coming wider and wider apart, or more and more parallel, according as the object gets nearer or farther off, the lens must get thicker or thinner, as the case may be. There is a ring of muscles all around the bag in which the clear elastic ball, called the lens, hangs. This flattens or lets the lens get rounder again, by pulling, or not, on the edges of the bag. But you and I have no kind of control in that. (See picture.)

"As we grow older, the lens gets so tired out that it won't bounce out into a ball shape any longer, but stays too flat—and so it can't make the rays from a near object meet on the sensitive plate, but behind it. So now whenever I have to hold a book to read it at all, I have to put a new fat lens in front of my eye to make up. We call it spectacles. Of course if my arm were long enough, and my print big enough, that would not be necessary, as I could put the book twenty-five feet away and go on reading.

"There is an automatic shutter in front of the eye, called eyelids, and an automatic curtain in front of the lens to shade out too much light, called the pupil. And the sensitive plate on the back is made up of cells like cones, and rods which stand on 500,000 wires that spread out over the film. Thus an eye and a camera are just alike. Moreover, the eye has muscles to move it round in every direction—these are controlled by you and me, exactly as the photographer controls the camera and moves it round any way he pleases. All eye pictures are stored away by central, exactly as the nose pictures are, in the vault called memory."

(© by the Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Vast Liquor Cisterns in Use in Portugal

I visited a gigantic wine cellar (near Lisbon, Portugal), where it seemed that enough drink to intoxicate the entire world had been stored, writes Roda Roda in "Uhu," Berlin, as translated for the Living Age. It boasted 24 enormous cisterns two stories high, filled with the most costly wine, and vast tubs of mahogany holding 75,000 liters each.

The champagne cellar is in the form of a tunnel 500 yards long, packed with bottles. Workers shake each of these bottles daily in a special way for four years before the champagne is sold. The entire enterprise is still called the Royal Wine company, in spite of the objections raised by the republic.

One of the cellars contains port dating to 1756, and the bottles, thickly covered with dust, look like little hairy apes, sitting in pigeonholes. Old women clean and cork these bottles with amazing speed.

Gigantic Birthday Cake

A ninety-three-layer cake, thirty-nine inches high, was the contribution of a daughter at the ninety-third birthday anniversary party of her mother, Mrs. Mary H. Oliver, at Lakeland, Minn. The cake was carried in sections and set up at the mother's home and was supposed to picture a ladder of ninety-three rungs, representing Mrs. Oliver's life.

Alfalfa Stands Die Out Early

Bacterial Wilt Disease Is Cause of Trouble in Most Districts.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Many alfalfa growers have complained to the United States Department of Agriculture during the past three years that their stands of alfalfa now die out in three, four or five years where they once lived much longer. These complaints have come from many places, especially from the central and southern Mississippi valley, and also from some irrigated districts.

Bacterial Disease.

It is not always possible to name the specific cause of alfalfa dying out; in fact, there is often more than one cause operating. But as a result of the attention which these complaints have focused upon the alfalfa crop, one fact has become clearly apparent. There is in the United States a bacterial wilt disease of alfalfa which was not previously recognized. This disease, according to Fred R. Jones, pathologist of the department, is responsible for a great deal of the trouble that growers have experienced. Moreover, it appears that bacterial wilt, which now occurs in at least a few fields in practically every alfalfa-growing district of the United States, may easily become more thoroughly disseminated than at present and thus in some districts develop into the most serious disease with which alfalfa culture must contend.

Organism Causing Disease.

The organism causing the disease enters the plant through wounds and passes downward through the taproot and upward through the stems. At length the entire plant may wilt suddenly on a hot day. Later in the summer some of the affected roots produce short, pale-colored, spindling shoots with small, narrow leaves. When the taproot of such a plant is cut across, the woody portion of the root is found yellow and discolored close beneath the bark. When the bark is stripped back the wood is found yellow or brown, altogether unlike the white wood of healthy plants. This discolored wood distinguishes the disease from winter injury and other troubles.

The bacterial wilt disease is now being studied by the department and state experiment stations to determine its distribution, how it is carried from field to field, when and through what kinds of wounds it most frequently enters the plants, and whether there is varietal resistance to the disease.

Spoilage of Vegetables and Fruits Preventable

Spoilage of canned vegetables and fruits may result because they were not washed clean before they were canned. The soil contains bacteria which causes spoilage. Therefore, get rid of the soil. Wash vegetables, as beans and asparagus, thoroughly before cutting, and peas before podding. Berries should be washed before and after they are hulled. If they are washed in a strainer, the water may be run over them until it is clear as it comes through the strainer. A vegetable brush comes in handy for cleaning some vegetables.

A good slogan to follow in canning all vegetables is "Two hours from garden to can." They should not lay overnight or for a half day or more, but rather should be handled while crisp and fresh. It is far better to pick beans, peas, sweet corn and other vegetables in the early morning and can them right away than to pick them the evening before while they are in a dry, wilted, and hot condition. Flat sour will start by morning in these vegetables that are allowed to lie over night before canned.—Nebraska College of Agriculture.

Agricultural Notes

The laying hen never loafs.

* * *

Silos should be tight enough to keep the juice in and the air out.

* * *

As a cash crop, soy beans can be successfully grown, especially on the lighter and sandier soils.

* * *

The very first step in successful storage of onions is careful curing, and this careful curing must start in the field.

* * *

Rye is an excellent nurse crop for clover seed owing to the fact that it can be cut earlier for grain than either wheat or oats.

* * *

One cannot afford to spend ten dollars' worth of time repairing a machine that is not worth ten dollars after the job is done.

* * *

Successful onion storage demands a cool temperature and low humidity, so it is especially important that they be stored in a well-ventilated place and a place that is as nearly dry as possible.

* * *

Plant food in commercial dried animal manures increased about 40 per cent in cost between 1914 and 1924, reports the New York experiment station. Its average cost today is 42.4 cents a pound, as compared with 10.5 cents a pound in mixed mineral fertilizers.

Camel

The cigarette that offers the utmost in refreshing pleasure

The Camel blend of choice tobaccos makes a smooth, cool, mild, refreshing smoke. No special treatment for throats—Camel tobaccos don't need it.

© 1927, R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, Winston-Salem, N. C.

Stretch of Railroad Abounding in Bends

An engineer once said Uintah railroad reminded him of the rail fence that was so crooked every time a pig crawled through it he came out on the same side.

This line, which covers the 70 miles between Mack, Colo., and Watson, Utah, is declared to be the most difficult to operate in the United States. There are 233 bends in one stretch of ten miles.

Between Mack and Baxter pass, atop the Rockcliff mountains, the railway climbs 3,896 feet, and to negotiate this stretch of 85 miles geared locomotives are required. Gilsonite is the chief commodity hauled, a vast deposit on the eastern edge of Utah being the only considerable quantity of the mineral known in America.

Detour

We have just been apprised of a taxi-driver whose fare, a gentleman slightly unsteady, gave the order to drive "to the end of the rainbow." The chauffeur was acquiescent—until he began to worry about the customer's ability to pay. Then he stopped the taxi, opened the door and said cheerily:

"Well, here we are!"

"Is this the end of the rainbow?" inquired the fare.

"Well, not quite, sir," was the ingenuous reply. "The end is really one block west, but the street's torn up and you'll have to get out here."—New Yorker.

He Aimed to Please

A prosperous farmer who sold produce to the inhabitants of a neighboring community aroused the ire of one of his customers by failing to have some of the commodities that she wished to buy.

"Is this all you have?" exclaimed the woman, surveying the stock disdainfully.

"No, madam," replied the farmer, whose equanimity was being sorely tried, "I have a mortgage on your house that is overdue. I can bring it back on the way home."

Gold Medal for Cooking

When Sweden's crown prince visited this country last year he was a guest of Secretary of State Kellogg in Washington. The prince was so well pleased with the cooking at the Kellogg home that he had the Swedish parliament vote the cook, Mrs. Lydia Bungener, a gold medal. Mrs. Bungener has just received the medal with a complimentary letter from the prince and is the proudest woman at the nation's capital.—Capper's Weekly.

Swifter Than Light

The velocity of electricity far exceeds that of light. Light travels at the rate of 186,400 miles a second; electricity, at the rate of 248,500 miles a second.

Why Not?

Teacher—And what did Newton do when the apple struck him on the head?

Pupil—He picked it up and ate it.

Simple Matter

Teacher—How can you tell the approach of winter?

Pupil—It begins to get later earlier

Has Frank Preference for Dirty-Faced Boys

Dirty-faced youths make excellent office boys when given a good scrubbing, the Westminster (London) juvenile employment advisory committee has concluded after numerous experiments.

Some employers prefer dirty-faced boys to begin with. One employer wrote to the committee: "I want an honest little tough with rather dirty knees and a soiled face and thorough understanding that life is a struggle and the devil take the hindmost. I prefer them (i. e., boys, not devils) to be short, sturdily built, either fair and dirty faced, or dark and red faced with just a suspicion of a cold in the head."

The advisory committee, commenting on the request for a "little tough," says: "All employers are not so easy to satisfy, by any means."

When a man with all the facts arrives, arguments are likely to cease.

Getting Off Easy

Mandy—Did yo' tell de ministah dat I don't want him to kiss me when he marries us?

Rufus—Yes, an' he done said in dat case he take jus' half de usual fee.

Proved His Contention

"A man who can't express himself so that people can understand him is an idiot. Do you understand me?"

"No!"—Pathfinder Magazine.

The Holiday

Hubby—Hurrah! I'm going to have a holiday tomorrow.

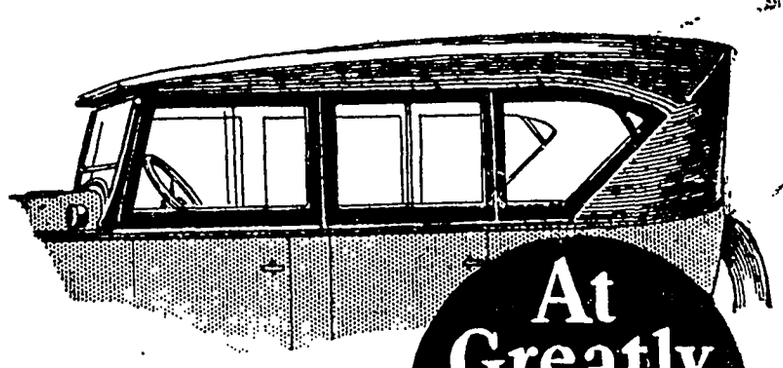
Wife—Good! You can clean the cellar and the attic.

Many Visitors

Over 80,000 people visited Shakespeare's birthplace last year and nearly 60,000 Anne Hathaway's cottage.

When a man acts like a mule the latter would be justified in kicking him.

Now! Genuine Rex Enclosures



At Greatly Reduced Prices

KEEP winter out. Equip your open car with genuine Rex Enclosures. No leaky, flapping side curtains—no gusty drafts—all the warmth and comfort of a sedan—at amazing low cost. Quickly installed. Write for descriptive leaflet.

Rex Enclosures are made for these cars

Buick—Cadillac—Chevrolet—Chrysler—Dodge Brothers—Flint—Ford—Hupmobile—Maxwell—Nash—Oakland—Oldsmobile—Overland—Star—Studebaker.

REX MANUFACTURING COMPANY, Connersville, Indiana

Disfiguring Blemishes Healed by Cuticura

Daily use of Cuticura Soap, assisted by Cuticura Ointment when required, not only soothes and heals unsightly and annoying blemishes and irritations on neck and face, but tends to prevent such conditions. Nothing purer, more economical or more satisfactory than these fragrant emollients.

Soap 25c. Ointment 25 and 50c. Talcum 25c. Sold everywhere. Sample each free. Address: "Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. 25, Malden, Mass."

Cuticura Shaving Stick 25c.

Move for World Peace

The first international peace conference around 1900 was called by Czar Nicholas of Russia, May 18, 1899. This was a preliminary conference and a second was called for October 21, 1904. Many questions of international law and procedure were discussed and a later conference assembled in 1907 when such items as humanizing war agencies, the establishment of neutral territory, the freedom of the seas policy, and many others were discussed. Preliminary steps had been taken to call a third conference in 1915, when many matters were to be finally adjusted. This conference was halted by the World war.

Riches of Golden State

The poet who spoke of "jeweled peaks" must have had California in his mind's eye, for some mountains in southern California are fairly studded with whole mines of gems and precious stones—so much so that the Golden state is one of the world's greatest producers of gems and precious and semi-precious stones of great value. Nearly every lovely jewel known to man and adored by woman is found somewhere within the confines of the state, and splendid collections of them are in the world's great museums, both in this country and in England and Europe.

Goodell News

(By Special Correspondent)

Jay Griggs returned from Milwaukee, Wis., Wednesday.

W L. Sherwood and family were shopping in Mason City Saturday.

Mrs Houghton is entertaining friends from Springfield, Mo.

Clement Houghton is spending his vacation with his mother.

Elmer Boren returned from Grundy Center Wednesday.

J. Griggs was a business caller at Clear Lake Saturday.

Mrs. Clayton Babcock of Kanawha was a Goodell caller Wednesday.

Mrs. Adelia Hemenway and son visited at Clarion Friday.

Mart Kearney hauled tile to his farm, east of Goodell, Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Busse were Meservey callers Monday.

Mrs. Geo. Griggs was a caller at the John Bachman home Thursday

Goodell and Coulter played ball Sunday. Coulter won the victory by a score of 13-8.

Mr and Mrs. Presley Griggs of Forest City and Audrey Griggs drove to Des Moines Saturday.

Mrs Henry Busse enjoyed a visit from two lady relatives of Ohio this week.

Mrs. Thos, Cashman is having her house reshingled. "Slim" Mattson, and Earl Clarke are doing the work

The high school are getting some new desk chairs for the science department.

Daphne Houghton returned from a few weeks visit with friends in Missouri.

Martin Kearney returned from a two weeks visit with Williams relatives Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Carpenter left Saturday for a visit with relatives at Red Oak. They will attend a U B Conference at Muscatine also.

This vicinity was visited by heavy rains and a hard wind storm Thursday and Saturday. Following that has been an extreme change in temperature.

The workmen of the garage gave a free dance in the garage last Monday night. An orchestra from Clear Lake furnished the music and a big crowd enjoyed the evening.

Ordinance No. 1

POWERS AND DUTIES OF THE COUNCIL

An Ordinance defining the Powers and Duties of the Council.

Ordinance No. 2

POWERS AND DUTIES OF THE MAYOR

An Ordinance defining the Powers and Duties of the Mayor.

Ordinance No. 3

POWERS AND DUTIES OF THE CLERK.

An Ordinance defining the Powers and Duties of the Clerk.

Ordinance No. 4

POWERS AND DUTIES OF THE TREASURER.

An Ordinance defining the Powers and Duties of the Treasurer.

Ordinance No. 5

POWERS AND DUTIES OF THE MARSHALL

An Ordinance defining the Powers and Duties of the Marshall.

Ordinance No. 6

SALARY ORDINANCE.

An Ordinance providing for the Compensaton of Offcers and Employees.

Ordinance No. 7

FIRE DEPARTMENT.

An Ordinance Establishing and Regulating a Fire Department.

Ordinance No. 8

POLL TAX.

An Ordinance Providing for Poll Tax.

Ordinance No. 9

DOG LICENSE.

An Ordinance Providing for the Licensing of Dogs to Run at Large and Prescribing a Penalty for Violation.

Ordinance No. 10

PUBLIC DANCE HALL AND SKATING RINK

An Ordinance Defining, Regulating and Licensing Public Dance Halls and Prescribing Penalties for Violation.

Ordinance No. 11

POOL AND BILLIARD HALLS AND BOWLING ALLEYS

An Ordinance Providing for the Regulation and Licensing of Pool and Billiard Tables and Bowling or Ten Pin Alleys kept for hire, and Providing a Penalty for Violation.

Ordinance No. 12

NUISANCES.

An Ordinance Prohibiting, Providing for the Assessment of the Cost of Abatement, and Prescribing Penalties for Violation.

Ordinance No. 13

OFFENSES.

An Ordinance Defining Offenses and Prescribing Penalties For Violation.

MORALS
PEACE
HEALTH
PUBLIC PROPERTY
PRIVATE PROPERTY
STREETS SAFE
STREETS CLEAN
ANIMALS
DANGER FROM FIRE
GENERAL.

Ordinance No. 14

ELECTRIC WIRES AND POLES.

An Ordinance Controlling Electric Wires and Poles and Prescribing Penalties for Violation.

Ordinance No. 15

EXPLOSIVES AND OILS.

An Ordinance Regulating the Sale and Keeping of Gunpowder, Oils, and Other Explosives Materials, and Prescribing Penalties for Violation

Ordinance No. 16

MOVING BUILDINGS

An Ordinance Regulating the Moving of Buildings Along or Over the Streets and Alleys and Prescribing Penalties for Violation

The above Ordinances, Numbers 1 to 16, inclusive, were authenticated this 6th day of June, 1927

PAUL GRANGE,
Mayor.
A. J. KUDJE,
Clerk.

Revised Ordinance No. 17

CLEANING AND REPAIRING SIDEWALKS.

An Ordinance Providing for the Repairing and Cleaning of Sidewalks and for Assessing the Expense thereof against the Abutting Property.

Passed, adopted and approved this 21st day of June, 1927.

PAUL GRANGE,
Mayor.
A. J. KUDJE,
Clerk.

Ordinance No. 18

TRAFFIC ORDINANCE.

An Ordinance Regulating the Use of the Streets, Alleys and Highways by Vehicles of All Kinds and Prescribing Penalties for Violation.

The above Ordinance was authenticated this 6th day of June, 1927.

PAUL GRANGE
Mayor.
A. J KUDJE,
Clerk.

Ordinance No. 19

WATER RATES AND REGULATIONS.

The above Ordinance was authenticated this 21st day of June, 1927

PAUL GRANGE
Mayor.
A. J. KUDJE,
Clerk.

Old Ordinance Number 31 to known as New Ordinance Nu 20.

Old Ordinance Number 34 to known as New Ordinance Nu 21.

Old Ordinance Number 36 to known as New Ordinance Nu 22.

Old Ordinance Number 37 to known as New Ordinance Nu 23.

Old Ordinance Number 37 to known as New Ordinance Nu 24.

Old Ordinance Number 38 to known as New Ordinance Nu 25.

Old Ordinance Number 39 to known as New Ordinance Nu 26.

Old Ordinance Number 40 to known as New Ordinance Nu 27.

Old Ordinance Number 41 to known as New Ordinance Nu 29.

Ordinance No. 28

WEED ORDINANCE

An Ordinance Providing for time of cutting of weeds in Str Alleys and Vacant Lots

The above Ordinance was authenticated this 21st day of June, 1

PAUL GRANGE
Mayor
A J KUDJE,
Clerk

Choicest

FOODS

Folks, there couldn't be any eating place, no matter how expensive or how flossy, give you a better selection of high grade foods than we do.

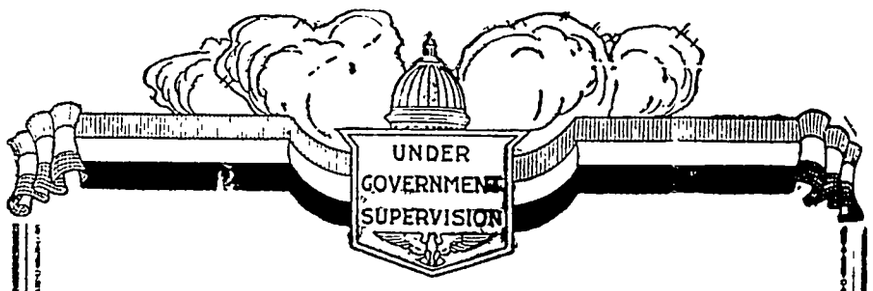
And Oh! How we do cook 'em!

Drop in for dinner or a lunch tomorrow.

DELICIOUS—
Try our ice cream, a number of flavors, ice cold pop, and malt.

A full line of Cigars and Tobacco, at—

Busch Cafe



Ask Your Banker--

Mazzini once said, "Good counsel has no price." Everybody at times needs to "talk things over" and get another person's viewpoint and opinion. This is particularly true n money matters where mistakes may prove costly. One of our officers will be glad to discuss quetsions of finance or investment whenever you feel that the special knowledge and. experience. of a banker would be useful. There is, of course, no charge for this service and you need feel no obligation in requesting it.

First National Bank,
KLEMME, IOWA.

KORN DAY!

Klemme, Iowa

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 30

A big day of Fun & Street Sports

$100 Prize Contest Events

Horse Shoe Pitching Contest (morning) $15.00
Three Legged Race $2.00, $1.00
Ladies Free For All Race $2.00, $1.00
Boys Foot Race, 14 yrs. and under ..$1.00, $1.00, 50c, 50c
Girls Race, 12 yrs. and under $1.00, $1.00, 50c, 50c
Fat Mans Race $2.00, $2.00, $1.00, $1.0
Free For All Race .. $3,00, $3.00, $2.00, $2.00, $1.00, $1.00
Potato Race on Horses, ...$5, $5, $2.50, $2.5, $1.00, $1.00

RACES AND CONTEST BEGIN AT 1:00 O'CLOCK P. M.

Tug of War, Liberty vs. Ell township $5.00
Battle Royal (furnish your own gloves) $10.00
Greased Pole Climbing $5.00
Pie Eating Contest $1.00
Pillow Battle $2.00
Ladies Nail Driving Contest $1.00, 50c
Little Girls' Doll Buggy Parade Contest, each entry receives 50 cents, grand prize $2.00

CONTEST FINISHED AFTER BALL GAME!

Music by Meservey Band

BIG BALL GAME

Coulter vs. Klemme

Free Street Acts afternoon & night

Contests Attractions Dance Concessions Etc.

Everyone Welcome

The Cause of Low Testing Cream

Perhaps you do not know that there are a number of reasons for low testing of cream and which can often be easily remedied. We would suggest that you check over your separator thoroughly. Here are a few reasons for low test cream:

1. Ceam screw turned too far from center of separator bowl.
2. Clogging of skim-milk outlet with dirt.
3. Excessive inflow of milk into the separator bowl.
4. Speed of separator bowl too slow.
5. Milk too high in temperature.
7. Too much skim-milk or water used in flushing separator bowl.

If your separator is not delivering cream that is testing between 25 or 40 per cent fat you should check up on some of the above possible reasons and see if you cannot remedy the trouble. It is high testing cream of good flavor that means fancy butter and consequently more for your cream.

Clean, barns, clean pails, clean hands, means clean milk. A clean separator and the cream immediately cooled and kept nice and sweet are other factors the successful dairyman thinks of. Keep up the quality during this hot spell and deliver to us nice, sweet cream and you will be repaid for the extra effort.

We want to thank you for the co-operation you are giving us in our request for high quality cream. Keep it up!

Klemme

Co-Op. Creamery Co.

Order Christmas Cards Now--

Times Print Shop

FLOUR SALE

FOR THE REMAINDER OF THIS WEEK

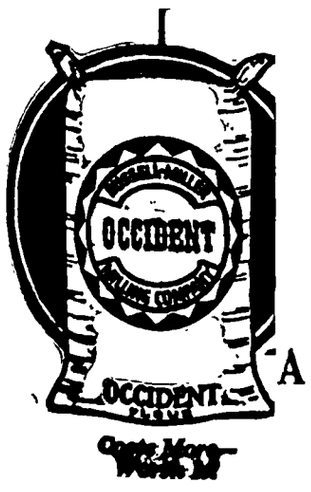
Mothers Best Flour

PER SACK $1.90

In 10 Sack Lots

5 Sack Lots at $1.95 per sack Single Sacks at $2.15

It will pay you to lay in your winter's supply at these low prices. This is a high grade flour and a big seller.



New Shipment

A Carload lot of Occident Flour just unloaded

North Iowa Grain Co.

Avery-Twin Lakes News

(Special Times Reporter)

Fred Schultz was at the Harry Sandrey farm last Monday.

Mrs. Fred Etchen attended the fair at Britt last Friday.

Mr Ben Swalve called at the D. Swalve home Monday afternoon.

Dick Swalve was a caller at the Ernest Helps home Monday morning.

Mr Carl Wille is the owner of a new corn binder purchased recently.

Fred Wessels called at tht Edwin Josten home on Wednesday evening.

The heavy rain was very much needtd, but the wind did some damage, nevertheless.

Mr and Mrs. Dick Swalve visited at the Henry Buseman home last week Friday evening.

Mrs John Tanner and daughter, Bernict called on Mrs. D Schwichtenberg one day last week

Mr. Voiles, the nursery stock sales man, of Belmond, was in this vicinity last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sandrey and family attended the Britt fair last Thursday.

George Buseman was a caller at the home of Henry Buseman last Tuesday afternoon.

Charles Papousek, of Belmond, called at the Dick Swalev home on Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Swalve, Sr. drove to Kanawha Sunday to visit relatives.

Mrs. Bil Grtiman and daughter, Elmyra, attended the Mission Feast at Garner Sunday.

Mrs. Fred Etchtn was at the Henry Lemke home assisting during Mr. Lemke's illness.

Mr. and Mrs Dick Swalve and children attended the Mission Feast at Mesorvey last Friday.

A man living near Des Moines drove through this community Monday morning selling grapes.

Some play groung equipment, a slide and swing combination, has been ordertd for Dist. No. 1 school.

Mr. and Mrs. Owen Nuehring and family from near Klemme visited at the Walter Bredlow home Sunday.

Silo filling began in this vicinity Wednesday morning at the Elmer Schlei farm.

Miss Adella Kuhlman helped Mrs Elmer Schlei last Tuesday and Wednesday.

Mr and Mrs. Dick Swalve and children spent Sunday visiting with Mr and Mrs. Gilbert Schaeper.

Mr and Mrs. Carl Wille and daughter, Arlene, attended the Mission Feast at Garner Sunday.

Herman Priebe and family were at the Henry Josten home Sunday visiting. Mrs. Josten is much better at this writing.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Priebe and family atended the Elltown Reform Church Mission Feast Sunday fortnoon.

The light frost which fell Sunday night did some harm but somt farmers were busy last week picking seed corn.

Mr and Mrs. Ben Swalve and grandson, Bennie Schaeper, attended the Hancock County Fair last Thursday.

Miss Adella Kuhlman visited Miss Edith Haupt's school one day last week. Miss Haupt's school is located about three miles from Klemme.

A silo fillers meeting was held at the Henry Buseman farm last Thursday evening. Silo filling will begin as soon as possible at the Elmer Schlei farm.

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Swalve and family and Mrs. Frank Ryan and son, who have been visiting in this community, were at Mason City on Friday.

Liberty News Notes

(Special Times Reporter)

A light frost was noticed here the last few mornings.

Walter Ridder had his tonsils removed one day last week.

Mrs. John Stille was in Garner Monday as her father was very low. He passed away Monday afternoon.

Oscar Carlson and wife entertained the John Larson family for dinntr Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jake Ter Hark were visiting at the Albert Carolus home one day last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Leemke visited in Britt Sunday at the home of Mrs. Whitney.

Mr. and Mrs. Htrman Bridges returned home Wednesday after a two weeks visit in Kansas and Missouri.

Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Viken and daughter, Edna, were visitors at the John Larson home Sunday evening.

Henry Lemke, who is in a Mason City hospital is nicely recovering from his recent operation.

John Velau and wife are entertaining relatives from Waterloo this week.

A large number of folks of this vicinity attended the Hancock County Fair at Britt last Thursday and Friday.

Herman Gast was at the bed side of his father most of the time last week His father made his homt with his son, Wil Gast of Garner.

Will and John Lemke drove to Mason City Sunday evening to see their brother Henry in the Mtrcy Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Stille and family, and Herman Gast and family, attended the funeral of Will GaGst, Sr, at Garner Wednesday afternoon.

Frtd and William Pannhoff returned to their home last Friday after a weeks visit in Minnesota and South Dakota, visiting friends and relatives.

Mrs. John Tanner and daughter, Bernice, Mrs. Emil Btier and Ethel Beier, attended the funeral of Will Gast, Sr. at Garner Wednesday afternoon.

Quentin Stille and wife moved their house hold goods out from Garner the last part of last week and are now nicely settled in their new home on the Will Stille farm.

Ben Reemtr and wife and sister. Mrs. Emil Beier, went to Mason City Saturday afternoon and brought Mr Carl Reemer home from the hospital. Carl had an operation a short time ago and is feeling much better

Mrs. John Tanner's sister, Mrs. Nuckles and the Tanner children drove to Nashua Sunday to see the Little Brown Church. They remained there long enough to attend the services and then drove to Charles City.

Mrs. Roy Schaefer underwent an operation for the removal of her tonsils last Thursday. She remained with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gates in Klemme, for a day or two. Miss Alice Carolus staytd with the Schaefer children during the absence of their mother.

Refrigerator people are publishing some cold facts these days.

Mrs F Ryan and Joseph, who had been visiting at the D. Schwichtenberg, Ben Reemstma and Dick Swalve homes, returntd to her home in Mason City Friday. Mr. and Mrs. Dick Swalve took her back.

Edwin Josten is improving his farm a great deal lately. The latest he is doing is leveling his yard to an even grade which with the new barn adds greatly to tht appearance of the place.

Mr. and Mrs. Emery Schaefer, Mrs. Frank Ryam and son Joe, and Mrs. David Schwichtenberg and son Jesse Donald, were visiting at the Dick Swalve home Wednesday tvening.

Avery Twp. News

(Special Times Reporter)

Mr. Steiman and Mr. Ben Coobs are grading the road in Avery No. 2.

Chris Anderson helped D. A. Marshall cut corn Wednesday afternoon.

Dwght Helps is asisting with the work at the Frank Pringnitz home.

Silo filing is in full swing in this vicinty.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Bachman spent Tuesdayt a the Clarence Bachman home.

Mrs. Ed. Bachman and children spent a couple of days at the John Bachman home.

Mr. and Mrs. Alec Groh and sons left Thursday morning for Chicago for a visit with relativts.

Mrs. Chris Hanson of Concord was a visitor at the John Bachman home Wednesday.

The Trustees of Avery Township are dynamiting out all the trees along the roadsides.

Mr. Chris Anderson was a caller at the Will Waddingham home Wednesday forenoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Trampel and family were Sunday evening visitors at the Verner Nelson home.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Beek of Davenport were visitors at the Fred Albers home one day last week.

Mr. and Mrs. William Bell and son Kenneth spent Sunday afternoon at the Will Lassahn home.

A heavy wind and rain storm swept through this vicinity Saturday evening which did quite a bit of damage.

Mesdames Kearney and Bielefeld entertained the Rosary society last Thursday afternoon, which was well attended.

Miss Agnes Fuller who teaches at Miller was a week end visitor at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Pat Fuller.

Harry Carpenter and family and Mr. and Mrs. Amos Hanson were entertained Sunday to supper at the James Tries home in Belmond.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Helps and son Dwight and daughter, Dorothy and Frederick Groh were business callers at Mason City Monday forenoon

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Nelson and daughter Ardella attended a family reunion Sunday held at the home of Bert Lauen at Belmond.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bachman and daughter, Maxine, and Mr. and Mrs. John Lass and family were visitors at the John Bachman home on Sunday.

Mrs. Verner Nelson and daughter Ardella, Mrs. Andrew Nelson and daughter Elma, spent Wednesday at the home of their mother, Mrs. Mein derts at Meservey.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Roths, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bachman and family, and Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Marshall and son Gilman attended the Hancock County fair at Britt Thursday.

Bill Allaben, a mail carrier of Avery township, tipped over Thursday as he was goin up a hill when his brakes failed to work, which caused his car to go down backwards. The car tipped over but Mr. Allaben was not hurt, but the car was slightly damaged.

Three National Capitals

The nation's capital was moved from New York to Philadelphia on December 1, 1790, for a period of ten years, ending December 1, 1800, prior to its removal to Washington. After the burning of the capitol during the War of 1812 a strong movement arose for removing the capital from Washington. In fear of such a result the local interests formed the Capitol Hotel company, and erected a building for government occupancy until the repairs on the capitol were finish. It was occupied from 1814 to 1819 and was afterward known as the "Old Capitol" and was used in the Civil war as a military prison.

LOST—30x5 truck tire and rim, between Klemme and Stone school Reward. Emil Kraus. 2tp

The Garner Signal subscription list, files and good will were sold to W. G. Williams of the Garner Leader Friday, by Frank Clark, editor of the Signal. Mr. Clark has been the owner of the Signal for about ten years He retains the plant equipment and the building. What his future plans are has not been announced. Mr. Williams will consolidate the two papers and continue operating a semi-weekly

FINE FOOD FOLKS

There's a difference in the way vegetables, meats, etc. are cooked and you will recognize it the moment you eat them here.

We serve only the very best the market affords, all well cooked.

As with everything, we think the best is none too good for our patrons.

Drop in for lunch or any meal anytime, at—

Crystal Cafe

Conrad Quandt, Prop.

LYRIC

Theatre

—GARNER, IOWA—

Presents The Following

Friday and Saturday
Sept. 23-24

Cecil B. DeMille's Melodrama
"SILENCE"
—Comedy—
"UKULELE SHEIKS"
Adm. 10-25c 1st show 7:30

Tuesday and Wednesday
Sept. 27-28
Johnny Hines in
'WHITE PANTS WILLIE'
—Comedy—
"MY WIFE"
Adm. 10-25c 1st show 7:30

Farm

Loans

5%

Isaac Sweigard

Garner Iowa

PIANOS

Players & Grand

New and

Second Hand

M. N. ZEIGER

Jewelry & Optical Goods

GARNER, IOWA

Improved Uniform International

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D.D., Dean Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)
(©, 1927, by Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for September 25

REVIEW—THE EARLY KINGS OF ISRAEL

DEVOTIONAL READING—Ps. 105: 1-8.

GOLDEN TEXT—The Lord hath prepared His throne in the heavens; and His kingdom ruleth over all.

PRIMARY TOPIC—What We May Learn From Samuel, Saul, David and Solomon.

JUNIOR TOPIC — Teachings and Warnings From the Quarter's Lessons.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Lessons From Samuel, Saul and David.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Honoring God in Our Lives and in Our Land.

Though the lesson title for the quarter is "The Early Kings of Israel," the great character Samuel should be included. A good way to conduct the review would be to make a character study of the four outstanding persons of the quarter—Samuel, Saul, David and Solomon. Perhaps the most satisfactory method of review will be the summing up of the leading events and teachings of each lesson. The assignments should be made a week ahead, so that the members of the class may recite without hesitation. The following suggestions are offered:

Lesson for July 3.

Against the protest of Samuel the people demanded a king, in order that they might be like other nations. Saul, of the tribe of Benjamin, was given as best suited to fill the place.

Lesson for July 10.

Because of Samuel's exemplary life as a child, a judge and a ruler, he was able to challenge the people to show wherein he had ever defrauded or oppressed anyone. It is a fine thing when a man in public life can be vindicated against the charge of wrongdoing, either in public or in private.

Lesson for July 17.

Saul's failure brought great sorrow of heart to Samuel. The selection of David from Jesse's sons showed that God looks not on the outward appearance, but upon the heart. David's fidelity as a shepherd boy put him in line for promotion.

Lesson for July 24.

Because David was jealous for and trusted in God he was able to overcome Goliath, who had defied the living God.

Lesson for July 31.

The friendship of David and Jonathan has become immortalized in the world's thought. It was unique in that it occurred between two men of rival worldly interests. Jonathan, the crown prince, knew that God had chosen David, therefore he waived his natural rights.

Lesson for August 7.

David knew that God had rejected Saul and chosen himself to be king. Though relentlessly pursued by Saul, David spared the king because he was God's anointed.

Lesson for August 14.

When David was made king he desired to bring up the ark, the symbol of God's presence, to the center of the nation's life. Though his desire was worthy, he was not careful to do according to God's way. Doing a right thing in a wrong way is displeasing to God.

Lesson for August 21.

Though God did not permit David to build a house for Him, He did something better; He promised to build for David a house, that is, to establish for him a throne. God does more and better for us than we are able to ask or think.

Lesson for August 28.

Through neglected duty David fell into temptation and grievously sinned. By means of a parable Nathan the prophet convicted him of his sin. Upon confession to God forgiveness was granted.

Lesson for September 4.

Because Solomon chose wisdom in order to intelligently reign over the nation, God abundantly bestowed upon him wisdom and riches. God's blessings exceed our asking.

Lesson for September 11.

Solomon's first task after his coronation was building the temple, a privilege which was denied to David, his father. Because of Solomon's obedience God manifested His presence and thus made the temple holy.

Lesson for September 18.

Rehoboam's pride and arrogancy lost to himself the support of the major portion of the nation.

We Grow Strong or Weak

Great occasions do not make heroes or cowards; they simply unveil them. Silently, day by day, we grow strong or weak and at last some crisis shows what we have become.—Canon Westcott.

Have Christ in Your Heart

If a man have Christ in his heart, heaven before his eyes, and only as much of temporal blessing as is just needful to carry him safely through life, then pain and sorrow have little to shoot at.—William Burns.

The Cost and the Gain

Christ tells us to count the cost of discipleship, but he never asked us to count the gain. He knew we could not; there is no arithmetic to compute that.—W. L. Watkinson.

1—President and Mrs. Coolidge laying corner stone of Coolidge Sylvan theater at Brookings, S. D. 2—Devil dance of the Apaches at the unprecedentedly large inter-tribal assembly of Indians of the Southwest at Gallup, N. M. 3—Maj. Gen. F. McIntyre, chief of bureau of insular affairs, who may be made governor general of the Philippines.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Round-the-World Aviators Abandon Flight Over Pacific Ocean.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

HAVING "bucked a monsoon over India and a typhoon over Japan," as Schlee and Brock, the Detroit world-circling aviators, said, they arrived at a flying field near Tokyo and then yielded to the appeals of relatives and friends and abandoned their projected flight across the Pacific via the Midway islands. They announced they would take an early boat for the United States and would have their monoplane shipped home. This decision was reached after a conference with aviation experts in Tokyo and was influenced by many cablegrams from America urging the flyers not to attempt the Pacific flight. Schlee's children sent a message begging their father to think of them before making the perilous attempt. Another factor was the lack of gasoline and oil on the Midway islands. The aviators had expected supplies to be sent there by the American Navy department but Admiral Moffett in Washington denied he had promised this, saying he had no authority to use navy vessels in transporting private supplies.

Though they fail in establishing a new record for speed in circling the globe, Schlee and Brock made one of the most successful of long distance flights. Starting from Harbor Grace, N. F., on August 27, the Pride of Detroit had flown 12,275 miles when it landed near Tokyo on September 14. The aviators were delayed in Constantinople by governmental red tape, but had no other serious trouble until they undertook the hop from Shanghai to Tokyo. They ran right into the typhoon that was sweeping over that region and were forced down near Omura, whence they made another hop to the naval flying field at Kasumigaura. The Japanese intelligence police annoyed them exceedingly but everyone else there was helpful and considerate.

Six hundred miles off the Newfoundland coast the steamer Kyle picked up part of the wreckage of the plane Old Glory in which Bertaud, Hill and Payne undertook to cross the Atlantic. The condition of the wreckage gave little hope that the crew was still alive, but the search for the three men was continued.

Parts of other planes were reported sighted off the Corwall coast and about 300 miles west of Halifax, N. S. It was thought these might be from the St. Raphael and Nungesser's plane.

Miss Ruth Elder and George Haldeman, who planned to fly from New York to Paris, despite the recent disasters, arrived at Roosevelt field with their plane and said they would start as soon as the weather was propitious.

FIFTEEN balloons started from Detroit in the annual race for the Gordon Bennett trophy, and the Detroit, polited by R. G. Hill, was declared the winner. It came down at Baxley, Ga., having traveled 725 miles. This was little more than half the distance record for the event, set by Blenaime of France in 1920. W. T. Van Orman with the Goodyear VI took second place. All the balloons landed safely.

SIR AUSTEN CHAMBERLAIN, British foreign secretary, told the League of Nations assembly flatly that Great Britain would sign no more security guarantee protocols because England could no longer speak for the dominions except as they authorize in specific cases. He thus revealed the extent to which the component parts of the British empire have assumed independence. He admitted that the dominions are empowered if they like to make separate accords in the interest of preserving peace with other powers, and can accept the arbitration of The Hague court if they choose. Said Sir Austen:

"There is no government of the British empire and we can only speak through the voices of six or seven governments. I occupy a league council seat as delegate of the British empire, but do you think as a representative of his majesty I can speak without consulting the members of the group forming the empire? I can only speak when I have their assent to speak for them.

"We can separate the United Kingdom from the empire for negotiating a commercial treaty, but suppose we signed a compulsory arbitration treaty and the dominions did not—where is the unity of the empire—it does not exist."

Dr. Eusebio Morales, Panama delegate at Geneva, created a stir when he suggested that the dispute between his country and the United States over American sovereignty in the Canal zone might form a subject for arbitration before an impartial court of justice. Secretary of State Kellogg promptly announced that there is no question about the Canal zone sovereignty and that, anyway, the League of Nations has nothing to do with the matter. At the State department it was said that there are no serious disputes between this government and Panama and that any differences of opinion will be easily adjusted.

President Chiari of Panama then issued a statement in which he said: "Doctor Morales not only did not carry instructions to take up the question in the league assembly, but my government absolutely disapproves of the reported procedure of the Panama delegate at Geneva regarding sovereignty over the Canal zone."

Canada, Cuba and Finland were elected to nonpermanent seats in the league council.

FRANCE recently put into effect a new tariff that hit American exporters hard, and the Washington government made representations to Paris. In reply the French foreign office set forth the French conception of reciprocity as the condition for entering upon fruitful negotiation of a tariff treaty.

Nothing less than the present high rates in force are offered until the American reply to this note shall be received. When the United States replies that the American government is ready to begin such discussions, then the French government will substitute for the present scale a modified schedule, giving American goods considerably lower rates, but not up to the limit of those granted to countries with which France has commercial treaties, notably Germany.

WHETHER or not to call special congressional sessions was a problem on which President Coolidge spent considerable time immediately after his return to Washington. Some persons have been urging that the senate be called together to deal with the Vare and Smith cases, and the Democrats want a special session of both houses to take up general legislation. Senator Curtis and Representative Tilson, Republican leaders of the respective houses, were consulted by Mr. Coolidge and both advised him that nothing would be accomplished by calling the senators and representatives back to Washington in advance of the regular session in December. It was believed the President would accept this advice.

W. L. MELLON, chairman of the Republican state committee of Pennsylvania, is said to have carried to party leaders in Pittsburgh the word that his uncle, the secretary of the treasury, had selected Charles E. Hughes as his favorite candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination. It was at once whispered about that the Pennsylvania delegation of 79 would be instructed for Hughes and that Secretary Mellon would be able to dictate the nomination by the convention. It was assumed that New York's 91 votes would be for Hughes, and Mellon was said to count on New England as a certainty for his candidate. That, with what he might garner from other states, would give Hughes a running start in the balloting. Washington was immensely interested in the Pittsburgh story. Secretary Mellon, however, seemed rather displeased by it and told interviewers that it was too early to make a decision on the matter of candidates. Mr. Hughes has refrained from comment on his possible candidacy.

Al Smith in his campaign for the Democratic nomination is about to invade the West, or at least his supporters are. With the knowledge and consent of the Eastern Smith men, a conference of leading Democrats from 12 Western states was called for September 23 and 24 in Ogden, Utah, and it was understood the availability of Smith as a Presidential nominee would be discussed. The letter of invitation said the subjects to be considered would be: 1—The present two-thirds rule prevailing in the Democratic national committee. 2—Who is the most available Presidential candidate? 3—The need of a united intermountain Democracy. 4—More recognition of Western industries in our tariff legislation.

JAPAN and Mexico were visited by cataclysms, the former last week and the latter on September 7. The Japanese island of Kiushiu was swept by a typhoon, flood and tidal wave that killed and injured many hundreds and caused property losses of perhaps $10,000,000. The tail of the storm hit Tokyo, and thousands of homes were flooded. Delayed and still meager reports from Mexico said the west coast of that country for some 2,400 miles was devastated by terrific tidal waves following a hurricane. Walls of water rolled into seaport towns and laid them waste, and all along the coast the people who survived were driven far inland. The number of those drowned, it was feared, would be very large. Guaymas, Manzanillo and especially Salina Cruz suffered great property losses.

ISADORA DUNCAN'S bizarre life came to a bizarre end last week in Nice. The famous American dancer was being given a demonstration ride in a car she intended to buy and a long red scarf, which she had worn since she became a communist, became entangled in the wheel. Her neck was broken, death being instantaneous.

WITH Governor Jackson indicted and Mayor Duvall of Indianapolis on trial for political corruption, Indiana is getting the long expected expose which may result in a great house cleaning—and may not. The Indianapolis Times recently expressed editorially the opinion that Senators Watson and Robinson should resign because of their alleged relations with politicians whose honesty is attacked. Senator Robinson demanded a retraction and Editor Gurley retorted with new and more specific charges. These the senator denied, and threatened a libel suit.

ON THE fourth anniversary of the inception of the military directorate of Spain under Gen. Primo de Rivera, a new development in that country's government began. The directory was modified into a semi-military ministry, but operated without a parliament. The place of parliament now is to be filled by the long-promised national assembly, convocation of which was decreed by King Alfonso at the request of Primo de Rivera. The assembly is expected to meet on October 14 for the primary purpose of advising the government on the draft of a new constitution and other matters of state, including the budget.

The people will have no direct voice in the selection of the assembly members, all of whom are to be appointed by the government. Primo de Rivera has promised, however, to give all shades of public opinion a consulting voice, excluding only politicians of the old school, whom he ousted from their posts.

AMERICAN LEGION members by the thousands were on the Atlantic last week on their way to Paris for the annual meeting which opened September 19. And the Paris authorities spent the week "cleaning up" the naughty resorts so the Yanks should come to no harm. The landing of the Legionnaires at Cherbourg was marked by elaborate ceremonies, and plans were made for a magnificent parade in Paris on the opening day, despite the fact that one or two radical organizations of French service men refused to participate.

What's the Answer?

Questions No. 16

1—What is the name of the highest peak in Canada?

2—Who was the leading jockey for 1926?

3—Who was the Union general at the battle of Gettysburg?

4—Who was Kit Carson's grandfather?

5—Where are diamonds found in the United States?

6—What celebrated English landscape artist, apostle of light and color, made upward of 400 paintings and 19,000 drawings?

7—Who is considered England's leading "pagan" story writer?

8—How long is the Ribber crab and where is it found?

9—What does a lawyer mean when he calls a statement "impertinent"?

10—What is the last line in the Lord's Prayer?

11—What great religious allegory was completed by its author while in prison?

12—Which is the loftiest peak in the United States, exclusive of Alaska?

13—What horse won the Futurity in 1926?

14—Who was known as the "Pathfinder?"

15—What great Revolutionary victory was won on Christmas night?

16—Where is the fly's sense of taste located?

17—What living violinist in America has been the teacher of Elman, Heifetz, Zimbalist, Seidel and other celebrated artists of the violin?

18—Where does the coco palm flourish best?

19—What is wrong with the phrase, "The man whom he said was there"?

20—When did Mary Baker Eddy discover what she termed Christ Science or Divine Laws of Life, Truth and Love, and name her discovery Christian Science?

Answers No. 15

1—Nethou.

2—Crusader, who won $141,583.

3—Savannah, 1819.

4—1790.

5—The dried meat of the coconut.

6—Liszt.

7—Walt Whitman.

8—Central Africa and does its best on the open shores of lakes and rivers.

9—Harmless state of disuse.

10—Chapter 20.

11—The Cheviots.

12—C. De Mar.

13—John Adams.

14—Grover Cleveland.

15—Commander R. E. Byrd, U. S. N.

16—Ben Turpin.

17—In Camberly, near London, England.

18—They occur in all seas, except the Arctic and Antarctic and are carnivorous in their habits.

19—Because with two the comparative is used, not the superlative.

20—To Isaiah.

Royal Wife Rebuked by Prince Consort

Albert, prince consort of Queen Victoria, filled a difficult, thankless office with tact and success, but was misunderstood and disliked by Englishmen of his generation almost without exception, according to a writer in the Kansas City Star. Brought from an insignificant German town and comparative poverty, at the age of twenty he found himself king in all but name of the most powerful country, and wedded to a very trying wife.

In public the queen displayed adoration and a sentimental solicitude for him, in private she was petulant and exacting. But he bore his trials patiently and once in a while gave his wife a quiet and effective lesson. One evening while he was dining with the council of the Royal academy a messenger arrived from Victoria saying that she desired his presence at Buckingham palace. The prince merely nodded. Half an hour later a second messenger said the queen was waiting and required the prince to return at once. Again he merely nodded. In another thirty minutes arrived a peremptory order: "The queen commands your royal highness' immediate return." Cool and phlegmatic as ever, even under this final humiliation, the prince again dismissed the messenger with a nod. He remained with his hosts of the evening and, sleeping elsewhere, did not return to the palace that night.

Europe Saved at Chalons

A great horde of northeastern people was led into western Europe in the Fifth century by Attila, king of the Huns. For a time these semi-barbarians swept all before them, but finally they were met at Chalons, in eastern France, in the year 451 A. D., by the combined forces of the Romans and the Goths under Aetius and Theodoric. Attila sustained a crushing defeat, and central Europe was saved from the invaders.—New York Herald-Tribune.

MRS. BASSETT ALWAYS TIRED

Now in Good Health by Using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Lansing, Michigan.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound whenever I needed it. When I first used it I was so bad I could hardly walk across the room without crying. I was tired all the time I think my trouble was coming on me for six months before I realized it. I read of your wonderful medicine in the paper, and * * * my husband bought me a bottle, and after the first few doses I felt better, so kept on taking it until I was well and strong. I take it at times when I feel tired and it helps me. I will always have a good word for your medicine and tell anyone what good it has done me. I recommended it to my neighbor for her girl, who is sixteen years old, and it was just what she needed. She is feeling fine now, and goes to school every day."—Mrs. E. F. Bassett, 216 South Hayford Avenue, Lansing, Michigan.

Do not continue to feel all run-down and half sick when Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is sold by druggists everywhere. It is a root and herb medicine and has been used by women for over fifty years.

To Cool a Burn Use HANFORD'S Balsam of Myrrh

All dealers are authorized to refund your money for the first bottle if not suited.

FREE DRESSES To Every Woman who will Show our Samples. Excellent opportunity for spare time money making. Write quick! WESTERN DRESS MFG. CO. 1834 North Ave. Chicago, Ill.

FOR OVER 200 YEARS

haarlem oil has been a world-wide remedy for kidney, liver and bladder disorders, rheumatism, lumbago and uric acid conditions.

GOLD MEDAL HAARLEM OIL CAPSULES

correct internal troubles, stimulate vital organs. Three sizes. All druggists. Insist on the original genuine GOLD MEDAL.

Help for "Rickety" Babies

Dried milk that has been treated with ultra-violet light is the most practical of the irradiated foods that have been used to prevent rickets in babies, in the opinion of Dr. Alfred F. Hess, an authority on rickets. "It is the unanimous opinion that dried milk treated in this way prevents or cures infantile rickets and tetany," asserted Doctor Iless in a report to the American Medical association. "The specific gravity of the milk is maintained for a period of at least six weeks."

Much to Learn

Mrs. Fozzelton—Well, even the well-informed woman doesn't know it all, John.

Mr. Fozzleton—Nope, she doesn't know when to be silent, Jane.—New Bedford Standard.

DIURETIC STIMULANT TO THE KIDNEYS

Standard for Generations.

Mrs. H. A. Brandt of Silverton, Oregon, writes us as follows: "I am writing to tell you that your Dodd's Pills and Diamond Dinner Pills saved my life. After standing my urine was almost half albumen and I was so weak and tired I could hardly move. After taking two boxes of Dodd's Pills and one of Diamond Dinner Pills I felt like a new woman."

At all druggists, 60c per box, or The Dodd's Medicine Co., Inc., 700 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y.

Healthy, Happy Babies

The best way to keep baby in crowing, contented health is Mrs. Winslow's Syrup. This safe, pleasant, effective remedy regulates the bowels and quickly overcomes diarrhoea, colic, flatulency, constipation, and teething troubles.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SYRUP

The Infants' and Children's Regulator is best for baby. Guaranteed free from narcotics, opiates, alcohol and all harmful ingredients. Open formula on every label.

At all Druggists

Write for free booklet of letters from grateful mothers.

Anglo-American Drug Co. 215-217 Fulton St. New York

MEN MAROONED

By GEORGE MARSH

Copyright by The Penn Publishing Co.
WNU Service.

...Y FROM THE START

...rth Guthrie, Canadian war ...n, having to live in the ... on account of weakened ... is factor of a Hudson's ...st at Elkwan. He came ... from the conflict with a ...anently scarred face, which ...olikes cost him the love of ...fiancee, Edith Falconer. Sir ...es Guthrie, his brother, is a ...onaire war profiteer. With ...ne Savanne, halfbreed, his ...friend, Garth meets Doctor ...rrier, geologist, and his sis... Joan. Their schooner has ...ed ashore. Quarrier com... he has been robbed by a ... known as "Laughing Mc...ld." At Elkwan an Indian ... Ninda, tuberculosis victim, ...m Garth has befriended, is ...g. Joan, trained war nurse, ...e for Ninda, but the girl dies ...les Guthrie writes reproach... his brother for not coming ...e. Charles' wife assures him ...l still loves him, but Garth ...s heart knows better. Three ...cDonald's party visit Elkwan ...ing to buy gun shells. From ...n Garth learns of evil talk ...g the Indians concerning ... and Ninda. With Etienne's ... Garth wins the friendship ...aul Souci, "medicine man" ...he Crees, and gets his prom... to persuade the Crees to take ...r furs to Elkwan instead of ...cDonald. Garth is ambushed ...oe Mokoman, Ninda's reput... father, whom the factor had ...en from Elkwan. "Shot," ...th's airedale companion on ...y battlefields in France, ...s him, and the Indian is ...en, a prisoner, to Elkwan ...th sends Mokoman to Mc...ald with a message of de...ce, and the war is on

...APTER VI—Continued

—9—

...you saw Joe Mokoman, did you, ...?" The bass of McDonald broke ...ence with an odd, slurring ar...ion, due to the misshapen lips. ... He says he's covered most of ...mps at this end of the island. ...rse, the blizzard held him up."

...d they'll come in with their fur, ...mas week?"

...st of 'em will, he thinks." The ...man wrinkled his bushy brows ...filled his pipe. "These two half... from Revillon Freres, in that ... beyond Big point, have been ... them hard, you know. They've ...'em the same talk the Hudson's ...anded 'em—about our poor stuff, ...eatin'."

...gar!" burst out Breault. "I ...ese people off de island, toute ... Where is dere camp?"

...u would, would you?" drawled ...ald. "You don't seem to realize ...e're anchored here in this ice ... May. Do you want the French ...e Hudson's Bay to notify Ottawa ... gang of pirates are running ... on the bay? We can't fight the ...ment, you know. We're here to ...ut the fur catch of Akimiski, not ...e the schooner, the fur, and ... trial in the bargain, for God ... what."

...ault's face darkened behind his ... beard as he muttered in feeble ...t, his small eyes shifting from ...lef to Skene for support of his ...tion.

... sober Skene shook his head. ... If you manhandled those French ...ay men, we'd be in a nasty ... tied up here with two years' ... of fur. A snug nest egg for each ... for the government to confiscate. ...e crazy, Breault."

...w what did he learn of the ...abouts of this treaty chief, ... whom Guthrie landed with ...

...e says he headed for the north ...f the island to find his sons. He ...t been seen since."

...ell, you can bet he's out to beat ... he can, but how can he keep ... hunters away from us this ...tmas if the strait is open? The ...ns say it seldom closes until Jan...

...e can't," agreed Skene. "They'll ... wait till then to cross the ice ...kwan when they know we'll pay ... for the fur right here, within ...reach. They always have a blow-...ew Year's, and they'll come here ...ve it. We'll give 'em a good one. ...an afford to."

...ght-o!" McDonald nodded, then ...: "Your hunch on this Elkwan ...seems to be borne out by his buck... ...e ice in that York boat. Only a man ... guts would tackle that strait in a ...

...ere ain't no doubt about his ...," said Skene with finality, exhal... cloud of smoke. "He's due to ...us a fight, as he wrote you—just ... I don't see, but I've seen enough ...n' men in the last five years to ... the look of 'em—. He's one."

...e mus' scare you, my fr'en', ... bit, w'en you meet heem on de ...," bantered Breault.

...e heavy brows of Skene lifted in ...k, close to contempt, which he ... at the speaker. "Breault, I've ...n places that would have turned ... black hair of yours gray. Scare ... This Elkwan man was civil, and ...s civil. I was after some shells. ...don't forget the message he sent ... He said if that black Frenchman ... showed up at his place again, ... get a knife stuck into him. And ...betting he told the truth—from ...gly look of a half-breed he had ... him. When the strait freezes, ...don't you go and find out?"

...ault laughed derisively. "I onlee ... de squaw."

...s," added McDonald. "Get this ...ht in your thick head. You keep away from the squaws this winter, here. We're after fur—not women."

Angered, Breault sneered viciously, "You don' have to worry 'bout de women."

In scarlet patches blood smeared the maimed face of the man on the box. The deep blue of his eyes blackened—then flamed. Slowly, he straightened his long body until his russet head touched the deck above. A huge fist trembled in the bearded face of the man whose small eyes shifted in secret fear. "You drop another word like that to me, you slacker, and I'll hammer you into jelly."

Stiff in his seat, Skene stolcally puffed at his pipe, watching through the corners of half-closed eyes the groping right hand of the Frenchman.

The master of the Ghost swallowed hard—choked. His eyes wavered—then fell before the flaming mask, grotesque, terrible in its fury, of the man who bent toward him The moving hand of Breault stopped—limp Slowly McDonald regained his seat, the sweat standing in beads on his wide, bronzed forehead. Refilling his pipe, he lighted it and, ignoring the rebuked Breault, turned to Skene.

"Where were we? Oh, yes! Now, when does Joe start for the other end of the island? I'm curious to learn what that old Souci is up to."

"Now that he's got a dog-team, he intends to start—"

The voices of men on deck, evidently hailing some one on the ice, cut off Skene.

McDonald called, "what's the fuss about on deck?"

"Dog-team on the ice," came the reply.

The three men got into Eskimo parkas and went on deck. Halfway from the shore a dog-team was making its way over the lumpy ice of the cove.

"Who is it? Recognize him?" asked Skene of the east coast Cree interpreter, who was wintering on the Ghost. "It's not Joe?"

The Indian shook his head.

Presently the hooded driver of the approaching huskies called: "Kequay!" and shortly reached the rail of the schooner, watched by the curious knot of men on deck

Making his dogs fast, the stranger clambered aboard, and with a grave "Kequay," shook the hand of each of the group—then spoke in Cree to the interpreter.

"Who is he?" asked McDonald. "He's got a cut to his jib that's different from most of these Crees. Shrewd looking old party."

"He says he's Souci, Treaty Chief of the Elkwan Crees," replied the interpreter. "He cum to mak' talk with McDonald Ha! Ha!"

Skene and McDonald exchanged surprised looks.

"What's this?" said the latter in an undertone. "Why, it's the bird Guthrie put ashore with Joe to work against us."

"Here's our chance to put one over on Mr. Hudson's Bay," chuckled Skene. "He must have a proposition to make, or he would have kept away from us. He's got nerve, I'll say. Joe told me he'd shoot him if he met him on the island."

Shortly the old Indian, the fur hood of his caribou capote pushed back from a shock of raven hair, sat in the warm cabin with McDonald and Skene. His story, told through the interpreter, for he said he spoke no English, was brief. Yes, as they had been told, he was Treaty Chief of the Elkwan Crees, and had been sent by Guthrie to attempt to hold the trade until the strait closed. But the Hudson's Bay company had a cold heart. It always had given the hunters little for their fur, and now when others came to trade, and threatened to take the fur from the old company, its heart was still cold, and it offered less than the new traders. He, Souci, a chief, had been promised reward if he saved part of the trade and brought it to Elkwan; but what reward? It was the pay of a squaw "His two sons already had three black fox pelts and eight slivers—worth double what the factor at Elkwan had promised for his winter's work. Now, he had great influence with the Cree hunters—was a shaman, and many of them would wait until the strait closed and go to Elkwan. What would McDonald Ha! Ha! offer for the services of Souci, Chief of the Elkwan Crees, to bring the northern hunters to the schooner at Christmas?"

"Well! I'll say he's a cool one," laughed McDonald. "He comes right inside our wire to our trenches and wants to bargain. The Hudson's Bay probably haven't offered him much. But he's trying to sell us what we'll get anyway."

"What's his price?" demanded Skene.

The interpreter talked rapidly with Souci, then replied with a grin: "He say he wan' t'ree rifle, t'ree goose-gun, and trade-good' for ten prime black fox. Hees own fur he trade, al-so."

"Ten black fox—two thousand dollars in trade-goods? Nonsense!" McDonald scowled fiercely into the bony face of the old shaman with its leather-like skin, mapped with lines. The beady eyes of Souci, unwavering, gave look for look. For a space the cold blue eyes probed the black inscrutability of the Cree's stare. Slowly the caliber of Saul Souci rose in appraisal of the white man. Here was an Indian of parts—nerve, brains, power. As a medicine man, of use, if his service were needed. But his price was ridiculous—his help not necessary. They had Joe Mokoman. It was enough.

"Suppose, by chance, the strait should close this year?" threw out Skene.

"It never has, so early." McDonald thought a space, then turned to the interpreter. "Offer him the guns and the value of five black fox."

The face of old Souci darkened as the interpreter communicated the offer. He shook his head in anger.

"Well, that's our limit," said McDonald, rising. "Tell him we don't need him, but we'll pay him a good price for his fur if he'll bring it in at once."

Silent in his disappointment, Souci went on deck, followed by the others. Freeing his impatient dogs, the old chief turned to the men watching from the rail and said quietly in English:

"Bo'-jo'! Tomorrow I tak' de fox to Elkwan."

"Goin' to fly or swim?" laughed Skene, joined loudly by the group on deck.

The lean face of the dog-driver framed in its fur hood was wooden in its placidity, as he coolly said: "De strait freeze hard two sleeps back!" And cracking his long whip, he leaped on the tail of his toboggan and was off.

"What! The strait is closed?" gasped McDonald, seizing Skene by the shoulder. "Frozen solid, he said! Hallo, there, Souci!" cried the excited trader to the fast-traveling dog-team. "You, Pierre! Get after him and bring him back. Tell him we'll give him his price. Strait frozen! H—l, Skene! Now we've got to fight for that fur!"

Skene was over the rail with the shrieking interpreter and running toward the sled, which had come to a stop. Slowly the old man turned his dogs toward the schooner.

"The clever beggar!" exclaimed McDonald in admiration. "Played us like a salmon. Waited to spring his trump card, and got his own price without a haggle! Knew he was shrewd—nervy! Speaks English, too! The old wizard! He's the chap we need now. Our little job is to stop a stampede across that ice for the Christmas feast that Guthrie has promised the Crees at Elkwan."

Skene swung over the rail and announced to his chief: "Souci says he'll start north at once and agrees to hold his relations and most of the rest, on the terms he offered. He wants to bind the bargain with you, personally."

"Good!" And McDonald vaulted over the schooner's rail, followed by Skene and Breault.

"The strait was closed two sleeps back? Where?" he demanded of the Indian.

"Ovair de shoal at Beeg point."

"You saw it?"

"I cross to de Elkwan."

"What? You've crossed the ice to the post?"

The Indian nodded, his stone-hard features an enigma to the men who sought to read them.

"What did you learn?"

"Dis Guthrie know de ice set, and all de Cree cum to Elkwan. He say he geve me not'ing to work for heem." Saul Souci grinned into the gaping faces surrounding him. "Onlee Saul Souci get you all dat fox from de nord, now."

McDonald thrust out a red, mitless hand. "It's a bargain! You bring that trade here and you get three rifles, three shotguns, and the value of ten prime black fox in trade."

Dropping his rabbit-skin mitten on its neck thong, Souci took the extended hand of the trader. "Klyam appowiya, it ees good," he said, solemnly. Thrusting his hand into the hanging mitten, he cracked the whip of plaited caribou thongs over his lead dog's ears, and again started for the shore, leaving behind him on the ice an arguing group of mystified and excited men.

CHAPTER VII

The morning subsequent to the nights of withering frost which clinched the grip of the ice on the west coast, Garth and Etienne, muffled in blanket capotes and fur robes, drove their five-dog team, hitched to a runner sled for ice-work, out of the closed delta of the Elkwan and down the coast. Inland, the wide marshes reached the ripples of drift, like a white sea, to the outguards of the space, or lay, parti-colored, patches of dead grass brushed of snow, splashing the white levels with ochre and dun. Splitting the frozen shell of the strait broken by pressure ridges and heaps of shattered ice, a streak of black to the east marked the still open channel. Beyond, the hidden sun, breaking from the bay, rimmed the barrens of Akimiski with fire.

But it was to the south, where the great point of the island pushed its bulk into the strait that Garth hoped to find that the abnormal December cold had built a bridge of ice to Akimiski. Over the easy going of wind-hammered snow and shore ice, the dogs romped past the frozen beaches. At a sandspit strewn with boulders Garth stopped. With a hand from Etienne, he reached the top of a large rock and taking his binoculars from their case, studied the miles of ice-sheathed shoals which followed the thrust of Big point toward the mainland. As he looked, his lips moved in a muttered note of surprise. Could it be that luck had come to Elkwan—to Garth Guthrie, in the shape of a road of ice from Akimiski before Christmas?

"Come up here, quick!" he called to the man at the sled. The half-breed scrambled to the top of the boulder. "I can't make out open water over there," said Garth, exultantly. "You take a look. It was a mile wide the day before the blow."

Dropping his mittens, Etienne took the proffered glasses. Until his hands reddened with cold, he stood as if hewn from the boulder. Then, when the column of his frosted breath misted the lenses, he handed the glasses to Garth, his eyes snapping with excitement. "De ice set ovair dem bar; we cross today and hunt old Souci!" he cried, sliding from the boulder and running to the impatient dogs.

"We'll take rations for a week," said Guthrie, "round up the Elkwan hunters Saul is sure of, and chase them over the ice. McDonald may not know for days that the strait is closed here. He's thirty miles away."

The willing huskies, urged by the crack of Etienne's whip, took the back trail to the post on the run. The success of the undertaking hung largely on speed, and while Marie loudly bewailed the rashness of the crossing, seconded by the vehement protests of old Anne, tent, robes and provisions were hurriedly stowed and lashed.

When Anne opened the gate, with a leap Shot reached Guthrie, busy with a sled lashing, and man and dog rolled in the snow. Shielding his face with a mittened hand from the attacks of a hot tongue, Garth finally calmed the delirious dog, while Etienne checked the yelping huskies, keen to punish such familiarity with the factor of Elkwan.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Mouth Kept Open to Protect Ear Drums

That an explosion may result in serious injury to the human ears is a well-known fact. Gunners often open their mouths to protect their ear drums while firing large guns, says a writer in the Pathfinder Magazine. When the mouth is open the air waves set in motion by the discharge of the gun enter the throat as well as the ears. Consequently the sudden pressure against the outside of the drums is counteracted by an equal pressure against the inside. Such, however, is not the practice in the United States navy. Men working in the turrets are well protected from concussion. Those in the more exposed positions usually use pledgets of cotton in their ears to protect the drums. Some use patent ear stoppers such as are manufactured by various commercial firms. Although special ear protectors and cotton are also used, at the coast artillery target practices it is a custom for the personnel taking part to open their mouths during the actual firing of the guns in order that the pressure on the ear drums may be equalized. The men also stand on their toes to relieve the body as much as possible of the shock of the explosion.

Nebraskans

By act of its legislature April 4, 1895, the state of Nebraska was styled "Tree Planters' State." However, references we have consulted also include the following nicknames: "Antelope," "Black Water" and "Corn Husker." It would seem that the only two names that would be suitable to designate a resident of Nebraska would be either "Tree Planter" or "Corn Husker."

Lucretia Mott's Diplomacy

Lucretia Mott, who helped to form the anti-slavery society in Philadelphia in 1833 and who soon afterward founded the Female Anti-Slavery society, took an active part in the affairs of these societies. When a New York anti-slavery society session was broken up by a mob, many of its speakers were roughly handled. Perceiving that many of the women were afraid, Mrs. Mott said to her escort, "Won't thee look after some of the others?"

"But who will take care of you?" he asked.

"This man," laying her hand on the arm of one of the roughest of the mob. "He will see me safely through." The astonished man, with respectful manner, took her to a place of safety. —Kansas City Star.

Over $50,000,000 worth of European art treasures were imported by American dealers last year.

Horticultural News

CHEMICAL WILL CONTROL BORERS

Paradichlorobenzene is something more than a hard name to pronounce. It's a chemical that is very valuable in controlling borers in peach trees and may be used effectively and efficiently at little cost.

"Thousands of pounds of this chemical are being used each year to control peach-tree borers," says C. H. Brannon, extension entomologist at the North Carolina State college. "If the material is applied according to directions governing its use it will give from 90 to 100 per cent control. It must be applied each year regularly.

P-benzene can be used on trees four years of age and older with safety, states Mr. Brannon. However, if the trees two and three years of age are badly infested, one-half an ounce can be used with slight injury to the tree. For trees four and five years of age Mr. Brannon recommends three-fourths of an ounce to each tree, and for trees six years of age a full ounce of the chemical should be applied. For very old trees with large trunks one ounce and a fourth should be applied.

Break the crust around the tree and smooth off the soil with a hoe. Get the dirt on a level above the topmost hole made by a borer because P-benzene is heavier than air and will not penetrate borer holes above the point of application. Mr. Brannon states also that it is necessary to scrape away the gum from the trunk and then apply the crystals in a continuous ring about an inch wide and about an inch from the trunk. The crystals should not be placed too far from the tree and none should touch the trunk. Several shovels of dirt should then be placed over the crystals and packed in a mound with the back of the shovel. Tear down the mounds in about six weeks after application of the chemical.

Most Strawberry Fields Grown Under Matted Row

Whether fall or spring planted, most commercial strawberry fields are grown under what is generally known as the matted row system. The original plants are spaced in rows 30 to 36 inches apart. The plants send out stolons and form a thick matted row about 12 to 14 inches wide. Such a system gives an excellent bearing surface, whether the grower chooses to cultivate or mulch between the rows. After the matted row is formed and the plants become dormant, they should never be cultivated the following spring. To do so excites vegetative action on the part of the plant, which is not conducive to the proper development of the fruiting spurs. The fleshy crowns of the strawberry plant store up plant food within the tissues during the growing season, and after the rest period a patch should not be heavily fertilized or cultivated. Heavy fertilizing may cause the entire field to turn from fruiting into a mass of new plants.

Propagate Blackberries by Suckers or Shoots

There are two methods of propagating blackberries. One is to dig up the suckers or shoots that come up near the crowns of the plants and set these out. This is a very good way of getting new plants for the home garden, either from plants already growing on the premises or from a neighbor. The second method is that of root cuttings. The roots of the desired variety are taken in the fall and cut into short lengths, tied in bunches and stored in moist sand in a cool cellar where they will not freeze. In the spring these cuttings are planted in shallow furrows to grow until the following autumn or spring when they will be ready to transplant. It will be the most practical for the average gardener to secure new plants by the first method.

Horticulture Squibs

For plant lice anywhere use nicotine sulphate spray.

* * *

You ought to bag a few grapes to have some extra choice ones. Simply tie a paper bag over each bunch and it'll ripen up in a way to water your mouth—and a little earlier than the others.

* * *

Some varieties of pears have to have other trees and varieties near to set fruit. In other words, they are self sterile. Young trees may not set fruit so well until the bearing habit has been developed.

* * *

For orchard sprays use only the best grade stone lime. Otherwise use hydrated or builders' lime one-third more by weight.

* * *

The number of apples on an overloaded tree may be reduced as much as 25 or even 50 per cent without reducing the yield.

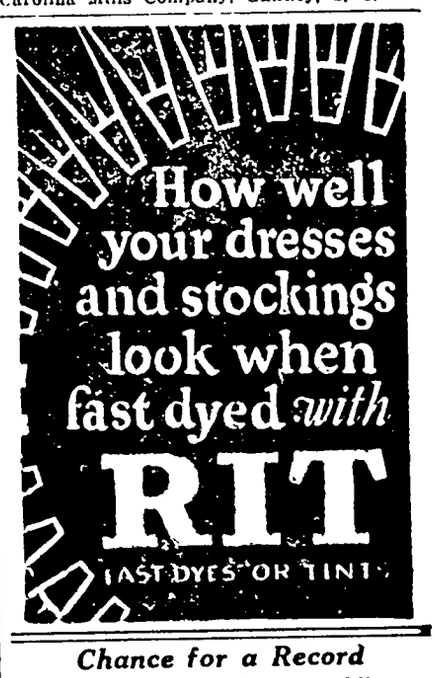
* * *

Bearing trees should be cut back every other year at least. One should wait until it is definitely determined that there will not be a crop that season, before pruning heavily.

There IS no substitute for —
KIRK'S ORIGINAL COCOA HARDWATER CASTILE
Kids, adults too, love the instant magic lather that removes all dirt.
JAMES S. KIRK & CO. CHICAGO

For Sale—at Auction, September 21, 1927, excursion rates, all railroads, 210 acres Red River Valley, good buildings, flowing well. J. A. Northrop, Crookston, Minn.

$10 Daily Cash Commission Selling guaranteed bedspreads, window draperies and table damask. Write today for free sample outfit. Carolina Mills Company, Gaffney, S. C.



Chance for a Record

Star runners, out for a world's record, should try the 880-yard run. That is the suggestion of Dr. Earle R. Hadrick, a mathematician of the University of California, in Popular Science Monthly.

From carefully prepared charts based on the limit of human endurance, as now established, he concludes that the record of one minute and fifty-two seconds for the 880 is the one most likely to be improved in the near future. It might be lowered a full five seconds and still be consistent with some of the other records now existing.

The American dye industry is little more than ten years old, yet it supplies textile factories with dyes at almost half the prewar cost.

Feel Stiff and Achy?

TO feel constantly lame and achy is too often a sign of sluggish kidneys.

Sluggish action permits waste poisons to remain in the blood and is apt to make one languid, tired and achy, with dull headaches, dizziness and often a nagging backache. A common warning that the kidneys are not acting right is scanty or burning secretions.

Assist the kidneys at such times with Doan's Pills. Since 1885 Doan's have been winning friends the country over. Ask your neighbor!

DOAN'S PILLS 60c
STIMULANT DIURETIC TO THE KIDNEYS
Foster-Milburn Co. Mfg. Chem. Buffalo, N.Y.

K-R-O
Kills Rats Only

This new powder kills rats and mice but nothing else

Get rid of rats without danger to your children, livestock, pets or poultry.

Think what this means to you!

K-R-O may be used freely in the home, barn or poultry house with absolute safety. Actual tests have proved that it kills rats and mice every time but other animals and poultry are not injured by the largest doses.

NOT A POISON

K-R-O does not contain arsenic, phosphorus or barium carbonate. Made of squill bulbs—the new safe way urged by government experts. At your druggist 75c. Large size (4 times as much) $2.00. Or sent direct from us postpaid if he cannot supply you. Satisfaction guaranteed.
K-R-O CO., Springfield, Ohio

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM
Removes Dandruff—Stops Hair Falling
Restores Color and Beauty to Gray and Faded Hair
60c. and $1.00 at Druggists.
Hiscox Chem. Wks. Patchogue, N. Y.

FLORESTON SHAMPOO—Ideal for use in connection with Parker's Hair Balsam. Makes the hair soft and fluffy. 50 cents by mail or at druggists. Hiscox Chemical Works, Patchogue, N. Y.

A BEAUTIFUL COMPLEXION for only $1.25. Ask your dealer for KREMOLA or write Dr. C. H. Berry Co. Dept. W, Chicago.

Canned Goods
SALE

We are closing out our entire line of high grade Canned and in order to move the stock quickly we have decided to sell every item on our shelves at an exceedingly low pric:-

20% Discount

o..... HERE ARE SOME OF OUR PRICES .....o
o JACK SPRAT BEANS larg cans, dozen ..... $1.92 o
o JACK SPRAT BEANS, small cans dozen ..... .96 o
o HEINZ BEANS, large size cans, dozen ..... $2.40 o
o6HEINZ BEANS, medium size cans, dozen ..... $1.44 o
o HEINZ BEANS, small cans, dozen ..... .96 o
o ARMOUR'S BEANS, dozen cans ..... $1.20 o
o..... IT WILL PAY YOU TO STOCK UP NOW .....o

OTHER ITEMS ON OUR 20 PER CENT DISCOUNT SALE INCLUDES:—

Dried Beef Potted Ham Cooked Spagetti
Sardines Kipper-Snacks Sandwich Relish
Sandwich Spread Thousand Island Dressing
Veri Best Veal Loaf Soup—All kinds in stock Vinegar
Olive Oil Plum Pudding Beef Steak Sauce
Heinz Sweet and Dill Pickels Salad Cream Catsup
Shrimp Salmon Apple Butter Peanut Butter
Jolly and Preserves Mustard Mince Meat Olives
Mustard Chow Condensed Milk Canned Oysters
Sweet Relish Pork & Beans Baked Bans Kidny Beans
And many other items of canned and bottled foods found on our shelves which we have not listed here.

EVERY THING GOES AT 20 PER CENT DISCOUNT FOR CASH—

Klemme Meat Market

FEED GRINDING

Our Feed Grinding Mill is "raing to go" ad all it needs is to have you farmers bring r your grain and get your feed ground the ay you want it. Our mill does excellent ork and turns out real ground feed.

Coal for Winter

Fill your bins now for winter as coal prices are steadily advancing. Our bins are full of good furnace and stove coal and right now the price is right.

Klemme Co-Operative Grain Co.

Many housewives have taken advantage of this offer!

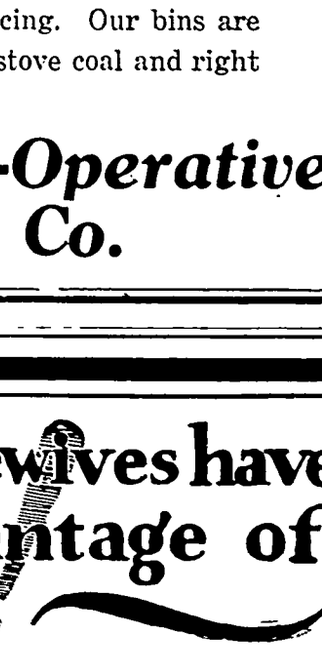
Only $5.00 down

AND a liberal allowance on your old cleaner

Here is a real opportunity to own this world-famous product.

The PREMIER DUPLEX has stood the supreme performance test. Compare it with others in construction, durability, ease of operation and price. Try it on your own rugs, without any obligation whatsoever.

Watch the powerful suction and the motor driven brush get the dirt.



Premier Duplex

No Oiling!

Both motor and brush turn on ball-bearings, eliminating the need for oiling. This adds years of life to the cleaner itself.

Central States Electric Co.

News of Klemme and Vicinity

Dr. R. W. Specht, Dentist, Garner, Iowa. adv

Celebrate "Klemme Korn Day," Friday, September 30th.

E C. Ford, of Iowa Falls, was in Klemme on business Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Worthy Usher of Marion were visiting in Klemme on Wednesday evening.

Arnon Greiman and family moved Saturday afternoon into one of the Ell houses in east Klemme.

Wait for Ludeke's Poland China and Chester White Hog Sale, Oct. 15th, Klemme, Iowa. 1tc

Many people of this community took in the fair at Britt last week on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday

Mr. and Mrs. Herb Bailey, of Sioux City were visiting with Klemme friends Monday.

Mr and Mrs Lloyd Lau spent the day Sunday visiting with Mrs Lau's folks at Garner.

Rev. and Mrs. Wrede, of Garner, were calling on Klemme friends yesterday

Mr and Mrs. Lee Ell and children of Mason City came Friday and remained here until Sunday visiting relatives and friends

The side walk in front of Conrad Quandt's restaurant was re-surfaced Tuesday The walk was in bad condition but is now like new again

The first light frost of the season was noticed here Sunday night The frost was light and did not seem to do any damage.

NOTICE—Positively no hunting or tresspassing will be allowed on my farm at anytime. Carl Wille. Klemme, Iowa. 2tp

Mrs. A. D. Gimer left yesterday morning for South Dakota, being called ther by the death of her sister.

Frank Ward and family will move into the Grandma Friedow residence. we understand. Mr. Ward has been working at the Elmer Arnold farm.

Last Friday morning was the first day of the open season on ducks. Many hunters who went to Eagle Lake shot their limit that morning

The Misses Gertrude and Mildred Johnson drove to Sioux City Monday. We understand Miss Gertrude will enter Morningside college this year.

The city water was shut off a short time this morning while some repairs were being made on the pump It was necessary to install a number of new parts.

C. F. Busch and family moved the first of the week into the George Gruetzmacher residence in south Klemme Arley Blickendorfer and family moved into the Busch place in east Klemme.

Our neighbor, John Day is making a noble effort to raise a moustache' It is of the Western variety and if it matures in time should be an ideal soup strainer Here's wishing John luck!

Ben Katter returned home Saturday evening from up in Minnesota where he has been doing some fall plowing on a farm near Morris, to which he and his family will move in the spring

We understand George Stokesbary has rented the former F Gruetzmacher residence and will move in soon The family have been residing at the Mrs. C A. Arnold farm. We understand Mr Stokesbery has accepted a traveling position

Donald Gibbs went to Sioux City Friday to make arrangements to attend Morningside College. He returned home yesterday and today again left for Sioux City to begin his studies.

Miss Esther Fuller of Good Thunder, Minnesota, has been visiting with Mrs. Ben Katter, for a few weeks, while Mr. Katter was doing fall plowing in Minnesota.

Mrs. Roy Schaefer and Florence Gates had their tonsils removed at Garner Thursday at Dr Phillips office. Dr. Carlson, of Mason City did the operating. They are getting along fine.

Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Wiles, of Ames were Klemme visitors the latter part of last week. While here they took in the county fair Friday. Mr. Wiles has gone back into the automobile business and sells the new Wolverine cars, made by Reo.

Mrs. Buford Meyers and two sons of Hancock, Minnesota, came Saturday evening and remained until this week Tuesday, visiting with Klemme relatives and friends. Mrs. Buford Meyers is a sister of Mrs. C. A. Larsen and Mrs. Alvin Stokesbary.

Since we published the list of Klemme young people who will enter or have entered college, last week, there are more names to add to the list: Donald Gibbs and Gertrude Johnson, Morningside; and Vernon Turgasen, Ames.

Clarence Elder and Vernon Turgasen went to Ames Monday to get lined up for college Clarence is a Junior this year while Vernon will enter as a Freshman. Clarence will hold down a job at the college print shop this year, and Vernon has secured an orchestra job.

This comunity was visited by severe wind and rain storms both last Thursday and Saturday afternoons, and which ended the two weeks of 90 degree and more of hot weather. Folowing the last storm the temperature dropped nearly fifty degrees and was followed by a light frost.

The home of Mrs. Leach at Dows was the scene of a happy gathering Sunday when a number of relatives and friends helped her celebrate her birthday Those from Klemme, and former Klemme people who attended are Mr. and Mrs. C A Larsen and daughters, La Vonne and Eunice, Mr and Mrs Ralph Elder, Clarence and Reva, and Wil Waddinghams, all of Klemme; John and Ruth Fuller, of Good Thunder, Minn; and Ella and Orvin Tahnke of Vernon Center Minnesota

Globe Parlor Furnace

—A PARLOR FURNACE THAT "IS" A FURNACE

NOT an experiment but the RESULT of experiment! Something distinctly new—something infinitely bet Built like a furnace—it actually IS a furnace—the N Globe Parlor Furnace Circulates heat evenly over the en house. It will NOT overheat the rooms in which it is p ed. But it WILL heat the floor evenly and thoroughly cause of the louvers near the bottom. Note these 14 po of Globe Parlor Furnace Construction:—

1 Grate surface of 15 inches is larger than many pipe furn es. Heating engineers judge heating capacity by grate surfa
2 Interchangeable grates. Either draw center type or triang lar bar may be used. Changed without the use of tools.
3 Large slotted furnace fire pot. 65 lbs. of coal and up.
4 Direct radiant heat does not reach outer casing. No or heating of room. Radiant heat warms floors thoroughly.
5 Circulates a volume of air larger than many pipe furnac
6 Radiation amplifier or casing lining doubles heating surfa
7 Deep ash pit has large door with concealed hinges.
8 Joints thruout are double locked to prevent gas leaks.
9 Large lined fired door with concealed hinges. Large bloc of coal or wood may be used in this parlor furnace.
10 Larger, better coal chute and improved smoke curtain me greater convenience and cleanliness.
11 Adjustable smoke connection. May be piped direct into t wall or piped perpendicularly.
12 Special designed flat botton feet prevent marring floors
13 Tight fitting doors and dampers insure positive fire contr
14 Real cast iron furnace construction thru-out.

We Have A Globe Parlor Furnace Size For Your Need

E. F. Jacobs

"THE FARM SERVICE STORE"

Office:— Phones:—
Masonic Bldg. Office, 149
GARNER. IOWA. Res., 149

Dr. E. H. Phillips

OSTEOPATHIC PHYSICIAN

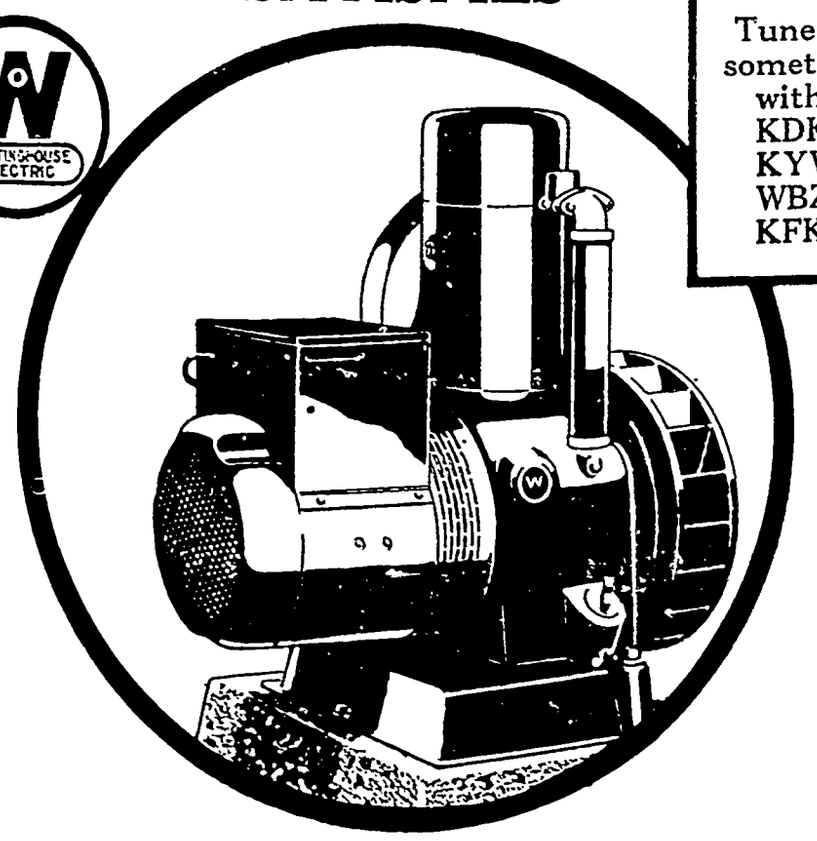
Physiotherapy, including Osteopathic treatment, diathermy, surgical diathermy, radiant heat, high frequen chlorine gas and auto-condensation.

It's No Wonder That the Westinghouse

Farm LIGHT & POWER Plant

SATISFIES

Tune in sometime with KDKA, KYW, WBZ, KFKX



Facts About Westinghouse

50,000 employees comprise the great Westinghouse organization. The Westinghouse plant at East Pittsburgh, Pa., is the largest in the world under one roof.

The monthly payroll of this great institution averages $4,000,000. Each month, an average of 1,000 carloads of electrical equipment are shipped from the Westinghouse works at East Pittsburgh. These range from smallest motors to giant power house generators, from farm light and power plants to enormous electric locomotives.

Do You Doubt Westinghouse Ability to Satisfy You? The Coupon is for YOU to Use — No Obligation.

PROUTY ELECTRIC SHOP

GARNER — IOWA

Gentlemen:
Without obligation, please tell me more about the Westinghouse Farm Electric Plant.
Name.....
Address.....

THE KLEMME TIMES

ieth Year—Number 7. KLEMME, IOWA, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 1927.

INGS AT SCHOOL THE PAST WEEK

H SCHOOL LOST FIRST GAME BASE BALL TO GOODELL

r Items Of Interest From Our Schools This Week

ur boys in baseball, lacking in erience and skill, were defeated Friday evening by Goodell high ol team. But they have come miling and are determined to do er against them in the next e. Goodell has at present a ball team Hamilton is a high ol pitcher of rare ability. He also better support than Stokes-, who pitched for Klemme.

ur girls as usual helped keep up morale of the team in their up- battle The game was played a good spirit prevailing on both s. The decisions of the officials, Clarke of Goodell and Mr. Clar- Kluckhohn of Klemme, were pted as final and this always es for a better game.

e shall try this year to engage competant and impartial offici- and we believe our interests are ed in a larger way by accepting r decisions without a murmur. best of them at times err in r decisions but if treated respect by players and spestators at mme there should exist no rea- for Klemme's getting a raw deal heir hands for they are human may be expected to respond as . An officialy treated well by mme should also try to give mme good treatment in rethrn. believe they will almost invari- do so e shall be protd of good sports- nship shown at Klemme even tho l may at times be lacking by our ers.

First P. T. A. Meeting Held Tuesday Evening

ur P T A Program on Tuesday ning of this week was quite well nded despite the unfavorable earance of the night and bad ds.

Irs. Gauger very ably pointed out s of activity along which the As- iation might work this year.

Words of welcome to our tea h- were offered by Mr. Gimer, our rd President, and responded to our Principal, Miss Trumbell. new officers elected for the com- year are Mr Wellemeyer, for sident. Mr Ralph Ludeke for e-President; Miss Lenora Wheat- n, Sec ; and Frank Kluckhohn asurer Mr Jorgensom served us l last year, being present every ht the association convened, but used to be a candidate for re-el- ion

We very much appreciate the ndid spirit of co-operation shown our lady members of the associ- on, making possible the tasty re- shments prepared and served at close of the program.

We hope to see big things attemp- this year by our P. T. A. and e our membership may be in- ased until every parent can be uced to come and join in the big h.

Our next program has been sched- d for October 17. We believe we y expect a first rate program.

Boys Filling Silos This Week

Several absences have been occas- ed in school the past week by the ployment of our boys at home to silos We are glad it is a short for we dislike to have any miss sses. The weather has not been d for either corn or high school e ball.

School Begins Early Friday

If the weather permits Klemme to ge their program of Corn Day n iday afternoon of this week the ool will be closed Friday after- on. It is the wish of the Board, wever, that we begin school Fri- y morning at 8:00 o'clock. We pe to have everyone here in their ts by that hour. In case weather es not permit the afternoon pro- am, school will continue but will dismissed an hour earlier, or a- ut three o'clock.

Six Weeks Period Soon Here

Only two weeks until the first weeks period is gone. We hope many have highly resolved to take to their parents this year the high- est possible grades duly earned We wish the A's and B's might be in evidence and that D's and E's and F's might be wholly lacking. But we fear there is too little home study to expect so much. With one third of the Freshmen class at Ames unable to make their grades it would seem there should be a little more serious work done in our high schools. We are glad for our re- presentation this year at Ames and we do not look for either of our boys to come home by request or be- cause they have been unable to do their work well enough Kermit Koerner and Vernon Turgasen, two of our last year's graduates, we be- lieve will be able to keep abreast or ahead of their classmates there for they did very good work in our high school.

Our Seniors are displaying the'r new class rings and pins this week. How nice to be high school seniors and so advertise it!

HANCOCK COUNTY REAL ESTATE TRANSFERS

A Weekly Review Of Sales And Trades In Property

REAL ESTATE ..... 6.

Henry Africa wife to First National Bank, Kanawha Q C D. date 9-16-27, $1.00, S 22½ ft of lot 2 block 14 Kanawha.

First National Bank. Kanawha to C N Anderson. W D. date 9-21-27, $1 00 Same description as last above.

Elenora Boisen husband to Henry Christenson. Q C D. date 9-16-27 $1 00. E* of SW¼ 35-96-26

Dora A Kutzner husband to J. L Tompkins Q C D, date 9-14-27 $1 00. part of NE¼ of SE¼ 24-97-23. 10 acres.

HENRY LEMKE DIED SUN. AT HOSPITAL

WAS OPERATED ON FOR CANCER SHORT TIME AGO

Apparently Getting Along Well But Took Sudden Change Sunday

This comunity was saddly shocked when it was learned that Henry Lemke had passed away Sunday at a Mason City hospital, where he had been for about three weeks, recovering from an operation for cancer of the stomach.

Following the operation Mr Lemke was seriously ill for some time but was apparently making a wonderful recovery and expected to be able to go home in a few days to fully recover However, his condition took a sudden and unexpected turn and he died Sunday afternoon.

Mr Lemke was born in Garner and was forty-three years of age at the time of his death. He was the son of Mr and Mrs. Henry Lemke and spent his entire life in this county He resided in Garner until a few years ago when he came to Klemme with his family to reside. For a couple of years he was the proprietor of the Standard Oil truck here and enjoyed a goo dbusines He sold this business to J. J Poort and later he took the position of assistant at the Farmers Elevator and held this position until his health failed and he was forced to resign a couple of months ago.

Mr. Lemke was an honest and industrious man, a good father and a loving husband and was the friend of everyone who knew him. He was married to Miss Daisy Greiman, a daughter of Mr and Mrs Wm F. Greiman, and to them were born five children Besides his wife and small children he leaves to mourn his death, his mother, three sisters, Mrs. W. F. Beier, of Goodell; Mrs. Erick Clarke, Garner; Mrs. James Lilly, Cedar Rapids; and his four brothers, Rhine, Otto, William and John, all of this community.

Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon from the Ell Township Reformed church, conducted by Rev C A Schmid and Rev. Calvin Grosshuesch Interment was made at the church cemetery.

TO OUR PATRONS AND FRIENDS OF THE CREAMERY

Efficiency seems to be the watch word now-a-days and thre is where we are trying to get to in our operation of the Klemme Creamery.

We found out that we were incorporating too much moisture n our butter, due to the use of a Moisture Scale which was inaccurate. The scale has been condemned by Inspector Thomas and a new one ordered to replace this one. Also a new Cream Test Scale for weighing the cream samples over, as wee think some of the excess over-run may of been due to the cream test scale we have had in use. It is not the intention of the creamery to have an excess over-run at any time.

In the matter of pasteurizing, in the bunch of charts I had that the inspectors checked over, I was three vats short of having enough pasteurized cream for the amount of butter I had made in the period which the charts covered. This is not so serious we thought, as the herds which supply the cream to the Klemme Creamery have been T. B. Tested and accredited. On account of having the small refrigerating machine we have for doing the vast amount of coolin, it was next to impossible to pasteurize all cream and get it cooled down to low enough Fahrenheit, for churning the next morning The Board had knowledge of the inability to cool all cream if all were pasteurized that we receive at the creamery, but this condition could not be avoided at this time until more equipment has been added

MILO PATET WITH MOTION PICTURE CAMERA FACTORY

The Times received the following letter this morning from Milo Patet, which is of interest to his friends in Klemme:-

Chicago, Ill., 2643 Wash. Blvd., Sept. 27, '27.

Dear Jergy:-

Am taking off a little time tonite and subscribe to The Times, which I should have done a couple of weeks ago I have been pretty busy lately. Am taking advertising art and landed a good job with the Bell & Howell Co, who put out those new motion picture cameras and projectors You probably say their adv in the Saturday Evening Post. My art experience finally helped me for once I started as an inspector of the cameras, and now am a retoucher. This concern is only five years old and the motio npicture cameras are still new A fow years ago only 100 people worked there, now there are 600 So I guess I'll stick with them as I can see som erapid advancement. You can send the paper to the present address, but may move next month. Will let you know the address later. Will close now, hoping to see the paper this week.

As evr, Milo Patet.

If you have a close friend, try to borrow $10 from him. He may be closer than you suspect.

We are approaching the peak i our business due to the co-operation of our loyal bunch of patrons, and we are putting forth every effort to deal fairly with each and every one.

A. D. GIMER.

Revised Program For KORN DAY

Friday, Sept. 30

Klemme, Iowa

Program Of Events

The Committee in charge have re-arranged the program of prize Street Sports and have added some events to the original program. Following is a schedule of events and the time of each:

10:00 A. M. Horse Shoe Pitching Contest $15.00

Band Concert At Noon by Meservey Band

1:00 P. M. Doll Buggy Parade for girls 6 years and under

Each entry receives 50 cents, grand prize $2.00

1:10 P. M.	Boys Foot Race, 14 years and under ..	50c	$1.00
1:20 P. M.	Three Legged Race	$1.00	$2.00
1:30 P. M.	Girls 50 yd. Race, 12 years and under.	50c	$1.00
1:40 P. M.	Fat Mens Race	$1.00	$2.00
1:50 P. M.	Ladies Free For All 50 yard Race...	$1.00	$2.00

Free Acts At 2:00 P. M.

MUSICAL BROOKS CO. in a number of musical novelty acts.

THE MITCHELL TROUPE in acrobatic and arcial acts featuring difficult acts on rolling globes.

These Free Attractions Are High Class in Every Respect

3:00 P. M. Fast Ball Game between Coulter and Klemme.

STREET SPORTS AFTER BALL GAME

Potato Race on Horses, prizes $1.00 $2.50 $5.00

Four Townships Tug-O-War

TUG OF WAR, Liberty vs. Ell Township, prize		$5.00
TUG OF WAR, Avery vs. Twin Lake Township, prize		$5.00
TUG OF WAR, winners of above will pull for prize of ...		$5.00
Free for all 100 yard dash	$1.00	$2.00
Sack Race, 50 yards	$1.00	$2.00
220 yard Free For All Race	$1.50	$3.00
7:00 P. M. Pie Eating Contest		$1.00
Pillow Battle		$2.00
Ladies Nail Driving Contest	50c	$1.00

8:00 P. M. Free Acts by The Musical Brooks and The Mitchell Troup.

BATTLE ROYAL—after free acts—6 or more contestants must enter and will be required to furnish their own boxing gloves. Prize offered $10.00

Music During the Afternoon and Evening by Meservey Band

(The Committee will not be responsible for any accidents resulting from any contest. All contestants enter at their own risk.)

KLEMME REFORMED CHURCH

Calvin Grosshuesch, Pastor

8:30 A. M. Country Sunday school
10:00 A. M. English Service.
11.00 A. M. Sunday School.
7:30 P. M. German Service.
8:00 P. M. Wednesday Young Peoples Bible Class.
8:00 P. M. Saturday. Junior Choir.
Confirmation Class—
9:00 A. M. Saturday.
11:00 A. M. and 1:00 P. M. Tuesday.

In 347 counties of the United States all of the cattle have been tested for uberculosis and the counties are recognized as tuberculosis free areas. This is 11 percent of the counties of the nation. In 945 additional counties, testing is under way.

EVERYTHING SET FOR BIG DAY FRI.

FOUR GOOD ACTS HAVE BEEN BOOKED FOR KORN DAY

More Features Have Been Added To List Of Street Sports

Everything is all set for the big "Korn Day" Celebration in Klemme tomorrow, Friday, September 30th And with the help of the old weather man for a nice day, the big program should be well attended as this is the last celebration in North Iowa this fall.

Good Free Acts Booked

The committee in charge of securing free atractions were fortunate in being able to book two good companies, who come highly recommended as high class, clean entertainers. The Musical Brooks Co. will entertain the audience with a program of musical novelty acts of various kinds. The Mitchell Troupe will entertain with acrobatic and aerial acts, featuring a specialty of performing on rolling globes Both of these companies will entertain both afternoon and evening. They have recently been playing fair dates and are the best class of entertainers.

Contests Of All Kinds

Approximately $100 in cash will be given away to the winners of the various street sports, races and other events. The program has been rearranged and planned so that both old and young will have a chance to compete in the races and contests.

Four Townships Tug-O-War

Through an error the complete list of townships to take part in the tug of war was ommitted last week. According to the revised program which the committee has arranged four townships will compete for the honors; Avery, Twin Lake, Liberty and Ell. In working out this feature the tug of war will be a sort of tournament and the winning team of each division will again pull for the championship honors. Get the gang together farmers and lets put on a real exhibition of strength!

Fast Ball Game Scheduled

The Coulter and Klemme ball teams will play what is expected to be one of the fastest games on the home diamond this year. Both of the teams have been playing good ball and seem to be evenly matched. The purse promises to be worth going after and both teams are out to win the big money and take the honors here Korn Day. Don't miss the ball game which begins at 3:00 P. M.

Other Attractions For Tho Day

The Meservey 24 piece band has been engaged for the day and will furnish the music thru-out the afternoon and evening. Meservey has a good band this year and a big crowd is expected to come with them o the Klemme celebration.

In the evening there will be free acts on the platform, some contests and a big dance at the Idle Hour theatre.

Bring the family and your friends and spend the day in Klemme, Friday, September 30th.

Ames Abe says: No single woman will ever admit she wants to get married until she thinks she's got a fightin' chance.

SHOULD PICK SEED CORN AT ONCE

SEED CORN SITUATION IS VERY SERIOUS THIS YEAR

Early Freeze Will Kill Many Millions Of Bushels

Good seed corn will be scarcer next spring than at any time during the last 50 years. That is the out look now with the corn crop in the corn belt from two to six weeks late and frost likely to come any night There never was a time when early gathering, drying and storing seed corn will pay greater than it will this fall. Unless we gather our own seed this fall thousands of us next spring will plant seed that is weak or dead. Or we will buy seed from 'way off somewhere that is not suitable for our locality, and as a result our next year's crop will again be weak and late.

Here's an important thing to bear in mind right now:

Any farmer can have his own seed corn for next year, if his corn, this year, gets past the roasting ear stage of maturity. Corn gathered in hard roasting ear stage and thoroughly dried will grow. It is surprisign how vigorously it will grow. This early-gathered seed will shrink and shrivel considerably, but the important thing this year, is the fact that II Will Grow.

In any emergency delay is serious The man who does something about his next year's seed before it is too late, is the man who will have seed corn to plant in the spring of 1928 The man who uses his head can figure out a method of gathering and storing seed corn on his farm. He can swing a sack over his shoulder and pick the best ears from the best stalks. That's the right method whether the corn is early or late Abou 15 ears will plant an acre. Better gather two or three times as much as will be needed to plant the acreage. How long will it take to gather next year's seed supply? How can we make more money in he same length of time?

Don't throw the immature ears down in a bag or leave them in a box or barrel. Don't leave them in a pile. Hang them up the very day and hour they are gathered. Hang them so the ears won't touch each other, they'll mold where they touch. Don't hang them outdoors, it may rain and freeze Hang them where warm air will circulate all around them. There's some place on the farm to thoroughly dry next year's seed corn. It may be over the kitchen.

Get the seed dry and keeep it thru the winter where it won't freeze Freeezing never does seed corn any good no matter how dry the seed is. No one denies the statement that seed corn is better when it ripens and hardens on the stalk, but it will not do it this year. It's a lot better to have immature seed that will grow and be suitable for the locality than to have no seed next spring or to send away off for seed corn that may not mature, no matter how good a corn year 1928 may be. If frost stays away until November and the corn gets ripe, we can them gather ripe seed. Don't wait for that, but take advantage of it if it comes Don't take a gambler's chance of waiting for ripe seed this year. Lets insure ourselves now at little cost with roasting-ear seed.

Do something. Do it now. Gathering roasting-ear seed is good business this abnormal year of 1927.—P. G. Holden, Field Director, Agricultural Extension Department, International Harvester Company.

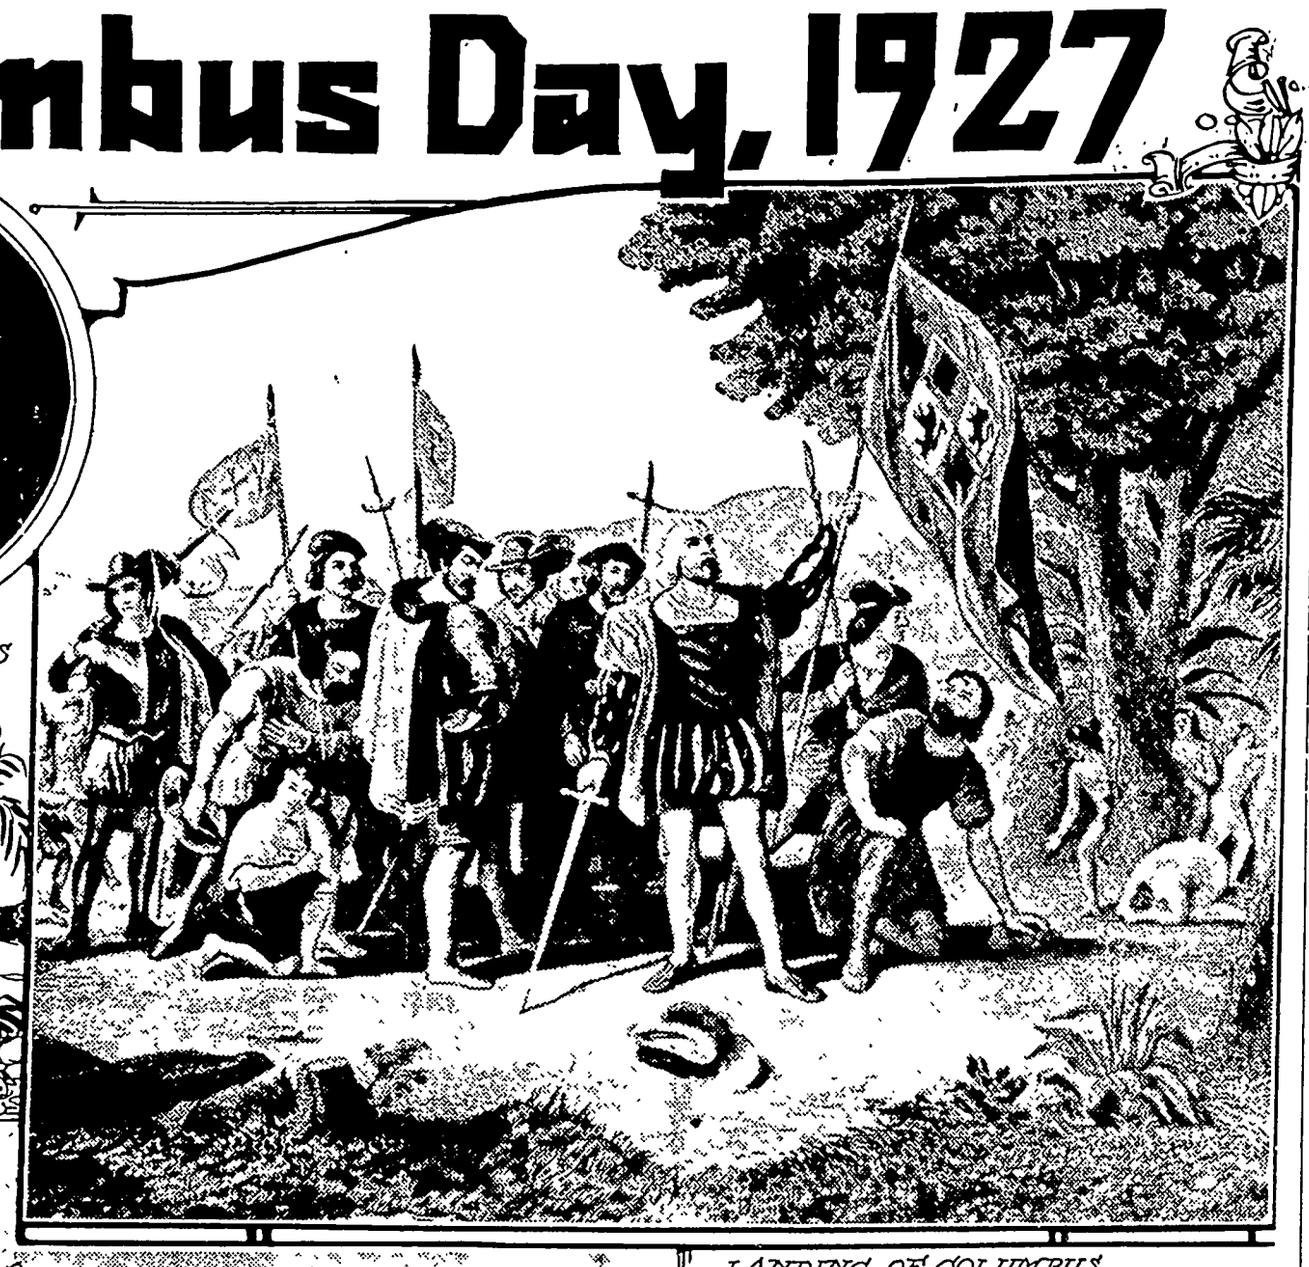
Rachel A. Thompson husband to Chas. H. Hall. W. D., date 9-20-27, $1.00. Lots 1-2-3-4-5-6-7 block 2, and lots 1-2 block 3 2nd Driving Park add Garner.

Chas. Johnson to Simon S. Skovgaard. W. D., date 9-15-27, $1.00. Lot 5 Auditor's Sub-Div. to town of Miller.

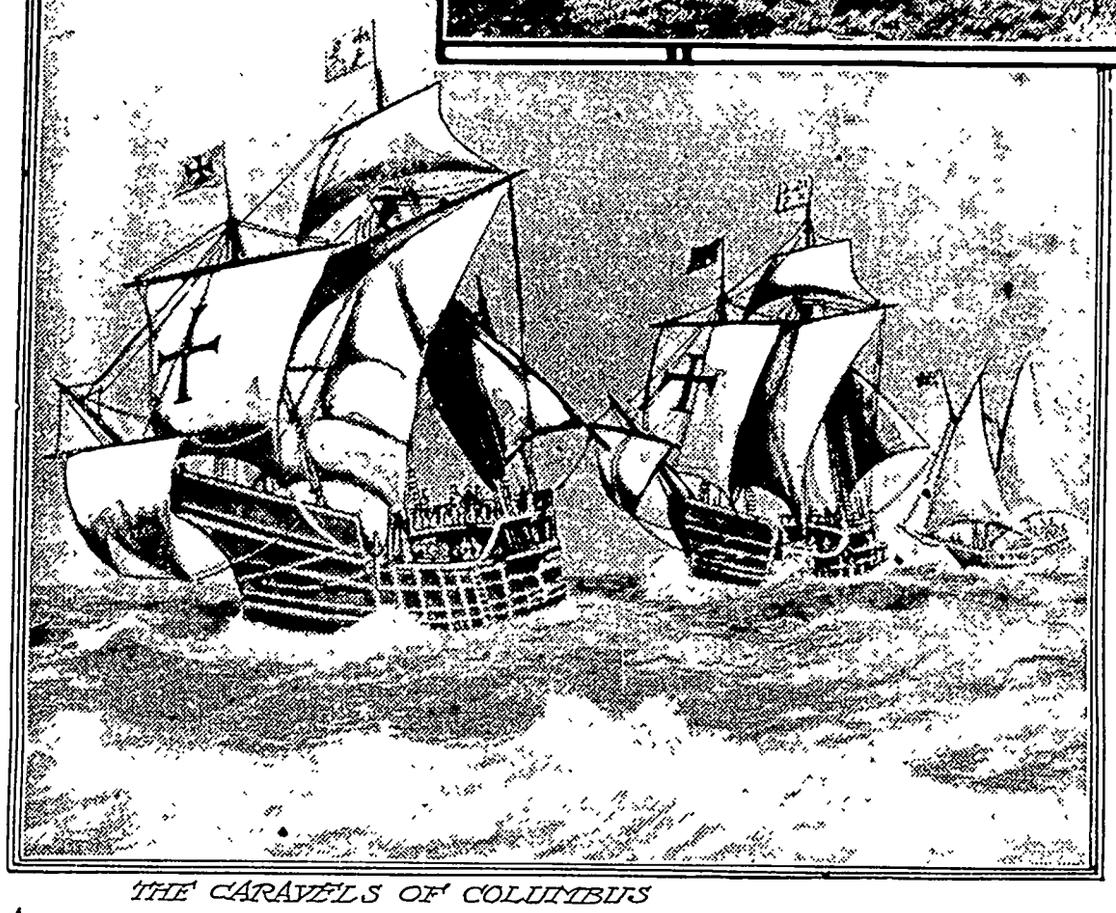
Bert Collins, Ex. to E. A. Kabter. Executor's deed, date 9-17-27, $500. NW¼ 12-95-23.

Columbus Day, 1927

CHRISTOPHER COLUMBUS



LANDING OF COLUMBUS
Photos by Underwood & Underwood



THE CARAVELS OF COLUMBUS

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

IN OCTOBER 12, Columbus day, comes around again to remind us of that bold navigator who is universally credited with discovering the New world, it brings to mind once more also the innumerable questions about the life of Columbus which still arise after these 435 years and which have never yet been satisfactorily answered. It would seem that four centuries of investigation should have cleared up any mystery about him, but the fact remains that historians are not yet ready to agree upon at least three important facts connected with his career and almost every year sees some new theory advanced about one or more of the three. The three questions which are yet unsolved are the following:

Was Columbus the real "discoverer" of the New world?

What was his paternity and nationality?

Where is the last resting place of his bones?

For many years the best historical scholarship of the times credited Columbus with being the first European to reach the shores of America. Then later investigations brought forth other claimants and some of these are backed by what appears to be conclusive proof that more than one man looked upon the New world in the dawn of modern history and have a right to the title of "discoverer" which antedates that of Columbus. Does it belong to some Norse sea rover who pushed out from Iceland about the year 1000 and reached the shores of "Vinland"? Was it some member of an expedition from Brittany which reached the coast of what is now the United States some time in the Fourteenth century? Or was it some of the peoples living in Northern Africa who crossed over to the western continent at an even earlier date and in what is now South and Central America gave rise to the Aztec and Maya civilizations which still are a puzzle to the scholars?

Even in Columbus' day there may have been some who felt the urge to "sail on, sail on," until they reached the new land long before Columbus did. There is the story of some unknown sea captain, either a Spaniard or Portuguese, who discovered the West Indies before 1435 and of still another unknown, who eight years later, sailed from Cape Verde to South America. Then there is the theory recently advanced by Marius Andre, the distinguished French historian, that Columbus was successful in his historic voyage because he had the use of maps and other papers of an unknown captain who had reached the Antilles near the coast of Central America, but who was shipwrecked on the return voyage. He was picked up by a Spanish ship on which Columbus was serving in some minor capacity and was cared for on his death bed by the young Columbus, who, unknown to his captain, took possession of the papers of the dead man and from them got the inspiration for his expedition.

In its main details this story jibes with the account of a voyage of one Alfonso Sanchez, a Portuguese, who sailed from Lisbon in 1486 for the west coast of Africa, stopped at the Canary islands and there heard of a new land far to the west. So he set out for this land and is said to have landed on an island which he called San Salvador on August 6, 1486. In a battle with the natives Sanchez and several of his followers were slain, but the others made their way back to the Madeira islands where Columbus became acquainted with one of them. This man, realizing that death was near, gave the log of Sanchez' ship to Columbus, who made use of it on his voyage.

Even more baffling than the question of Columbus' right to the title of discoverer is the question of his paternity and nationality. No less than five nations have claimed him and three of them, Italy, Spain and Portugal, apparently have a good right to do so. The fourth, England, has only a shadowy claim, based upon a treatise written by Charles Mallay in 1682 in which he refers to "a discontented native of this isle, the famous Columbus, born in England, but resident in Genoa," and it may be dismissed as of little consequence. The fifth, France, has an equally shadowy claim based on the assertion that he was born in Corsica, once a French possession.

Italy's claim, agreed to by many historians and apparently accepted by popular belief, declares that he was born in Genoa, the son of Domenico Colombo, a cloth weaver, and Susanna Fontanarossa, a Jewess, and is based principally upon the wording of his will in which he wrote in two different places that he was born in Genoa. Up to 25 years ago the accepted biographies of Columbus were based upon two works—the "Life of Columbus," written in Spanish by his son, Ferdinando Colon, and the "Critical History of the Enterprise of Christopher Columbus," by Henry Vignaud, for years counselor of the American embassy in Paris, based upon documents which Vignaud gathered together over a long period of years and which have recently come into possession of the University of Michigan. Both books place his birthplace at Genoa and the date between August 26 and October 31, 1451.

Portugal recently came forward with her claim as the native land of Columbus through the investigations of Maj. Santos Ferreira who has announced that in the archives of that country he has discovered documents of an old Lisbon convent, contemporary with Columbus, which show that the explorer's real name was Salvasor Goncalve Zarco and that he was the grandson of the famous Portuguese navigator of the same name, who discovered the Madeira islands in the Atlantic off northern Africa. In furthering this claim Patrocinia Ribeiro, a member of the Portuguese Academy of Sciences, develops the theory of Columbus' Jewish origin. Documents have been discovered which show that the money for Columbus' expedition was advanced by Spanish and Portuguese Jews to Queen Isabella, who had not pawned her jewels (as the familiar tradition has it), and that the Spanish name for Columbus, "Cristobal Colon," was not an uncommon one among the Spanish and Portuguese Jews of that time. It was also learned that Columbus had had personal relations with Joseph Vecinho, physician to King Joao of Portugal, and with various learned Jews of Lisbon. Vecinho gave him the astronomical tables of Abraham Zacuto and at Salamanca Columbus met the author himself. At Malaga he met the Jewish official, Isaac Abravanel, who, it is said, took the first steps toward financing the first expedition. The fact that Columbus' first public appearance was in Portugal, that he married a Portuguese woman, Felope Moniz de Perestrello, the daughter of an explorer, and that he lived in that country also are regarded as strengthening Portugal's claim.

Of all the countries, however, Spain seems to be most desirous of establishing proof of the fact that the man known as Christopher Columbus was Cristobal Colon, a native of Galicia in the northwest part of Spain. In fact one Madrid newspaper has offered a prize of 50,000 pesetas ($7,500) for anyone who can bring forward indisputable proof. Although the Spanish Academy of History is not yet satisfied that the attempts made thus far are satisfactory, the Spanish populace still hopes that it can be done, because it would enhance the prestige of their country if it can be shown that it "discovered, conquered and civilized the greater part of the American continent."

The first attempt made was by the Spanish historian Don Celso Garcia de la Riega in his book, "Columbus, a Spaniard," based upon documents found in the peninsula of Pontrevedra in Galicia, dealing with land transfers money payments, etc., from 1428 to 1528 which indicate that the family of Colon or Columbus was well known there and that Cristobal Colon was born there. Although the Spanish Academy is not yet convinced that Don de la Riega made out a complete case, there is strong evidence that he is on the right track. Among these are the fact that Columbus was never known to speak Italian, that no paper remains on which he wrote in Italian; his autographs clearly show that his handwriting had the Spanish and not the Italian outlines of those days; his records are in Castilian, with now and then a colloquial Galician word; all of the maps he used had nothing but Spanish words and signs; he named his son Diego, which is not an Italian name; and perhaps most significant of all is the fact that in naming the places of his discovery he used Spanish names and not a single Italian name. The little town of San Salvador on the peninsula of Pontevedra claims to be his birthplace and proudly shows the house where he was born, and it is interesting to note that Columbus named the spot on which he first landed in the New world San Salvador.

More than that, Spain has a perfectly good explanation to offset the claims of Genoa, Italy, to being the birthplace of Columbus. While admitting that he may have lived in Genoa and changed his name from Colon (the name which Columbus himself always signed in his letters and documents) to Columbus, there was a good reason for his having done so. That reason is concerned with his Jewish descent. Fearing that if that fact became known in Spain, where great intolerance toward his race still prevailed, his chances of getting help for his projected voyage would be lessened, he deliberately tried to convince the rulers of Spain that he was an Italian and took the Italian name of Columbus to aid in the deception. So out of all this contradictory evidence there emerges the uncertainty as to his nationality. Everything considered, the Spanish theory sounds most plausible and the combined Spanish and Portuguese elements seem to offset the Italian. The province of his birthplace is near the border line of Portugal, which would explain his marriage to a Portuguese girl even though a native of Galicia, Spain. His Jewish ancestry would make possible a close connection with both Portuguese and Spanish Jews.

As to Columbus' last resting place there are two places that lay claim to that honor—Santo Domingo, Haiti, and Seville, Spain. Columbus died in Valladolid, Spain, May 20, 1506, and was buried in a monastery near Seville. In 1536 his remains and those of his son were removed to Santo Domingo and buried in the cathedral there. When Haiti was ceded to France in 1796 the bodies were removed to Havana, Cuba, and at the close of the Spanish-American war were taken back to Spain and placed in the magnificent tomb in the cathedral at Seville so familiar to tourists. At least the latter is the commonly accepted belief. However, in 1887 workmen repairing the cathedral at Santo Domingo unearthed a leaden casket bearing an inscription which read "Illustrious and Noble Man, Christopher Columbus." Inside this was a smaller casket bearing a similar inscription, in which it was said the remains had first been buried in Spain. It is believed that some body, other than that of Columbus, had been removed from Santo Domingo to Havana in 1796, and then to Seville a century later. So it is possible that Columbus still sleeps in the land which he "discovered."

ORCHARD GLEANINGS

PRUNING CONCORD VINES TOO SOON

Experiments covering several years indicate that it is not advisable to prune Concord vines too soon after leaf-fall. If the fall of leaves is hastened by freezes, then the contention that pruning should not be done until some time after leaf fall loses its full force, but rather it should be done after freezing, says the Rural New Yorker. In the chief growing areas of the East the dropping of grape leaves ordinarily does not occur until some time after the harvest is completed. If leaf fall is hastened by freezes it is believed that they in turn tend to further the movement of plant food stored in the canes to the older parts of the vine. It has been clearly shown by the iodine test for starch that there is a rapid diminution of starch in the canes with the coming of low temperatures. Hence the cutting away of two or three pounds of cane per vine actually does remove considerable stored reserves that are completely lost to the vine. Aside from this loss low temperatures emphasize the immature cane, which is likely to be especially prevalent this season. Canes that may appear well mature at this time may show withering after severe cold comes.

The fact that the questioner has had marked success through early pruning of his vines, of course, is not conclusive, since he had no later pruning apparently with which to compare it. Let him prune one acre at the time ordinarily done by him and then leave the other acre until late March or early April for several seasons, and in the meantime note the winter-killing, production of fruit and cane for the period.

In our tests extending over several years the greatest gain from late spring pruning was shown in 1921, when the April pruned plots yielded 70 per cent more grapes than the early winter pruned rows adjoining. In this experiment 12 plots were involved, and with six spring-pruned rows there was no exception, all showing increased fruit production. Of course this was an exceptional season, in that severe, prolonged freezes occurred after the buds were very perceptibly swollen in April. But on the other hand the early pruning was not done until several freezes had occurred.

Boosting Next Year's Crop of Strawberries

The care the strawberry patch gets from now on this season is going to mean a lot when it comes to the number of blossoms that will be borne during the fruiting season next year, and consequently the amount of fruit the patch produces, other things being equal.

Fruit bud formation in the new crown takes place during the summer and early fall, and those first laid down produce the best plants the succeeding season. It is absolutely imperative that clean, shallow cultivation be given until early fall. There should be plenty of humus in the soil. No weeds or grass should be allowed to grow. Surplus runners should be removed after the rows have been filled enough, for otherwise they will crowd the other plants and have the same effect as weeds.

Make every effort to see that a strong, vigorous set of plants is had at the earliest possible date and then avoid a crowding of the patch by late plants that will simply prove to be a hindrance rather than a help.

Give Young Apple Tree Protection From Pests

Between rabbits and mice this is a critical time in the young orchard, and of these two the mice are the worst. They eat the base of the tree and dig down to get the roots as well.

After every snow, the ground should be tramped around the tree so the mice will not make a runway to the tree.

Lime and sulphur applied full strength will keep rodent pests away for a time. There is some discussion as to whether this is injurious to the trees.

When trees are planted in sod, there is sometimes a regular labyrinth of mice paths. Several formulas for poison are recommended.

An empty tin can from the garage dump filled two-thirds full of wheat or corn and covered with hot water into which has been stirred a level tablespoonful of arsenate of lead or paris green. Set in a warm place for 24 hours and then put it down the mice holes a few grains at a place. Care should be taken not to leave any poisoned grain exposed where the quails can get it.

Grape Growers Worry

Many grape growers worry regarding the long canes and heavy foliage that grape vines make during seasons of abundant rainfall. Unless black rot and other diseases attack the grape and the excess growth interferes with spraying it is of no damage and should not be removed from the vines. If the foliage becomes so abundant as to hinder work in the vineyard, no particular harm will result from its partial removal, as that will permit the sun to get in.

HELP FOR SICK WOM

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vege Compound Has Restored Health of Thousands

Brooklyn, New York.—Mrs. G. mann of 228 Schaeffer St., was in down condition could not do housework. could not slee night. Her sto not an unusual Thousands women find t selves in a sim condition at time in their l "I found your vertisement in letter box," w Mrs. Hegmann, "and took Lydi Pinkham's Vegetable Compound got relief." Mrs. Hegmann also Lydia E. Pinkham's Herb Medicine Lydia E. Pinkham's Pills for Cons tion, with good results. She say am recommending your medicine all I know who have symptoms same as mine, and to others who think it will help. You may use statement as a testimonial, and I answer any letters sent to me by wo who would like information regar your medicines."

There are women in your sta perhaps in your town—who have ten letters similar to this one tel how much Lydia E. Pinkham's V table Compound has helped them.

The Pinkham Medicine Comp Lynn, Mass., will gladly furnish o women with these names upon requ

Deafness—Head Noises
RELIEVED BY
LEONARD EAR OIL
"Rub Back of Ears"
INSERT IN NOSTRIL
At All Druggists Price $1
Folder about "DEAFNESS" on request.
A. O. LEONARD, INC., 70 FIFTH AVE., N

BABIES LOVE MRS. WINSLOW'S SYRUP
The Infants' and Children's Regulator
Pleasant to give—pleasant to take. Guaranteed purely vegetable and absolutely harmless. It quickly overcomes colic, diarrhoea, flatulency and other like disorders. The open published formula appears on every label.
At All Druggists

Trapper Finds Site of Old Trading Po

Old Fort Halkett, an ancient tra ing post of the Hudson's Bay co pany, located in the remote Li country, which was abandoned near 100 years ago and since lost, has be found. The old post has been the ject of many unavailing searches the last 40 years.

John Dalzell, trapper, aided by tip from friendly Liard Indians, d covered the site near the mouth Coal creek. An old root cellar ga him the first clew and he follow a well-defined trail three miles to lake, nine miles long by three mi wide.

On the south bank of this la stood an old cabin of squared lo (all Hudson's Bay posts are constru ed of squared logs) the windows which were covered with parchmen of caribou skins. A quantity of le for bullet molding was found. Da zell is bringing out interesting m mentos of the old post.

To Use Camels on Farm

A group of farmers near Rosthe Saskatchewan, are planning to intro duce camels into Canada for agricu tural work.

France has the greatest number aircraft carriers in commissio Italy ranks second, United State third.

It's so easy to give your dresses, hose or lingerie lovely new colors with RIT
FAST DYES OR TINTS

Green's August Flower
is a mild laxative, and has been in use for sixty years for the relief of constipation, indigestion and similar stomach disorders. A trial will convince you of its merit. 30c and 90c bottles. At all druggists. G. G. Green, Inc., Woodbury, N. J.

For Barbed Wire Cuts Try Hanford's Balsam of Myrrh
Money back for first bottle if not suited. All dealers.

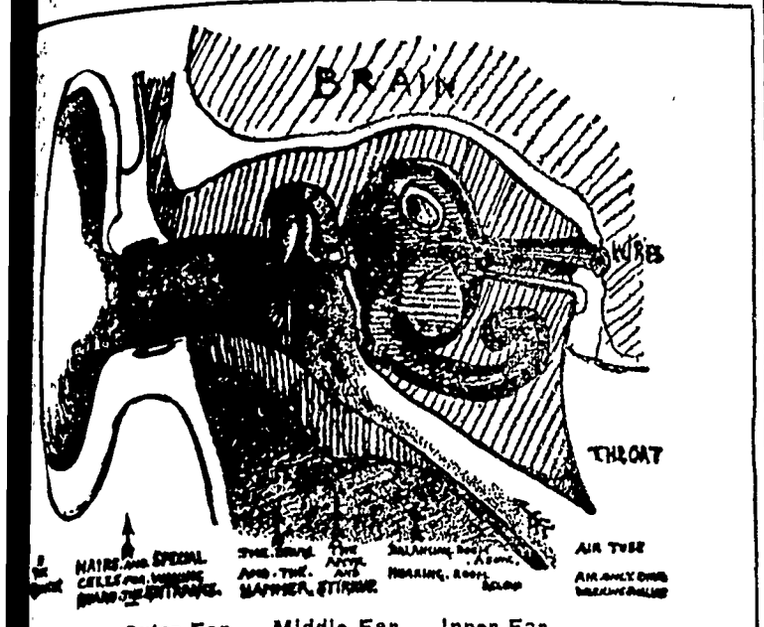
FOR SALE DAIRY AND CHICKEN FARM —114 acres, good buildings, apple orchard, 1 miles from town. Priced to sell. J. A. Lee, owner, Charles City, Iowa.

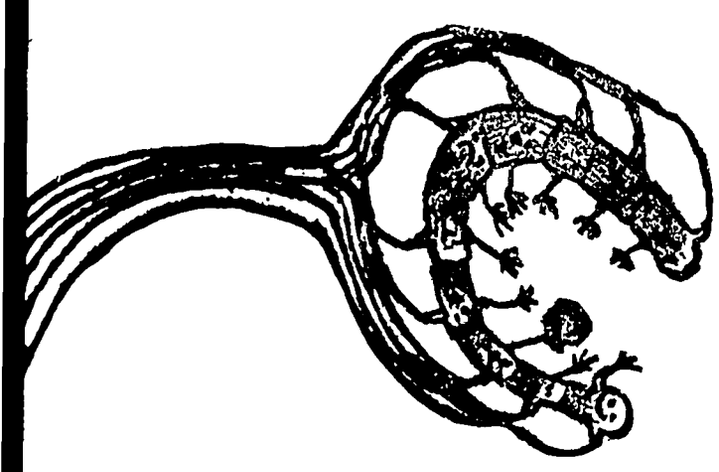
OURSELF nd YOUR BODY

By WILFRED T. GRENFELL

SENTINEL NUMBER THREE

The Ear





ing is Like Playing Ball. Whichever Cell Catches the Ball, Sends a Message to the Brain.

HE third great control is the ear. The ear is a double control. It first enables the body to balance and, second, as a very valuable alarm, beswhile the eyes guard right nly, the ears guard in two di-. Horses can move their ears in any direction, and can, e, tell better than we can how and from what direction the s, because the ear muscles can ears at the angle that gets the best. Horses rely much more r ears than their eyes—so do and deer.

tunately, as our ears are on e sides of our head, it takes waves longer to get to one ear he other, and that helps us to w far off the sound is, and direction it comes from. Our machine has on the outside -horn to collect sound waves nd them down the hole into a s the receiver of a telephone r our voice waves.

tube is located in solid bone; ay down it, so as to be safe, a head is stretched right across e. In the tube, also, are hairs ax to catch and keep out ene- and dirt. The drum head is p of very fine strings stretchom the side of the tube and d in the middle to a tiny bone alled the hammer handle, bethere is a knob on the top end The handle is not exactly in iddle, so that all the strings are ferent lengths, and each fiber art to move in answer to a difnote. The fact is, our ears can of any note made up of waves measure anywhere between 40 0,000 vibrations to a second. w we must have air on both of the delicate drum or it would ssed flat by the weight of the tside. So the other side of the head is a fine little room called iddle ear. There is a door in ck wall of this room leading to , the other end of which opens he big air chamber inside the of the throat. If you shut your and hold your nose, and swalou will hear air crinkle inside ear against the inside of the Big tonsils are apt to block inner end of this pipe, or when et a bad cold it gets blocked. you can hardly hear anything, e the drum gets pressed in and vibrate. The arrangement to the sound vibrations across this ary room is really marvelous—utiful necklace of little bones, d to the head of the hammer is a tiny bonelet called the anvil, se of its shape, and fast to that stirrup bonelet, the flat part or er of which is fastened square the second drum, a thin memcovering in an oval window on side wall like this. When there noise the outside drum moves the sound, and the little chain nts the waves from pulling the drum too hard. The other side e oval window is the secret chamalled the inner ear. This is beauy lined and divided into two each full of watery lymph. The hall leads to the music room. is a long, tubular corridor which round and round an upright holpillar, getting smaller as it goes ke the center piece of this conch- (See picture.) There's a bone half way up the side of the corrunning round the central rod, so many thousands of fibers are ched from it to the outer wall It makes a fine curtain, the strings getting shorter and shorter as you go up. Exactly as fiddle strings or harp strings get shorter to make higher and higher notes, so these do to receive and answer to higher and higher notes. A veil, only a single cell thick, covers over the outer part of this, as you see in the picture—and in this queer passage formed beneath is the real hearing organ. This organ is made of a few special cells—and runs the whole way up the corridor from bottom to top.

"Inside the central column run thousands of wires to central—the whole is called the hearing nerve, exactly like the seeing nerve. One fiber runs out over the bony shelf to every single cell on the hearing organ. The oval window covered by the plunger of the stirrup is in the upper half of the corridor. There is a large round window in the lower half covered by an elastic membrane, exactly like the Eskimos use elastic seal-bowel skin to cover their windows, because they have no glass. In the hearing organ you see the rows of sensitive cells, each with fine hairs in it, and close over them is a special roof made up mostly of live wires, that is of nerves, to a cell mass or ganglion, thousands of which are lodged on the circular shelf, and are local centers sending the messages through the hearing wires to central. When the outside drum is moved by a sound wave, the plunger of the stirrup presses the water in the top of the corridor down on the tips of the hairs, and that pushes out the elastic round window below—the elasticity pulls it back, and so it is just as if the hairs ticked the live wires just the right number of times for each note and so wired a 'hearing picture' up to central—where it is (exactly as in the eye) immediately preserved in the record chamber, called memory, as well as interpreted and acted upon by you and me. There are little specks floating in the corridors also, and when stirred up they may help to send up messages also. These records are so well kept that recently a man listening in on a radio discovered his lost brother, whose voice he had not heard for years.

"Now, let's go back to the other, or inner, end of the hall. Here is another room with five doors, each leading into a big bony tube. Each is half a circle. So they are called semicircular canals. Here in this chamber, which is also filled with fluid, are again many small specks, and also a number of cells with hairs. The canals lie in the shapes of big bows at right angles to one another, so that one is down when the other is up, whichever way your head moves, and into them, also, the fluid goes. There is a row of wires that goes to this room also, but it does not come from central-front office this time, but from the back or lower-brain office—and it is these canals which enable us to balance. (See picture.) When they move too much in certain ways, they get troubled, and we get giddy. Some think the specks lodge now on this side, now on that, of the hairs as they move about, and the changing of the weight makes pictures in the lower brain—sea sickness is probably a trouble of these balancing canals, when the ship shakes us up too much. We don't yet exactly understand how any of these pictures are interpreted by the man inside. Perhaps we never shall. But the workmanship and the design are so wonderful, and are so carefully protected, that we ought to know all we can about them."

(© by the Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Coöperatives in Need of Data

Take Some of Guesswork Out of Formulation of Price Policies.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

How co-operative associations can take some of the guess work out of the formulation of their price policies is suggested by the United States Department of Agriculture in summing up recent experience in co-operative marketing. It is impossible, the department says, for co-operative associations to fix prices arbitrarily for any length of time. When prices are named without reference to supply and demand conditions there is no way to compel consumers to pay such prices. In formulating a proper price and sales policy, co-operative organizations need the best available data as to the total supply of the commodities they handle and their average annual price. They need to be informed also as to the relation between these factors and any seasonal price trends that may ordinarily be counted on.

Unsatisfactory Methods.

Rule of thumb methods and hunches, the department says, are treacherous guides in formulating price policies. Equally unsatisfactory, it declares, are such general ideas as the familiar notion that the price of a commodity should be its cost of production plus a profit. This idea is widespread among farmers and members of farm organizations. But it contains two fatal defects. In the first place there are nearly as many different costs of production as there are individual producers, so that a price representing even an average of costs would be unsatisfactory to about half the producers because, as individual producers, the costs would be greater than the average of costs. In the second place, the cost of producing a commodity, once it has been produced, may bear little or no relation to its price. It can only be sold for what the consumer will pay.

While these principles may seem rather elementary, the department observes that actually supply and demand factors are very complex and necessitate careful analysis. Oversimplifying the matter is a prolific source of mistakes and losses. An intelligent co-operative selling policy will take into account such factors as the general price level of all commodities, the relation to this price level of the particular commodity that is being marketed, the quantity of that commodity which is available, all known seasonal trends in the marketing period, the supply of competing commodities, and demand conditions as evidenced by the state of business and employment.

Price and Production.

Co-operatives should know the relation that normally exists between the average annual price of a commodity and the total annual production. In the case of perishables this is usually very close. It is also necessary to have information on the daily quantity present on different markets so that shipments may be regulated to avoid local gluts or shortages. Recent unhappy experiences suffered by growers of southern peaches, watermelons and lettuce are a striking illustration of the need for more careful control of shipments.

Although co-operatives should perhaps attach greatest importance to daily and seasonal price changes in formulating their sales policies, it is a mistake not to consider also the larger price tendencies of which these short-time movements are a part. Co-operatives, says the department, have an opportunity, through the control and regulation of supplies to market, to take advantage of normal seasonal price trends, as well as short-time changes. In order to do this, however, there must be careful analysis of long-time swings and basic supply and demand tendencies. A recognition, in short, of the powers and limitations of quantity selling, and a steady determination to substitute science for guess work are the foundations of success in modern merchandising, the department declares.

Agricultural Items

Soy beans in corn for hogging down reduce the tankage bill.

* * *

Much more corn is damaged by fall frosts before it is matured than by spring frosts because it is planted too early.

* * *

Rhubarb may be transplanted in the fall or spring. If moved in the fall, any time after the frosts have killed the tops.

* * *

Rhubarb requires large amounts of moisture for its best development, therefore it should be given thorough, clean cultivation.

* * *

One cannot afford to spend ten dollars' worth of time repairing a machine that is not worth ten dollars after the job is done.

* * *

The growing of lettuce on the same ground year after year leads to disastrous results in the mountain districts as well as elsewhere.

* * *

Demonstrations conducted during the past year show an increased production of all crops where cover crops and well balanced fertilizer were used.

Camel

The most popular cigarette in the United States

Quality put it there—quality keeps it there.

Camel smokers are not concerned and need not be concerned with anything but the pleasure of smoking.

© 1927, R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, Winston-Salem, N. C.

Benefit in Joy Giving

When you once get started in joy giving, it's easy to keep it up. The fact that you give joy, brings candidates for your magic touch constantly before you. The returning benefits of having given joy keep you supplied with the means of joy giving. So you just increase the ever enlarging stream that through you ministers to your fellows. And your own joy increases with each new expression of your good will. The joy-giving habit grows upon you and you would be perfectly miserable without the chance of helping others to happier days. It's real joy.—Grit.

Books in 1926

In spite of the economic upheaval, 12,709 books—only 403 fewer than in 1925—were published last year in the British Isles. According to the Publishers' Circular, the effect of the general strike was to reduce the number of books issued in May to 460, as compared with 1,302 in May, 1025. But in June a part of the pent-up flood was released. If the last six months of each year are compared, it will be found that 6,706 were issued in 1026, as compared with 6,740 in 1925. "This increase suggests," says the Circular, "that, given the economic peace that seems probable, the year 1927 will prove to be a bumper year."

The Uproar

"What was the racket in the lobby last night?" inquired a guest.

"Aw, it was nuth'n' but Tobe Sagg and old Dad Fetchett, both of which know everything and know it different, telling it to each other till they got mad and both went home in a huff," responded the landlord of the Mansion house. "I'm sorry if they disturbed you, Mr. Sellers, but I'd hate to turn 'em out into the weather. I'm hoping they'll sooner or later empty each other and quit argying for good."—Kansas City Star.

By Bus to the Sphinx

Within the shadow of the Sphinx 1,003 motor busses are now traveling back and forth, serving the population which formerly depended upon the camel. Motor vehicle equipment in Egypt consists of 8,891 private cars, 4,233 taxis and 1,533 trucks, in addition to busses.

"Merry Andrew"

This was first applied to Andrew Borde, physician to Henry VIII. He was very learned and very eccentric, and in order to instruct the people, he used to address them at fairs and other crowded places. Those who imitated his wit and droll tricks, though not possessing his genius, were called Merry Andrews.

Too Much Cure

Banker—Doctor, six months ago you advised me to take up golf to get my mind off my work.

Doctor—Yes.

Banker—Well, for goodness' sake prescribe something to get it back again.

Tan

"Girlie, where did you get that wonderful tan?"

"At the drug store."

If a man can lead, he will.

Exclusive

"I hear that your wife has changed her diet."

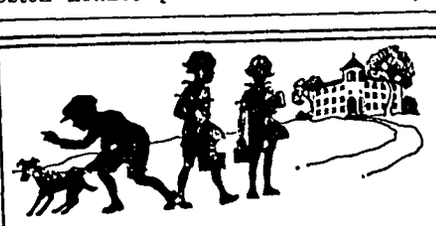
"Yes; just as soon as she heard that Mrs. Smith was on the same one."—Boston Transcript.

You Know That Kind

Politician—No, I don't know you.

Stranger—Don't you remember giving me a cigar at election time?

Politician—Oh, did I? Er—are you just getting out?



Even Towser wants to go to school. Of course the youngsters are happy. They had delicious hot Monarch Cocoa at breakfast and they have Monarch Teenie Weenie Peanut Butter sandwiches for lunch.

EVERY genuine Monarch package bears the Lion Head, the oldest trademark in the United States covering a complete line of the world's finest food products—Coffee, Tea, Cocoa, Catsup, Pickles, Peanut Butter, Canned Fruits and Vegetables, and other superior table specialties.

REID, MURDOCH & CO.
Established 1853
Chicago Pittsburgh Boston New York
Jacksonville Tampa Los Angeles

Monarch is the only nationally advertised brand of QUALITY FOOD PRODUCTS sold exclusively through the men who own and operate their own stores.

MONARCH
Quality for 70 Years

Raised Trouble

"So the Browns have had a disagreement and separated. What was it about?"

"She wanted to have her face lifted, and he insisted that it be the mortgage."

Away Behind

Holmes—A slow town, isn't it?

Watson—Slow! The speed cops there ride bicycles!

An agitator has to think fast or somebody will have him stumped.

Demand

BAYER
ASPIRIN

SAY "BAYER ASPIRIN"—Genuine

Unless you see the "Bayer Cross" on tablets, you are not getting the genuine Bayer Aspirin prescribed by physicians and proved safe by millions over 25 years for

Colds	Headache	Neuritis	Lumbago
Pain	Neuralgia	Toothache	Rheumatism

DOES NOT AFFECT THE HEART

Safe — Accept only "Bayer" package which contains proven directions.
Handy "Bayer" boxes of 12 tablets.
Also bottles of 24 and 100—Druggists.

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid.

Goodell News

(By Special Correspondent)

A dance was given in the Opera House Friday night.

Frances Kearney was on the sick list this week.

Paul Halfpop purchased Will Tanner's Ford touring car.

Virgil Cook's were calling Sunday at the home of his sister, Mrs. Simmons, near Meservey.

Miss Mildred Beckman spent the week end at her parental home in West City.

Mrs Geo Griggs and sons, Audrey and Harold spent Thursday evening and Friday at Ventura.

Mr and Mrs Jay Griggs and daughter, Lela, drove to Ames Sunday where Lela will attend college

Mr and Mrs. Walter Newberger were visiting at the J J Cook home Sunday

Mr and Mrs. Henry Busse were calling at the Frank Sandry home Friday

There were no church services at the U B church Sunday as the minister, Rev Scott, was attending conference.

The Goodell high school base ball team played at Klemme Friday. The score was 17 to 0 in favor of Goodell

Mr and Mrs Jay GGriggs Nellie and Kenneth, drove to GGilmore City Friday for Mae Griggs and Miss Rhea Streams, who spent the week end here. They returned to their school duties again Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Carpenter returned home Saturday night from their visit at Red Oak and the U. B. Conference at Muscatine.

J. J Cook and family, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Sherwood and the Neeble families spent Friday afternoon at Clear Lake.

Mr. and Mrs Elmer Neeble and Mr. and Mrs. John Neeble, Sr, of Hartley, spent a few days with Goodell friends.

Mr and Mrs. Clifford Chase were shopping in Mason City. The latter's brother who has been in the Navy is staying at his sister's home for several weeks.

Ell Township News

(Special Times Reporter)

Miss Mary Swanson returned Monday from a few week's visit in Chicago with relatives and friends.

John Bock and Ed. Buentenbach filled their silos last week They have a silage cutter of their own

Mrs John Bock and daughter, Stella, were in Mason City last Saturday.

Messrs Herman, Henry and Geo Thiemann were business callers in Garner on Monday aftenroon.

Mr. and Mrs. Werner Schlawin and little daughter, La Vohn, spent Sunday with Grandma Schlawin

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Buentenbach and children visited with Mrs Buentenbach's folks at Williams last Sunday.

The Ladies Aid of the Reformed Church which was to meet with Mrs Fred Barz on Wednesday afternoon, was postponed until next Wednesday on acount of the bad roads

Quite a number of people from this comunity attended the funeral of Henry Lemke on Wednesday afternoon It was held in the Reformed church north of Klemme

NOTICE TO PUBLIC

Complete copies of the Town Ordinances of Klemme, Iowa, may be seen by anyone at the Office of the Town Clerk of Klemme, Iowa The Numbers and Titles of Said Ordinances were published according to law in two recent issues of The Klemme Times, a newspaper of general circulation published at Klemme, Iowa.

8tc PAUL GRANGE,
Mayor of Klemme, Iowa.

The man who places an appealing ad in his home newspaper and backs it up with an attractive window display gets the business.

A woman is fire chief in Silver Springs, Md. Do you suppose she rolls mer hose?

Klemme News

And 1928 is a leap year.

VOLLEY BALL—All farmers and business men interested in playing volley ball meet at the school gym next Thursday evening at 7:00 o'clock

Mr. Fred Musfelt has been t Clarion this past week doing some carpenter work as it has been too wet to paint.

Clarence Elder and Vernon Turgasen came home from Ames last Thursday evening for a short stay at home before taking up work at College. Both of these fine young men have some outside work this year in addition to their studies.

CAR LOAD OF KINDLING Wood due to arrive any day Get your orders in at ouce. Northern Lumber Company 1tc

Mrs. A. D. Gimer returned Friday night from South Dakota where she went to attend the funeral of a relative.

FOUND—Male hog came to my place two weeks ago Owner may have same by paying costs and proving property. Henry Joster 2tc

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Ludeke and children and Mrs Hartzell were entertained at the Lester Stille home Sunday.

A G. Koerner and family drove to Ames Sunday where Kermit enters school for his first year of college work.

Mrs. Marlin Croner, and Dorothy, Grandma Schroeder and Mrs Lena Schroeder were visiting at Belmond Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Hartzell, of Mitchellville is here visiting at the homes of her daughters, Mrs. Ralph Ludeke and Mrs. Lester Stille.

R. A. Jorgenson and family spent Sunday at the Sam Rasmussen home east of Forest City. Needless to say Ye Editor had plenty of chicken to eat, as well as around a hundred other good dishes usually served at a farm dinner.

Mr and Mrs Charles Fritzell enjoyed company over Sunday. Mrs Fritzell's father and mother, and her brother and his wife from Wellsburg were here.

FOR SALE—Buff Orpington and English Tom Baron Leghorn Roosters for breeding purpose Mrs J B. Spitler, ½ mile west of Belmond, Iowa 2tc

Mr and Mrs Jay Griggs, Nellie and Kenneth, took Lela to Ames Sunday where she enters college for her first year's training in dometsic science.

Mr and Mrs. Hod Lawhorn, f Garner, were visiting Klemme relatives Saturday. They have just returned from a trip through the Ozark Mountains, and Oklahoma

Mrs. W. F Missman and son, Byrnes, went to Belmond Saturday to spend the week end at the Ely home Dr. Missman joined them there Sunday.

Mrs. Joe West and son Robert have gone to Fort Dodge, where they will spend the winter. Clare remained in Klemme and will continue his school work here.

A BASKET SOCIAL will be held at Ell No. 6, Friday evening, Oct. 7, 1927. Ladies are asked to please bring baskets. Florence Hansen, teacher 1tc

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Keraus entertained all of the teachers and Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Waterman and Marian, and Mr. and Mrs. T F. Mitchell of Swea City, at the Keraus cottage at Clear Lake Sunday for dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Keraus and sons and Mrs. Sadie Turgasen and Donald and Fred Kluckhohn drove to Ames Sunday to bring the Kluckhohn car home which Vernon Turgasen had driven to Ames a few days before.

John C. Larson, west of town has added to his already complete farm equipment, a Westinghouse farm light plant, purchased from Prouty Electric Shop of Garner Besides furnishing power for washing, ironing, etc., it lights up the entire farm lot and buildings and is a wonderful improvement to any farm.

EARLY PICKED SEED CORN IS THE HEALTHIEST

Select Corn Early Then Dry Quickly Say Ames Experts

Picking seed corn early in the fall and then drying it quickly by artificial means, will greatly reduce the amount of dry rot. This is oen of the important points learned by the plant disease specialists at Iowa State College, Ames, in tests they have made in recent years.

The value of early selection and drying was illustrated last year by a test in Chickasaw county. Early selected corn, picked Sept. 20, and rapidly dried, showed, when tested in the spring 97.4 percent strong, 1 percent weak and 1 5 percent dead.

In comparison, the late selected corn gave 79 percent strong, 4.5 per cent weak, and 16 5 percent dead. Other tests gave similar results A more striking difference was in the amount of disease present. The early picked corn showed 7 percent disease and the late picked corn had 27 percent disease present

The damage caused by these dry rots depends on weather conditions both in the spring of the year at planting time and also in the late summer and fall. For example, warm wet weather in August and September provides ideal conditions for growth of the organisms which cause the moldy and dry rot ears in the field

The two important dry rots are known as Diplodia and Basisporium. These live over on the seed and in that way carry the disease from one crop to the next While ears badly infected with the dry rot may easily be identified, the plant pathologists have found that some ears may carry the disease, yet show no outward signs of it.

Right moisture and temperature conditions are factors in the growth of the dry rot organisms. They will grow in temperatures as low as 59 degrees F or as high as 95. The best temperatures are 82 to 85 degrees for Diplodia and 77 for Basisporium. The greater the moisture content of the corn, the more rapidly will the organisms grow, providing the temperatures are satisfactory.

Corn should be selected in the field before frost from healthy, standing stalks Stalks with broken shanks or broken stems and roots should be avoided as well as smutted or lodging stalks As soon as selected the ears should be dried rapidly Drying is even more important than early picking, because these molds can not grow to any extent unless moisture is present Artificial heat is necessary, especially if the weather is damp

KINDLING WOOD—We will order only one car load this fall. Get your orders in at once. Northern Lumber Company. 1tc

Kenneth Patet returned Saturday from Iowa City wh has been several weeks takin treatments.

Bumper Crops in the Northwest

Splendid crops of wheat, rye, barley and flax have been harvested this year in the Northwest and are now being threshed. Net returns in many instances are paying for the land on which they were grown.

Feed is abundant. The hay crops—alfalfa, sweet clover and native hay—have been immense. Corn promises a wonderful crop. Much of it has matured and is out of the way of frost. Cattle, hogs and sheep will be held and fattened on the farms and ranches. Prosperity is assured for these farmers.

Their land at present is low-priced but they know that its value will soon advance sharply. Consequently, they are now adding to their holdings.

Now is the time for renter-farmers in the Central States to go into the Northwest, where diversified farming pays big dividends.

Extremely Low Fares October 6th and 20th
$11 Round Trip to Eastern Montana and Western Dakotas
(Return limit ten days from date of sale)

The MILWAUKEE Road

Tickets will be sold TO all stations on the Milwaukee Road: Ipswich, S. D., to Baker, Mont., including all branch line points to Orient, S. D.; Linton, N. D.; Faith, S. D; Isabel, S. D., and New England, N. D; Chamberlain, S. D., to Rapid City, S. D., inclusive. Tickets will be sold FROM Milwaukee Road stations between and including Mason City, Iowa, and Canton, S. D.; Austin, Minn., and Egan, S. D.; Austin, Minn, and Owatonna, Minn.; Wells, Minn., and Mankato, Minn.; Glencoe, Minn., and Milbank, S. D.; Herndon, Iowa, Spirit Lake and Storm Lake, Iowa, Herndon, Iowa, and Sioux City, Iowa, Sioux City, Iowa, and Egan, S. D.

Regular Homeseekers' Tickets (Liberal Stopovers—21-day limit) On sale every Tuesday during October and November One-way fare plus only $2 covers the round trip. Tickets on sale at all stations in Minnesota and Iowa, and from Omaha, Neb., to all stations in Western North and South Dakota and in Montana as far West as Three Forks.

For free maps, folders and detailed information write
E. E. BREWER, Immigration Agent
C. M. & St. P. Ry., Room 796
Union Station, Chicago, Illinois
3523-564

A Complete Heating System--

The GLOBE PARLOR FURNACE offers the home owner a complete heating system at a cost considerably less than it takes to buy and operate the number of stoves necessary for comforable, adequate heating. And all the advantages of a furnace—even, steady heat, with the whole house warmed by circulation, plus the cozy radiance—are yours when you install a Globe Parlor Furnace.

Burns either coal or wood.

The fire door is of ample size to accomodate arge pieces of wood or big chunks of coal.

Globe Parlor Furnaces are good looking, too—an ornament for any room. It's design and cnstruction make it easy to operate, without dirt, smoke and muss.

We have a size to suit your particular heating requirements.

E. F. Jacobs
"THE FARM SERVICE STORE"

Choicest FOODS

Folks, there couldn't be any eating place, no matter how expensive or how flossy, give you a better selection of high grade foods than we do.

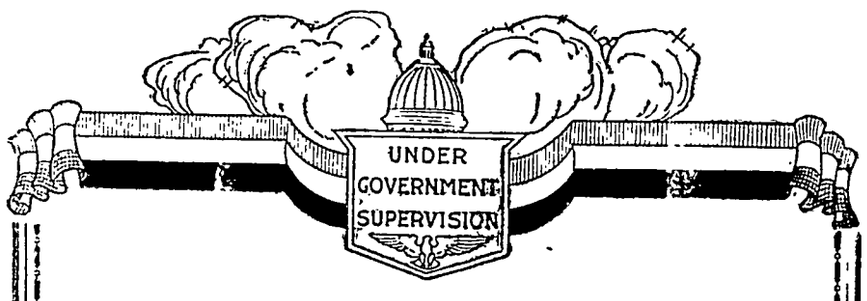
And Oh! How we do cook 'em!

Drop in for dinner or a lunch tomorrow.

DELICIOUS—
Fry our ice cream, a number of flavors, ice cold pop, and malt.

A full line of Cigars and Tobacco, at—

Busch Cafe



The Road To Success

You can have success—if you are willing to pay the price. Intelligent work, wise spending, and regular savings. The price is small, the rewards great. No one has ever regretted saving. Every successful man has saved. It is the test of success. Start now to save a part of what you earn.

First National Bank
KLEMME, IOWA.

Our Fall Merchandise

Is Now On Display---

Our big line of FALL MERCHANDISE is now being unpacked every day, and this year the qualities and values will please you more than ever.

We have made some mighty good selections in our various departments and we are sure you will be well pleased with the variety we are offering you this fall.

Here are a number of new items we especially call your attention to:-

FOR YOUR HOME NEEDS:-
New Bed Blankets—in all sizes and weights, from cotton to mixed and pure woolen in newest designs and the the prces are very reasonable this year.
Curtain Materials and Drapes. New Dress Goods.

FOR THE MEN and BOYS:
Ne wFall and Winte Overcoats Lumber Jacks, Sweaters
Flannel and Wool Shirts Dress Shirts Leather Coats
High Tops Fall Shoes and Oxfords Underwear

FOR THE LADIES and MISSES
New Fall Oxfords Fall Hosiery Fall Dress Goods
Sweaters Scarfs Gloves Lingerie

G. W. Kluckhohn & Sons

Care of Cream On the Farm--

Here is what happens when cream is not kept at a proper temperature and the following facts derived from an extensive study of the question by the research department of a prominent separator company should be of interest to cream producers:-

"Two samples of milk were kept at 50 and 70 degrees respectively, and after a period of twenty-four hours there were in the mlk held at 50 degrees five bacteria for every one at the beginning, while the milk held at 70 degrees there were seven hundred and fifty bacteria for every one at the begining"

As bacteria in milk and cream is what causes it to get sour and rancid, the lower the temperature of the milk is held, the longer it will stay sweet.

Cool your cream promptly and keep it cool and clean and you will not be troubled so much with sour cream. Milk pails and pans should also be thoroughly washed and scalded.

Better cream makes a better cream check.

WE THANK YOU FOR YOUR LOYAL CO-OPERATION

Klemme
Co-Op. Creamery Co.

Order Christmas Cards Now--

Times Print Shop

Fill Your Coal Bin Now--

When you purchase your winter's requirements of North Iowa Grain Comapny High Grade Furnace Coal—you are taking no chances.

We stand behind every ton with a guarantee that it is all we say it is.

No ton of coal leaves this place short —not by a shovelful!

Our coal is all it's cracked up to be! Try it out this fall and winter.

Our bins are ready for your immediate order and we have coal on the way. It will pay you to buy now as prices are advancing steadily.

We can sell you good furnace coal at:

$9.75 and up

North Iowa Grain Co.

Avery-Twin Lakes News

(Special Times Reporter)

Mr Ben Reemstma was a caller at Belmond Tuesday.

Mr Ben Swalve, Sr., helped his son Dick, last Friday.

Mrs Bill Greiman spent one day last week at the Frank Sandrey home.

Miss Ann Trampell helped Mrs. Dick Swalve cook for silo fillers last week Friday.

Mrs. Dick Swalve and son, Clarence, were callers at the P. Trampel home last Saturday morning.

Mrs. Elmer Schlei assisted Mrs Owen Nuehring with canning and other work Friday.

Mrs Bill Greiman helped Mrs. Henry Lemke one day last week with the work.

Miss Elmyra Greiman called at the Will Wenz home Friday evening

Fred Etchen and Arthur Klinkhammer were at Goodell last Tuesday

Mr Beier, of Goodell, delivered gasoline in this comunity one day last week.

Mr and Mrs. David Schwichtenberg and sons drove to Mason City last Friday.

Mr Leo Olish was at the Edwin Josten home Thursday evening f last week

Mr and Mrs Rhine Schlawin and Ernie Henschen spent Sunday at the home of Mr and Mrs Fred Etchen.

Mr and Mrs. Frank Rhodes called at the Henry Buseman home Sunday

Relatives and friends from this vicinity attended the funeral of Mr Henry Lemke, which was held Wednesday.

Mr Adolph Kramer spent Thursday evening at the Albert Etchen home to listen to the Dempsey-Tunney fight over the radio

Miss Stella Fuls came Friday for a visit at the Swalve, Priebe and Schaeper homes and with other relatives.

Mr and Mrs. Bert Behrends, and Mr and Mrs Dick Swalve visited at the Ben Reemstma and D. Schwichtenberg homes Sunday afternoon

Clarence, Florence and Carrie Swalve and Ann Trampel visited at the Edwin Josten home Friday evening

Mr. Bill Greiman and son, Herbert returned home from their trip to Minnesota last week. They report a fine time.

Mr and Mrs Dick Swalve and daughter Florence, and Mr. and Mrs. Bert Behrends and daughter, Ann, spent Monday at the Ben Swalve home in Klemme.

Mr Arthur Klinkhammer is working at the Albert Etchen farm.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Josten were at Fenton last Sunday for a visit with relatives.

Mr and Mrs. Dick Swalve and family, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Behrends and daughter, Ann, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Schaeper and son Bennie, and Miss Stella Fuls spent Sunday evening visiting at the Herman Priebe home.

Mrs. Dick Swalve was surprised last Saturday evening when her brother Bert Behrends and family of Ackley came for an over Sunday visit at the Swalve home. On account of the disagreeable weather they were forced to remain until Tuesday, when they returned home.

Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of the coal dealers

Advertising is the guarantee of good faith.

It's a long nec that has no petting.

Ferdinand Young to Jos. Young, W D., date 9-13-27, $200.00, E6 f NW¼ 35-96-24.

Geo. N. Stark to Anna M. Stark. W. D., date 9-29-25, $1.00, etc. W½ 23-97-26.

Liberty News Notes

(Special Times Reporter)

Herman Bridges has been laid up as the result of a sprained wrist.

Rhine Schlawin helped Lou Griffen Saturday filling a silo.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Lemke were in Garner Monday.

Mrs Wesley Lenz is reported very sick at her home in East Liberty.

Mrs James Lilly of Cedar Rapids, attended the funeral of her brother, Henry Lemke, Wednesday afternoon.

Bill Anderson of Eagle Grove is working at the Albert Carolus Sr. home.

Buzz and Carl Carlson have both been quite sick with the flu but are better at this time.

John Larson is quite sick with the quinzy and is under the doctor's care

Mrs Rhine Schlawin stayed with her sister, Mrs. Henry Lemke and family Tuesday night.

Mr and Mrs Otto Gas were entertained at the Henry Beier home Tuesday evening.

The roads are very muddy in this vicinity from the showers which occured frequently during the past week

Quite a few are complaining of colds around here these days, due undoubtedly to the change in temperature.

Miss Alice Carolus left Sunday for New Hartford She expects to be gone for some time. She will visit at the home of her uncle, Frd Carolus and other relatives

Mr. and Mrs. George Gast and Mr. and Mrs Otto GGast from Minnesota have been visiting at the home of their sister, Mrs. J. J. Stille, and brother, Herman Gast, thepast week.

Hugh Hummel had the misfortune to loose a finger Tuesday. The accident happened while he was at work on his Ford. Dr. Missman amputated the finger and is caring for the wound.

Sunday was the last Sunday before Conference and on account of the condition of the weather there was not as large a crowd as there would have been out to hear Rev. Gauger's last sermon of the Conference year.

Karras Kropp had the misfortune to have one of his arms caught in the corn binder in some way Saturday. It was not broken but severely bruised and injured. It is causing him quite a bit of pain but seems to be doing as well as can be expected.

The funeral of Henry Lemke, Jr., was held at the Ell Township Reformed Church Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Lemke had been suffering from cancer for some time, and after an operation he became weaker an dpassed away Sunday morning.

STILLE FAMILY LIKE THEIR NEW LONG BEACH HOME

The Times is in receipt of the following letter from Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Stille who are spending the winter in California:

Long Beach, California,
1102 Gardenia Ave,
September 23, '27.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Jorgenson:-

We have been here two weeks this morning and are beginning to miss The Klemme Times, so will you please put our name on your subscription list?

We certainly had a wonderful trip which took just two weeks. Stopped over at the Yellowstone Park, Salt Lake City, and San Fransisco. If you want some real thrills just cross the Rocky Mts. in an automobile.

We have located at Long Beach instead of Los Angeles as we at first thought. Have rented a furnished apartment but are living in our car almost as much as in the house. Long Beach certainly has the ideal climate. We have not suffered from heat at all as there is always a fresh cool breeze. The nice fresh fruits and vegetables surely appeal to us. kind regards from us all.

Yours truly,
Mrs. W. F. Stille.

Avery Twp. News

(Special Times Reporter)

Mrs George Busemtn was a Garner caller Friday afternoon.

John P. Trampel finished plowing for Hamo Beek last Wednesday.

Mrs. Will Lassahn spent Saturday at the Harry Buss home.

Miss Womkie Trampel is assisting with the work at J. E. Bivens home.

Rob Roths helped George Buseman put up hay Friday.

Erwin Ash spent Sunday with Johnnie Trampel.

Gregory Linden was in this vicinity one day trying to buy some corn.

Mr. and Mrs. Tom Roths were visitors at the Ernest Helps home on Thursday evening.

Mr. John Bachman and sons were callers at the Clarence Bachman home Tuesday forenoon.

Mr. Chris Anderson was a caller at the D A and Herb Marshall home Tuesday forenoon.

Mr and Mrs Fred Bachman entertained company Thursday forenoon.

Mr Clyde Marshall and son Robert were callers at the D. A. and Herb Marshall home Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs Harry Gibbs and family were callers at the home of Mrs. C. A Arnold Saturday.

Mrs Charley Fritzel spent Thursday afternoon at the Herman Shuldt home.

Mr. and Mrs George Buseman and family were visitors at the Frank Roths home Friday evening

Fred Albers, Jr, Charley White and Carl Madson left recently for North Dakota in the latter's car

Mr. Peter Trampel and son John helped Andrew Nelson shock corn last Thursday.

Miss Dorothea Marshall spent Friday at the D. A. and Herb Marshall home.

Mrs. C A Arnold was a visitor at the Harry Gibbs home one day last week.

Mr. Will Bachman was a caller at the Clarence Bachman home Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Alec Groh and sons Calvin and Lester returned last Wednesday from their visit at Chicago, Ill.

Frank Ward and family who have been working at the Elmer Arnold farm will move into the Mrs Freidow residence in Klemme

Andrew Nelson went to Webster City on business one day last week

Mrs C A Arnold was a business caller at Garner Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bachman and daughter Maxine, spent Thursday evening at the Ed. Buentenbach home.

George Stokesbary has rented the former F. Gruetzmacher residence and will move there soon. The family have been residing at the Mrs C. A. Arnold farm. Mr. Stokesbary has accepted a traveling position.

RULES FOR BABY BEEF CLUB HAS BEEN CHANGED

Changes in the rules for Iowa baby beef clubs of the coming year have just been announced by John A. Day, Ames, field representative of the Iowa Beef Producers' Association.

The age limit for boys or girls feeding calves has been altered slightly Whereas formerly the club members must be 10 years and under 19 at the opening of the State Fair, for the coming year they must be at least 10 years old and not over 18 on Jan. 1, 1928 That is, any boy or girl between 10 and 18 years, inclusive, on Jan. 1, 1928, is eligible to join the baby beef clubs.

The second change in rules is in regard to the final date for starting calves on feed. This year calves shown at the State Fair must have been started on feed not later than Dec. 1, 1927. Last year, Jan. 1 was the closing date for starting on feed.

The new rules will be strictly enforced at the State Fair next year, according to Mr. Day, who has charge of the club show in Des Moines.

Crowding too many hens into one house is one of the biggest mistakes Iowa poultrymen make, poultry specialists say.

Walter Lau drove down from Minnesota for a visit with his family Sunday and Monday, returning to his work Tuesday.

Ohio experiment station workers are urging the farmers to cut their corn stalks low this fall in order to destroy as many corn borers as possible

FINE FOOD FOLKS

There's a difference in the way vegetables, meats, etc. are cooked and you will recognize it the moment you eat them here.

We serve only the very best the market affords, all well cooked.

As with everything, we think the best is none too good for our patrons.

Drop in for lunch or any meal anytime, at—

Crystal Cafe
Conrad Quandt, Prop.

LYRIC
Theatre
—GARNER, IOWA—
Presents The Following

Friday and Saturday
September 30-Oct. 1
"FOR THE LOVE OF MIKE"
—Comedy—
"SEA DOGS TALE"
Adm. 10-25 Shows 7:30-9:00

Tuesday and Wednesday
Eh? What? Who? Why—
"MADAM BEHAVE"
A cousin to "Charley's Aunt"
—Comedy—
"THE STUNT MAN"
Adm 10-25 Shows 7:30-9:00

Farm
Loans
5%
Isaac Sweigard
Garner Iowa

PIANOS

Players & Grand
New and
Second Hand

M. N. ZEIGER
Jewelry & Optical Goods
GARNER, IOWA

Improved Uniform International

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D.D., Dean Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)
(©, 1927, by Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for October 2

ELIJAH ON MOUNT CARMEL

LESSON TEXT—I Kings 18.

GOLDEN TEXT—Choose you this day whom ye will serve.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God Hears Elijah's Prayer.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Standing Alone for God.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Standing for God Against the Crowd.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Courage of Conviction.

I. Elijah's Message to Ahab (vv. 17, 18).

When Jezebel became the wife of King Ahab, she waged a savage warfare against God's prophets, killing all she could find, and thus seeking to abolish the true religion and set up idolatry instead. Elijah suddenly appeared, announcing the suspension of moisture (I Kings 17:1) as a judgment upon the people for their idolatry. He sounded three striking notes in his message:

1. "As the Lord God of Israel liveth." He knew that he represented the living God, therefore did not fear to come into the presence of the king.

2. "Before whom I stand." His standing before God indicated his constant readiness to go on His errands.

3. "There shall not be dew nor rain these years, but according to my word." This suspension of moisture continued for three and a half years, and rain came in answer to Elijah's prayer (Jas. 5:17).

II. A Challenge to Baal Worship (I Kings 18:17-46).

As soon as Elijah had delivered his message concerning the drought, he retired from the king's sight.

1. Elijah shows himself to Ahab (vv. 17, 18).

(1) Ahab's question (v. 17). His aim in this question was no doubt to intimidate Elijah.

(2) Elijah's answer (v. 18). He denied the charge and boldly declared that the calamity which had befallen the nation was caused by the idolatry of Ahab and his family.

2. The bold challenge (vv. 19-24).

(1) The people assemble (vv. 19, 20). At the urgent request of Elijah the king convened the people.

(2) The ringing call to decision (vv. 21-24). a. The question asked (v. 21). Many of the people had not wholly forsaken God. They attempted to worship both God and Baal. b. The silence of the people (v. 21). This may have been because of fear of the king or ignorance, for many were of the opinion that to be religious was the only thing necessary, irrespective of the being worshiped. c. The method of decision (vv. 22-24). Two sacrifices were to be provided, one to be offered to Baal, the other to God.

3. The test applied (vv. 25-39).

(1) Offering by the prophets of Baal (vv. 25-29). Elijah gave the prophets of Baal the first opportunity to prove whether Baal was a real God.

(2) The Offering by Elijah (vv. 30-39). a. The people invited near (v. 30). His object in inviting the people was to see clearly in order that they might grasp the genuineness of the test. b. The altar repaired (vv. 30-32). Elijah took twelve stones, representing the united nation. c. The offering on the altar (vv. 33-35). After the bullock was in place he had four barrels of water three times emptied upon the sacrifice and the wood so as to fill the trench about the altar. So sure was Elijah that God's power was sufficient that he heaped difficulty upon difficulty. d. Elijah's prayer (vv. 36, 37). This was a model prayer. (a) It was based upon covenants (v. 36). All real prayer rests upon covenant relationships. (b) Its object was God's exaltation (v. 36). Elijah was jealous for God's glory, but the only thing that he asked for himself was to be known as God's servant. (c) It was for the salvation of the people (v. 37). e. The result (vv. 38, 39). (a) The fire of the Lord fell and consumed, not only the sacrifice, but the wood, stones and dust, even licking up the water in the trenches. (b) The people fell on their faces and confessed that the Lord was the God.

4. The execution of Baal's prophets (v. 40). Israel's government was a theocracy. God was their king. Idolatry was treason against the King. These false prophets were traitors to God and therefore should die.

5. Elijah vindicated (vv. 41-46). The proof that Elijah was God's prophet was incomplete until rain came.

III. Elijah Taken Up Into Heaven (II Kings 2:1-15).

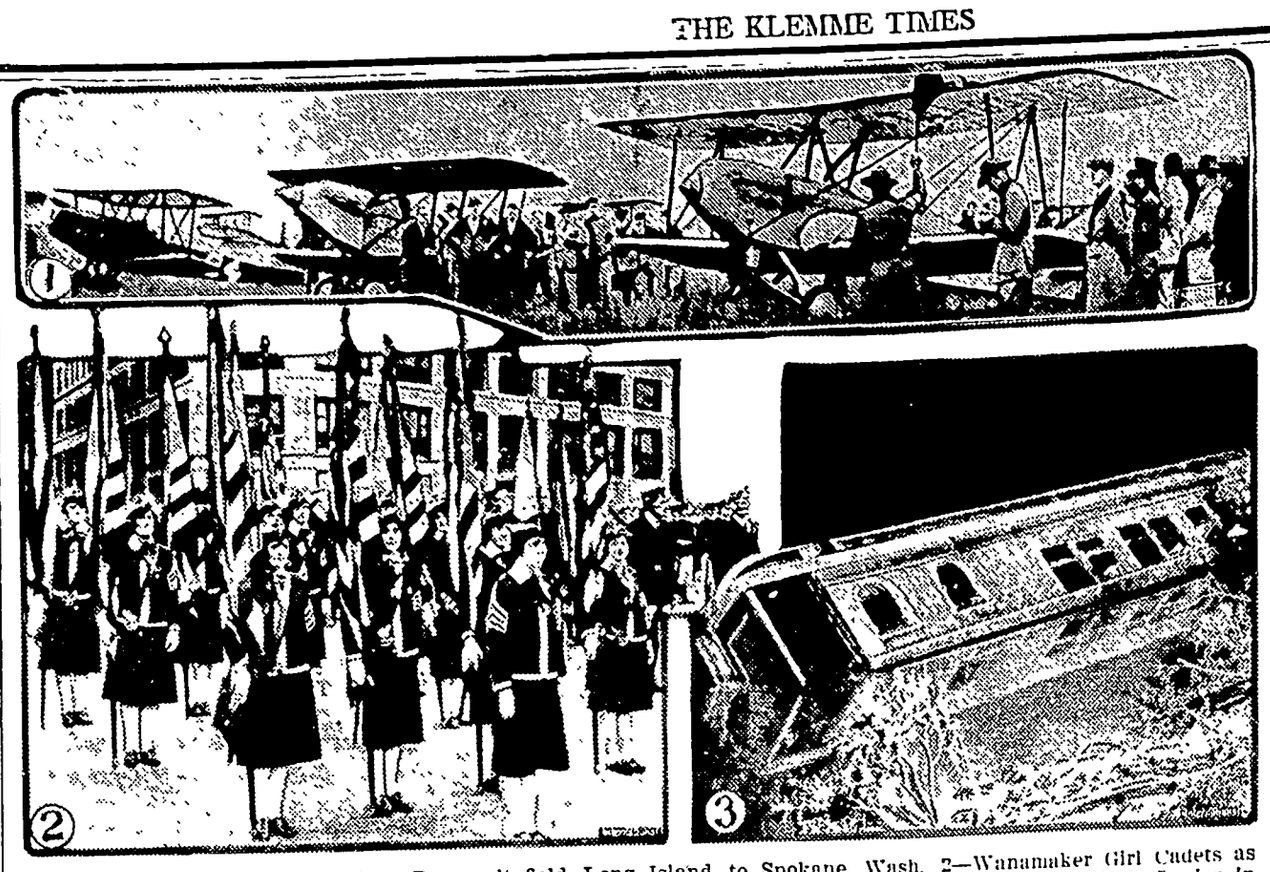
Not only was the prophet vindicated in that the offering was consumed and rain came, but God took him to Himself when his work was done.

Faith of Our Fathers

"The church should be kept the source of spiritual life and power. Never before did the world so need emphasis upon the 'faith of our fathers living still,'"—Rev. B. Allen Reed.

Saved From Doubt

At last Thomas was saved from doubt. What saved him? Love for Christ. He had anchored his soul to the Nazarene with a mighty and abiding love.—Vance.



1—Start of the air Derby from Roosevelt field, Long Island, to Spokane, Wash. 2—Wanamaker Girl Cadets as color bearers for the Thomas B. Wanamaker Post 413 of New York in the great parade of the American Legion in Paris. 3—Pullman car of Rock Island train that rolled into Missouri river at Centaur, Mo., 24 Colorado excursionists being injured.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Champion Tunney Defeats Dempsey in Lively Ten-Round Battle.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

EVERYTHING else in the world moved back and gave the center of the stage, last week, to the "fight of the century," the battle in Chicago for the heavyweight championship between Gene Tunney, title holder, and Jack Dempsey, former champion. As nearly everyone in the country knew within a few moments after the finish, Tunney retained the title by outpointing Dempsey in most of the ten rounds, despite the fact that he was knocked to a sitting position in the seventh, taking the count of nine. In the words of one expert observer, it was simply a case of a boxer who was much faster winning a ten-round decision over a fighter who always commands respect because of his punching power.

Aside from being a good battle, the fight was the most remarkable in the history of the ring in the matters of attendance and receipts. In round figures, there were 145,000 men and women gathered in the Chicago stadium to witness it, and they paid $2,800,000. Tunney's purse was $900,000 and Dempsey received $450,000. The net profit for Tex Rickard's Madison Square Garden corporation was about $718,000.

The contest attracted an extraordinary number of notable persons of both sexes, among them many senators, governors and lesser officials, members of the British nobility, and at least one person of royal blood—the Princess Xenia of Greece, wife of William B. Leeds, Jr. Mr. Leeds and his party of five traveled from New York to Chicago by airplane, as did a good many others. Special trains from every direction carried at least ten thousand to the battle.

Unbiased spectators of the fight, including at least one of the two judges, said the referee, David Barry, was fair throughout, though he might have penalized Dempsey for the use of the rabbit punch on the back of Tunney's head. The Dempsey camp complained that the count was five seconds slow, when Tunney was floored in the seventh round, but this was admittedly due to Jack's slowness in getting to a neutral corner after the knockdown. The extra seconds were of great value to Tunney. Whether he could have recovered without them is a matter of opinion.

ONLY two hour of deliberation were needed by the jury to find John L. Duvall, mayor of Indianapolis, guilty of political corruption. His punishment was fixed at thirty days' imprisonment in the county jail and a fine of $1,000. In addition the jury declared him ineligible to hold any public office or employment for a period of four years from November 2, 1925, the date of the offense. Duvall's attorneys announced they would appeal for a new trial and then take the case to the Supreme court. The verdict does not become effective until the appeals have been decided, and meanwhile Duvall may legally continue in office. The specific charge against Duvall was that he accepted a bribe of $14,500 and political support from William H. Armitage, long the boss of Indianapolis politics, and that in return Duvall pledged that Armitage might name the members and govern the policies of the city board of public works, from which are given many thousands of dollars of public improvement work.

NOTHING quite like the invasion of France by the American Legion—the "second A. E. F."—ever took place before. Despite predictions of disorders and other unpleasantnesses, the second visit of the doughboys to the land where they fought was an unqualified success, their reception by the people of Paris was warm and enthusiastic, and the holding of the convention in the French capital really seemed to strengthen the bonds of amity between France and the United States. Furthermore, the Legionnaires in general managed to enjoy themselves without in any way disgracing themselves, which was to be expected since they are not irresponsible boys.

The spectacular feature of the week was the parade of the Legion immediately after the opening session of the convention. For the second time in history the chains of the Arc de Triomphe were let down, and more than 20,000 members of the Legion passed under that beautiful monument, each pausing to lay a tiny bouquet of pink roses upon the tomb of the Unknown Soldier. That shrine of France was covered with a floral mound twenty feet square and six feet deep before the last man had dropped his tribute. In the ranks of the marchers were the American women's war organizations and many women members of the families of the Legionnaires. Gathered thick along the line of the parade were about all the people of Paris, and in the front ranks of the crowds were the disabled veterans of the French army, overcome with emotion as their old fellow fighters passed by dipping their flags low before the crippled and blinded heroes. General Pershing, Commander Savage, Marshal Foch and other notables led the parade in motor cars, and when it reached the Place de la Concorde they dropped out and occupied places in the reviewing stand.

That evening the largest dinner ever given in Paris was served at the Invalides. Four thousand Legionnaires, including all the official delegates, were the guests, and the food, prepared by 500 chefs, was the best the city could provide. Next day the Legion gave a big banquet in honor of President Doumergue at which General Pershing and Marshal Foch were the chief speakers and Franco-American solidarity was the main subject of the toasts. Wednesday many of the visitors, led by General Pershing, went to Douaumont and the desolated slopes around Verdun and there "Black Jack" paid a tribute to Marshal Petain and French soldiers who under him held that position throughout the war and gave their lives by the hundred thousand. The marshal, white haired and with haunted eyes, was a pathetic figure in the ceremonies at the Douaumont ossuary, where all the bones gathered in the Verdun sector are placed.

In the Legion convention sessions the liveliest debate was over Gen William Mitchell's attempt to win endorsement for his pet plan to have installed immediately a separate air department in the cabinet. A majority of the delegates favored a motion asking for the "organization of national aeronautics into a separate department of national defense, headed by a cabinet secretary," but they added "as soon as warranted."

Edward E. Spafford of New York was unanimously elected national commander of the Legion. Mr. Spafford, a Vermonter by birth, was graduated from the Navy academy in 1901 and served in the navy until 1914, when he resigned to enter business. In 1917, with our entrance into the war, he returned to active duty in the navy. He is forty-seven years of age.

TWENTY-FIVE planes started from New York for Spokane in the national air derby, which was divided into three classes. In classes A and B, for which stops were provided, the respective winners were C. W. Holman of St. Paul and C. W. Meyers of Detroit. In class C, for a nonstop flight, there were but two starters—Eddie Stinson and Duke Schiller. Both were forced to land in Montana.

The first plane off in class A, with R. E. Hudson as pilot and Jay Radike as mechanic, both of Michigan, crashed at Long Valley, N. J., and both men were killed.

DANIEL R. CRISSINGER, governor of the federal reserve board, having resigned from that body, the President appointed Roy A. Young, for eight years governor of the Federal Reserve bank of Minneapolis, to succeed him. It is understood that after the appointment is confirmed by the senate, Mr. Young will be chosen governor. Meanwhile the duties of that office are being performed by Edmund Platt, vice governor. The selection of Mr. Young is regarded as a victory for the element which opposed the arbitrary action of the board in reducing the rediscount rate of the Chicago Federal Reserve bank from 4 to 3½ per cent.

It is understood that President Coolidge and Secretary Mellon in choosing Mr. Young as a member of the board hope that the threatened attack upon the federal reserve board in congress during the coming winter will be averted.

WILLIAM G. McADOO removed himself from the possibilities for the Democratic Presidential nomination, and now the dry element in the party is casting about for a leader to succeed him. Edwin T. Meredith of Iowa, former secretary of agriculture, himself thought to have a fair chance for the nomination, has said the "dry progressive" Democrats must make haste in this or the nomination would go to Gov. Al Smith by default. He said he believed the principal issues in 1928 should be farm relief and prohibition, with a plank calling for strict enforcement of the Volstead act and an attack on the Coolidge administration for failure to enforce it. Deprecating talk of his own possible candidacy, Mr Meredith named Newton D Baker of Ohio, former secretary of war; Senator Thomas J Walsh of Montana Senator Joe T. Robinson of Arkansas, Representative Cordell Hull of Tennessee and Daniel C. Roper of Texas as among those whom his wing of the party would support. He declared his group would not support Governor Smith, Senator James A. Reed of Missouri or Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland for the nomination.

OUR new ambassador to Mexico is to be Dwight Morrow of New Jersey, a member for twelve years of the banking firm of J P. Morgan & Co. He was a classmate of the President in Amherst and Mr. Coolidge offered him the diplomatic post last summer. He recently accepted and told the President he would at once resign from the Morgan firm.

While administration officials stated that the appointment of Mr. Morrow will not mark any change of policy toward that country in the present oil and land disputes, it is believed that the banker's acceptance means that the chances of clearing up the difficulties between the two countries are brighter than before. It is felt that Mr Morrow would not have consented to represent this government at Mexico City unless he believed that conditions were such that he had a reasonable chance of settling the present troubles, precipitated by American property confiscations in Mexico.

REPLYING to the French government's note in the tariff controversy, the American government has made an emphatic protest against discriminations against American commerce, such as the recent increases in French tariff duties. While the note did not threaten retaliatory action, it did point out the existence of section 317 of the tariff act, under which it would be possible for the President to assess additional duties or impose embargoes on goods coming from nations which discriminate against the commerce of the United States.

FRENCH resentment against the action of Christian Rakovsky, Russian ambassador, in signing a Communist manifesto calling on workers of other coutries to rise against their governments, has culminated in an official statement to Moscow that further negotiations with the Russians regarding a pact of nonaggression cannot be conducted until Rakovsky has been recalled.

IT WAS announced in Louisville that members of the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative association in Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana, West Virginia, Tennessee, Missouri, Virginia, and North Carolina, will, within the next few weeks receive a total of between $16,000,000 and $18,000,000, the sum representing payments on the 1923, 1924 and 1925 crops, according to information given out.

PRESIDENT COSGRAVE and his government won the Irish Free State election but by only a margin of six votes in the Dail Eireann. It is expected there will be no change in the government for a year, despite this slender majority. A new loan is to be floated in December.

What's the Answer?

Questions No. 17

1—Who was the Venerable Bede?

2—What city is regarded as the greatest commercial center of Asia?

3—What is the most notable characteristic of the movie comedian, Buster Keaton?

4—Who was the leading pitcher in the American league in 1926?

5—What famous British spy was hanged by the Continental forces during the Revolution?

6—Who was the American commander of the U. S. S. Constitution in the battle with the British ship Guerriere?

7—Who invented the airbrake?

8—How many chambers are there in the human heart?

9—Is it correct to call the Olympic games an Olympiad?

10—What is God?

11—Why did Oliver Wendell Holmes write the poem "Old Ironsides"?

12—What South American country was the ancient kingdom of Quito?

13—What island is noted for its many colossal images and architectural ruins?

14—What great pianist of the day is also a statesman and has served as premier of his country?

15—What great caricaturist, working in colors, is remembered largely for his illustrations for the novels and sketches of Charles Dickens?

16—What horse won the Kentucky Derby in 1914 and what was his time?

17—What famous American warship was called "Old Ironsides"?

18—What President had been known as "Old Rough and Ready" in what war?

19—Who invented antiseptic surgery?

20—What does the sense of smell do to help many animals?

Answers No. 16

1—Mount Logan, in the Yukon.

2—Willie Munden with 171 firsts.

3—Gen. George Meade.

4—Daniel Boone.

5—In Arkansas.

6—Joseph Mallord William Turner.

7—Algernon Blackwood.

8—This land crab is often over a foot long and frequents coral islands in the Indian and Pacific oceans.

9—That it is not significantly related to the matter in hand.

10—For Thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory, forever.

11—"Pilgrim's Progress" by John Bunyan.

12—Mount Whitney, in California.

13—Scapa Flow.

14—Gen. John C. Fremont.

15—Battle of Trenton.

16—In the feet.

17—Leopold Auer.

18—On the islands in the Caribbean sea.

19—Instead of "whom" it should be "who," nominative case as subject of the verb "was."

20—In the year 1866.

Famous Painter Put Heart Into His Work

In many respects the career of Titian, the Venetian artist, is without parallel in the history of art. The span of his productive life is unprecedented. He lived to be ninety-nine years old and painted steadily for nearly seventy-five years. This noted painter apparently believed that no amount of inspiration or intuitive genius is a substitute for painstaking labor. A contemporary wrote of him:

"He laid in his pictures with a mass of colors which served him as a ground-work for what he wanted to express. I myself have seen such powerful strokes swept in by him with solid pigment, sometimes with pure 'terra rossa' (red ocher)—and this served him for the half-tones—sometimes with a brush full of white lead; and with the same brush dipped in red, black or yellow he picked out the lights. In four strokes he had sketched in a remarkably beautiful figure. Then he laid the picture against the wall, and left it there, often for several months, without looking at it again, and when he wanted to work at it he examined it very critically as if it were his mortal enemy, in order to discover any possible faults. Then he took away a prominence here, set an arm straight there, and got a foot into the right position. So by degrees he brought his figures to the most perfect symmetry, and then he proceeded to do the same with the next picture."—Kansas City Star.

Novel Use for Hose

Sir James Crichton-Browne relates this anecdote of a colleague's absentmindedness: He was standing by the bedside of a lady patient giving her copious and emphatic instructions as to what she ought to do, when to her dismay she saw him take her black silk stockings, which were lying on a chair beside the bed, and draw them on his hands and arms as gloves. He did not discover his mistake but walked off with the stockings.—Exchange.

A New Slip

Did you know that a fifteen-cent envelope of Diamond Dyes will duplicate any delicate tint that may be the vogue in dainty underwear? Keep your oldest lingerie, stockings, too, in the shade of the hour. It's easy if you only use a true dye. Don't streak your nice things with synthetic tints.

Dye or tint anything; dresses, or drapes. You can work wonders with a few, inexpensive Diamond Dyes (true dyes). New colors right over the old. Any kind of material.

FREE: Call at your druggist's and get a free Diamond Dye Cyclopedia. Valuable suggestions, simple directions. Piece goods color samples. Or, big illustrated book Color Craft free from DIAMOND DYES, Dept. N9, Burlington, Vermont.

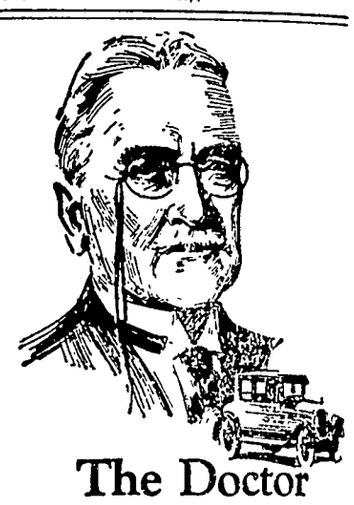
Diamond Dyes

Just Dip to TINT, or Boil to DYE

A Lesser Evil

Ted—Now, you old bum, you're married. How do you like it?

Sam—Well, it has its faults, but it's better than working



The Doctor

In fair weather or foul, zero nights or rainy days, I have always found that my car starts instantly and performs perfectly with Champion Spark Plugs—they're dependable.

Champion is the better spark plug because of its double-ribbed sillimanite core—its two-piece construction and its special analysis electrodes.

Champion X—for Fords 60¢

Champion—Cars other than Fords 75¢

CHAMPION Spark Plugs

TOLEDO, OHIO

For your protection be sure the Champions you buy are in the original Champion cartons.

Enemies Now

"What's the difference between vision and sight?"

"That's easy; my girl is a vision, yours is a sight."—Tit-Bits.

CHILDREN CRY FOR "CASTORIA"

Especially Prepared for Infants and Children of All Ages

Mother! Fletcher's Castoria has been in use for over 30 years to relieve babies and children of Constipation, Flatulency, Wind Colic and Diarrhea; allaying Feverishness arising therefrom, and, by regulating the Stomach and Bowels, aids the assimilation of Food; giving natural sleep without opiates.

The genuine bears signature of

Chas. H. Fletcher.

It's So Easy for You to Enjoy Good Health

Don't delay a minute.

Ask your druggists for a small package of those little, sugar coated vegetable pills. They all sell them in 25c. red paper packages, ask for CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

They are small, easy to swallow and move the bowels in a gentle manner, no pain.

Constipation cannot exist when you take CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS. Sick headache, Indigestion, Biliousness, poor complexion, all are relieved quickly. Try them to-night you will enjoy your night's rest, and tomorrow awake refreshed.

Druggists, 25c. and 75c. red pkgs.

Men Marooned

By GEORGE MARSH

WNU Service. Copyright by The Penn Publishing Co.

STORY FROM THE START

Garth Guthrie, Canadian war veteran, having to live in the open on account of weakened lungs, is factor of a Hudson's Bay post at Elkwan. He came back from the conflict with a permanently scarred face, which he realizes cost him the love of his fiancee, Edith Falconer. Sir Charles Guthrie, his brother, is a billionaire war profiteer. With Etienne Savanne, halfbreed, his firm friend, Garth meets Doctor Quarrier, geologist, and his sister Joan. Quarrier complains he has been robbed by a man known as "Laughing McDonald." At Elkwan an Indian girl, Ninda, tuberculosis victim, whom Garth has befriended, is dying. Joan, trained war nurse, cares for Ninda, but the girl dies. Three of McDonald's party visit Elkwan seeking to buy gun shells. From them Garth learns of evil talk among the Indians concerning him and Ninda. With Etienne's help Garth wins the friendship of Saul Souci, "medicine man" of the Crees, and gets his promise to persuade the Crees to take their furs to Elkwan instead of to McDonald. Garth is ambushed by Joe Mokoman, Ninda's reputed father. "Shot," Garth's airedale companion, saves him, and the Indian is taken, a prisoner, to Elkwan. Garth sends Mokoman to McDonald with a message of defiance, and the war is on.

CHAPTER VII—Continued

—10—

South of the Big Point shoals, the post at Attawapiskat, carrying the mirage of a vast hinterland, reached through two mouths, a wide delta, and, eight miles to the south, a single channel, the Lowaski. Snug in the tight little post above the delta and the upper mouth of the river, Graham, the factor, independent of the fur skins of Akimiski, waited for the fresh trade from the interior to come to him. But some of the hunters trading at the post always wintered on the island and before he crossed in search of Saul, Guthrie wished to get the latest news from Albany and arrange for the dispatch of a dog-team, informing his chief of his crossing to the island. How far the crew of the schooner were prepared to go in the struggle for the trade, he had no means of knowing, but of their energy and daring there was no doubt. If Souci were successful and the free-traders attempted to interfere with the hunters crossing to Elkwan, there might be an ugly row. So the fast dog-team doubled back down the coast island and before noon drew in to the high shore at Attawapiskat.

Graham looked up in surprise to see the tall figure of his neighbor to the north walk into the trade-room. Graham was old and waiting only for his service pension. His days with the dogs on the shore ice or inland over the white barriers were over. If McDonald were wintering on the island there would be little Akimiski fox traded at a Hudson's Bay post that year. Of that he was sure. He couldn't see how crossing to the island after the strait closed would help the matter. The schooner would get the Christmas trade and pick up the fur through the winter as it was trapped now. It was hard on Elkwan, but he had the upriver trade. McDonald couldn't touch that. Thus Graham, who lacked but two years of retirement, and craved the comfort of his snug quarters.

"Well, what brings you here in thirty-below weather?" he replied to Guthrie's salutation. "I've been hugging a fire for a week, trying to thaw out."

Guthrie laughed. "I'm on my way to the island, Graham. I want you to relay this letter to Cameron—"

"The island!" Graham gasped in surprise. "How—you mean the strait's closed—set over the shoals?"

"Yes!" And Guthrie hastily outlined the situation on Akimiski and his plans.

"You think Souci will control the Elkwan hunters? Why should they cross the ice to you when McDonald will pay more for their pelts?"

Guthrie's face reflected his irritation. "Graham, I'm employed to get results—not smoke by the stove and wait for it to come in. As Cameron expects his letter and Christmas is only ten days away, I'll thank you to start a team with it at once."

The victim of Guthrie's sarcasm reddened under the ruthless characterization of his sedentary tendencies, but his pension was near, and the risk of a dash over the young ice was Guthrie's, not his, so he magnanimously overlooked the thrust.

"I'll send a team, yes, if that's Cameron's orders. I'll say you're a fool, though, to cross. A good wind will break up that new ice and cut you off. It's never in my memory closed before January. Still, it's your job. It's mine. Go ahead and get yourself drowned, if you want to."

"Some of your people winter there?"

"Oh, yes! Six or eight families. But I can't help that."

"No, you can't," agreed Guthrie, watching Etienne's furtive look. "Well, we'll have just about light enough to cross in, so I'll start."

As the dogs hurried over the wind-brushed shell of the strait, broken by drifts and hummocks, split by tide cracks, irregular with crushed ice masses lifted into pressure ridges, the eyes of the men on the light sled were focused far out on what, the week before, had been impassable black water. Eight miles out, half way across, its drift ice, thrall to tide and wind, had threatened with swift ruin the eggshell of a canoe, which challenged its barrier. But now, over the shoals, the channel had been sealed. As the dog-team reached the newly frozen gap, Etienne and Guthrie went ahead to test the ice with axes. In defiance of the tide, the fierce frost had set three-inch ice. Anxiously the men swept the width of the channel with glasses. There were no breaks. So, led by the scampering airedale and Guthrie, with Etienne driving the huskies from the tail of the sled, they took the crossing on the run.

A half-mile out when fear of thin ice had left him and he swung along with Shot in front, Garth suddenly felt the ice vibrate beneath his moccasins. The sled with the dogs would go through, unless they came with a rush. Turning as he ran, he waved to Etienne—their agreed-upon signal for speed.

Graham Looked Up in Surprise.

"Marche! mes enfants!" The long caribou thong cracked on the lead dog's ears. With a surprised yelp Castor, spreading his feet, came with the team at a wild gallop. On they rushed, straining, slipping huskies, nails scratching the ice for footing, and swinging toboggan, urged on by Etienne, for a break through meant swift drowning for the dogs from the drag of the sled, and freezing in the stinging wind for the driver, if he reached firm ice.

A hundred yards of mad scramble and the second dog slipped, slid sideways, jerking the leader off his feet. The sled swung in a wide skid. Passing his thrashing huskies on the run, Etienne called them to follow. Before the sled stopped its swing, the dogs were up and hard on their master's heels. A hundred yards and they reached the heavier ice—minutes of suspense, and the lead was crossed.

The two friends gripped hands beside the panting dogs.

"Did you feel it?" cried Guthrie. "Thought I was going through! Felt like running on stretched canvas!"

"I saw it geeve undair you, and crack de wheep before you turn. We go t'ro' een dat channel, and pouf! we nevaire care eef McDonald Ha! Ha! get de fur or not, eh?"

* * * * * * *

Somewhere north of Big point in a valley sheltered by the tundra from the winds off the ice fields, the sons of old Souci had a base camp. But the Indian had given Garth no rendezvous in case he managed to cross the strait before Christmas, for Souci carried a roving commission, and his work lay where he found the Elkwan hunters. To Garth the island was unknown country, but Etienne had trapped there and they started up the shore ice, bound for the mouth of the Ptarmigan, a river which headed deep in the interior, confident of learning Souci's whereabouts from the first Indian they met. For news of the coming of the old chief to the island would be passed swiftly from hunter to hunter, valley to valley. And now the closing of the strait had greatly enhanced the value and importance of Souci's embassy to the Crees. Those loyal to the old company could cross for the New Year's feast at the post, bringing their pelts; those wavering in the direction of the trade goods of McDonald could not now meet Saul's appeals with the objection that a barrier of open water, running with floe, would crush their canoes. But the longer he dwelt on the attractions of the schooner at the cove, the less confident he grew of saving much of the fox trade. Few of the fickle Crees would resist the blandishments of the free-trader's agents. Then with a start he realized that he was ignoring the scheme the old chief had outlined to Etienne, and wondered if the magic was working—if the mad medicine of the sorcerer had conjured a tabu against the schooner. In the valley of the Ptarmigan they would find a camp and learn.

As the huskies trotted smartly up the coast of the island while Shot, free lance, ranged widely along shore in search of adventure, Guthrie's thoughts temporarily deserted his mission on Akimiski to dwell—now that he had seemingly burned his bridges—on his status at home. For it would not be foreign to his brother's egotism and reverence for the conventions to read Garth out of the family, since he had written refusing to return. The gossip, following his failure to join the staff of the Guthrie Steel company and lead Ethel Falconer in all her blond loveliness to the altar, would be gall to the palate of the recently knighted head of the Guthries. The neglect of his express command to the exile to shake the mud of James bay from his sealskin boots and assume the responsibilities of a family man and a man of family would, in all likelihood, mean that on his return to Montreal there would be no position in the works—no brother's house open—to the rebel. His personal means, inherited from his father, were modest. Charles' fortune was the result of his own efforts—and a fortuitous war. That was why Charles demanded wholesome respect and absolute obedience from his younger brother. At the thought the younger brother smiled in his fur hood, ringed with rime from his frozen breath. From the man who had led his platoon at the Somme and his battalion in front of Amiens, the dignity and swiftly made fortune of Charles commanded no deference and little respect. On his return—his return? He had committed himself to making good at Elkwan for his employers—for his own self-respect. What he had started he would see through. There might be no return—unless a certain letter in the Christmas mail should—. Then his thought, until the dogs swung off the sea-ice and into the broken going at the mouth of the Ptarmigan, were of three swift days at Elkwan and two on the coast—of eyes, abstracted, perplexed, at times wistful, and a dark head silvered with moonlight, on the high shore above the Albany.

As the dog-team left the coast and followed the rough river trail into the hills, its toil began, and Etienne's wisdom in bringing a toboggan instead of a sea sled equipped with runners was vindicated. For once under the lee of hills, they found snow deep on the shell of the river and in places, where wind eddies had dipped into the valley, new drift, through which they broke trail on snowshoes for the sled, while the dogs, who had galloped over the brushed sea-ice, wallowed to their traces. From the river fringe of willows and alders the black spruce scrub reached back up the slopes to fade and disappear under the shoulders of the barrens. There low junipers and hardy Labrador tea alone survived the hammering of the winds on the undulating miles of blueberry heath and caribou moss, swept, over exposed areas, of all snow.

Suddenly, as they rounded a bend which had shut off all view upstream, Etienne, who was ahead breaking trail, shouted and stopped, pointing in the direction of some thick scrub in the distance.

"Camp up dere!"

Rising in the still air of the valley, a wisp of bluish smoke hung against the background of black spruce.

"Good! Now we'll get some news of Souci."

Spurred by the quickened pace of the trail breaker and the call of Garth, the five huskies threw their shoulders into the collars. Then, farther on, a stretch of wind-packed snow gave them footing and the yelping team, led by Shot, raced to the tips of the hunters' camp.

"Kequay!" called Etienne, approaching the tipis half buried in the snow for protection from the wind and circled by the usual debris and paraphernalia of a winter camp. Turning to Garth he said: "De men are on de trap-line wid de dogs."

Again he called, and, after a space, a shawled head was thrust through the door flap of a tent.

"Where's your man?" asked Savanne in Cree.

"On the lines. Who are you?"

"We are from Elkwan." And, as the woman emerged from the tipi followed by another and two children, Etienne saw that he was talking with Indians from the lower rivers—strangers.

"Have you seen Saul Souci, the Elkwan Treaty Chief? Where is the camp of his sons—what river?"

The swart faces of the Cree women defied the sharp scrutiny of the half-breed. Surprise, doubt, appeared to curb a desire to laugh at the question of the stranger. They met each other's black eyes in a quizzical look; then the elder of the two said: "Souci, the shaman, we have not seen. His sons are said to camp north of here on the Rabbit river."

The acute brain of Etienne strove to solve the riddle of the squaw's secret amusement. At last he decided that Joe Mokoman had won over their men to the free-trader, but why Souci had not appeared on the Ptarmigan was a mystery.

"Do you know the strait has closed? You can cross to Elkwan for the New Year's feast," he hazarded.

The women smiled. "We go to the trader at Seal cove with our fox pelts," said the old squaw. "There we get honest prices for fur—from the trader who always laughs."

It was evident that here Joe Mokoman had done his work well. Then Etienne cautiously began his countermining. His dark face set in a look of surprise and horror. "Did you not hear?" he cried.

"No!"

"Why this trader brought that face from the land of demons across the Big Water? He angered them. He is a sorcerer and bewitches those who bring him their pelts." Etienne hastily interpreted the conversation to Guthrie as he watched the effect of his bombshell on the startled faces of the squaws.

"He makes bad medicine?" gasped the women.

Savanne gravely nodded his hooded head, then added: "He has bewitched Joe Mokoman to betray the Cree hunters and bring them to his boat. Those who go will never love their wives and families again," he remarked with finality.

At the last the faces of the squaws visibly grayed. They chattered together excitedly. Etienne's explanation of the cause of the mutilation of McDonald had struck deep into the marrow of their superstitions. He hastily drove his advantage home.

"Saul Souci will tell you that the trader McDonald Ha! Ha! is a friend of demons."

"Saul Souci?" cried a squaw in protest. "He is a shaman and friend of the trader who laughs."

It was the turn of Savanne to have his mental balance jarred. Souci the friend of McDonald? What could they mean? But he was equal to the emergency.

"Souci, the friend of McDonald Ha! Ha! Mokoman tells that tale to the hunters because he fears Souci the shaman."

Disturbed though she was, the Cree woman laughed in Etienne's face. "Mokoman was here this morning—there are his sled tracks. One sleep ago he says Souci was at the schooner of the trader and they shook hands. Souci is the friend of McDonald Ha! Ha!"

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Hidden Treasure Mute Reminder of Tragedy

When installing a bathroom in an old house in Vienna not long ago, an attic was disclosed above a closet which was supposed to reach clear to the roof. In it were the remnants of an old baker's oven and a wooden dough trough covered with grain sacks bearing the date 1663. Beneath the trough were household effects that evidently had belonged to a well-to-do middle-class family, such as linen garments, dishes, cups, jewelry, 330 gold coins and 1,143 silver coins. Among the former were several ducats. The most recent of the coins were dated 1671, but most of them were far older. It seems practically certain that they represented the savings of a merchant who had hidden them there at the time of the Turkish invasion of 1683.

The most important find dating from the Thirteenth century was made in 1876, on the site of the oldest Jewish cemetery, at Krems on the Danube. These coins, which were discovered when extending a neighboring vineyard, consisted of thirty gold guilders, each weighing three and one-half grammes, from Florence, Hungary, Bohemia, Austria, Silesia and Lubeck. They were discovered at the side of a skeleton, and several other coins were unearthed later near the same spot. It has been conjectured that they were buried during the persecution of the Jews in 1349.—Neues Wiener Tagblatt.

Easy for This Student

A school inspector in Hampshire, England, having set the children some sums to do, and having gathered the answers for correction, demanded silence, during which the class might write a description of a cricket match. Looking up a moment later he saw a boy with folded arms, regarding his paper with satisfaction. "Well, my boy," he said, "surely you can find something to say about cricket." "Oh! I've finished, sir!" was the answer, and the essay was handed up. This is what the inspector read: "Match postponed on account of the wet."

Marks of Malnutrition

An official bulletin of the United States children's bureau in describing symptoms of malnutrition in a child says, "Because of lack of muscular tone his shoulders are usually rounded, the shoulder blades sometimes standing out to such an extent as to produce the deformity known as 'wings.'"

CASCADE DRAPES NOW IN STYLE; FEATHER TRIMS MODE IN PARIS

To cascade or not to cascade, that is the question which hosts of autumn frocks are definitely answering in the affirmative, even unto the point of extreme style distinction.

The model in the picture admirably demonstrates the popular new cascade treatment. From the illustration one is apt to get the impression of a black and white combination. In reality the color scheme for this stunning afternoon frock is black with corn color, for black and yellow have found a very fashionable alliance for the coming fall costumes.

So pronounced is the vogue for cascade treatment, even the separate skirt is falling into the habit of taking unto itself a side or a front cascade or two, the reason for this being that cascades are often the "means to an end" of attaining the much-exploited irregular hemline. Then, too, cascades so intriguingly suggest desired fullness, without destroying the much-to-be-desired slender silhouette.

As to the material of which this dress is made, it is crepe satin. Such an enthusiasm as is now on for crepe satin! The gown of crepe satin used on the lustrous side and distinguished by its absence of any trimming save a beguiling manipulation of the fabric itself, is the "talk of the town" in Paris.

Not only black satin, but satin in glorious autumn tones is made up in the simple perfection of its own draping, shirring, cascading and the like. A navy-blue crepe satin thus fashioned is of incomparable mode for daytime wear. Other new colorings stress various wine shades, honey beige, cinnamon brown and various tones of green.

If you are casting about for the smartest and most utilitarian dress with which to initiate the autumn season, choose satin by all means. Making it up sans trimming is such a practical as well as a fashionable thing to do. Especially does this simple classic styling receive encouragement, now that such adorable lace accessories are being worn on the new frocks. Then, too, gold costume jewelry is the outstanding new note of the season, and with the classically simple satin frock, what more effective than a gold choker collar matched with the inevitable bracelet?

Shows Chic Styling.

style edict. Not only ears, but every vestige of hair is concealed underneath many of the new cling-tight types. In the case of the feather toque as worn by la Parisienne, a little hackle pad at each side of the hat "does the little trick," fitting almost like earmuffs.

Speaking of hackle pads, they "carry the day" in point of importance. Sometimes an entire turban is made of them. Again they are stacked about the crown of the hat with a brim, or perhaps they tumble down, a whole cluster of them, over the side, forming a becoming side-drop trim.

By the way, side-trims of either feathers or immense choux of velvet are "in" again. Note in this picture the draped satin toque to the left at the top, also the modish soleil velours beret shown at the bottom of the group; they each flaunt an ostrich brush, which presents a popular silhouette for this fall. The black velvet toque illustrated to the right adopts a smart shaving-brush side trim.

The russet-colored little cloche of velvet centered in this collection emphasizes the use of clusters of blot feathers, which French modists regard so favorably this season.

There is every evidence of a spirited competition in the realm of tiny hats, between the skullcap and the cloche. Both types are showing novel treatment in that they are tucked, creased and cut into all sorts of eccentricities which are charming. The cloche is often banded with pastel feathers, while all sorts of sprightly feather novelties adorn the newest skullcap versions.

The latest novelty used by Parisian milliners is the twin bird head trimming. These brilliant little bird heads are used in pairs very effectively.

Some Hats From Paris.

Jewelry is the outstanding new note of the season, and with the classically simple satin frock, what more effective than a gold choker collar matched with the inevitable bracelet?

"A feather in your cap," is the latest millinery message. Almost every Paris collection bears testimony to this featherward movement. Most of the new feather trims feature the unusual, which of course adds zest to the mode. For instance there is the little feather ornament on the hat shown first in this group. Merely "a touch," but it imparts convincing smartness to the hat it trims. These little feather "swirls" are an outstanding novelty for this season.

Pasted feather motifs, such as adorn so many of the new felt and velvet hats, achieve the unique in form of applique flowers, flat birds, bow-knots and bands, with hosts of other novel effects. Novelty quills are also included in the list of popular feather trims.

Just now it is the little feather toque which all fashionable Paris acclaims. With the wearing of these feather caps, ears disappear, which they should, according to the latest

JULIA BOTTOMLEY.

(©, 1937, Western Newspaper Union.)

Canned Goods
SALE

We are closing out our entire line of high grade Canned and in order to move the stock quickly we have decided to sell every item on our shelves at an exceedingly low pric:-

20% Discount

o HERE ARE SOME OF OUR PRICES .....o
o JACK SPRAT BEANS larg cans, dozen ..... $1.92 o
o JACK SPRAT BEANS, small cans dozen ..... .96 o
o HEINZ BEANS, large size cans, dozen ..... $2.40 o
o6HEINZ BEANS, medium size cans, dozen ..... $1.44 o
o HEINZ BEANS, small cans, dozen ..... .96 o
o ARMOUR'S BEANS, dozen cans ..... $1.20 o
o . IT WILL PAY YOU TO STOCK UP NOW .....o

OTHER ITEMS ON OUR 20 PER CENT DISCOUNT SALE INCLUDES:—

Dried Beef Potted Ham Cooked Spagetti Sardines Kipper-Snacks Sandwich Relish Sandwich Spread Thousand Island Dressing Veri Best Veal Loaf Soup—All kinds in stock Vinegar Olive Oil Plum Pudding Beef Steak Sauce Heinz Sweet and Dill Pickels Salad Cream Catsup Shrimp Salmon Apple Butter Peanut Butter Jelly and Preserves Mustard Mince Meat Olives Mustard Chow Condensed Milk Canned Oysters Sweet Relish Pork & Beans Baked Bans Kidny Beans And many other items of canned and bottled foods found on our shelves which we have not listed here.

EVERY THING GOES AT 20 PER CENT DISCOUNT FOR CASH—

Klemme Meat Market

FEED GRINDING

Our Feed Grinding Mill is "raing to go" and all it needs is to have you farmers bring in your grain and get your feed ground the way you want it Our mill does excellent work and turns out real ground feed.

Coal for Winter

Fill your bins now for winter as coal prices are steadily advancing. Our bins are full of good furnace and stove coal and right now the price is right.

Klemme Co-Operative Grain Co.

Many housewives have taken advantage of this offer

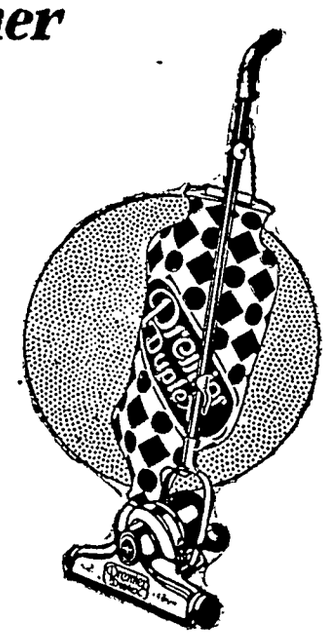
Only $5.00 down

AND a liberal allowance on your old cleaner

Here is a real opportunity to own this world-famous product.

The PREMIER DUPLEX has stood the supreme performance test. Compare it with others in construction, durability, ease of operation and price. Try it on your own rugs, without any obligation whatsoever.

Watch the powerful suction and the motor driven brush get the dirt.



Premier Duplex

No Oiling!

Both motor and brush turn on ball-bearings, eliminating the need for oiling. This adds years of life to the cleaner itself.

Central States Electric Co.

News of Klemme and Vicinity

Dr. R. W. Specht, Dentist, Garner, Iowa. adv

George Lawhorn was at Jewell Friday and Saturday.

Rev. A W. Gauger was at Garner on business Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Wes Lenz is on the sick list his week.

Wm. Smith and wife entertained the J. N Day family t a chicken dinner Sunday evening.

Wait for Ludeke's Poland China and Chester White Hog Sale, Oct. 15th, Klemme, Iowa. 1tc

Rev. and Mrs. A. W. Gauger and sons Harlan and Stanley, were at Garner Thursday of last week.

FOR SALE—2 thorobred Poland China Boars, cholra immune. G. Gobeli, Klemme, Iowa. 2tp

NOTICE—Positively no hunting or tresspassing will be allowed on my farm at anyt'me. Carl Wille, Klemme, Iowa. 2tp

Miss Ilah Klotzbach, of Chicago is home for a visit with her parents and other relatives.

NOTICE—No hunting or tresspassing will be allowed on my land Albert Johnson. 1tp

A number of the Klemme teachers drove to Mason City Saturday evening to take in a show.

Mr Trumbell of Belmond was in Klemme Wednesday visiting at the Sumner Trumbell home.

Sheriff Johnson and deputy f Wright County were in Klemme Saturday evening and took "Kelley' Lauden to Clarion with them. We have not learned on what charge the officers wanted him.

Get your orders in at once for kindling wood. Car load now on way. Northern Lumber Co. 1tc

Mrs. Ed. Jacobs and son Elwyn, spent a few days visiting at Clear Lake last week.

Mrs. Anna Baack came home Saturday from Wisconsin where she has been visiitng relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Musfelt from Clarion were Klemme visitors Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Smith and Miss Mabel, and Mrs. J. N. Day were at Mason City Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Sumner Trumbell visited with his folks at Mason City Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Bachman and daughter, Lela, were Mason City visitors Saturday.

Miss Root, one of the Klemme teachers, went to Dows Friday for a week end visit at her home.

FOR SALE—Extracted White Clover Honey $1 50 pr 10 lb. pail. Frank Miller, Phone 6-F45 Klemme, Garner, Iowa. 4tp

Mrs. Charles Lenz, of Spooner, Wisconsin is visitng Klemme relatives We understand they will return to Klemme to ve.

Rev A. W. Gauger went to Webster City yesterday morning to attend the Methodis Conference. On accoun of his absence there will be no services Sunday at either Lbierty or Klemme Methodist churches.

Some of our readers have missed Lloyd Wistey at the Jacobs store. They are wondering where he s. Lloyd is taking a course in advertising at Omaha and is making fine progress.

The Name Westinghouse
on your Farm LIGHT & POWER Plant

KEEP in mind that in choosing your lighting plant the maker must not be overlooked. The plant we sell is made by Westinghouse—headquarters for radio, KDKA, KYW, WBZ, and KFKX—one of the greatest electrical organizations in the world—a concern employing 50,000 people.

Westinghouse knows electricity, knows how to build everything electrical—and offers you a lighting plant that is absolutely dependable, easy to operate and easy to own.

May We Tell You More?

PROUTY ELECTRIC SHOP
GARNER — IOWA

Office:— Masonic Bldg. GARNER, IOWA.

Phones:— Office, 149-J. Res., 149-L.

Dr. E. H. Phillips
OSTEOPATHIC PHYSICIAN

Physiotherapy, including Osteopathic treatment, diathermy, surgical diathermy, radiant heat, high frequency, chlorine gas and auto-condensation.

An Open Letter to the Editor
From the President of General Motors

LAST SPRING I wrote you that my belief in the country newspaper had led us in General Motors to decide to advertise our products together in the small-city press of the country.

The returns from the series of the messages recently published have justified that faith; and we shall continue to advertise in your community through your newspaper this fall.

It occurs to me, however, that some of your readers may be asking: "What is General Motors?" and "Why is General Motors?" These are fair questions and I should like to answer them as frankly as I can.

General Motors was organized some years ago on the theory that a group of large companies, working together, could render a better service than they could separately. In this we simply applied to industry a principle that is as old as civilization as regards the human family and human progress.

Original members of the General Motors family were Buick, Cadillac, Chevrolet, Oakland and Oldsmobile, together with the Delco-Light Company and other well-known companies manufacturing automotive equipment. By joining together their resources, we were able to establish great Research Laboratories, a 1245-acre Proving Ground and the GMAC Plan of credit purchase; to effect vast economies in purchase and manufacture and distribution; to assure and maintain the quality of every product in the General Motors family.

Has the General Motors family principle proved itself in practice?

The best answer, I think, is to compare the Chevrolet, Buick, Cadillac, Oldsmobile and Oakland of today with the models of five or ten years ago.

Then add Pontiac, a General Motors creation. Add LaSalle, another General Motors creation. And then consider how General Motors has developed these cars into a complete line, within which any family may find a suitable quality car at the price it plans to pay: "A Car for Every Purse and Purpose."

Another example is Frigidaire, the electric refrigerator. General Motors had the resources to spend millions to develop a satisfactory refrigerator, and then to apply to its manufacture the same processes which have increased the utility and lowered the cost of the automobile.

We believe that this record justifies General Motors as an economic institution. Its products are quality products, first of all. Their prices represent the economies of united effort passed on to the purchaser. In the last year one in each three automobiles chosen by the public has been a General Motors car. The service of Delco-Light electric plants has extended to more than a quarter million homes, while Frigidaire has become the world's largest selling convenience of its kind.

We believe also that the values now offered in the current General Motors products (which are listed below) prove anew that "many minds are better than one" and that a family of companies, working together, can produce results which are decidedly in the public interest and of increasing benefit to the individual family.

Very truly yours,

Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., President
General Motors Corporation

Detroit, September 23, 1927

GENERAL MOTORS

CHEVROLET · PONTIAC · OLDSMOBILE · OAKLAND · BUICK · LASALLE · CADILLAC

FRIGIDAIRE—The Electric Refrigerator · DELCO-LIGHT—Electric Plants

GMAC Plan of Time Payments

THE KLEMME TIMES

Fortieth Year—Number 8. KLEMME, IOWA, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1927. $2.00 Per Year In Advance.Outside of Iowa $2.50

DOINGS AT SCHOOL THE PAST WEEK

GOOD PROGRAM PLANNED FOR NEXT P. T. A. MEETING

Business Men And Farmers Will Play Volley Ball This Wintre

A good program is in process of preparation for our next Parent-Teacher meeting October 17. Our two primary teachers have consented to present some of their children in songs and drills that will serve to entertain. There will be special music, perhaps, by some new alent. There will be two or three papers or talks on subjects worth our attention. The program will be given in more deail next week. W esuggest our parents hold the date open and attend this meeing if possible.

Baseball And Weather!

The Rain Gods have not been disposed to aid our base ball boys any in their preparation for the fray at Goodell on Firday evening of this week. Due to wet weather their practice has been very limited but they will neverheless go down and give all the opposition they can muster on our neighbor's diamond. It will add to their courage and confidence to have a lot of Klemme noise there. The game will probably begin about 4:00 or soon thereafter. Florence Stokesbary will again lead the H. S. in their cheers for the team.

Enjoyed Short Holiday Friday

Our students were grateful for the cessation of school work afforded by our dismissal for the Korn Day Program last Friday afternoon and some were able by their skill and speed to carry away some of the prizes offered in the footraces. Orville Stokesbary, Byrnes Missman, Doris Carson, Willis Busch, Buster Jorgenson, Margaret Gates and perhaps others copped some of the money.

Will Play Volley Ball

Our busines men and farmers who care for exercise in our gymnasium once a week will assemble for organization there on Thursday evening of this week at 7:30 o'clock Considerable interest was shown last year in volley ball, a game quite popular among business men since it provides exercise for several contestants at one time and does not tire them so quickly. Oher games may be preferreed his year.

School Going Fine This Year

Our school will be permitted to maintain on its membership roll Carlyle and William Gauger. They are both members in good standing in our high school and we are glad they are to recite to us all year.

We have a splendid school spirit thus far. Our new faculty are getting a good grip on the situation and we believe are doing a good part by the children of our community. We are anxious to have the boys and girls in school succeed and most all of them are trying. It might be that there should be provisions made for more home study, especially among high school students. There are a few who have been permitted to try five subjects, too many for the average student, and these will need to do work at home and some of them much work there. We are urging them to spend extra hours here as more favorable conditions for lesson preparation are provided here than at most homes.

To lessen the number of failures it frequently happens that children are asked to remain after school hours, when lessons have been poorly prepared. More home preparation would aid in getting children out of school earlier. Children who have difficulty in getting their work should try to be on hand at the school building as soon as it is opened in the morning or after 8:30. Our teachers are all here after that hour and are only too willing to aid those having difficulty. The building is open for work again at 1:00 P. M. or even before, folloinwg the noon dismissal. Children leaving the building at noon for lunch may enter again after the 12:45 bell.

Next Week Ends Firs tPeriod

Next week ends our first six-weeks period of the new schoo lyear. Besides the daily lesson prpearation there should be some time spent in reviews. We shall again list the number of A's and B's earned by our students each period this year. These represent superior and above-average work Not all students can earn these marks or they would not mean so much to those woh do receive them.

However, we appreciate the students who are working well even tho they do not win such letters. We appreciate them more han some who could earn hem but who are content with low C's and D's. We have some splendid young people in school whose conduct and effort please us highly but who are not able to earn the higher marks. We have no censure or harsh words for suhc students. They may excell some of those more capable than they after their school days are over and the game of life is earnestly on. If thye have learner to work and apply themselves they will win both honor and a fair share of material goods. But the individual today who gets the most recognition is the one who having abiliy applies himself well, tries hard to make a good showing, and when he does is humble and helpful, not vain and boastful Wo have this type at Klemme also and they delight us.

THANK YOU—

The editor of The Klemme Times certainly appreciates the splendid aid of loyal subscribers and friends in supplying us news and personals from week to week. It is the desire of this paper to give all the news all the time and those who lend us their assistance to that end have our unbounded gratitude. In these days of so many people going early and late in automobiles many interesting items escape our attention. Please furnish us wi l. items for publication as early in the week as possible as the office is always so rushed with typesetting the last day before publication. You may mail your items or phone No. 1-2, we'll be happy to get them.

METHODIST CHURCH NOTES
A. W. Gauger, Pastor

By the decree of Bishop Keeney, and the Methodist Iowa Conference which met in Webster City last week the pastor has been assigned to this charge for another year.

Last year, without doubt, was the best year of our present pastorate as facts and figures will attest.

A former year shows a larger enrollment on the membership roll but for real constructive work the year just closed was signal.

It is the prayer and endeavor of the pastor to make this new year outstanding in every way, that God's Kingdom may be builded and His Will be done. To this end we desire the hearty co-operation of all concerned.

We shall begin the new conference year with the celebrating of the sacrament of the Lord's Supper in both churches next Sunday morning.

In the evening service some of the leading things of our recent conference session will receive our attention. Some most interesting facts will be related.

On Sunday October 16th, a District Sunday Schoo' Convention is to be held in Liberty Church. This is interdenominational and all protestant Sunday Schools of this section of Hancock County are invited to participate. Full details will be given next week.

It might be a bit of wise precaution to investigate ventilators for corn cribs. Blue prints of easily constructed ones may be obtained from the Agricultural Engineering Department, Iowa State College, Ames.

In New York state is was found that only 4 percent of the traffic on typical state roads originates on farms wihin the county.

PRITCHARD AUTO COMPANY INSTALLED NEW CHARGER

Now Possible To Charge Batteries In About Eight Hours

John Pritchard, proprietor of The Pritchard Auto Company of Klemme, has just installed a new H. B Constant Potential Outfit which charges automotive and radio batteries in one-third the time hereto fore required. Constant Potential is not new, having been used for a number of years in charging railway car lighting batteries. By this method each battery draws in just whatcurrent it needs and each battery is absolutely independent of every other battery on the line.

Mr. Pritchard says he thoroughly investigated this modern equipment before purchasing his outfit and he found that it is recommended by the leading car and battery manufacturers and is approved by the U. S Bureau of Standards. More than 17,000 other shops are using it with excellent results. With this new charger it is possible to fully charge a run-down battery in eight hours time, and do a better job of 't

CONFERENCE MADE BUT FEW CHANGES

REV. GAUGER RETURNS HERE FOR ANOTHER YEAR

Conference Made Few Changes In This Vicinity

Klemme people were glad to hear that the Methodist Iowa Conference in session at Webster City last week sent Rev. A W. Gauger to Klemme and Liberty charges for another year.

Rev. Gauger and family have resided in Klemme for about four years and during that time Rev. Gauger and his fine family have made many fast friends, both in the church circles and without. He has also done a lot of work to build up the church in both districts of which he is pastor.

Some Changes Made Nearby

A few changes were made in near by towns, but many former pastors will also stay for another year at least. Rev. Van Metre will remain at Garner, and Rev. Wolcott at Britt.

Other appointments are: Rev. F. W. Ormeyer from Kanawha to Clarion; M. D. Bush to Forest City; D. M. Simpson to Goldfield; Corwin Taylor to Kanawha from Forest City; J. T. Snyder to Belmond.

Other changes of interest to our readers are: A. B. Gedye, Radcliff; J. M. Howdeshell, Williams; J. J. Bushnell, Cherokee; J. B. O'Connor, Onawa; W. C. Bergman, Quimby; A. E. Buriff, Schaller; M. L. Metcalf, Seney.

15,000,000 AMERICANS JOIN IN ONE MIGHTY SHOUT

Last year 15,000,000 Americans joined in one mighty shout which echoed across the length and breadth of the land, and that roar of human voices was raised in uttering one word—"Touchdown!"

For football during the season of 1926 reached proportions which make it a serious contender with baseball for the title of "the great national game" and the opening of the 1927 season finds it promising to become even more important than last year.

If you would know how football has become "big business" in the United States and why it draws such crowds during its short season, be sure to read the illustrated feature article, "Touchdown!" by Elmo S. Watson in this issue of The Times.

The next encampment of the veterans of the Spanish-American war will be held in Havana. The boys had some trouble in getting into Cuba 29 years ago. Now that they are full of years they will be welcomed as honored guests.

150 FEET OF FIRE HOSE TO BE ADDED TO EQUIPMENT

Will Enable Fire Company To Reach Outlying District

At their regular meeting Monday night, the Klemme Council decided to purchase at least 150 feet more fire hose to add to the equipment of the fire company.

Recent inspections made by the fire company revealed that about that much more hose was needed to replace hose discarded on account of being worn out, rotted or otherwise defective.

It is planned to further inspect the fire hose Friday, weather permitting, to see that is is in perfect condition for winter. If need be, more han 150 feet of new hose will be purchased so that outlying homes may be assured of adequate fire protection.

All water hydrants will be inspected and necessary repairs made before cold weather sets in so that everything will be in readiness in case of fire.

Buying of new hose and inspection of hydrants comes right in line with the observance of the national Fire Prevention Week, Oct. 9 to 14.

KORN DAY BROUGHT OUT A BIG CROWD

"KORN DAY" CELEBRATION WAS GRAND SUCCESS

Weather Was Quite Favorable For Big Day In Klemme

"Korn Day" went better by far than was expected, as the weather preceeding for the entire week was anything but good. A down pour of rain every day the past week put a damper on the prospects for a good day Friday. but as everything had been planned the celebration was put on and "Lady Luck" seemed to be with Klemme for Friday turned out to be quite a nice day for this time of year.

A large crowd was soon on hand and the great number of street contests and sports kept he crowd on edge wih excitement all day. The free attracions which had been booked were high clas and ook well. Although it was a rather poor day for a ball game, never-the-less a good game was played on a slippery diamond, which attracted a fair sized crowd. The various sports and the free attractions in the evening brot out a big crowd again. The Meservey band entertained the crowd between "acts" with well rendered selections.

The only complaint we heard was from the concession men who bewailed the fact that there was so much goin on the crowd wouldn't patronize them.

GREAT IMPORTANCE

More and better schools are of greater importance in assuring the peace and prosperity of any nation than are more and bigger navies. The greatest value of an education is that it drives out fear and ignorance by giving courage that comes from knowledge. The more we know about men and things of this world, the less we suspect and fear them. Education alone is not a panacea for all the world's ills, but there is no panacea which does not include education.

More Gate Money

White Sox park in Chicago is being expanded so that it will seat 100,000 fans. This is roomy enough to make some of the fight promoters prick up their ears.

KLEMME REFORMED CHURCH
Calvin Grosshuesch, Pastor

8:30 Sunday school in country.
10.00 a. m. German service.
11:00 a. m. Sunday school.
7:30 p. m. English service.
8:00 p. m. Wednesday Bible class.
8:00 p. m. Saturday, Junior choir
Confirmation class at 1:00 p. m. Tuesday and 9:00 a. m. Saturday.

A HOME IS BIG BUSINESS

Insurance statisticians estimate that every child brought up, given the average education and fitted for the activities of life, has cost in the neighborhood of $7,362. The total earning capacity of such child may be expected to be about $29,000. Multiply these figures by the average number of children of families and it becomes apparent that the man and woman who establish a home have undertaken a big business venture. These statistics recently were cited by a food specialist of the Texas State College extension service.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF HANCOCK COUNTY, IOWA

NOTICE OF HEARING ON APPLICATION FOR AUTHORITY TO SELL AND CONVEY REAL ESTATE.

L. A. ANDREW, STATE SUPERINTENDENT OF BANKING, PLAINTIFF

vs.

THE STATE SAVINGS BANK OF KLEMME, IOWA, DEFENDANT.

TO THE CREDITORS AND DEPOSITORS OF THE STATE SAVINGS BANK OF KLEMME, IOWA AND TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:-

Notice is hereby given that L. A Andrew, State Superintendent of Banking, as Receiver of the State Savings Bank of Klemme, Iowa has filed an application with the Clerk of this Court asking that he be authorized to sell and convey the bank building located at Klemme, Iowa, on Lots One and Two of the Original Town of Klemme, Iowa excepting the south thirty feet thereof. That he be authorized to make such sale at not less than the sum of Three Thousand Dollars, and that he be authorized and empowered to carry out a contract entered into with one J. E. Stille for the sale of said premises for the said sum of Three Thousand Dollars. Any persons desiring to submit further bids on said property, they will be considered at such hearing.

For further particulars as to the conents of said application, see application now on file with the Clerk of this Court.

You are further notified that said application will come on for hearing at the Court House at Garner, Iowa on the 11th day of October, 1927 at ten o'clock A. M.; and that any objections that any one interested desires to make must be made on or before said time.

L. A. ANDREW,
State Superintendent of Banking and Receiver of the State Savings Bank of Klemme, Iowa
By WICHMAN and HASTINGS,
His Attorneys.

(Publish Oct. 6, 1927)

NEXT WEEK IS NATIONAL FIRE PREVENTION WEEK

October 9 to 14 is annual Fire Prevention week. It is not necessary to have any kind of celebration during o fire prevention week, but some kind of emphasis should be made upon fire and its dangers, which are too evident and well known to discuss.

Every day should be a fire prevention day. One week in the year is not enough to be careful about fires. There should never be a time when people are careless about fire.

Everyone should clean up their premises of inflamable rubbish, rags and old paper; inspect chimneys and furnace pipes and take every precaution to see that everything is in good shape before winter.

Card Of Thanks

We wish to express our sincere thanks and appreciation to our dear neighbors and dear friends, the Fire Company, the Farmers Elevator, and all who have shown their sympathy during the illness and death of our husband and father. We also thank the choir, and Rev. Schmidt and Rev. Grosshuesch for their words of comfort. Mrs. Henry Lemke and Children. 1tp

HAVE YOU PICKED YOUR SEED CORN?

WET WEATHER ENDANGERS IOWA CORN

Early Seed Selection Is Important This Year

Dry rots in the corn fields of Iowa had gained but little headway early this fall because of the dry, warm weather, but now that rather heavy rains have been falling quite generally thruout the state, these molds are likely to develop extensively if the temperature stays above 59 or 60 degrees for a while, warns R. H. Porter, extension specialist in plant diseases at Iowa State College.

Mr. Porter has examined a number of fields this fall and has found very little dry rot—less than for several years. With the recent rains and high humidity, however, he fears that much corn may become affected and he urges selection of seed at once f this has not already been done.

If seed is selected immediately and dried quickly by artificial means very little seed corn for next spring planting will be damaged by mold If the corn cannot be dried in the attic or some heated room of the house, it is sometimes possible to use a heated brooder house or a farrowing house. Temperatures of over 100 degrees may be maintained for a few days, which will dry the corn rapidly.

Rapid drying, the plant pathologists at Ames have found, is just as important in checking dry rot as is early seed selection.

HANCOCK COUNTY REAL ESTATE TRANSFERS

A Weekly Review Of Sales And Trades In Property

W. H. Miller wife to Emma Schroeder. W. D. date 10-19-25. $1.00, Cys. S½ SE¼ 12-94-23.

Jno. A. Senneff Jr. wife to Levi Larson. W. D., date 1-24-27, $1.00. N* SW¼ 4-96-24.

Leta L. Minor husband to L. A. Andrew, Receiver. W. D., date 9-1-27. $1.00, lot 1 block 9 Britt.

Louis Rierson to W. C. and R. E. Hofer. W. D., date 9-24-27, $1.00. 122x59 feet in SW cor. of SW¼ of 30-94-23.

Trade name: Garner Chick Hatchery, owner W. H. Koell, Garner, Iowa.

H. O. Swingen wife to State Savings Bank Woden. Q. C. D., date 10-29-25, $1.00, lot 5 block 15 Woden.

H. O. Swingen wife to Gust Swingen. Q. C. D., date 9-19-27, $1.00. Lot 6 block 15 Woden and lot 11 block 3 Woden.

Fred Doege to L. A. Doege. W. D, date 9-17-27, $1800.00. E½ of NE¼ 12-97-26.

Catherine Jordan to Thos. Stork. W. D., date 9-24-27, $100.00. N½ ex. W. 30 feet of lot 16 block 7 Anderson's add to Britt.

Martin Rasmussen to A. Kelly. W. D, date 3-11-27, $1.00, NW¼ and W½ of W* of NE¼ 19-97-25 2200.-95 acres.

IOWA UNION TELEPHONE CO. IS MAKING EXTENSIVE CHANGE

New Telephone Cables Being Strung Out In Residential District

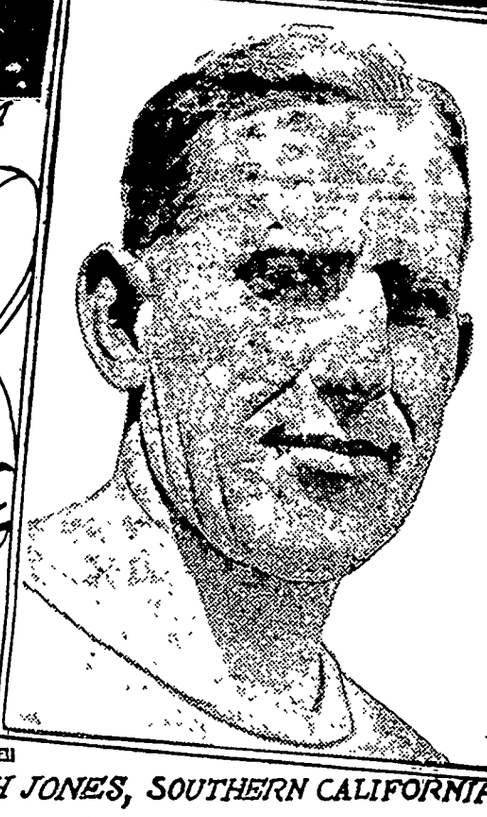
Workmen for the Iowa Union Telephone Company have been busy the past week digging trenches and installing new telephone cables in the town.

Work is progressing rapidly to get everything in shape for changing the central office to the W. F. Lau residence in north Klemme, which the Company has leased for a number of years.

We understand that practically all telephone poles in Klemme will be taken down and the cable system used wherever possible. By removing the poles will add to the general better appearance of our town.

UNIVERSITY OF ILLINOIS STADIUM

CAPTAIN MOESER, PRINCETON



COACH JONES, SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

COACH ROCKNE, NOTRE DAME

CAPTAIN WILSON, ARMY

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

THERE'S a touch of autumn coolness in the air and the faint purple haze that hangs over the distant hills tells that Indian summer is at hand. A mammoth structure of concrete and steel, gleaming white in the sunny October afternoon, holds a vibrant mass of humanity—40,000—50,000—60,000. Bands playing—songs—the measured cadence of r-a-h, r-a-h, r-a-h, and a sharper explosion of sound as human dervishes in white break into a new set of contortions. A shifting, changing kaleidoscope of color and motion and sound which is suddenly stilled in that breathless moment before the whistle shrills. A thump and a soaring object high in the air—the pounding of cleated shoes on the turf—the impact of human bodies—two lines of husky young American manhood that bend and sway. Then with the eyes of the 60,000 riveted on that little group of 22 down there on the rectangular patch of green, one of the lines shifts and spreads. A crouching figure runs back from the mass and the ball shoots over the line into the arms of a player far off to the right. As he turns and takes the first step in his flight down the chalk-marked field, the 60,000 come to their feet in one mighty roar—"Touchdown!" And that's football!

Such was the scene that was repeated time after time last year and if the season of 1926 is any criterion it will be repeated many more times during the season of 1927. When the curtain went down last November, an eastern sports writer declared that "Superlatives only may be used in reviewing the football season of 1926. In matters of attendance, stirring competition, thrilling incident and amazing form reversals no season in the more than fifty years of gridiron play approached the ten weeks which recently passed into history."

If only the matter of attendance alone were considered it would be sufficient to show what a hold football now has on the American public. Time was when Vox Populi knew but little of "rah, rah, rah." He left that to the "collegians" and regarded with a tolerant eye the autumnal madness which afflicted them early in September, reached its high fever point late in October and then cooled off with the first snow flurries in November. But in late years this virus got into the body politic and, before he realized it, Mr. Average American was troubled with the fall restlessness which had heretofore afflicted only his sons—and daughters—as they began packing their trunks "to go away to college."

Perhaps it is not saying too much to assert that there is one individual principally responsible for this change in the public attitude toward football, and that individual is the erstwhile iceman of Wheaton, Ill., young Mr. Harold Grange. The young Mr. Grange began playing football under the tutelage of Coach Bob Zuppke at the University of Illinois in 1923 and immediately gave promise of being an unusual backfield man.

Then the season of 1924 opened. Illinois was dedicating its new million-dollar stadium with Michigan as the opposing team. A crowd of 07,000 had gathered for the event. (The photograph of that crowd is shown above.) Michigan kicked off. The agile young Mr. Grange received the ball and ran through the whole Michigan team for a touchdown. Michigan kicked off again and after one play Grange took the ball and again ran the length of the field for a touchdown. In fact, four times during the first quarter the Illinois halfback danced across the Maize and Blue goal line to score and just to complete the afternoon's work he made another touchdown later in the game.

But it was not until the season of 1925 that this red-headed youngster became a national figure. Illinois was scheduled to play Pennsylvania, one of the strongest teams in the East that year and undefeated up to the time they met the western invaders on historic Franklin field. The East had heard of Grange, of course, but it was a bit skeptical of the Middle West's boast that he was a gridiron superman. Sixty-three thousand people saw that game—saw Grange, despite the handicap of a muddy field, carry the ball 32 times, average 11 yards on every play, run through the whole Penn team twice for gains of 50 yards each time and score three touchdowns.

But more important than the fact that "Red" Grange was one of the greatest football stars that ever sped across a college gridiron and that his entry into professional football gave it new life is the fact that he was the dominant figure in giving several million Americans a new major sport interest which promises to give baseball serious competition for the title of "the great national game." For after the seasons of 1924 and 1925 the American public had tasted football and found it good. So it was prepared to make the season of 1926 the greatest in every respect that the sport had known up to that time.

As early as the third week of the 1926 season, the various stadia in different parts of the country, seating from 40,000 to more than 60,000, were reporting capacity crowds. By the end of the season the larger colleges of the East reported that at least 5,000,000 had seen their games. In the Big Ten the game had drawn a total gallery of more than 1,500,000 and on the Pacific coast seven college teams had played before 1,250,000 fans. All in all, it has been estimated that the 200 or more colleges which had football teams drew into their football stands the amazing total of 15,000,000 persons. Since the tickets were priced all the way from 75 cents for the small colleges, to the top price of $15 for the Army-Navy game, it is estimated that the American public was willing to spend a minimum of $30,000,000 for its Saturday afternoon diversion and that figure may be increased by several millions when the activities of the speculators are taken into consideration.

It was a season of thrills and upsets, too. Dartmouth, the undisputed champion of the country in 1925 and without a defeat on its record for nearly three years, failed to win a single major contest all season, losing to Yale, Harvard, Brown and Cornell. Again and again the little David triumphed over the giant Goliath. Harvard lost the first game of the season to little Geneva college; early in the season little St. Mary's, out on the Pacific coast, humbled the California Bears; Knute Rockne's Notre Dame team, famous for its "Four Horsemanship," seemed to be riding easily to national honors until they came a cropper at Pittsburgh and Carnegie Tech won by a score of 19 to 0. But they took their turn in upsetting exercises when they journeyed out to the Pacific coast to meet Coach Howard Jones' Southern California eleven. Except for a one-point defeat at the hands of Stanford, U. S. C. had been clicking off victories at a regular pace. Then Notre Dame came along and handed them a 13 to 12 defeat in the game which rang down the curtain on the 1926 season

Thrills and upsets, upsets and thrills! At Ithaca, Cornell, trailing Dartmouth 7 to 23 in the last period, unleashed a sensational attack which carried Dobie's men to a 24 to 23 victory over the Green. At Annapolis with Colgate leading Navy 7 to 6 in the last minute of play, on the Middies' 3 yard line and headed for a touchdown, a Colgate fumbled and Lloyd, a Navy end, picked up the ball and ran 97 yards to a Navy 13 to 7 victory. At Minneapolis, Michigan, outrushed 20 yards to 1 by Minnesota and trailing 0 to 6, scored a sensational victory in the last period when Benny Friedman kicked the goal to make a final score of Michigan 7, Minnesota 6.

But the climax of the season in interest and in attendance came on November 27 when the Army and the Navy met in the Soldier field stadium at Chicago. It was the first time the annual service game had ever been played west of the Alleghenies. It was the first time, too, that a crowd of 110,000 had ever gathered to see a football game. Early in the game the Navy ran roughshod over the Cadets for a lead of 14 to 0. Then the Army rallied, tied the count at 14 to 14 and scored a touchdown to give them a 21 to 14 lead. Then the Navy came back with a volley of passes and Halfback Shapley skirted the end for a touchdown. The score was then 21 to 20. It remained for Halfback Hamilton of the Navy to decide the issue. He kicked the goal. Score: Army 21, Navy 21.

Such was the season of 1926, the "season of superlatives." What will 1927 be? It also may be a season of superlatives in attendance or in thrills when Harvard meets Yale, when California meets Stanford, when Pennsylvania plays Chicago or when Notre Dame and Southern California meet on Soldier field on November 26. For this week and next week and for the next five or six weeks 15,000,000 Americans or more will be crowding into college stadia all over the United States to await the one big thrill in the game, to come to their feet in the mighty roar of "Touchdown!" For that's football!

Feel Stiff and Achy?

To be Well the Kidneys Must Thoroughly Eliminate Waste Poisons from the Blood.

DOES every day find you lame, stiff and achy? Do you feel tired and drowsy—suffer nagging backache, headache and dizzy spells? Are the kidney secretions scanty and burning in passage?

Know, then, that these are often signs of improper kidney action. Sluggish kidneys allow acid poisons to remain in the blood and upset the whole system.

If your kidneys are acting sluggishly, assist them with Doan's Pills. Doan's have established a nation-wide reputation. Are recommended the country over. Ask your neighbor!

Doan's Pills

Stimulant Diuretic to the Kidneys

At all dealers, 60c a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfg. Chemists, Buffalo, N. Y.

Plenty of Patience

Mazie—My boy friend says the book on Einstein's theories is very interesting.

Joan—Are you reading it?

Mazie—No, I'm going to wait until it appears in the movies.

Bobby's Bright Idea

"Pa, the preacher said this morning that our bodies are tenements of clay."

"Yes, my son, that is so."

"Well, is our conscience the janitor?"

Prescription He Wrote in 1892 is the World's Most Popular Laxative

When Dr. Caldwell started to practice medicine, back in 1875, the needs for a laxative were not as great as they are today. People lived normal, quiet lives, ate plain, wholesome food, and got plenty of fresh air and sunshine. But even that early there were drastic physics and pudges for the relief of constipation which Dr. Caldwell did not believe were good for human beings to put into their system. So he wrote a prescription for a laxative to be used by his patients.

The prescription for constipation that he used early in his practice, and which he put in drug stores in 1892 under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a liquid vegetable remedy, intended for women, children and elderly people, and they need just such a mild, safe, gentle bowel stimulant as Syrup Pepsin.

Under successful management this prescription has proven its worth and is now the largest selling liquid laxative in the world. The fact that millions of bottles are used a year proves that it has won the confidence of people who needed it to get relief from headaches, biliousness, flatulence, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, bad breath, dyspepsia, colds and fevers.

Millions of families are now never without Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and if you will once start using it you will also always have a bottle handy for emergencies.

W. B. Caldwell M.D. AT AGE 83

It is particularly pleasing to know that the most of it is bought by mothers for themselves and the children, though Syrup Pepsin is just as valuable for elderly people. All drug stores have the generous bottles.

We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.

Yes, Through the Male

Jane—I'm taking a correspondence course and I'm getting my knowledge through the mail.

Ted—Oh' you're just like all the girls.

A lot of "doing good" to others against their will is mere arrogance.

Not Satisfactory

New Maid.—I put your dress in soak as you asked me, ma'am, but the mean guy wouldn't give me more than $2 on it.

Much music and science is over a man's head, but there are places where he can wade.

Genuine BAYER

ASPIRIN

SAY "BAYER ASPIRIN" and INSIST!

Proved safe by millions and prescribed by physicians for

Colds	Headache	Neuritis	Lumbago
Pain	Neuralgia	Toothache	Rheumatism

DOES NOT AFFECT THE HEART

Safe — Accept only "Bayer" package which contains proven directions. Handy "Bayer" boxes of 12 tablets. Also bottles of 24 and 100—Druggists.

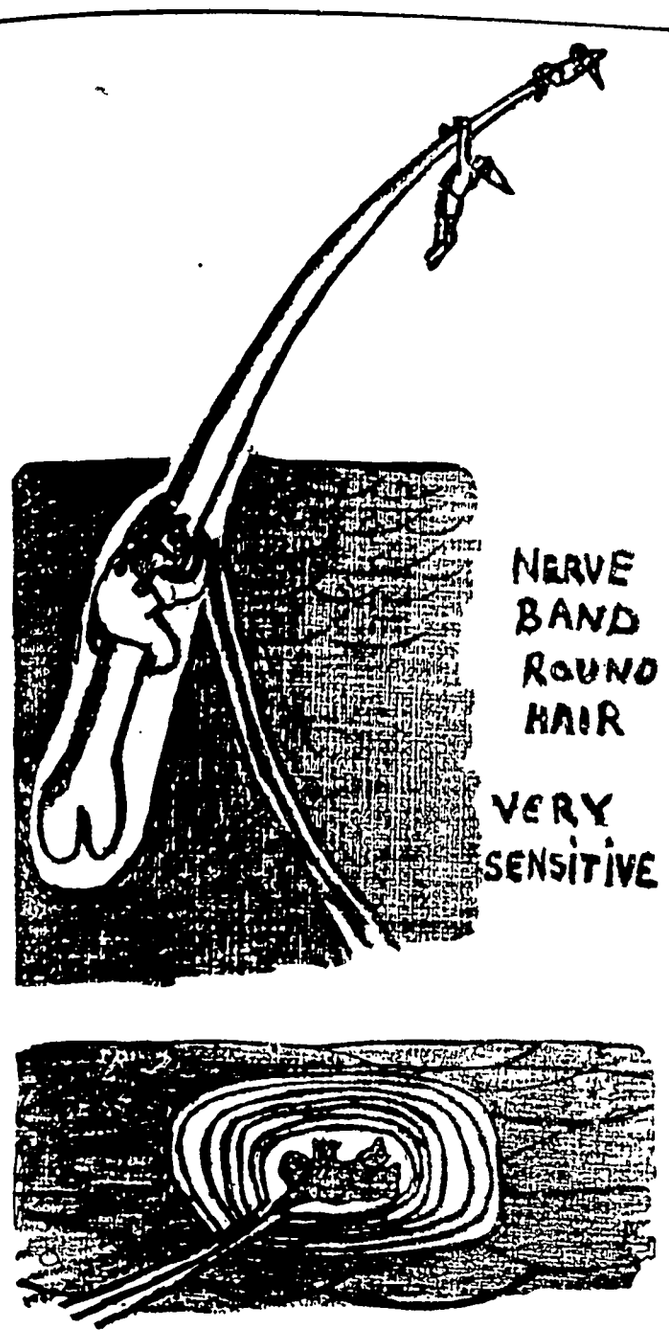
Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

YOURSELF and YOUR BODY

By WILFRED T. GRENFELL

SENTINELS NUMBERS FOUR, FIVE, SIX

Touch—Taste—and Handle



A Touch-Machine for Pain Only in the Skin.

"THE touch-machines are put where we can most easily move them about to reach things. They are in the tips of our fingers, and toes, and tongues, or round where the most delicate other structures are, such as the eyes, nose, lips, ear-tube. They are not numerous or delicate in our backs, or our seats (lucky for boys), or on the crowns of our heads; because there they are not so useful or necessary, and nature never wastes if she can help it. But where it is necessary to get 'feel pictures' very quickly to central, the machines are immediately under the outside covering or skin, as in the balls of the fingertips. We often say, 'Oh, that feels like something we have felt before,' and a blind man can tell instantly what a thing is if he has once felt it before. So you see, 'feel pictures' are stowed away in the memory bureau exactly like those of other controls. Here are some feel-cells—very simple but very delicate machines. You see, the end of the wire to central is spread out all through it—the touch-cell nerves often end in hairlike roots, to be still more sensitive. These tiny machines are like the tapper of a telegraph, only a thousand times more delicate—it is far the most delicate of all our 'senses.'

"In some places the touch-cells are so close together the point of the finest needle couldn't go between them, as on the fingertips, the lip, and the tip of the tongue. In other places, as on the calf or the back, they are farther apart. Round the hair roots they crowd together, so that hairs help us to feel—so a shaved skin is somewhat less sensitive.

"The tiniest tickle of the softest hair can make connections, and send a message to central. There is no real tapping and no noise—yet not only is the feel message sent off at once without a second's delay, but the answer is back before you can say 'Jack Robinson.' Some cells only tell of hot things, and others only of cold things. Here is a hot needle. Shut your eyes and see what happens if it touches your finger.

"Look at this book. All the letters are raised dots. Shut your eyes and draw your fingertips over the letters. What do they say? I don't know. A blind man can read it for fun, and you could, too, only your cells want educating. On the other hand, we have learned not to feel some things. We don't feel our clothes touch us.

"Besides hot and cold and touch cells, there are also pain-cells. They are our S O S signals. These don't notice ordinary touches. Only when the touch gets dangerous do they take any notice. Then they shout so loud the whole body feels, and takes notice, too. Touch your skin with this needle. Any pain? No. Now push harder, as if you were going to push it through the skin. Wow, it hurts! Well, that's a pain-cell yelling out: 'Danger here! Help!' It is the end of a little naked wire, in between the touch-cells, that is shouting. We should all be crippled or dead if it weren't for these little sentinels.

"Our fifth control is called taste. The taste-machines are placed, naturally, in the front end of the food canal; that is, on the back of the tongue and on the curtain over it called the soft palate. When you chew an orange small particles float into the nose through the front or back doors of the nose, and hit the smell hairs. We really smell many things we say we taste. If you hold your nose tight, or if your nose is badly blocked by a cold, you can scarcely taste at all, especially if your eyes are bad, or you are in the dark. The tongue alone can only tell sweet, bitter, acid and salt.

"The taste-machines are like bunches of cells, hidden under the surface, with little holes running down to each. Into these some of the food enters, and as each cell is specially connected direct with central, taste pictures are at once added to those already in the record bureau.

"One other sentinel is important. Some muscles talk direct to central—we call it 'muscle sense.' There are many—perhaps most important are those round the drain-pipe from the slop-basin and the catch-pool of the bowels. When these begin to fill up the muscles call out: 'Please empty the slops.' 'Please empty the slops.' The special reason for mentioning this control is because it is of the utmost importance for us to listen to it, because, these door watchmen are like lots of other folks: If you don't listen to them in time, they just stop warning you at all. Like calling 'Wolf,' Wolf,' when there is none, and so at last the watchman gives no notice of dangers, and the people are killed. Anyone can see how dangerous it is to heap a lot of decaying poisonous slops in a delicate all-alive machine like our bowels. Yet people do it. They are too busy, or too lazy, or too something. The result is that the bowel muscles get accustomed to retain large quantities of poison, and we call that being constipated.

"Other muscle-sense machines are more delicate, as in our eyes. The muscles that move the two cameras must pull the lenses toward the object more and more as it gets nearer the eye. This muscle-sense gives us somo information as to how far an object is away; whether it is big and far off, like the moon, or small and near, like a saucer. A one-eyed man can hardly tell at all the distance of an object.

"Now beyond all these machines for protecting the body we live in comes the greatest responsiblity of all. It is the control that you and I can, if we will, use to make the whole body machine useful or harmful. Control it to use it for ourselves, or for others. I am sure you see how vastly important it is to save this control.

"Control is always a hard matter. I can't control you boys, and only partly your body machines. No man can control another. Force only controls his body. So human laws based on force never can make either a perfect man or a perfect world. Perfect control must come from within, and is the result of your own will controlling your body through central, which can keep touch with our machines on one hand, and God's laws on the other. Obedience to them, gives us the only perfect freedom—to serve God first, and your neighbor as yourself, is perfect living."

(© by the Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

What's the Answer?

Questions No. 18

1—What United States ship won a famous victory over what French warship and when?

2—What American leader in the Revolution was named the "Swamp Fox"?

3—Who invented the cotton gin?

4—What date did Charlie Robertson pitch his no-hit game against Detroit?

5—What actor, critical disputes notwithstanding, lives in the traditions of the stage and of theater-goers as the greatest America ever has produced?

6—What city of the British empire is known as the "Modern Athens"?

7—What great historical work had to be re-written because the manuscript was accidentally burned?

8—What are the most interesting and attractive of the ungulates of the Asiatic steppes?

9—Is this sentence correct English: "She could tell by the sound of the engine they were going slower"?

10—What is the meaning of "Lamb of God"?

11—What led Bryon to write "English Bards and Scotch Reviewers"?

12—Who was the American commander at the battle of Bennington?"

13—Who was the British governor of Virginia at the outbreak of the Revolution?

14—Who invented the phonograph?

15—Who is champion British woman golfer?

16—What modern French painter helped to found and has been the chief influence upon the impressionistic school?

17—What great pianist, an especial favorite in America, made his first visit to this country as an infant prodigy and had his tour interrupted by the Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Children?

18—What river is the largest Chinese waterway?

19—To what region is the mountain beaver restricted?

20—What is wrong with this sentence: "I like those sort of people"?

Answers No. 17

1—An English ecclesiastical historian of the Seventh and Eighth centuries.

2—Calcutta.

3—The fact that he never smiles.

4—Uhle of Cleveland.

5—Maj. John Andre.

6—Isaac Hull.

7—George Westinghouse.

8—Four, two auricles or receiving chambers and two ventricles or driving chambers.

9—No; an Olympiad was the period from one Olympian festival to the next.

10—God is incorporeal, divine, supreme, infinite Mind, Spirit, Soul, Principle, Life, Truth, Love.

11—To protest against the order for the scrapping of the frigate Constitution.

12—Ecuador.

13—Easter island.

14—Paderewski.

15—George Crulkshank.

16—Old Rosebud won it in 2:03 2-5.

17—Constitution.

18—Zachary Taylor, in the Mexican war.

19—Lord Lister.

20—Helps them to avoid enemies, find food, recognize kin and discover mates.

Matinees Looked Upon as Wrong Innovation

Matinees originated at Astley's theater, London, during the season of 1868. Then they really were as the name signifies, "morning performances" much to the horror of old-fashioned playgoers. The time was modified to afternoon but Thalia still was shocked.

Critics assailed the innovation with a vim. John Oxenford, stage reviewer for the London Times, declared "that afternoon performances will lower the place to the standards of a penny-gaff," but despite attacks the daylight performances prospered and in time became a recognized institution.

Astley's had been acquired in that year by Dion Boucicault, father of the actor of the same name, after resigning the management of the Winter garden in New York. He was a pioneer in the matter of more comfortable and attractive theaters, which in those days were mostly dingy, dirty, insanitary and ill-ventilated.—Exchange.

Chess Ancient Pastime

Chess is acknowledged as one of the world's oldest games, John de Vigney assigning its invention to a Babylonian philosopher, Xerxes. Others have attributed it to Chilo, one of the seven sages of Greece. Gibbon believed the Indians conceived the game, and that Persia perfected it. Earlier dates have been suggested, however, by the depiction of chess in the painting of the ancient Egyptians and the descriptions of it in the Chinese books of wisdom.

Camel

Climbing to new heights of popularity

Government figures show that more Camels are being smoked today than ever before. One after another Camels passed them all.

If all cigarettes were as good as Camel you wouldn't hear anything about special treatments to make cigarettes good for the throat. Nothing takes the place of choice tobaccos.

© 1927, R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, Winston-Salem, N. C.

Coach at Least Can Hammer Home Point

Knute Rockne, the football coach from Notre Dame, gave his audience a lot to think about when he spoke in Cleveland the other day. Summing up the well-known younger generation, he said: "The trouble with some young men today is that they suffer from charley-horse between the ears."

In referring to the kind of talk he gives his players before they go out on the field, he said: "Here's what I tell 'em—success is based on what the team does—not on how you will look in the headlines!"

And when Mr. Rockne insisted that he wasn't a marvel at speaking he told his listeners: "I'm a good deal like John Flynn. (Mr. Flynn, now a Cleveland business man, was a famous Notre Dame tackle). When Flynn started into a game he used to say he was no good until he began to sweat, and when he began to sweat he was all in."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Tourist Finds Hell in Polish Summer Resort

Dante had nothing on the ordinary citizen of Danzig, who can go to Hell and back every day, if he pleases. In Hell (or as it is sometimes spelled, Hel or Hela) Poland has its leading summer resort.

"How can I go to Hell?" I asked the hotel proprietor one morning.

"That's easy," he replied. "A boat right at the foot of the river will take you across the bay to Hell." So I crossed the Styx into Hell.

Hell, however, turned out not to be all that it's cracked up to be. One hears they follow the Russian style of natural bathing costumes there, but, at least during my short visit, Hell had reformed. All I saw were two or three small beer gardens, a lot of fishing huts and an open stretch of beach, with bathhouses here and there. Not even a goldfish or a devilfish in sight!

As a place to raise h—l, however, Hell cannot quite come up to Zoppot, fifteen miles from Danzig, where they have three roulette tables, etc., etc.—From a Danzig Letter in the Brooklyn Eagle.

The American Spirit

President Green of the American Federation of Labor was condemning Soviet Russia and labor's proposed affiliation with it.

"I hate," he ended, "the Soviet spirit of envy and destruction. Give me its direct opposite, the American spirit that says:

" 'Hats off to the past, coats off to the future!' "

Clever Trick

Walter Schoening, real estate broker of Berlin, Germany, had to stand trial for fraud in the administration of estates. It simply wouldn't do for any of his friends or business competitors to hear the details of the trial, so Schoening hired at $1 a head a sufficient number of unemployed to come early and fill the courtroom in hope of excluding all others.

Idle Threat

The man who threatens the world is always ridiculous; for the world can easily go on without him and in a short time will cease to miss him.—Samuel Johnson.

There is nothing to do for worry except to divert the mind, and that may need heroic measures.

A great man is seldom taken at his true value, but lots of others will sell out for more than they are worth.

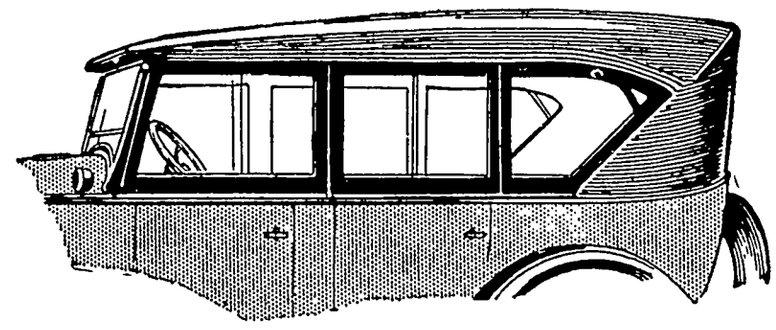
The merry little kite flyers will soon come home with appetites that just demand Monarch Cocoa and Teenie Weenie Peanut Butter sandwiches. Be ready, Mother!

EVERY genuine Monarch package bears the Lion Head, the oldest trademark in the United States covering a complete line of the world's finest food products—Coffee, Tea, Cocoa, Catsup, Pickles, Peanut Butter, Canned Fruits and Vegetables, and other superior table specialties.

REID, MURDOCH & CO.
Established 1853
Chicago Pittsburgh Boston New York
Jacksonville Tampa Los Angeles

Monarch is the only nationally advertised brand of QUALITY FOOD PRODUCTS sold exclusively through the men who own and operate their own stores.

MONARCH
Quality for 70 Years



Equip Your Car with Genuine Rex Enclosures

KEEP out rain—wind—snow. Have your touring car or roadster equipped with world famed Rex Enclosures. Enjoy closed car comfort and protection through the winter months. Quickly installed. New reduced prices. Write for prices and descriptive leaflet.

At New Low Prices

Rex Enclosures are made for these cars

Buick—Cadillac—Chevrolet—Chrysler—Dodge Brothers—Flint—Ford—Hupmobile—Maxwell—Nash—Oakland—Oldsmobile—Overland—Star—Studebaker.

REX MANUFACTURING CO., Dept. G, Connersville, Ind.

Cuticura Loveliness A Priceless Heritage

For generations mothers have been using Cuticura Preparations for all toilet purposes, and have been teaching their daughters that daily use of them produces clear, smooth skin and healthy hair. They find the Soap pure and cleansing, the Ointment soothing and healing, should any irritations arise, and the Talcum an ideal toilet powder.

Soap 25c. Ointment 25 and 50c. Talcum 25c. Sold everywhere. Sample each free. Address: "Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. 23, Malden, Mass." Cuticura Shaving Stick 25c.

In the Iowa pig crop contest conducted this season, some fine records have been esablished, according to E L. Quaife of Iowa State College. The winners will be announced about December.

Ames Abe says: Married life ain't so hectic after all. Some men can't even live with their dogs without gettin' crabby.

Lowe Brothers
PAINTS - VARNISHES

2 BIG REASONS for Painting

Painting does away with expensive repairs and gives you a new pride in your home.

We recommend LOWE BROTHERS HIGH STANDARD PAINT because we know what it does. It gives results you can depend upon.

Before you paint, see us.

E. F. JACOBS

Choicest

FOODS

Folks, there couldn't be any eating place, no matter how expensive or how flossy, give you a better selection of high grade foods than we do.

And Oh! How we do cook 'em!

Drop in for dinner or a lunch tomorrow.

DELICIOUS—
Try our ice cream, a number of flavors, ice cold pop, and malt.

A full line of Cigars and Tobacco, at—

Busch Cafe

Liberty News Notes

(Special Times Reporter)

Mrs. Tanner visited at the Emil Patet home Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. John Lemke were Garner callers Tuesday.

Mr. Albert Carolus, Sr, has no been feeling very well for the las week or so.

Mrs. Jim Lilly and son visited with her brother, Wil Lemke, and family Friday and Saturday.

Dwight Hummel returned home Tuesday from up north where he had been for some time threshing

---

News is rather scarce in these parts this week, as all we've seen or heard for a week has been rain.

Mr. and Mrs. John Lemke entertained Mrs James Lilly and son Gene, of Cedar Rapids Saturday and Sunday. She was called her by the death of her brother, Henry Lemke

---

Mrs John Stille and daughters Mrs. Quentin Stille and son and Mr and Mrs. Elmer Schaefer and children, were entertained at the Walter Bredlow home Sunday.

The new school house in District No. 7, Liberty Township, is completed and the furnace installed Monday the school children and the teacher, Miss Annabellle Carlson had the fun of moving in. It's a beautiful building and will surely be appreciated by all.

Avery-Twin Lakes News

(Special Times Reporter)

Miss Annie Albers visited at the Dick Swalve home Monday and Tuesday nights.

The Misses Mable Brouwer and Mabel Griffen were visiting at the Carl Wille home Tuesday night.

Mr. Owen Neuhring fixed up the school fence one day this week. He is a director.

Mr. Herman Priebe visited at the home of his sister, Mrs. Henry Josten Wednesday evening of this week.

Miss Elmyra Greiman stayed at the Frank Sandrey home a few evenings the past week.

Mr. Lippo Wessels called at the William Wenz home Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Fred Etchen stayed with her sister, Mrs. Henry Lemke last Tuesday night.

Adolph Kramer was a Sunday visitor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Etchen.

Rev. Grosshuesch and wife, Miss Stella Fuls and Miss Anna Albers visited at the D. Swalve home on Monday evening.

Silo filling was delayed almost a week on account of rain but the last job was finished Wednesday, but some intend to re-fill.

Mrs George Buseman and two children helped Mrs. Henry Buseman cook for silo fillers last Wednesday.

Mrs Edwin Josten was at the home of her mother Mrs Schlei and assisted in cooking for silo fillers Wednesday.

Mrs. Elmer Schlei and Mrs. Fred Haupt and daughter, Edith, helped Mrs Owen Neuhring cok for silo fillers Saturday

---

Goodell News

(By Special Correspondent)

Frank McNutt was assisting Mrs. Lamer in the post office Saturday

---

Jay Griggs was a Ventura caller last Thursday.

Andrew Nelson was transacting business in Webster City one day.

Tom Roths had the misfortune to lose one of his horses.

Henry Busse delivered cattle to the Dr. Zinn farm Monday.

The Gosnell family of Fort Dodge spent Sunday at the home of Mrs. Lamer.

Mr. Nels Anderson is reported as being very ill at the George Vance home southeast of town.

Martin Kearney is at Garner this week attending Court, acting as a juryman.

The Avery Farm Bureau Meeting was postponed until a later date on account of bad weather and roads.

Mrs. Ivan Baker enjoyed a visit from her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Weide of Belmond.

The High School Seniors received their class rings, which each member can feel proud to wear.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Hemingway spent Sunday at the Mike Kearney home.

Rev. and Mrs. Scott and daughter Harriet returned Friday from Muscatine and Mt. Vernon.

Miss Mildred Beckman spent the week end with her parents at Forest City.

The Cashman and Houghton families drove to West Bend Sunday to see the Grotto.

Goodell and Renwick high schools crossed bats Friday at Renwick. The score was 2-0 in favor of Goodell.

Miss Given, primary teacher, has not been able to attend to her work regularly this week on account of the serious illness of her mother

---

Mrs Osman and children of New Richland, Minn, are visiting at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lew Johnson and other relatives

---

Mr and Mrs Kasson of Missouri, who have been visiting the Houghton family for some time, returned home Monday.

The mail carriers report some bad places in the roads as the mud is getting quite deep on the newly graded roads.

Floyd Anderson of Thief River Falls, Minn., came home to help with the work on his father's farm during the latter's illnes.s

---

Rev. Scott has been appointed for another year as minister of the U. B. Church here, which his many friends are glad to hear. This will be his third year in this charge.

Josephine Dominy was taken ill very suddenly and was rushed to the Hampton hospital where she submitted to an appendicitis operation. She is gaining slowly.

Sunday was promotion day in the U. B. Sunday school. On account of bad roads the attendance was not very large. Last Sunday was the election of Sunday School Officers. All the old officers were re-elected for next year.

Do your shopping early. Christmas and New Year's fall on Sunday this year.

If you don't believe some men suffer loss of memory, lend them money.

Almost any merchant is "there with the goods." All that is needed is judicious advertising to get rid of the goods.

Henry Ford has purchased 1,200,000 acres of land in Para, Brazil, and intends to use it as a rubber plantation. He evidently does not forsee any falling off in the number of worn out tires.

A one-eyed man can see prosperity in Iowa.

Office:— Masonic Bldg. GARNER, IOWA.

Phones:— Office, 149-J. Res., 149-L.

Dr. E. H. Phillips
OSTEOPATHIC PHYSICIAN

Physiotherapy, including Osteopathic treatment, diathermy, surgical diathermy, radiant heat, high frequency, chlorine gas and auto-condensation.

A Well-charged Battery
Never Freezes - -

It's now the time of year when you want to get your car ready for cold weather driving——in safety and comfort.

In cold weather, when gasoline vaporizes less readily, your motor is harder to turn over in the stiff oil—— ——and consequently demands upon your battery are more strenuous than ever. It will "run down" more quickly and is more likely to freeze because of the run down condition.

The surest way to prevent freezing is to let us charge it on our New H. B. Constant Potential ONE DAY Battery Charger. This modern equipment insures a perfect charge.—— ——and will positively add to the life of your battery. It is recommended by the eading battery and car manufacturers—and approved by the U. S. Bureau of Standards.

This is just one feature of the service you can expect in our shop—proper equipment, thorough knowledge of our business——and a disposition to treat you courteously at all times.

Let us put your battery in shape for cold weather——NOW!

WE CAN CHARGE YOUR RADIO BATTERY IN ONE DAY!

Pritchard Auto Company

Phone 77 Klemme, Iowa

In Good Company

Just as the man is judged by the company he keeps, so his banking connections may be considered as a factor in estimating his character. Every banking facility is available here——plus ample resources and a reputation for constructive and conservative management.

First National Bank,
KLEMME, IOWA.

Progress

Good roads, well housed contented people, modern lighting, power, heating, transportation and communication are the symbols of progress.

The establishment f highways, power plants, transportation facilities, and communications has been possible only because people have had faith and have been willing to invest of the production of their labor, that these thngs might be. And as a result of this faith and their practical investment, their reward in money and enjoyment has been great and will be greater as time goes on, and icreasing numbers benefit through the applied faith in works of those who have made these conveniences and necessary things possible.

The growth in size and importance of the great Electric Industry is the result of human desire for better things and the faith of the millions of investors who have made this growth possible.

With the vanguard of this great development, marches

CENTRAL STATES ELECTRIC COMPANY

one of the principal Electric and Gas Service Organizations serving Iowa, Minnesota, and Nebraska. This Company is consistently developing power sources and bringing to the commuities it serves, adequate light, heat and power.

Water power has been developed, and tseam and oil engine power plants established. It's slogan has ever been

"AMPLE PUBLIC SERVICE EFFICIENTLY RENDERED"

This is why the new Unit is now being built at the Iowa Falls Power Plant, greatly increasing the resources of power there and why development is in prospect of the water power on the Des Moines River a few miles below Fort Dodge.

These developments are only possible because of the faith of the people who invest money in the business itself and in the men who direct the destinies of this Public Service Company.

Respectfully,

—General Offices—
515 Merchants National Bank Building
Cedar Rapids, Iowa

Central States Electric Company

Canned Goods
SALE

are closing out our entire line of high grade Canned in order to move the stock quickly we have decided to every item on our shelves at an exceedingly low pric:-

20% Discount

..... HERE ARE SOME OF OUR PRICES .....o
JACK SPRAT BEANS larg cans, dozen ..... $1.92 o
JACK SPRAT BEANS, small cans dozen ..... .96 o
HEINZ BEANS, large size cans, dozen ..... $2.40 o
HEINZ BEANS, medium size cans, dozen ..... $1.44 o
HEINZ BEANS, small cans, dozen ..... .96 o
ARMOUR'S BEANS, dozen cans ..... $1.20 o
..... IT WILL PAY YOU TO STOCK UP NOW .....o

OTHER ITEMS ON OUR 20 PER CENT DISCOUNT SALE INCLUDES:—

Dried Beef Potted Ham Cooked Spagetti
rdines Kipper-Snacks Sandwich Relish
Sandwich Spread Thousand Island Dressing
ri Best Veal Loaf · Soup—All kinds in stock Vinegar
Olive Oil Plum Pudding Beef Steak Sauce
einz Sweet and Dill Pickels Salad Cream Catsup
Shrimp Salmon Apple Butter Peanut Butter
elly and Preserves Mustard Mince Meat Olives
Mustard Chow Condensed Milk Canned Oysters
weet Relish Pork & Beans Baked Bans Kidny Beans
nd many other items of canned and bottled foods found n our shelves which we have not listed here.

EVERY THING GOES AT 20 PER CENT DISCOUNT FOR CASH—

Klemme Meat Market

Avery Twp. News

(Special Times Reporter)

Tom Nelson, Jr, had his house re-shingled recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Verner Nelson and daughter, Ardella, were callers at the Tom Nelson home Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs Alec Groh and family attended a wedding at Britt last Tuesday.

Peter Trampel and sons John and Clarence were business callers at Goodell Wednesday.

Mrs. Fred Bachman was a caller at the John Bachman home Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Alec Groh and sons Calvin, Lester and Frederick were at Britt Wednesday.

New Barber Prices

EFFECTIVE MONDAY, OCTOBER 10th

Due to the new State Laws regulating Barber Shops, it has become neccessary for us to raise prices slightly in order to meet these new requirements.

Our prices are in accordance with the Barber Shop Prices in all of the surrounding towns.

The Klemme Barbers

J. C. THOMAS G. W. CARSON

Will Waddingham was a business caller at the Harry GGibbs home one day last week.

Miss Bonnie Bachman spent Monday night at the home of her sister, Mrs. Rob Roths.

Ernest Helps was a caller at the Charlie Fritzel home Tuesday evening.

Tom Roths was down Tuesday to help with the corn shocking at the Frank and Rob Roths farm.

Clarence Johnson was a business caller at the Harry Gibbs home Sunday morning.

The children in District No. 2 got a new merry-go-round for their play ground.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Roths were visitors at the Fred Bachman home on Snuday evening.

Silo filling has been delayed during the last week on acount of the rain.

Joe Bivans and children were callers at the Peter Trampel home Sunday.

Quite a few from this community attended the big Korn Day celebration in Klemme Friday.

Miss Anna Trampell spent a couple of days at the Verner Nelson home.

The roads are very muddy in this locality due to the rain which we have been having during the last week.

Henry Helps recently had a new porch built onto the south side t his house which adds greatly to the appearance of teh building.

Miss Anna Albers has been staying at the Will Bachman home for a couple of days last week while the roads were bad.

D. A and Herb Marshall and Fred Bachman got their cattle from Allie White's pasture Monday, where they were feeding during the summer

Some of the schools in this vicinity did not have school Friday afternoon so the children could attend the Korn Day celebration in Klemme.

Several from this community attended the funeral of Henry Lemke, Jr., which was held last Wednesda at the Ell Township Reformed Church.

The Misses Jane Dutheridge and Gertie Trampel are staying at the Ernest Helps home for a few days on account of the bad weather we have been having lately.

Will Johnson is busy erecting a new style silo made of corn crib wire and tar paper, which is something new in this locality and any other place.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Griffen and family moved into the tenant house where George Stokesbary has lived on the Mrs C. A. Arnold farm. Mr Griffen has been working for Elmer Arnold for a couple of years

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bachman and daughter, Maxine, were callers at the Will Bachman home Saturday

Ted Dutheridge has rented the Mrs. Aug. Trampel silo, which he has started to fill.

Elmer Arnold, who lives southeast of town, has added to his already complete farm equipment, a Westinghouse farm lighting plant It furnishes power for many things as well as lighting up the entire farm lot and buildings and is a big improvement to his farm

Musical Chords

Perfect musical chords are: The major chords, consisting of prime, major third and perfect fifth; the minor chords, consisting of prime, minor third and perfect fifth. All other chords are classed as imperfect. The one especially mentioned is the diminished triad, consisting of prime, minor third and diminished fifth, and is based on the seventh degree of the major scale or the second in the minor mode.

Ancient Palestine City

Caesarea was situated on the coast of Palestine, on the line of the great road from Tyre to Egypt, and about half way between Joppa, the modern Jaffa, and Dora. The distance from Jerusalem was about 70 miles. It became the political capital of Palestine under the Roman governors Caesarea continued to be a city of some importance even in the time of the Crusaders in the Middle ages.

FINE FOOD FOLKS

There's a difference in the way vegetables, meats, etc. are cooked and you will recognize it the moment you eat them here.

We serve only the very best the market affords, all well cooked.

As with everything, we think the best is none too good for our patrons.

Drop in for lunch or any meal anytime, at—

Crystal Cafe

Conrad Quandt, Prop.

Lowe Brothers PAINTS & VARNISHES

Paint Your Barn with Derby Red

A gallon of LOWE BROTHERS DERBY RED and a gallon of linseed oil makes two gallons of tough, weather-proof paint—because Derby Red is made double thick.

Properly reduced this paint is 63% linseed oil—and linseed oil gives long life to any paint job.

Don't take a chance on cheap paints loaded with gasoline, mineral oil, rosin, etc. Come in and let us show you how Derby Red will add years of life to your barn.

E. F. JACOBS

Farm

Loans

5%

Isaac Sweigard

Garner Iowa

PIANOS

Players & Grand

New and

Second Hand

M. N. ZEIGER

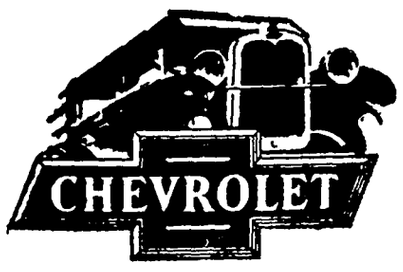
Jewelry & Optical Goods

GARNER, IOWA

You can buy these products with confidence

YOU are doubly assured of quality and continuing service when you buy a General Motors product. Behind the resources of these seven famous cars and of Frigidaire and Delco-Light stand the resources of the whole family of General Motors. Each is tested and proved. And in the prices you pay for these products, you share in the economies of vast production.

We invite you to learn more about these products by sending in the coupon below. Mail it today before you forget. No obligation, but interesting reading.

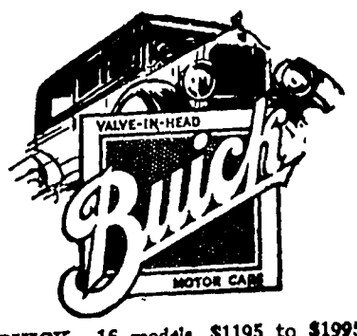


CHEVROLET. 7 models, $525 to $745. Amazing combination of beauty, performance and low price. 3-speed transmission. Beautiful Fisher Bodies. Duco finish. Fully equipped. Also truck chassis; ½-ton, $395; 1-ton, $495.

PONTIAC. 6 models, $745 to $925. Lowest priced six with Bodies by Fisher. Duco finish. Extra-powerful engine. Value proved by ever-increasing sales.

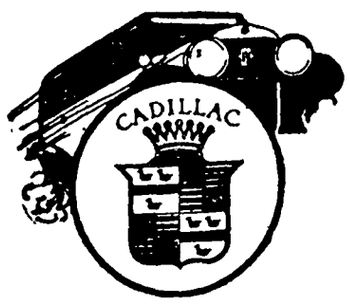
OLDSMOBILE. 7 models, $875 to $1075. New lower prices round out Oldsmobile's master-stroke of General Motors' value-giving. 4-wheel brakes.

OAKLAND. 6 models, $1045 to $1265. The "All-American" model is a bigger, better, more beautiful car, typifying General Motors quality and value in the medium price class. 4-wheel brakes.

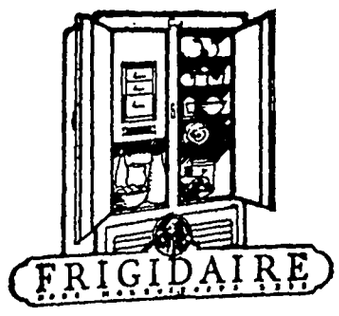


BUICK. 16 models, $1195 to $1995. All the world knows Buick's worth. "Get-away" like an arrow from a bow. Vibrationless beyond belief. Famous 6-cylinder "valve-in-head" engine. 4-wheel brakes. Beautiful low bodies.

LASALLE. 11 models, $2495 to $2995. New and beautiful car designed and built as companion car to Cadillac. Has V-type 8-cylinder engine. Marvelous lines and bodies. Continental in appearance.



CADILLAC. 16 models, $3,350 to $5,500. The standard of the fine car world. 90-degree V-type engine. Bodies by Fisher and Fleetwood. 500 color and upholstery combinations to choose from.



FRIGIDAIRE—the electric refrigerator. General Motors has applied the processes which have made the automobile available to every family to the production of Frigidaire, its electric refrigerator.

DELCO-LIGHT electric plants. Provide the conveniences and labor-saving devices of the city for the farm. Electric light and power plants, water pumps, etc. Used in over a quarter million homes.

(ALL PRICES F. O. B. FACTORIES)

GENERAL MOTORS

"A car for every purse and purpose"

CLIP THIS COUPON

GENERAL MOTORS (Dept. A), Detroit, Mich.

Please send without any obligation to me, your illustrated booklet, "Where Motor Car Facts Are Established," together with information about the particular General Motors product or products I have checked at the right.

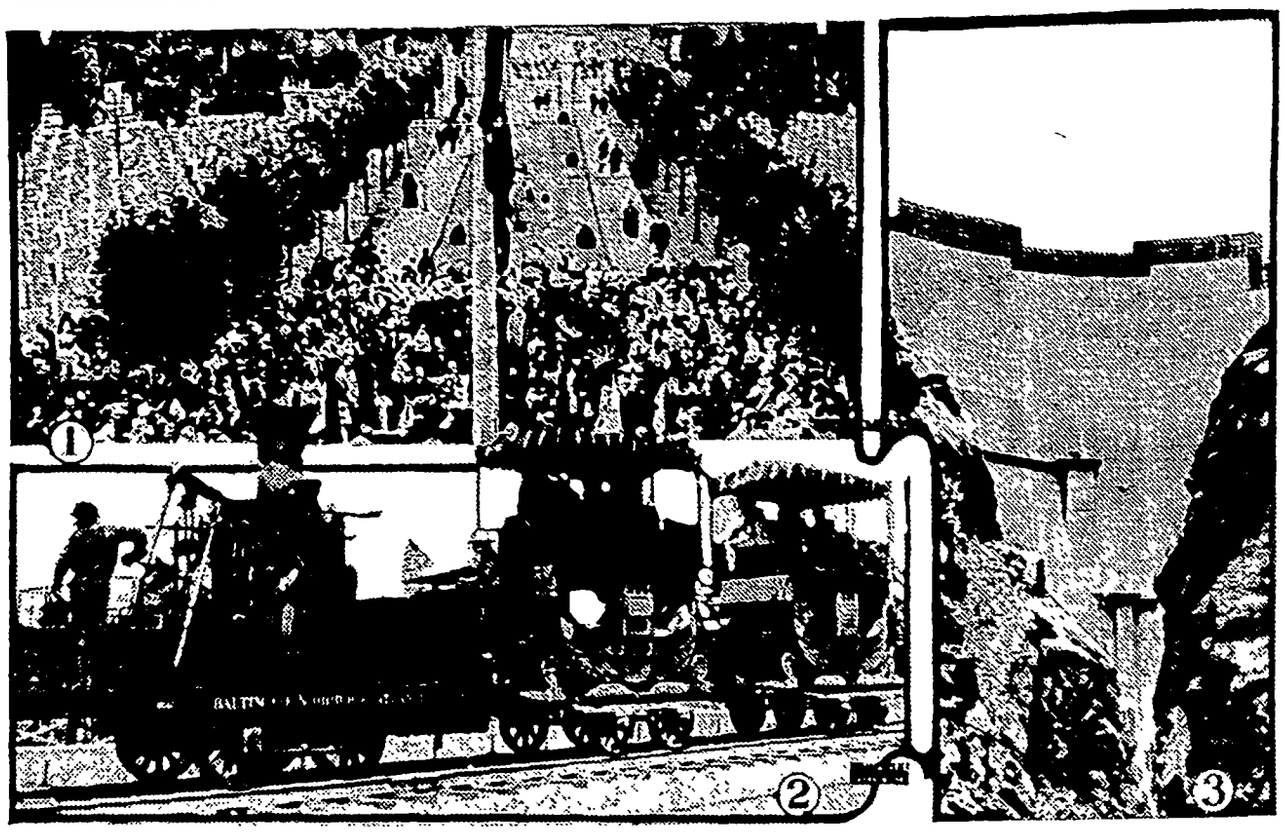
CHEVROLET ☐ OAKLAND ☐ CADILLAC ☐
PONTIAC ☐ BUICK ☐ FRIGIDAIRE ☐
OLDSMOBILE ☐ LASALLE ☐ DELCO-LIGHT ☐

Name_____

Address_____



1—Ceremonies in Suresnes cemetery, France, while General Pershing and Marshal Foch inspected the graves of American soldiers. 2—Old-time engine and cars at the centennial celebration of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad. 3—View of the nearly completed Pacoima Canyon dam, one of the projects designed to protect San Fernando valley, California, from floods.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Scores Killed and Hundreds Injured by a Tornado at St. Louis, Mo.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

BETWEEN seventy and one hundred persons were killed and about six hundred injured by a terrific tornado that swept through St. Louis, Mo., Thursday. An area of six square miles in the city was ravaged by the wind and heavy rain, and the property damage may exceed $75,000,000. More than 5,000 homes were destroyed, as well as numerous business buildings. The storm's path was northeast, across the Mississippi river, and in the Illinois towns of Granite City, Venice and Madison several persons were killed and much damage done.

Governor Baker of Missouri ordered out the National Guard to patrol the storm area in St. Louis, and the local Red Cross as well as hundreds of members of the American Legion turned out for relief work. Mayor Victor Miller issued an appeal for cash contributions to aid the thousands who had been rendered homeless, and a citizens' committee was organized to co-operate with the Red Cross in raising funds.

FINANCIERS and many other persons are still immensely interested in the recent action of the federal reserve board reducing its rediscount rate, and it seems certain that the affair will be the subject of a congressional investigation. Members of the board, it is said, expect such an inquiry and are prepared to defend their course. It is charged that the rate was reduced at the behest of the governors of the British, French and German central banks, and at least one Federal Reserve bank governor, George W. Norris of Philadelphia, frankly admits that the action was taken for the purpose of aiding European finances, and thus benefiting the United States. He explains this as follows:

"Great Britain has just recently gone back to the gold standard, Germany, Austria and Hungary are stabilized. Poland is about to be stabilized, while France and Italy are not. The United States, with half the gold in the world, is vitally interested in the preservation of the gold standard among nations.

"The situation in Europe is such that several of the great banks in England and on the continent saw that they would have to raise their discount rates unless the rates over here were lowered. If they had been compelled to advance their rates, it would have thrown a chill on business throughout the continent and in England. This in turn, would seriously affect our export business with those nations just at the time when volume shipments of cotton, wheat and other commodities are beginning."

It is said the visit in the summer of Sir Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, who was accompanied by Schacht and Rist of the German and French banks, respectively, was for the express purpose of inducing the federal reserve board to reduce the rediscount rate and thus bring about the flow of money to Europe, where higher rates were maintained. Norman succeeded in this and the immediate result was what he aimed at. With the American rate 1 per cent below that of London funds began to flow back to the British market and sterling exchange began to advance, being now at par, an unprecedented situation at a time of year when there is heavy British buying of American cotton, grain and other products.

REAR ADMIRAL THOMAS P. MAGRUDER, commandant of the Philadelphia navy yard, stirred up a lot of discussion by a magazine article in which he severely criticized the navy as "overorganized and run on wasteful lines." Though the admiral might have been disciplined for publishing the article without first submitting it to the Navy department. Secretary Wilbur has taken what most of us will regard as the wiser course and has called on Magruder to "submit to the Navy department promptly a full and detailed statement embodying his plan for reorganizing the navy and the Navy department upon more economical lines."

"Of course, I have no such plan now," said the admiral, "and I have so informed the department. To make such a plan would require the expert assistance of a number of officers and the necessary clerical help over a long period."

Admiral Magruder charged that the navy supported too many admirals and too few enlisted men, was tied up with red tape, was overorganized ashore and afloat, that uneconomical methods begun in war time were continued and that the navy had failed completely to demobilize following the World war. He asserted that many of the navy yards would be discontinued were it not for political influences.

BEARING on the navy situation comes a statement from the White House that President Coolidge wants first-class army and navy establishments maintained in this country and has no intention of asking any reduction in the amount of funds now expended annually for national defense. The President is convinced that the country is well able to meet the taxes imposed by present expenditures of $700,000,000 annually, for the army and navy, and his main desire is to insure that the best possible military and naval establishments are obtained with the funds voted by congress.

AMERICAN Legionnaires, who are traveling about Europe after the close of their convention, are being received everywhere with great enthusiasm. So far the only unpleasantness was the attempt to bomb the train on which Commander Savage and his party were going to Italy. This was laid to the Communists and fortunately was frustrated by the fact that the train was running behind time. King Victor Emmanuel received the party in the royal palace at Pisa in most democratic fashion, and in Rome the Legionnaires were greeted by the city officials and immense throngs of cheering citizens. They marched to the grave of the Unknown Soldier and laid a wreath upon it, then changed to evening dress and were received in audience by the pope.

Meanwhile another group of the Legionnaires was having a fine time in London and elaborate plans were made by the English for festivities and a reception by King George this week, when the party with Mr. Savage were due there.

GREAT BRITAIN won the Schneider trophy in the seaplane race at Venice when Flight Lieut. S. N. Webster in a Napier supermarine plane whirled over the course of 31¼ miles at an average speed of 281.488 miles an hour or about 4.7 miles a minute. This broke all existing speed records, and on the straightaways Webster flew at a rate of five miles a minute. His average time for the closed course was five miles an hour faster than the average of Maj. Mario de Bernardi in a land plane over the open course two years ago, when the Italian established a world's speed record.

Motor trouble forced all the Italian entries to quit before completing the course. The United States did not participate in the race this year because its only entrant, Lieut. Alford J. Williams, crack navy flyer, did not have time to complete preparatory tests in his specially constructed seaplane.

INDIANA citizens who are trying to clean up the politics of the state were considering measures last week to force from office Mayor Duval of Indianapolis, who was convicted of violating the corrupt practices act. The mayor tried to forestall such action by appointing his wife city controller. According to law that official becomes mayor if the mayoralty becomes vacant. It was revealed, also, that eight relatives of Duval hold positions in the city government. Arthur Gilliom, attorney general of Indiana, addressing a gathering of Republican workers, warned them that unless they killed the klan in the state they would kill the party. He declared the Democrats were partly responsible for the super-government rule there, but this was warmly denied by R. Earl Peters, Democratic state chairman.

COMPLETE anarchy seems about to prevail in all China south of the Yangtse river. The Hankow Nationalist government virtually collapsed when the Central Bank of Canton, the Bank of China and the Bank of Communications declared a two months' moratorium. They have a total of $64,000,000 in paper currency issued in Hupeh province alone. Tang Shenshi, military head of the government, fled aboard a warship. The Nanking government of the moderate Nationalists, also seemed about to fall, and the Communists are forming councils of the workers and peasants and calling on all of those classes to take arms.

An official Russian dispatch says Eugene Chen, former Chinese Nationalist foreign minister, and Mme. Sun Yat-sen, widow of the founder of the Chinese republic, were married recently in Moscow.

LICHTENSTEIN, the little European principality which lies between Switzerland and Austria, suffered severely from floods that followed three days of torrential rains. Its villages were almost wiped out and many lives were lost. Bavarian, Austrian and Swiss troops all crossed the borders to help rescue the people. The floods also caused great damage in neighboring regions and railway service was interrupted.

GREECE is having a strenuous time trying to prevent a coup by agents of Pangalos, the former dictator who is in a fortress awaiting trial on a charge of treason. Many arrests have been made and all the police have been armed with guns. Enemies of Mussolini assert that the trouble in Greece is fomented by the Italian premier, who gets blamed for almost everything in that part of the world.

BARON AGO VON MALTZAN, German ambassador to the United States, was killed in Germany when an airplane in which he was traveling to rejoin his wife, crashed. He had made himself very popular in Washington and was considered one of his country's best diplomats.

Lew Shank, auctioneer and former mayor of Indianapolis, one of the most picturesque figures in Indiana public life, died suddenly. Another notable American who passed away was Edward T. Jeffery, former president of the Illinois Central and widely known for his achievements in the railroad world.

BERNARD J. DOTY of Memphis, Tenn., has been pardoned by the President of France after serving part of an eight-year prison term for desertion from the French foreign legion while on active duty in Syria. He was ordered to rejoin his regiment in Algeria. Doty had served in the American army during the World war and his case attracted much attention both in the United States and in France. His desertion in Syria was brief and was caused merely by homesickness.

MEXICAN troops fought two engagements in the state of Jalisco with rebels described as "Catholic fanatics" and killed 34 of them. In one of the combats Father Sedano, a Catholic priest, was captured, court-martialed as the leader and promptly executed.

The long-distance telephone line between Washington and Mexico City was formally opened last week by a personal conversation between President Coolidge and President Calles. As neither understands the other's language the talk was interpreted at both terminals. Other distinguished persons were at each end of the line, and the United States army band and the Mexican national band played the national anthems.

Improved Uniform International

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D.D., Dean Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)
(©, 1927, by Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for October 9

ELIJAH HEARS GOD'S VOICE

LESSON TEXT—I Kings 19.

GOLDEN TEXT—Wait on the Lord, be of good courage, and He shall strengthen thine heart.

PRIMARY TOPIC — Elijah Hears God's Voice.

JUNIOR TOPIC — God Encourages Elijah.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Listening to God's Voice.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—How God Speaks to Men.

I. Elijah's Flight (vv. 1-14).

Upon Ahab's return from the excitement on Mount Carmel, he told his wife all that Elijah had done, that even all her prophets had been hewn to pieces by the sword. This so enraged her that she sent a message of death to Elijah, who seems to have been waiting at the gate (vv. 1, 2). Though Elijah had courageously stood before the king and the priests of Baal, he now cowered before this woman, and fled for his life. Let us beware lest when we think we stand, we fall (I Cor. 10:12).

1. Elijah under the juniper tree (vv. 3-7). The juniper tree was a shrub of the desert which afforded shelter and protection to travelers from the burning sun by day and the cold wind by night.

(1) His request (v. 4): This was that he might die. This was no doubt a foolish thing for him to say, but let us be as considerate toward him as was God. The discouragement, and even despondency, of Elijah, was due to the nervous strain of about four years of unusual service for God, which culminated on Mount Carmel. Such nervous reaction is to be expected, and surely the heart of this lesson will be missed unless we see it in that light, and see God's tenderness toward his overwrought servant.

(2) God's tender treatment (vv. 5-7). a. He gave him sleep (v. 5). "He giveth His beloved sleep" (Ps. 127:2). b. He sent an angel to cook Elijah's meal (vv. 6, 7). The angel of the Lord is usually understood to be the second member of the Holy Trinity. If this be correct, then we see Jehorah-Jesus preparing food for His servant Elijah, as He afterward did for His discouraged disciples by Galilee.

2. Elijah at Horeb (vv. 8-14). God had kindly ministered to His discouraged prophet so that he would be in a fit condition to receive the needed instruction and correction.

(1) God's interview with Elijah in the cave (vv. 9, 10). a. God's question, "What doest thou here, Elijah?" (v. 9). This was a stinging rebuke, though most kindly given. It implied that his appointed messenger was now far away from the field of duty. How blessed to know that "A God-forsaking saint is not a God-forsaken saint"! b. Elijah's answer (v. 10). Elijah tried to vindicate himself by asserting his jealous loyalty to God—that in spite of all this the people had not only rejected his message and dishonored God, but sought to destroy him.

(2) God's interview with Elijah on the mount (vv. 11-14). While standing before the Lord on the mount, God caused a mighty demonstration of wind, earthquake and fire to pass before him, to show unto him the nature of the work he had been doing for God, and to show him what was lacking in his work for the fullest attainment of success. Elijah had about him much of the whirlwind, earthquake and fire. His work had been terrifying and alarming, but it lacked in gentleness and love. This object lesson in the days of God's working is a needed message for this age, which is so wonderfully characterized by noise and clamor. The world is not "taken for Christ" by the fleshly energy and enthusiasms of conventions and committees, but by the quiet hearts who go forth proclaiming God's Word in the energy of the Holy Spirit.

II. Elijah's Return (vv. 15-18).

Though Elijah had erred, God brought him again into His service. How comforting to know that God does not reject His servants because of their failures in times of despondency! He deals with them after the motive of their hearts. Elijah was nourished and instructed by the Lord and then sent on a high mission. God took Elijah out of himself by giving him a new commission. Before God would come in His chariot to take Elijah home, he sent him upon a threefold ministry.

1. To anoint Hazael king over Syria (v. 15).

2. To anoint Jehu king over Israel (v 16).

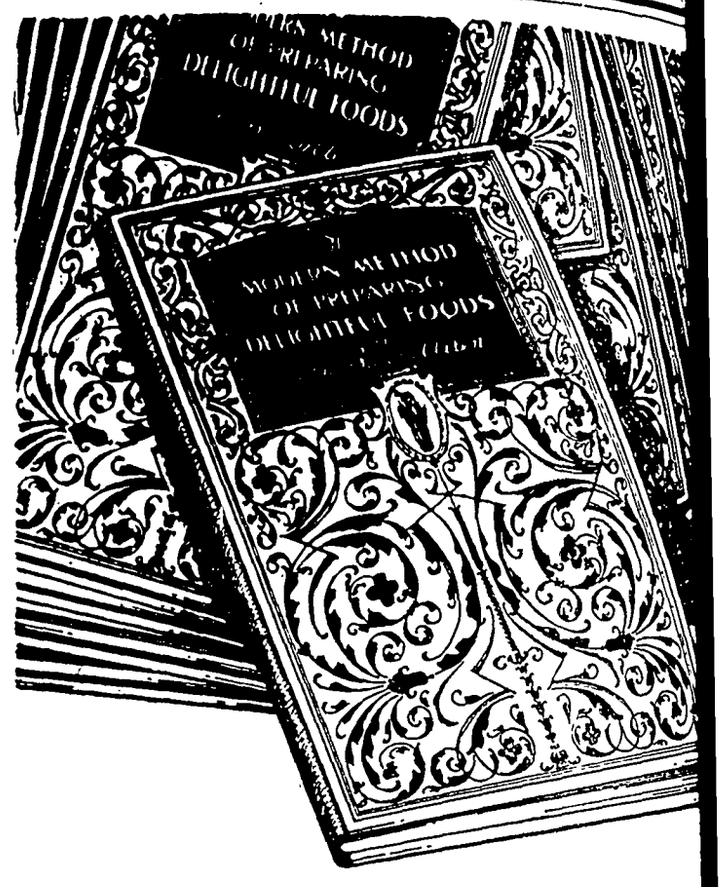
3. To anoint Elisha as his own successor in the prophet's room (vv. 19-21).

Look Up to God

Dare to look up to God and say: Deal with me in the future as Thou wilt: I am of the same mind as Thou art; I am Thine; I refuse nothing that pleases Thee; lead me where Thou wilt; clothe me in any dress Thou choosest.—Epictetus.

One Vast Union

We behold all around us one vast union in which no man can labor for himself without laboring at the same time for all others.—Longfellow.



YOUR Copy Is Ready

MRS. IDA BAILEY ALLEN'S new book, "The Modern Method of Preparing Delightful Foods," contains nearly 300 new and unusual recipes and suggestions for preparing delicious foods for every occasion.

The new edition is now ready; merely send 10 cents (stamps or coin) with the coupon below and a copy will be promptly sent you.

SEND THIS COUPON TODAY

Send ten cents (stamps or coin) with this coupon and you will promptly receive your copy of Ida Bailey Allen's new book, "The Modern Method of Preparing Delightful Foods," containing nearly three hundred new and unusual recipes. Address:

CORN PRODUCTS REFINING CO. ★
208 E. ILLINOIS STREET, CHICAGO, ILL.

Name.....
Address.....
Town.....State.....

Peace Efforts Akin to Labors of Small Boy?

Secretary Merrill Anderson of the Pan-American Peace union, said at a dinner in Washington:

"The governments of the world keep pegging away at the disarmament question, and the result promises to be—well, like the story.

"A man looked over his garden wall the other afternoon and saw the little son of his neighbor hammering lustily on a toy wheelbarrow.

"'What are you doing to the wheelbarrow, sonny?' the man asked.

"'Mendin' her,' said the boy. 'She's broke.'

"'Well, the man met the boy's father in the evening and said:

"'Your son was mighty busy this afternoon.'

"'Yes? What was he up to?'

"'He was repairing his toy wheelbarrow.'

"'Gee,' said the father, 'I guess he's repaired it beyond repair now.'"

Fed by Thirteen Rivers

The city of Jackson, Mich., uses electricity generated by the flow of waters from 13 rivers. Memorializing the service of all these rivers to the citizens of the community, a bottle containing water from all of them was broken over the entrance of a new headquarters building of the electric light and power company recently. This odd touch in the ceremony by which the building was christened attracted a great deal of attention in Michigan.

Oh, I Understand

"Hello! Where are you walking in such a hurry?"

"Fellow just stole my car."

"But you can't overtake him on foot."

"Oh yes. He forgot the repair kit."—Washington Star.

A small radio set devised for motors by the United States navy permits signals even when the motors are dead.

DIURETIC STIMULANT TO THE KIDN
Standard for Generations.

Mrs. Maranda N. Small, Broke... row, Oklahoma, R. F. D. No. 2, w... as follows:

"I am now 76 years old and have... taking Dodd's Pills for 27 years. B... taking these pills for kidney tro... I could not get my foot to the gr... without help, and could only lie p... on my side. I took three boxes... felt like a new woman. Believ... would have been in my grave h... not been for Dodd's Pills."

At all druggists, 60c per box, or... Dodds Medicine Co., Inc., 70... St., Buffalo, N. Y.

For Pipe Sores, Fistu... Poll Evil Try HANFORD'S Balsam of Myrr...
All dealers are authorized to refund your money... first bottle if not suited.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM
Removes Dandruff-Stops Hair... Restores Color and Beauty to Gray and Faded... 60c and $1.00 at Druggists. Hiscox Chem. Wks. Patchogue...

FLORESTON SHAMPOO—Ideal for use in connection with Parker's Hair Balsam. Makes hair soft and fluffy. 50 cents by mail or at druggists. Hiscox Chemical Works, Patchogue, N...

In New York city more than 50... lice are constantly engaged in search for persons reported lost or missing.

Children Cry for

Fletcher's CASTORIA

MOTHER:— Fletcher's Castoria is especially prepared to relieve Infants in arms and Children all ages of Constipation, Flatulency, Wind Colic and Diarrhea; allaying Feverishness arising therefrom, and, by regulating the Stomach and Bowels, aids the assimilation of Food; giving natural sleep.

To avoid imitations, always look for the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher
Absolutely Harmless - No Opiates. Physicians everywhere recommend it.

WOMAN FOUND RELIEF

Suffering by Taking E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

town of the middle West, couraged woman. For four months she had been in such poor health that she could not stoop to put on her own shoes. Unable to do her work, unable to go out of doors or enjoy a friendly chat with her neighbors, life seemed dark indeed to Mrs. Daugherty.

Then one day, a booklet was left at door. Idly she turned the Soon she was reading with interest. The little booklet with letters from women in similar to hers who had ter health by taking Lydia E. 's Vegetable Compound.

n taking the Vegetable Com- Mrs. Daugherty writes, "and ok the third bottle, I found re- m on my eleventh bottle and have that trouble any more, like a different woman. I nd the Vegetable Compound to I see who has trouble like d you can use these facts as onal. I am willing to answer rs from women asking about etable Compound."—Mrs. Ed. rr, 1308 Orchard Ave., Musca- a.

u on the Sunlit Road to Bet- th?

Stayed Put

ou have stayed out in the told you not to do that. In ler days of practice my pa- ere much more obedient." was that?" s prison doctor."—Louisville Journal.

Couldn't Be

You are extravagant. You oney for unnecessary clothes. Absurd; unnecessary clothes in fashion.—Pathfinder.

y He Succeeded

ed politically and profession- uring his lifetime, Dr. R. V. Pierce, whose picture appears here, made a success few have equalled. His pure herbal remedies which have stood the test for many years are still among the "best sellers." Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a stomach ve which makes the blood richer. s the skin, beautifies it, pimples ptions vanish quickly. This Dis- of Dr. Pierce's puts you in fine n. All dealers have it in liquid ets.

10 cents for trial pkg. of tab- Dr. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., and or free advice.

schee's Syrup

n relieving coughs due to colds ty-one years.

thes the Throat

the phlegm, promotes expecto- gives a good night's rest free oughing. 30c and 90c bottles. at your drug store. G. G. Green, oodbury, N. J.

purely vegetable, Infants' and 's Regulator, formula on every label. ed non-narcotic, non-alcoholic.
S. WINSLOW'S SYRUP
e Infants' and Children's Regulator ren grow healthy and free colic, diarrhoea, flatulency, pation and other trouble if it at teething time. pleasant—always brings re- able and gratifying results.

OR OVER 00 YEARS

m oil has been a world- remedy for kidney, liver and r disorders, rheumatism, ago and uric acid conditions.

GOLD MEDAL HAARLEM OIL CAPSULES

t internal troubles, stimulate vital . Three sizes. All druggists. Insist original genuine GOLD MEDAL.

ORNS

ds pain at once!

e minute pain from corns is ended. choll's Zino-pads do this safely moving the cause—pressing and ng of shoes. They are thin, medi- antiseptic, healing. At all drug hoe stores. Cost but a trifle.

Dr Scholl's Zino-pads

one on—the pain is gone!

U. DES MOINES, NO. 41--1927.

MEN MAROONED

By GEORGE MARSH

Copyright by The Penn Publishing Co.
WNU Service.

STORY FROM THE START

Garth Guthrie, Canadian war veteran, having to live in the open on account of weakened lungs, is factor of a Hudson's Bay post at Elkwan. He came back from the conflict with a permanently scarred face, which he realizes cost him the love of his fiancee, Edith Falconer. Sir Charles Guthrie, his brother, is a millionaire war profiteer. With Etienne Savanne, halfbreed, his firm friend, Garth meets Doctor Quarrior, geologist, and his sister Joan. Quarrier complains he has been robbed by a man known as "Laughing McDonald." At Elkwan an Indian girl, Ninda, tuberculosis victim, whom Garth has befriended, is dying. Joan, trained war nurse, cares for Ninda, but the girl dies. Three of McDonald's party visit Elkwan seeking to buy gun shells. From them Garth learns of evil talk among the Indians concerning him and Ninda. With Etienne's help Garth wins the friendship of Saul Souci, "medicine man" of the Crees, and gets his promise to persuade the Crees to take their furs to Elkwan instead of to McDonald. Garth is ambushed by Joe Mokoman, Ninda's reputed father. "Shot," Garth's airedale companion, saves him, and the Indian is taken, a prisoner, to Elkwan. Garth sends Mokoman to McDonald with a message of defiance, and the war is on. Garth hails with joy the freezing of the strait, which will enable Souci's followers to bring their furs to Elkwan without difficulty.

CHAPTER VII—Continued

—11—

"Mokoman lies!" stormed the startled half-breed, but the germ of a suspicion of the old conjurer's loyalty quickened in his brain. "Are there camps at the head of the river in the barrens?" he asked, keen to catch the Ojibwa and old Saul, the traitor, at their work.

"Yes, you will see them before the light dies, and there are more on the north fork."

"Remember," cautioned the puzzled half-breed, as he turned to his dogs, "the boat at Seal cove is full of demons—bewitched. Those who go will never look again with joy on their wives and children." And with this parting shot, the shrewd Savanne called "Bo'-jo'!" and joined his chief.

As they again took the river trail, from here on ice-hard from constant use by the teams of the hunters, Etienne gave Guthrie the gist of his talk.

"Old Saul—at the schooner? It's only a lie of that Ojibwa," objected Garth, unable to reconcile the old man's simplicity and directness with this deceit. "A lie to weaken the effect of Saul's coming to the island to work for us."

"Mebbe so, but I t'ink somet'ing ver' strange here. Dees camp ees near de shore—why has Saul not come here?"

"They may have lied. He may have been here," suggested Garth. Etienne shook his head. "No, he nevaire cum here or dey talk more 'bout heem. He ees medicine man and de squaw would talk mooch eef he cum."

"Well, let's see what the people above here say. Then we can compare the stories and judge better what to believe, and what our next move is. If Saul has turned yellow—we're surely done."

Facing the man riding behind him, Etienne nodded. "Eef Saul work for de schooner, he weel tak' de Elkwan Cree wid heem." Then the lean features of the half-breed tightened. His small eyes closed to slits, as he viciously cracked his whip. "But dat ol' shaman weel mak' hees las' medicine," he rasped.

The hate in the face of the dog-driver was so intense that Garth objected: "You can't shoot him up for that, you know. It would only react on Marie and the children, and on me."

Etienne's mouth curled in an inscrutable smile. "No one but Saul Souci weel know who meet heem on de trail."

"I guess you'd be capable of ambushing him for this, but we're not dead yet. Let's see what the hunters at the head of the river say."

In the scrub rimming the shores of the first lake from which the tundra undulated to the skyline, the men in quest of Saul Souci found the tipis of the hunters. It was a camp of three families and smoke from the supper fires already lifted above the spruce when the arrival of the dog-team raised a general alarm from the huskies fastened in the scrub.

"Kequay! kequay!" called Etienne, and a shock of black hair was thrust through a door flap, as a curious Cree emerged to meet the strangers.

"He's not from Elkwan," dropped Guthrie disappointed, as the Indian approached to shake hands.

"'Allo, Achille!" And Etienne warmly gripped the hand of the Indian, who then greeted Garth. "Achille Laguerre from Kapiskau, and me, ol' fr'en'," announced the patently pleased head man to his chief.

We'll learn something now, thought the factor, as they drove the dogs into the spruce, fed them their frozen whitefish, and chained them separately to trees. As the December sun was long down and their tent lashed under the toboggan cover, Etienne accepted the hospitality of Laguerre's smoke-filled tipi. There, with eyes weeping from the unaccustomed smoke, Garth ate boiled rabbit and lake-trout from the copper kettle hung above the fire, from which the wife and numerous children of Achille gorged in common. But the appetite sharpened by the ride up the valley in the keen air was impervious to the informality of Cree table manners and Garth's tin cup went back to the steaming stew and the tea pail with the regularity of his smoke-tanned host and hostess, until his belt warned of surfeit.

He passed to each of the Crees a twist of company nigger-head, and pipe smoke swiftly added to the opaqueness of the tipi air. Then Etienne, who had avoided the subject of Souci and the schooner in his gossip with the curious and perplexed Laguerre, opened with:

"You know de strait ees froze?"

Achille, who spoke English, gravely nodded. "You cum to de island. Let mus' be so."

"Oou, mon ami. We are here. Eet ees enough. Why, Achille Laguerre," he went on, probing the small, half-shut eyes of the half-breed, "do

Etienne Accepted the Hospitality of Laguerre's Smoke-Filled Tipi.

M'sieu' Guthrie and I, Etienne Savanne, cross de ice to mak' talk wid you?" Etienne paused and blew a cloud of smoke along the stem of his pipe, which his teeth gripped.

Achille grinned widely. "You cum to mak' fight for de fox," he chuckled.

"You are mos' smart man, ma fr'en,' but you mak' beeg meestake. We cum to tak' de fox back to Elkwan wid de peopl' for beeg tam at la bonne annee, New Year."

"Ah-hah!"

"You go to Kapiskau, Achille?"

The Indian slowly shook his head. "I go to de beeg boat. He pay beeg price for pelt."

Garth leaned eagerly forward to hear the counter stroke which Etienne was waiting to launch.

"Ah-hah!" For a space, the cracking of a spruce knot was the only sound in the tipi. Then Savanne began: "You not ver' smart man, Achille. You leesen to dat 'Jibwa Wabeno, Mokoman. Ah-hah, you not so smart man. . . . We tak' heem to dis island wid old Souci. You know why?" Etienne paused dramatically to relight his pipe. "So McDonal' put de devil into heem."

Nervously twisting her hands, the squaw of Achille stared at the speaker from awe-filled eyes. The stolid features of the half-breed reflected curiosity, doubt—but no fear.

"I put dat Mokoman undair de ice up de Elkwan—he mak' troubl' for us; but we weesh to have devil put een heem by McDonal' Ha! Ha!"

"Mokoman was here," dryly countered Achille.

"Was Souci wid heem?" snapped Etienne, as a dog a bone, and Garth's pulse quickened as he waited for the reply.

"No, Souci ees ovair de hill, nord."

"W'en you say Saul was at de schooner?"

Again Guthrie leaned to catch Achille's return.

The half-breed waited, spat into the fire, then said: "You hear dat?"

Etienne nodded. Now he would learn the truth from a friend who, in the old days of their comradeship, had never lied; but, in his extremity, he himself launched brazenly into outrageous fabrication. "We sen' old Saul to de schooner to talk wid de devil of McDonal'."

The self-possession of Achille fell from him like a leaf from a tree. "You sen' heem dere?" he demanded excitedly.

Etienne was relieved. He had pierced the armor of his friend—was at last making progress.

Amazed and delighted at the resource of his head man and wondering where his astounding imagination would further lead him, Garth watched the changing expression on the dark features of Achille.

"Ah-hah!" casually assented Etienne. "We know dis McDonal' Ha! Ha! mak' bad medicine an' de pore Injun who go to hees boat nevaire love dere familee any more, but travel far away and leave dem to starve—"

"Ahuah! ahuah!" wailed the terrified squaw, and launched in Cree a delirious outburst of entreaty and appeal.

Achille's attempts to sooth her hysterics succeeded only in increasing the lamentations of the superstitious woman. At length she calmed to a low moaning, which was joined by the wailing of the awakened children.

Under cover of the dusk of the tipi, sinewy fingers gripped Guthrie's stockinged foot. With the skill of a sorcerer, Etienne had planted the seeds of superstitious terror in the tipi of his friend. The work of Saul and Mokoman was rapidly being undone by the shrewd Savanne. Then voices outside announced the coming of the hunters from the neighboring tipis. Crowding through the doorflap of the snow-banked tent, three Indians from the Kapiskau river entered and sat down.

The fire was freshened and briefly Achille explained the situation which had aroused the fears of his wife. With the faces of stoics the men smoked, while the story of Etienne was repeated, but when they heard that Mokoman had been brought to the island with Saul because of the witchcraft of McDonald, they, too, lost their gravity and their calm. For that this mutilated stranger should be the intimate and crony of the spirits of darkness was not beyond the credulity of the impressionable Cree. And did not Achille vouch for this Savanne, his old comrade, from Elkwan? It was true, they argued, the big man with the unspeakable face offered high prices for fox pelts, but if he were in league with devils—as he might be with that leer, which never died—of what use would be the trade goods he bartered to those who left the ship mad with the medicine. And now that the women knew, there would be no peace. Still, Souci would know, and tell them. They would go to Souci, the shaman, who, camped with his sons over the big barrens to the north. So it was left; and two gratified men from Elkwan rolled into their blankets in the tipi of Achille Laguerre.

CHAPTER VIII

The stars pierced the blue dusk forerunner of the stinging dawn when a dog-team pulled out of the black spruce and dwarf tamarack rimming the headwater ponds of the Ptarmigan and followed a trap-line trail up into the tundra which billowed away to the wind-whipped backbone of the island. On they hurried, the team and the wide-ranging Shot, for somewhere in the valleys of the Rabbit or the Canoe, Mokoman and the renegade Souci were seducing the hunters from Elkwan. And Christmas was but six days away—Christmas, with teams from the three winds drifting down the valley into Elkwan for the trade and the feast at New Year's.

There was little time to be lost if they were to win the hunters of Akimiski and lead them across the strait. So the five dogs took the uphill work at a trot, while the men trailed the sled.

In the middle of the morning the men left the trap-line and breaking trail ahead of the dogs, slowly climbed the last rise of the barrens. In places the lack of snow on the brittle heath made the work of the dogs heartbreaking. While the flat toboggan slid over the frozen tundra, the huskies, seeking a footing, constantly broke through. Shortly, their bleeding feet forced a stop while moccasins were lashed to their legs. But at last, panting dogs and men stood on the roof of the island.

Through the glasses Garth made out the white delta of the Elkwan, and his thoughts drifted to two women who had once shared his quarters there—two women who did not shrink at scars.

But it was bitter cold on the open ridge and the dog-team turned down, seeking the valley of the Rabbit, masked by intervening hills. Over the tundra the snowshoes packed the trail for the sliding toboggan, while the dogs ran, where the hard snow on the heath gave them footing, and slaved, where they broke through the low bushes of the brushed barren when they threw their weight into their collars.

As the day advanced, the frost strengthened. A veil of haze slowly curtained the low-swinging sun, and the dog-team hurried on, for the night would fall in early afternoon, and to be caught on the high tundra by a wind meant swift freezing.

Still before them the endless hill lifted to the horizon with no indication of the break of a low valley where timber would give them shelter and a cooking fire. At noon it was evident that Etienne was worried. Never before had Garth seen his head man use the whip on his dogs as he used it that day; never in their journeys had the fur-lined hood, circled with ice and rime, turned so often while the slit-like eyes of the half-breed consulted the horizon.

"Beeg blow comin'. Mooch snow, she fall soon."

"It can't be far now," said Garth. "We've surely made the twenty miles. The Rabbit must head over that hill."

"Eef we don't get off dees high countree before de win' blow, we nevaire get off," was the quiet rejoinder.

"It's colder, already." And Garth took in the belt of his parka.

"De dog weel not travel mooch more. Dere feet are cut to pieces on dis frozen bush."

On up the next ascent the limping dogs, with breath trailing behind like ribbons of smoke, followed the trail breakers. Gaining the backbone of the ridge, the men stood with startled eyes looking north. Instead of the wide basin of the Rabbit headwaters with its scrub-fringed lakes, they looked across a treeless barren.

The grave eyes of Etienne met Garth's puzzled look.

"Those Indians lied."

"No," objected the half-breed. "We travel ver' slow. Eeet ees ovair dere." And he pointed to the far ridge.

"It will be dark when we hit it."

"One hour more light and de win' rise," muttered Savanne as he patted Castor, who lay at his feet, his steaming red tongue hanging from a mouth hung with ice. "You ver' tired, Castor? You mak dat ridge?"

The powerful leader got to his sore feet and whined as if he understood, but the listless team lay sprawled on the trail.

"It's come," announced Garth, as a curtain of snow drifted in from the northeast.

"We go! Up, mes enfants! Allons! Marche, Castor!"

An hour later, five dogs sheathed in white, plodding slowly behind two ghostlike shapes, reached the rim of the basin of the Rabbit headwaters. Dimly below them, through the pall of snow and gathering dusk, the men traced the scrub edging the lakes with shadow. As they stood in the rising wind as the dogs rested, night shut down, wiping from their eyes the goal they sought, as a sponge wipes clean a slate.

"I've got the compass direction, north, northwest," said Garth.

Etienne shook his snow-crusted hood. "Keep de win' on right cheek. So long cheek froze, we head right for de timber." He turned to the dogs, white as the snow they lay on. "Marche, Castor, mon brave!" And snapping his whip, he tugged at the harnesses until the reluctant brutes got to their feet.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Find Cathedral Ruins in Greenland Colony

Within a hundred miles of Cape Farewell, at Julianehaab, in Greenland, lie the remains of the greatest Scandinavian cathedral except that of old Trondhjem in Norway.

Doctor Norland of Copenhagen has been spending some time making excavations there, and he found the foundations of the cathedral. They are nearly a hundred feet long.

In one of the chapels of the cathedral the body of a bishop has been found in full canonicals, with a ring on the finger and a crook made of walrus tusks. He probably lived about 1200 A. D.

Perhaps even more interesting than the cathedral is the episcopal palace close by. It must have been the largest building in Greenland except the home of the founder of the colony, Eric the Red, at Brattalid. The front is 160 feet long. The palace and its outhouses cover three acres, and there is accommodation for a hundred cattle as well as for horses, sheep and pigs.

It is realized that the old Greenland settlement was on a bigger scale than has hitherto been supposed. There must have been three or four thousand farms.

Still Belief in Witches

Belief in witches still exists in England today, stated a lecturer on witchcraft before a London society. She said in one village in Dorset a certain amount of the witches' organizations still remains. When I went down there recently I asked one of the women about it. She said, "Witch Fanny is dead." I asked, "Who is witch now?" and she replied without hesitation, "Witch Bessie is witch now." The question of succession was easily and quickly arranged, but I could not find out how or when it was done.

Rodin's Masterpiece

The original study of Rodin's "The Thinker," a small statue intended to have been placed over a doorway, is in the Rodin museum, in France. The first cast in heroic size, displayed originally in 1904, was purchased by the French government and stands in front of the Pantheon in Paris. There are five others, all made from the original mold, on this continent. One stands at the entrance of the Cleveland Museum of Art, one in Golden Gate park, San Francisco, another in Baltimore, the fourth at the Detroit Institute of Arts, and the fifth in Buenos Aires.

Costly Indisposition

Common colds cost the American people a billion dollars a year in time lost from work.

ALL ROADS LEAD TO

DRAKE STADIUM

(Des Moines)

FOOTBALL

October 1
SIMPSON
vs.
DRAKE
Best Seats, $1.50

October 15
PITTSBURGH
vs.
DRAKE
Best Seats, $2.50

November 5
AMES
vs.
DRAKE
Best Seats, $2.50

November 19
NOTRE DAME
vs.
DRAKE
Best Seats, $3.00

Buy Season Ticket and Save $1.50

Season Tickets, good for best reserved seats at all four of Drake's home games, are being sold for $5.00—an average of only $2.00 per game. Drive in to Des Moines for these football classics—the roads are good. Send check or money order today and get choice seats. Address—

Drake Ticket Office
Des Moines, Iowa

In Its Original State

A primeval forest refers to the original forest; that is, a forest that has stood unchanged from the earliest period of history.

Any garment can be made to look like new with rich fast black . . .

RIT

FAST DYES OR TINTS
24 POPULAR SHADES

WANTED—LADIES TO DEMONSTRATE now line fall and winter coats. Biggest values. Lowest prices. Write THE GERTRUDE SHOPPE, 4778 Elston Ave., Chicago.

Run Rooming House. Easy Money. "Eight rooms" on car line near stores, theaters. Furniture and Ford Sedan $550. "A Snap." Address 1300 W Lake St., Minneapolis, Minn.

WHITEN YOUR SKIN

with KREMOLA, the wonderful bleach cream. Use one box and see the real skin beauty that can be yours. Price $1.25 prepaid. BOOKLET FREE. Agents wanted. Dr. C. H. Berry Co., 2375 Michigan Ave., Chicago.

KILL RATS SAFELY

You can now stop losses caused by rats and mice without risk to your stock or poultry. K-R-O is the new safe way—made from squill bulbs as recommended by Government Experts.

NOT A POISON

Severe tests have proved that K-R-O is harmless in any quantity to human beings, livestock, pets or poultry but kills rats and mice every time.

Does not contain arsenic, phosphorus, barium carbonate or any other deadly poison. At your druggist 75c. Large size (4 times as much) $2.00. Or sent direct from us postpaid if he cannot supply you. Satisfaction guaranteed.

K-R-O CO., Springfield, Ohio

K-R-O
KILLS-RATS-ONLY

NOTICE TO PUBLIC

Complete copies of the Town Ordinances of Klemme, Iowa, may be seen by anyone at the Office of the Town Clerk of Klemme, Iowa. The Numbers and Titles of Said Ordinances were published according to law in two recent issues of The Klemme Times, a newspaper of general circulation published at Klemme, Iowa.

8tc. PAUL GRANGE,
Mayor of Klemme, Iowa.

FOR SALE—Extracted White Clover Honey $1 50 pr 10 lb. pail. Frank Miller, Phone 6-F45 Klemme, Garnr, Iowa. 4tp

---

FOR SALE—Buff Orpington and English Tom Baron Leghorn Roosters for breeding purpose. Mrs. J. B. Spitler, ½ mile west of Belmond, Iowa. 2tc

---

A BASKET SOCIAL will be held at Ell No. 6, Friday evening, Oct. 7, 1927. Ladies are asked to please bring baskets. Florence Hansen, teacher. 1tc

---

CAR LOAD OF KINDLING Wood due to arrive any day. Get your orders in at once. Northern Lumber Company. 1tc

---

NOTICE—No hunting or tresspassing will be allowed on my land. Albert Johnson. 1tp

MapleSota Flour

Fresh Carload Just Recieved

This high grade Flour has just been unloaded and this shipment is fresh right from the big mills. Our price is right.

CAR LOAD OF COKE ON HAND

We have just received a car load of high grade COKE. You people who like to burn coke better get in on this at once!

FURNACE COAL

We belive in sticking to the brands of coal which have proven out the best and the most satisfactory for the money. So this year we again feature BONNIE BLUE and BLUE DIAMOND COAL—yes sir! we have it on hand for quick delivery!

Klemme Co-Operative Grain Co.

Regular Quarterly Dividend

Paid 7%

PREFERRED STOCK

Central States Electric Co.

October First

We want your orders - -

To Make Up A Car Load Shipment Of Feed - - - -

It is hard to anticipate the Feed needs of every farmer in the community, but it is the wish of this company to supply your needs in every way. With this in mind we are asking for your Feed Orders in making up a car load shipment of Mill Feeds. Let us have your order today for anything you may need in this line.

TANKAGE

We have plenty of Tankage on hand. Just drive in and get what you need anytime

EGG MASH ON HAND

Try our own brand of Egg Mash—we don't know of any better on the market. Get a sack and try it out.

NEW SHIPMENT OF FLOUR

A new shipment of Occident and Mother's Best Flour received last week. Buy your winter's needs now and save money.

North Iowa Grain Co.

News of Klemme and Vicinity

Dr. R. W. Specht, Dentist, Garner, Iowa. adv

Mrs. W. F. Missmau and Byrnes drove to Hampton Saturday.

R. A. Jorgenson was at Garner on business Saturday afternoon.

The Grand Jury is in session this week.

Mrs. A. G Koerner was at Garner Tuesday and Wednesday, being called there on jury duty.

Farmers! Save money on cotton work gloves. Try Jacobs 15c Knockout. E. F. Jacobs, Hardware. 1tc

---

Boxed Stationery, latest tints 40c, 50c, 75c, $1.00 and $1.25. At The Times Print Shop. 1tc

---

Albert White was assisting at the E. F. Jacobs store the fore part of the week.

Sam Larsen was a business caller at Chicago the fore part of the week

---

For stationery bargains try The Times Print Shop. High quality at lower prices.

Mrs Fred Barz entertained the Reformed Ladies Aid at her home Wednesday afternoon.

Miss Norva Schlawin is the new clerk at the J N. Day store. She began work this week.

FOR SALE—2 thorobred Poland China Boars, cholra immune. G. Gobeli, Klemme, Iowa. 2tp

---

George Stokesbary and family moved into the former F. Gruetzmacher house this week.

Mrs. Wm. Ax and Erwin, of Swale dale were visiting in Klemme ystrday.

Aaron Greiman returned Monday from the Dakotas where he has been during the threshing season.

Archie Conklin, of Goodell, is suffering from a dislocated knee. The accident happened while practicing football on the school grounds

---

Order Your Xmas Cards Today! We now have them on display and are taking orders. Times Print Shop. 1tc

---

LOST GOLD WRIST WATCH at Klemme Korn Day. Elgin, open-face model. Leave at Times Office for reward. 1tc

---

Mrs. Sumner Trumbell Miss Wilma Trumbell and Mis McGinis drove to Belmond Saturday for a visit with Miss Trumbell's mother, who is not very well.

Mr. C. R. Trumbell returned to Belmond Monday evening after visiting a week at the home of his grandson, Sumner Trumbell.

Rev. C. Grosshuesch went to Kanawha today where he will speak at a Mission Festival being held at the Reformed Church there.

School Teachers—We carry a complete line of Construction Paper in all colors, both large and small sheets. Times Print Shop. 1tc

---

Ray and Glenn Lange went to Waterloo Friday evening to attend the Dairy Cattle Congress over the week end.

Rev. and Mrs. Calvin Grosshuesch and children, and Miss Adella Kuhlmann were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Haupt Sunday.

....$1.00 BUYS 25 XMAS CARDS, all different, all beautiful, and we give FREE 1 pkg. Xmas Seals and 1 pkg. Xmas Tags. Times Print Shop. 1tc

---

Mrs. Worthy Usher, of Clarion, was visiting Klemme relatives over the week end. Mr. Usher recently began work at Rowan as manager of a store there.

Mesdames A. D. Gimer and A. W. Gauger will be hostesses to the M. E. Ladies Aid Society at the Parish House, Thursday afternoon. Oct 13, promptly at 2:30 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. M. O. Barr and La Vonne left Friday afternoon for Michigan to spend their vacation. A relief man is in charge at the depot during Mr. Barr's absence.

Try Jacobs 15c Knockout Glove. c

KINDLING WOOD—We will order only one car load this fall. Get your orders in at once. Northern Lumber Company. 1tc

---

Dr. Zinn, Grandma Schroeder, and Mrs Croner and Dorothy, drove to Fort Dodge Sunday where they were entertained for dinner at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Edgar Zinn.

Norva Koerner and Blanche Gimer were entertained at Mrs. C. A. Arnold's home Wednesday evening in honor of Miss Eva Stokebary's birthday.

Mrs. Lloyd Lau went to Garner Wednesday evening for a visit at the home of her mother. Today Mrs. Lau and Mrs. Carl Lenz are hostesses to the Ladies Aid Society of the Garner Lutheran church.

Mrs. Emil Patet of Klemme, and Mr. and Mrs. Victor Waldek of Hayfield drove to Waterloo Saturday to see the Dairy Cattle Congress and also o visit relatives and friends at Cedar Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Day entertained Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Smith and Miss Mabel for dinner Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ely and daughter, Miss Gertrude, of Belmond, were entertained at the home of Dr and Mrs W. F. Missman, Sunday.

B L. Prouty, of Garner, installed a model E-60 Westinghouse Farm Lighting Plant at the E. J. Arnold farm the past week. Mr. Arnold has one of he finest farms in Hancock County and the installation of this plant further improves his well arranged and equipped farm and provides abundant power and light to supply all of the buildings rM B L Prouty also installed a model 35 Atwater-Kent radio at the A R White home the pas week.

Wait for Ludeke's Poland China and Chester White Hog Sale, Oct 15th, Klemme, Iowa. 1tc

Care of Cream On the Farm

Here is what happens when cream is not kept at a proper temperature and the following facts derived from an extensive study of the question by the research department of a prominent separator company should be of interest to cream producers:-

"Two samples of milk were kept at 50 and 70 degrees respectively, and after a period of twenty-four hours there were in the mlk held at 50 degrees five bacteria for every one at the beginning, while the milk held at 70 degrees there were seven hundred and fifty bacteria for every one at the begining"

As bacteria in milk and cream is what causes it to get sour and rancid, the lower the temperature of the milk is held, the longer it will stay sweet.

Cool your cream promptly and keep it cool and clean and you will not be troubled so much with sour cream. Milk pails and pans should also be thoroughly washed and scalded.

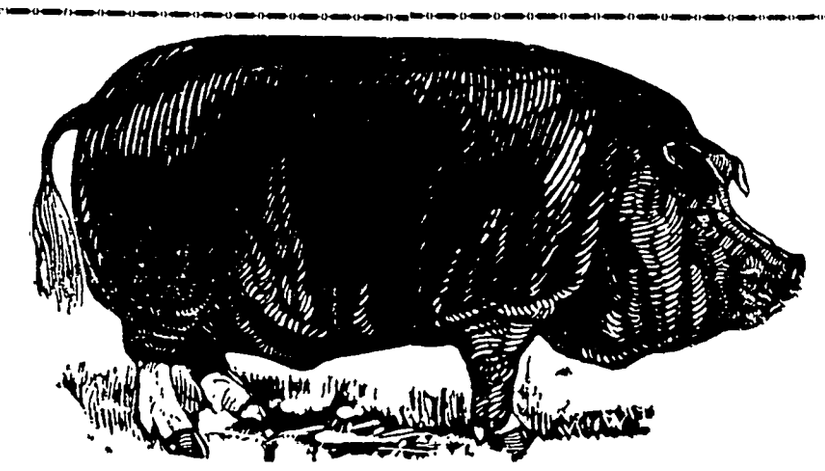
Better cream makes a better cream check.

WE THANK YOU FOR YOUR LOYAL CO-OPERATION

Klemme Co-Op. Creamery Co

6th ANNUAL HOG SALE

90 HEAD



BIG TYPE

Poland China & Chester White Hogs

SATURDAY, OCT. 15

Located on my farm one-fourth mile west of Klemme. Sale starts at 1:00 P. M. Sharp

OFFERING 90 HEAD OF PURE BRED HOGS

45 POLAND CHINA BOARS & GILTS 45

25 BOARS AND 20 GILTS

An offering very uniform in type, of good size, rugged and healthy.

Sired by "Sun Ray's Ideal." We purchased him last Fall from Rawleigh's Ideal Farms and they said regarding this pig: "He is the best boar produced this year out of "Sun Ray," the World's Champion double ton litter sire." In 1925 siring a litter of 16 pigs weighing 4780 lbs. at 180 days old, winning among 1500 entries. In 1926 he sired a litter of 17 pigs that weighed 5215 lbs. at 180 days, again winning World Champion Ton Litter; the heaviest pig weighing 360 lbs. at 180 days, and the entire litter made 1 lb. of gain per each 3.38 lbs. of feed consumed. Surely these are the qualities we are striving for, early maturity, size and good feeders.

You are cordially invited to come and inspect "Sun Ray's Ideal." Take note of his strong arched back, his wonderful spring of ribs, his well developed hams—carrying his meat where the high-priced cuts are taken.

The dams by sons of "Liberator" and "Armistice Boy," the two "Kings of Sires." They and their offspring winning more prizes than all others combined. Surely this fusion of blue blood and useful blood should produce an ideal hog.

One litter by "Play Boy," one by "Gay Lad" and one by "Wall Street," the sire of the phenominal "Night Hawk.

NEW BLOOD FOR OLD CUSTOMERS.

Chester Whites

25 BOARS AND 20 GILTS

45 Boars and Gilts of good type and quality sired by "Big Bud" by "Bud" Iowa's 1926 Grand Champion, also one litter by "Big Prospect" 1926 Grand Champion. Two litters by "White Hawk" 1927 Senior Yearling Champion.

The Chester Whites are very prolific, quick maturing, good feeders ,and the sow is the "best mother" a hog ever had. If you have "no luck" with hogs try the Chester Whites and get your share of HOG MONEY.

TERMS—Cash, or make arrangements with the Clerk before the sale.

Try to attend this sale. If impossible send bids in our care to Auctioneer or Clerk.

R. C. LUDEKE, Owner

Klemme, Iowa

L. A. Matern, Auctioneer.

First National Bank, Klemme, Iowa, Clerk

THE KLEMME TIMES

Fortieth Year—Number 9. KLEMME, IOWA, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1927 $2.00 Per Year In Advance.Outside of Iowa $2.5

DOINGS AT SCHOOL THE PAST WEEK

BALL TEAM GIVES GOODELL A GOOD BATTLE

Bad Weather A Handicap To Our Team For Practicing

Our high school base ball team surprised the Goodell boys there last Friday evening by leading in the number of scores during most of the game. They weakened toward the end of the game, however, and permitted Goodell to overcome the lead and win by a score of 6 to 4. They played a much better game than they did two weeks ago on our own diamond, when the score was 16 to 0.

Swaledale Defeats K. H. S.

Swaledale was entertained at bat on Tuesday evening of this week and ewnt home happy for their victory over our lads. The weather has not permitted serious practice thus far and without practice our inexperienced players are handicapped. Gibson and Stokesbary have shown up very well alternating as catcher and pitcher and there have been good playing on the part of several others of our team. Besides Orville Stokesbary and Oral Gibson previously alluedd to, the following boys been in the line up: Claire West on 1st; Chas. Busch on 2nd; Clarence Lemke on 3rd; Robert Tanner at short; Otho Keraus, Ray Lange, Willis Busch in the out-field. Harvey Nelson in out-field also participated in the last game, and Donald Turgasen in the first game, planiyg at short.

Orchestra Practices Regularly

Our high school orchestra are regularly engaged in semi-weekly practice under the direction of Mr. Lewis, who reports all doing very good work. The membership at present is as follows: violins, Alvin Thiemann and Gracka Quandt; saxaphones, Donald Turgasen and Harvey Nelson; slide trombone, William Gauger; French horn, Clarice Wellemeyer; drums, Orville Stokesbary; and piano, Gladys Wilson. Mr. Lewis reports others are interested in music and that the organization may be larger later.

The Meaning Of Report Letters

As wee announced last week, this week ends our first six-week period and written tests are the order these few days. Reports of pupils' standings will go to parents the middle of next week. Letters A, B, C, and D will be used as usual and with their usual meanings, for example "A" means work of very superior quality, "B" means work above average in quality; "C", average work and "D" below average; while "Con" will mean pupil is conditioned and that better work must be done or failure is certain. Parents should be pleased to find A's and B's on their children's cards, but should exert themselves toward more and better preparation on the part of children who bring home D's and Con's.

Parents Should Study Graeds

We urge parents to examine the grades and if not satisfied with the leters o see or communicate w.' We all are and should be interested in pupils making good in school and if more can be done toward their success we should like that it e done We do not like to compell children to repeat work but fro various reasons it must at times be done. Let us all this year work together to avoid failures or reduce their number. Children can often be provided a study room at home away from the other members of the family and given encouragement to prepare two or more lessons there. If we had more home-study in our high schools there would be fewer failures in our colleges today. Students need to learn to apply themselves in high school if they would make good in our best colleges. More and more of our high school graduates are entering colleges and universities and we desire that all be able to carry on well there.

BIRTHDA YSURPRISE HELD FOR MRS. ALBERT BORCHERS

Thirty-nine People Plan Pleasant Party For Firend

On Sunday, October 9th, it being Mrs. Albert Borchers birthday, her relatives thought it would be a fine chance to have a surprise party on her . Mr. and Mrs Borchers had been to church and were home preparing the noonday meal when nine carloads of people drove on the yard and all shouting, 'Surprise" This was surely a surprise on boht Mr and Mrs Borchers as it had not occurred to them that a surprise party would be planned All the folks brought well-filled baskets and a very delicious birthday dinner was soon served and a pretty birthday cake containing the appropriate number of candles was placed as a center-piece

Those who were present at this enjoyable occasion were Mr and Mrs Wm Bredlow, Mr and Mrs. B Borchers; Mr and Mrs Herman Gast and family; Mr and Mrs. Frank Bredlow and family; Mr. and Mrs Aug Kropp and family; Mr. and Mrs John Borchers and family; Tillie Borchers; Harvey Barz; Gilbert Kropp, Alice Schlichting, and Arno Nuehring, in all 39 people were present.

A very enjoyable time was had by all and towards evening all left extending best wishes to Mrs Borchers and many happy returns of the day. Mrs Borchers said the day would be one long remembered by herself.

WRIGHT BOOK COMES TO SCREEN AT LAST

Great Picture Will Be Shown At Lyric Theatre

Samuel Goldwin paid $125,000 for the screen rights to Harold Bell Wright's best selling book, "The Winning of Barabara Wor .. which comes to ten Lyric Theatre, Garner, Friday and Saturday, Oct. 14-15

Filmed on the great arid Black Rock Desert, the story unfolds a world of entertaining and educational features before Ronald Colman, as Willard Holmes, begins to feel sure that he has finally won the fair Barbara, played by Vilma Banky.

Ronald Coleman's ride with the payroll to stop a threatened revolt of laborers in the town of Barba, built by Jefferson Worth, Barbara's father, to compete with Kingston, is one of the high spots of the production. Over miles of barren desert and through the beautiful canyons of the Harlequin Mountains, Willard Holmes and Abe Lee rode through the night. Bandits, hired by James Greenfield, Holmes' foster-father, way-lay the pair in Devil's Canyon The battle, distinguished by is sincerity and the excellent acting of the characers involved, resulted in the wounding of both men. This bit of action afforded Colman opportunity to perform one of the most spectacular screen feats he has undertaken in his successful career.

METHODIST CHURCH NOTES

A. W. Gauger, Pastor

As previously announced the district Sunday school convention will be held next Sunday in Liberty twp church. The morning session begins at 10:30 o'clock. See the program elsewehere in The Times.

Bring the children as things of interest await them

Plan to be there for boh sessions

There will be no service in the Klemme church Sunday morning or evening.

All young people will remember the social announced to be held in the Parish House on Friday evening. Along with games and refreshments and a general good time the election of officers for the E. L. will be held. Let all come.

W C. Keraus and family drove to Swea City Saturday to spend Sunday at the Tommy Mitchel home. C. G. Waterman and family drove up Sunday morning, and Charles Beir and family were also guests at the Mitchell home.

P. T. A. PROGRAM MONDAY NIGHT

SECOND MEETING OF YEAR AT SCHOOL MONDAY EVE

All Parents And Friends Of The Klemme School Are Invited

The second program of the Klemme Parent-Teacher Association will be held at the high school auditorium, or gymnasium on next Monday evening.

The Parent-Teacher Association is for everyone who is interested n the welfare of the children and the Klemme schools All parents and friends are urged to attend this next meeting Bring your friends and take a part in school affairs

The program for the meeting on Monday night follows:-

A Singing Game, 'The Shoemaker's Dance," by children of grades 2 and 3, directed by the Misses Lenora and Mildred Wheatman

"Co-operation and Children's Wellfare," discussed by Mrs. A. D. Gimer (Oral or written.)

"Citizenship Training," discussed by Mrs. Leonard Sampson (A talk or paper.)

Male Quartett, "Po' Little Lamb." by J. A. Parks (Messrs. Heiden. Lewis, Patet, Penrod.)

Paper or talk on "Should our P. T A try to provide a Hot Lunch for our Rural Pupils?" by Mrs Ralph Elder.

THIS AUTO PICKS UP ITS OWN ROAD DUST

English Idea Not Needed in This Country, However, Experts Say.

A MANCHESTER, England, engineer 15 years ago patented an apparatus to be used on automobiles which would collect its own dust.

As described by Church Howe, then American Consul at Manchester, the device drew the dust into funnel shaped conduits which ran from the rear of the front wheels to the rear of the back wheels.

The dust was blown into a central box, either by air pressure of the moving automobiles or by a centrifugal fan geared to the driving shaft of the car.

Such an apparatus would have little success in America today, highway engineers point out. Recent improvements in road construction have eliminated the dust problem almost to the minimum in some sections and even old dirt roads may be modernized by applications of calcium chloride.

BACKYARDS GIVE JOY TO CHILDREN

TURN your backyard into a children's playground!

That is an idea growing rapidly in various sections of the United States and Canada.

One of the first to do that was George W. Perry, Director of Parks and Playgrounds, of Orange, N. J. who one year ago established a recreation center in the rear of his property

So pleased was he with the success of the idea that he told others of it and today a well-established organization, called the Backyard Playground Association of America, is functioning with headquarters in New York City

In hot weather the most popular part of the equipment is a garden hose which serves as a shower bath for the children.

Those playgrounds have been salvaged from dismal areas of tin cans and other rubbish. The janitor has been enlisted as groundkeeper and director of activities, and when he is of the alert type, he has worked to make the ground quite in keeping with the more ambitious recreation centers rolling the earth or pounding it down firmly and spreading a thin layer of calcium chloride to keep down the dust.

In the congested districts of the larger cities, particularly in New York, the idea has caught on, the playground experts declare.

Mrs. Henry Wade is reported to be quite ill at this time.

GRAND JURY INDICT FOUR MEN HERE

SEVERAL KLEMME PEOPLE ON INDICTMENT LIST

Grand Jury Had Busy Session Last Week At Garner

The Grand Jury which was in session at Garner last week, returned indictments against five different persons on various charges.

A Times reporter gathered the following information at the County Clerk's office yesterday where the Grand Jury records are on file.

An indictment was issued against R B McCormick charged with Assault with intent to inflict great bodily injury Mr McCormick was arraigned before he Court and entered a plea of guilty to the charge He was sentenced to one year imprisonment, but the sentence in this case was suspended on good behavior.

Klemme Men Indicted

The Grand Jury spent a greater part of their time investigating alleged crimes committed in or about Klemme and reurned indictments against four people here.

Two indictments were returned against C. M. Bredbenner. One of the charges being "Unlawful possession of intoxicating liquor," and the other "Having possession of instruments intended for use and capable of being used in manufacturing intoxicating liquor." Brebenner's bond was fixed at $1,000.00. His trial is on today.

Two indictments were returned against Levi Ridder on the same charges as are brought against Mr. Bredebenner. Levi Ridder's bonds were fixed at $1,000.

One indictment on two counts was brought against Fred Ridder, it being "Unlawful possession of intoxicating liquor." His bond was likewise placed at $1,000.

An indictment was returned against Harbert Diekhuis, the charge being "Rape of imbecile." His bond was placed at $1,000.

According to information gathered the Ridder cases will come up in this term of court. The case against Diekhuis will probably come up in the November term of court.

STATE SAVINGS BANK BUILDING SOLD TO MEIR WOLF

Mason City Man Purchased Building At Auction Sale Tuesday

As advertised in The Times last week the State Savings Bank building in Klemme would be sold at public auction at the Court house at Garner. The sale was held on an order issued by the state banking department.

There were a number of bidders present but Meir Wolf of Mason City put in the final bid of $3,900.00 and the building was sold to him.

Just what Mr. Wolf will do with the building is not known at this time. He conduces a large furniture store at Mason City.

Mr. and Mrs. F. J. Schult and daughter, Helen, and Miss Etta Schlung of Chicago, called on Mrs. J. Gruetzmacher and Mrs. P. M. Griesemer last Saturday.

Carl Suckow, of Garner, was in Klemme on business last Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Yahnke and daughter, Alva, came last Thursday from Garden City, Minnesota and remained in Klemme over the week end visiting relatives and friends. The teachers were attendng institute which enabled Alva to have a short vacation.

The open season on pheasants begins Friday, Oct. 14. The other open dates in this county are Saturday, Oct. 15, Friday and Saturday, October 21-22 and Saturday, Oct. 29. The bag limit is three male birds a day. No hens are allowed to be shot. And, remember, hunting, or even carrying a gun on the highway is an offense.

DISTRICT SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION TO BE HELD

South-east District Hancock County To Be Held In Liberty Church

On Sunday, October 16, 1927 the South-east District, of Hancock County, will hold their convention in Liberty Township Methodist church beginning at 10:30 o'clock.

Following is the program:-

Song service
Devotional Exercises
Song: Liberty Girls Chorus
"Why I should support our Sunday School." E. G. Beier.
Song by Audience
"Sunday School Objectives" T. C. Nelson
"Sunday School Hindrances" Roy Schaefer
Instrumental Music, by Miss Mildred Johnson
"Factors that make for a good Sunday School" Supt. M. F. Penrod.
Song, Audience

Simultaneously with the meeting in the Auditorium a meeting for he Children will be held in the basement, addressed by Mrs. C. A. Arnold and others.

Picnic Luncheon

—Afternoon Session 2:00 P. M.—

Song Service
Prayer
Special Music
"Vacation Bible Schools," Miss Edith Haupt
Brief Talk on Same Subject, Rev Calvin Grosshuesch
Violin Solo, Miss Mildred Johnson
'Sunday School Material," C. A Carpenter
"Relatoon of Sunday School to the Church", Rev. Scott
Special Music
"Substitutes," Address by S C. Pollock, County President

Convention Notes

Liberty Church is located two mileh west and one mile north of Klemme.

All Sunday Schools and Churches of this section constitute a part of this convenion.

Bring your lunch, which may be eaen in the basement where tablees and chairs will be found. The Ladies of Liberty Church will serve free coffee and cream.

An offering will be taken to defray convention expenses

ANNUAL FARM BUREAU MEETING SATURDAY

Will Be Held At Britt And Everyone Is Invited To Attend

The annual meeting of the Hancock County Farm Bureau will be held at Britt, Saturday, October 15, beginning at 10:00 A. M.

The principal speaker of the day will be Charles Hearst, President of the Iowa Farm Bureau Federation

Mrs. Wm. Van Bloom of Dayton, Iowa, will also appear on the program. Mrs. Bloom has been in the county several times and is a very good speaker. She is district chairman of Farm Bureau work.

Reports of the different officers of the Farm Bureau will be given and the election of officers for next year will be held. Picnic dinner will be served and the Farm Bureau will furnish coffee.

Everyone in the county is invited to attend.

HANCOCK COUNTY REAL ESTATE TRANSFERS

A Weekly Review Of Sales And Trades In Property

Mary A. Bowen to Louie Elder et al. Q. C. D., date 4-29- 26, $1.00. Lot 11 block 31 Garner.

Peter Gilbert wife to Anton Lucas. W. D., date 7-30-27, lots 1-2-3-10-11-12 block 2 Garner.

Esther Overlees husband to Allene Stowe. W. D., date 9-26-27, $1. Und. 1-6th interest in NW¼ 29 and Part of NE¼ 30-95-23.

M. T. Love et al to Rev. P. N. Phillips. Cemetery Deed, date 4-7-19, $15.00, lot 12 block 6 Concord Cemetery.

Anna Formanek to Cyril Formanek. W. D., date 10-6-27, $1.00. Lots 1-2-3 block 2 Way and Carpenter's add Britt.

See "The Winning Of Barbar Worth," Friday or Saturday at the Lyric Theatre, Garner, Iowa. 1tc

FRED HAUPT PASSES AWAY TUES. P. M.

FUNERAL SERIVES WILL BE IN KLEMME FRIDAY P. M.

Had Lived In This Vicinity Nearly Half Century

This comunity was saddened by the death of Mr. Fred Haupt, who died early Tuesday afternoon at his home in Klemme following a brief illness Shortly before Christmas last year he became seriously ill and was taken to a Mason City hospital for an examination and operation The doctors pronounced it a case of cancer of the liver and stomach, beyond medical or surgical help. For a time it seemed he would recover, and for a time during the past summer months Mr. Haupt felt to bee in fairly good health, but another attack of the dreaded disease came on him Sunday and he rapidly became weaker and on Tuesday, October 11, 1927 at one o'clock in the afternoon he died at the age of 66 years, 10 months and 10 days.

Fred Henry Haupt was born on the 1st day of December, 1860, at Werningshausen, Coburg Gotha, Germany. At the age of ten years he came to America with his parent and brothers. The first five years the Haupt family made their home in Chicago, Illinois, where the father worked at his trade as shoemaker. In 1875 the family moved on a farm near Belmond, Iowa, where Fred remained with his parents for ten years.

On April 2, 1886, he was united in marriage to Miss Henrietta Priebe of Garner, Iowa. Four children were born to Mr. and Mrs Haupt, three daughters; one son died in infancy. For a short time Mr. Haupt owned farms at Belmond and Garnor and then bought the farm two miles southwest of Klemme which remained his farm as long as he lived and is known as the Haupt homestead. About 14 years ago Mr. Haupt retired and made his home in Klemme.

Mr. Haupt was a successful farmer who had won the respect of his fellowmen by his thrift, honesty and pleasant disposition.

Mr. Haupt was one of the charter emmbers of the Klemme Reformed Church. At various times he served his congregation as Sunday School Superintendent, Deacon and Elder, and was always a faithful worker.

Surviving him and mourning his death are his beloved wife; three daughters, Mrs Herman Schuldt, Mrs. Elmer Schlei, and Edith; three grandchildren, Mabel Schuldt, Paul Schuldt, and Dale Schlei; four brothers, Alvin, Rowan, Iowa; Herman, Montana; Ernest and Carl of Belmond, Iowa.

Funeral services will be held at the Klemme Reformed Church Friday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock with Rev. Grosshuesch in charge. Interment will be made in the Klemmo Cemetery.

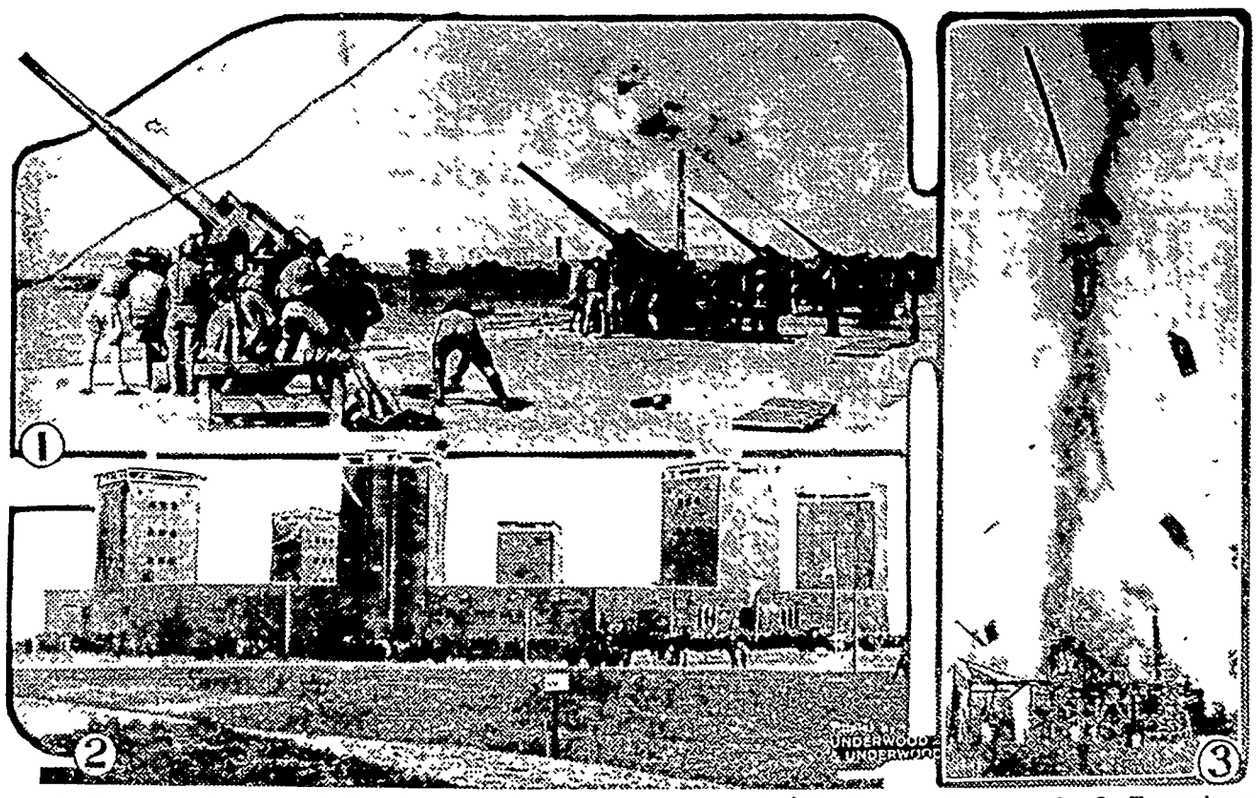
KLEMME REFORMED CHURCH

Calvin Grosshuesch, Pastor

8:30 a. m. Sunday schoo in the country.
10:00 a. m. English service.
11:00 a. m Sunday school.
7:30 p. m. German service.
8:00 p. m. Wednesday. Young Peoples Bible Class.
8:00 p. m. Saturday, Junior choir.
Confirmation class:-
1:00 p. m. Tuesday.
9:00 a. m. Saturday.

CAMP FIRE GIRLS NOTES

The Camp Fire Girls met at the home of Clarice Wellemeyer last Friday. The following officers were elected. Lucile Keraus, president; Marie Carson, vice-president; Valeria Koerner, secretary; Nova Koerner, treasurer; and Claice Wellemeyer, editor. After the meeting refreshments were served. The Girls are painting and doing embroidery work. Watch Wellemeyer's Store window for their exhibit.



1—Demonstration of anti-aircraft guns with remote control, at the Aberdeen proving grounds. 2—Tannenberg national war memorial dedicated by the Germans and accepted by President Von Hindenburg. 3—Shooting of a big oil well near Jacksonville, Ill., where the precious fluid has been found at a depth of 330 feet.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Opponents of Obregon in Mexico Lead Revolt—One Is Executed.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

REVOLT flared up in Mexico last week, the anti-re-electionists in many parts of the country taking arms against the government, which supports Obregon for the presidency. Parts of the garrisons of Mexico City and Torreon and troops in the state of Vera Cruz mutinied under the leadership of many of their officers, and there were uprisings in other towns. Gen. Arnulfo Gomez, one of Obregon's rivals for the presidency, was at the head of the entire movement, and Gen. Francisco Serrano, the other opposition candidate, was declared to be in full sympathy with the revolt. The mutineers from the capital were soon defeated by loyal troops and Serrano, with a dozen of his aids, was either captured in Cuernavaca or seized in Mexico City and taken there secretly. The prisoners were immediately tried by court martial and shot, and the same fate was meted out to many other officers who were caught.

Gomez, however, for a time eluded the Calles troops and at this writing is reported at the head of a considerable force and marching to attack the city of Vera Cruz. He had been joined by Gen. Hector Almada, leader of the Mexico City mutineers. Federal troops were advancing on a part of the rebel forces at Perote, and the strong Vera Cruz garrison, commanded by Gen. Jesus Aguirre, was reported ready to meet the attack of Gomez. The prospects at this time are that Gomez will be defeated, and if he is captured it is almost certain that he will be executed. President Calles is apparently so strongly supported that there is small chance for the success of a rebellion. The greater part of the army is loyal to him, as is the navy, and the Mexican Federation of Labor is pledged to support him.

This attempted revolt has at least cleared the presidential situation in Mexico, for since Obregon is supported by President Calles and his only two rivals are now eliminated, the election of the former president seems an absolute certainty. Immediately after the start of the uprising 25 deputies who opposed Obregon were expelled by the congress.

FRANK O. LOWDEN received at his Sinissippi farm several thousand central Illinoisans who urged him to announce his candidacy for the Republican nomination, supporting the plea already made by delegations from Nebraska, Iowa and other states. Mr. Lowden entertained his guests handsomely but the most they could get from him concerning his candidacy was a reiteration of his previous statement, namely: "I know of no man in all our history who has run away from the Presidency, and no one who appreciates the solemn responsibility of that high office will run after the Presidency." Mayor Thompson of Chicago has let it be known that if Lowden enters the preferential primaries in Illinois, he will present himself as a candidate, and his friends said if he did this he would capture large numbers of Southern delegates in the national convention. An immediate result of the Thompson announcement was the almost complete elimination of Chicago from the list of cities seeking the convention. San Francisco and Cleveland now seem to be in the lead, with Minneapolis and Detroit still in the running. The Republican national committee will decide on the location December 6, according to Chairman Butler. That gentleman and other members of the committee were the guests of President Coolidge at a breakfast and obtained the impression that he was sincere in his determination not to accept renomination. Conferences of the leaders in Washington brought out the opinion that Hoover would run better than Hughes in the West and South, though the latter would have the better chance to defeat Smith in New York.

Frederick I. Thompson, Democrat and the publisher of five Alabama newspapers, in an interview in New York, said the Republicans could break the solid South by nominating Hoover, providing the Democrats name Al Smith. The campaign for Smith has been actively opened in several Western states, notably Kansas and South Dakota.

CABINET members, high army and navy officers and hundreds of other persons, gathered at the Aberdeen proving grounds, near Washington, Thursday, and witnessed demonstrations of the newest things in weapons and automotive equipment, the most elaborate display of the kind since the World war. Tanks, tractors, bombs, smoke curtains, anti-aircraft guns, machine guns, field artillery, weapons and rifles were exhibited and tested. Many of the models shown have been available for some time but lack of funds has prevented their adoption. It is hoped this condition will soon be remedied.

Ordnance officers state that in the field of artillery new weapons have been produced which are far superior to the old in range, accuracy, and breadth of the field of fire. In some cases, notably that of the newly perfected 75-millimeter pack howitzer, ordnance experts say the new weapon is so far superior to the ones it was built to replace that there is virtually no comparison. Another example disclosed was that of the new American 75-millimeter gun, which, ordnance experts say, has a range almost twice as great as the famous French 75-millimeter gun used during the war.

The newest anti-aircraft gun automatically sights its target. It is controlled by a sensitive instrument which detects the position of a moving airplane by sound waves. At night a huge searchlight throws its beam directly upon the airplane simultaneously with the discharge of the gun.

FRANCE'S tariff increases continue to be the subject of official notes, semi-official statements and unofficial arguments and protests, and a settlement of the controversy is not in sight. Meanwhile our Treasury department announces the assessment of countervailing duties on certain French products, as a direct result of the higher French tariff rates.

The action was mandatory under six paragraphs of the Fordney tariff act, which makes provision for countervailing duties. Under these paragraphs the articles affected bear specified rates of duty or are on the free list subject to a proviso that if any nation imposes a higher duty, imports of the particular commodity from that nation shall be subject to that rate. The same action has been taken in the case of a few German products.

DESPITE the rigid censorship imposed by the Peking government, the correspondents in China have sent over enough information to prove that Peking is in grave danger of capture by the armies of Shansi province, which are allied with the southern Nationalists and are led by Yen Hsi-shan, military governor. Yen took Kalgan and the Manchurians withdrew before his advance, planning to make a stand at the Great Wall or at the Nankow pass about forty-five miles northeast of Peking. Marshal Chang sent his aviation and heavy artillery units from Peking to Tientsin and it was thought he might be preparing to evacuate the capital. The situation caused considerable concern in Washington and London. Dispatches from Tokyo said the Japanese government was seriously considering the sending of troops from Manchuria to Peking and Tientsin if matters in China grew worse.

MOSCOW ignored two friendly notifications from Paris that the Soviet ambassador, Rakovsky, was persona non grata, so the French government last week formally demanded his recall. This step was forced by the violent press campaign against the continued presence of Rakovsky. Russia had made efforts to smooth over the situation by increasing its offers of debt settlement, but without avail.

DR. V. N. POLOVESA, a woman, Soviet representative of the Russian Red Cross in London since 1921, was expelled from England by order of the home office. She is the first woman to be denied the privileges of the country since the raid on the Russian Trading company's headquarters by Scotland Yard men in search of propaganda.

THIRTY persons, who were said to be members of a Communist lobby, were detected trying to "bore from within" at the annual convention of the American Federation of Labor in Los Angeles. One of them, Sid Bush, was arrested and booked on suspicion of criminal syndicalism. The police said Bush had in his pocket a letter from William Z. Foster, secretary of the Communist party of America, instructing him to obtain the introduction of certain resolutions in the convention and naming the Communists with whom he was to work.

One of the most important developments at the convention was the withdrawal of the building trade department of the federation from association with the national board for jurisdictional awards in the building industry on the grounds that the board had failed to render definite decisions.

COAL miners of Illinois and Iowa ended their long strike and went back to work, having reached a compromise with the operators whereby they are to receive temporarily the same wages as under the Jacksonville agreement. A joint board is to take up the wage qeustion in each state. It was believed a similar agreement would end the strike in Indiana mines.

THREE German aviators and an actress from Vienna started from Berlin in a huge Junkers plane to fly to America via Lisbon and the Azores. They were not after a record, so they stopped first at Amsterdam for fuel. Then, flying southward, the plane was forced to descend into the sea off Cape Roca, Portugal. A tug was sent to the rescue and it was announced that the plane was uninjured and the flight would be resumed.

William A. Yackey, war-time ace, president of an aircraft company and a close friend of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, was killed at Maywood, Ill., when a plane he was testing crashed and burst into flames. The son of a St. Louis business man, Yackey was a member during the war of the Italian flying forces and later of the American army.

GEORGE REMUS, ex-convict and former super-bootlegger, is in the limelight again. Last Thursday, as he and his wife were on their way to court in Cincinnati to settle their domestic difficulties, Remus fired a volley of bullets into the taxicab in which were the woman and her adopted daughter. Mrs. Remus sustained several wounds and died in a hospital. Remus had accused the woman of "framing" him and having him railroaded to the Atlanta penitentiary four years ago, and after his release she filed suit for divorce, charging cruelty.

LAST week it was the turn of Great Britain and King George to entertain the American Legion tourists known as the "good will party," and the job was well done. On their arrival in London the Legionnaires formed in procession on the Embankment and, led by Howard P. Savage, retiring commander, marched to the Cenotaph, where Mr. Savage deposited a wreath. They then proceeded to Westminster abbey, where another wreath was laid on the grave of the Unknown Warrior. The first entertainment was a luncheon given by the British Legion and presided over by the prince of Wales, who assured the Americans that they were as welcome as they were ten years ago. Following this was a series of functions, including a reception by the king and queen.

Before going to England the Legionnaires' visited Belgium and were warmly received by King Albert and Queen Elizabeth.

Limed Soil Best for Clover Crop

Experiments Show Plants Respond Remarkably Well to Treated Soil.

That clover responds remarkably well to a limed soil has again been demonstrated in experiments recently completed by Prof. A. W. Blair at the New Jersey agricultural experiment station, at New Brunswick.

An unlimed plot of timothy and clover at the first cutting produced 1,242 pounds of hay per acre (practically all timothy) and a corresponding limed plot (treated with 4,000 pounds of ground limestone per acre) yielded mixed hay at the rate of 2,801 pounds per acre. At the second cutting the unlimed plot gave no hay, while the limed plot yielded excellent clover hay at the rate of 1,654 pounds per acre—a total for the limed plot of more than two tons per acre as against just a little over a half-ton for the unlimed plot.

Protein Value of Hay.

But the hay from the unlimed plot was practically all timothy which has a protein value not much above 8 per cent, whereas the mixed hay of the first cutting from the limed plot has a protein value somewhat higher than timothy alone, and the clover of the second cutting has a protein value almost double that of timothy.

"Furthermore," says Professor Blair, in commenting on the experiment, "there is at present an excellent prospect of a good crop of clover from the limed plot next year, but the yield of hay from the unlimed plot will be very meager and there will be no clover in it. Again, the limed plot will make a better sod to be turned under for corn the following year, since the clover will have added considerable nitrogen to the soil, and some of this nitrogen will be left for succeeding crops.

Doesn't Like Acidity.

"Clover just will not grow in a soil that is acid beyond a certain degree. The county agents and the experiment station will help farmers to find out if their soil is acid to that degree, and thus spare them the trouble and expense of seeding clover with no prospect of getting a crop. Farmers are advised to buy no soil-acidity testing outfit until it has been approved by the county agent or the experiment station.

Hogging Down Corn Crop Is Good Farm Practice

"Hogging down at least part of this year's corn crop, if there is any, will save labor in husking, cribbing, reloading, and feeding," says H. G. Zavoral, a live stock specialist of the agricultural extension service, University of Minnesota.

"Well grown shoats averaging 75 to 125 pounds make the most desirable weights to be turned into the cornfields. It is best to get them gradually accustomed to eating green corn, filling them with old corn just before. Pigs can be turned in to the corn fields when the ears are glazed or dented and can stay there until ready for the market or until the weather becomes unfavorable.

"It is well not to place the pigs in a larger field than they can clean up in three weeks. Fattening hogs should be moved just before all the corn is gone, and breeding stock or growing pigs turned in to clean up. Shade and plenty of water should be available at all times. If less than one gallon of skim milk per day per pig is available, a self-feeder of tankage will pay big dividends."

Big Value of Barnyard Manure as Plant Food

The value of barnyard manure both as a plant food and in improving the physical condition of soil is suggested by a report to the United States Department of Agriculture from a southwestern citrus grower who established a dairy farm of several hundred acres solely with a view to providing a supply of manure for his citrus groves. It was his belief that if the dairy enterprise was only self-sustaining it would be fully worth while because of the value of the manure that was thus made available for his main enterprise.

Agricultural Notes

It pays to store farm machinery.

* * *

Orderliness is one of the best ways to save labor.

* * *

A good field of alfalfa should never be overpastured.

* * *

Better test any leftover garden seeds from last year that you intend to plant.

* * *

At corn ripening time drop all other business and select an abundance of seed corn.

* * *

Soy bean hay used as a winter feed for maintaining lambs gave even better results than the same amount of alfalfa hay.

* * *

Buckwheat is one of the best of all the nonleguminous crops. It leaves the soil in wonderful condition and it starts so quickly when sown that it is great to smother out annual weeds.

Improved Uniform International

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D.D., Dean Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)
(©, 1927, by Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for October 16

ELIJAH IN NABOTH'S VINEYARD

LESSON TEXT—I Kings 21.

GOLDEN TEXT—Be sure your sin will find you out.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Elijah's Message to a Wicked King.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Wages of Sin.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Rebuke of Wrong.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Opposing Official Corruption.

I. Ahab Covets Naboth's Vineyard (v. 1-6).

1. Location of the vineyard (v. 1). It joined Ahab's summer home in Jezreel. He wanted to transform it into an herb garden and thus round out his property.

2. Ahab's proposal (v. 2). He offered to buy it outright for money, or give in exchange a better one.

3. Naboth's refusal (v. 3). He had a twofold reason: (1) regard for the paternal estate; (2) obedience to God's law (Lev. 25:23-28, cf. Num. 36:7-9). It doubtless would have been profitable to Naboth to have sold his vineyard, but loyalty to God was more important to him than money.

4. Ahab's behavior (v. 4). He came into his house, lay down upon his bed and refused to eat. The king was sulking like a spoiled child.

5. Jezebel's inquiry (vv. 5, 6). Apparently she came with the sympathy of a wife, inquiring as to the cause of his behavior. But when she knew of Naboth's refusal she was angry.

II. Ahab Taking Possession of Naboth's Vineyard (vv. 7-16).

1. Jezebel's treachery (vv. 7-15).

(1) Her contemptuous question (v. 7). She taunted him for his cowardice. The fear of being thought weak moves a weak man quickly. Scorn is a powerful weapon in the hands of unscrupulous persons.

(2) Her exhortation to Ahab (v. 7). "Arise and eat bread, and let thine heart be merry." A wife has great influence over her husband. Many a man has been saved from discouragement and therefore defeat through his wife's influence. Unfortunately in this case the influence of the wife was bad.

(3) Her promise to Ahab (v. 7). "I will give thee the vineyard of Naboth."

(4) Her wicked scheme (vv. 8-15). She wrote letters in Ahab's name, sealed them with his seal, and sent them to the elders and nobles who were dwelling in the city with Naboth, asking them to proclaim a fast, as though some great calamity had befallen the nation, and place Naboth before the public as the one who was the cause of it all. They were instructed to find two false witnesses who would testify against Naboth. The charge they brought was blasphemy against God and the king. Naboth's only offense was his refusal to sell his estate. When they had thus stoned Naboth and his sons to death (2 Kings 9:26), they came and told Jezebel, who in turn came to Ahab with the information and directed him to take possession of the vineyard. It was the custom for the property of those who were condemned to death for blasphemy to revert to the king.

2. Ahab goes to Jezreel to take possession of Naboth's vineyard (v. 16). Ahab had not killed Naboth, but he eagerly accepted the prize without inquiring as to how it was secured. Many today are like Ahab, too cowardly to commit wrong themselves, but are willing to reap the benefits of the wrongdoing of others.

III. Elijah in Naboth's Vineyard, Announcing Doom Upon Ahab (vv. 17-26).

Elijah told him the dogs should lick his blood in the place where they licked the blood of Naboth. It would seem that Naboth's body was thrown out to be devoured by the dogs. Evil was to fall upon Ahab and his posterity, even to wipe out his seed and name. Ahab stood in that vineyard guilty of all the sins which Jezebel had committed, though he had been silent and inactive. God held him responsible for Jezebel's acts, for he was king and head of the nation. The day of reckoning did come to Ahab (1 Kings 22:38). Ahab's question to Elijah when confronted by him in the vineyard showed that his conscience was not wholly dead.

2. Doom upon Jezebel (vv. 23-26). She likewise should be eaten by the dogs by the wall of Jezreel. This was literally fulfilled (2 Kings 9:33-37): "Be sure your sin will find you out;" "Whatever a man soweth, that shall he also reap."

IV. Ahab's Repentance (vv. 27-29). Because of this God promised to withhold judgment during his lifetime.

We Live in Deeds

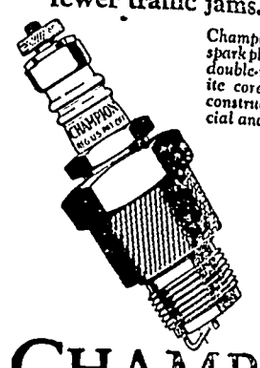
We live in deeds, not years, in thoughts, not breaths, in feelings, not in figures on a dial. We should count time by heart throbs; he most lives who thinks most, feels the noblest acts the best.—P. C. Bailey.

Safety

A safe auto driver keeps his hands on the wheel and his eyes on the road. A safe Christian keeps his hand on the Bible and his eyes on God.—T. C. H.

The Traffic Officer

It's a safe bet that the cars which step-out with the "go" signal are equipped with Champions—the better spark plug. If every car owner used Champions there would be fewer traffic jams.



Champion is the better spark plug because of its double-ribbed sillimanite core—its two-piece construction and its special analysis electrodes.

Champion X—for Fords 60¢

Champion—Cars other than Fords 75¢

CHAMPION Spark Plugs

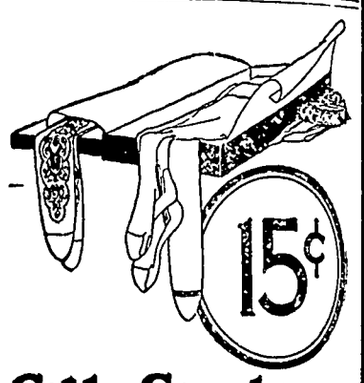
TOLEDO, OHIO

For your protection be sure the Champions you buy are in the original Champion cartons.

How She Sings!

Instructor—Now, don't you think her voice is improved?

Father—Yes, but it's not cured.



Silk Stockings

Have stockings in the very newest shades; your old or faded stockings given any tint in the rainbow in ure minutes; with fifteen cents' worth of Diamond Dyes! but use dyes, not synthetic tints. And be sure they're true dyes.

Try a pair tonight! Use Diamond Dyes, and no one will dream they were tinted at home. And you can do real dyeing with just as perfect results, if you will just use the true Diamond Dyes.

FREE: Why not ask your druggist for the very useful Diamond Dye Cyclopedia? Valuable suggestions, easy directions, and piece-goods sample colors. Or write for free copy of Color Craft, a big illustrated book sent postpaid—address DIAMOND DYES, Dept. N13, Burlington, Vermont.

Diamond Dyes

Just Dip to TINT, or Boil to DYE

WOOL

We offer 34¢ per lb. F. O. B. your station for immediate delivery of your clear native wool, free from burrs, chaff, etc. Write us for prices on your Western wool. Sheuerman Woolen Mills, - Des Moines, Iowa.

NO CROP FAILURE IN MY SECTION OF N. Dak. Rich soil, prices right. Information free. Good ¼ section $4,000. J. P. Bakken, Southam, N. Dak.

One may deny an erroneous report about himself that is complimentary, but with reluctance

Your dresses sweaters, coats can be made a rich lustrous fast black with RIT

FAST DYES OR TINTS 24 Popular Shades

SHOE BOIL, CAPPED HOCK

or bursitis are easily and quickly removed without knife or firing iron. Absorbine reduces them permanently and leaves no blemishes. Will not blister or remove the hair. Horse worked during treatment. At druggists or $2.50 postpaid. Horse book 6-S free.

Surprised user writes: "Horse had largest shoe boil I ever saw. Now all gone. I would not have thought Absorbine could take it away so completely."

ABSORBINE

TRADE MARK REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

W. F. YOUNG, Inc. 510 Lyman St., Springfield, Mass.

A WOMAN for VICE-PRESIDENT?

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

WILL a woman be nominated for vice-president in 1928? And if she is, will be she be elected?

Impossible?

Improbable?

It's not such an improbability as might appear at first glance. Forty or fifty years ago the average American would have said that we would never see a woman in the halls of congress. Yet Miss Alice Robertson of Oklahoma and Miss Jeanette Rankin of Montana proved otherwise. And when the Seventieth congress convenes in December four women will be occupying seats in the house of representatives. They are Mrs. Mary T. Norton of New Jersey, Mrs. Florence Kahn of California, Mrs. Edith Nourse Rogers of Massachusetts, and Mrs. Katherine Langley of Kentucky.

Twenty years ago the average American would have regarded it as highly improbable that the voters of a sovereign state would ever elect a woman governor. Yet "out in the great open spaces of the West, where men are men and women are governors," Mrs. Miriam Ferguson of Texas and Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross of Wyoming proved that it wasn't so improbable after all.

MRS. FLORENCE ALLEN

So it s neither impossible nor improbable that Mrs. American Citizen may aim even higher than the halls of congress or the executive offices of a statehouse and we may yet see one of them presiding over the United States senate as "president of the senate and vice-president of the United States." As a matter of fact, the movement to bring that about already is under way. Mrs. W. E. Maulsby, vice chairman of the Iowa Democratic women's organization, has announced that an effort will be made to obtain the vice-presidential nomination for Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, widow of the war President. And from Washington comes the word that the National Women's party is already daying its lines for a campaign to select a woman whose name will appear before either the Republican or Democratic conventions next year as a running mate for the standard bearer of either party.

MRS. BELVA ANN LOCKWOOD

Already several names have been suggested as possibilities. One of them is Mrs. Florence E. Allen, a justice of the Ohio Supreme court, who was defeated in a campaign for the senate last year. Another is Mrs. Medill McCormick, whose father, Mark Hanna of Ohio, and whose husband, Medill McCormick of Illinois, both occupied senate seats. It is considered certain that Mrs. McCormick will be a candidate in the Illinois senatorial campaign if Col. Frank Smith is denied his seat and a vacancy ensues. Still another is Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, wife of Nicholas Longworth, speaker of the house. "Princess Alice" has been one of Washington's striking personalities ever since her father, Col. Theodore Roosevelt, entered the White House away back in 1901 and there are those who say that she is a "chip off the old block" and possesses such charm, tact and political sagacity as to make her a force worth reckoning with in politics. Of course, her "availability" as a vice-presidential possibility will be contingent upon the success of Speaker Longworth's Presidential aspirations, but it would be a strange quirk of fate if political fortune smiled upon her and frowned upon her husband.

MRS. MEDILL M'CORMICK

Although this is the first time in history that women have been suggested for the office of vice-president, it is not the first time that they have aspired to such high office. For twice in our history—although few Americans may remember the fact—we have had women candidates for President. The first time was 55 years ago when Mrs. Victoria Woodhull Martin was the Equal Rights party candidate for the Presidency, in 1872, when U. S. Grant was the Republican nominee and Horace Greeley was the Democratic. In 1884, when James G. Blaine was the Republican standard-bearer, and Grover Cleveland the Democratic the Equal Rights party again had a ticket in the field and in that year Belva Ann Lockwood, a lawyer by profession and prominent in temperance, peace and suffrage movements, was its candidate. Again in 1888 Mrs Lockwood ran against Benjamin Harrison, the Republican nominee, and Cleveland, the Democratic candidate.

MRS. FLORENCE KAHN

Of course, neither Mrs. Martin nor Mrs. Lockwood—to use the argot of the day—"got to first base" with their candidacies, but the former waged a spectacular campaign and was a striking figure in her day, which was long before the era of the "new woman." Unsuccessful Presidential candidates usually slide back into the oblivion of public forgetfulness. But not so with Mrs. Martin. Three years ago the memory of her campaign was revived by the following Associated Press dispatch from London, England:

The gift to the Anglo-American association of an ancient English manor house to be used as a hostel by American pilgrims to Sulgrave manor, the home of George Washington's ancestors, brings out of obcurity a woman once known from one end of the United States to the other.

For the donor of the manor house is the venerable Mrs. Victoria Woodhull Martin, candidate for the Presidency of the United States in 1872 along with General Grant and Horace Greeley. Mrs. Martin, then Mrs. Woodhull, was the nominee of the Equal Rights party. That was the year President Coolidge was born; John W. Davis was not born until the following year. General Dawes was learning Sunday school texts and Mr. LaFollette was seventeen years old.

MRS. MARY T. NORTON

Famous for her beauty not less than for her radical views on all questions respecting woman's status in society, Mrs. Woodhull made a spectacular fight in a campaign which closed with the re-election of General Grant and Greeley's tragic death. But she had demonstrated that a woman could run for President, even though the women of the nation as a whole were not to receive the franchise until nearly half a century later.

But Mrs. Woodhull Martin has lived to see the suffrage fight won, not only by the women of her native America, but by English women as well, and from the retirement of her home at Norton Park, Bredon's Norton, up in Worcestershire, at the age of eighty-six, she looks out upon a world which today cheerfully accepts for women the enlarged horizon for which she was fighting two generations ago.

Born in Ohio in 1838, she was the widow of Dr Canning Woodhull when she made a speaking tour of England. One of her audience in old St. James hall was the late John Bidulph Martin, English banker and philanthropist. Their marriage followed, and the woman who had startled the United States by running for the Presidency came to England to reside.

And early this year that memory was revived again by the following A. P. dispatch from Brighton, England:

Mrs. Victoria Claflin Woodhull Martin, the first woman candidate for the

MRS WOODROW WILSON

Presidency of the United States—in 1872—and long a fighter for equal suffrage, believes that twenty-five is plenty young enough for men and women to obtain the franchise.

In 1872 Mrs. Martin carried the banner of equal suffrage in Maine and California as Presidental candidate of the Equal Rights party and at eighty-eight she is still interested in promoting the emancipation of women.

"I want women to have the vote as soon as they are fit to use it," Mrs. Martin told a correspondent for the Associated Press, "but I do not believe in forced maturity Twenty-five is young enough for persons of both sexes to exercise the franchise."

Mrs. Martin was seated with her daughter, Miss Virginia Woodhull, in their apartment here when she received the correspondent. Time has not dimmed the eyes of this spirited woman who, with her sister, the late Lady Cook, formerly Tennessee Claflin, was the first woman broker in New York and lectured and published "Claflin's Weekly" in support of equal suffrage and eugenics before they both came to England.

The surprised interviewer, who expected to find the western advocate of equal suffrage ready to defend the "flapper vote" as it is termed by opponents of the bill to give British women the vote at the age of twenty-one, the same as men, instead of thirty, asked:

MRS. EDITH NOURSE ROGERS

"But what of yourself at twenty-one?"

"I was making history when I was twenty-one," Mrs. Martin replied, "but I was a wife when little more than a child. My son was born when I was very young and I had an unusually advanced education at home. My case was exceptional."

"But what about your daughter?" Mrs. Martin was asked, "surely she was fit to vote at twenty-one."

"Certainly not," she replied.

"Mother is right," Miss Woodhull agreed with good humor, "I knew nothing when I was twenty-one, although I was studious and had read a great deal. I question if even the modern emancipated girl is a sufficient judge of character to discriminate between political candidates."

The fame of Mrs. Belva Ann Lockwood does not rest upon her Presidential aspirations. Although she was second in the Presidential race she was first in another field of activity, that of being the first woman lawyer admitted to practice before the Supreme court. In order to obtain this privilege she had to get a bill through congress permitting women to practice law and then she worked for three years to create a favorable sentiment toward women pleading before the highest judicial body of the land. When her efforts were ended every court in the United States was open to her and never again was a woman lawyer's application denied because of her sex or because she was a married woman, as in Mrs. Lockwood's case.

MRS. NELLIE TAYLOE ROSS

Mrs. Lockwood was born in New York in 1830, and a desire for an education became her ruling passion. At eighteen she was the bride of Uriah McNeil, a young farmer, and at the age of twenty-three, a widow with a baby daughter to support. Still determined to secure an education, she worked her way through Genesee college and became principal of the Lockport schools and later of the McNeil seminary at Oswego. At the close of the Civil war she went to Washington to teach and to study law, but another marriage, this time to Dr. Ezekiel Lockwood, an army chaplain, in 1868, interfered with the progress of her career. He died nine years later and she turned again to study. She received degrees from Syracuse and the National University Law school in Washington, which gave her the equipment to make the fight for admission to practice before any court in the country.

MRS. KATHERINE LANGLEY

She was one of the early workers for equal rights for men and women and drafted and brought about the passage of a bill equalizing the pay of women in the government service with that of men for equal work. But it was perhaps her labor in the interest of world peace which brought her her greatest fame. For 30 years she was a members of the Universal Peace union and took part in the first Peace congress in 1885. She compiled the peace treaties of the United States, studied them and brought about the introduction of the first bill in congress for an international arbitration court. Although she was sixty years of age at the time of the Peace congress in London in 1890, she remained abroad to take a course of lectures at Oxford. At the age of eighty-two she returned to Europe to carry a peace message to the women of the world. And in 1916, a year before her death, she gave an address on the re-election of Woodrow

MRS. ALICE LONGWORTH

Wilson, because of his efforts in behalf of international peace, and her address was widely used as campaign literature.

What's the Answer?

Questions No. 19

1—What contemporary novelist was banished from Spain for opposition to the government?

2—Who is light heavyweight champion pugilist?

3—Whom did Pocahontas, the famous Indian girl, marry?

4—What general in the Revolution was known as the "Hair Buyer General" and in which army did he serve?

5—Who invented the reaper?

6—What two interrelated families are conspicuous for the number of fine artists and artistes they have contributed to the American stage?

7—What is the most striking physical characteristic of Colombia?

8—What are water voles and where are they found?

9—What is the distinction between "immigrant" and "emigrant"?

10—What is Ascension day or Holy Thursday?

11—What is now the only living representation of dog tribe of carnivores in Britain?

12—Who has been called "The Spanish Shakespeare"?

13—Who defeated William T. Tilden for the tennis championship?

14—At what battle was the great Indian Tecumseh killed and when?

15—At what battle was "Remember the Alamo!" the soldiers' war cry and when?

16—Who invented the machine gun?

17—What Norwegian composer took as a basis for an orchestral suite that has become famous, a drama by Ibsen?

18—What is the second largest river in Africa?

19—What is the matter with the phrase: "From whence come you?"?

20—What is Whitsunday?

Answers No. 18

1—Constellation against the L' Insurgente, in 1799.

2—Gen. Francis Marion.

3—Eli Whitney.

4—April 30, 1922.

5—Edwin Booth.

6—Edinburgh.

7—Carlyle's "French Revolution."

8—Wild horses and asses.

9—No; it should read "more slowly"—the adverb instead of the adjective.

10—The spiritual idea of love; self-immolation; innocence and purity; sacrifice.

11—Severe criticism of his "Hours of Idleness" in the Edinburgh Review.

12—Gen. John Stark.

13—Lord Dunmore.

14—Thomas A. Edison.

15—Cecil Leitch.

16—Claude Monet.

17—Josef Hofmann.

18—The Yang-tse-kiang.

19—To the Pacific coast of North America, between British Columbia and northern California.

20—It should read "that sort," since "sort" is singular.

Ideas About Heaven Are Many and Varied

Where is heaven? What is heaven? The question may not have been settled, but it has at least been answered. The ideas contributed are many and various. Here are a few of them:

A circus lot at the end of Main street.

A very high spot in the human imagination.

A beautiful mirage which lures deluded travelers into the barren desert of credulity.

The abode of certain portions of the Deity.

A spiritual land of peace, plenty and equality, situate, lying, and being in the uppermost region above the clouds, conjured up by religion to assist in the maintenance of law, order and good will among God's children while in the bodily state on earth.

The most sublime, the most pitiful, the most pathetic delusion of all the ages.

Heaven is that which lies about us in our infancy. Heaven is that about which we were lied to in our infancy.

The ideal, the limit of human ambitions and aspirations, the ever-flying perfect.

A place to which every one is anxious to go, but no one seems to be in any hurry to get there.—The Forum.

Concerning the Kiss

A Greek peasant kissed the hand or knee of a superior when he bowed before him. Kissing the feet of the gods was also a form of Greek worship. The Greeks had made the rule: To kiss on the lips is to adore the living breath of the person saluted; to kiss the feet is to humble one's self in adoration. Our custom of kissing our hands to people at a distance from us comes from the ancient habit of kissing the hands to a god whose statue was too tall to be reached.

HOW MRS. WEAVER WAS HELPED

By Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

As Mrs. Weaver herself says, "I was never very strong." This is a mild statement describing her condition, for, according to her letters, she was subjected to no small amount of ill health. Fortunately, her sister was familiar with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and begged Mrs. Weaver to try it. "After three or four weeks," writes Mrs. Weaver, "I felt a great difference in myself. I would go to bed and sleep sound, and although I could not do very much work, I seemed stronger. I kept on taking it and now I am well and strong, do my work and take care of three children. I sure do tell my friends about your wonderful medicine, and I will answer any letters from women asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Lawrence Weaver, East Smithfield St., Mt. Pleasant, Pa.

If you knew that thousands of women suffering from troubles similar to those you are enduring had improved their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, wouldn't you think it was worth a trial?

In some families, the fourth generation is learning the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Stop Coughing

The more you cough the worse you feel, and the more inflamed your throat and lungs become. Give them a chance to heal.

Boschee's Syrup

has been giving relief for sixty-one years. Try it. 30c and 90c bottles. Buy it at your drug store. G. G. Green, Inc., Woodbury, N. J.

Writes Own Obituary

E. F. Lennon of Red Bluff, Calif., justice of the peace and former newspaper publisher, who has written hundreds of obituaries, announced that he would write just one more—his own. "I feel that a man who has served the public as long as I have deserves a write-up when he dies. Accordingly I shall write my own obituary and leave it with my will."

Just the Same

"You're suffering from indigestion. Drink a cup of hot water every morning."

"I've been doing that for some time, doctor, only my wife calls it coffee."—Answers.

Plants Containing Sugar

It is an interesting fact that sugar exists not only in the cane, beet-root and maple, but also in the sap of about one hundred and ninety other plants and trees.

Reconsideration

"I've decided to marry again."

"I thought you said you never made the same mistake twice?"

The BABY

Why do so many, many babies of today escape all the little fretful spells and infantile ailments that used to worry mothers through the day, and keep them up half the night?

If you don't know the answer, you haven't discovered pure, harmless Castoria. It is sweet to the taste, and sweet in the little stomach. And its gentle influence seems felt all through the tiny system. Not even a distasteful dose of castor oil does so much good.

Fletcher's Castoria is purely vegetable, so you may give it freely, at first sign of colic; or constipation; or diarrhea. Or those many times when you just don't know what is the matter. For real sickness, call the doctor, always. At other times, a few drops of Fletcher's Castoria.

The doctor often tells you to do just that; and always says Fletcher's. Other preparations may be just as pure, just as free from dangerous drugs, but why experiment? Besides, the book on care and feeding of babies that comes with Fletcher's Castoria is worth its weight in gold!

Children Cry for Fletcher's CASTORIA

Liberty News Notes

(Special Times Reporter)

Mr and Mrs. Will Lemke were Garner visitors Wednesday.

Francis and Florence Tanner visited at the Lew Abele home Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Carlson visited in Goodell Sunday.

The Liberty Church observed Communion Services Sunday.

Mrs. John Lemke visited at the home of her broher, Walter Blumer Monday.

Mr. and Mrs Lew Griffen and children called at the Will Suckow home Sunday.

Mrs Tanner and children visited at the Albert Carolus, Sr., home on Sunday.

John Miller went to Chicago last week to visit a sister for a few days. He returned Saturday

Mr and Mrs. John Lemke visited at the Eric Clarke home Sunday in Garner.

Next Sunday October 16th, a Sunday School Convention will be held in the Liberty church. Everyone is expected to bring their dinners and the ladies of the church will serve coffee.

The relatives of Mrs. Albert Borchers walked in with well filled baskets after church services Sunday and gave her a real surprise, the occasion being her birthday. There were thirty nine people present and all enjoyed a good time.

Choicest

FOODS

Folks, there couldn't be any eating place, no matter how expensive or how flossy, give you a better selection of high grade foods than we do.

And Oh! How we do cook 'em!

Drop in for dinner or a lunch tomorrow.

DELICIOUS—
Try our ice cream, a number of flavors, ice cold pop, and malt.

A full line of Cigars and Tobacco, at—

Busch Cafe

The W. F. M. S. of he Liberty Church held their monthly meeting in the basement of the church Wednesday.

Avery Twp. News

(Special Times Reporter)

Russel Bell is ssisting with the work at the Walter Reed home.

Ernest Helps was down to help Charley Fritzel fill silo Saturday.

Silo filling has been completed in this vicinity with most of the rings

Some of the farmers have been busy cutting corn in this community

L. W. Wesemberg was a business caller at the Peter Trampel home Friday.

Wm. Bredlow, the Skelly oil man, made some deliveries in this vicinity Wednesday.

Mrs. Fred Bachman was a caller at the John Bachman ome Wednesday forenoon.

Quite a few of the farmers in this locality have been busy digging potatoes the last few days.

Wayne Bachman was down to help shock corn at the Frank and Rob Roths farm.

Miss Octave Church was a week end guest at the home of Mrs. D. D Ross of Garner.

Mr. Wil Bachman and daughter, Lela, were callers at the Clarence Bachman home Saturday.

B. L. Prouty of Garner installed a new Atwater-Kent radio for A. R. White during the last week.

Arthur Bachman has been assisting Chris Anderson with shocking corn Monday.

Mr. Will Bachman and daughter, Lela were visitors at the John Bachman home Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bachman and daughter, Maxine, were Monday evening visitors at the John Bachman home.

Dwight and Dorothea Helps and Elmer and Vera Bachman were Suningday afternoon callers at the Peter Trampel home.

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Marshall and daughter, Dorothea, and son Robert, were Sunday afternoon visitors at the D. A. and Herb Marshall home.

Mrs. John Bachman has been on the sick list for a couple of days during the last week, but is much improved at this writing.

Mrs. Tom Roths enjoyed a visit from her sister of Belmond for a couple of days. Two of them returned home Monday while Mildred stayed for a longer visit.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bachman and daughter, Maxine, were visiting at the Earl Henry home and also with ohter relatives at Ventura Sunday

Avery-Twin Lakes News

(Special Times Reporter)

Henry Peck of Garner called in this vicinity one day last week.

Fred Etchen called at the Dick Swalve home Tuesday afternoon.

Edwin Josten was a caller at Goodell Monday fternoon.

Edwin Josten called at the Otto Pringnitz home Monday.

Fred Etchen called at the Dick Swalve home Monday morning.

Julius Priebe has been hauling lumber for some time. He intend to build a new barn.

Miss Bernice Tanner is substituting as teacher for Miss Haupt this week and probably longer.

There has been no school in Dist No 2 on account of the illness and death of Miss Haupt's father.

David Schwichtenberg called at the Dick Swalve home on Monday morning.

Herman Priebe accompanied by his brother, Julius, drove to Dows, last Friday on business.

Herman Priebe and family were visitors at the Henry Josten home last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Swalve and family were visiting near Meservey at the John Watermiller hom eSunday evening.

Farmers in this vicinity have been digging potatoes the past week

Carre Swalve is staying with her grand father the past week during Mrs. Swalve's absence

Mrs Ben Swalve and Stella Fuls left for Freeport, Illinois on Tuesday evening, being called there by the death of Mrs. Swalve's nephew who was but 22 years of age.

Mr. John Swalve and son, George, and daughter, Jeanette, of Titonka. Mr. and Mrs. Ben Swalve and Stella Fuls, were entertained to a chicken dinner at the Dick Swalve hobme on Sunday.

Fruit Said to Bear Mark of Eve's Teeth

A fruit supposed to bear the marks of Eve's teeth is one of the botanical curiosities of Ceylon. The tree on which it grows is known by the significant name of "The Forbidden Fruit," or "Eve's Apple Tree."

The blossom is said to have a very pleasant scent, but the really remarkable feature of the tree, the one to which it owes its name, is the fruit. It is beautiful and hangs from the tree in a peculiar manner. Orange on the outside and a deep crimson within, each fruit has the appearance of having had a piece bitten out of it. This fact, together with its poisonous quality, led the Mohammedans to represent it as the forbidden fruit of the Garden of Eden and to warn man against its noxious properties.

The mark on the fruit is attributed to Eve. Why the bite of Adam did not also leave its mark is not explained, but as only one piece seems to be missing, its loss is ascribed to the woman.

Use of Green Foods Common in All Ages

Lettuce is one of the oldest vegetables known and was eaten fully 500 years before the Christian era. Aristotle praised it highly. Spinach was introduced into China from Persia about 100 B. C., but was new to Europe in the Sixteenth century. Botanically, one of the most interesting products of the garden is the cabbage family. Kale, brussels sprouts, savoy cabbage, red cabbage, collards, kohlrabi, cauliflower and broccoli are all varieties of one species. Carrots were eaten by the ancients, but they were not very popular. Watercress, growing naturally in all north temperate regions, has been eaten as a salad since the Greek and Roman ascendancy and has been cultivated since the Sixteenth century. Peas were used by ancient Egyptians and others, but were not common food in Europe until the Eighteenth century. It is believed they were grown in the earliest American settlements. Thomas Jefferson recorded the growing of tomatoes in Virginia in 1781, yet it is said than an Italian could not persuade the people of Salem, Mass., to taste them in 1802.—Kansas City Times.

Scrubbed Floor Didn't Win Expected Praise

Mrs. Damon is a more than ordinarily painstaking housekeeper, especially in the matter of cleanliness. Rooms must be swept and dusted just so often, window draperies washed and the kitchen floor scrubbed "whether they need it or not," as her husband says; and it is one of her little secret grievances that John does not always notice the improvements unless she mentions them.

"I suppose you'd never know I'd done a thing to that kitchen floor if I didn't call your attention to it," she says now and then.

"Why, yes, my dear, it looks fine. Shines like a new penny," says John graciously, and Mrs. Damon sighs and resigns herself to the inscrutable ways of men.

One day last summer, when his wife was to return from a little vacation, Mr Damon thought he would prepare a surprise for her. So he got out the mop, the scrubbing brush and the pail and after half an hour's hard work felt that the kitchen was immaculate

When Mrs. Damon came in she looked round somewhat suspiciously, but made no comment. In a spirit of fun Mr. Damon remarked: "I suppose you'd never know I'd done a thing to that kitchen floor if I didn't call your attention to it."

Mrs. Damon looked at it more closely. "Why, no, dear," she said. "Have you?"—Youth's Companion.

Yes, He Could Recall Just One Exception

In Dr. E. C. Dudley's autobiography, "The Medicine Man," is a story Doctor Dudley says was told him by Dr S. Weir Mitchell, the novelist-physician, when the two medicos were dining together one night in Philadelphia soon after Doctor Mitchell had returned from a trip through the South, where he had been the guest of southern colonels all the way around.

At one plantation near Newburn, N C., Doctor Mitchell announced to his host his intention of taking an early morning walk That precipitated a lively discussion as to whether any gentleman ever should walk, the colonel insisting that "no gentleman, sir, in this country ever walks," either for pleasure or exercise.

"But," persisted Doctor Mitchell, "have you never walked in your life?"

The colonel was getting warm

"No, sir," he said, "I tell you no gen —well, sir, yes, sir, I did walk once— I walked 400 miles with that d—n scoundrel Sherman behind me."

Saved Pup From Shark

A mother collie dog, belonging to a lighthouse keeper on the south coast of Australia, recently exhibited unusual courage in an attempt to save one of its pups The young dog fell over a cliff into deep water and while the owner was attempting to rescue it with a boathook a shark appeared on the surface of the sea The other dog, which until then had merely been watching the proceedings, jumped in the water and landed on top of the big fish. As the dog fell heavily with a great splash the shark fled Both dogs were rescued.

Early Recollections

With plenty of patience, paper and a pencil, it is possible for you to remember what happened when you were six months old, asserts Dr. E Pickworth Farrow, English psychologist, in Popular Science Monthly For periods of one or two hours at a time, he says, write down any and every thought which occurs to you Repeat the process several times. Then, as memories of recent happenings gradually are "worked off" on paper, you will go back to recollections of your early life.

Puzzles Radio Experts

In a Toronto flower shop it has been discovered that everything that is broadcast from a nearby radio station is received and made audible by the faucets of a metal sink the sink itself acting as a loud-speaker. Music can be clearly heard ten feet or more from the taps. It is also said that in London a certain metal lamp pole has been found to act in the same way. Radio experts have so far been unable to explain these newest mysteries of wireless transmission.—Youth's Companion

Misunderstood

"You're back early, Michael," remarked the farmer's wife to the hired man who had been to a theater in town.

The other nodded a silent agreement and proceeded to enjoy a pipe and study his program.

"Enjoy the play?" asked the woman.

"No," replied the man. "Didn't see the end."

"Why not?"

"Well, take a look at the program here. The second act takes place in two years' time."

Naming American Cities

Nashville, Tenn., was first called Nashborough, in honor of General Nash, an officer of the Revolutionary war. This was changed in 1874 to Nashville. Los Angeles, meaning "the Angels," was at one time an old Spanish mission and got its name from California's early settlers. Detroit was given its name by the French settlers In French the word means "tlty Straits," which was given the new settlement because of its location on the broad Detroit river, connecting L. Erie and Lake Saint Clair

POLAND CHINA & CHESTER WHITE

HOG SALE

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 15, 1927

Located on farm 1-4 mile west of KLEMME, IOWA

POLAND CHINAS 25 Boars, 20 Gilts bred from the leading families of the Poland China breed, sired by "Sun Ray's Ideal," he by "Sun Ray," Dams by Big Armistice Boy by High Liberator

CHESTER WHITES 25 Boars, 20 Gilts. This is a good offering of the modern Big Type Chester Whites sired by Big Bad, White Hawk, and other prize winners. Don't miss this sale

R. C. LUDEKE, Klemme, Iowa

Office:— Masonic Bldg. GARNER, IOWA.

Phones:— Office, 149-J. Res., 149-L.

Dr. E. H. Phillips

OSTEOPATHIC PHYSICIAN

Physiotherapy, including Osteopathic treatment, diathermy, surgical diathermy, radiant heat, high frequency, chlorine gas and auto-condensation.

Storm Sash

These snappy, cold days should be a reminder that now is a good time to prepare your home for cold winter weather.

It will save you money on your coal bill this winter to have your windows and doors properly shielded with storm sash and storm doors.

Look over your windows and doors now and give us your order for storm sash. It's not too early to do this.

For your doors we recommend that you buy one f our Combination Storm and Screen Doors—easy to change from one season to the other.

We have also a good supply of storm paper for your foundations—better and also warmer than the old fashioned "banking."

And—remember, anything you need in the building line—we have it!

Northern Lbr. Co.

UNDER GOVERNMENT SUPERVISION

The Most Steadfast Friend

A man may have many friends but he will find none so steadfast, so constant, so ready to respond to his wants, so capable of pushing him ahead, as a little cloth bound book with the name of this bank on its cover. Have you such a friend? If not, would it not be wisdom for you to secure such a one promptly? It is waiting here for you.

First National Bank, KLEMME, IOWA.

One Day Battery Charging Service

DON'T MISS A PROGRAM!

TRY ONE DAY BATTERY SERVICE

—Without paying a penny rental—

—or messing around with the inconvenience of a rental battery, you can have your radio battery charged with our new ONE DAY BATTERY SERVICE, and never miss a program.

Let us have your battery before 9:00 in the morning—and you get it back the same evening.

—and you'll be surprised to find that you get better reception and longer distance.

Our new charging method is recommended by the leading battery makers and approved by the U. S. Bureau of Standards.

AND WE CAN CHARGE YOUR AUTOMOBILE BATTERY JUST AS ECONOMICALLY AND QUICKLY!

Telephone 7-7

Pritchard Auto Co.

Phone 77 Klemme, Iowa

RHEUMATISM
In France with the Amreiy I obtained a noted French ion for the treatment of atism and Neuritis. I have ds to thousands with wonderults. The prescription cost me . I ask nothing for it. I will if you will send me your adA postal will bring it. Write CASE, Dept. W92, Brockton, Mass.

Goodell News

(By Special Correspondent)

Jay Griggs spen Wednesday at Ventura.

Mrs. Harry Carpenter entertained the Oterbein Guild members to a 6 o'clock dinner Friday.

Miss Stromer spent the week end at the Jay Griggs home.

Agnes Fuller spen the week end at home

Henry Busse has installed a new telephone on the Klemme line.

Mrs. Kibseth of Belmond spent the week end in Ottumwa.

On accoun of bad weather and bad roads the Ladies Aid was postponed until a later date.

Mrs Bruns returned from the hospital at Hampton much improved in health.

Charley Halfpop was attending court at Garner last Tuesday and Wednesday.

Mr and Mrs. Allaben, Robert McNutt and family were entertained to a six o'clock dinner Sunday at the Jay Buchanan home

Mr Nels Baack has been quite ill and unable to attend to his farm duties, so his neighbors have been assisting him dig potatoes

Mrs Conklin has been substituting for Miss Given, whose mother has been quite ill, but is some better at this time

Mr Matson has been taking care of the Lumber office during the absence of Harry Newgaard, who hurt his back while lifting a plank.

A surprise party was held at the Ed Hemingway home Monday night in honor of Mrs. Hemingway's birthday A very pleasant time was had and dainty refreshments were served.

The Catholic Ladies gave a Miscellaneous shower Thursday night in the church basement in honor of Clara Kirkwood who will soon become the bride of Mr John Wenzel, of Kanawha.

Mr and Mrs. John Neeble, and their son Elmer and wife, spent Wednesday night at the A C. Carpenter home They were on their way home to Hartley after spending about ten days visiting relatives in Waterloo Goodell H. S. and Corwith played ball Tuesday at Goodell. It was a good clean game and scored 2-3 in faovr of Goodell. Our H. S. team has been doing some good work. Keep it up boys!

The drug store and garage were broken into Monday night and quite a few withings were stolen. In the garage all the tools and some tires and tubes were taken besides other articles.

Mr John Meinders, who has rented Mrs S E Elderd's farm, was taken sick with appendicit's and taken to the Hampton hospital and underwen an operation. He is very ill at present. His friends hope for a speedy recovery.

There were no church services at the U B Sunday on acount of the illness of Rev. Scott, which his many friends were sorry to hear, but he is much better at present. His little daugher, Harriett, was aken ill very suddenly and rushed to the Hampton hospital where she underwent an operation and is slowly improving which is good news to her many friends

Invention of Radio

Modern radio is the result of a long series of inventions and discoveries in the various fields of science. It cannot be said that any one man invented or discovered radio. However, Guglielmo Marconi, the Italian "wireless wizard," is usually regarded as the "father of radio." He patented the first commercially successful wireless system in 1897. The next revolutionary step in radio was about 1906 when Lee De Forest, an American, invented the audion or three electrode vacuum tube.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Changing the Subject

Dickie is five years old and goes to kindergarten but he realizes that education, for him, has just begun. The other day an intelligence test was given him by some of the older boys.

"Spell pig," said one of the boys.

"P-i-g," Dickie responded.

"Spell telephone," the boy suggested.

"Well," declared Dickie, after a moment's hesitation, "we might just as well talk about something else."

Some Fall Suggestions

OYSTERS? The oyster season is on! We are now receiving FRESH OYSTERS every few days. They are dandies for stews or for frying. Try an oyster stew—our oysters are exta fine!

MINCE PIES—We have fine MINCE MEAT in bulk. You will say it makes the best pie you eve ate. A trial will convince you that our Mince Meat is great!

FOR YOUR BREAKFASTS—These cold, snappy mornings for breakfast you should start the day right with a liberal helping of Bacon! Bacon and Eggs! We have some very nice Breakfast Bacon—just the kind you like.

Always a full line of choice Hams, Sausage, Roasts, Steaks, Chops, etc.

We still have some choice canned goods of all kinds which we are closing out a discount of twenty per cent. It will pay you to lay in a supply at these prices.

Klemme Meat Market

CHEMISTS CREATE DUSTLESS TRACKS

Horses Run Under Ideal Conditions, Thanks to Science.

"TAKING the other horse's dust," a phrase immemorial in the racing world and running back to the time when the memory of man runneth not to the contrary, seems destined to bo obsolete soon, race goers say.

Gradual improvement in caring for the big metropolitan tracks near New York and Chicago, as well as others in various sections of the country, is responsible for the change.

Landscape gardeners have wrestled with the problem for years, not for the benefit of helping the "students of form" but for purely aesthetic reasons Dustless race tracks, it was agreed would add greatly to the comfort of the spectators for the best race finish in the world holds no thrills if only the judges can see it.

Today chemicals are freely used in keeping the dust from rising. Chemists had to find something that would not injure the horses' hoofs and at the same time permit thoroughbreds to use their maximum speed.

Calcium chloride, a chemical that absorbs many times its own weight of water, has been used for some years on the smaller tracks at county and state fairs and now is coming into wider employment on the larger tracks.

STRAIGHT TALKS WITH AUNT EMMY

ON FRANCINE'S THRIFT

As Helen settled herself in Aunt Emmy's big chair she said: "Jack Hunt has bought the Briggs place. I never was so astonished in my life Jack didn't have a dollar when he married Francine and now he's bought a house."

"Well, my dear, it's not so surprising to me Francine is responsible for their prosperity"

"Why, Aunt Emmy, I thought she was awfully frivolous. I remember how disappointed I was when Jack married her She seemed entirely too pretty and too well dressed to be a good wife. When I dined at their house I thought she was frightfully extravagant about her table She must have paid her cook a lot to have the food she served"

Aunt Emmy smiled "I liked Francine from the first," she said. "She and I became good friends. She told me how worried she was because Jack did not seem to think of the future and never tried to save money Everything about housekeeping was so new to her that she was glad to come to me with her little problems I advised her to save regularly, no matter how hard it might be. She coaxed Jack to open an account at the bank for her household money. He thought it was silly because they had so little She said she could keep more accurate accounts if she had a bank account. He said they didn't have enough to keep track of. She insisted she wanted to learn to keep accounts. Then, when they got rich, she'd know how.

"I don't need to tell you how they prospered. Three of the sweetest children in the world and now a house! Jack is proud as he can be."

"Yes," interrupted Helen, "but how did she do it?"

"The very first week after she started her checking account at the bank she took the money she saved and opened a savings account in the thrift department, where she got interest on her savings. You see, she was determined to save at least 10 per cent of her income. She saved steadily She asked me to help her plan things out and together we worked out a budget, so she could divide her income to meet her expenses. When her plan was working well she told Jack.

"He was tickled to death. Then he began to save too Francine wanted a real home They saved for that. They have been married six years now and they haven't a debt in the world. That excellent food, my dear, was all prepared by Francine herself, just as her pretty clothes are made by her from remnants and odds and ends she picks up at bargain prices."—A. B Aymes.

SHORT SMILES

A Hint

Author—What do you think of my last joke?

Editor—Good—if it is.

A Point in His Favor

First Flapper—Is he a nice boy?

Second Ditto—No, dear, I think you'll like him.

Kissed

"You are sun kissed," remarked Margie. "There were others," announced Maud.

FINE FOOD FOLKS

There's a difference in the way vegetables, meats, etc. are cooked and you will recognize it the moment you eat them here.

We serve only the very best the market affords, all well cooked.

As with everything, we think the best is none too good for our patrons.

Drop in for lunch or any meal anytime, at—

Crystal Cafe

Conrad Quandt, Prop.

LYRIC
Theatre
—GARNER, IOWA—
Presents The Following

Friday and Saturday
October 14-15
Harold Bell Wright Story
with
R. Coman & Vilma Banky in "WINNING OF BARBARA WORTH"
Gang Comedy
"THE FOURTH ALARM"
Adm 15-35c Shows 7:30-9:00

Tuesday and Wednesday
October 18-19
"ROCKING MOON"
—Comedy—
"TILL WE MEET AGAIN"
Adm 10-25 Shows 7:30-9:05

Farm
Loans
5%
Isaac Sweigard
Garner Iowa

PIANOS
Players & Grand
New and
Second Hand
M. N. ZEIGER
Jewelry & Optical Goods
GARNER, IOWA

FACTS
—AND THE OPEN MIND

THE MOST important element in business success—and the most difficult—is to be sure that you have all the facts before you act.

TO GET them all, from every possible source, is the first objective in General Motors. The Research Laboratories contribute some. These are nuggets, left in the crucible, after hundreds of ideas that looked good have been burned away. The Proving Ground contributes others. Dealers contribute. The public contributes. Every department contributes. Through the whole organization runs a spirit of inquiry and of rigid insistence on proof.

OUT OF such thinking come the new models announced from time to time by Chevrolet, Pontiac, Oldsmobile, Oakland, Buick, LaSalle, Cadillac—all with Fisher Bodies. And by Frigidaire. Each new model is a tested step forward. Nothing goes into it as a result of habit or guess or pride of opinion.

Nothing counts but hard-won facts, gathered and used with an open mind.

PRODUCTS OF GENERAL MOTORS
CHEVROLET
CHEVROLET
PONTIAC
PONTIAC
OLDSMOBILE
OLDSMOBILE
OAKLAND
OAKLAND
BUICK BUICK
LASALLE
LASALLE
CADILLAC
CADILLAC
DELCO-LIGHT ELECTRIC PLANTS
FRIGIDAIRE
The electric refrigerator

GENERAL MOTORS
"A car for every purse and purpose"

CLIP THIS COUPON

GENERAL MOTORS (Dept. A), Detroit, Mich.

Please send without any obligation to me, your illustrated booklet, "Where Motor Car Facts Are Established," together with information about the particular General Motors product or products I have checked at the right.

CHEVROLET ☐ OAKLAND ☐ CADILLAC ☐
PONTIAC ☐ BUICK ☐ FRIGIDAIRE ☐
OLDSMOBILE ☐ LASALLE ☐ DELCO-LIGHT ☐

Name _____ Address _____

Up in the old apple tree. Aren't those big beauties good to bite into? But don't forget the treat that will be ready at home—Monarch Cocoa and Monarch Teenie Weenie Peanut Butter sandwiches.

EVERY genuine Monarch package bears the Lion Head, the oldest trademark in the United States covering a complete line of the world's finest food products—Coffee, Tea, Cocoa, Catsup, Pickles, Peanut Butter, Canned Fruits and Vegetables, and other superior table specialties.

REID, MURDOCH & CO.
Established 1853
Chicago Pittsburgh Boston New York
Jacksonville Tampa Los Angeles

Monarch is the only nationally advertised brand of QUALITY FOOD PRODUCTS sold exclusively through the men who own and operate their own stores.

MONARCH
Quality for 70 Years

There is neither jealousy nor selfishness back of a friendship that is worth while.

Don't Trust Your Butter To Luck

Market men and consumers are insisting on uniform color, now-a-days, and no real dairyman can afford to trust to luck any more. Keep your butter always that golden June shade, which brings top prices, by using Dandelion Butter color All large creameries have used it for years. It meets all State and National Food Laws. It's harmless, tasteless and will not color Buttermilk. Large bottles cost only 35c at all drug and grocery stores.

Send for FREE Sample

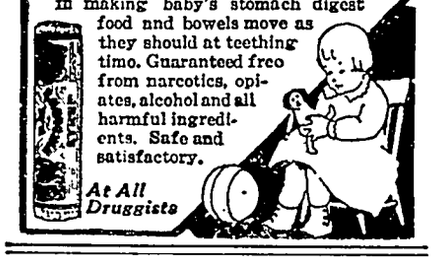
Wells & Richardson Co., Inc.
Burlington, Vermont

Keep Stomach and Bowels Right

By giving baby the harmless, purely vegetable, infants' and children's regulator.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SYRUP

brings astonishing, gratifying results in making baby's stomach digest food and bowels move as they should at teething time. Guaranteed free from narcotics, opiates, alcohol and all harmful ingredients. Safe and satisfactory.



At All Druggists

Lotta Mommer

"Joe, I lifted a 200-pound dumbbell yesterday."

"Zatso? What was her name?"

Mysterious

"A passel of gents, masked and robed, came to my house last night and beat and hammered on the door," related Gap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge. "I lifted up a board in the floor and slipped out with my gun, rounded the house and sprayed the weepin' amonst 'em some. Part of 'em went away and next morning I went out and found the rest had stayed."

"Well, what in tunkett did they want?" asked a hearer.

"I hain't the slightest idy. Didn't you just hear me say they had masks on?"—Kansas City Star.

Satisfying Effect!

Mason City, Iowa.—"I have taken Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and it has always given me entire satisfaction. As a tonic for women I do not believe it can be equaled.

"I have also taken Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets as a mild laxative. I consider them the best remedy I know of to keep the stomach and bowels in condition. I think they are extraordinary." — Mrs. Wm. Keys, 610 S. Van Buren St.

Dr. Pierce's Medicines (liquid or tablets) can be bought in your neighborhood store, 60 Pellets, 30 cts.

Write Dr Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., if you desire free medical advice.

Kitchen Tyranny

Mrs. A.—Two is company, so they say.

Mrs. B.—Yes, our cook never allows us to invite more than that.—Boston Transcript.

One of the winningest sights is a little girl in the midst of her eleven dolls.

SAY "BAYER ASPIRIN"—Genuine

Unless you see the "Bayer Cross" on tablets, you are not getting the genuine Bayer Aspirin proved safe by millions and prescribed by physicians over 25 years for

Colds	Headache	Neuritis	Lumbago
Pain	Neuralgia	Toothache	Rheumatism

DOES NOT AFFECT THE HEART

Safe — Accept only "Bayer" package which contains proven directions.

Handy "Bayer" boxes of 12 tablets. Also bottles of 24 and 100—Druggists.

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

You Must Enjoy Good Health To Be Successful

Mr. E. A. Vandivier, New York, writes: "I have just finished a trip around the world and do not know what I would have done if I had failed to find your CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS on sale in the chemists shops.

Change of water and food gave me indigestion, sick headache and constipation. I felt lazy and did not enjoy my sleep at night, arising with a dull and tired-out feeling. . . . Your wonderful CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS gave me a mild laxative bowel movement, kept me well and happy and encouraged a successful business trip."

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS are purely vegetable, do not contain Mercury, Calomel or other poisons, they are not habit forming and regulate the bowels free from pain.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS, 25c. and 75c. red packages.

Men Marooned

By GEORGE MARSH

WNU Service. Copyright by The Penn Publishing Co.

CHAPTER VIII—Continued

—12—

Facing the drive of the wind, the team fought its way slowly down over the frozen tundra. With night the frost stiffened, and the needle-pointed barrage of snow crystals stung the faces of men and dogs like the lash of myriad whips. Heads down to avoid the agony, men and dogs swung away from the thrust of the wind, until the half-breed, straightening again, felt the bleat of the blizzard on his right cheek, and changed their course.

Often, unable to face the burst of edged torment on their noses, the dogs lay down, backs to the drive, refusing to move. Then, Garth and Etienne, lifting them to their feet, dragged the team and sled until the huskies again leaned into their collars. Blindly into the murk walling them in plunged the tireless half-breed, leading the way to the shelter of the far timber and food. With face frostbitten from exposure in feeling for direction, hands numb from untangling with mittenless fingers the frozen harness of the dogs, Etienne plunged down the sloping tundra. His face buried in his hood and constantly fighting to save his numbing fingers, Garth followed. There flashed through his mind tales told at the post of Crees caught, as they were, on the high barrens, and found stiff in the snow. But, as he doubled against the drive of the blizzard, blinded, unable to see the man ahead; often swinging off the trail while, holding true, the canny lead-dog passed him with the team, Garth Guthrie never doubted that they would win to the timber and shelter.

Two grinding hours of slavery on lacerated feet into the pin-pointed fury, and turning in their harness, the spent dogs lay down, refusing to move. Numb to threats or urging, the heart-broken huskies, crusted with ice, had made their choice. Rather than the torture which flayed their faces, they would lie, backs to the barrage, while the withering wind slowly stiffened them to ice.

There was nothing the men could do. The dogs were done.

"I turn dem loose. We hunt de timber," Etienne shouted into Garth's hood. With his knife he slashed the dogs from their frozen harness, but the huskies lay while the snow beat over them, refusing their freedom. Shot, white-coated from nose to tail, gingerly muzzled the motionless shapes. Castor, alone, resented the act by a feeble snap. Lifting their heads, and shaking them, Garth in turn called their names, but the numbness of the white death already was in their blood. Gently he lifted Castor to his feet, but the leader sank limply to the snow.

"Good-by, boys!" he called to the white shapes by the sled. "You gave us all you had. Good-by!"

"Dey weel freeze in ten minute—nevair feel eet now," shouted Etienne, his voice breaking as he turned from a last word with his favorite Castor.

Shelter and fire! All thought of the food frozen under the sled cover had left them. The windbreak of the spruce meant fire, warmth, life—but how far was the timber? With the ax from the sled the two men started, Shot at their heels. A hundred yards and Etienne stumbled, stopped—while Garth lunged into him.

The man on his knees turned to the other. "De spruce—eet ees here!" His snowshoes had fouled a dwarf spruce on the edge of the timber. Swiftly now they plunged ahead, seeking the heavier growth. In a hundred yards they were in thick bush.

While Guthrie scraped out a fire-hole with a snowshoe, Etienne gathered dry spruce twigs and started a fire; then slashed down saplings and soon had a comforting heat in the snow-hole behind the wind-break. With the warmth the men rubbed the circulation into numbed hands and faces. But out on the tundra in the drive of the blizzard lay five loyal friends, stiffening under the drift.

Leaving the fire Garth and Etienne started to back-track to the sled. Guthrie, with Shot alternately plunging ahead and returning to find his master, had gone but a short distance into the blackness with its shot-like hail of fine snow, when he found that he had drifted away from the half-breed. Too dark to locate tracks in the snow which filled at once with drift, he kept on with the wind on his left shoulder. Suddenly he missed Shot. He stopped and shouted, hoping the dog was near, but the airedale was lost, or had left him. Why?

Continuing down wind, counting his paces at last Guthrie knew that he had passed the sled in the blind murk, so circled. Etienne had said the dogs would freeze in ten minutes—and he had missed them; lost the chance to save the huskies who had given him their all that grim December day—. Then a white body shouldered into his legs—Shot!

"Where did you go?" he shouted into the dog's ear. But the excited beast left him to plunge into the storm—then returned to seize Garth's mittened hand.

Following the dog for a space he stumbled against a mound in the snow—the sled! He groped for the heaps that marked the frozen dogs, but in vain. They were gone. Etienne? He had got them up into the spruce.

In his joy Garth knelt and hugged the ice-sheeted body of the great airedale whose tongue found his master's face.

Food!

The sled-load was untouched. Etienne had had but one thought—to save his dogs. So Garth slashed the frozen lashings and reached a grub-bag, tea pail and kettle; then started for the camp, following blindly the dog who nosed out the tracks of the team. The dull glow of the fire through the blur of snow led them over the last yards. There, on his knees, Etienne was working over his huskies' legs.

"Grub and a pail!" shouted Garth, as he scooped up snow for tea. "Good old Castor! You feel better now?"

The husky, sprawled near the blazing logs, lifted his tail in response.

"Der moccasin save der feet," said Etienne "Good t'ing dey cut feet on de bush so we put on de shoe."

"But how did you get them up to follow you? They were close to frozen when we left them."

Etienne grinned as he pinched and rubbed a pair of hairy paws. "Do husky ees ver' smart feller. Dey were all tire out—but not start to freeze w'en we left dem. Een leetle tam, dey so tire and hungree, dey freeze. But Etienne tell dem dat supper start soon, and dey come to life, toute suite. Den I drag dem here."

"I'll go back for blankets," said the much relieved Guthrie, and with

With the Warmth the Men Rubbed the Circulation Into Numbed Hands and Faces.

Shot, went to the sled and returned with robes, and the whitefish for the famished huskies.

Later, snug before their fire in the wind-break of the timber, two men and six dogs slept the sleep of exhaustion, while the norther drove across the white tundra.

* * * * * * *

Although the wind ceased and the snow ceased by noon of the following day, the crippled dogs held Guthrie to his camp. With his glasses he located the smoke of cooking fires in the scrub across the basin, and in the early afternoon Etienne slipped his moccasins into the thongs of his snowshoes and started for the camp of the hunters, while Garth, whose knowledge of Cree was limited, stayed with the dogs.

As Garth watched a boiling kettle of salt wavy, and bannock baking in a tilted frying pan, the dogs announced the return of Etienne through the dusk. Much depended upon what the head man had learned, and Guthrie probed the immobile features as the half-breed thrust his shoes in a drift and stepped to the fire.

"Well, what news?"

From the gravity of his expression it was clear that Savanne was struggling with a problem difficult and baffling.

"Ver' queer t'ing—ver' queer!" was the unresponsive answer as Etienne dropped his mittens on their neck thong to warm his hands at the fire.

"What is?"

"What dose Cree tell me. Dere are eight hunter wid camp een dis valley here; some from Elkwan and some from down de coast. I talk to dem all. W'at dey say ees ver' strange."

"Well, for heaven's sake shoot!"

"Souci has been here two—t'ree day back. He invite dem to the Canoe Riviere w'ere he mak' de beeg medicine."

"Did he get them to promise to take their fur to the schooner?"

"No! Mokoman, he talk to dem strong, too, but dey not know w'at dey do w'en I say de strait froze. Dey have mooch fox—silver, black and cross."

"They are going to Souci's powwow?"

"Yes, and hunter down de riviere—all weel go."

"How far is it?"

"Not far—ten mile—mebbe more, ovair de hill."

Garth's mouth shut hard. "Well, Etienne, we haven't been invited, but we'll surely attend that party."

Etienne nodded. "But dees Souci, w'y he tak' de troubl' to do dees t'ing?"

"He's going to tell the hunters that the spirits are the friends of McDonald and they must take their fur to the schooner."

"I feex dat for heem. I tell de Cree ovair dere dat you and I watch de schooner at night, an' see fire come out of her an' de devil dance on de mast. I scare dose squaw so bad, one had de fit."

"How about the men?"

"Dey wait to see Souci—but dey are scare."

"Where is this Mokoman?"

"He has gone to de Canoe. He was not wid Souci."

"Well, we head for the Canoe at daylight. Will the dogs be able to travel? If not, we go without them."

"Ah-hah, de dogs can walk to de Canoe."

"We may not persuade the hunters to cross the ice with us, but we can make it hot for sorcerer Souci when he tries his mumbo-jumbo. Will he dare make his medicine when he sees us?"

Savanne scratched his head before replying. "Somet'ing een dis dat ees queer. Dey say Souci has not met Mokoman, an' he was here on de islan' long tam. Dere was troubl', too, wid French companee, down de Rabbit."

"What kind of trouble—fighting?"

"Ah-hah! Dis Blackbeard run de French Cree ovair de ice—drive dem off de islan'."

"He did, did he? Well, that will cook McDonald's goose for next year. The government will have the police up here waiting for that schooner on her return. Run 'em off the island? Good! I only wish he'd try that with us. I wouldn't mind meeting up with Monsieur Breault of St. Johns."

Etienne drew a long skinning knife from his inside sash. "I would lak to cut dem whiskeer wid dis—ver' short, een de neck."

"I'll bet you would, you old knife-fighter! Like the job you did on One-Eyed Louis, up at God's lake."

Etienne squinted along the edge of the knife—then ran a thumb over it.

"Breault insult ma femme," he said quietly, and returned the knife to its sheath.

In the blue dawn the dog-team pulled out of camp bound down river to the west fork, which would take them north through a gash in the barrens to the watershed of the Canoe. The norther had left much drifted snow and the stiff legs of the huskies cut the pace to a walk. Shot, exuberant after his two days of enforced idleness, ranged to the front and flanks in search of ptarmigan, rabbit and mouse. Along the river, the broken-out drift in the old trail marked the hunters on their way to the rendezvous on the Canoe. It was evident that the Cree trappers in the north of the island were bound for the medicine lodge of the old shaman. Twenty to thirty hunters with a catch of at least one hundred foxes would gather to witness the necromancy of the conjurer. On the power of the old man's magic would depend the destination of twenty thousand dollars' worth of fox pelts. Whether Elkwan or the schooner at Seal cove was to enjoy a rich Christmas trade would be determined by the ability of Saul and his spirit coadjutors to nullify the superstitious fears aroused by the sinister rumors of the crafty Etienne. It would be a battle worth thought Garth, keen for the the lonely valley of the tween the grasping Cree w trayed him and the resou vanne. But one condition posed on the half-breed— should be no bloodshed. come to Akimiski to save of the future, as well as th and under no circumstance head man to abuse or threa Saul or his sons. He, Guth have something to say conc long arm of the company in dealings with the man wh serted to the enemy; but mand was—no fighting.

"W'at you do with dat had demanded Etienne with

"If he shows up at the and interferes, I'l leave him

"I tak' good care of heem, the other.

At the fork they left the trail to follow the branch north.

"Dey all go to Souci's laughed Etienne. "Four, pass here dis morning."

As the tender-footed husk the sled at a walk or slow reveled in the game sign of along shore. On a foray into ber, the trail of the snowsh which had first lured him, wa by that of a more enticing with the lust for the hunt, lowed the trail back through and out into the open barre shoulders of the valley. T from the river, he stopped him the webbed imprint of cut the fox tracks he follow dog sniffed curiously, but vague, unfamiliar scent that trail carried. Slowly at first, a lope, he followed it down the timber. As he neared the voices of Garth and Etien ed faintly in from the ice. was puzzled. From his training he had learned silen business was afoot. And this business. By the hour he had shell holes—from trenches— trolled forest, as at present, lute silence. In some occult keen-witted dog seemed tha there in the white north f Flemish battle fields, he was old trade, guarding with nostrils, eyes and ears te safety of the man out there on

On he went, weaving in and the thick scrub, relentless as Suddenly the airedale stiffen rising like brush bristles a spine. Near the shore in the ahead was something dark, mo

The war dog froze, stiff spruce above him, one paw s in air. A vague scent reac working nostrils. Then, like through the dusk, the airedale up the trail

Out on the river ice the Garth called, "Here, Shot." head of the dog did not tu small, terrier eyes never le shape on the snow. He knew lean, brown barrel thrust bef dark body was a rifle—a make and death.

Three—four steps nearer, the ering beneath him the steel which were the muscles of the airedale leaped. As Shot ripped into the shoulder of th an's capote, the rifle exploded. ricocheted from the frozen sle and whined away over the rive men dropped behind the sled, team stopped Reaching up wrenched his cased rifle from ings and fired twice below a s blue smoke hanging in the where an enraged dog silent pled with an unknown enemy his fire was not returned. The der the trees, an Indian fra fought to turn his rifle on th dened brute who had ripped to ribbons and hurled him ba to the snow Parrying the punishing fangs with a blow gun butt, the Indian gained his meet another lunge before he his gun. Again the dog leape rying the man with him. slashed at bared throat—a cry—the airedale's jaws shut flesh—ripped—and the would sassin lay on the snow with throat.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Chief Executive's Son Chastised in Pub

John Adams, son and private secretary of John Quincy Adams, when the latter was President, was the victim of a nose-pulling and face-slapping episode in the rotunda of the national capitol, a writer in the Kansas City Star recalls. Young Adams appears to have been extremely tactless, committing blunders that seem unpardonable today, and this conduct made him unpopular.

Russell Jarvis, then editor of the Washington Telegraph, had supported Andrew Jackson in the campaign that ended with Adams' election. Not long after Adams took office, Jarvis, his wife and a party of friends attended a reception at the White House. John made an insulting remark about Jarvis in a tone that the Jarvis party hear plainly. They immediately their respects to Mrs. Adams a

A few days later, when John livering some documents to the for his father Jarvis met him rotunda, boxed his ears in hearty fashioned style and topped of ishment by tweaking the secre nose. Representative Dorsey of land, a spectator, parted the John completed his mission; the ried home to tell his father of counter. There was an investi that resulted satisfactorily to one except John, no punishment meted out to Jarvis.

Famous Island Group

The Aeolian islands is a group of seven large and numerous small islands, north of Sicily, in the Mediterranean. The larger islands comprise Lipari, Salina, Vulcano, Filicuri, Stromboli, Panaria and Alicuri. Though of volcanic origin, the islands as a whole are well cultivated. The chief productions are currants, olives, figs, tropical fruits and salt. Wine also is produced.

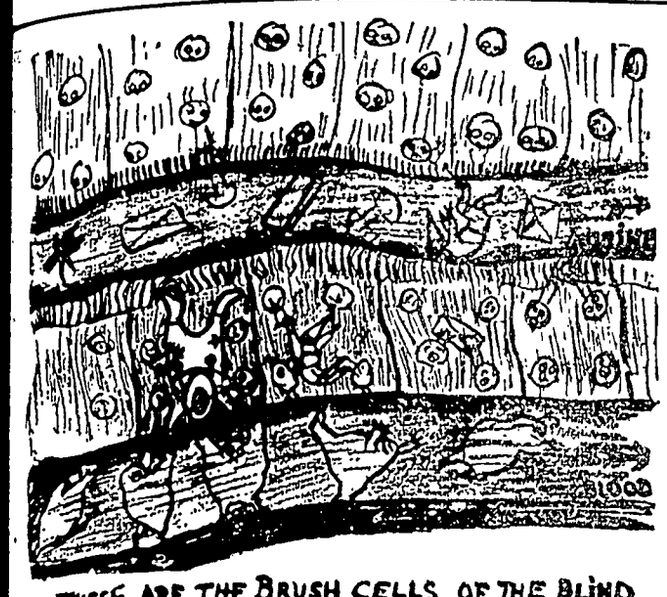
Cloture and Closure

Closure is a method of closi bate upon a subject in a legi body and obtaining vote immed or at a specified time. It was troduced in the British house of mons in 1882 and it was then "cloture," which is a French Later "closure" became the mo mon name for this method of debate, especially in the United but now there seems to be a t to go back to the French word ture." They have the same —Pathfinder Magazine.

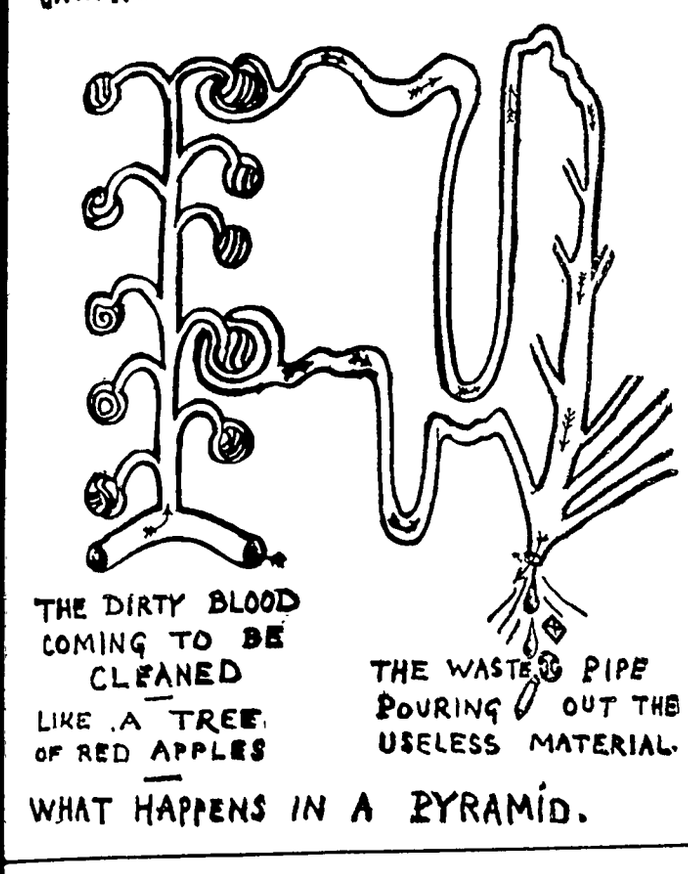
OURSELF nd YOUR BODY

By WILFRED T. GRENFELL

WASTE



THESE ARE THE BRUSH CELLS OF THE BLIND TUBE. THROWING OUT USELESS STUFF AND GIVING BACK TO THE BLOOD WHAT IT CALLS FOR



THE DIRTY BLOOD COMING TO BE CLEANED

LIKE A TREE OF RED APPLES

THE WASTE PIPE POURING OUT THE USELESS MATERIAL.

WHAT HAPPENS IN A PYRAMID.

THERE is no waste—there is no death. All matter consists of electrons and they always are the same, so far as we know. there are things in shapes in h our machines can't use them more than a gasoline engine can heavy oil. We have spoken of we get sick if all the remains of that we swallow, and which is onger of use to our bodies, is not ed on and out. We have spoken hat happens to all the soldiers, police, and builders that all the e must keep on dying inside our body machine. How the liver s, and how the skin helps, and the lungs help to throw out e H's and C's and O's and N's in iles as when two oxygens drag ne carbon in a bundle called car- e acid, or when one oxygen drags two hydrogens in a bundle called er, etc. All those machines can little more, when specially called as when we perspire or when we . But you must not forget that ese most wonderful machines that e up your body, every single cell live. It eats and drinks just as we and so every one of them, exactly us, must also get rid of H's and and C's and N's all the while, and right inside each part of each hine everywhere.

ow we possess also two simply velous machines to pick out and all this on out of the body. The machine more marvelous is the king machine, and I am sure you say so. If these machines are troyed, the whole body dies at e from plain garbage poisons, or ns. Alcohol hurts these machines ibly.

hese machines are so important are kept in the safest part of body, away up under the ribs, e to the spine, on elastic shelves, l tied up, and covered all over with t soft pads of warm fat. Central ws well how important they are, If a doctor has to take one out be- se it is diseased or killed by its mies, as those pirates of King erculosis sometimes succeed in ng, then central sets to work at e, and makes the other machine ce as large, so as to do the work both. These two machines we "kidneys." You know the shape them. They are really living filters, ecially to keep the blood in the es always pure and normal. They tain thousands of tiny pipes ough which dirty blood is brought them to clean. (See picture.) The d pipes to be longer and give even e surface being rolled up in the e balls like string. These look like bles on a tree. Round each is a small . (See picture). Stationed all around m are very learned, specially ined cells, which filter off an av- ge of two pints of water a day, in very clever way. The feed pipes o the balls are larger than the re- n pipes, so there is always a pres- e in them. Also, the wall cells of sac are very thin—so, first of all, water leaks through. Some things t the blood must have the right ount of, like salt, however, also break through. This water gathering from the pipes drops into a blind tube like a "U." There are some of the cleverest cells in the body here—surrounding all the walls. There are none like them elsewhere. These watchmen have heads like brushes, and are very keen detectives and very clever.

Thus, they hear the blood cells calling out, "We want more salt"—so they pick out all the salt that comes past and return it to the blood. Or, when the blood cells call out, "We want water," they swallow that and pass it back into the blood. On the other hand, if the blood cells shout, "We have too much sugar or too many N's," they can pick it out through their other end and pass it into the waste tube. (See picture). Like a weasel, they are never caught napping. As you know, N's and C's and H's and O's won't dissolve in water, so these clever cells make them all up in simple packages which they then post into the stream in the waste tubes and these are then washed on, and so out.

This is what is in each tiny bundle of this new stuff—one C, four H's, two N's and one O It has a funny name, "urea." It is very beautiful when dry, being in lovely sparkling crystals like this. That is why, when dissolved in water, the whole is called "urine." There are also other beautiful envelopes, like the phosphorous ones, and others.

Each blood-cleaning machine has 15 pyramids. Each is built up of hundreds of pipes, all gradually running together and opening into one hole at the top. The water that drips from there is now caught in the large funnel and passed into a long tube, which is really a pump, pumping the water on into a long bladder below through a dire valve in its wall. The outlet door of this is guarded exactly as the garbage cesspool by a muscle round the door. The bladder lies in the bone basin on the top of the arch made by the leg bones. It is put close alongside the cesspool, as both are for a similar purpose, and the wire to and from central can then run up together. This bladder acts like a catch basin, till, exactly like the garbage well, the pressure gets high enough to cause the guard to warn central. Then central again orders the lower guards of the muscle around the tube that leads out of the lower part to "let go," and then the muscles around the sides of the bladder "squeeze out the water." This, just like emptying the garbage, is partly under our will control so that we can have time to arrange to empty it as conveniently as we like.

But let us look for one moment at the filter part. It is like overhauling the engine of a motor. You see these cells around the ball of pipes. You also see them around the "U" tube. These are the wise old fellows I spoke of. They can do more than central can, or you and I and central together, and if they don't do their work the machine is useless, so never send a lot of alcohol along in your pipes to poison these poor things, for they are our most faithful friends.

(© by the Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Horticultural News

FRUIT TREES ARE HARMED BY PESTS

Not a year goes by that there are not numerous complaints of heavy loss of fruit trees due to the ravages of mice and rabbits. Injury from mice is comparatively easy to control. The succulent bark of the young tree is particularly tasty to them in the lean months of winter, but as they are under the snow and do not climb the trees, some means of protection will prevent their damage. Ordinary building paper does very well, not the tarred, but the plain gray building paper. Cut this in strips 6 inches or 8 inches wide and tie around the trunk of the young trees, banking up around the bottom with a little earth. A better and more permanent way is to use wire protectors made from either galvanized wire of a fine mesh or from expanded metal lath. Cut this material into strips about 18 inches high and 18 inches or so wide to allow for expansion of the tree, and fasten with small pieces of wire. This material will last several years without replacing, and insures adequate protection against mice and against rabbits as far as the material reaches, but rabbits have the faculty of getting on top of the snow and chewing the branches above the snow line. This makes protection a rather difficult matter. There is not any really good treatment for rabbits, but the following poison has met with some success and is worth trying: White arsenic, 1 part; corn meal, 3 parts. Mix thoroughly and spread about the area to be protected. A repellant which has also been used with varying success is as follows: Unslaked lime, 20 pounds; flowers of sulphur, 15 pounds; water, 40 pounds. Apply this to the trunks with a brush. —M. B. Davis, Division of Horticulture, Central Indiana Experimental Farm.

Strawberries Protected by Covering With Straw

Everyone interested in growing strawberries in any way, will find it a valuable thing to mulch the vines well before the beginning of severe winter weather. The best material and generally the handiest is to employ straw. When the ground is frozen, apply the straw. Some four inches deep as the straw lies loose, is a good depth for the covering.

Allow the straw to so remain until early spring, or at the period when vegetation starts a growth. Then with the fork remove from directly over the hills or the matted rows of plants, about three-fourths of the straw, but leave it in the spaces between the rows. Allow it to remain in that position until the berries are all picked.

There are several advantages of the use of straw as winter protection of the plants. First, the plants do not become drawn out of the soil, if the winter season is one of much hard freezing. Second, by leaving it in the spaces, no grass or weeds can come up and much hard work is saved. Third, the straw so placed conserves the moisture, and fourth, the ripening fruit is kept free from sand or soil. This is mighty important, for unclean berries are hard to sell and fail to bring remunerative prices.

The whole process as described is not expensive, makes strawberry growing a pleasure and fully rewards anyone for the time and labor expended.

Low-Headed Trees Find Favor in Many Sections

The introduction of the San Jose scale a little more than twenty-five years ago created an immediate demand for low-headed trees. This extended to a point where many apple trees were headed as low as 18 inches. Now, the open center type framework is popular for apples as well as peaches in New Jersey and many other fruit districts.

In the attempt to secure a low, open center apple tree, very little attention in practice has been given during the last 20 years to obtaining an adequate spacing of the framework branches upon the trunk.

This fortunately has not resulted in any serious percentage of breakage of tops in New Jersey. Stayman, however, and to a less degree, Delicious, have proved to be varieties that tend to form weak main crotches if the main branches are too closely bunched.

All apple districts are, therefore, urging a better spacing of the main branches of apple trees. The open center type of tree is still the most popular in New Jersey. Because of this, a slight extension or distribution of the head is the corrective pruning recommended.—J. A. Blake, Horticulturist, New Jersey Agricultural College.

Earliest Berry Bushes

Currants and gooseberries are among the earliest of our berry bushes to leaf out in the spring. For this reason the plants should be set in the ground where they are to remain permanently just as soon as possible. The plants will grow even though in full leaf before being transplanted. But they will not respond and make the strong growth the first year that they would if the plants were still in a dormant condition when they were first set out.

Camel

The cigarette that leads by billions

Just to state a great truth in another way—Camel is so exactly what so many smokers want that no other brand is even a close second.

If all cigarettes were as good as Camel you wouldn't hear anything about special treatments to make cigarettes good for the throat. Nothing takes the place of choice tobaccos.

© 1927, R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, Winston-Salem, N. C.

Increased Demand for Yankee "Hooked Rugs"

The demand for American hooked rugs of the better kind not only keeps up but seems to increase. By American is meant Yankee rugs, not those which are imported from Canada, chiefly Nova Scotia, but those which the patient housewives of New England hooked a century ago or more. Some of these have real beauty in their colorings and patterns, and the years have softened and toned down any crudities of tint that may have been originally worked into them so that they harmonize definitely and unobtrusively in a decorative scheme.

There is something most attractive about a hooked rug, for it symbolizes the patience and the conscientiousness and the effort to bring about beauty that are part of the American heritage of character and used as part of the decorations of a modern home they bring into it an element that is none too plenty in the turmoil of this life of the Twentieth century. —The Antiquarian.

Blonde or Brunette

A Missouri preacher who has married more than 4,000 couples during his pulpit career mentions the circumstance that the brunette brides take their union rather more seriously than the other types. The red-headed girl comes up to the altar with the best of a sportsman. She wants to show you what she has captured without describing the size of those that got away. But the pastor says that among the blondes there are very many dumb-bells. They do not seem to know what it is all about and few of them seem to care. But it must be understood that this is a Missouri record and may not apply so rigidly to the brides in other states. Out here the rumor that blondes are dumb has never gained much headway.—Los Angeles Times.

Some One at the Door

"It sounds as if some one was coming for lunch," said Mrs. Maude Scofield, San Francisco woman, to her husband, as she started to the door. The guest was a big steam roller. It had run wild three blocks down a hill to the Scofield home, and finding the door not open, the guest smashed the front of the house, splintered a partition, knocked down the hostess, and almost demolished the place. There may have been a time when home was a safe place, but that was before man began scooting around in seven-ton trucks and three-ton airplanes.—Capper's Weekly.

Giant Incandescent Lamp

The world's largest incandescent lamp is shaped somewhat like an ordinary house lamp, but is 10 inches long and uses more than 13 horse power of electric energy. It is rated at 10,000 watts, which makes it 200 times the size of the average lamp used in homes.

Yes, Many More

More than one attorney picks up some coin as he lays down the law.—Farm and Fireside.

The woman who has ceased to weep is no longer young.

A big policeman can bluff almost anyone except his wife.

His Discovery

Kerzogg—I found out this morning that four of my most devoted friends were broke.

Ziggsby—How did you find out?

Kerzogg—Oh, I tried to borrow a few dollars, you know.—New Bedford Standard.

His Solution

"The phone always rings when one is in the bathtub."

"The remedy for that is a phone in the bathroom."

"But now we are threatened with television."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Many still believe that hand-spanked and home-grown children are the best.

BE OUR AGENT—Make big money selling our $50.00 Magnetic Health Belt. Send $17.50 for sample. Restoro Mfg. Corp., 145 W. Washington, Los Angeles, Calif.

Mr. OWNER—Sell Your Property. Keep the commission. Farms, hotels, groceries, movies, bakeries, business of any kind. National Business Exch. Box 406, Des Moines.

Hanford's Balsam of Myrrh
Since 1846 Has Healed Wounds and Sores on Man and Beast
Money back for first bottle if not suited All dealers.

It's Not Being Done

Motorist—Sorry, old man. All I have is $5. I'll pay you more later.

Victim—Say! How do you get that way! Do you think you can ride over me and pay on the installment plan?

You can stand listening to a man rave if it does not excite you.

DON'T overlook giving the children all the KARO they want—on pancakes, waffles and sliced bread. It's a great health food for them as your doctor can tell you.

Mail This Coupon Today!

Send ten cents (stamps or coin) with this coupon and you will promptly receive your copy of Ida Bailey Allen's new book, "The Modern Method of Preparing Delightful Foods," containing nearly three hundred new and unusual recipes. Address:

CORN PRODUCTS REFINING CO.
208 E. ILLINOIS STREET, CHICAGO, ILL.

Name _____
Address _____
Town _____ State _____

Karo

The Great American Syrup

NOTICE TO PUBLIC

Complete copies of the Town Ordinances of Klemme, Iowa, may be seen by anyone at the Office of the Town Clerk of Klemme, Iowa. The Numbers and Titles of Said Ordinances were published according to law in two recent issues of The Klemme Times, a newspaper of general circulation published at Klemme, Iowa.

8tc. PAUL GRANGE,
Mayor of Klemme, Iowa.

FOR SALE—Extracted White Clover Honey $1.50 pr 10 lb. pail. Frank Miller, Phone 6-F45 Klemme, Garner, Iowa 4tp

....$1.00 BUYS 25 XMAS CARDS, all different, all beautiful, and we give FREE 1 pkg. Xmas Seals and 1 pkg. Xmas Tags. Times Print Shop. 1tc

Order Your Xmas Cards Today! We now have them on display and are taking orders. Times Print Shop. 1tc

For stationery bargains try The Times Print Shop. High quality at lower prices.

CAR LOAD OF KINDLING Wood due to arrive any day. Get your orders in at once. Northern Lumber Company. 1tc

MapleSota Flour

Fresh Carload Just Recieved

This high grade Flour has just been unloaded and this shipment is fresh right from the big mills. Our price is right.

CAR LOAD OF COKE ON HAND

We have just received a car load of high grade COKE. You people who like to burn coke better get in on this at once!

FURNACE COAL

We belive in sticking to the brands of coal which have proven out the best and the most satisfactory for the money. So this year we again feature BONNIE BLUE and BLUE DIAMOND COAL—yes sir! we have it on hand for quick delivery!

Klemme Co-Operative Grain Co.

Order Christmas Cards Now--

Times Print Shop

We want your orders - -

To Make Up A Car Load Shipment Of Feed - - - -

It is hard to anticipate the Feed needs of every farmer in the community, but it is the wish of this company to supply your needs in every way. With this in mind we are asking for your Feed Orders in making up a car load shipment of Mill Feeds. Let us have your order today for anything you may need in this line.

TANKAGE

We have plenty of Tankage on hand. Just drive in and get what you need anytime

EGG MASH ON HAND

Try our own brand of Egg Mash—we don't know of any better on the market. Get a sack and try it out.

NEW SHIPMENT OF FLOUR

A new shipment of Occident and Mother's Best Flour received last week. Buy your winter's needs now and save money.

North Iowa Grain Co.

News of Klemme and Vicinity

Dr. R. W. Specht, Dentist, Garner, Iowa. adv

Read the specials in J. N. Day's adv. this week.

The jury was again called for duty this morning.

Peck Hanson, of Garner, was an official caller in Klemme Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Ross, of Garner, were Klemme callers yesterday.

FOR SALE—Pure bred Duroc Jersey Boar. W. H. Lemke. tcp

Valentine Josten was a business caller at Garner Wednesday.

Mrs. R. W. Elder entertained Mrs. Trumbell of Mason City, and Mrs. S. Trumbell of Klemme, Friday.

W. C. Keraus and family were at Mason City on business Saturday morning.

Paul Grange and family and Walter Johnson and family were at Mason City Sunday evening.

A baby girl was born to Mr. and Mrs. John Hyde last Thursday morning.

Nels Jackson is suffering from a case of blood poisoning in one of his hands.

Mrs. Albert Barz entertained a number of ladies at a chicken dinner and a quilting bee today.

Boxed Stationery, latest tints at 50c, 60c, 75c, $1.00 and $1.25. At The Times Print Shop. 1tc

NOTICE—No hunting or tresspassing allowed on my farm. Peter Trampel. 2tp

Mesdames Chris Gram and Allie White will serve at the R. N. A lodge Friday afternoon.

John and Eric Josten were visiting with relatives at Mason City last Sunday

Vic Huenemann is putting up a new corn crib and granery on his farm north of Klemme.

FOUND—Tire. Owner can have same by proving property and paying for this adv. Carl Carlson. 1tp

A baby girl was born to Mr. and Mrs. Henry Busse Tuesday morning.

Carpenters have installed a new window, or rather repaired the old one, at the Wilson Drug Store.

Lee Price and family have moved to the Elmer Arnold farm Mr. Price will work for Mr. Arnold.

BULLS FOR SALE—1 Roan Durham, 1 Hereford, 2 Aberdeen-Angus, all 7 months old. Dr. Geo. Zinn. 1tc

Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Trumbell of Belmond, visited at the Sumner Trumbel home Tuesday.

Grandma Schlawin, and Mr. and Mrs Werner Schlawin visited at the Rhine Schlawin home Sunday.

"Dad" Smith has been on the list of flu victims the past week and has been unabe to work at the J. N. Day Store.

Mr Henry Freie and daughter, Viola, Miss Eunice Braund and George Lawhorn spent Sunday at Williams at the John Braund home

Mr. and Mrs. Trumbell of Mason City came this past week to spend a few days visiting at the homes of their sons, Sumner and Harry.

Mrs. Croner and Dorothy, Mrs. Lena Schroeder and Grandma drove to Belmond Monday for a visit with friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Keraus and Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Kluckhohn weer at Mason City on business Friday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Keraus visited with her sister and husband, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Horeka, at Garner Sunday.

Mr. A. Wellemeyer and daughters, Ethel and Clarice, drove to Charles City Sunday for a visit with Mr. Wellemeyer's sister, Mrs. Ruth Melcher, and his mother, Mrs. Mary Wellemeyer.

KINDLING WOOD—We will order only one car load this fall. Get your orders in at once. Northern Lumber Company. 1tc

Miss Willma Trumbell spent the week end at her home in Belmond.

Mr. Heiden spent the week end in Cedar Rapids.

Mrs. F A. Arnold and son, Asa, were Mason City visitors Saturday.

Mrs. Levi Klotzbach was a Mason City visitor Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Poort, Leona and Orvis drove down from Sac City Saturday for a Sunday visit with Klemme friends.

Herb Dickhuis' little son had the misfortune to fall off of a plank last Friday and break the bone in his arm near the elbow.

Mr. John Miller returned from Chicago Saturday. He shipped in a bunch of live stock and while there spent a few days visiting his sister.

R. A Jorgenson and Mr Lewis took in the Lake Mills-Garner football game Friday afternoon. The score was 12-0 in favor of Lake Mills.

Mr. and Mrs. Frd Musfelt entertained Grandma Schroeder, Mrs. M. Croner and Dorothy, Mrs. Aug. Lau and Miss Minnie Lau at a six o'clock dinner Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Gruetzmacher, Glenna, Mrs. J Gruetzmacher, and Mrs. P. M. Griesemer were ll invited to the home of Mr. and Mrs George Gruetzmacher at Garner last Sunday.

Frank Clark, former editor of the Garner Signal was a pleasant caller at the Times office Monday. Mr. Clark sold his paper to the Garner Leader and since then has been around visiting his neighbors.

FOR SALE—P. B Chester White boars of the big tretchy type; also three fall boars New blood lines for old customers; cholera immune.—Erith Cook. Farm located 3 3-4 mi. northwest of Kanawha, Rt. 2. tfc

The town dads have had a big grader and trackor, manned by Jack Steeman and Marshall Finn, at work smoothing up the streets the past few days It makes a good improvement. Now if they will go ahead and put some real gravel on the streets we will call it a day!

Miss Eunice Braund has re-arranged and re-decorated her beauty shop which is located in the Wellemeyer store. She has had the room enlarged and the walls and woodwork finished in a pleasing shade f ivory and lavender Everything is neatly arranged and convenient Miss Braund is a fine young lady, with a pleasing personality and is an expert operator. She invites all to come and visit her new beauty shop.

Last week Thursday was Mrs. G. W. Kluckhohn's birthday, and in honor of the event her children all planned a big supper for her on Tuesday evening and they and their families brought well filled baskets of good things to eat. Those present weree. Frank, wife and three children, Fred, wife and daughter, Clarence, wife and two sons, Sadie Turgasen and son Donald, Mrs. W. C Keraus, husband and two sons. A good time was enjoyed by all.

St. Elmo's Light Seen on Land and Water

St. Elmo's fire consists of brushlike tufts of light which sometimes appear on all pointed objects or those with sharp angles, during a thunderstorm or snowstorm. It has also appeared on the masts of ships at sea. It is most common at high elevations on mountains. It is simply a brush discharge of electricity due to the large change in potential with height. A hissing sound is usually heard and sometimes an odor is noticed. "Looming" is a phenomenon allied to mirage, occurring chiefly over the ocean near the seashore and in the Arctic regions. Rays of light passing upward from an object through a warmer and less dense layer of air above it are bent by refraction so that total reflection takes place, and the observer sees an inverted image above the object. Objects even below the horizon may be brought into view in this way and nearer objects seem much raised and elongated.

Mr. and Mrs. Tony Ahrenkeil and son, Taalkeus, of Goodell, visited at the T. Blank home Sunday. They drove up in their new Pontiac car.

Frank Terhufen and Jim Terhufen returned home Friday night from the Dakotas and Minnesota where they have been working during the threshing season.

School Teachers—We complete line of Construc in all colors, both large sheets. Times Print Sho

R. A Jorgenson and fa at Mason City Saturday o

R. A. Jorgenson and fa Sunday visiting at the Ly dorfer home at Mason Ci

Special Prices

AT DAY'S STORE FOR

Friday & Saturday

OCTOBER 14-15

2 Cans of 18c PEAS	29c
2 Cans of 15c PEAS	25c
2 lbs. MORNING-BLEND COFFEE	92c
Free Dish Given With The Above Coffee)
½ lbs. Package of GREEN TEA	30c
1 lb. Package Virgina Sweet Pancake Flour	32c
2 lb. Package of BEACON COCOA	29c
2 2-lb. Packages of TABLE SALT	15c
OMAR FLOUR, per sack	$2.38

Don't miss the opportunity in purchasing these Bargains. We are pleased to serve you

Jno. N. Day's

—"The Busy Store"—

Corn Huskers

Yankee Doodle Husking Mitten

Here we are again with a big stock of "Galena" Husking Mittens and Gloves—the kind which has proven so popular with our customers the past few years. You can't beat our "Yankee Doodle" or "Jacobs Special". Real Goods for the Money! And it will pay you to buy them by the dozen.

FULL LINE OF SUPPLIES FOR CORN HUSKERS

E. F. Jacobs

The Name Westinghouse on your Farm LIGHT & POWER Plant

KEEP in mind that in choosing your lighting plant the maker must not be overlooked. The plant we sell is made by Westinghouse—headquarters for radio, KDKA, KYW, WBZ, and KFKX—one of the greatest electrical organizations in the world—a concern employing 50,000 people.

Westinghouse knows electricity, knows how to build everything electrical—and offers you a lighting plant that is absolutely dependable, easy to operate and easy to own.

May We Tell You More?

PROUTY ELECTRIC SHOP
GARNER — IOWA

THE KLEMME TIMES

Fortieth Year—Number 10. KLEMME, IOWA, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 20, 1927 $2.00 Per Year In Advance.Outside of Iowa $2.5

DOINGS AT SCHOOL THE PAST WEEK

P. T. A. HELD FINE MEETING MONDAY EVENING

A Number Of Important Quesitons Were Ably Discussed

Our Parent Teacher meeting last Monday evening was very well attended. Besides subjects ably discussed by Mrs. A. D. Gimer, Mrs. R. W. Elder and Mrs. Leonard Sampson, children of grades 2 and 3 staged singing games directed by Miss Lenora Wheatman and Miss Phyllis Root A male quartett by the male members of our faculty and Mr. Patet, our versatile janitor, seemed to meet with the favor of the audience.

The association considered the problem of furnishing rural pupils with a hot lunch during the noon hour, also the question of immunizing school children against both diptheria and scarlet fever, but took no action with reference to either.

The State Department of Health at Des Moines reports to us that 235 communiies have already completed immunization programs against diptheria and that 150 or more other places are now at work on such a program. The Department agrees to supply all literature necessary for the program and to furnish free toxin-antitoxin up to 100 complete treatments (3 doses), providing there is a general response to the appeal for immunization. Master "Buster" Jorgenson, who had received the immunization treatment from Dr Missman, very willingly displayed his arm to the audience that they might observe the results operation involved. He did not seem to be suffering any serious consequences. Our neighboring town, Garner, financed such a program last year in their schools. If more than 100 complete treatments are administered the State Department agrees o furnish the additional material at 12½ cents per person. Thsi seems to us a matter worthy of parents' consideration Buster's parents will not now need to be worried over his contracting the disease should it appear in or near Klemme. The superintendent, having lost two brothers from the disease is one reason for our concern about the matter It seems to us a pretty cheap form of life insurance parents ought to avail themselves of.

Report Cards This Week

As parents have access to pupils report cards this week we hope they may give them more than a passing glance. They can well afford to bestow praise where praise is due and possibly they may see fit to direct more closely their children's activities outside of school.

We wish to repeat that the letters employed this year in our school are as last year, A, B, C, D. Instead of E, used last year we shall use this year "Con," meaning conditioned, r that the pupil has yet to do additional work in the subject or work of a better quality or failure will follow. Superior work is indicated by "A," work above average by "B," average work by "C," and work below average by "D" "D" is the lowest passing mark in either grades or the high school Some of our teachers have elected to distinguish a little more closely the difference in quality of work by employing the plus and minus sign after the letters. A "C" plus indicates a high average and a "C" minus indicates a low average. A "D" minus indicates that work is very unsatisfactory but enough to justify a passing mark. No student should be content with "D" or "D" minus when he can earn a better mark for it is only just above failure.

Many parents can and will assist us in improving the quality of the school work done by their children. We invite their co-operation to this end. None of us want other than success marks which means children are acquiring a reasonable amount of information and habits that will operate toward success when they re through with their school work.

We have some splendid young people in Klemme High School. There are boys and girls here who will bring honor o our community and credit to their parents and themselves They have acquired the art of applying themselves to difficult tasks and gaining a mastery over with us who have not yet learned themselves There are iso a few how to depend upon themselves, to stay with a tedious lesson until light and understanding comes. They are quick to surrender and call for help An S O S call goes out before they have even got warmed up. If meaning does not come after a single reading of the problem, or sentence they are too prone to seek aid of an instructor or of a class mate It is our chief delight to give aid when aid is really necessary and at times it is, but many tmes too much aid robs the child of his opportunity to grow mentally It is ours and parents' duty to study to give help where help is needed and to refuse it when children are not giving their lessons the proper amount of time or are not putting forth a reasonable amount of effort themselves.

We welcome at any time counsel with parents concerning children. We wish it were possible to talk with every parent represented in our high school If we could, we feel we should be able to do more toward their interests. When the child knows that his teacher and his parents are working together in his interests he behaves differently and is more apt to be kept going in the right direction boh at home and at school If more can be done for the boys and girls of Klemme schools we should like to be advised of it Come and see us at any time in the interests of our young people. Many times you know them better than we can in the short time we have been with hem. Give us he benefit of your counsel.

Short School Items Of Interest

Mrs Ralph Ludeke substituted grades 3 and 4 for Miss Mildred Wheatman on Monday and Tuesday of this week to enable her to recover from an attack of acute bronchitis

Mr Heiden and Mr Lewis drove to Mason City Wednesday evening to see the moving picture, "Ben Hur" Wish more of our teachers and students could have seen this great p cture.

Supt Penrod and Miss Trumbell went to Britt Thursday night where they met other officials of Hancock County schools

Mr Heiden announces that basketball practice will start in earnest next Monday evening. Several boys will compete for places on the team, left vacant by last year's seniors. We have with us yet Oral Gibson and Orville Stokesbary, two regulars of last year and Clarence Lemke who played frequently last year as substitute. With these as a nucleus Mr Heiden hopes to build a team that will represent Klemme High this season. Our firs game will be with Hayfield at Hayfield on Nov 18th Other schools will be played later as Garner, Belmond, Swaledale, Ventura and Crystal Lake

Miss McGinis is teaching her high school girls some folk dances during the physical training periods. Mr. Heiden seems bent on building up the endurance of his boys for the basket ball season by circuit dashes about the school house lawn

Miss Trumbell reports a need of good books to be read by her English classes, especially biographies of notable men and women If there should be some such books available in Klemme offered for this purpose they may be reported to our Principal or handed to a reliable high school student to be brought heree for that purpose We agree to exercise care in the loan of these books and see that they are finally returned to their owners after being read and reported on

Our Board has granted us a neat piece of office furniture for the care of supplies at school. It is an olive green steel cabinet provided with a lock to safely store our high school records and other important articles.

Acknowledge Fraternity Pledges At Iowa State College

Ames, Iowa, Oct. 20, (Special)—Included in the list of 315 fraternity pledges who have been announced at the beginning of the fall quarter at Iowa State College are: "Theta Xi," Vernon L. Turgeson and Kermit Koerner, of Klemme.

HUENEMAN CAUGHT IN ENSILAGE CUTTER

RIGHT LIMB SEVERED BELOW THE KNEE

Accident Happened Last Friday At The Herman Ax Farm

Victor Hueneman, who lives on a farm abort three miles north of Klemme, was the victim of a serious accident last Friday morning at about 10·30 o'clock. Mr. Hueneman was assisting with silo filling on the Herman Ax farm when he fell into the ensilage cutter and as a result his right leg was severed a short distanct below the knee and his left leg sustained a compound fracture and the flesh badly cut away from the inner side and below the knee As soon as he could be released he was brought to Klemme where local doctors gave him first aid and he was rushed to a Mason City hospital in an ambulance for surgical attention

Mr Hueneman was helping to unload the corn bundles into the ensilage cutter and when a couple of bundles failed to feed properly Mr. Hueneman stepped up on the side of the cutter and with one foot gave the bundles a kick to start them into the rollers of the machine. This failed to acomplish the desired result and with more force he again kicked the bundle and at the same time the machine evidently grabbed the corn bundle and caught Hueneman's foot and pulled his leg into the revolving knives In falling over his left leg doubled up and was caught between the rollers. His presence of mir and strength saved him from being drawn into the machine farther as he caught hold of the control and had the machine in neutral when helped reached him

Bill Haberkamp and Charles Griffen were near at hand when they saw Hueneman in the machine. Mr. Haberkamp reversed the engine driving the cutter and Griffen rushed to Hueneman's aid. It was necessary to loosen four bolts on the machine before Hueneman could be extricated In getting Hueneman out Mr Griffen's little finger was brofen as he was struck by a heavy spring as the bolts were loosened. In the excitement Griffen did not discover his own injury until he reached town.

Late reports are that Mr. Hueneman is making a good recovery at the Mercy Hospital, Mason City and at this time is out of danger and is geting along well

This particular ring were on their last job of filling silos when the accident happened at the Ax farm. They had expected to be through by noon that day.

KLEMME AUXILIARY GIVES A REPORT OF WORK

Covers Work From June 1 to October 1, This Year

Following is a summary of the work accomplished by the Klemme Auxiliary for the months from June 1st to October 1st:-

Started Cradle Roll, and have 14 members Leona Lau, chairman.

Made 2 sheets, 2 pairs of pillow cases and 7 hand towels and sent them to Headquarters.

Had stand one Saturday night and served hamburgers, coffee, ice cream and cake. Made $8.60.

Had hamburger stand a couple of other nights and made around $11.

Sent Delegate and Alternate to the State Convention at Fort Madison; Leona Lau, Marie Blank.

Bought new shades, curtains and curtain rods for Legion Rooms.

Klemme Unit got President's Badge for having largest attendance at the County meeting.

Sent box of cookies to Veterans Hospital at Knoxville.

Monthly pledge Child Welfare Work, $2.00.

Six attended County Meeting at Kanawha, Thursday, Sept. 29th.

Mrs. Paul Grange was elected Secretary for Hancock County at the last County Meeting.

FT. DODGE MAN SHOT DURING HUNT

KILLED WHEN TAKING A LOADED GUN FROM CAR

Milwaukee Man Shot In Hand During Pheasant Hunt

The open season on pheasants in Hancock County opened Friday for the first of five days open season on this wily bird. With it came the danger of too many hunters, careless hunters and the chance of someone getting shot.

A man from Fort Dodge was accidently shot Friday and died later at a Fort Dodge hospital. The man's name was Melvin Hurley, of Fort Dodge, who was hunting with some men near Kanawha. We understand Hurley was taking a loaded gun from the car and had the muzzle pointed toward him when in some manner the gun was discharged and the full load struck Hurley in the side He was rushed to Kanawha for first aid and then taken to the hospital at For Dodge where he died a short time later.

A man from Milwaukee, John Marks, was shot in the hand while hunting near Forest City. We understand his injuries were not serious.

There were only three counties, Hancock, Winnebago and Worth, which were open to pheasant hunters Friday and Saturday, and as a result thousands of hunters invaded these three counties. It seems that the state game warden should have opened all the counties at once.

Why Not A County License

Many of the farmers in this vicinity are thoroughly disgusted with the present open season. They say they have been busy chasing out Des Moines, Ames, Fort Dodge, Mason City and hunters from every other corner of the globe, who insist n tresspassing over private land, and who disregard "no hunting" notices and never ask permission to enter. Of course some of the non-resident hunters are perfect gentlemen and ask permission to hunt. In most instances they are granted their wish.

Some farmers laim there are no more than enough pheasants for the home hunters, while others claim the pheasants are a nuisance. Be it either way, the Times has an idea, perhaps selfish, but which would work out very nicely. That would be for the County Recorder to issue a "county hunting license" with the purchase of the regular license. An out-of-county hunter would then be required to purchase a license in the county in which he wishes to hunt pheasants. The farmers of Hancock County are raising the pheasants and it is only fair that they should be allowed to have more voice in the matter of an open season and who will be allowed to shoot the pheasants—Hancock hunters, or an army of city dude hunters, some f whom don't know the difference between a cow and a cock pheasant, as we understand some cattle have been shot, although they resemble a cock pheasant but slightly.

Of course our pet idea is probably contrary to law, but we have heard of worse laws being passed.

Let's have some letters from you farmers, both pro and con regarding pheasants.

Mr. and Mrs. Wes Schuldt and son, Raymond, drove to Mason City Sunday. Raymond had a consultation with Dr. Barbour.

Want Cothing For Donation

The ladies of the Auxiliary want everyone to donate old clothing, shoes, etc , and bring to the Legion Rooms on Saturday, October 29th, either afternoon or evening. The ladies are doing a good work and the clothing donated will be packed and sent where it will do real good. The editor urges everyone to hunt about the home and turn in discarded clothing to the Auxiliary. It will be a great benefit to some who are in poor circumstances and who need help.

IOWA UNION TELEPHONE CO. INSTALLS NEW CABLE

Expending Over $3,600 Here In New Improvements

For a couple of weeks the Iowa Union Telephone Company have had a large crew of men at work on the lines and cables in Klemme, making extensive installments of new material and changing over old equipment in Klemme.

Spend $3,600 For Improvement

The engineer in charge of the work, Mr. Stanfield, estimates that it will cost the Company approximately $3,600.00 for the improvements now being made.

The "central" has been changed from the Koerner residence to the W. F Lau residence, with Mrs. W. F. Lau in charge as operator. For the present she is assisted by Miss Dolores Koerner.

All grounded wires in Klemme will be made metallic, which means that the usual ground connection is to be done away with and two wires will lead to the phone. This will do away with a lot of noise and will result in better and clearer conversation. To do this requires much additional cable and wire leads in the town.

As far as possible the old "party lines" will be done away with and single lines Installed in their place

The Company has already installed 3,000 feet of new cable, 14 new cable terminals, 4 blocks of new pole line and has installed a new main frame on the switch-board at the central office. The main frame is that part of the central system which takes care of the termination of all wires before they reach the switchboard.

Koerners Gave Fine Service

A. G. Koerner, from whom the Iowa Union purchased the telephone system some months ago, was the owner of the business for twenty-five years. During that time Mr. and Mrs. Koerner built up the telephone system from a few scattered telephones to a large system of about four hundred telephones.

Both Mrs. Koerner and their three daughters were expert operators and were always courteous. The family strived to give their patrons good service and in this they were successful. The Times has never had an occasion to complain on the service given while the Koerners had charge of their telephone system.

Officials of the Company are making these improvements to give the best of service. They say there will be perhaps, more or less interruption for a time while changes are being made but they are striving to put in a system here that will give perfect satisfaction.

HANCOCK COUNTY FARM BUREAU OFFICERS RE-ELECTED

Annual Meeting Held At Britt Last Saturday

The annual meeting of the Hancock County Farm Bureau was held at Britt last Saturday Mr. Charles Hearst of Cedar Falls, president of the Iowa Farm Bureau Federation was the principal speaker of the day Mrs. Bloom, district chairmen of the Farm Bureau Womens Work gave an interesting address, and other appropriate numbers were enjoyed on the program.

We understand that all of the old officials were re-elected for another year. They are: Mr. Caldwell, Kanawha, president; Wm Schlawin, of Klemme, vice president; Fred Missal, Britt, secretary; B. F. Higdon, of Britt, Treasurer; Mrs Axel Trulsom, Britt, chairman of girls club work, and Mrs. Ernest Schubert, Britt, the chairman of women's work.

KLEMME REFORMED CHURCH

Calvin Grosshuesch, Pastor

9:00 a. m. Sunday School in the country.

10:00 a m. German service.

11:00 a. m. Sunday school.

7:30 p. m. English service.

8:00 p. m. on Wednesday, Young Peoples Bible Class.

8:00 p. m. Saturday Junior choir.

1:00 p. m. Tuesday, and 9:00 a. m. Saturday. Confirmation school.

FATHER AND SON GET JAIL SENTENCE

FRED RIDDER PAROLED TO SHERIFF; LEVI IN JAIL

Jury Found Bredbenner "Not Guilty" Of Charge

In the case of The State of Iowa vs. Levi Ridder which came up before Judge Kepler last Friday, on which the grand jury had returned an indictment for illegal possession of intoxicating liquor, and for possession of instruments capable manufacture of intoxicating liquor and for transporting. Mr Ridder. through his attorney, J. E. Williams entered a plea of guilty to the first count of the indictment. The court therefore passed judgment giving Ridder a fine of $300 and three months in the Cerro Gordo county jail. On the second count of the indictment this part was dismissed for want of sufficient evidence to convict. On count three, that of transporting, Levi drew a fine of $300 and costs, and in addition he is to pay $30 attorney's fee to County Attorney White.

The minutes show Levi Ridder paid the fines required and a mittimus was issued October 17th and turned over to Sheriff E. P. Hanson Mr Ridder began his sentence Wednesday of this week.

Mr. Fred Ridder, father of Levi was next to appear before Judge Kepler. Mr. Ridder was also indicted by the recent grand jury who returned indictments against him of illegal possession of intoxicating liquor, and for possession of instruments capable of being used for the manufacture of intoxicating liquor. Ridder entered a plea of guilty to the first count and Judge Kepler assessed a fine of $300 and costs and a jail sentence of three months in the Cerro Gordo county jail. The jail sentence was suspended pending good behavior and Mr Ridder was paroled to Sheriff E. P Hanson.

Bredbenner Found "Not Guilty"

C. M. Bredbenner, against whom the grand jury returned indictments charging him with illegal possession of intoxicating liquor, and also possession of instruments capable of being used in manufacture of intoxicating liquor, stood trial.

Evidence was heard by the jury Thursday and Friday morning after the jury had been given instructions etc. they retired to the jury room at about 11:00 a. m. and by 3:00 p m. had reached an agreement and returned their verdict of "not guilty." The jury was composed of five women and seven men and their verdict applied to both counts

Attorney J. E. Williams was counsel for Bredbenner and the attorney was able to bar the two jugs of liquor as evidence in the case.

Inquiring into this phase of the procedure a Times reporter found a bit of information. The two jugs of liquor are alleged to have been taken from Bredbenner's barn in a raid here several weeks ago. The jugs were barred as evidence, we understand, because they had not been properly sealed by the raiding parties before turning them over to the proper authorities.

The next term of court will be held in Hancock county November 21st, and thus ends the story of the October term.

FIVE CENTS A TAIL FOR RATS

When November comes, rats in Black Hawk County will need to absent themselves, for the county board of supervisors there has about concluded to offer a bounty of five cents for each rat tail in that month.

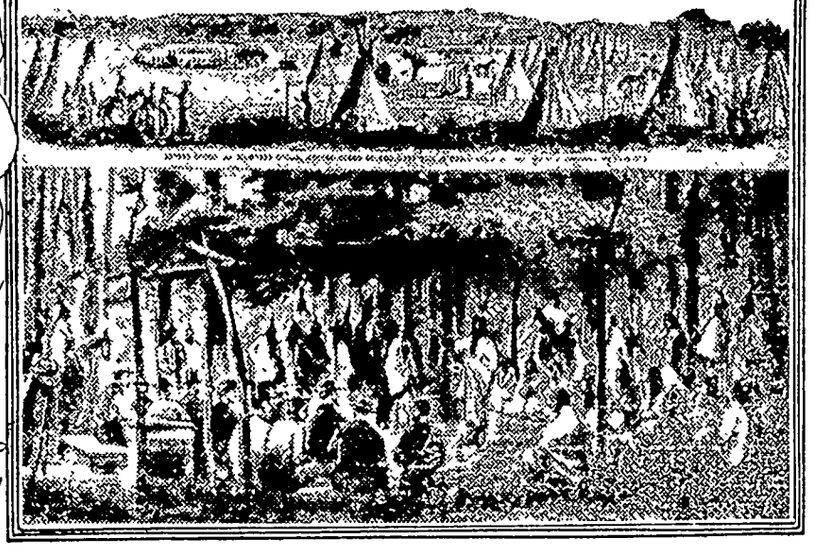
I is the plan to se aside $500 o be used for rat bounties This amount at 5 cents a rat would be sufficient to pay for the killing of 10,000 rats.

In order to secure all of the information available on the most up-to-date methods of rat killing, the Black Hawk Couny agent, J. L. Uban, last week called Fred D. Butcher extension entomologist at Iowa State College, Ames

Recalling Medicine Lodge Treaty

LOCATING SCENE OF TREATY

LITTLE RAVEN



In the two pictures above, reproduced from a contemporary magazine, the top panel is labeled "Indian Lodges at Medicine Creek, Kansas—Scene of the Late Indian Peace Treaty," and the bottom, "Council at Medicine Creek Lodge With the Kiowa and Comanche Indians." The portraits of Little Raven and Satanta are from the Bureau of American Ethnology, Smithsonian institution.

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

ONE of the most important events in the history of the western plains is being recalled during the week of October 12 to 14, when the sixtieth anniversary of the famous Medicine Lodge Indian peace treaty is being observed at Medicine Lodge, Kan., with appropriate ceremonies. The principal ceremony is a historical pageant, written and directed by Prof. F. L. Gilson, head of the department of speech at the State Teachers' college of Emporia, in which United States troops, Indians from Oklahoma and citizens of Kansas are taking part in portraying the events leading up to and including the peace council and the signing of the treaties more than half a century ago.

A monument marking the spot where the treaty was signed is also being unveiled, and although there has in the past been some dispute as to the actual site, that question was settled last year when I-See-O, a famous Kiowa Indian scout, who, as a young man, had been present at the council, came up from Oklahoma and definitely located the place. This old Kiowa warrior had the distinction of being made a sergeant in the United States army by an act of congress for his services to the government in keeping peace among his tribesmen—an honor which he prized until his death on March 11, 1927. He remembered that the distinguishing feature of the council grounds was a circle of trees and it was by these, although only the stumps (shown in the picture) now remain, that he located place.

The Medicine Lodge council and treaty was one of the high spots in the series of Indian wars which had broken out soon after the close of the Civil war. The red men saw with dismay the threatened extinction of the buffalo and the overrunning of their choicest hunting grounds and they had ever greater cause for alarm at the appearance of the "iron horse" as the westward extension of the railroads began. The unrest among the Sioux and other tribes of the northern plains, which had begun when the first California gold seekers had invaded their lands and which had resulted in the Fort Phil Kearney tragedy, soon spread among the tribes of the southern plains and led to a series of raids which spread terror through Kansas. Military expeditions sent to punish the marauders had comparatively little success. General Hancock's expedition, perhaps the best known of all of them, in four months of campaigning killed a total of four Indians! General Custer's campaign during the summer of 1867 along the Republican and Smoky Hill rivers had proved futile and the Indian raids in Kansas, Nebraska and along the South Platte in Colorado continued unchecked. So the government decided to try peace overtures instead of military force to solve the problem.

One of the best accounts of the Medicine Lodge treaty is that given by George Bird Grinnell in his book, "The Fighting Cheyennes." In it he says:

> Colonel Leavenworth, then agent for the Kiowas and Comanches, had been ordered by the commissioner of Indian affairs to try to bring together all the tribes that had been hostile, and to make a peace with them. In order to do this, Colonel Leavenworth wrote to George Bent, asking him to do what he could to persuade some of the head men among the Indians to come in, and meet Leavenworth at the mouth of the Little Arkansas river where the Wichitas were then living. . . .
>
> When Black Kettle, chief of the Cheyennes, was consulted about the matter, he expressed his willingness to go, and he and Bent, with two or three other men and women, started to go to the mouth of the Little Arkansas. There they found Colonel Leavenworth, and camped with him were Ten Bears and Long Hat, chiefs of the Comanches; Wolf Sleeve of the Apaches and Black Eagle, a young chief of the Kiowas, with two or three of his people. Three Arapahoes came in the same day that Bent and Black Kettle reached there. One of these was a subchief named Yellow Horse.
>
> The day after these people got in, Colonel Leavenworth met the chiefs and explained to them that he had been ordered by the commissioner of Indian affairs to meet some of the chiefs of the different tribes and discuss the question of peace, and to ask them to select a place where they would meet commissioners who were to come out from Washington to talk matters over, and make a peace if this could be arranged. . . . Colonel Leavenworth now returned to Fort Larned for further instructions and asked Bent to remain at the mouth of the Little Arkansas until further orders. Leavenworth was gone about a month. . . . On his return he read Bent a letter announcing that Thomas Murphy, the superintendent of Indian affairs for the district, was already at Fort Larned and that great quantities of goods were being shipped in there for distribution to the Indians.

After some negotiations as to where the council was to be held and some more time spent in sending messengers to the Indians to get their promise to attend, the site was finally fixed.

> A few days after this, Murphy moved out to Medicine Lodge creek and selected a spot for the council ground. It was a wide, level flat on the north side of the stream, with timber above and below, and good camping places. . . . Murphy was camped there for about a month before the commissioners came and during all this time six-mule teams were busy hauling out goods and presents from Fort Larned. Among the things sent out were a herd of beef cattle, much coffee, sugar and flour and dried fruits and a vast quantity of blankets and clothing, material made up for the use of troops during the Civil war and at its close left over in the hands of the War department. The War department had turned this clothing over to the Interior department for issue to the Indians. . . .
>
> The peace commissioners left Fort Larned October 13, 1867, for the camp on Medicine Lodge. Word had been received from Thomas Murphy that he already had 431 lodges of people on the ground and expected as many more. He believed there would be 5,000 Indians at the council. Besides the commissioners (they were N. G. Taylor, commissioner of Indian affairs; Senator John B. Henderson of Missouri; Gen. W. T. Sherman; Gen. W. L. Harney; Gen. J. B. Sanborn; Gen. A. H. Terry; Gen. C. C. Augur, and Col. S. F. Tappan), the Indian department was represented by Superintendent Murphy, Colonel Leavenworth, Major Wynkoop, Colonel Rankin and John Smith, interpreter. General Augur reached the camp a little later. He had been ordered to join the commission, to take the place of General Sherman, who had been recalled to Washington. . . .
>
> There were present also Governor Crawford (of Kansas), ex-Lieutenant Governor Root and Senator Ross. The secretary was A. S. H. White. The occasion was one of importance. The commission was escorted to the place of meeting by three troops of the Seventh cavalry (Custer's regiment—Gen. E. S. Godfrey, then a lieutenant, and probably the only officer of the Seventh who attended the council now alive, was attached to the escort) and a battery of Gatling guns. A number of newspaper correspondents were present, among them H. M. Stanley, then correspondent of the New York Herald and afterward famous as an African explorer. (An interesting account of the council is given in Stanley's "Early Travel and Adventures.")

In fact, the Medicine Lodge council would be notable for the galaxy of famous frontier personages connected with it in some capacity or other, if for nothing else. For in addition to these above-mentioned its history contains the names of Col. A. G. Boone, grandson of the famous Kentucky pioneer, and Gen. Kit Carson, who had been active in the preliminary arrangements and of some of the famous Indian chiefs who took part in it. Among these were Lone Wolf, Satanta, Satank and Kicking Bird of the Kiowas, Black Kettle, Medicine Arrow and Bull Bear of the Cheyennes and Little Raven, Spotted Wolf and Yellow Bear of the Arapahoes.

The old files of the newspapers which were represented by correspondents at the council reveal some interesting sidelights on this historic event. For instance, in the New York Tribune for October 23, 1867, an echo of the Indian's resentment against the white man for wasteful slaughter of the buffalo is heard in this paragraph from the Tribune correspondent's dispatch:

> On the thirteenth we reached Medicine Lodge creek at a point eight miles from the Indian villages. Satanta, who was with us, was very cross because the young bloods accompanying the expedition had shot the buffalo and left them where they fell. Said he, as the angry blood mounted up to his face, "Has the white man become a child, that he should kill the buffalo for sport? When the red men kill, they do so that they may live." It was a most reckless, extravagant course to pursue undoubtedly, and an unprejudiced man could not blame him for his language.

The scene which greeted the eyes of the commissioners and other members of the party upon their arrival at the Indian camp is thus described by this same correspondent:

> The camp was strewn with the most miscellaneous articles that could be conceived. Dogs, half eaten up, untanned buffalo robes, axes, pots, kettles and pans, beadwork and other gaudy finery; old moccasins, chunks of lately killed buffalo, stews cooking in the kettles, dogskins, an antelope and elk hides, pipes, tom-toms and war clubs, horn grubbing hoes, scraping instruments, stone hammers, headless arrows and broken bows; Indian dolls lay promiscuously on the ground near the wigwam and bone saddles in heaps; wicker cradles by the score, while, howling and barking, were Indian dogs.
>
> Young braves and boys romped in a complete state of nudity, with the exception of an apology for a breach clout, in the shape of a narrow rag. Leapfrog and baseball after their own fashion were the principal games. A few hurled the tomahawk at a target, while others practiced with headless arrows. Girls ten years old and upward wrestled and fought, their light, agile forms performing wild circumgyrations in the air. All these scenes transpired before our eyes, and were very interesting to persons who had never seen such before.

Of some of the important Indian figures at the council, this correspondent gives the following interesting picture:

> The following chiefs were at the grand council held today, representing their respective tribes: Comanches—Pavy-Wah-Sah-Mer (Young Bear, head chief); Tip-pah-pen-nov-aly (Painted Lips); Boy-ah-wah-to-yeh-bo (Iron Mountain); Par-er-oh-ve (Wise Shield), Za-mah-we-ah; (Without Wealth), the whole consisting of 100 lodges.
>
> Of the Kiowas—[illegible]-an-ta (White Bear), head sachem; Black E[illegible] Sit-em-ge-ah (Stumbling Bear); Sa-tank [illegible]ting Bear); Ton-a-ew-ko (Kicking Bird), the whole tribe numbering 150 lodges.
>
> Of the Arapahoes, Little Raven, head casique Great Arapahoe nation; Spotted Wolf; Storm; Yellow Bear; Powder Face, and Ice, representing 171 lodges.
>
> The Apaches, numbering in all 85 lodges were represented by the head warrior, Wolf Sleeve, and the chiefs, Poor Bear, Iron Shirt and Crow.
>
> The Cheyenne tribe was represented by Black Kettle, formerly great sachem of the tribe, but who has lately been deposed because of his peaceful proclivities, and Bull Bear, a most powerful warrior, is substituted instead. Bull Bear, chief of the Dog band, was also present, present head warrior of the Cheyenne tribe; Big Tall Bull; Heap of Birds; Slim Face; Black White Man, and Grey Head, representing in all 250 lodges.
>
> These chiefs were dressed in the most picturesque manner. Their faces were dyed with red ochre, with curious hieroglyphics drawn in other colors on their cheeks. Their head-dresses were of a very unique cut—eagle feathers in plenty stuck in a circle all standing erect and forming a headdress resembling a crown. Their ears were hung with brass rings of every size, ranging from one inch to three in diameter. Their scalp locks were plaited and hung down the back adorned by a string of silver plates reaching to the heel. On their breasts were shields of curiously carved shells, enormous silver crosses, and silver medals. Their wrists and fingers were incased in rings of brass. Their feet were covered with moccasins, strung with beads of every color, worked in the shape of flowers, leaves, rings, stars and any other way that their vivid fancy could devise. Black Kettle wore on his head a tall dragoon hat, while flowing over his shoulders and trailing on the ground was a long robe of the finest blue cloth. Other chiefs had gaudy blankets interwoven with fancy colors. Some had Mexican serapes, while the rest wore blue, red, black and green blankets.

The negotiations and distribution of presents dragged on for three weeks and although a treaty was signed, in the long run it came to little. The main point agreed upon by the Indians was that they were to remain south of the Arkansas river and to refrain from molesting the whites. The commissioners made various promises to feed and clothe the red men and give them other presents. As it turned out, the terms of the treaty were lived up to strictly by neither the whites nor the Indians, and the next two years saw continued fighting. For, as Grinnell has pointed out, "the giving of a few presents and the signing of treaties by a few chiefs would not appease the Indians, whose livelihood, the buffalo, was being destroyed and driven away." So the inevitable clash of the two irreconcilable points of view followed. Although Medicine Lodge failed to establish a permanent peace, it is notable for being one of the greatest gatherings of Indians ever held in the West and as a dramatic spectacle its memory has lived and is being perpetuated in the celebration this year.

Doctor Found Women and Children Sick More Often than Men

W. B. Caldwell M.D. AT AGE 83

As a family doctor at Monticello, Illinois, the whole human body, not any small part of it, was Dr. Caldwell's practice. More than half his "calls" were on women, children and babies. They are the ones most often sick. But their illnesses were usually of a minor nature—colds, fevers, headaches, biliousness—and all of them required first a thorough evacuation. They were constipated.

In the course of Dr. Caldwell's 47 years' practice (he was graduated from Rush Medical College back in 1875), he found a good deal of success in such cases with a prescription of his own containing simple laxative herbs with pepsin. In 1892 he decided to use this formula in the manufacture of a medicine to be known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and in that year his prescription was first placed on the market.

The preparation immediately had as great a success in the drug stores as it previously had in Dr. Caldwell's private practice. Now, the third generation is using it. Mothers are giving it to their children who were given it by their mothers. Every second of the working day someone somewhere is going into a drug store to buy it. Millions of bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are being used a year.

Its great success is based on merit, on repeated buying, on one satisfied user telling another. There are thousands of homes in this country that are never without a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and we have gotten many hundreds of letters from grateful people telling us that it helped them when everything else failed.

While women, children and elderly people are especially benefited by Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, it is promptly effective on the most robust constitution and in the most obstinate cases. It is mild and gentle in its action and does not cause griping and strain. Containing neither opiates nor narcotics, it is safe for the tiniest baby. Children like it and take it willingly.

Every drug store sells Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Keep a bottle in your home,—where many live someone is sure to need it quickly.

We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.

Demand for Rat Skins May Check the Pest

Europe has discovered a scheme for holding in check the prolific rat. Various industries have created a demand in London alone for rat skins that amounts to very nearly $200,000 a year, and there is every indication that the consumption of this material will increase. Book-binding, photograph frames, purses and thumbs for ladies' gloves are among the uses to which the skins are put.

After the passing of the rat act in Denmark some time ago, the great body of unemployed laborers took immediate advantage of the bill, and the individual rat-catcher's earnings averaged between $1.75 and $1.90 a day. It is estimated that the damage by rats in England alone amounts annually to many millions of dollars, so that any inducement to promote their capture should be encouraged as far as possible.

The Amateur Theatrical

Alice—Who did you think did the best acting? What do you think?

John—I did—pretending I enjoyed the show.

Pertinent Remarks on People of Prominence

Some of Lady Oxford's thumbnail sketches of prominent Englishmen are quite clever. Abbreviating the already brief, we quote from her characterization of Lord Birkenhead: "He listens to himself, but his brains—which are of the most remarkable—sometimes go to his head and he hears confused noises."

Of Lord Reading: "Though he has a warm corner for himself, he has no cold corners for other people."

Lloyd George "loves a crowd more than himself or his friend. He guesses without pause what the person he is talking to is thinking; but while they are stationary, he is a movie. In spite of an intelligence amounting to genius, he waylays himself."

The Cecil family, she says, have "minds and morals of distinction but have subconsciously massaged away some of the more active muscles of their conscience."—Boston Transcript.

Wisdom of Confucius

It is hard not to chafe at poverty, a high thing not to be proud of wealth.—Confucius.

Genuine BAYER ASPIRIN

SAY "BAYER ASPIRIN" and INSIST!

Unless you see the "Bayer Cross" on tablets you are not getting the genuine Bayer Aspirin proved safe by millions and prescribed by physicians for 25 years.

DOES NOT AFFECT THE HEART

Safe — Accept only "Bayer" package which contains proven directions. Handy "Bayer" boxes of 12 tablets Also bottles of 24 and 100—Druggists.

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

HOW ARE YOU TODAY?

How often does that friendly question find you full of pains and aches caused by kidney, liver and bladder troubles? Keep your health while you can. Begin taking Gold Medal Haarlem Oil Capsules at once. Hardy Hollanders have used this remedy for over 200 years. In sealed boxes, at all druggists. 3 sizes. Look for the name on every box.

GOLD MEDAL HAARLEM OIL CAPSULES

Cuticura Promotes Permanent Hair Health

Shampoos with Cuticura Soap, with light applications of Cuticura Ointment when necessary, tend to free the scalp of dandruff and minor blemishes, and to establish a permanent condition of hair health.

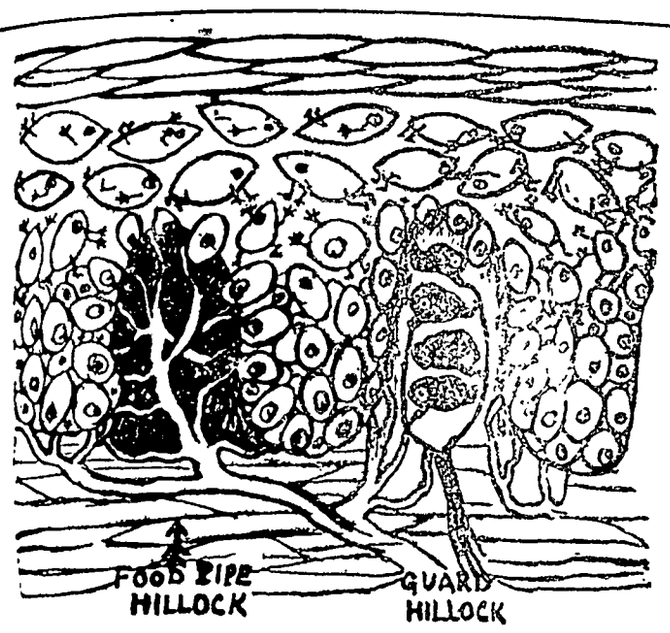
Soap 25c. Ointment 25 and 50c. Talcum 25c. Sold everywhere. Sample each free. Address: "Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. 23, Malden, Mass."

Cuticura Shaving Stick 25c.

YOURSELF and YOUR BODY

By WILFRED T. GRENFELL

THE OVERALLS



FOOD PIPE HILLOCK
GUARD HILLOCK
SECTION OF SKIN. Showing NURSERIES of REPAIRERS. VOLUNTEERS. ETC.
ALSO FIBROUS INSIDE. and HORNY OUTSIDE.
PIECE OF SKIN SHOWING FOUNTAINS-Wax Glands-Hairs

WHEN all the machines are packed away in the framework we must have a covering, and it must be suitable for our own work. Thus a fish's outside must be smooth and greasy, to oil along through water—a rhinoceros' must be heavily armored for protection—a bird's very light and yet warm, so feathers are best—a polar bear's very tough and heavy, and so it is covered with fur. Ours should first of all be very elastic, very strong, and very sensitive to warn all the machines inside of any danger.

Don't you think our skins are the most beautiful in the world? Look at the softness, at the colors, at the elasticity, and how every particle is alive.

You hear people talk sometimes of others having two skins. That is not so. The truth is, that on the top surface the cells die on purpose to protect the others, and then, of course, they wear out and fall off, and more go on doing the same. It is like laying down your life for your friends. (See picture.) Beneath them comes the layer we will call the "volunteers." They are arranging themselves to die in long ranks, lying sideways so as to cover more surface. The busy crowd out of which they come, that lives around and among a lot of hillocks, is nicely molded in mounds of tough fibers, and these are burrowed through and through with food pipes to feed the crowds. In some are hidden guardsmen, like the touch-machines, and cold and heat and pain detectors, who are there to protect the whole body.

Of course our skin must be watertight, and so it is. Water won't soak through and won't carry in poisons. Medicines dissolved in fats, however, can be forced through enough to kill you. Thus belladonna mixed in an ointment kills the pain and itch of fly bites. But some of it also sinks in and paralyzes the eye muscles, and makes the great large black pupils that actresses love so much to have.

Our skin, besides being our armor, has to help greatly to keep the whole body machine always at the same temperature. To do that it has the cleverest dodges you ever saw. First of all, it has a great many little factories for making wax. These glands are always putting out a little wax on the skin to keep the surface supple, especially in hot weather. But suppose it suddenly gets very cold—well, there is a little muscle round the gland that immediately squeezes out some extra wax, other muscles that bunch the skin up together and make it thicker, others that squeeze the hot pipes in the surface and so save heat being lost. The skin has become, therefore, white and thick and waxy. We call it "goose" skin. But it saves a whole heap of heat. These little factories are most numerous on our face, because it is always exposed. If their openings get choked, they make spots on our skin, and we steam the part in hot water and so help to move the block along.

Then, there is the hair, which is part of the skin. We don't need it for warmth, like a bear or a beaver, because we can make clothes and fires. But it does help to make us beautiful. Next, the skin carries factories that get rid of water. Those are to help to regulate the heat. If you fill a flat basin with water and stand it outside on thick straw on a warm night, in India, the evaporation is so rapid and takes so much heat to evaporate it that ice will form in the bowl. Water evaporates all the time all over our surface. But there are two and one-half millions of little reserve fountains all over our body ready to turn on to wet the skin and cool it down, as soon as its heat rises even half a degree. Sit quite still in a very hot room, and as soon as ever your whole machine is one-half of one degree hotter than usual, the fountains begin to play, and little streams run down all over your body and start evaporating, and we call it sweating. Of course it is just the same thing if you work or play very hard. You have then to burn up a heap of fuel in all the muscle machines, and the whole body would soon be in a "fever," but the fountains all start going and the whole machine keeps just the same heat. Each person uses up about two pints of water a day in this way, but in a hard football match two pints are lost in an hour.

There is one important thing to remember here. Clothes don't ever make us warm. They only keep in the heat we make.

In a still, hot lecture room full of people the water evaporates and makes a real cloud, and then all the hot breath they breathe out gets held down and they get sleepy and headachy. Start a fan going, blow away the cloud, stir up the air, and they all begin listening attentively to the sermon again. Practically no carbons come off through our skins. The oxygens can't pull them through.

We have spoken of the many arrangements in the skin for signaling "danger." In the world of live cells that make up this marvellous covering are many detectives. The sensitive hairs and touch-cells and pain-cells and cold-cells and heat-cells are among the number. These are arranged especially on all the vantage posts, like the lips at the entrance to the food canal, or the fingers that hit up against everything and can feel everywhere, and especially the tickly cells in the arm-pits, where the big vessels lie. As I told you, the outside cells of the skin are really tiles or scales filled with horny stuff. Like the great horns of a deer that are made new each year, so are our outermost scales growing anew all the while. That is how our skins mend their own holes, when we wear out any part, like we do our socks.

The nails are part of our skins, and are growing all the time, as you know. They are to pick up small things with, and make our fingers much more useful. Hot water on the skin makes it red because it enlarges the red blood-vessels in it. Cold water makes it white because it makes the muscles squeeze all the blood out. It is often very good to dip your skin first into hot and then into cold water. It helps to keep it nourished and healthy. So always end your hot water bath with a cold sponging. To take a good cold dip every morning is a very beneficial thing.

Enough said—off you go and wash your skins before bed.

(© by the Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Silo Has Great Value for Corn

Poor Crop and Borer Point Way to Proper Storage of Feed.

This fall the silo provides the best way to cope with the European corn borer and to make the most of what may be saved from the corn crop, says the New York state college of agriculture at Cornell university.

Unless all signs fail this will be one of New York's poorest corn years, the college points out. Planting was late because of unfavorable weather; a shortage of good seed was responsible for many a poor stand; corn fields were disked and seeded to buckwheat. A late fall may help some but cannot compensate for the cool summer which has reduced yields in every corn field.

Put Soft Corn in Silo.

Much corn grown for grain will have to be put in the silo if it is to be saved. Soft corn which will not keep in a crib is safe in a silo; and corn stalks, cut up fine and put through the fermentation of silage cannot harbor live corn borers.

Corn properly stored in the silo retains more of its feeding value than by any other method. The college suggests that the farmer allow his corn to stand as long as possible, remembering that each day's growth means hundreds of pounds of feed; allow the ears to reach the glazed stage, if possible; if he must cut corn that is very immature, the bundles should lie on the ground a couple of days to evaporate some of the excess moisture. Extremely green silage is watery and poor in quality.

Reduce Spoilage In Silo.

Reduce the spoilage in the silo by having the walls air-tight; by cutting the pieces small; and by packing firmly to exclude even small air pockets where mold may start. In a year like this a good part of the feeding value is in the leaves of the corn plant, so none of the leaves should be lost.

Native Vegetables Are Most Valuable Plants

In the American vegetable garden eight principal food products had their origin in the Indian crops existing here before the advent of the white man. These include beans, corn, peppers, pumpkins, squash, tomato, potato and sweet potato. Vegetables of Old World origin are far more numerous. The United States Department of Agriculture lists 24 of importance, cucumbers, eggplant, muskmelon, watermelon, okra, asparagus, beets, brussels sprouts, cabbage, carrots, cauliflower, celery, kale and collard, kohlrabi, leek, lettuce, onion, parsley, parsnips, peas, radish, salsify, spinach and turnip. But the value of the crop of the eight native vegetables is considered greater than the 24 of foreign origin. Since the discovery of America the white man has not "tamed" an, native plants which the Indians had not already brought from warmer parts of America, but notable improvements have been made in the quality and yield of most of these vegetables.

Profitable Practice of Hogging Down Corn Crop

The practice of hogging down corn has been growing very rapidly in the corn belt states in recent years. It is a good practice because it saves labor and increases the rapidity of hog gains, provided the corn is properly supplemented. A few farmers still make the mistake of turning their spring pigs into corn without supplying a supplementary high protein and the proper amount of mineral matter. But the great majority of farmers who follow the practice of hogging down a portion of their corn are placing self-feeders containing a commercial high protein feed and a mineral mixture in the field to allow the pigs to balance their own ration. It is in this way that the most economical as well as the most rapid gains are obtained.

Agricultural Items

Sweet clover hay, properly cured, is practically equal to alfalfa.

* * *

Farmers seldom have trouble getting good prices for high-grade produce.

* * *

After haying and harvest is a good time to get at that concrete dairy-stable floor.

* * *

Millet hay should not be fed to horses for any length of time lest it injure their kidneys.

* * *

Poultry manure is the most valuable fertilizer. It is high in organic nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash.

* * *

Nearly all diseases of poultry are taken into the body through the mouth, either with the feed or water.

* * *

It doesn't pay to keep a hen more than one year unless she has been an exceptionally good layer the first year.

* * *

A penny apparently saved by skimping the milk cow on her grain may mean the expenditure of several dollars later on.

Camel

The cigarette that earned first place by its goodness

The greatest endorsement ever given to a cigarette is revealed by the fact that Government figures show that more Camels are being smoked today than ever before. An endorsement by the many—not the few.

If all cigarettes were as good as Camel you wouldn't hear anything about special treatments to make cigarettes good for the throat. Nothing takes the place of choice tobaccos.

© 1927, R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, Winston-Salem, N. C.

Proof of It

The Sister—I sometimes wonder if Lawrence really loves me.

Her Brother—Well, you needn't, for I've been borrowing money from him for the last nine months, and he hasn't stopped his visits.

Salts Fine for Aching Kidneys

When Back Hurts Flush Your Kidneys as You Clean Your Bowels

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, sometimes get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region begin drinking lots of water. Also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is intended to flush clogged kidneys and help stimulate them to activity. It also helps neutralize the acids in the urine so they no longer irritate, thus helping to relieve bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which everybody should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in trying to correct kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

Ireland's Prized Volume

The Book of Kells is a beautifully executed manuscript copy of the Gospels, dating from the Sixth or Seventh century. It is preserved in Trinity college, Dublin.

Kitty! Kitty!

Jane—That lace is thirty-five years old.

Rose—Pretty. Did you make it yourself?

A Real Boss

This generation has seen a number of child monarchs. King Alfonso of Spain was born after the death of his father and became king at birth. He seems to have taken himself seriously as a king from babyhood and to have rebelled lustily against his mother's regency whenever it took the form of reproof or punishment.

Many stories have come out of Spain of the way he kinged it around the palace in infancy. In the nursery he was corrected for putting a knife in his mouth. "Gentlemen never eat like that," he was told. He retorted, "I'm not a gentleman, I'm a king."

A Mother's Health Should be up to Par

Fort Scott, Kans.—"Before my baby came I took several bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and it certainly was a wonderful help and benefit to me. It gave me strength and courage and my baby is stout and healthy. I am only too glad to recommend the 'Favorite Prescription' to expectant mothers."
—Mrs. Stella Judd, 521 N. Crawford St.

Favorite Prescription can be had in tablet form as well as liquid at drug stores.

If you wish a trial package of tablets just send 10c to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel in Buffalo, N. Y.

Write for medical advice. This carries no charge.

The Explanation

"What makes petrified trees?"

"'Tis said the wind makes them rock."

The nightingale sings at night to distract prowling enemies from the nest on the ground to himself perched safely in a tree.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM
Removes Dandruff—Stops Hair Falling
Restores Color and Beauty to Gray and Faded Hair
60c. and $1.00 at Druggists.
Hiscox Chem. Wks. Patchogue, N. Y.

FLORESTON SHAMPOO—Ideal for use in connection with Parker's Hair Balsam. Makes the hair soft and fluffy. 50 cents by mail or at druggists. Hiscox Chemical Works, Patchogue, N. Y.

Knew What Was Coming

First Flapper—I've heard all about you.

Second Ditto—It's not true. It's a pack of malicious lies.—Stray Stories.

"Whiz—the arrows hit the mark!" And, just so, Monarch Cocoa and Monarch Teenie Weenie Peanut Butter sandwiches always hit the mark.

EVERY genuine Monarch package bears the Lion Head, the oldest trademark in the United States covering a complete line of the world's finest food products—Coffee, Tea, Cocoa, Catsup, Pickles, Peanut Butter, Canned Fruits and Vegetables, and other superior table specialties.

REID, MURDOCH & CO.
Established 1853
Chicago Pittsburgh Boston New York
Jacksonville Tampa Los Angeles

Monarch is the only nationally advertised brand of QUALITY FOOD PRODUCTS sold exclusively through the men who own and operate their own stores.

MONARCH
Quality for 70 Years

Don't discard your summer clothes. Make them a permanent rich black with

RIT

FAST DYES OR TINTS 24 POPULAR SHADES

Keep Your Butter Uniform and Hold Your Customers

Don't wait for your customers to complain about the variable color of your butter. Keep your butter that golden June color everybody likes by putting a few drops of Dandelion Butter Color into the churn. It is purely vegetable, wholesome and absolutely tasteless. It meets all State and National Food laws. All large creameries have used Dandelion Butter Color for years. It does not color buttermilk. You can get the large bottles for 35c from all drug or grocery stores.

Wells & Richardson Co., Inc.
Burlington, Vermont

Send for FREE Sample

FARMS Low Priced, Easy Terms. Eastern North Dakota, Western Minnesota. Write ED C. ANDERSON
Box 335, Opposite Post Office, FARGO, N. D.

AGENTS WANTED
Everybody needs food. Our plan gives the customer better quality and lower prices. Representatives wanted. $100 week and free automobile. Write quick. American Products Co., 8126 Monmouth, Cincinnati, O.

TEXAS FARMS AND RANCHES—Level, prairie agricultural land. Mild climate. Long growing seasons; excellent water. Productive soil. Can sell this land at prices ranging from $20 per a. up. Large ranches for colonization purposes at cheaper prices. Correspondence solicited and all questions ansd. E. F. Finch, Rm 6, Amarillo Tex.

HOTEL ELLIOTT
219 Fourth Street - Des Moines, Iowa
A Pleasant, Home-like Hotel
Rates: $1.25 to $2.00. Centrally Located.

Mr. Owner. Sell Your Property. Keep the commission. Farms, Hotels, Groceries, Movies, Bakeries. Business of any kind. Natl. Business Exch., Box 496, Des Moines.

Own a Furniture Business in California, est. 20 yrs., largest in town of 7,500; rich fruit and dairy county. $18,500 will handle. Horton-Wimpey Furn. Co., Hanford, Calif.

BE OUR AGENT, MAKE BIG MONEY selling our $50 Magnetic Health Belt. Send $17.50 for sample. RESTORO MFG CORP., 145 West Washington, Los Angeles, Calif.

For Relief of Rheumatism, Neuritis or lumbago, no matter how severe a case or how long you have suffered, use Burnes Remedy immediately. $1 and $2 sizes. Burnes Remedy Co., 204 Granite Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.

SKIN BLEACH
Results wonderful and sure. One complete box of KREMOLA will convince the most skeptical. Also cures Eczema. Price $1.25. Ask your dealer. Beauty Booklet FREE. Dr. O. H. Berry Co., Dept. E, 2075 Michigan Ave., Chicago.

...$1 00 BUYS 25 XMAS CARDS, all different, all beautiful, and we give FREE 1 pkg. Xmas Seals and 1 pkg Xmas Tags. Times Print Shop. 1tc

Choicest

FOODS

Folks, there couldn't be any eating place, no matter how expensive or how flossy, give you a better selection of high grade foods than we do.

And Oh! How we do cook 'em!

Drop in for dinner or a lunch tomorrow.

DELICIOUS—
Try our ice cream, a number of flavors, ice cold pop, and malt.

A full line of Cigars and Tobacco, at—

Busch Cafe

Art Kluckhohn, of Garner, was in Klemme Tuesday, and brought with him Mrs. Hartke, and Mrs. Mitzner, both of Colesburg, sisters of Ernest Schuldt, who came for a visit with him.

"Bill" Keraus drove to Crystal Lake Sunday to see the big carrot and onion patch. After much driving around he located it northwest of Hayfield. There are over 100 acres of onions there.

Grandma Schroeder, Mrs. Marli Croner and daughter, Dorothy, Mrs Lena Schroeder and Max Barz drove to Keswick, Iowa, Friday for a week end visit with Miss Adella Schroeder, who teaches school there.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kluckhohn entertained at a six o'clock dinner last Thursday evening Fred Kluckhohn and family, Clarence Kluckhohn and family and Art Kudje and family. The evening was spent in playing cards.

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Keraus entertained Sunday for dinner Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Mitchell, of Swea City. W. C. Keraus and family, C. G. Waterman and family and R. A. Jorgenson and family. The ocasion was Mrs. Keraus' birthday and a nice pheasant dinner was enjoyed.

Holland Bulbs

We have invited Mr. Knudson, of the Kemble Greenhouse, to bring his entire stock of Holland Bulbs to our Store for a one day Sale.

Tulips, Hyacinths, Narcissus,
Chinese Lilly, Madona Lilly,
Daffodils, Crocuses, Etc.—

Saturday
Oct. 22, 1927

Bulbs are cheaper than last year. Darwin Tulips only $4.50 per hundred, the lowest price in ten years.

And then, our Winter Stock of Potted Flowers will arrive the same day, Oct. 22.

Cyclamen, Begonias, Primrose,
Cleveland Cherries, Ferns, etc.

It seems that flowers have a kindly influence over us all, and people who love flowers are friendly Customers, and it is a pleasure indeed to entertain you at this Bulb Sale.

Souvenirs for the Ladies

Wellemeyer Company

KLEMME, IOWA

A Freeman

Emerson said, "An economist, or a man who can proportion his means and his ambition, or bring the year round with expenditures which express his character, without embarrassing one day of his future is already a master of life, and a freeman."

In other words, buy wisely; save persistently, that your future may be safe and you'll surely be independent, contented, free.

First National Bank,
KLEMME, IOWA.

Avery-Twin Lakes News

(Special Times Reporter)

Dick Swalve was a Garner caller last Tuesday forenoon.

Fred Henschen helped D. Swalve Wednesday.

Mrs. Elmer Schlei has been staying with her mother the past week

Mr. Carl Wille was at Minneapolis last week buying catlte.

Fred Wessels was a visitor at the Edwin Josten home one evening.

Ben Swalve was at Garner last Wednesday on business.

Ben Billmyre assisted with work at the Carl Wille place the past week

Harry Sandrey was in Minneapolis last week one day on business.

Mrs. Mattie Brass was a Sunday visitor at the Herman Bruns home

Otto Smid assisted with work the past week at the Elmer Schlei famr.

Bur Church and Henry Ward hauled tile this past week.

A large number from this community attended the Fred Haupt funeral.

The trapez, slide and swing which were purchased for Miss Schaper's school, arrived but are not set up.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Buseman and family were at the Fred Albers home Friday evening.

Ben Swalve and grand-daughter, Carrie were at the Dick Swalve home Saturday for dinner.

John, Wemkie, and Ann Trampel were entertained at the D. Swalve homee Sunday for dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Swalve and Mr. Ben Swalve sr, were visiting at the Herman Bruns home Sunday.

Mr and Mrs. Geo. Buseman and family were at the Henry Buseman home visiting last Sunday.

Mr. Fred Echen and Art Klinkhammer hauled lumber and sand the past week, intending to build a part of a barn.

Pheasant hunters were out very early Friday and Saturday mornings and most received their limit. The birds are still plentiful.

Miss Martha Schaper of near Britt is the new teacher in Twin Lake No. 2. This school was formerly taught by Miss Haupt.

Mr. John, Ann and Wemkie Trampel, acompanied by Miss Florence Swalve, drove to Meservey last Sunday evening.

Mr and Mrs. Rhine Schlawin and family visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs Fred Etchen last Thursday evening. The ladies are sisters.

Mr and Mrs Alvin Swalve from near Ocheyedan came Friday for a visit at the home of Mrs. Swalve's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wenz.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Behrens and two sons from Ackley came Friday for a day's visit with relatives. They had dinner at the Herman Priebe home.

Mr. Levi Klotzbach delivered a fine new Premier furnace to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dick Swalve, purchased of E. F. Jacobs. This home has recently been re-modeled and is now very up-to-date and modern in every way.

Mrs. Sumner Trumbel, Miss Viola Freie, Miss Eunice Braund and Mr Henry Freie drove to Williams Tuesday and had dinner at the home of Mr and Mrs. John Braund. In the afternoon they drove to Webter City to shop.

The Methodist Ladies Aid have planned to hold their Bazar and also serve cafeteria supper on November 11th. The bazar sale will begin at 3:00 p. m. Donations for the bazar are to be left at the J. N. Day Store or the Times Print Shop.

A bank examiner was heere last Thursday and Friday. The statement of the First National will be published next week. The Klemme First National is one of the strongest banks in North Iowa, as the statement will show.

Card Of Thanks

We wish to extend thanks to our neighbors and friend for their assistance during our recent sorrow. We also wish to thank those who contributed flowers, and for the various expressions of sympathy extended to us. Mrs. Fred Haupt, and children

Mr and Mrs. Henry Wille entertained for Sunday dinner Mr. and Mrs Ernest Palmby and family of Vernon Center, Minnesota, Mr and Mrs Albert Barz and children, Mr and Mrs. Fred Barz and children; Leslie Hartbeck and family and Harold Leitzinger and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Nissen, of Sioux City, and Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Clark, of Lake Park, came last Thursday evening and Friday, respectively, for a week end visit at the J. N Day home. Incidently they put in a couple of days hunting the festive pheasant with good results

RUPTURE EXPERT HERE

F H. Seeley, of Chicago and Philadelphia, the noted expert, will himself personally be at the Hanford Hotel, Mason City, and will remain for Saturday and Sunday only, Oct 22-23, from 9 a. m. till 5:00 p. m.

"The Spermatic Shield will not only retain any case of rupture perfectly, but contracts the opening in 10 days on the average case. Being a vast advancement over all former methods, exemplifying instantaneous effects immediately appreciable and withstanding any strain or position no matter the size or location. Large or difficult cases, or incisional ruptures (following operations) specially solicited. This instrument received the only award in England and in Spain, producng results without surgery, injections, medical treatments or prescriptions. adv1

NOTICE OF PROBATE OF WILL

STATE OF IOWA,
Hancock Count, ss.

TO ALL WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

YOU ARE HEREBY NOTIFIED, That an instrument of writing purporting to be the last Will and Testament of Fred Haupt deceased, dated July 6th, 1920, having been this day filed, opened and read, Monday the 21st day of November, 1927 is fixed for hearing proof of same at the Court House in Garner, Iowa, before the District Court of said County or the Clerk of said Court; and at 10:00 o'clock A M. of the day above mentioned, all persons interested are hereby notified and required to appear, and show cause, if any they have, why said instrument should not be probated and allowed as and for the last Will and Testament of said deceased.

Dated at Garner, Iowa, October 17th, 1927.

CHRIS J. JOHANSEN,
Clerk of District Court.

(Pub. Oct. 22-29, Nov 3. 1927.)

One Day Battery Charging Service

Get your Battery in before 9:00 A. M. and it is ready by 5:00 or 6:00 P. M. the same day with a better, longer lived charge than you ever had before.

NO LONG EXPENSIVE WAITS OR RENTALS

This improved charging method lengthens battery life and cannot possibly harm the battery.

—A Well Charged Battery Gives Your Car
MORE POWER—BRIGHTER LIGHTS—QUICK START
Try our One Day Battery Service just once and you'll always have your battery charged by this improved method.

Pritchard Auto Co.

Phone 77 Klemme, Iowa

Fall's Newest
Suits and Overcoats
Distinctive new patterns and weaves

$30 $35 $40

Hundreds of new Suits and Overcoats are on display here. Smart new patterns, rich colorings, including the very popular Oxford Greys. Weaves never seen before. You can select your new sui and overcoat here with every assurance of style and value. The Patton Brothers label on your clothing is style and quality insurance. Come in and look.

New Hats, Shirts, Ties, Hose

Sweaters, Underwear

Patton Brothers Co.

Where A Dollar Does Its Duty
MASON CITY, IOWA

Cream Checks

Of $45 and Over

SEPTEMBER 16-30, 1927

PAID TO PATRONS

James Kurtz	$84.05	V. A. Cook	54.36
Herman Lemke	76.20	Albert Swanson	54.24
Fred Kothenbeutal	76.19	A. Psotka	54.11
Wm. Bell	73.64	Otto Klinge	52.95
J. W. Heifner	68.54	J. Koenan	52.17
C. J. Bode	66.09	Ben Reemstma	51.15
C. Sheppelman	65.38	John Smith	51.10
John Rust	64.10	Roy Schaefer	48.04
Oscar Carlson	61.96	John Terhufen	47.94
Art Knoke	59.87	O. W. Lemke	47.07
Wm. H. Greimann	58.49	Alfred Josten	46.10
J. J. Stille	56.61	Gobeli Brothers	46.10
C. J. Janssen	56.30	Fred Barz	45.69
John Lemke	54.92	Herman Thieman	45.18

September 1 to 15, Pounds of Butter Made ..... 23,944 lbs.

Price paid for Butter Fat September 1 to 15, per pound ..... 50 cts.

September 16 to 30 Pounds of Butter Made ..... 21,650 lbs.

Price Paid for Butter Fat September 16 to 30, per pound ..... 51 cts.

Val. Josten, Secretary.

Klemme Co-Op Creamery Company

"How best can I trade in my present car for a new car?"

WHEN you are ready to trade in your present car for a new car, you naturally want full value for your present car. But most of all you want full new car value.

It will therefore pay you to consider varying trade-in allowance offers in the light of these basic facts:

1 Your present car has only one fundamental basis of value: i.e., what the dealer who accepts it in trade can get for it in the used car market.

2 Your present car has seemingly different values because competitive dealers are bidding to sell you a new car.

3 The largest allowance offered is not necessarily the best deal for you. Sometimes it is; sometimes it is not.

4 An excessive allowance may mean that you are paying an excessive price for the new car in comparison with its real value.

5 First judge the merits of the new car in comparison with its price, including all delivery and finance charges. Then weigh any difference in allowance offered on your present car.

6 Remember that you are making a purchase—not a sale. You are buying a new car and simply using your present car as a credit against the new car's purchase price.

WE publish this message, believing that the public is entitled to have all the facts. And we invite you to send for the facts about General Motors products by using the coupon below.

GENERAL MOTORS

CLIP THE COUPON

GENERAL MOTORS (Dept. A), Detroit, Mich.

CHEVROLET ☐
PONTIAC ☐
OLDSMOBILE ☐
OAKLAND ☐
BUICK ☐
LASALLE ☐
CADILLAC ☐

Please send, without obligation to me, illustrated literature describing the General Motors product I have checked—together with your booklet describing General Motors Proving Ground.

Name _____

Address _____

_____

FRIGIDAIRE Electric Refrigerator ☐ DELCO-LIGHT Electric Plants ☐

Liberty News Notes

(Special Times Reporter)

Mr and Mrs. Otto Lemke were visitors at Mason City Saturday.

Mrs W. F. Missman spent Wednesday at the Wm Lemke home.

Oscar Carlson entertained company from Boone county last week

Rev Gauger called at the Clyde Marshall home Thursday

The farmers of this vicinity have been helping at the Hueneman farm since Mr Hueneman's accident

Miss Helen Lemke drove to Garner Tuesday afternoon to have dental work done

Mr and Mrs Wm Lemke were Sunday evening callers at the J. N Day home

Mr Elmer Schaefer and Art Knoke attended the hog sale north of Garner Tuesday

Mr and Mrs Ben Reemstma and children were Garner callers Saturday

Miss Bernice Tanner has been teaching school for Miss Edith Haupt during the illness and death of Miss Haupt's father

During pheasant season Friday, and Saturday, many birds were shot nad a few accidents ocured, none were serious here

Next Sunday evening a series of revival meetings will start in the Liberty Twp Church Every one is welcome to these meetings.

An official board meeting was held in the basement of the Liberty wp church Wednesday evening. All officials were present except two.

Mr Victor Hueneman is reported doing as well as could be expected, suffering a great deal but holding his own.

Next Sunday Emil Beier, representative of Liberty and Klemme M E churches wil give his report f the general conference held in Webster City.

Miss Meta Lemke spent the week end at Mason City with her friend, Miss Ruth Lau The girls visited the ugar beet factory which just started to work again about a week ago The beet factory is a very ineresting place to visit

RHEUMATISM

While in France with the Amreican Army I obtained a noted French prescription for the treatment f Rhuematism and Neuritis. I have given this to thousands with wonderful results The prescription cost me nothing I ask nothing for it I will mail it if you will send me your address. A postal will bring it Write today.

PAUL CASE, Dept. W92, Brockton, Mass.

A large crowd attended the S. S. Convention at the Liberty Twp. Church Sunday. A very interesting program was carried out and enjoyed by all.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Beier, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Blumer and children, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Reemstma and daughter and Carl Reemer wree enterta'ned for dinner Sunday at the Albert Reemer home in Garner. This dinner was given in honor of the newly married couple, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Reemer

Ell Township News

(Special Times Reporter)

Mr. Ben Mullin was in Fort Dodge on business last Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Buentenbach were entertained at the Martin Jensen home for dinner Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Greiman and family spent Sunday at the John Bock home

Raymond Barz spent Sunday with Edwin Thieman at his home east of Klemme

Stella Bock spent Sunday with Adella Kuhlmann, at the Rev. Groshuesch home, to help her celebrate ier birthday which was on that day.

The Ell-Avery Silo Ring held a business meeting at Henry Thieman Monday evening. Coffee and cake was served after the meeting.

Mrs. Henry Barz entertained a number of ladies Wednesday at a quilting bee She served a delightful dinner to them.

August Kothenbeutel and family, and Herman Kothenbeutel and family all of Hampton, spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kothenbeutel and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Barz and family and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Barz and family spent Sunday at the H. Wille home, as Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Palmby and family of Vernon Center, Minn were spending the day there

Miss Lydia Bock, William Bock and Alvin Schlichting all motored to Charles City early Sunday morning and spent the day with Mr. and Mrs Carl Bock and little son, Donald. Mr. Carl Bock is employed n the Hart Parr Tractor Co.

Mr and Mrs. John Newberger and children, Ruth, John, Fay and Merlin left early Saturday morning for Canistota, So. Dakota, to visit relatives and friends. They returned Monday evening having traveled over 500 miles. They reported having had a very nice time.

Mr and Mrs. Sumner Trumbell entertained Sunday Mr. C. R. Trumbell, Mr. and Mrs. Theo. Wright, f Belmond; Miss Iva Trumbell and Miss Wolfsen, of California; Mr. Charles Trumbell of California, Mr. and Mrs. Knisely of Belmond, Miss Wilma Trumbell and Miss Lena Mc-

MapleSota Flour

Fresh Carload Just Received

This high grade Flour has just been unloaded and this shipment is fresh right from the big mills. Our price is right.

CAR LOAD OF COKE ON HAND

We have just received a car load of high grade COKE. You people who like to burn coke better get in on this at once!

FURNACE COAL

We belive in sticking to the brands of coal which have proven out the best and the most satisfactory for the monev. So this year we again feature BONNIE BLUE and BLUE DIAMOND COAL—yes sir! we have it on hand for quick delivery!

Klemme Co-Operative Grain Co.

Avery Twp. News

(Special Times Reporter)

Miss Elma Nelson was a visitor at the Verner Nelson home Monday.

Wm. Bell and son Jeff were at Mason City Monday on business.

J. J. Cook was a business caller t the Geo. Griggs home Thursday.

Virgil Cook delivered some potatoes to Klemme Thursday.

Maxine Bachman spent Friday afternoon at the Ernest Helps home.

George Griggs was a business caller at Crystal Lake Thursday.

Henry Busse has installed a new telephone on the Klemme line.

Alvin Albers was a caller at the Peter Trampel home Thursday eve.

Mrs. Geo. Grigs was a caller at Ventura Thursday.

Wemkie, Anna and John Trampel were business callers at Garner Tuesday morning.

Dave Ross was a business caller at his farm tenanted by D. A. and Herb Marshall, Wednesday.

Henry Beek of Austin, Minn. has started to work for Clarence Bachman.

Chris Anderson was a business caller at the D. A. Marshall home one day last week.

Peter Trampel and son John were helping Andrew Nelson thresh Friday afternoon.

Jeff Bell and Gilman Marshall were business callers at Garner Saturday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Buss and sons were shopping in Cear Lake one day last week.

A dance was held at the Fred Albers home Friday night. A large crowd attended.

Will Bachman was a business caller at the Pete Merkel home Thursday afternoon.

A number from this vicinity attended the Fred Haupt funeral held Friday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs Will Bachman were callers at the Clarence Bachman home Friday morning.

Mrs. Clarence Bachman and Maxine and Mrs Fred Bachman were visitors at the Will Bachman home Thursday.

Henry Griffen and Mr. Carlson, who work for Mrs. C. A. Arnold, were dwon and picked seed corn t the Clarence Bachman place.

Mr and Mrs Wil Bachman and daughter, Lela, and Mr. and Mrs Charley Fritzel were visitors at the John Bachman home Sunday

Clarence, Carrie and Florence Swalve and Anna, Wemkie and John Trampel were callers at Goodell Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Trampel and sons Harmen and Clarence left Sunday afternoon for Kamrar for a few days visit with relatives and friends

There was quite a heavy frost Thursday night, which was the heaviest of the season, but which did not do much damage.

Mr and Mrs. Tom Nelson Jr., and son Harvey, attended the convention held in Liberty twp. church Sunday.

Mr. aud Mrs. Clarence Bachman enjoyed a visit from relatives from Ventura Sunday.

Herb and Gilman Marshall have been doing some threshing for a couple of days. They threshed some buckwheat for Chris Anderson and also some oats stacks for Andrew Nelson and Tom Roths

Mrs. Husingea and sons, Harm and Henry, of Sibley, Iowa, were visitors at the Peter Trampel and Mrs. Aug. Trampel homes Saturday Mrs. Husinga and Mr Trampel are sister and brother.

Pie And Basket Social

There wil be a pie and basket social Friday eve., Oct. 28th at Liberty No. 9, 6 miles west of Klemme. Ladies please bring pies or baskets. Fern Stille, teacher; Roy Schaefer, director. 1to.

NOTICE TO PUBLIC

Complete copies of the Town Ordinances of Klemme, Iowa, may be seen by anyone at the Office of the Town Clerk of Klemme, Iowa. The Numbers and Titles of Said Ordinances were published according to law in two recent issues of The Klemme Times, a newspaper of general circulation published at Klemme, Iowa.

8tc. PAUL GRANGE, Mayor of Klemme, Iow

FINE FOOD FOLKS

There's a difference in the way vegetables, meats, etc. are cooked and you will recognize it the moment you eat them here.

We serve only the very best the market affords, all well cooked.

As with everything, we think the best is none too good for our patrons.

Drop in for lunch or any meal anytime, at—

Crystal Cafe

Conrad Quandt, Prop.

LYRIC

Theatre

—GARNER, IOWA—

Presents The Following

Friday & Saturday
October 21-22
A Historical Photoplay
"THE ROUGH RIDERS"
Remember the Maine—and
Comedy
"MISTER CHUMP"
Adm. 15-40

Tuesday & Wednesday
October 25-26
The drama of a girl you know
"STELLA DALLAS"
her life's romance is of the world
Lloyd Hamilton comedy
"HIS BETTER HALF"
Adm. 10-25c

Farm

Loans

5%

Isaac Sweigard

Garner Iowa

PIANOS

Players & Grand
New and
Second Hand

M. N. ZEIGER

Jewelry & Optical Goods

GARNER, IOWA

Improved Uniform International

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV P B. FITZWATER, D.D., Dean Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)
(©, 1927, by Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for October 23

THE CALL OF THE PROPHET

LESSON TEXT—I Kings 19:19, 20; Amos 7:10-15; Isa. 6.1-8.

GOLDEN TEXT—I heard the voice of the Lord saying, Whom shall I send, and who will go for us? Then I said, Here am I, send me.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God Chooses His Helpers.

JUNIOR TOPIC—God's Call to Service.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Spirit of the Volunteer.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Need for Modern Prophets.

A prophet is one who speaks forth the message of another. A prophet may foretell events, but his primary business is to speak forth God's message.

I. The Call of Elisha (I Kings 19:19, 20).

1. His occupation. He seems to have been a well-to-do farmer, as there were twelve yoke of oxen in service when God called him. It was while engaged in his common duty that he received the divine call.

2. How he was called. Elijah cast his mantle upon him as he passed by.

II. The Call of Amos (Amos 7:10-15).

1. His occupation (v. 14). He was a herdsman and gatherer of sycamore fruit.

2. He was a prophet, not by succession nor trained in the prophetic schools.

3. God called him from his humble life to stand before the king. God is not straitened for helpers. He raises up workers from unexpected quarters, fills them with His Spirit and sends them forth.

III. The Call of Isaiah (Isa. 6:1-8).

1. Isaiah's vision of the Lord (vv. 1-4) No one's ministry will ever be fruitful until he has had a vision of the Lord.

(1) He saw the Lord on His throne (v. 1). The supreme need of a servant of God is to have a vision of Him, even to see Him on His throne. Just now, perhaps as never before, we need a vision of the enthroned Lord, as the awful darkness is settling down upon the world.

(2) He saw the Seraphim above (vv. 2, 3). Their standing indicated that they were in readiness to do His bidding. Their equipment with six wings showed their ability to execute the divine will. In the divine presence, one pair was needed to veil the head from the divine glory, one pair veiled the feet which had been soiled in contact with the world, while the third pair was suspended in midair waiting to depart on the divine errand. As they waited in His presence their continued cry was "Holy, holy, holy."

(3) He saw manifestations of majesty (v. 4). As the holy ones cried the very doorposts moved and the temple was filled with smoke. Smoke indicates the divine presence in anger (Ex. 19:8; 20:18).

2. Isaiah's conviction of sin (v. 6). When he got a vision of the holy God he was smitten with a sense of sin. The reason that men think well of themselves is that they have never seen God. Face to face with the Lord, Isaiah saw himself as wholly vile. He realized that he had sinned in speech, and if in speech, then in heart, therefore the cry of despair.

3. Isaiah cleansed from sin (vv. 6, 7). Having been convicted of and confessed his sin, a burning coal was sent from the altar which purged away his sin. His penitential guilt was forgiven and removed.

4. Isaiah's call (v. 8). His call from God did not come until after his cleansing. The purged soul is the soul ready for the Lord's service.

5. Isaiah's dedication (v. 8). As soon as he was cleansed he quickly responded for service. The one who has been sanctified and made meet for the Master's service readily responds to the call of God. He did not wait to see the end from the beginning, but freely gave himself up to that service.

6. Isaiah's commission (vv. 9-13). Because of the unpromising outlook, Isaiah shrank from his responsibility. He saw the people steeped in selfishness, but in spite of that the Lord assured him that their blindness and sin would not continue forever. The people would go on in sin, be taken into captivity, and the land left desolate; but as the oak, after shedding its leaves is for a time apparently lifeless, yet it retains its substance and so can manifest its life, the prophet is given to see under this figure that despite the deadness of the nation a remnant shall be saved. The holy seed of the kingdom shall come to fruitage in the last days.

The Highest Energy

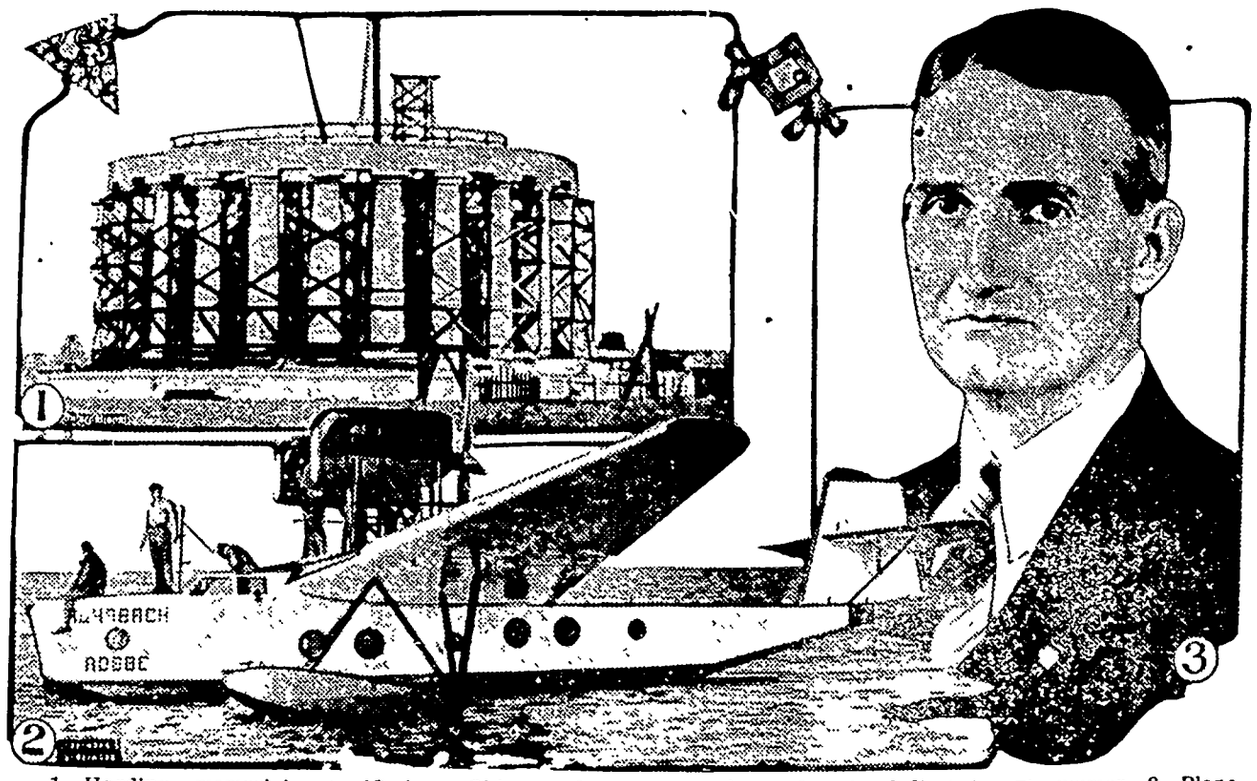
"Prayer is the very highest energy of which the human heart is capable."—Coleridge.

Life

Life is the soul's nursery—its training place for the destinies of eternity.—W. M. Thackery

Praying and Living

He who prays as he ought will endeavor to live as he ought.—Owen.



1—Harding memorial at Marion, Ohio, under construction and to be dedicated next summer. 2—Plane of novel design in which Doctor Rohrbach, Danish aviator, hopes to fly across the Atlantic. 3—M. S. Winder of Salt Lake City, who has been made secretary of the American Farm Bureau federation.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Teapot Dome Lease Is Canceled—Woman Fails in Atlantic Flight.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

FINAL victory has been scored by the federal government in its three years' fight to regain the valuable oil fields that were leased to others by Albert B. Fall when he was secretary of the interior. Last week the Supreme Court of the United States vitiated the Teapot Dome lease held by Harry F. Sinclair. The decision sustained the ruling of the Circuit Court of Appeals which reversed a Wyoming federal court that upheld the validity of the lease. This brings back to the government Wyoming oil lands estimated to be worth $100,000,000, plus $3,000,000 in cash now in the hands of the court's receivers; $2,000,000 worth of oil taken out by Sinclair before suit was started and for which he must make restitution, and more than $1,000,000 worth of oil tanks, pipe lines and other improvements constructed by Sinclair, but for which the court denies him equity because of the leasing form.

The court's decision last March, similarly denouncing the Doheny lease of the Elk Hills (Calif.) naval reserve as illegal and fraudulent, restored even more valuable oil lands to the navy. A survey just completed by oil experts estimates that the Elk Hills lands contain 720,000,000 barrels of oil, or nearly three times the amount previously estimated. Its value is place at fully $300,000,000. The government also recovered $24,000,000 for oil drilled out by Doheny and for value of tanks, etc.

Last week's decision, which was unanimous, branded Fall as "a faithless public officer." It held that the Teapot Dome lease to Sinclair's Mammoth Oil company was contrary to the oil conservation policy of the government. Fall's contention that development of the reserve was necessary to prevent drainage was denounced as a representation made in "bad faith."

RUTH ELDER, daring and skillful Florida aviator, almost achieved her ambition to be the first woman to fly across the Atlantic. With George Haldeman as co-pilot, she drove the plane American Girl to within about 1,000 miles of Paris despite strong head winds that forced them off their course, and then a broken oil line forced them to come down in the ocean. Fortunately the Dutch tanker Barendrecht was close by and picked up the two flyers unhurt. An attempt to salvage the plane was made, but a gasoline tank exploded and it was burned. The rescue took place about 300 miles northeast of the Azores and the aviators were taken to the islands, whence they were to continue their trip to France by steamer.

Miss Elder and Haldeman were in the air more than 41 hours and flew 2,574 miles—a record for all-water flights. The storm they encountered reduced their average speed from the expected 100 miles an hour to about 72. The last five hours of their flight was made with no oil pressure in their motor.

AMERICAN workers still yearn for their beer and have not given up hope of getting it. The American Federation of Labor, in convention in Los Angeles, adopted by viva voce vote a resolution demanding that congress modify the Volstead act "so as to permit the manufacture and sale of wholesome beer."

President Green's policies were upheld when the convention voted, 135 to 32, against application of the federal quota law to Mexican immigration. The executive council, after a year's investigation of the relationship between labor and the government in Mexico, reported that it did not consider the Mexican government a trades union regime, though the relations between it and the labor movement are "very intimate."

Max S. Hayes of Cleveland, who was Farmer-Labor candidate for vice president in 1920, offered a plan for a labor party, but the convention almost unanimously supported Mr. Green's alternative proposal that "we work for the friends of labor in both national parties at the polls." The delegates also rejected resolutions denouncing the government's policy in Latin America and China, and approved the Monroe Doctrine.

MEXICO'S latest revolutionary movement is, as predicted, effectively suppressed and Calles is more firmly in the saddle than ever, with Obregon assured of the succession to the Presidency. General Gomez and his band of followers in the state of Vera Cruz were attacked at Chualulco by loyal troops under General Escobar and utterly routed, bombing planes playing a considerable part in the engagement. Gomez and his staff officers, seeing the day was lost, fled into the hills. Felix Palavicini, a journalist who has been deported, lays all the blame for the mutiny on General Serrano, who was caught and executed. Obregon says that when he becomes President he will follow Calles' policy in compelling Catholics and other religious denominations to respect the laws, since this policy has the support of the majority of the people of the country.

YUGO-SLAVIA and Bulgaria have practically settled their row over raids by Bulgarian comitadjis or irregulars along the border, but now Poland and Lithuania are on the eve of a break which may have serious consequences. The Lithuanian government has closed Polish schools and confiscated Polish estates in Lithuania, and plans to declare Vilna the capital of the country, despite the fact that that city was seized by Poland seven years ago. Then, last week, a number of Poles were arrested in Lithuania on charges of having plotted the assassination of President Smetona. The Polish government sent an ultimatum to Kovno threatening action unless Lithuania should radically alter its policy within one week. Marshal Pilsudski, dictator of Poland, wishes to avoid the use of force if possible, but the British minister to Warsaw reports that the situation is fraught with danger.

OVER in China the pendulum has swung back and the Shansi armies that had defeated Marshal Chang's troops and threatened to take Peking have themselves been beaten in battle and at last reports were retreating westward in considerable disorder. About 10,000 of the Shansi soldiers were captured and sent into Manchuria. The northern forces began operations for the capture of Shansi province and against Gen. Feng-Yu-hsiang in Honan province. Peking's feeling of relief was modified by the knowledge that it had been saved partly by the calling in of a horde of 15,000 Mongol cavalry, reputed to be the fiercest and most cruel fighters in all Asia.

SPAIN began its return to a constitutional parliamentary government last week with the formal opening of the new national assembly by King Alfonso. But it was only a faint start that way, for the assembly membership is picked by the dictator, Gen. Primo de Rivera, and so seems certain to do the bidding of the directorate which he heads. Two of the women delegates, the duchess of Parcent and Countess San Luis, resigned just before the assembly opened.

SENATOR JAMES A. REED of Missouri, who stands ready to accept the Democratic Presidential nomination if Gov. Al Smith cannot get it, was endorsed as a candidate by the Missouri state committee at Sedalia, and then delivered to a big assemblage of Democrats what was considered the keynote speech for his party in the coming campaign. He denounced Republican rule as no less corrupt now than during the Harding administration and scored Mellon, Daugherty and Fall. Making a plea for unity, the senator said:

"Let us make our fight beneath banners proclaiming the right of each citizen to regulate his own personal conduct—chart his own course through life—determine his own habits and to control the affairs of his own household, free from all restraints.

"If this people are to remain free, local self-government and the sovereignty of the states must be preserved The march of centralization must be arrested Government by boards and bureaucracies must cease.

"Let us demand:

"The honest administration of government.

"The swift and sure punishment of all public plunderers, bribemongers, and other malefactors.

"The equalization of the burden of taxation.

"The repeal of all laws creating special privileges.

"The dismissal of an army of spies, snoopers, sneaks, and informers."

RADICAL Republican senators have been holding a series of conferences in Washington, and it was reported their purpose was to promote the Presidential boom of Senator Norris of Nebraska. But some of them issued a signed statement disclaiming any "third party" intentions and denying they planned insurgency within their party Their purpose, said these gentlemen—Borah, Norris, Frazier, Nye and Brookhart—was to form a strong Western bloc and "get some unity of purpose and some solidarity of action" among Western senators and to impress upon the Eastern states and their representatives in congress that, as Senator Borah explained it, "a large portion of the United States lies west of the Allegheny mountains."

Friends of Norris, it is said, intend to enter his name in these fourteen preferential primary states: California, Illinois, Massachusetts, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, West Virginia, and Wisconsin.

MAYOR DUVALL of Indianapolis, convicted of political corruption, was sentenced last week to thirty days in jail and fined $1,000, and disfranchised for four years. He will appeal the case and says he will not resign until this appeal has been carried through the State Supreme court. The prosecutors believed he would be forced to quit office, in which case his wife, now city controller, would succeed him. Numerous civic groups are determined to oust both the Duvalls.

FEDERAL JUDGE F. P. SCHOONMAKER at Pittsburgh issued one of the most sweeping injunctions in the history of labor disputes, restraining the United Mine Workers of America, its officials and its members. Virtually every activity of the union against the nonunion Pittsburgh Terminal Coal corporation was forbidden. The union and its members were restrained from violence of any sort against company employees and prespective employees and against company property. Union pickets were restrained from putting their foot on company property, but were allowed to establish a single picket post on each road leading to the mines. Such pickets were cautioned against using abusive language, but were permitted the use of peaceful persuasion.

The long strikes of coal miners has been ended in Illinois, Indiana, Iowa and other Middle Western fields, the men temporarily receiving the wages called for by the Jacksonville agreement until the question of pay has been settled by commissioners to be appointed.

WILLIAM T. COSGRAVE, President of the Irish Free State, obtained a majority of six votes in the new Dail Eireann and was re-elected The followers of De Valera and the Labor party voted solidly against him, and the Redmondites refrained from voting. The chief attack on Cosgrave was delivered by Sean T. O'Kelly, a De Valera man, who declared the President was the tool of England and attacked his financial and economic policies. Next day Cosgrave announced his cabinet, which was approved by the same vote, and also announced that the Farmers' party had fused with the government party.

DEATHS of the week include those of Bishop P. J. Muldoon of Rockford, Ill., a leader in the Catholic church; Col. F. J. Dillon, member of the federal radio commission; F. D. Stout, one of the ten wealthiest men of Chicago, and Dom Miguel, duke of Braganza and pretender to the throne of Portugal.

What's the Answer?

Questions No. 20

1—What is meant by the term "Water Babies?"

2—What was the real name of Lewis Carroll, author of "Alice in Wonderland"?

3—Which is the largest river in New England?

4—What audacious American genius who was painter, etcher, pastelist and lithographer; who had much in common with the impressionists, but was of no school but his own, was also famous for his wit in conversation and the brilliancy of his writings?

5—Who was the first woman to swim the English channel?

6—What was the date of the Boston massacre?

7—When did Daniel Boone first come to Kentucky?

8—Who discovered X-rays?

9—What is the annual salary of the President of the United States?

10—Does the name "Catholic" apply only to the church?

11—What woman was the heroine of the battle of Monmouth in the Revolution?

12—What general captured Stony Point in the Revolution?

13—Who invented wireless telegraph?

14—Who is the Western open golf champion?

15—What American actress of a past generation is most frequently mentioned when the great stars of the world are under discussion?

16—What great city of the world stands on two continents?

17—What English author entered Mecca and Medina disguised as a Moslem?

18—Where is the Fiddler crab found?

19—In case of the death or disability of both the President and the vice-president of the United States, who becomes President?

20—What is the total number of non-Christians in North America?

Answers No. 19

1—Vicente Blasco Ibanez.

2—Jack Delaney.

3—John Rolfe.

4—Gen. Henry Hamilton, British.

5—Cyrus McCormick.

6—The Drews and the Barrymores.

7—The group of three great mountain ranges which traverse the country from north to south.

8—They are water rats and are widespread throughout England and Scotland.

9—Immigrant is used with reference into which, emigrant with reference to the country from which migration is made.

10—It is an important festival in the Greek, Roman and English churches. It is held on the 40th day after Easter.

11—The common fox.

12—Pedro Calderon.

13—Rene La Coste of France.

14—Battle of the Thames, 1813.

15—Battle of San Jacinto, 1836.

16—Richard J. Gattling.

17—Grieg; his "Peer Gynt" suite.

18—The Congo.

19—The "from" is redundant, "whence" meaning from what place.

20—Whitsunday is in contrast with Lent, in that no fasting was enjoined, and prayer was offered standing rather than kneeling.

Historic Flag Now in French Army Museum

A priceless relic of Napoleon and his Grand Armee has been presented to the French Army museum at the Invalides. This is the original flag of the emperor's First regiment of foot grenadiers—the most glorious standard of the imperial guard. Measuring about 33 inches square, it is beautifully embroidered with imperial eagles and golden bees, and bears the inscription: "Garde Imperiale. L'Empereur Napoleon au Premier Regiment de Grenadiers-a-pied." This is the only flag which accompanied the emperor throughout his campaigns in Germany and Flanders, and it flew at Waterloo. It was this standard which General Petit held on the great parade at Fontainebleu in which Napoleon bade farewell to his troops before going into exile, and which he kissed in the presence of his weeping grenadiers. It was presented to the army museum by the family of the late Haton de la Goupillere, a grandson of the General Petit who was holding it when it received the emperor's last salute.

Great Lover of Books

The greatest of book collectors was Richard Heber, an Englishman who died almost a hundred years ago. He is said to have owned 150,000 books, many of them of great rarity. His library in London filled eight houses; when it was sold at auction the sale lasted more than six months and brought over $250,000. Heber is the man who said that every gentleman ought to own three copies of any good book, one for show, one for use, and one to lend.—Youth's Companion.

The BAB

No mother in this enlighten would give her baby someth did not know was perfectly ha especially when a few drops o Castoria will right a baby's s and end almost any little ill. ness and fever, too; it seems until everything is serene.

That's the beauty of Castor gentle influence seems just w needed. It does all that cas might accomplish, without sh the system. Without the evil It's delicious! Being purely able, you can give it as oft there's a sign of colic; constip diarrhea; or need to aid sound ural sleep.

Just one warning: it is g Fletcher's Castoria that phy recommend. Other preparation be just as free from all doubtful but no child of this writer's is to test them! Besides the lo care and feeding of babies that with Fletcher's Castoria is wor weight in gold.

Children Cry f

Fletcher's CASTORIA

Stuff and Nonsense

Granny—What will little Robe when grandma is very old an taken away by the angels?

Robert—I won't let the angels you, granny. I'll tell daddy to you stuffed.—Philadelphia Inquire

Isn't it noteworthy that a fair fair now is at least half machine

"You Need a Diuretic!"

To Be Well There Must Proper Kidney Function.

THE kidneys are the blood filte If their action becomes slugg they do not thoroughly cleanse the bl of poisonous wastes. Such impuri make one dull, tired and achy with of nagging backache, drowsy headac and dizziness. A common warning imperfect kidney action is scanty burning excretions.

Doan's Pills, stimulant diuretic, aid kidneys in their eliminative work. 50, users have publicly recommend Doan's. Ask your neighbor!

DOAN'S PILLS 60c

STIMULANT DIURETIC FOR KIDNEY

Foster-Milburn Co. Mfg. Chem. Buffalo, N.

Coughs and Cold

are not only annoying, but danger If not attended to at once they develop into serious ailment.

Boschee's Syru

is soothing and healing in such ca and has been used for sixty-one ye 30c and 90c bottles. Buy it at your d store. G. G. Green, Inc., Woodb N. J.

K-R-O Kills Rats Only

Kill rats wholesale

Get rid of them safely. Here's a new su way. K-R-O, a fine non-poisonous powd kills 'em off in a hurry. Made from squ bulbs, the new safe way urged by gover ment experts.

Safe for poultry and pets

Actual tests proved that it killed ra and mice every time but other animals a poultry were not injured by the large doses. Think what that means to farme and merchants.

Not a poison

Use K-R-O freely. Place it around yo home, your barn, your granary or farm yard. Contains no arsenic, phosphorus barium-carbonate. At your druggist 75 Large size (4 times as much) $2.00. Or se direct from us postpaid if he cannot supp you. Satisfaction guaranteed.

K-R-O CO., Springfield, Ohio

MEN MAROONED

By GEORGE MARSH

Copyright by The Penn Publishing Co.
WNU Service.

TER VIII—Continued

—13—

and Etienne found ardale lying beside his kill.
to stare, with an oath,
atures, knotted in their ce, of—Joe Mokoman.
us, eh?" snarled the half-
You do fine job, Joe Moko-be spurned the body with his snowshoe.
meant to get that fur if he bury us in the snow?" said ning from the ugly picture still whining with the heat
"Good old Shottie!" And hugged the hairy shoulders end. "You tracked him down didn't you, old comrade of good dog, Shot, eh?" cried slapping the shaggy back.

more dan some men; he he hunt us."
thought Joe was a German oter, didn't you, Shot?" And the snow, Garth rocked to rubbing the ears of his dog, his excitement in the low
a language none but the ardale understood.
we buree dis skunk een de let m'sieu' fox deeg him

's all we can do. He must ard from the traveling Indians bound for the Canoe and de-stop us. Do you suppose that ld knows we are here and him on us?"
e shook his head. "He bin de Islan', so de hunter say."
sorry this happened," said
"There's no telling what kind they'll make of it. I wish a uld show up so we could show idence."
we stay on Islan' after Mc-bear hees man ees dead, we to fight for sure."
not afraid of McDonald," Garth, "but I don't want the drawn into the fight. We're fur, not trouble, and I'll have er to my superiors for what That's why I want you to ful when we meet Souci. No —understand?"
ne nodded. "De hunter know Savanne," said the half-breed finality. "Dey weel not start wid heem."
right! Now let's make tracks
Canoe and that medicine lodge
d's."
their snowshoes, they heaped nd of snow over the body of the in the spruce, to be found by ar and foxes, and started. At the team turned down into the of the Canoe.
the windbreak of the spruce on hore of the frozen river, the men
Elkwan found the tipis of the
. From north and east and had come the fox trappers with families for the great medicine of Souci, the shaman. The ims hummed with gossip of the ng of the strait by the tall fac-
Elkwan to fight for the trade
McDonald Ha! Ha! From valo valley Mokoman had traveled,
g the hunters to go to the
eer. Black Breault, too, and had visited many of the camps, as yet the wily hunters had sold fur, hoping by their seeming rence to obtain higher prices. Also, the last few days, rumors, vague ying, had been adrift. A hunter the Ptarmigan claimed he had down to the hills above Seal cove seen fire dancing on the masts of boat at night; that black magic being made by the man with the of a mad wolverine. Another e that his cousin, trapping on the g river, had been to the schooner heard devil music from a box. An squaw had already planted panic g the women with a story that ched hunters would leave Mc ld's ship to desert their wives children.
ll this and more the industrious
e gathered from the gossiping from the Elkwan while Garth camp and fed and chained the
His seeds, planted with such in the camps of the Ptarmigan Rabbit, had indeed sprouted, were fact already bearing fruit. The were ill at ease—suspicious of strangers who had come to the with their smiles and trade
, and in the conjury of old Saul, ight, they hoped and waited for advice and assurance that it d be safe as well as wise for to carry their fox pelts to the ner at Seal cove.
for the old shaman, Etienne
ed that he was camped down-beside his medicine lodge, preparing himself for commun-
with his confreres, the spirits
, that night beneath the stars, would summon with his magic to to the Crees, and remove from hearts the doubts and fears harassed them.
Ah-hah!" mused Etienne as he ed to Garth, busy cooking sup-
"Old Saul, he keep away; he not Etienne Savanne." But, gratify-as was the news he had picked up the gossiping hunters, Savanne his Indians, and feared wha ight would bring forth. For the wizard was past master in the art laying on the superstitions of the
, and with his incantations and bo-jumbo would doubtless per-them into starting at once for cove.
Etienne had no intention of giv ing Souci a free hand. Secretly, before the ceremony, and openly, when Souci from the tent delivered the admonitions of the spirits, he would brand the old man as the hireling of McDonald, friend of devils. If the outraged Saul dared to start trouble, this might be dangerous with the Crees in a high state of excitement, but the arm of the company was long, its hand heavy, and Etienne Savanne, its servant, feared as a fighter the length of the coast. So the prospect of trouble gave Etienne little concern, but the loss of twenty thousand dollars in fur, which the Crees had with them, would be little short of a calamity. On his return to his tent, his active mind groped for the best method of, that night, hanging the shaman with his own rope.

"Well, what did you hear?" asked Garth. "Did you see Saul?"

"No, he keep ver' quiet. De Cree have mooch fur, and manee of de men would go to McDonal', but de squaw have fear of devil. A feller by de name of Savanne, he tell de squaw down on de Ptarmigan some bad story, also up on de Rabbit, an' eet mak' dem squaw ver' nervous." Etienne smiled at the success of his efforts.

"That was certainly a good bit of strategy, Etienne, but you say the men are now wabbling in favor of the schooner?"

He Returned to Garth, Busy Cookin Supper.

"Ah-hah. I t'ink dat Souci, wid hees spirit, weel beat us tonight."

"We've got to think of something to do—we can't let him get away with all the fox in this camp, man!" urged Garth, handing his friend a heaping plate of beans and bacon.

As Etienne ate, his swarthy face was grave with the problem confronting him. What could be done? He even considered secreting himself in the medicine tent downstream, binding and gagging the old man as he entered, and playing shaman himself. But the danger of discovery by the outraged Crees would be too great. Failure would make matters even worse.

The medicine rite was to take place under the moon, which was late, so deep in council of war lingered white man and half-breed, until the silver disk rode above the white tundra already lit by low-swinging stars. Then Etienne returned from a short reconnaissance to report the hunters and squaws already moving to the rendezvous downstream where a fire glowed in the spruce. Small and cylindrical in shape, its tanned caribou-hide walls painted in red and black with the shapes of animals, the sun, and grimacing faces of the spirit friends of the conjurer, the medicine lodge stood a short distance from the fire. Gathered in the warmth of the blazing logs, shawled women and hooded hunters, heads together, conversed in low tones.

Higher over the tundra above the valley, the moon uswung through the star-incrusted heavens. It was a night for magic, and as his curious eyes shifted from the awed Crees to the medicine tent, Guthrie despaired of the efforts of Etienne, in such a setting to nullify the necromancy of old Saul. Moon and stars and the aurora joined with the purple shadows to lend invincible enchantment to the arts of the sorcerer. These simple children of the snows, bewitched by the mystery and magic of the night, would fall willing victims to the voices of the spirits.

The muttered exclamation of Etienne at his side aroused him. "Dere he go."

Faintly, to the measured tapping of a caribou hide drum, from the tent lifted low wailing. Seizing the arms of their men, the women at the fire stiffened. Swart faces went gray.

Gradually the wailing drifted into a sing-song, which, accompanied by the shell rattle rhythmically swelled and died. Suddenly the song ceased. Growls and snarls, whines and mewing—the bickering of beasts—filled the forest. Shrieks of a mating wolverine followed the caterwauling of a lynx. A wolf howled, lonely for his kind. From a September ridge drifted the moaning call of a cow moose. In a swamp a bittern chugged, a whooping crane startled with his trombone-like blast. From the gloom drifted the hoot of the snowy owl. Down wind, in full cry, swept wavies and Canadas, blue geese and brant. Through a repertory of the voices of the night and the sunlit forest wandered the ventriloquist in a marvelous imitation of nature.

Guthrie turned in surprise to Etienne. "He's a wonder'"

"Wait!" was the laconic reply.

Then, amid groans and eerie cries, shrieks, as of souls in torment, the whimper of children, sobs of women in anguish, men tortured, the voice of the shaman addressed the spirits he had conjured from the world of demons. His kinsmen, the Crees, were in great doubt and perplexity, and had begged him to call upon his familiar spirits, who saw into the future as one looks from a hill; to whom the devils seeking to destroy the Cree were as children—harmless. "The hunters," continued the shaman, "possessed much fur—"

Etienne's hand gripped Garth's arm, as he interpreted the speech of Saul. "Now he mek' de spirit tell dem to go to McDonal'."

—"Fur of much value which they have toiled for on the cold barrens where the wind always blows," the sepulchral voice went on. "It is the time to go to the traders for the New Year's feast. But the hearts of the hunters are troubled. At the schooner of the trader who waits at Seal cove, the Crees have been told evil spirits and devils wait to bewitch them. And the women have begged their men to take their fur across the ice to Elkwan."

With a puzzled look Etienne stared into Garth's eyes.

"W'at he do now? I don' understand," whispered the half-breed.

Garth waited, hardly breathing, through the silence which followed. Then, on the hushed night boomed a voice, hollow, sepulchral.

"Oh, Souci! Great Shaman of the Crees! It is well you call us to warn your people. There has come to the island a sorcerer from a far country—to destroy the hunters of Akimiski—"

"By gar!" And the fingers of Etienne shut like a bear trap on the arm of the man beside him. "We are de beeg fool!" he muttered, interpreting the reply of the spirit to the unsensing Garth.

"This conjurer," went on the voice from the tipi, as the listening Indians gasped with surprise and fear, "was bitten in the face by the devil, Matchi-Manitou, himself. He is the friend of demons and woe to the Crees who bring their fur to him, for their wives will see them no more."

"Ahuah! Ahuah!" From the women at the fire rose a low wail as they clung in panic to the cowed hunters.

"Go not to Seal cove but across the ice, for there the Crees may trade and feast in safety."

The voice died. Presently another answered in the same vein, and yet another, while the astonished and ashamed Etienne and Guthrie, who had so lightly accepted the treachery of old Saul as a proved fact, electrified by the swift turn of fortune, listened with admiration and gratitude. With the artistry of a master, Saul had played upon the known weaknesses of his people, relying on the mysteries of the medicine lodge rather than on his personal influence—winning the squaws by the judicious planting of rumors, as had Etienne, and stampeding the men with a single stroke at the medicine rites, for no Indian who heard that unearthly voice from the tipi would now dare to trade with McDonald.

"The old son-of-a-gun," chuckled Garth. "He went to that ship to throw them off the scent and keep them away from this end of the island. He gets a life job with the company for this night's work."

In an overawed, whispering group, the hunters and their squaws returned to their tipis, where deep into the night was discussed the marvel of the spirit voices, which the great magician of the Elkwan had invoked for the safety and guidance of his people.

In the privacy of their tent the two men, still dazed by the unhoped-for success of their mission to the island, gossiped by the fire.

"Forty-six silvers and eighteen black, besides a lot of cross and patch, you say?" Garth repeated, elated with the trade that would come that Christmas to Elkwan.

"Ah-hah! Wor' twenty t'ousand dollar—de beegest trade Elkwan evair mak'. We do good job w'en we breeng Saul Souci from de headwater, w'at?"

"You and Saul turned the trick, Etienne. I can't thank you enough."

In his second year in the trade Garth had made a telling business stroke. In the face of the higher prices of the free-trader—of what seemed inevitable failure, he had, with the help of the crafty old Cree, swung a huge trade to his company. They could hug their fire at Kapiskau and Attawapiskat, but he had carried the fight straight to the enemy, and had won. Going out to Shot, snug in his snow-hole, Garth poured his happiness into a hairy and comprehending ear, before he rolled into his blankets beside the staunch half-breed who had made it possible.

CHAPTER IX

"Queer we haven't heard from Joe yet," McDonald said to Skene, in the cabin of the Ghost, two days before Christmas.

"Time enough," answered the bearded mate. "He was to round up the hunters in the north, you know, and bring them down the shore ice."

"Well, we've made a good start. We've got twenty silvers now, with the three that came in this morning, and twelve blacks, not to count the cross and patch. There's fifty thousand dollars in this winter's work for us, John."

Skene looked hard at his chief. "What you goin' to do with your share of the fur we land in St. Johns?"

The deep blue eyes of the giant half closed as the heavy brows contracted. "Do with mine? What is there to do with it?"

"Goin' to head for the states and drink it up?"

McDonald laughed, without mirth. "Drink it up? No, I'm goin' to hunt up the family of a pal who 'went West' at Vimy Ridge. There's a wife and kiddies, out in Alberta. I'm goin' to share mine with 'em."

For a space Skene smoked in silence. Once or twice he glanced curiously at the man opposite, who sat with head in hands, staring at the floor.

"It'll be some surprise to my old girl with a nest-egg," he said at length. "She ain't had a too soft a life with me."

McDonald made no answer and Skene went on: "I'm goin' to buy a little place for her and the two girls—a cow or two, and a horse to get around with; then I'll have me a tidy schooner, and summers go cod-fishin' on the Labrador."

"That's sensible," vouchsafed the other. "You owe it to the woman."

"Yes, she's never whimpered. When I enlisted, she turned to like a soldier and carried on. I owe her a good home, now—and a little of my company."

McDonald's broken mouth widened in a smile. "Your company, you old scalawag! How many weeks in the year will she keep a restless old pirate like you on the farm?"

"You can laugh, Craig, but I'm for a home now, except that fishin' in the summer."

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Gem of Poetic Fancy Is "America's Making"

This interpretation of the United States, titled "America's Making," was written some years ago by Rabbi Abba Hillel Silver of the Temple, Cleveland. It has been widely copied and quoted.

"God built him a continent of glory and filled it with treasures untold;
"He studied it with sweet flowing fountains and traced it with long winding streams;
"He carpeted it with soft rolling prairies and columned it with thundering mountains;
"He graced it with deep-shadowed forests and filled them with song,
"Then he called unto a thousand peoples and summoned the bravest
among them,
"They came from the ends of the earth, each bearing a gift and a hope,
"The glow of adventure was in their eyes, and in their hearts the glory of hope,
"And out of the bounty of earth
and the labor of men;
"Out of the longing of hearts and the prayer of souls;
"Out of the memory of ages and the hopes of the world,
"God fashioned a nation in love, blessed it with purpose sublime, and called it America."

Mythology's Meaning

Mythology may be described as a collection of fables and traditions referring to the forces of nature, to national heroes and to the pagan gods. The nature-myths are primitive attempts to explain the processes of nature, and may be looked upon as the beginning of natural science. The heromyths are akin to sacred mythology.

Metric Measures

The myriameter, or 10,000 meters, is equivalent to 6.2137 miles. The kilometer, 1,000 meters, is 0.62137 miles, or about 3,280 feet and 10 inches. Other units above the meter are the hectometer, 100 meters, 328 feet 1 inch, and the dekameter, 10 meters, 393.7 inches. The meter is equivalent to 39.37 inches. Below it are the decimeter, 3.937 inches; the centimeter, 0.3937 inches, and the millimeter, 0.394 inches.

Golf Term Is Icelandic

Tee, in golf, is derived from an Icelandic word meaning to point out, or starting point.

Orchard Information

COVER BRAMBLES BEFORE WINTER

Small fruit growers should cover all their brambles, including the red, black and purple raspberries, blackberries, dewberries and loganberries, as soon as possible, in order to avoid early hard freezes. Brambles growing in especially protected places may not need covering, but this is not often the case.

Before covering, it is advisable to remove all old canes that bore fruit this year, where they were not removed at the end of the bearing season. Remove all inferior and weakened canes, leaving eight to fifteen canes per hill, and cut them back to three or four feet long. Cutting back may be delayed until after the canes are uncovered in the spring.

Cover the canes on days when there is no freezing temperature as they break easily if partially frozen. Bend the canes over and weight the tops down with some soil and then shovel enough dirt over them to completely cover them to a depth of three or four inches. They must be covered completely. If the canes tend to break on bending, remove a shovelful of dirt from the side of the canes toward which they are bent. Covering is facilitated by plowing two furrows on each side of the row before shoveling the earth onto the canes. This allows the formation of a well-rounded ridge with wide bases to prevent the earth falling off the ridge. Strawy manure can be used when it can be secured in sufficient quantities for complete covering.

One should be careful in bending blackberry canes, since they tend to break easily. Bend them at an angle of 45 degrees with the rows to facilitate covering, to give the canes more room, and to avoid the tendency for the rows to become ridged.

Small fruits must be covered completely and covered before freezing weather if winter injury and consequent crop reduction are to be avoided. —Richard V. Lott, Instructor in Horticulture, Colorado Agricultural College

Measuring P. D. B. Made Easy for Peach Grower

The inconvenience of weighing out exact quantities of paradichlorobenzene for peach tree borer treatment has created a considerable demand for a quick measuring gauge. Therefore, peach growers will be interested in the directions for such a gauge given by Frank H. Beach, extension horticulturist in Ohio.

Cut a piece of smooth paper 4 1-16 inches long and 2⅜ inches wide. Draw a line exactly through the middle and the long way. Mark it one-half ounce. Now draw a second line dividing one of these halves equally; name this line three-fourths ounce. Roll the paper into a cylinder, lines marking the ounces inside, and paste it into place. In doing this, overlap the end exactly seven-eighths of an inch. The cylinder will hold an ounce of P. D. B.

Place the cylinder on any hard surface and fill with P. D. B. to the line indicating the quantity you need. Pour the fine crystals of the chemical into a small wide-mouthed bottle and gauge the various amounts on it. A file may be used to cut a mark.

If you have a small bottle that will be convenient in measuring, you could have your local druggist mark the bottle instead of going to the trouble of making the little paper cylinder.

In using the chemical remember that a half ounce to three-fourths ounce is the quantity to use on trees three to five years of age. None on younger trees. Mature trees six years old and over may be treated with an ounce.

Horticulture Facts

Winter apples are not ready to pick until the seeds have started to turn a brown color.

* * *

A strawberry patch will not usually give more than two or three good harvests as a rule.

* * *

If the old berry canes have not been removed after fruiting, they should be removed now, and the berries given a good mulch of stable manure.

* * *

Concord is the best known of all grapes and is still the mainstay of most commercial plantings. It has many good qualities which commend it. Sheridan, a cross between Worden and Herbert, is recommended as a variety to follow Concord.

* * *

A great many growers feel it is inadvisable to grow strawberries between peach or apple trees.

* * *

The safest way to protect trees against gnawing by rabbits is to use wire screen or some other wrapper on the trees.

* * *

To test the firmness of apples as a guide to the proper picking of the fruit for storage and for shipment, a mechanical tester has been devised which measures the degree of softness in the ripening fruit.

IS A HEALTHIER STRONGER GIRL

Because She Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

The fertile valleys of Oregon help to supply the tables of America. This is possible through the magic of the humble tin can.

In one of the canning establishments, Julia Schmidt was employed. It was complicated work because she did sealing and other parts of the work. It was strenuous work and she was not a strong girl. Often she forced herself to work when she was hardly able to sit at her machine. At times she would have to stay at home for she was so weak she could hardly walk. For five years she was in this weakened condition.

She tried various medicines. At last, a friend of hers spoke of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and she gave it a trial.

"Everyone says I am a healthier and stronger girl," she writes. "I am recommending the Vegetable Compound to all my friends who tell me how they suffer and I am willing to answer letters from women asking about it." Julia Schmidt's address is 113 Willow St., Silverton, Oregon.

Girls who work in factories know just how Miss Schmidt felt. Perhaps they, too, will find better health by taking the Vegetable Compound.

Cabin Hospitality

Hospitality to strangers seems to decrease in inverse ratio as extra rooms are added to the domicile.—American Magazine.

When You Catch Cold Rub On Musterole

Musterole is easy to apply and works right away. It may prevent a cold from turning into "flu" or pneumonia. It does all the good work of grandmother's mustard plaster.

Musterole is a clean, white ointment, made of oil of mustard and other home simples. It is recommended by many doctors and nurses. Try Musterole for sore throat, cold on the chest, rheumatism, lumbago, pleurisy, stiff neck, bronchitis, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pains and aches of the back and joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet—colds of all sorts.

To Mothers: Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

Jars & Tubes

MUSTEROLE
WILL NOT BLISTER

Better than a mustard plaster

"A God-sent Blessing" is what one mother writes of Mrs. Winslow's Syrup. Thousands of other mothers have found this safe, pleasant, effective remedy a boon when baby's little stomach is upset. For constipation, flatulency, colic and diarrhoea, there is nothing like

MRS. WINSLOW'S SYRUP

The Infants' and Children's Regulator

It is especially good at teething time. Complete formula on every label. Guaranteed free from narcotics, opiates, alcohol and all harmful ingredients.

At all Druggists

Write for free booklet of letters from grateful mothers.

ANGLO-AMERICAN DRUG CO.
215-217 Fulton St. New York

DODD'S PILLS
FOR TWO DIURETIC STIMULANT
THE KIDNEYS
The Dodds Medicine Co.

DIURETIC STIMULANT TO THE KIDNEYS

Standard for Generations.

Mrs. Sarah E. Walker, Kregar, Pa., writes as follows:

"Two years ago I had the flu. Then my heart got bad, rheumatism set in and I could scarcely get upstairs. I had not much use of my limbs. I took fifteen boxes of Dodd's Pills and three boxes of Diamond Dinner Pills. They saved my life with the good Lord's help. I can now walk good and do my housework. I can go to bed now and rest good. I am now 82 years old. Dodd's Pills relieved me when suffering with Diabetes over 20 years ago, and I believe they will help any kind of kidney trouble."

At all druggists, 60c per box, or The Dodds Medicine Co., Inc., 700 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y.

For Barbed Wire Cuts
Try HANFORD'S
Balsam of Myrrh
All dealers are authorized to refund your money for the first bottle if not suited.

Callouses
Quick, safe, sure relief from painful callouses on the feet.
At all drug and shoe stores
Dr Scholl's Zino-pads
Put one on—the pain is gone

SALE!

On Swifts

Tankage

Friday & Saturday

At $73 Per Ton

EGG MASH ON HAND

Try our own brand of Egg Mash—we don't know of any better on the market. Get a sack and try it out.

NEW SHIPMENT OF FLOUR

A new shipment of Occident and Mother's Best Flour received last week. Buy your winter's needs now and save money.

North Iowa Grain Co.

FOR SALE

Duroc Jersey Boars

I have a number of choice Fall and Spring Boars for sale; sired by Grand Col., Lau's Hi Wonder, Fireworks and The King. These are all Cholera Immune.

I also have for sale a choice yearling dark red Shorthorn Bull. If you want any of the above buy them at once.

Emil W. Lau

Phone 61-F9 Klemme, Iowa.

Some Fall Suggestions

OYSTERS? The oyster season is on! We are now receiving FRESH OYSTERS every few days. They are dandies for stews or for frying. Try an oyster stew—our oysters are exta fine!

MINCE PIES—We have fine MINCE MEAT in bulk. You will say it makes the best pie you eve ate. A trial will convince you that our Mince Meat is great!

FOR YOUR BREAKFASTS—These cold, snappy mornings for breakfast you should start the day right with a liberal helping of Bacon! Bacon and Eggs! We have some very nice Breakfast Bacon—just the kind you like.

Always a full line of choice Hams, Sausage, Roasts, Steaks, Chops, etc.

We still have some choice canned goods of all kinds which we are closing out a discount of twenty per cent. It will pay you to lay in a supply at these prices.

Klemme Meat Market

Office:— Masonic Bldg. GARNER, IOWA.

Phones:— Office, 149-J. Res., 149-L.

Dr. E. H. Phillips

OSTEOPATHIC PHYSICIAN

Physiotherapy, including Osteopathic treatment, diathermy, surgical diathermy, radiant heat, high frequency, chlorine gas and auto-condensation.

News of Klemme and Vicinity

Dr. R. W. Specht, Dentist, Garner, Iowa. adv

FOR SALE—Pure bred Duroc Jersey Boar. W. H. Lemke. tcp

Ernest Schuldt was at Mason City Sunday to see Dr. Barbour.

Geo. ruetzmacher, of Garner, was n Klemme Friday.

D. D. Ross of Garner was a business caller in Klemme Monday.

Duroc Jersey Boars for sale.—Ed. Buentenbach. 2tp.

Mrs. Lloyd Lau was the telephone operator Friday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Nelson, of Garner, were Klemme visitors Wednesday evening.

Vernon Turgasen and Clarence Elder were home from Ames from Friday until Sunday.

Bring your old othing donations o the Legion Hall, Sat., Oct. 29th —Klemme Auxiliary.

Harvey Stille returned last week rom the Dakotas and Canada where he has been working.

NOTICE—No hunting or tresspassing allowed on my farm. Peter Trampel. 2tp

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Johnson and son from Mason City, spent Sunday at the Ernest Schuldt home.

Rosie Blumer is residing with Mrs. Charlie Kraus during the fall and winter.

Byrnes Misman was on the sick list several days the past week with n infection in his ear.

Miss Gertrude Ely came Thursday from Belmond for a few days visit at the Dr. Missman home.

Fred Henschen returned Tuesday night from North Dakota where he has been working in the grain fields.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gram were at Garner on business Monday afternoon.

The telephone switchboard was moved and cut in on the new lines Saturday night at 9:00 o'clock.

LOST—A Red Steer, wt. about 800 lbs. Finder notify Ed. Buentenbach. 1tp.

Mr. and Mrs. Saxe of Swaedale were visiting at the Sumner Trumbell home Sunday afternoon.

Mrs. Henry Barz entertained a number of ladies at a quilting bee Wednesday. A delicious dinner was served.

Paul Stille and family returned o Klemme Monday night from the Dakotas where Paul has been harvesting this fall.

FOR SALE—Extracted White Clover Honey $1.50 pr 10 lb. pail. Frank Miller, Phone 6-F45 Klemme, Garnr, Iowa. 4tp

Rev. and Mrs. Grosshuesch entertained for dinner Sunday Dr. Zinn, Miss Leonra Wheatman and Miss Stella Bock.

Mrs. Levi Neese and daughter, Doris, of Ventura, spent Friday at the Charles Ax home. Mr. Neese was here hunting pheasants.

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Gross and children, and Mr. and Mrs. Verner Gross, of Algona, were visiting with Klemme friends Saturday.

Miss Mildred Wheatman was ill with bronchitis Monday and Tuesday and unable to attend to her school work.

Mr. and Mrs. Sumner Trumbell entertained Miss Wilma Trumbell and Miss McGinis to a pheasant dinner Sunday.

Remember the Maine and the Spanish American War? See "The Rough Riders" Friday and Saturday at the Lyrich Theatre, Garner. 1tp

Elmer Johnson and Lloyd Swanson of Chariton, Iowa, visited at the Albert Johnson home last week during the pheasant season.

Mr. P J. Goetzinger, manager of the Rockford Creamery, made a business call at the Klemme Co-Operative Creamery Friday.

Gerald Koerner and Clarence Gram returned last Wednesday from Canada where they had been working in the harvest fields.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Gimer returned to their home at Abbott, Iowa, Sunday afternoon, after an extended visit at the home of their son, A. D. Gimer and family.

Al Emerson, of Forest City, was in Klemme Sunday for a visit with old friends. The harness shops at Forest City have consolidated, so Al is temporarily out of work.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Alexander, of Minneapolis, came Friday and remained until Sunday, visiting at the home of her folks, Mr. and Mrs. Hans Hanson.

Mr. and Mrs. Arley Blickendorfer entertained Dr. Snuggens, of Des Moines Friday and Saturday. The doctor enjoyed a couple of days of good pheasant hunting.

Mr. and Mrs. Raplh Buchanan, of Norway, Iowa, came Friday for a visit at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Nels Back. They returned home on Sunday.

Farmers and business men who are interested are invited to come to the high school gym every week Thursday night and play volley ball. Everybody invited.

Mrs. Cora Homan and children, Hazel and Woodrow, from Abbott, Iowa, arrived Friday afternoon for an over Sunday visit at the A. D. Gimer home.

The A. D. Gimer family accompanied by Grandpa and Grandma Gimer, Mrs. Cora Homan and children, had dinner Sunday at the C. E. Johnson home.

Danny Johnson returned home Thursday from Hall, Montana, where he has been during the summer months. Gerald Hill of Montana came to Klemme with him.

Lew Sampson, accompanied by his daughter,, Mrs. Levi Klotzbach, left Tuesday evening for Iowa City. Mr. Sampson will again enter the hospital for treatment.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Palmby and children from Vernon Center, Minn., came Saturday and visited until Sunday afternoon at the Henry Wille home.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Kraus, Mr. and Mrs. Karl Kraus and daughter, Lucile, Mr. and Mrs. Dave Schwichtenberg and family, Mrs. Emma Schwichtenberg and daughter, Berdice, Miss Lorene Tanner and Mr and Mrs Smith and family, the latter fro mRockwell, were all visitors at the W. F. Nuehring home at Rockwell, Sunday.

The LEE WAY Will Keep Your-

Hogs & Proulty Healthy

—A common sense method of raising Poultry and Swine for profit—A practical system of Preventing and Treating Disease.

We handle a complete line of Lee's Products for your Poultry and Hogs. Let us give you a free book telling you how to treat your Poultry and Hogs and how to prevent diseases among them. Every Poultry and Hog Raiser should have this free book.

LEE'S GERMOZONE

Put it in the drinking water and feed for prevention of Poultry Diseases and to keep the birds healthy. Likewise used for keeping your hogs in good condition.

LEE'S POULTRY WORMER

A sure method of ridding fowls of this common disease. Easily used.

LEE'S OIL WORMER for Swine

Will positively expel worms and quickly gets the pig back in condition. Lee's Hog Remedy and Conditioner for your hogs.

It Wil Pay You To Investigate The LEE Way!

E. F. Jacobs

The Name Westinghouse

on your Farm LIGHT & POWER Plant

KEEP in mind that in choosing your lighting plant the maker must not be overlooked. The plant we sell is made by Westinghouse—headquarters for radio, KDKA, KYW, WBZ, and KFKX—one of the greatest electrical organizations in the world—a concern employing 50,000 people.

Westinghouse knows electricity, knows how to build everything electrical—and offers you a lighting plant that is absolutely dependable, easy to operate and easy to own.

May We Tell You More?

PROUTY ELECTRIC SHOP

GARNER — IOWA

An Allotment To Our Customers

We have arranged to allot an amount of our 7% Preferred Shares to our customers and for the period of October 15th to October 31st inclusive, our employees will accept orders for this 7% Preferred Investment at—

$100 Per Share

and we will date the certificates as of October 1st, so that all the shares ordered during that time will draw the full dividend from October 1st.

THIS DIVIDEND WILL BE PAID ON JANUARY 1st.

Important improvements and additions including the large increase to be made in the Steam Power Plant at Iowa Falls, Iowa, and other additions to be made is why this allotment of the 7% Preferred Stock is offered through our employees to our customers on the special basis.

If an employee does not call on you, please see our Manager at our local office or write this Department addressed, Securities Department, 515 Merchants National Bank Building, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, and full particuars will b mailed to you.

Respectfully,

Central States Electric Company

IOWA FALLS H. F. Kellogg, Manager

IOWA

THE KLEMME TIMES

tieth Year—Number 11. KLEMME, IOWA, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 27, 1927. $2.00 Per Year In Advance.Outside of Iowa $2.50

DINGS AT SCHOOL THE PAST WEEK

IRST BASKET BALL GAME AT HAYFIELD, NOV. 18

ys Given Thorough Physical Examination By Dr. Missman

Missman gave our athletes a physical examination on Monday evening of this week. Preparatory to earnest training for basket ball it is necessary to discover weaknesses that might endanier the health of school boys during stiff pracitce.

Our first game with Hayfield is but three weeks away and our lads will find it necessary take the best of care of themselves and deny themselves late hours and refrain from habits that detract from their powers of endurance. They should be willing to comply with Coach Heidt's rules not only that they might win for their school but that strong physical constitutions may be built up for the stress and strain of duties following school life.

Teachers Will Go To Des Moines

Our Board in response to a request of the high school teachers have granted a two day holiday period next week in grades 7 to 12 inclusive in order that teachers of these grades may attend the State meeting for eachers in Des Moines, Nov. 3, 4 and 5. As corn will be ready o husk at this time many farmers can use to good advantage some of our students in harvesting the crop. The program does not appear to meet the needs of our grade teachers and for that reason grades 1 to 6 will not be dismissed on these days.

Education Ween Soon

The wek beginning Sunday, Nov. 6 has been set aside this year as Education Week. On Tuesday evening, Nov. 8 of that week our local P. T. A. will give their program We hope to make this program worth while to every parent and the week an opportunity to parents o visi our schools and observe the work we are trying to accomplish rere. We expect to have work of our students on exhibition and on any day of this week a welcome will be extended to parents and others interested in our work to spend some time in our class rooms.

Education week has been an annual affair in the U. S. since 1921 and programs for the week have been prepared by the National Education Association and American Legion.

Mr. Simons of our State Department called here last week end to check up on our work and equipment. He commented very favorably on some of the class room work he chanced to observe. In his report which will be sent us from Des Moines shortly we will be told what to do to make our schools function more serviceably.

KLEMME REFORMED CHURCH
Calvin Grosshuesch, Pastor

8:30 a. m. County Sunday school.
10:00 a. m. German service.
11.00 a. m. Sunday school.
7.30 p m English service.
8:00 p. m. Wednesday. Young Peoples Bible Class.
1:00 p. m. Tuesday and 9:00 a. m. Saturday, Confirmation Class.
8:00 p. m. Saturday, Junior choir.

Entertained Music Pupils

Mrs. P. M. Griesemer gave a party to her music pupils Saturday afternoon. The fore part of the afternoon was taken up in playing various musical games with favors, followed by other games, which were enjoyed by all. At about 5:30 o'clock they were invited to the dining room and each pupil remained standing during the singing of an appropriate song for the occasion, after which a delicious luncheon was served by Mrs. Griesemer and her mother, Mrs. J. Gruetzmacher. All report having enjoyed a fine time.

HANCOCK COUNTY REAL ESTATE TRANSFERS

A Weekly Review Of Sales And Trades In Property

Chester A. Geddes as owner of the south 80 acres of the W½ of the W ½ of 31-97-24, registers his farm under the name of "Pheasant Hollow."

Orville Kenyon to First National Bank, Garner. Q. C. D, date 10-12-27, $1 00 East 48 feet of lots 1 and 2, block 34 Garner

Chloe Thompson to Carrie Anderson. W D date 10-17-27, $1.00. Lots 7-8 block 8, Britt.

Articles of Incorporation of the First State Bank of Britt. Capital $25,000 00 Incorporaors, C. H McNider, E. A Cooper, James Kent, V. D. Koons and C W. Botsford.

Dennis M Conlan wife to Owen F. Conwell W D, date 10-4-27, $1.00 SW¼ 25-94-24

F R Kopischke to L R. Boomhower. W D, date 5-2-27, $1 00 E½ of SW¼ 28-97-23 and S½ of W 7 3-4 acres of lot 3 in S½ of SE ¼ 15-97-23.

Eva S. Taylor to V. D Koons. Q C. D., date 10-18-27, lot 11 block 1 Andersons add to Britt.

Diedrich Boyken wife to Fred Korte W. D., date 10-12-27, $1.00. Lot 13 bock 14 Woden

Melvin H. Johnson et al to Carrie Hall. W D, date 10-27- , $1 00. Lot 9 of Auditor's Sub-Div. adjoining Miller in NE¼ NE¼ 31-97-23

Frank W. Senneff, Referee to Mrs. H. Holck. Referees Deed, date 8-20-27, $1100.00. Lots 9-10, bock 5 Maple Hill Add. Britt.

Joseph Heginger to Louisa Heginger. W. D., date 3-8-26, $1.00 and love and affection. SEb 33-94-24.

Joseph Heginger to Louisa Heginger. W D., date 12-27-23, $1.00 and love and affection. W 5' of lot 5 and all lot 6 block 7 and lot 15 block 8, Goodell.

1927 CORN SEASON WAS NOT UNPRECEDENTED

Ten Other Summer Since 1890 Have Been Cooler

Memory of past weather conditions is one of the most unreliable phenomena of the human mind, says C D. Reed, director of the Weather and Crop Bureau of Iowa Memory is no match for carefully kept records.

The corn season (June, July, August and September) of 1927 is referred to in popuar conversation as unusually cool and extreme, though the average temperature of these four months was 68.6 degrees, and ten other summers since 1890 have been cooler As recently as 1924, the average of the same month was 67 0 degrees, and in 1915 the average was 66 0 degrees, the lowest of record.

Though there were some notable warm periods and cool periods in 1927, no extremely high or low readings were recorded. The last killing frost in spring for the State averaged April 24, about 8 days earlier than usual, and the first killing frost this fall is going to average about October 15, which s 10 days later than usual This makes the so-called growing season 173 days, or 18 days longer than usual. Complete data may change these figures slightly.

CHILD WELFARE BUREAU SEEKS HOMES FOR CHILDREN

The Child Welfare Bureau of the Board of Control of State Institutions is seeking homes for dependent Iowa Children. Iowa maintains an excellent institution for such Children, but no institution can fill the place of the home in a cild's life. These children are unfortunate in having their own home broken up by the death or separation of the parent, and now the State desires to find new homes for them where they will be assured of the chance for schooling and normal development Homes for boys from 5 years to 13 years, inclusive, are especially sought. Here is a chance to be of real service to a needy child and to the State. If interested, address Edwin H. Sands, Supt., Child Welfare Bureau, State House, Des Moines, Iowa.

ELECTRIC CO. TO BUILD BIG DAM

PRELIMINARY WORK STARTED ON BIG DAM PROJECT

Central States Company Will Build Large Plant Below Ft. Dodge

Surveyors are exploring for foundations for the projected water power development of the Des Moines River near Kalo, below Fort Dodge, according to recent reports The Central States Electric Company having headquarters at Cedar Rapids, Iowa, is said to be behind the new dam, and Mr J. L Leamy, an engineer of wide hydo-electric experience in Canada is in charge of the preliminary engineering work. Mr. Fred Heman of Fort Dodge, formerly employed by the U. S. Gypsum Company and familiar with the territory is working with Mr. Leamy, and with his assistance the work should progress rapidly. A contract has been made with the Sullivan Machinery Company for the test borings and the Fargo Engineering Company represented by Mr. R. G. England of Jackson, Michigan has been retained as Consulting Engineers.

The electric power generated by the new plant will be sold largely in wholesale quantities and possibly carried hundreds of miles. The Dam is expected to form a backwater for a distance of nine miles, creating a fine lake which will doubtless prove a considerable asset to the community.

The building of the new plant has been in prospect for some time as a part of the development plan of the Central States Electric Company, which less han two years ago found it advisable to build a twenty foot dam on the Iowa River at Iowa Falls and is again adding to its steam capacity power plant at that city, increasing he present capacity about four imes and the plan contemplates an ultimate generating capacity at Iowa Falls of 03,000 KW. This large development of power sources is demanded by the increasing growth of the Central States Company, which in addition to supplying its own retail customers, anticipates a growign demand from wholesale buyers.

WATCH HOGS IN CORN FIELDS; GUARD AGAINST FLU

Hogs May Contract "Flu" If They Sleep Out Of Doors

Watch hogs running in corn fields for outbreaks of "flu," warns Dr. K. W. Stouder, extension veterinarian, Iowa State College. To prevent such outbreaks, he suggests providing dry beds in open front sheds where the hogs may sleep at night.

If the hogs running in a cornfield are in the habit of sleeping out of doors at night, they are in real danger of getting flu should it suddenly turn cold. It may pay to round up the hogs and drive them into their sleeping quarters should a rain or snow and cold winds come.

Some farmers complain that altho they provide sheds for their hogs running in corn fields, that the hogs do not use the sheds. Some, however, have found that by putting the tankage self-feeders or waering receptacles near the sheds that the hogs use the sheds much more.

It is usually following a sudden cold spell or a storm that hogs get flu when running in corn fields, Dr. Stouder says. By providing dry beds in open sheds, he asserts that much of the flu can be prevented.

Kansas Corn Best In Maturity

A United States Department of Agriculture report on the condition of he corn crop in the states where corn is grown most extensively estimates 95 percent of the Kansas corn was out of danger of killing frosts by Oct. 15, with other states showing percentages out of danger on the same date as follows: Illinois 65 per cent, Indiana 67, Ohio 78, South Dakota 65, Missouri and Iowa 80, and Nebraska 88.

CELEBRATED 25TH WEDDING ANNI.

CHILDREN PLANNED SURPRISE PARTY ON PARENTS

About Fifty Friends And Neighbors Help With Celebration

Sunday was the twenty-fifth or Silver Wedding Anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley L nz, who live on their farm two miles north of Klemme.

A surprise on their parents had been planned by the Misses Ruth and Norma and Clarence, daughters aud son of Mr. and Mrs. Lenz and they had invited about fifty friends and neighbors to surprise their parents Sunday afternoon. The party was planned carefully and the secret was so well kept that Mr. and Mrs. Lenz suspected nothing out of the ordinary and were made victims of a most pleasant surprise when the guests arrived.

Before her marriage, Mrs. Lenz was Miss Tillie Greiman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Greiman. Mr. Lenz and Mis Greiman were married twenty-five years ago by the Rev. Gartmann, then pastor of the Ell Township Reformed Church. In planning the twenty-fifth anniversary surprise the children invited as many as possible who were present at the ceremony twenty-five years ago.

At the proper time delightful refreshments were served to the many guests, who before they departed, presented Mr. and Mrs. Lenz with a purse of silver coins.

Monday evening Mr. and Mrs. Lenz were again agreeably surprised by Mrs. Greiman's parents and her brothers and sisters and their families.

FEW ARRESTS MADE AGAINST PHEASANT HUNTERS

Klemme Man Contributed To Funds In Cerro Gordo County

There have been many wild rumors regarding hunters being arrested for shooting too many pheasants and one story which has been circulating is to the effect that one hunter from Des Moines was picked up by a game warden for having 17 hens in possession. However, the Times has been unable to secure the facts and we doubt if the story is true.

Earl Finn, Klemme, appeared before the justice in Thornton Monday, being hailed before him on the charge of tresspassing on the Globeli farm in Cerro Gordo. The justice let Mr. Finn off with the payment of the costs, which amounted to approximately $4.35.

A couple of other hunters are said to have stopped at a Garner restaurant for lunch and had their car full of pheasants, both cocks and hens. However, on investigation it was found they had a South Dakota license and had procured their game in that state.

HAROLD KOTHENBEUTEL HAS BIG BIRTHDAY PARTY

All Families From His School Were Present At Party

Harlod, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kothenbeutel was ten years old Sunday and in honor of the event his parents invited his school mates and their parents and families to have supper with him Sunday evening. Those prsent to help Harold celebrate his birthday were: Henry Barz and family; Max Barz; Albert Barz and family; Fred Barz and family; John Bock and family; Cornelius Wille and family; Mrs. Wenig; Ed. Howard and wife; Mrs. Lubbe Albers and family; John Newberger and family; Carl Pearson and family; Herman Thieman and family; Henry Thieman and family; George Thieman and family and Ben Mullin and family. All spent an enjoyable evening.

IOWA LEADS IN PRODUCTION OF CORN AGAIN THIS YEAR

Nebraska Comes Second And Illinois Third On List

Des Moines, Iowa, Oct. 27.—"As usual, Iowa is the leading corn state," commented M. G. Thornburg, Secretary of Agriculture, as he ran his eye over a report from other states just issued by the U. S. Department of Agriculture showing the outlook for corn on October 1. "Next in rank for the first time in history stands Nebraska while Illinois drops to third place for the first time in a generation.

"The total indicated corn production of the leading corn states, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Missouri, South Dakota, Nebraska and Kansas, is 1,554,000,000 bushels, or 59,000,000 bushels more than in 1926.

"This is quite surprising, considering all the talk that 1927 was an "off season." However, the October report shows that the total yield in the country will be 2,603,437,000 bushels, as compared to 2,646,853,000 bushels last year, or a decrease of 43,416,000 bushels."

In commenting on the market situation, C. D. Reed, Director of the Weather and Crop Bureau of the Department states:

"For several years, there has been considerable outlet for Iowa corn to the southwestward but this year, with a record crop in Kansas, an excellent crop in Oklahoma, and a crop in Texas so large as to put that state in 8th place as a corn state, he Iowa surplus will find less outlet in that direction.

"The markets have already sensed this situation and it is well for the farmers of Iowa to consider carefully the changed distribution of corn surplus and prepare to make the best possible adjustment in the marketing of their crop."

FALL FROSTS ARE NOT COMING ANY EARLIER

So Says The Iowa Department Of Agriculture

Des Moines, Iowa—Recent news items to the effect that more and more of the Iowa corn is frosted each year, averaging one-fourth the crop in the last five years, have raised the question as to whether frosts are coming earlier than formerly.

Studies just completed by the Weather and Crop Bureau of the Iowa Department of Agriculture show that in the last five years the average date of first killing frost or temperature of 32 degrees is October 5, which is just the same as the average of the 37 years of record. In fact, the tendency of the entire period is to grow later at the inappreciable rate of 52 minutes per year, or a total of a little more than a day in 37 years.

The first killing frost in this vicinity (Klemme) was last Friday morning, October 14th.

Keep The Rats Down

Some enterprising mathematician has calculated that every rat killed now actually eliminates 359,709,248 of their family three years hence. Every female rat has, on an average, 10 litters per year with each litter containing six rats.

The rat menance to health and wealth can be controlled by proper building of foundations under farm buildings, using concrete to obtain a rat proof wall or floor. Junk piles cleaned up eliminate another hiding place for the slinking rodent. Sheet steel grain bins and poultry houses are effectual protection against their depredations. Poison bait and gas will kill them in their burrows. Every rat killed saves dollars—kill 'em all.

"Whoo-o-o-ey Day" Nov. 18

Friday, Nov. 18, is the date chosen for the annua Iowa swine feeders' "Whoo-o-o-ey Day" at Ames.

More than 500 experimentally fed pigs have been on the "job" this summer and they will be responsible for the story that will be told swine men by John M. Evvard and his coworkers at Iowa State College.

A flivver in the garage is worth two in the ditch.

BRITT TO HAVE NEW BANK SOON

McNIDER WILL BE AT HEAD OF NEW INSTITUTION

Britt Plans Big Celebrtaion On The Opening Day Of New Bank

Britt News-Tribune.—The First State Bank will soon open its doors for business in Britt. The Articles of Incorporation are being published for the first time today. The dato of opening has not been announecd but it will probably be in the early days of November.

C. H. McNider, of Mason City, will be president of the new institution; Dr. E. A Couper, of Britt, vice-president; V. D. Koons, of Eldon, cashier; all three serving as directors with the addition of James Kent and C. W Botsford. With the exception of the cashier, Mr. Koons, all these parties are well known in the territory. Mr. Koons comes to Britt with several years of banking experience.

The Britt Commercial Club has planned and will carry out a barbeque and celebration on the date of opening. It is thought the date will be known by the time the News-Tribune comes to you again.

PATRIOTS ASKED TO HELP SAVE HISTORIC "NIAGARA"

Next to "Old Ironsides," the "Niagara" iso ne of the most famous ships in American history. But like the "Constitution," this vessel, from which the youthful Rhode Island naval captain sent his historic "We have met the enemy and they are ours" message, is in danger of destruction.

However, a group of public-spirited citizens in Ohio and Pennsylvania are planning to restore Perry's vessel and save it for future generations of Americans, and their project is one in which all partiotic Americans may well be interested. If you would know more about the thrilling history of this famous ship and the plans now under way to preserve it, be sure to read the illustrated feature article, "To Save Historic 'Niagara' " by Elmo Scott Watson in this issue of The Times.

WALTER LAU MANAGING LINE ELEVATOR IN MINNESOTA

The Times is in receipt of a letter from our former townsman and busiman, Walter F. Lau. Walt requests the Times sent to him regularly. The letter also carries some news of interest to Walt's many friends in this vicinity. He is the manager of a Minnesota line elevator at Wabasso, Minn. The company operates 87 elevators in Minnesota, and in South and North Dakota. We formerly reported Mr. Lau at Waubena, however, his address is Wabasso, Minn.

Iowa Clubsters Win At St. Joe

Iowa 4-H pig club members who showed at St. Joseph, Mo., recently, fared well, says Frank P. Reed, club agent at Iowa State College. With about one-tenth of the pigs shown, and competing with entries from Nebraska, Kansas and Missouri, the Iowa juniors walked off with nearly a fifth of the money offered.

Any business founded upon honesty and salted with advertising will succeed.

STATEMENT OF OWNERSHIP of The Klemme Times, published weekly at Klemme, Iowa, for October 1, 1927.

1. That the publisher, editor, managing editor and business manager is R. A. Jorgenson, Klemme, Iowa.

2. That the owner is R. A Jorgenson, Klemme, Iowa.

3. That the known bondholders, mortagees or other security holders are: None.

R. A. Jorgenson, Publisher.

Sworn to and subscribed beforo me this 1st day of October, 1927.

C. G. Waterman, Notary Public.

Improved Uniform International

Sunday School Lesson

(By REV P B. FITZWATER, D.D., Dean Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)
(©, 1927, by Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for October 30

AMOS DENOUNCES SIN

(World's Temperance Sunday.)

LESSON TEXT—Amos 2:4-12.

GOLDEN TEXT—Seek good and not evil, that ye may live, and so the Lord the God of hosts shall be with you as ye have spoken.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Punishment of Sin.

JUNIOR TOPIC—What God Thinks of Sin

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Why the Drink Traffic Is Prohibited.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Intemperance and Associated Evils.

Amos, a shepherd and tradesman (Amos 7:14, 15) was called to prophesy for God. He was neither in the prophetic line, nor trained in the prophetic schools.

I. The Sins of Judah (2:4, 5).

In the first part of the book Amos sets forth judgments upon the surrounding nations. The aim, doubtless, was to show that there is no escape from God's judgment. The nation or individual that sins shall surely be judged (Num. 32:23).

1. They despised the law of the Lord.

To despise means to spurn, to disregard. To despise God's law is a sin directly against God. There is no escape from judgment for such as do this. (Heb. 10:28, 29).

2. Failed to keep the Lord's commandments (v. 4).

Disobedience logically follows the despising of God's law. It not only robs of blessings in this life, but results in eternal destruction (II Thess. 1:7-10).

3. Lies caused them to err (v. 4).

Because they despised God's law they fell into lying errors. Doctrine and conduct are inseparable. Thinking wrong precedes doing wrong.

4. Judgment upon Egypt (v. 5).

This was literally fulfilled a century and a half later in the capture of Jerusalem by the Chaldeans.

II. The Sins of Israel (2:6-8.)

The message of the prophet now comes directly to the northern kingdom.

1. "Sold the righteous for silver" (v. 6).

The judge, for a bribe of silver, declared the innocent to be guilty.

2. "Sold the poor for a pair of shoes" (v. 6).

Likely this refers to the practice of selling into slavery the debtor who could not pay for a pair of shoes which had been sold to him on time.

3. "Pants" after the dust of the earth on heads of the poor (v. 30).

The word "pant" means to eagerly desire. So avaricious had these men become that they even grasped after the earth which the down-trodden poor cast upon their heads in mourning because of their misery.

4. Turned aside the way of the meek (v. 7).

These grasping rich men turned aside the meek; that is, those who would not stand up for their rights.

5. Licentiousness (v.).

So notorious were the immoralities practiced that they were even guilty of incestuous prostitution. This was not merely the case of falling into sensuous sin, but was indulged in with the definite purpose of insulting God, provoking His holy name.

6. Idolatry (v. 8).

They not only frequented the place of idolatrous worship, but lay down on the clothes taken from the poor, and drank wine bought with money extorted from the poor in unjust fines.

III. God's Goodness to Israel (vv. 9-12).

God's manifold blessings and His goodness are now presented in contrast with the base practices of the nation, in order to heighten the picture of their ingratitude.

1. Destroyed their enemies (v. 9).

The Ammorite stands for all powerful peoples whom God removed from Palestine to make room for Israel.

2. Delivered from cruel bondage (v 10).

God set them free from the cruel slavery of the Egyptians. Every redeemed one has been set free from a more cruel bondage than that of the Israelites at the hands of the Egyptians (John 8:34-36).

3. Led them for forty years in the wilderness (v. 10).

The wilderness wandering is a most wonderful story, showing the tender and faithful leading of God.

4. Raised up the prophets (v. 11).

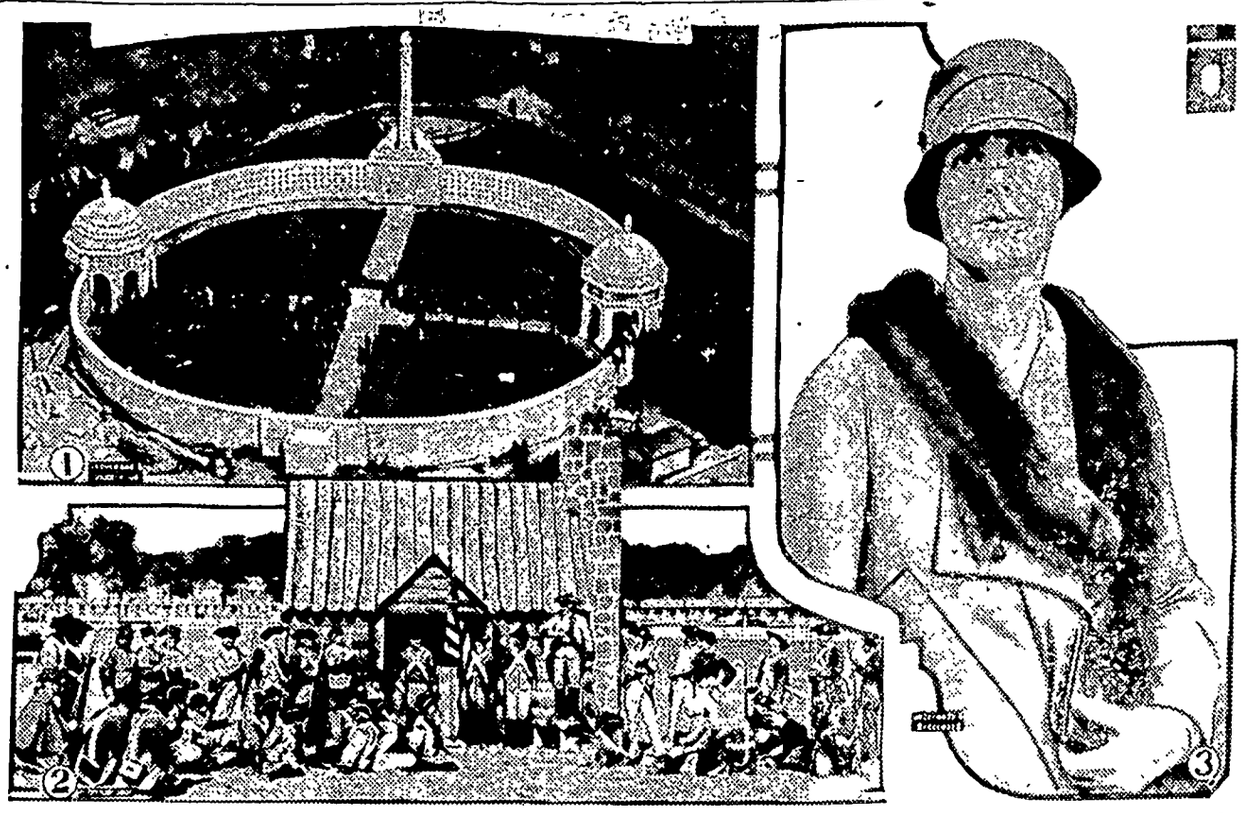
God not only bestowed great honor upon them in this, but favored them in raising up prophets from among their own offspring. The awful sin and guilt are here shown in that they not only turned the prophets from their lives of separation but gave them wine to drink.

Faith

Faith never refers to self, but always to the Word of God. There are many who want to feel that they are believers before they have believed the truth, and to feel that they are safe, before they trust in Jesus.

Our Faith

When the devil tries our faith it is that he may crush it or diminish it; but when God tries our faith it is to establish and increase it.—Marcus Rainsford.



1—Scene during dedication of memorial at Neuve Chapelle, France, to army of India that fought in World war. 2—"General Von Steuben" addressing the colonial forces at Valley Forge, during the sesquicentennial pageant at York, Pa. 3—Mrs. Jane Norman Smith of New York, new national chairman of the National Women's party.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

President Is Informed of Good Business Conditions in Nation.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD

ECONOMIC conditions in the United States are fairly good, business seems to be improving and the outlook for the future is encouraging. That is, in brief, a summary of the reports submitted to President Coolidge by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, Secretary of Labor Davis, Secretary of Agriculture Jardine and Secretary of Commerce Hoover. The President was highly pleased with these optimistic reports, and concluded the present situation is satisfactory.

In the reports on business conditions it was stated that the construction program of the country shows no material let-up. While there has been a falling off in receipts of the railroads, the President is of the opinion that any diminution in volume of railroad business due to development of motor transportation and the general use of automobiles reflects prosperity rather than otherwise. The amount of coal transportation was not quite so great this year as last, but the President attributes this to the fact that last year stocks of coal were accumulated in anticipation of a strike.

A considerable increase in the production of automobiles is in prospect, the President was advised. The railroads are to be in the market for a good deal of new equipment. The textile industry is in better shape than it was, and the steel industry is showing progress.

Exports are keeping up as well as last year, it was stated. Imports have not been quite so large in value as last year, but Secretary Hoover gave as a reason that this was due mainly to the fact that American consumers are getting British rubber at lower prices.

Secretary Davis, in commenting on the labor situation, said that at present there were only twenty-seven industrial strikes in progress as compared with fifty at this time last year.

Reports presented by Secretary Jardine caused the President to believe that agriculture is in a somewhat better condition than it has been, and that this will be reflected in a greater buying power. Crops with the exception of cotton were stated to be fully as good as last year.

Despite the encouraging business conditions, President Coolidge let it be known that in his opinion taxes cannot be reduced by as much as $350,000,000 or $400,000,000, as is urged by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. He has not indicated that the reduction could amount to even $300,000,000, and in Washington it was believed Secretary Mellon would advise congress to make a cut of between $200,000,000 and $250,000,000.

IT WAS understood in Washington that Henry C. Hall would soon resign as member of the Interstate Commerce commission, and that Amos A. Betts of Phoenix, Ariz., would be named to succeed him. Mr. Betts is a member of the Arizona corporation commission and is a Democrat.

CHICAGO'S night life is on the eve of being dried up completely as a result of the action of the Supreme court of the United States in declining to interfere with the issuance of injunctions closing several cabarets in that city because some of their patrons drank liquor on the premises and were served with the accompanying ice and soft drinks. And there is no apparent reason why cabarets and roadhouses everywhere else should not be in equal peril with those of the Chicago district. The prohibition enforcement agents were making preparations for great activity, and the proprietors of cafes and hotels were in a quandary, declaring they could not insult their patrons by searching them before serving them with soft drinks.

SENATOR NYE of North Dakota, as spokesman for the radical Republicans, has called on Frank O. Lowden to make plain his stand on various issues which are of especial interest to the West, and intimated that if he fails to satisfy the radicals in these matters, they will give their support to Senator Norris of Nebraska for the Presidential nomination.

"There are such problems as those involving freight rates, discriminations in freight rates, inland waterway improvements, permanent improvements growing out of any flood control program, the conduct of the federal reserve banking system, the administration of the federal farm land banks—all of these problems bearing directly upon the measure of prosperity which may accrue to the agricultural states," said Senator Nye. "Then, too, there are great national problems in which the West is vastly interested.

"Upon these problems the whole West knows well the position of one like Senator Norris, but it does not yet fully know the position of Governor Lowden, except that he is a believer in and an advocate of farm relief legislation such as is involved in the McNary-Haugen bill."

Senator Walsh of Montana, Democrat, prophesies a political "revolution" in the Middle West if the Republicans nominate a man whose views on farm relief are the same as those of President Coolidge.

Two other Democratic senators, Copeland of New York and Pomerene of Ohio, have indorsed the candidacy of Gov. Al Smith. With the backing and support of the South, said Copeland, Smith's nomination and election are assured. He declared that southern opposition was "not so strong as it has been represented" and looked hopefully for assistance from Dixie. He believes the Republicans will nominate Charles E. Hughes.

Pomerene's indorsement was in a magazine article in which he praised Smith's accomplishment in New York and defended his attitude toward prohibition. He declared, however, that there were so many able leaders that he did not want to seem unequivocally committed to Smith.

Mrs. Florence Atkins of Georgia, a leader among Democratic women, said the nomination of Smith would mean "party suicide," since the South would not support him if he were named.

TRIAL of Albert B. Fall and Harry F. Sinclair in Washington on charges of conspiracy to loot the navy's oil reserves got under way before a jury which included two young women. Owen J. Roberts and Atlee Pomerene are handling the case for the government, and the former made the opening statement for the prosecution. Edward C. Finney, first assistant secretary of the interior now and during Fall's regime, was the first important witness. He described the unusual secrecy which distinguished the Teapot Dome lease transaction from dozens of others in the department, and asserted that the transaction was taken entirely from the hands of himself and his associates and conducted personally by Fall. His testimony purported to show further that for days the lease itself lay locked in a drawer of Fall's desk while members of congress and other officials asked in vain for information as to whether such a lease had been executed or was in contemplation.

EIGHTY thousand soft coal miners of central Germany went out on strike last week, and many industries were threatened with disaster because of the lack of electrical power. The men had been earning an average of $8 a week and asked that this be increased to $8.64. The ministry of labor approved the demand but the mine owners would not grant it unless they were permitted to increase the price of coal accordingly. This the minister of economics vetoed. The central German chemical industry, the sugar industry and the paper mills began shutting down, and the beet sugar refiners told the government the entire industry would be ruined unless the strike were stopped. Food prices in Berlin and elsewhere began soaring, and the cabinet spent many hours trying to devise some means of righting the troubles.

Southern Colorado also had its coal strike; some 4,000 miners quitting work on the order of the Industrial Workers of the World. Members of the state industrial commission warned the strikers that picketing was against the law, and the sheriff at Walsenburg, center of the affair, told them every man caught picketing would be arrested. In spite of this the strikers, headed by I. W. W. leaders, began picketing the mines. These men were not permitted to carry arms but Paul Seidler, I. W. W. organizer, said: "We intend to conduct this strike peacefully, but if a striker is killed our men will be carrying cannon around with them."

Five more mining companies in Ohio have obtained from the Federal court in Columbus injunctions against the United Mine Workers to aid them in operating their mines on a nonunion basis.

EARL CARROLL, the theatrical man of "bath-tub party" fame, came out of the Atlanta prison last week on parole, after paying his fine and signing a pledge to abstain from intoxicating drinks, avoid bad company and behave himself generally. He had served a little more than four months of his year and a day sentence. Carroll's thoughtfulness for his former friends among the prisoners caused him to order many of his personal possessions left for their use, including an expensive radio set and a sum of money he had on deposit at the prison. The latter he ordered used to help his friends as Warden Snook saw fit.

Other objects of the federal parole board's clemency during the week were Gaston Means, notorious in many ways, and Colonel Forbes, once head of the veterans' bureau.

OVER in China the struggle for Peking goes merrily on. After retreating some distance, the Shansi troops slipped back past Chang's forces and for a time seriously threatened the city again But at last reports they were being pushed back, owing to their inability to reinforce their positions. The fighting was exceedingly fierce and bloody and the casualties heavy.

The Nationalist government succeeded in floating a domestic loan of $24,000,000 in Shanghai for the purpose of financing a new campaign against Marshal Chang, and announced plans for the drive northward in full co-operation with Gen. Feng Yu-hsiang and the tupan of Shansi province.

LITHUANIA has formally applied to the League of Nations for intervention in its quarrel with Poland, and the matter will be placed on the agenda for the December meeting of the council. The note from Kovno complains especially of the suppression of Lithuanian schools in Vilna by the Polish government, and it points out that a state of war exists between the two countries, the frontiers having been closed for years and all relations prohibited. France has been frankly supporting Poland, and England has been unfriendly to Lithuania because of its Russian connections; but it is believed Germany will warmly espouse Lithuania's cause in December.

COSTES and Le Brix, French aviators, successfully made the flight from Senegal to Port Natal, Brazil, being the first to fly across the southern Atlantic without a stop. They continued their journey down to Buenos Aires with several stops.

Mrs. Frances Grayson and her fellow aviators of the plane Dawn made one start from Old Orchard Maine, on their projected flight to Denmark, but were forced back because the plane was improperly loaded and nose-heavy. Then they waited day after day for favorable weather for another take-off.

LARGE numbers of Alabama klansmen have been indicted for the floggings that have disgraced that state, and the trials will begin in January. Attorney General McCall, who was elected on a klan ticket, has resigned from the society and denounces it scathingly.

What's the Answer?

Questions No. 21

1—When was Lincoln's Gettysburg address delivered?

2—What Indian invented an alphabet for his people and to what tribe did he belong?

3—What is psychology?

4—What horse won the historic Blue Grass stakes in 1926?

5—What American artist's portrait of his mother was purchased by a foreign government?

6—Which is the largest lake in the Great basin?

7—What is the most famous book on fishing?

8—How long is the giant python and on what does it feed?

9—What is the salary of the vice president of the United States?

10—How many Christians in North America?

11—Who wrote the song, "Hail Columbia," and when was it first sung?

12—What President was born in New Hampshire?

13—Who was Pythagoras?

14—Who won the Indianapolis speedway classic in 1926?

15—Who was the great female star of the latter Nineteenth and early Twentieth centuries, and what was her nationality and racial descent?

16—What city of the west coast is the farthest north?

17—How did Robert Burns earn a living?

18—What is Venus' Flytrap and where does it thrive?

19—Who is at present secretary of agriculture and from what state does he come?

20—When was the American Bible society organized?

Answers No. 20

1—It includes all young animals that are born in the water.

2—C. L. Dodgson.

3—The Connecticut.

4—James M'Neil Whistler.

5—Gertrude Ederle in 1926.

6—In 1770.

7—In 1769.

8—Prof. W. C. Roentgen.

9—Seventy-five thousand dollars.

10—No. Members of the church are "Roman Catholics." The word "catholic" means universal.

11—Molly Pitcher.

12—Gen. Anthony Wayne.

13—Guglielmo Marconi.

14—Walter Hagen.

15—Charlotte Cushman.

16—Constantinople.

17—Sir Richard Burton.

18—Its frequents the lagoons and swamps on many tropical coasts.

19—Secretary of state.

20—11,588,000.

Device to Measure Molten Metal's Heat

No thermometer could ever be expected to record the temperature of furnaces or of great masses of molten metal, although the development of science along these lines has made it very necessary to determine the degree of heat in furnaces and contained in masses of metal, such as huge steel billets and great cubes of iron.

The discovery that two different kinds of metal welded together produced a current of electricity was the means of inventing a means whereby there can be determined the quantity of heat, no matter how intense. The current is measured by the voltage and certain temperatures produce certain values in electrical strength, and that is the way the amount of heat is measured in degrees of heat, and this has been found to be accurate.

The principle is applied in a device known as the radiation pyrometer. It can stand at a considerable distance from the furnace or mass of molten metal that is being tested and it will record the internal heat conditions accurately. It is an aid to better steel and iron products, and as the world progresses it will be recorded as one of the great agencies of man to enable him to delve into the mysteries of nature's laboratories. — Washington Star.

The Poor Man's Sport

Track athletics, especially distance running, is the poor man's sport. He needs only his shoes, his cheap running suit and a place to stretch a leg Most distance men have no trainers, and must prepare themselves until they can make a reputation. They usually work hard all day, either in shops or at desks, and must perforce use their leisure for training.—Herbert Reed in the Outlook.

Cause Injury to Trees

Gasoline and oil have been known to injure and cause the death of trees, if such substances come in contact with the bark, particularly in the case of the roots, says a writer in the Washington Star. The oil apparently penetrates to the cambium region, which is a particularly sensitive and actively growing tissue, injuring it beyond repair. It is not necessary that there be toxic substances in the mixture other than the oil and gasoline themselves.

GIRLHOOD TO MOTHERHOOD

Iowa Woman Found Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Always Helpful

Vinton, Iowa.—"When I was seventeen years old I had to stay at home from school. I finally had to quit school, I was so weak, I suffered for about two years before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, then I picked up one of your books and read it. I began taking the medicine Now I am a housekeeper with six children, and I have taken it before each one was born. I cannot tell you all the good I have received from it When I am not as well as can be I take it. I have been doing this for over thirteen years and it always helps me I read all of your little books I can get and I tell everyone I know what the Vegetable Compound does for me."—Mrs. FRANK SELLERS, 510 7th Avenue, Vinton, Iowa.

Many girls in the fourth generation are learning through their own personal experiences the beneficial effects of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Mothers who took it when they were young are glad to recommend it to their daughters.

For over half a century, women have praised this reliable medicine.

Makes Life Sweet

For seven generations the National Household Remedy of Holland for kidney, liver and bowel troubles has helped make life brighter for suffering men and women. Begin taking them today and notice how quickly your troubles will vanish. At all druggists in 3 sizes.

GOLD MEDAL HAARLEM OIL CAPSULES

House Made in Two Days

Two two-story houses were made in two days at Leicester, England, recently. They were of concrete, and at the end of the second day were ready for doors, windows and roof. After the foundations were laid, standard molds of wood were erected, and into these the concrete was poured. The molds were then removed, revealing the house in its final shape.

Useless Tonic

Ailing Person—This tonic is no good.

"What's the matter with it?"

"All the directions it gives are for adults and I never had them."

Fashionability is a kind of elevated vulgarity.—George Darley

The BABY

Why do so many, many babies of today escape all the little fretful spells and infantile ailments that used to worry mothers through the day, and keep them up half the night?

If you don't know the answer, you haven't discovered pure, harmless Castoria. It is sweet to the taste, and sweet in the little stomach. And its gentle influence seems felt all through the tiny system. Not even a distasteful dose of castor oil does so much good.

Fletcher's Castoria is purely vegetable, so you may give it freely, at first sign of colic; or constipation; or diarrhea. Or those many times when you just don't know what is the matter. For real sickness, call the doctor, always. At other times, a few drops of Fletcher's Castoria.

The doctor often tells you to do just that; and always says Fletcher's. Other preparations may be just as pure, just as free from dangerous drugs, but why experiment? Besides, the book on care and feeding of babies that comes with Fletcher's Castoria is worth its weight in gold!

Children Cry for Fletcher's CASTORIA

For Pipe Sores, Fistula, Poll Evil
Hanford's Balsam of Myrrh
Money back for first bottle if not suited. All dealers

To Save Historic Niagara

PERRY'S BATTLE FLAG Harris & Ewing

THE TURNING POINT OF THE BATTLE Underwood & Underwood

By ELMO SCOTT WATSON

THE Niagara, a ship almost as famous as "Old Ironsides" in the annals of the American navy, is to be saved from the destruction which has been threatening her in late years, if the ambition of a group of patriotic citizens of Ohio and Pennsylvania is realized. For this famous brig, which was Commodore Oliver Hazard Perry's flagship at the Battle of Lake Erie in the War of 1812, has fallen on evil days and is slowly rotting away at the Municipal pier at Erie, Pa. However, at a meeting held in Cleveland, recently, through the initiative of Frank Wilford, an Elyria (Ohio) attorney, the Perry-Niagara Memorial association was organized with the sole purpose of restoring the Niagara before it is too late.

The charter members of the association who have joined to save the old brig include:

CLEVELAND—Congressman Theodore E. Burton, Supt R G. Jones, E. H. Baker, president of The Plain Dealer Publishing company, Congressman Charles A. Mooney; J. R. Nutt, president of the Union Trust company; Rt. Rev. Joseph Schrembs, bishop of the Catholic diocese of Cleveland

ERIE, PA.—W. D. Kinney, superintendent of parks and public property; Congressman Milton W. Shreve A J. White, managing editor of the Dispatch-Herald; Rev. Harry Burton Boyd; Attorney A. E Sisson, president of the Perry Victory Memorial commission.

LORAIN, OHIO.—Common Pleas Judge W. B. Thompson.

PUT-IN-BAY, OHIO.—Mayor T. B. Alexander, John D. Day, hotel owner; Webster F. Huntington, secretary of the Perry Victory Memorial commission

SANDUSKY, OHIO.—Congressman James T. Begg Sidney Frohman, president of the Hinde & Dauch Paper company.

TOLEDO, OHIO.—George E. Hardy, secretary of the Toledo port commission; Carl Vitz, public librarian

BUFFALO.—W. J. Conners, publisher of the Buffalo Courier and Express.

ELYRIA, OHIO.—Attorney Frank Wilford.

AT LARGE.—United States Senator Frank B. Willis

At the Cleveland meeting of the charter members a committee composed of Mr. Wilford as chairman, Fred Charles of the Cleveland Plain Dealer and W. D. Kinney, superintendent of parks and public property of Erie, Pa., was appointed to carry on the plans for the restoration.

Now Lies in the Mud

The brig was built in Erie and returned there after the battle. Then it sank in Misery bay, but was raised and rebuilt by the state of Pennsylvania in the year 1913 for the Perry centennial and made a triumphant tour of the Great Lakes. It was then given to the city of Erie by the state and since that time has been maintained as a free museum, visited every year by thousands of patriotic pilgrims. Lack of finances, however, have prevented the city from keeping it in seaworthy condition and it now lies on the mud in the harbor and is leaking badly.

According to Mr. Wilford, an attempt will be made to raise a fund of $25,000 by popular subscription to restore the historic one hundred fourteen-year-old brig, with something left over for an endowment fund. Title to the ship will remain with the city of Erie, but the association plans to borrow the vessel from the city for an annual patriotic cruise among the Lake Erie cities each summer, where it can be visited by thousands as an object lesson in history and patriotism. Since the victory which Perry won in this ship was such an important one in our national history, the association believes that patriotic Americans everywhere will be glad to share in the responsibility of saving it.

Not only was the Battle of Lake Erie, in which the old Niagara bore such a proud part, an important one because of the results of Perry's victory, but it was also one of the most romantic incidents in our history. The youth of the commander, the apparent hopelessness of his task, the desperate nature of the fighting, the thrilling incident of his transfer from the shattered Lawrence to the Niagara which proved to be the turning point in the battle, and his laconic message to General Harrison, announcing his victory, all combine to make it so.

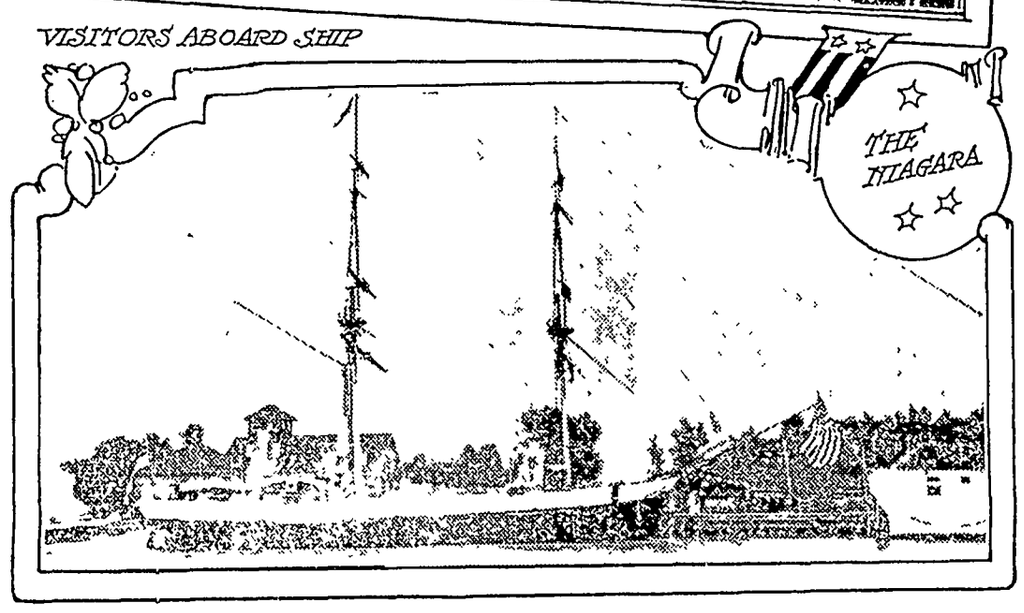
Control of Lake Erie Vital

Here is the story of that battle with some details which the school histories do not give:

When General Hull surrendered at Detroit in July, 1812, it at once became apparent that control of Lake Erie was going to be a vital factor in the war between Great Britain and the United States. Immediately both Americans and British began construction of war vessels and there soon developed a thrilling race with time. There was feverish activity in the British shipyards at Malden, opposite Detroit, and far to the east in the harbor of the little town of Erie there were even more anxious moments. For upon Oliver Hazard Perry, a native of Rhode Island, who had reached the rank of commander although not yet twenty-eight years old, rested the responsibility for building and manning a fleet which could successfully cope with the naval power that Great Britain was preparing to place upon the lake.

When he came to Erie, only the materials for his ships were there and those materials were the unhewn timber of the forest. Shipbuilders, sailors, naval stores, guns and ammunition had to be brought thither from distant points over roads which were little better than mere trails. Letter after letter he wrote to his superiors in the East, begging for more men, more supplies, more money, more of everything which he would need if he were to cope successfully with a powerful enemy. A lesser man than Perry would have despaired, but he refused to be daunted by his handicaps. And so after months of labor, the last of his ships were launched at the mouth of Cascade creek and on July 10, 1813, he found himself in command of the following: the brig Lawrence, his flagship, 20 guns; the brig Niagara, 20 guns; the brig Caledonia, three guns; the schooner Ariel, four guns; the schooner Scorpion, two guns and two swivels; the sloop Trippe, one gun; the schooner Tigress, one gun; the schooner Porcupine, one gun, and the schooner Somers, one gun.

VISITORS ABOARD SHIP



Irked by Shortage of Men

He had his fleet now but not enough sailors to man them! "Think of my station," he wrote in one letter, "the enemy in sight, the vessels under my command more than sufficient and ready to make sail, and yet obliged to bite my fingers with vexation for want of men." But after many delays the arrival early in August of Capt. Jesse Duncan Elliott, second in command, with 100 men enabled Perry to venture out into the lake. He reached Sandusky August 17 and was met there by General Harrison who came aboard the Lawrence to confer with Perry on the fall campaign. Then he sailed out into the lake to look for the enemy.

On the morning of September 10, 1813, the lookout on the Lawrence sang out "Sail ho!" and in the distance off Put-in-Bay the Americans saw the long-awaited British fleet advancing in faultless battle array. Commanded by Robert H. Barclay, who had fought with Nelson at Trafalgar and lost an arm in that historic engagement, the enemy consisted of the ship Detroit, 19 guns, one pivot and two howitzers; the ship Queen Charlotte, 17 guns and one howitzer; the brig Lady Provost, 13 guns and one howitzer; the brig Hunter, 10 guns; the sloop Little Belt, three guns, and the schooner Chippewa, one gun and two swivels.

Strength of Fleets Compared

Of the relative strength of the two fleets, Bancroft, the historian, says:

In ships, the British had the superiority, their vessels being stronger and their forces being more concentrated; the American gunboats at the right of the American line, separated from each other by at least a half cable's length, were not near enough for good service. In the number of guns the British had 63, the Americans, 54. In action at a distance, the British, who had 35 long range guns to 15, had greatly the advantage; in close action the weight of metal would favor the Americans. The British commander had 150 men from the royal navy, 80 Canadian sailors, and 240 soldiers, mostly regulars, and some Indians, making, with their officers, a little more than 500 men, of whom at least 450 were efficient. The American crews, of which about one-fourth were from Rhode Island, one-fourth regular seamen, American and cosmopolitan, about one-fourth raw volunteers from Pennsylvania, Ohio, but chiefly Kentucky, and about one-fourth blacks, numbered on the muster roll 490, but of these, 116 were sick, nearly all of whom were too weak to come on deck, so that the efficient force of the squadron was a little less than 400.

As the American fleet advanced to attack, led by the Lawrence, the Detroit opened fire. Its first shot fell short, but the second went crashing through the Lawrence and before the other American vessels could come to his support, the long guns of the enemy were centered with deadly effect upon Perry's flagship. It was struck many times before he could get close enough to open fire effectively and even then, with the Niagara and other ships hanging back, his ship seemed doomed to destruction as the combined British fire raked her.

British Strike Colors

For nearly two hours the battle raged furiously until the Lawrence lay on the waters a dismantled wreck, her rigging shot away, her spars battered into splinters, all of her guns but one dismounted and her decks, slippery with blood, strewn with the dead and dying. The masts carrying the Stars and Stripes and the blue flag, bearing the large white letters "Don't Give Up the Ship!" the dying words of Capt. James Lawrence, for whom the flagship was named, were shot down, but Perry's sailors raised them again on spars for flagstaffs. Finally Perry saw that his cause was hopeless if he remained on the Lawrence. With the aid of a few men who were not yet disabled he loaded the remaining gun, dragged it forward and fired a last shot at the British. Then, telling those left on board to keep the Stars and Stripes floating to the last, he gave orders for a boat to be lowered to carry him to the Niagara in which he proposed to carry on the fight.

Descending into this boat and carrying with him the blue flag, he was rowed amid a storm of bullets and grape-shot to the approaching Niagara where he raised his banner and bore down swiftly upon the enemy. In the meantime the flag on the Lawrence had been shot away for the last time and, seeing it fall, the British raised a cheer. But just then the Niagara, supported by the other vessels, closed in on the British ships and their guns raked the Detroit, the Queen Charlotte, the Lady Provost and the Little Belt. Within a short time, the British ships struck their colors. The battle was over and defeat had been changed to victory.

Perry's Laconic Message

On the decks of the Lawrence the survivors of the crew raised the Stars and Stripes again and in the cabin of the Niagara Commander Perry sat down to write a letter to General Harrison. And this was the message which Midshipman Hugh Nelson Page of the Ariel, who had been selected to bear it, carried to the commander of the American military forces:

"We have met the enemy and they are ours. Two Ships, two Brigs one Schooner & one Sloop.

Yours, with great respect and esteem

O H Perry."

Back in the little town of Sandusky the inhabitants listened to the roar of battle that came across the waters with anxious fear and wonder. If Perry won, it meant peace and security for them. If the British won it meant a British invasion and the onslaught of their savage allies led by Tecumseh against the towns of Ohio. So there was rejoicing when the arrival of Midshipman Page brought them the news of a glorious victory. One by one the British ports on Lake Erie fell into the hands of the Americans and "hostile arms no longer vexed Erie's broad expanse and forest-fringed borders."

Pretty Things that are Made at Home

IT SEEMS that everything that can be done is being done to add another charm to the felt hat. Now comes pyrography as the newest form of decoration.

Some of us will recall when pyrography was a popular pastime for women. To burn everything in sight became a fad. Few there were who did not present or receive Christmas gifts of burnt wood or burnt leather.

In those days pyrography was done with a platinum needle-point which had a bothersome paraphernalia of tubes and rubber bulbs, and the point had to be heated by a little alcohol flame.

Well, the old-time apparatus has been done away with, for science has invented the electrically worked pyrography needle, or rather sets of needles, for each set is provided with three different points—fine, medium and stub—so that any desired effect may be produced

But to tell about the pyrographed hat: Under the magic touch of the pyrograph needle the humblest felt hat is transformed into a mode of distinction, and one needn't be an artist to accomplish results. If you cannot sketch your own design on the hat, buy a stamped pattern and transfer it in the usual way.

The little beige felt to the right in the picture has its entire crown covered with a burnt design of scalloped lines and flowers, the latter filled in with handpainting in realistic colorings.

An interesting large flower is burnt into one side of the other hat, its cutout petals giving a pleasing and becoming variation to the brim edge.

Another fashionable idea that can be carried out with the pyrography needle is to scorch spots and stripes and blotches on the felt hat to simulate fur markings, such as leopard, tiger, zebra and calfskin, also reptilian effects, for, as everybody knows, these are very popular in the mode.

Here's another idea. Try outlining a design on a bit of velvet. It takes practice to produce good results, but if properly worked the pyrography needle will turn velvet into brocade.

If the present trend to tweed persists it is likely that this generation of fashionable women will have written itself into the pages of history as having lived during "the tweed age." In many instances of modern sportswear, it is a case of tweed from head to foot.

The tweed felt hat, the tweed scarf to match the tweed skirt, the tweed coat, suit or dress; the sweater knitted to look like tweed; shoes in leather that repeats a tweed patterning and even silk and velvet fabrics printed in tweed effects—all this of tweed has entered into the style picture.

Among those who are exploiting the tweed fad, is pretty Lois Lorraine, who, as every screen fan knows, is carving a successful career for herself in movieland Miss Lorraine poses for this illustration in her swagger tweed coat, wearing a pair of brown and tan checked oxfords of tweed which reveal a smaller pattern than that which figures in the coat.

Whether one is the happy possessor of tweed shoes to match the tweed coat or not, one thing is certain, tweed coats "every day in every way" are growing handsomer and handsomer—and that without the aid of fur, too! Not that fur is taboo for trimming, for many of the very elegant tweed coats are fur trimmed. However, the tweed coat sans fur is about the smartest item registering on fashion's sportswear program.

For these coats without fur, the rougher the surface of the tweed, the better. Scarf collars are employed, and what "a dash and a go" they do give to the tweed costume. Imagine an ensemble of red and tan tweed with a rough surface. The coat is a trifle shorter than the skirt according to the late style edict; the blouse is a bright red crepe. There are tremendous pockets, a brass-buckled belt and a scarf collar lined with the red. Tres chic, n'est ce pas?

Now the Pyrography Needle.

Tweed From Head to Foot.

JULIA BOTTOMLEY.

(©, 1927, Western Newspaper Union.)

Klemme Local Items

"LAYMORE—COST LESS" 4tc

Miss Eunice Braund went to Waterloo Saturday evening for a visit.

Mart Bachman was a caller at Garner Monday morning.

Perry Tibbets and family visited at Mason City Sunday.

Duroc Jersey Boars for sale.—Ed. Huentenbach. 2tp.

Mr and Mrs P M Wilson drove to Perry, Iowa, Sunday, for a visit with her father

Mrs Genola Hanson of Garner, spent the week end visiting with Mrs Meta Lemke

Mr and Mrs Wm Kirkwood entertained a number of friends at a card party Monday evening.

Mr and Mrs R W. Elder and daughter, Reva, drove to Ames Sunday for a visit with Clarence

Mr and Mrs J Smith of McPherson, Kansas, visited with Mr. and Mrs Nels Back this week.

Mrs Henry F Meinderts of Belmond was visiting at the T. Blank home Wednesday.

Bring your old clothing donations to the Legion Hall, Sat, Oct. 29th. Klemme Auxiliary.

C G Waterman and family and P A Jorgenson and family were Mason City visitors Saturday evening

Mr and Mrs Henry Wille entertained Fred Bell and family and Carl Wille and family for dinner last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. William Bredlow of Garner were visiting at the home of Mr.and Mrs. Henry Griewe Monday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Griewe and Arthur Wellemeyer and family visited at the home of Rev. Ortmeyer Sunday for dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Wellik, Jr., and Mr and Mrs. Frank Kopacek, of Duncan, visited at the Arthur Kudje home Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Haupt and their daughter and husband from Rowan were visiting at the home of Mrs. Fred Haupt Sunday.

Herman Coobs Jr. and a friend of McGregor were here Saturday visiting at the Ben Coobs and P. Grange homes, and also to get in on the excellent hunting.

Auctioneer P A. Reemstma was at Thornton and Meservey on business yesterday. Ben has already a number of sales signed up in various parts of the county.

C. G. Waterman and family and Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Keraus drove to Fertile Sunday. This is one of the scenic drives of North Iowa and is very beautiful at this time of the year.

Clarence Kluckhohn and family, Martin Jensen and family and Mr and Mrs. Henry Lewis enjoyed a picnic dinner at East Park Sunday and then all returned to Klemme and had supper at the Kluckhohn home

Vernon Turgasen, Fred Arnold and Kermit Koerner, who are attending college at Ames, all hiked to Klemme for a week end visit at home. The boys were lucky enough to catch auto rides most of the way

A baby boy, weight 8 pounds, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Philip Bock Wednesday afternoon. The little fellow arrived just in time to get in on the supper. Phil says the boy is a very fine specimen.

Mr. C. C Schaefer and daughters, Hilda and Doris, of Marble Rock, drove over last Thursday for a visit with Klemme relatives and friends Mr. Schaefer returned home the same evening, but the girls remained until Sunday.

Mr. Lewis, Klemme teacher, drove to Des Moines Friday to get his sister who teaches there, for a visit in Klemme. Saturday, accompanied by Miss Root, they drove to Estherville for a visit with Mr. Lewis' other sister.

F. W. Dingman, former Klemme barber, who sold his shop to George Carson, has purchased a shop at Ft. Dodge and moved there last week. Mr. Dingman and family have been living at Britt since leaving Klemme.

Charles Gibbs and Orville Stokesbary drove to Sioux City Friday for the Morningside home coming game with Des Moines U. The visitors won 6-2 The boys returned to Klemme Saturday evening, reporting that Klemme students at Morningside are getting along well.

For stationery bargains try The Times Print Shop. High quality at lower prices.

Al Emerson, of Forest City, came Monday for a couple of days visit in Klemme. Al has bought equipment and will operate a shoe and harness repair shop at Forest City Al is an excellent repair man and we predict his venture will be quite successful.

Boxed Stationery, latest tints at 50c, 60c, 75c, $1.00 and $1.25. At The Times Print Shop. 1tc

Dr. and Mrs. W. F Missman and son Byrnes drove to Mason City last Thursday where Dr Carlson performed an operation on Byrnes' ear Byrnes missed school and was confined to his home a few days but was able to go to school again Tuesday morning.

School Teachers—We carry a complete line of Construction Paper in all colors, both large and small sheets. Times Print Shop. 1tc

R. A. Jorgenson and family spent Sunday at Garner at the J. Jorgenson home. Others entertained there for dinner were Sam Rasmussen and family and Leonard Nelson and family of Forest City, and Mr. and Mrs Jacobson and children of Storm Lake.

.. $1 00 BUYS 25 XMAS CARDS. all different, all beautiful, and we give FREE 1 pkg. Xmas Seals and 1 pkg. Xmas Tags. Times Print Shop. 1tc

Mr. and Mrs Henry Griffen entertained a lot of company Sunday Those who spent the day at the Griffen home were: Mr. and Mrs. Wm Gast, of Garner, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Patet and Kenneth, Mr. and Mrs Walter Bredlow and family, Herman Lemke, two Schlawin girls, two Lemke girls and Leonard Sampson's tw oboys A good time was enjoyed by all

Order Your Xmas Cards Today! We now have them on display and are taking orders Times Print Shop. 1tc

SHERIFF'S SALE

Metropolitan Life Insurance Company

vs.

Joseph E Johnson, Anna S. Johnson, Henry Schroeder, Dorethea Schroeder, A. E. Katter Trustee, Iowa Loan & Trust Company. L. A Andrew Superintendent of Banking and Receiver of State Savings Bank, Klemme, Iowa, Arthur C. Johnson, Northern Lumber Company, Sadie A Bloom, Garnavillo Savings Bank

Notice is hereby given, That by virtue of a Special execution issued out of the office of the clerk of the clerk of the District Court, in Harcock County on a judgment rendered October 4th 1927, Sept. Temr of said Court, A D. 1927, for the sum of Forty Three Thousand Nine Hundred Seventeen & 74-100 Dollars debt, and Five Hundred Nine & 18-100 Dollars costs, in favor of Metropolitan Life Insurance Company and against Joseph E. Johnson, and Anna S. Johnson and to the Sheriff of Hancock County directed, I have levied upon the following described property, to-wit:

South Half (S½), Section Thirty-Four (34), Township Ninety-Five (95), North Range Twenty-Three (23), West of the 5th P. M Hancock County, Iowa.

Now, Therefore, Public Notice is hereby given that I shall, on the 5th day of November 1927, at 10:10 o'clock A M, at the front door of the Court House, in Garner, in Hancock County, offer and sell at public outcry, to the highest bidder for cash, all the right, title, and interest that the above named Defendants had on the 6th day of October A. D 1927, or now have in and to the above described property, or so much thereof as is necessary to satisfy said execution together with costs and all accruing costs, unless the same shall be sooner satisfied.

Dated at the Sheriff's office in Garner, this 6th day of October, A. D. 1927.

E. P. HANSON,
Sheriff of Hancock County, Iowa.
(Publish Oct. 27, Nov. 3, 1927)

13 Corn Borers Per 100 Stalks

A recent survey of 743 townships in the corn borer infested regions of Ohio, Michigan and Pennsylvania revealed 13 borers per 100 stalks this year as compared with 8 last year and 2 in 1925. Altho the borer increased 50 percent this year, the clean-up campaign was considered a success by the United States Department of Agriculture,, for the increase in 1926 over 1925 was 400 percent.

Much Butter, Meat And Lard

More butter, meat and lard were in cold storage on Oct. 1 this year than a year ago on the asme date, according to the U. S Department of Agriculture. However, storage holdings of apples, poultry, eggs and cheese were smaller than they were last year.

RHEUMATISM

While in France with the Amreican Army I obtained a noted French prescription for the treatment of Rhuematism and Neuritis. I have given this to thousands with wonderful results. The prescription cost me nothing. I ask nothing for it. I will mail it if you will send me your address. A postal will bring it. Write today.

PAUL CASE, Dept. W92, Brockton, Mass.

NOTICE OF PROBATE OF WILL

STATE OF IOWA,
Hancock Count, ss.

TO ALL WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

YOU ARE HEREBY NOTIFIED, That an instrument of writing purporting to be the last Will and Testament of Fred Haupt deceased, dated July 6th, 1920, having been this day filed, opened and read, Monday the 21st day of November, 1927 is fixed for hearing proof of same at the Court House in Garner, Iowa, before the District Court of said County or the Clerk of said Court; and at 10 00 o'clock A M. of the day above mentioned, all persons interested are hereby notified and required to appear, and show cause, if any they have, why said instrument should not be probated and allowed as and for the last Will and Testament of said deceased.

Dated at Garner, Iowa, October 17th, 1927

CHRIS J JOHANSEN,
Clerk of District Court.
(Pub Oct 22-29, Nov. 3, 1927.)

Choicest

FOODS

Folks, there couldn't be any eating place, no matter how expensive or how flossy, give you a better selection of high grade foods than we do.

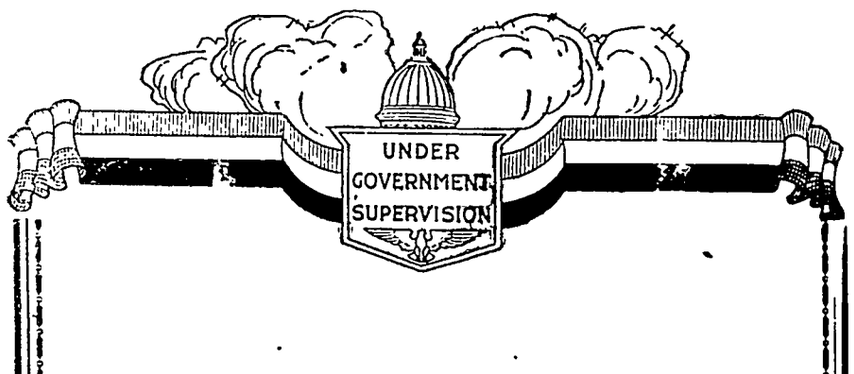
And Oh! How we do cook 'em!

Drop in for dinner or a lunch tomorrow.

DELICIOUS—
Try our ice cream, a number of flavors, ice cold pop, and malt.

A full line of Cigars and Tobacco, at—

Busch Cafe



The Dollar Saved

A dollar saved goes into the bank and so getsso immediately back into circulation. Everybody gets the use of it just as though it had been spent but that dollar sill belongs to and works for the one who saved it. That dollar saved benefits both the community and the saver.

First National Bank,
KLEMME, IOWA.

One Day Battery Charging Service

Get your Battery in before 9:00 A. M. and it is ready by 5:00 or 6:00 P. M. the same day with a better, longer lived charge than you ever had before.

NO LONG EXPENSIVE WAITS OR RENTALS

This improved charging method lengthens battery life and cannot possibly harm the battery.

—A Well Charged Battery Gives Your Car MORE POWER—BRIGHTER LIGHTS—QUICK START Try our One Day Battery Service just once and you'll always have your battery charged by this improved method.

Pritchard Auto Co.

Phone 77 Klemme, Iowa

Winter Supplies

When you are planning your Wearing Apparel for Winter be sure to inspec our stock of warm clothing for the cold, snappy weather.

You will find just what you need in Sweaters, Caps, Socks, Gloves, Mittens and other items to keep you warm and comfortable.

Now is the time to shop while our line is complete. We will be pleased to serve you.

SPECIAL FOR SATURDAY

2 Large cans of Pork & Beans 33c

J. N. Day's

"The Busy Store"

NOTICE

To Our Customers: In view of better service we have established a new practice concerning the rendering of statements effective this month. We are mailing your bill direct to your local bank, who, upon payment of same by you, will present you with receipted bill. The discount date remains the same. Your bill will be at the bank on the 1st day of the month.

Central States Electric Company

Ends October 31st

The opportunity of our customers to secure shares of the Special Allotment of our 7% PREFERRED STOCK Investment, carrying the FULL DIVIDEND from October 1st. ends on October 31st.

Have you seen our Manager, or one of our Employees regarding this SPECIAL OFFER?

If not, then do not delay, as this opportunity will soon close.

REMEMBER. By investing now, you will receive the FULL DIVIDEND on the Shares you buy for the THREE MONTHS OF OCTOBER, NOVEMBER, and DECEMBER, on January 1st.

There is no need of us telling you again about the Safety of the money you invest in these 7% Preferred Shares, because you know they are Safe and the Income is Sure.

Over Forty Dividends have already been paid on the Stocks of this Company.

See our Manager or any Employee TODAY.

Respectfully,

Central States Electric Company

IOWA FALLS H. F. Kellogg, Manager IOWA

SPECIAL

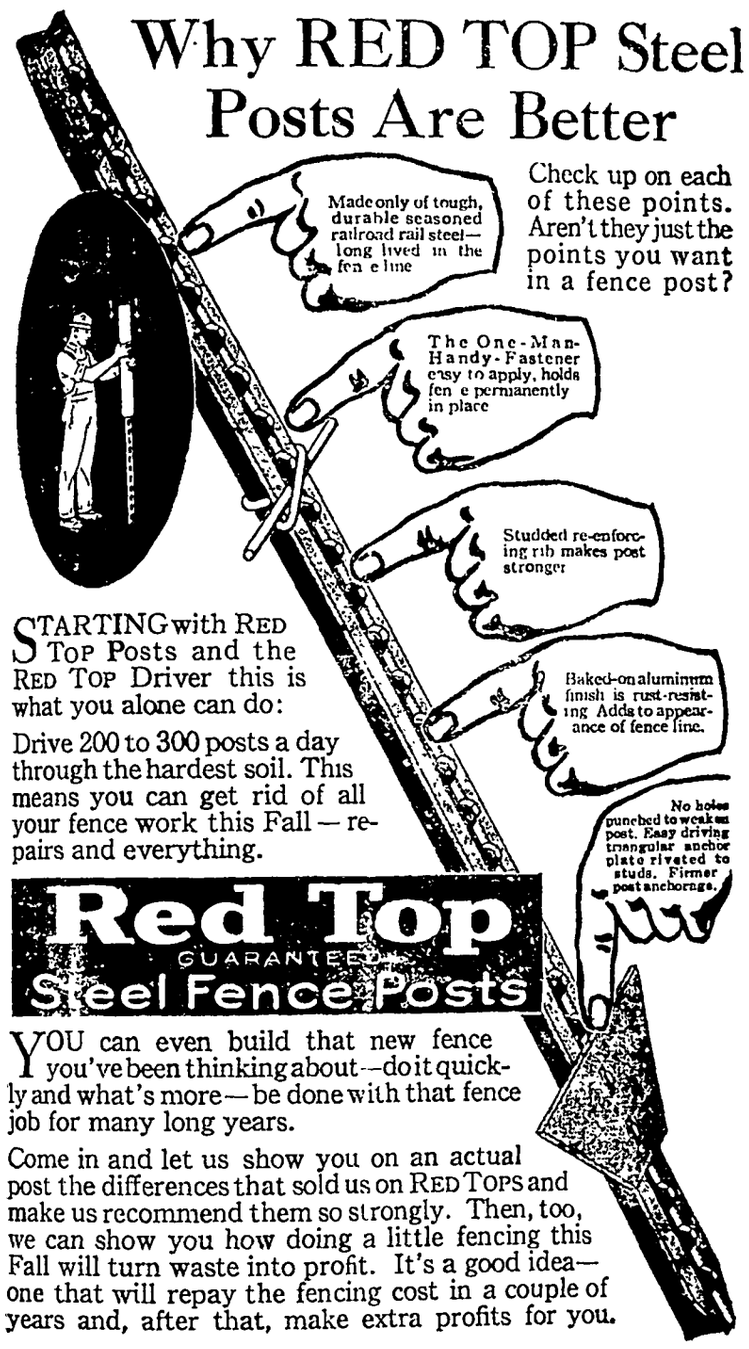
In order to make room for our NEW LINE of WALL PAPER, we are offering the balance of our 1927 line at A GREA RE-DUCTION IN PRICE.

Do your fall papering now and save money.

Wilsons Pharmacy

KLEMME, IOWA

Why RED TOP Steel Posts Are Better



Made only of tough, durable seasoned railroad rail steel—long lived in the fence line
The One-Man-Handy-Fastener easy to apply, holds fence permanently in place
Studded re-enforcing rib makes post stronger
Baked-on aluminum finish is rust-resisting. Adds to appearance of fence line.
No holes punched to weaken post. Easy driving triangular anchor plate riveted to studs. Firmer post anchorage.

Check up on each of these points. Aren't they just the points you want in a fence post?

STARTING with RED TOP Posts and the RED TOP Driver this is what you alone can do:

Drive 200 to 300 posts a day through the hardest soil. This means you can get rid of all your fence work this Fall—repairs and everything.

Red Top GUARANTEED Steel Fence Posts

YOU can even build that new fence you've been thinking about—do it quickly and what's more—be done with that fence job for many long years.

Come in and let us show you on an actual post the differences that sold us on RED TOPS and make us recommend them so strongly. Then, too, we can show you how doing a little fencing this Fall will turn waste into profit. It's a good idea—one that will repay the fencing cost in a couple of years and, after that, make extra profits for you.

Carload Here In A Few Days

Norhern Lbr. Co.

MapleSota Flour

Fresh Carload Just Received

This high grade Flour has just been unloaded and this shipment is fresh right from the big mills. Our price is right.

CAR LOAD OF COKE ON HAND

We have just received a car load of high grade COKE. You people who like to burn coke better get in on this at once!

FURNACE COAL

We belive in sticking to the brands of coal which have proven out the best and the most satisfactory for the money. So this year we again feature BONNIE BLUE and BLUE DIAMOND COAL—yes sir! we have it on hand for quick delivery!

Klemme Co-Operative Grain Co.

Goodell News

(By Special Correspondent)

Mr. and Mrs. Owen Conwell and children spent Sunday at Clear Lake.

W. L. Thada attended a dry goods mens' convention in Des Moines.

Jay Griggs transacted business in Spirit Lake last Wednesday.

Mr and Mrs. Homer Ness have adopted a little girl 10 years old from the Davenport Home.

Agnes Fuller, who teaches in the Miller school, spent the week end at home.

Mrs. L W. Wesemberg accompanied by Miss Liftschwager were Garner callers Saturday.

Rev. and Mrs. Scott, Harriet and Miss Somerville spent Friday afternoon at the Jay Griggs home.

Forest Boren, who attends College at Grundy Center, spent the week end at home.

The Lue Brown Construction Co. are grading east of town, and are putting in a fine grade.

Dr. and Mrs. Snearly drove to Des Moines Sunday for a short visit with relatives.

Rev Emerson of Charles City was visiting at the home of his daughter, Mrs Wesenberg.

Anton Boller and Lee Robbins went to Mason City to work in the Sugar Beet factory.

Mr. Spitler and daughter, Mrs. R. Christie drove to Des Moines to attend the funeral of a relative.

Goodell H. S. Boys crossed bats with Swaledale Friday. The score was 7-0 in favor of Goodell.

E. J Schneider and son Frederick were at Rowan buying calves to prepare them for the Baby Beef Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Sherwood were fishing at Ventura Thursday afternoon. They report a fine catch

The High School Seniors and Juniors are preparing for a Hallowe'en Carnival Friday night, Oct. 28th.

Mrs Tanner is improving from her injuries which she received in an auto acident a short time ago.

The Albert Wilkins sale drew a large crowd and everything sold at good prices.

Mr and Mrs. George Griggs were transacting business in Crystal Lake Thursday.

Little Harriet Scott returned from the hospital Wednesday feeling much improved in health.

Lucille Boller is the owner of a new Saxophone and has just joined the H. S. Orchestra.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott, of Adel, visited at the home of her grandparents, Mr Jake Buchanan's. Mrs. Scott was formerly Mildred Reamer.

Pheasant hunters were not quite so numerous Friday and Saturday as they were the first two days of the open season.

There were several auto accidents near town Friday night, cars being badly wrecked but no one was seriously injured.

Mrs. Lamer has moved the Post Office into the drug store building, which makes it more convenient for her.

Leon Sherwood and family and Mr. Vantassel drove to Nashua Sunday to see the Little Brown Church and visit relatives of Mr. Vantassel.

Mr. Alf Weddel, of Stockton, Cal., was visiting at the Mrs. White home and calling on other old friends. Mr. Weddel run a blacksmith shop here a number of years ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Griggs and children of Crystal Lake and Mrs Stoner and baby of Chicago, were visiting at the Jay Griggs home Sunday.

Mae Griggs, of Gilmore City, came home Friday night and spent the week end, returning to ehr work again Sunday. She expects to go to Ames neext Friday to visit her sister Lela, and to attend Home Coming at I. S. C.

Ell Township News

(Special Times Reporter)

Birtiday Party For Harold Kothenbeutel Held Sunday Evening

Friends and neighbors asembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kothenbeutel, east of Klemme, Sunday evening to celebrate the tenth birthday of Harold, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kohenbeutel. Invitations were extended and about sixty-five people gathered, which proved to be a great surprise to Harold. The evening was spent by playing games and visiting. At a late hour delicious refreshments were served, a part of which was a birthday cake beautifully decorated with ten candles and an abundance of ice cream was served. Many useful gifts were presented to Harold and everyone departed wishing him many more such happy birthdays.

Mr and Mrs. Albert Barz and family spent Sunday at the Henry Barz home.

Frank Larson and family of Kanawha and William Asa and family of Irvington visited at the Ben Mullin home Tuesday evening.

Mr and Mrs. Carl Wille and Arlene and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bell and Julia June were entertained at the Henry Wille home Sunday.

Mr and Mrs. John Bock drove to Vernon Center, Minn., Saturday to visit with Mrs. Mart Palmby and other friends. They returned Sunday evening.

The Ladies Aid of the Reformed Church met Wednesday afternoon at the home of Miss Anna Becker. The ladies decided to send a box of clothing to the Winnebago Indian School at Neillsville, Wis.

Avery Twp. News

(Special Times Reporter)

Ernest Helps is doing some tiling for his brother, Henry.

Clarence Bachman sawed wood Saturday.

Gilman Marshall was a caller at the Clyde Marshall home Thursday.

Henry Helps shelled some corn for Dave Ross Thursday.

Mamo Beek, of Austin, Minn., came Monday for a visit with relatives and friends.

Fre dArnold was a business caller at the Peter Trampel home Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Trampel and family were Sunday dinner guests at the Dick Swalve home.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Trampel and sons returned Tuesday afternoon from their visit at Kamrar.

Mr. and Mrs. Chris Anderson and family were visitors at the Mrs. C. Hanson home Sunday at Concord.

Bonnie Bachman was a visitor with Maxine Bachman Saturday afternoon.

Will Bachman and daughter, Lela spent Saturday at the Clarence Bachman home.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Trampel and family were shopping in Mason City Saturday.

D. D. Ross of Garner spent a couple of days at his farm south east of Klemme.

Peter Trampel and sons, John and Clarence, were business callers at the Walter Ross home near Garner Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Dick Swalve and family, and Mr. and Mrs. Peter Trampel and family went sight seeing at Pilot Knob near Forest City Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Herb Marshall and daughter, Irene, and Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Marshall were visitors at the Clyde Marshall home Friday evening.

Some of the farmers in this vicinity have started picking corn.

Dave Ross is doing some remodeling to the house on his farm now occupied by the D, A. and Herb Marshall families.

Liberty News Notes

(Special Times Reporter)

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gates visited at the Ben Reimer home Friday.

Ben Reemstma made a business trip up to Woden last Thursday.

Ben Reimer and family were entertained at the Fred Gates home Sunday.

Mrs. Emil Beier visited at the Will Reimer home near Hayfield Monday.

Frank Ward and daughter, Elsie, were Monday evening callers at the Ben Ridder home.

Miss Annabelle Carlson and Clarence Bredlow visited at the Herman Gast home Sunday.

Mrs. Daisy Lemke and children visited at the Rhine Schlawin home Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lew Abele and children were entertained at the Tanner home Sunday.

The Liberty M E. Church is to be treated to a coat of paint, the work to be started this week.

Mr. Henry Lewis and C. V. Marshall were over in Cerro Gordo Co. hunting pheasants Friday morning.

Mrs R. R. Lemke helped her mother, Mrs. Straatman clean house last Thursday.

Helen, Ethel and Lorraine Lemke visited at the Otto Schlawin home Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Schoenwetter and children visited at the Earl Kahler home Sunday.

Alice Carolus returned from New Hartford last Thursday where she has been for some time visiting an uncle.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Ridder and children and Miss Lydia Beier drove to Waterloo and spent the week end visiting with relatives.

Gilbert Kropp and Miss Alice Schlichting of near Goodell visited at the Herman Gast home Sunday evening.

Mr. Chas. Ax and son Richard have been up in Minnesota visiting. In their absence Ray Lange did the chores.

John Woods and some friends of Benton county drove up Friday to try for some of our pheasants. They visited at the John Miller home while here.

Mr and Mrs Albert Borchers and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bredlow and family were Sunday visitors at the Herman Fulkerts home near Kanawha. Mrs Fulkerts is a sister of Mr Borchers and Mrs. Bredlow.

A very pleasant evening was spent at No. 7 last Friday when the patrons of the school came to get acquainted with the new building and teacher, Miss Carlson. A fine program was given by the pupils and refreshments were served. The new building is of brick and is a beauty Only one other in the county, Erin No. 5, equals it.

Avery-Twin Lakes News

(Special Times Reporter)

Mr. and Mrs. Owen Nuehring and family spent Sunday visiting the Herman Bridges home.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Priebe and family visited at the Dick Swalve home on Sunday evening.

Mrs. Ben Swalve returned from Illinois last Tuesday, after having been gone two weeks.

A teacher from Mason City is substituting for Miss Haupt. It is not known how long she will teach.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Schmidt and family were visiting at the Emil Lau home on Sunday.

Albert Priebe is perculating around in a Ford coupe which was purchased last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Priebe and son Verner, aisited at the home of Mr and Mrs. Geo. Thieman Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Josten, accompanied by Val. Josten, drove to Fenton last Saturday to attend the funeral of Mr. John Weisbrod

Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Swalve returned to their home last week after having visited at Mrs Swalve's parents the past week.

Most farmers in this vicinity have begun to pick corn, but the warm weather has almost made it impossible.

PURE FILTERED

Milk & Cream

From An Accredited Herd

All Milk Water Cooled And Aerated—delivered in Sterilized, Sanitary sealed bottles every morning to your door.

Eldairy Farm

R. W. Elder Phone 61-F5

FINE FOOD FOLKS

There's a difference in the way vegetables, meats, etc. are cooked and you will recognize it the moment you eat them here.

We serve only the very best the market affords, all well cooked.

As with everything, we think the best is none too good for our patrons.

Drop in for lunch or any meal anytime, at—

Crystal Cafe

Conrad Quandt, Prop.

LYRIC Theatre

—GARNER, IOWA—

Presents The Following

Friday & Saturday
October 28-29
Colleen Moore in
"NAUGHTY BUT NICE"
Comedy
"SOLLID GOLD"
Adm. 10-25c

Tuesday & Wednesday
November 1-2
Cecil B. De Mille presents
"THE COMING of AMOS"
. Lupino Lane Comedy . . .
"MONTY of the MOUNTED"
Adm. 10-25c
Adm. 10-25c

Farm

Loans

5%

Isaac Sweigard

Garner Iowa

PIANOS

Players & Grand

New and

Second Hand

M. N. ZEIGER

Jewelry & Optical Goods

GARNER, IOWA

Any garment can be made to look like new with rich fast black . . .

RIT

FAST DYES OR TINTS
24 POPULAR SHADES

Most Costly "Mike"

"Royal Mike" is the name given by the British public to the special microphone used by King George of England when he broadcasts. This instrument, reserved for the royal family, is covered with silver wire and bears, in gold, the familiar insignia of the lion and unicorn. It is said to be the most valuable "mike" in the world from a monetary standpoint.

Loosen Up That Cold With Musterole

Have Musterole handy when a cold starts. It has all of the advantages of grandmother's mustard plaster without the burn. You feel a warm tingle as the healing ointment penetrates the pores, then a soothing, cooling sensation and quick relief.

Made of pure oil of mustard and other simple ingredients, Musterole is recommended by many nurses and doctors. Try Musterole for bronchitis, sore throat, stiff neck, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, croup, asthma, neuralgia, congestion, pains and aches of the back or joints, sore muscles, sprains, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds of the chest. It may prevent pneumonia and "flu."

Jars & Tubes

MUSTEROLE
WILL NOT BLISTER

Better than a mustard plaster

Limited Means

West—"We'll get the best car we can afford." Mrs. West—"I won't be seen in one of those."

The formulae used by the Egyptians to color bronzes are still used by French, British and American mints, an electro-chemist asserts.

Put Leading Citizens' Faces on Monument

By a woman artist's prank, the faces of prominent living citizens of Helsingborg, Sweden, have been carved as astronomical figures on a monument unveiled there to the memory of the Seventeenth century astronomer, Tycho Brahe. When, at the command of the Swedish crown prince, the celestial globe, surmounting the fountain, was unveiled, the spectators recognized the architect, G. W. Widmark, as the Bear Driver; the editor of the local newspaper as Perseus; the chairman of the board of aldermen as the Wagoner, while the sculptor of the figures, Miss Astrid M. Aagesen, had carved a portrait of herself as the Virgin. Other notables of the town have been immortalized as the Centaur, Hercules, etc. Even the city physician, C. B. Hallengren, who had most vigorously opposed the erection of the monument, has his face among the stars, but instead of the expected caricature, the likeness is good.

Does Your Housework Tire You?

Mason City, Iowa.—"I was all rundown in health and became so draggy I could not do my work. I was at a loss what to do, for nothing I tried had been of any benefit to me.

Finally, I began taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and it helped me at once. I started to pick up and regain my strength and my complexion became clear and rosy. I am sure Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has been of more benefit to me than any other medicine I have ever tried."— Mrs. Della Barlow, 127-2d St. S. W.

In fluid or tablets, at your dealer's.

Enlightened

Owner (politely)—Pardon me, but are you aware that this water is preserved?

Unsuccessful Angler—Oh, is that what it is? I thought there must be something the matter with it.—Passing Show.

What Every Child Learns

Betty—You musn't tell a lie.

Jane—Why not?

Betty—Because it's like smoking; it isn't right to do unth you are grown up.

Don't be ashamed to wear your old clothes until you are able to pay for new ones.

The busy man wonders how the loafer manages to live.

Demand

BAYER

ASPIRIN

SAY "BAYER ASPIRIN"— Genuine

Unless you see the "Bayer Cross" on tablets, you are not getting the genuine Bayer Aspirin prescribed by physicians and proved safe by millions over 25 years for

Colds	Headache	Neuritis	Lumbago
Pain	Neuralgia	Toothache	Rheumatism

DOES NOT AFFECT THE HEART

Safe — Accept only "Bayer" package which contains proven directions.

Handy "Bayer" boxes of 12 tablets. Also bottles of 24 and 100—Druggists.

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

The Best Laxative He Ever Tried

Mr. W. J. Dorion, New York, writes: "Sick headache, indigestion and constipation have troubled me for years. I tried everything but I can truthfully say your CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS is the best laxative I have ever used. I find that they are small, easy to take and their action does not pain me. They keep me regular and I want to tell you how I appreciate this purely vegetable medicine, knowing, due to my experience in laboratory work that laxatives, containing Mercury, Calomel and other poisonous drugs are injurious."

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS are sugar coated, small, easy to swallow, and everyone in the family can take them in perfect confidence as they are a doctor's own formula.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS in red packages 25c. and 75c.

Men Marooned

By GEORGE MARSH

WNU Service. Copyright by The Penn Publishing Co.

CHAPTER IX—Continued

—14—

"A home . . . a home!" repeated the other, moody eyes on the pipe which he rubbed in his broad palm. "It doesu't mean anything to me, John."

"Yes, I know," and Skene looked pityingly at his chief. Then voices on deck straightened them in their chairs. A sailor thrust his head through the door of the cabin.

"There's an Injun, here with some news."

"Send him down!"

The Cree interpreter entered the cabin, followed by a hunter whose face was alive with excitement, as he chattered to the Cree.

"What's on his mind, Michel?" demanded McDonald.

Shutting off with upraised hand the stream of Cree from the mouth of the Indian, the interpreter replied: "Joe Mokoman ees dead!"

"What?" McDonald rasped. "Dead? How d'you mean? Killed?"

"Found dead on de Canoe Riviere, wid hees t'roat ripped out."

"Well, I'll be d—d! Who found him? This bird?"

"No, he see some Cree crossin' ice at de Beeg point—dey tell him."

With a quick movement, McDonald reached and drew the interpreter to him. "You say some of the Indians are crossing to the mainland?"

For a space the harsh phonetics of the Cree tongue filled the cabin.

"At Beeg point, yesterday, he see many dog-team from de nord' cross de ice. A Canoe Riviere hunter say he fin' Mokoman dead in snow by riviere shore."

"But where's old Souci? Didn't he make his medicine on the Canoe?"

"Yes, he say Souci mak' beeg medicine two sleep back—'all de hunter een nord of islan' come."

"Good! Souci is bringing them down the coast."

But as the interpreter continued to interrogate the Indian his eyes widened in surprise, which swiftly gave way to consternation. Turning excitedly, he cried: "Souci tell dem Cree dat de devil ees een de ship here! He scare dem crazee—tak' dem all ovair de ice to Elkwan!"

McDonald and Skene were on their feet. "What?" roared the free-trader. "He's taken them — to Elkwan? Stunned, the white men sought each other's faces.

"Souci, he come here to fool us," went on Michel. "He work all tam' for de Hudson's Bay."

"Whipsawed!" And McDonald's bulk slid limply into his chair.

"The old beggar! He fed it to us like a lot of schoolboys!" sputtered Skene, wagging his grizzled head. "He sure put it over in style."

"Played like a pair of fish!" McDonald suddenly straightened. "Skene, for two cents I'd cross the ice and get that fur. It's ours—they stole it."

Skene looked hard into the blue eyes of his chief. "First, we'd have a handsome row to get it, that man with the scar, and his half-breed will fight; second, the police would be up here before we were out of the ice. Foolish talk!"

McDonald's twisted features relaxed. "You're right, John, right. It can't be done. We've got too much at stake."

Skene looked suggestively at his chief, as he added: "We have—and you have."

The other shifted his gaze as he muttered, "Yes—that's only too true."

"But Mokoman! What'd you say happened to him?" Skene asked Michel.

"He was killed by de dog—hees t'roat tore."

"Killed by his own dogs—queer! Might have been wolves."

"No, de dog follow shoe tracks back to de trail. No wolf do dat."

"Well, so much for Mokoman! Small loss—never liked him."

"Does he know how much fur they had—these hunters who crossed?" asked the mate.

"Dey have mooch fur—'bout one hunder skin."

"Half of it silver and black, probably. A small fortune! H—l!" In his chagrin Skene crashed his hard fist on the table.

"You're a judge of men, John. That fellow sure licked us," McDonald admitted ruefuly. "Now we've got no time to lose with the southern hunters. —Michel!"

The Cree leaned to hear the whispered order of the free-trader. "You keep this Indian on the boat—fill him up and lock him in, forward. If he got loose among the southern camps with this devil talk, they'd follow the others. Breault ought to know, but the Lord knows where he is."

Shortly two dog-teams left the ship bound for the camps in the south half of the island in a mad rush to save the skins yet untraded.

* * * * * * *

The Christmas mail from Albany was approaching on the river trail below Elkwan. From the upper Elkwan and the Shamattawa, from the Winisk and the Raft, for days the hunters had drifted in to the post, dog harness gay with colored worsted and jingling with bells. There old Souci, elated by his stratagem and proud of the praise which Garth had given unstintedly in the privacy of his tent, had led the Akimiski hunters with their valuable fur-packs. In the trade-room Garth and Etienne were busy preparing for the trade which had not yet begun, for an Indian makes a ceremony of his Christmas visit to a post and in contrast to the speed with which he pushes his dogs over the river trails on the way in, is the deliberation with which he proceeds to barter his hunt when he has reached the fur post.

It was a happy pair that were opening bundles of blankets, getting out sugar and flour, tea and tobacco, from the store-room—filling the shelves with the trade-goods of the company.

"Ah-hah! W'at goin' on out dere?" Etienne looked from a window. "De mail ees comin'!" he cried, and slipping on his parka, went out followed by Garth

The Albany mail! Garth Guthrie's thoughts were a medley of surmises, questions, hopes. Letters from home! There would be little from his family—Ethel, that would bring cheer to an exile's Christmas. But the letter which a girl on the moonlit shore of the Albany had promised to send him—had she remembered? As he passed the tipis on his way to the chattering people on the shore, his heart was quick with expectation—hope. After the disapproval—reproach, of home letters, the letter from Joan Quarrier would come like the sun breaking through the cloud canopy of the bay. But if she had forgotten? As he joined Etienne and Marie, the possibility of there being no letter on the sled behind the four Ungava huskies galloping in to Elkwan to the shouts of the Crees, made him set his finger nails in the palm of his hands.

Up at his quarters, the little Christmas spruce waited on a table—for her letter—his Christmas. Should it wait in vain?

In the trade-room Garth opened the mail bag with nervous fingers. Clara's familiar hand, company mail from Cameron, two from Ethel, pale blue—He heard the hammering of his heart as he fumbled for, and drew out, the last envelops in the bag. One from an old army friend, another from his colonel, a third! Slowly he slid the folded paper from the one beneath—the last, as he doubtfully shook his head, numb with disappointment.

He looked! A strange hand—a woman's Hers! She had kept her word to the exile.

In his joy Garth sought the privacy of the rear of the counter to read Joan Quarrier's letter. Then he remembered. He had said it was to hang from the tree, to be read last, on Christmas day. Tucking it into the shirt beneath his coat, he put the others in a pocket and joined Etienne and the hungry dog-runner, who waited for Marie's dinner.

After all, it was to be a happy Christmas. A trade beyond his hopes; triumph over the schooner which lay thirty miles away over the ice—and word from the girl who faced so dauntlessly with those unwavering dark eyes. A Merry Christmas for Garth Guthrie, come what might from Charlie and Clara—and Ethel. From Ethel, what?

On Christmas eve he stood in his living room with old Anne, before the little spruce, brave with worsted and colored paper and bits of lighted candle. On the tree hung colored bags and at its foot were small parcels tied with gaudy Christmas ribbon. On the topmost twig was a letter.

"You told them, Anne?" he asked the grinning squaw, proud in her best wool dress, her raven hair coquettishly circled by a huge pink ribbon—a gift of Garth's, cherished for ceremonies like the present.

"Ah-hah," chuckled the faithful Cree. "Dey come soon, now. Marie, she rub dem chil's face till dey shine lak de moon."

Garth paced the floor, his lean, dark face beaming in anticipation. Then laughter, giggles, shouts of children, followed by stern reproof in a man's voice, announced the arrival of the guests, the eight Savannes.

Garth and Shot simultaneously sprang to the door to welcome the comely Marie, leading her excited brood of six, with the grinning Etienne as rear guard.

"Merry Christmas, Marie! Jean! Yvonne!" he cried, fairly dragging the giggling and embarrassed children into the house. "Ah, Monsieur Etienne Savanne, friend of McDonald Ha! Ha!, is also with us tonight."

With his audience seated, Garth proceeded to divide the gifts he had ordered the previous year from lower Canada. For each of the children was a bag of candy, which was opened with wide-eyed curiosity and grins of delight. And, as the sweet tooth of grown-ups is also highly developed in the North, Marie and Anne, who had not been forgotten, swiftly evidenced their appreciation of good candy by joining the children in their munching.

Then the toys in packages marked with the children's names were given out. There remained a dress each for Marie and Anne, and a Ross sporting rifle for the delighted Etienne.

In the heart of the Santa Claus of Elkwan, the pleasure lighting the dark faces of his friends at his unexpected gifts reacted manyfold. Besides, at the top of the tree, his own Christmas waited his eager eyes.

When with much bustle and chatter his friends returned to their cabin and old Anne left him, Garth sat down to read the letters from home. The first opened was his brother's, which ran as follows:

"If I had been told that my own brother was to disgrace himself as you have seen fit to do up there on James bay, I should have knocked down the liar who said it. We understand now your strange refusal to return home, your indifference to Ethel and the business. Professor Quarrier has given me the whole shameful story. A white woman would have been bad enough—but a squaw! Pah!"

Guthrie's lean face set hard as he read the first lines. Slowly the blood pushed up under the wind-burned skin.

"A white woman would have been bad enough—but a squaw!" Reading no further, he crushed the letter in his hand and let it fall

"Poor Ninda!"

The letter from Clara was a medley of hysteria, reproach, and unmistakable evidence of a sincere affection for her erring brother-in-law. His eyes softened as he followed the misguided woman's effort to appeal to his sentiment—to his old love for Ethel.

"De Mail Ees Comin'," He Cried.

"Of course she knows, Garth. That Quarrier man spread it all over town. But I am sure, in spite of it all, she still loves you—would forgive, if you asked her. Oh, Garth! You're the only brother I have, and I've always doted on you. Won't you, for my sake, come back this spring—for your own, for Ethel's sake. I don't know what she's writing you, but you mustn't take it seriously. She's terribly hurt, of course—but I know she'll forget it all, if you come back."

"Poor old Clara," said the man aloud. "Poor, simple Clara! She can't see yet that it's brother Charlie who counts with Ethel, not I."

So Quarrier had had his revenge, Quarrier, her brother. It was not strange after the snubbing he got. But she? What did Joan Quarrier think of the tale her brother had brought to Charles Guthrie?

Then he opened the two letters in the blue envelopes. One was dated a month earlier than the other and he read that first.

"I imagine your life in France," ran the letter, "was similar to that of the last year on James bay. I have learned much of what went on over there. Was it a French girl or an army nurse?"

She had unwittingly hurt him in the only way it was now possible for Ethel Falconer to reach the man who had once loved her. Army nurse! What had Ethel done for Canada to qualify her as a critic of the women who had toiled and dared behind the lines, that stricken men might live?

He read on: "Of course, Garth, this is your answer. I was willing to forget the slight, the neglect, but when we learned how you had been my love died. To shore you tions with an ignorant, squaw was asking a little too Garth."

The man who read laughed "Your love died, my poor child, wharf at Quebec, when you sa the Huns had done to your boy," he said aloud.

"Well, why the postscript went on. "She throws me over first letter, horse, foot and dra why continue the agony?"

Opening the second envelo read: "When I wrote you, dear, I did not understand th had died, but Mr. Quarrier te that his sister helped nurse he course, it was all a horrible but now that it is over and yo come home, I am willing to forg past—if you want me to."

Rising in disgust, Guthrie pac floor. "Merciful heavens! She' ing to forget the past! Poor, sh scheming Ethel! Rather than brother-in-law Charles, you cra eat humble-pie, grovel on your 'Was it a French girl or a nu he quoted scathingly "Read swallow that, too, are you, my Guthrie finished the letter. Ethel Falconer waited with open for the prodigal lover. But, unlik son of the tale, the prodigal love not returning.

Picking up and finishing the pled letter of Charles, Garth lea that, inasmuch as he had disgraced family name and ignored the fa wishes, the Guthrie family would ceed to try to forget its black she

With a smile of contempt opened the door of the sheet-iron s and tossed in the letters. Clare' would answer—good-hoarted, meaning, old Clara, who alone sensed his condition and his unha ness, on his return home. Then ing his arms and expelling a breath of relief, he said: "Th God, that's over! And now—"

He took the letter of Joan Quar from the tree and eagerly opened i "Dear Mr. Exile:

"Have you kept your promise? this the last letter to be read? I w you a very happy Christmas, but how that would be possible up th on your frozen west coast is diffi to imagine. However, I hope you not be lonely with thoughts of ho and what you have so stubbor turned from."

Garth's brows knotted in thou "Of course," he surmised, "she m know about Ethel since her brot had met Charles—had heard of engagement and his strange actio But if she thought him still engag why did she write?"

Joan continued:

"My winter has been an active o working in a school for homeless c dren. Poor things! They need one can give them. It has not be as uninteresting as it sounds. Eve thing is so new and strange.

"But you, when are you coming ba to your kind, Mr. Exile? You m be wonderfully well after two years and they are still waiting for you.

"Again my deepest gratitude your hospitality to the shipwrecked

Garth finished the letter with groan of disappointment. "She heard a fine tale from the family, a her brother's version wouldn't help any," he muttered. "Doesn't speak meeting them, though. She, in school for homeless children—"

It was evident to Guthrie from t reserved tone of Joan Quarrier's le ter that she had heard of his engag ment to Ethel, and it was also qui as clear that she was ignorant of th color of the story Quarrier had r tailed to Charles. To this, he realize Joan Quarrier would give instant an flat denial but she was not even Montreal—would never meet the Guth ries. And after all, what did it ma ter? He was through with them— his smug brother, and the girl who ha lost him when she stared in horro at his scarred cheek that day whe the Royal Montreals came home.

He replaced the letter in the pock of his shirt to be reread again an again with increasing disappointmen —chagrin. He had hoped for some thing more personal—something the Joan Quarrier he had known fo five short days in September. But was evident that she thought the fac tor of Elkwan not a free man. Wel he was now. Quarrier had done hi an unintentional kindness in that l —had forced Ethel's hand. Now he Garth, could accept her release. The what?

Far into the night Guthrie sat an smoked, but when he blew out th candle, he was no nearer a solution o his problem. Joan Quarrier had bee right when she feared that a lonel Christmas awaited the exile at Elk wan. It did—a Christmas gray be cause a thousand miles of forest sep arated Garth Guthrie from a gir whose hair the moon once touche with silver dust on the cliffs of th Albany.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

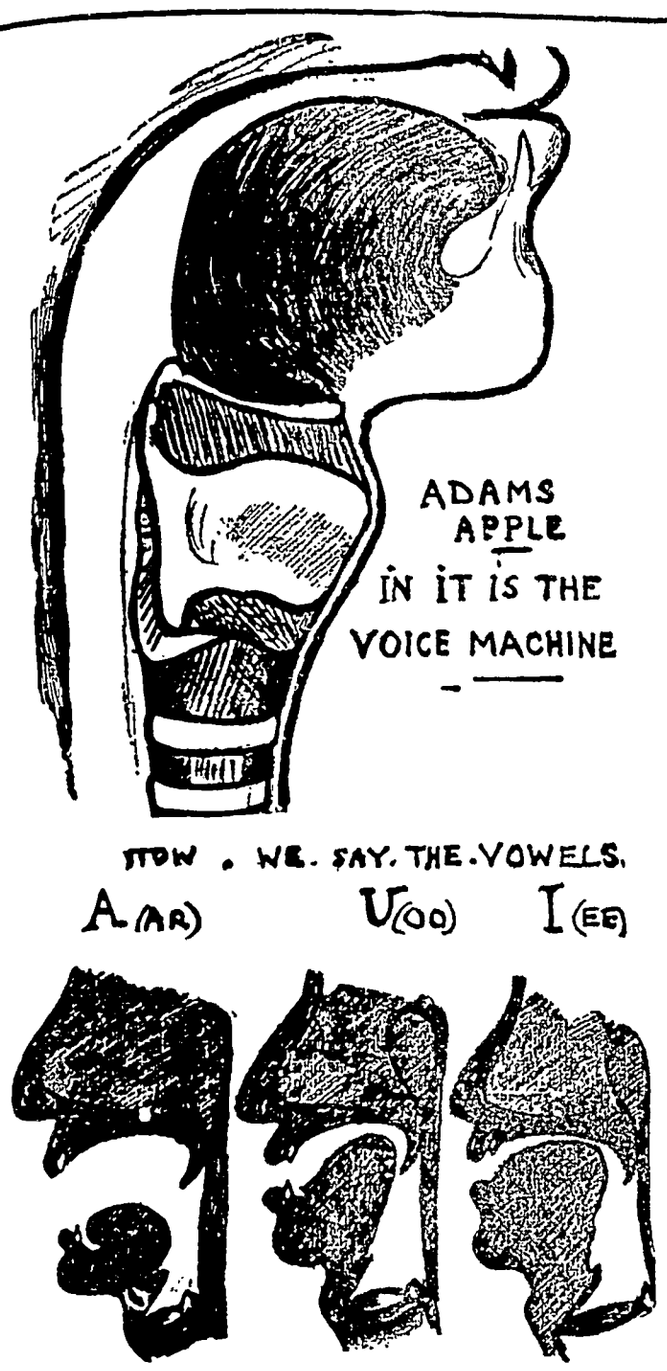
Thinkers Have Ever Seen Trouble Ahead

We are all more or less nervous at times—especially when something goes wrong with us—about what is going to happen to the human race. The psychiatrists are particularly apprehensive. Dr. Max Shlapp, for instance, told the Academy of Medicine, at New York that he feared that the whole race of tomorrow would either be grossly damaged or lowered in general efficiency as a result of the high tension lives we lead—though, to be sure, all of us don't lead that kind of lives. 'Twas ever thus. Greece saw trouble ahead; so did Rome. Those who watched the moths flutter roun the Louis XIV candle in France wer gravely apprehensive, and so wer those who frowned on the gayeties o the court of Charles II in England Trouble was ahead then as it is now Some pretty bad messes followed, bu humanity survived, and, on the whole improved. But trouble is alway ahead. We never catch up with th direst of it. Surely there is comfor in the thought that the worst is ye to come—and probably will never g here.—Indianapolis News.

YOURSELF and YOUR BODY

By WILFRED T. GRENFELL

THE TALKING-MACHINE



MAN is a talking machine. At least, he talks more than any other animal, even if he doesn't sing tter than a nightingale."

"But how does he do it, father?"

"Oh, he is a wind instrument. Like organ pipe, he uses his air pump blow wind through a hole between o reeds in his throat."

"Oh, father!"

"It's true. Two reeds or strings e stretched from front to back in e wind pipe, as it passes through dam's apple.' That is the lump you el in your neck beneath your chin. you take an old air tube after a an has gone and left it and blow nd through it it makes a fine noise; if I take this instrument and look own a man's throat through it I can atch his voice strings moving as he gs. (See picture.)

"When a person gets diphtheria this rrow part of the wind tube gets led up, and several times I have had make a hole lower down in the pipe d put in a tube, or the person would re suffocated. Then he couldn't lk at all, because the wind escaped low the strings.

"The lungs are our bellows, and r throat and chest and belly mus- es all help us to blow harder or fter as we like. If the strings ay the same length, the harder we ow the higher the pitch of the und. You can't make any noises ithout you blow hard enough to hold the weight of a column of water n inches in height, and to make a ry high note you must blow four mes as hard. Most people can only ake 16 notes, and the limit is 24."

"But how do you make the different otes?"

"That is the marvelous thing about ese reeds. We can make them horter or longer at will."

"But what does that do?"

"Look at this fiddle. Now twang is long string and listen. That is he same note as this one on the iano, isn't it?"

"Yes."

"Well, that is called C. It means hat the wire I am hitting in the iano is making as many up and own movements or waves in a sec- nd as the string which you are anging. It happens to be 256 in a econd. Now twang it again as I horten it. Listen. It is the same ote again as this one I am striking ght notes higher up on the piano."

"Yes, father."

"Well, that is the octave and means hat the wire and string are now each aking 512 waves a second, or just ice as many as before. That is all here is to it—isn't it easy?

"But the really amazing thing is he way in which we can shorten and engthen the strings so cleverly, and t the same time regulate the wind ressure so accurately as to always ing the right note."

"How do we do it, father?"

"Well, we can't unless we practice and then we can't always—just as can't play the fiddle or piano like reisler and Paderewski, or sing like aruso. But when they were born ey couldn't play better than I could. ll that any one of us four could pro- uce then was a yell.

"A man's throat is bigger than a oman's and therefore his cords are longer and larger to begin with. His are a little over half an inch long, hers are a little under, so his voice is deeper. That is why Wilfred's voice is so horrible. It is cracking. It only means his throat is very quickly growing larger just at present. The range of the voice is exactly like that of a string—it depends on its length.

"Now with my instrument we will look down the throat. It shows how the machine acts. The big ring is the case around the machine down the throat, and the tip in front is the top of the lid that closes when we swallow, and shoots our food over instead of into our talking and breathing machine. The same air is used to breathe and to talk. There is a beautiful little sack above the cords, right around. It is full of oilers and greasers. The flap above it is called the false cord. The thing like a swastika or boomerang is made of hard gristle. It is balanced on a ring of bone below the 'apple' bone or thyroid, and it can turn like a swivel. The whole bone and swastika together can also be tilted back to stretch the voice strings. By means of these the strings can also be pulled wide apart or pulled close together, so that lots of air can come in and out, as when we run hard and get 'short of wind,' or when we want to make low notes. There is, however, also another marvelous little arrangement to shorten the amount of the voice cord used. It is done by little muscle-cells inside the flap from the cord to the side of the bone, and that 'stops' it, exactly as we move our fingers up and down a banjo or fiddle string to alter the note we need.

"It is very hard to keep the same note accurately getting louder and louder (called 'crescendo' by singers), because it means that you must blow harder and harder and harder and at exactly the same time gradually slacken and slacken and slacken the strings. The real marvel is not that so many cannot sing well, but that so many can. All the same, good singers are very rare, and have to be paid huge sums of money. Though the width and length and tightness of the string alter the notes, really the sounding-box is the mouth and throat above, and the cavity of the nose. Your singing master tries to teach you to use those sounders rightly, so that you may sing sweetly. The vowel sounds are made by wind that is not interrupted by anything. (See picture). Only the shape of the mouth is altered. But the consonants are made by stopping the air with the lips, teeth, and tongue. Thus, a snake hisses by pressing its tongue against the front of the roof of its mouth and blowing air between them. 'L' is the same, only you allow the air to pass each side of the tongue. 'R' is the tip of the tongue (or edge of lip or point of soft palate) blowing to and fro in the wind. 'Th' is made by placing the tongue against the teeth and blowing, etc.

"That is all. Run away, and when you are half a mile off try singing through, first, the back of your throat, and then in the front of your mouth, and then in your nose—then with your tongue against the roof of the mouth or in your cheek.

"Scoot!"

(©) by the Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Give Attention to Poultry Ills

Big Mistake by Many Farmers to Let Their Chickens Shift for Themselves.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Because the poultry industry represents an annual turnover of more than a billion dollars, and because of recent changes in the organization and management of egg and poultry production, Dr. J. R. Mohler of the United States Department of Agriculture recommended to the members of the American Veterinary Medical association, meeting at Philadelphia, "what we as veterinarians must do to keep our flocks healthy in order that meat and egg production shall not diminish. We are dealing with fowls not only from a pathological standpoint, but as commercial units on which a great industry is based."

Doctor Mohler pointed out that the United States is the most important poultry-raising country in the world, producing more than one-third of the world's supply, that breeders sold 800,000,000 baby chicks last year, that the hens collectively lay eggs at the rate of 760 a second or 2,000,000,000 dozen a year, and that the annual value of poultry products is now considerably in excess of $1,000,000,000 or 10 per cent of the total live stock production of the country, and outranked only by dairy products and the swine industry.

Poultry Raising Incidental.

For years, Doctor Mohler commented, poultry raising was an incidental enterprise on the American farm. Poultry diseases were regarded as of little consequence, and chickens were left to shift for themselves. "The last decade, however," he said, "has witnessed an amazing change in the scope and methods of poultry and egg production, as the industry has rapidly forged to the front line of dignified commercial productive enterprise. The humble hen is now recognized as an asset, a chief source of income, and as such is favored with the best of feed, shelter and attention," and the increase in size and profitableness of flocks makes it increasingly feasible for poultry raisers to employ veterinarians in case of disease in their flocks.

Need More Investigations.

There is definite need, Doctor Mohler believes, for wider and more fundamental investigations not only of avian tuberculosis but of other infectious and parasitic diseases. He explained that it had been found true, but was not generally known, that turkeys harbored the little worms which cause the disease of gapes in chickens, although the turkey is not usually affected. When turkeys and young chicks are reared together it is difficult to avoid losses of the young chicks. Advance has been made in the development of vaccines for several poultry diseases. Determination of when to use such remedies must rest with the veterinarians. Other fields for fundamental research in poultry husbandry include feeding mixtures and balanced rations for various purposes. Some diseases, it has been found, can be controlled by proper nutrition.

The most effective control of poultry diseases must come through poultry raisers themselves who will employ veterinarians skilled in poultry diseases. Governmental and state action in case of diseases of poultry should aim at the protection of domestic fowls from foreign contagion, to prevent the spread of poultry diseases from state to state, and to eradicate communicable diseases within a state when they appear.

Agricultural Items

It is cheaper to grow most of the protein feeds on the average farm.

* * *

If you did not exhibit at your fair this year, make plans to be among the winners next fall.

* * *

The "American Standard of Perfection" is the guide by which show birds are judged.

* * *

Poisoned bran mash is one of the most effective methods to recommend for the control of the fall army worm.

* * *

Sad experiences of shippers have shown that poor quality products are hit hardest on a declining market.

* * *

Sand makes an ideal base for the colony house litter, but alfalfa leaves or straw should be placed over the sand.

* * *

Information learned at a show may be of greater value to the exhibitor than the money he receives from his entries.

* * *

Form, size, color, uniformity, and freedom from blemishes are the points upon which plates of apples are judged at fairs.

* * *

If you have never tried a capon for the holidays you have missed a rare treat. The meat of the capon is tender and juicy.

* * *

Meat scraps, dried buttermilk, good quality tankage, fish meal or ground fresh bones, are all good substitutes for bugs and worms. Any of them will bring eggs if fed with a proper grain ration to industrious hens

Camel

The cigarette preferred by experienced smokers

In the remarkable growing popularity of the cigarette many brands have bid for favor, but Camel continues to lead by billions. Quality put it there; quality keeps it there.

If all cigarettes were as good as Camel you wouldn't hear anything about special treatments to make cigarettes good for the throat. Nothing takes the place of choice tobaccos.

© 1927, R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, Winston-Salem, N. C.

Friend of Man

One of the most efficient sweepers of the field is the vesper sparrow which we may recognize by the white outer tail feathers, says Nature Magazine. Many dwellers of the grass, insect larvae, leaf hoppers, army worms, young grasshoppers, are devoured during the summer; and innumerable weed seeds make up their fall and winter diet.

Butter Color Depends on YOU

Don't blame the feed or the condition of your stock if market men grade you low and customers complain on account of the color of your butter. You can keep your butter always that golden June color which brings top prices by using Dandelion Butter Color. It's purely vegetable and meets all State and National Pure Food Laws—used by all large creameries for years. It's harmless, tasteless and doesn't color buttermilk. Large bottles, 35c at all drug and grocery stores.

Write for FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE
Wells & Richardson Co., Inc
Burlington, Vermont

BABIES LOVE
MRS. WINSLOW'S SYRUP
The Infants' and Children's Regulator
Pleasant to give—pleasant to take. Guaranteed purely vegetable and absolutely harmless.
It quickly overcomes colic, diarrhoea, flatulency and other like disorders.
The open published formula appears on every label.
At All Druggists

W. N. U., DES MOINES, NO. 44--1927.

The Average Man

Lincoln Steffens, the noted reformer, was the guest of honor at a dinner in New York, and in his after-dinner speech he analyzed the average man.

"The average man!" he began. "The average man sets out to conquer the world and ends up by getting married."

Poetic Idea Evolved in Small Boy's Mind

Richard Le Gallienne, poet; was talking about poets at a reception:

"Poets are children," he said. "I have known all the great poets of our time, and they were all simple-minded, unaffected, childlike. Yes, poets are children, and children are poets.

"One summer I visited an encampment of little country weekers—slum children who were enjoying a weekend holiday in the country. It was evening, the new moon was setting, and a small country weeker said as he gazed at the western sky:

"'I wonder what becomes of all the old moons?'

"'I guess,' said another urchin, who stood beside him, 'I guess they cut 'em up for stars, Bill.'"

Can't Collect Fortune

Possession of the largest face-value promissory note in the world is claimed by M. F. Rossi, antiquarian of San Jose, Calif. Mr. Rossi has a parchment document whose faded face conveys the date, 1480, and a promise to pay 200 gold florins. The note bears 6 per cent interest. According to Rossi's calculation he could collect $41,172,200,000,000 on the note if the unfortunate Florentine who signed it was financially sound today. The florin is valued at $200 in American currency.

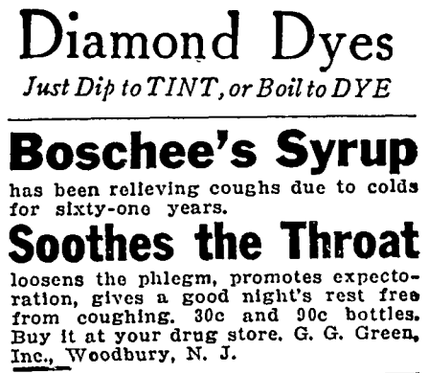
"Bantus"

A Bantu is a member of one of the great family of Negroid tribes occupying Equatorial and southern Africa. These tribes include, as important divisions, the Kafirs, Damaras, Bechuanas, Swahilis and many tribes whose names begin with Aba-, Ama-; Ba-, Ma-, Wa-, variants of the Bantu-plural personal prefix Aba-, as in Bantu, or Aba-ntu, itself a combination of this prefix with the syllable -ntu, a person.

"Fair" Marriage Record

All Cupid's records for fair time at Glasgow, Scotland, were broken this year. Twenty-nine couples were wedded before the sheriff on Fair Friday, the popular day for nuptials. The number is one more than a year ago. Nineteen couples were married the previous day.

The meek will of necessity have to inherit the earth if they ever expect to get it.



A Stylish Blouse

It's color these days, that makes a garment stylish! With a fifteen-cent envelope of Diamond Dyes, you can make an old or faded waist smart as any on display. Keep all your clothes stylish—through the quick magic of home dyeing.

Beautiful dyeing or perfectly gorgeous tinting is easy, if you'll only use original Diamond Dyes (true dyes). Brighten the house, too; curtains, spreads, etc., are Diamond dyed in an hour or less; right over other colors. FREE: Your druggist gives you the Diamond Dye Cyclopedia; valuable suggestions, easy directions, actual piece-goods color samples. Or write for illustrated book Color Craft, postpaid from DIAMOND DYES, Dept. N16, Burlington, Vermont.

Diamond Dyes

Just Dip to TINT, or Boil to DYE

Boschee's Syrup

has been relieving coughs due to colds for sixty-one years.

Soothes the Throat

loosens the phlegm, promotes expectoration, gives a good night's rest free from coughing. 30c and 90c bottles. Buy it at your drug store. G. G. Green, Inc., Woodbury, N. J.

Watch Long in Concrete

Blasting out some old concrete for a new bridge, C. H. Lightner, Iota, Kan., discovered a watch that used to make the dollar famous imbedded in it. The crystal was broken and the face disfigured, but on winding it the watch went right on ticking. The concrete was laid twelve years ago.—Indianapolis News.

True to Form

Instructor—Swing at it—swing and hit it. Don't chop like a butcher.

Golfer—But that's what I am.

Once in a while the greatest truth is told by the biggest liar.

"Halloween is almost here. Let's have a party! We'll pop Monarch Teenie Weenie Pop Corn, have Teenie Weenie Peanut Butter sandwiches and a fudge cake made with Monarch Cocoa.

EVERY genuine Monarch package bears the Lion Head, the oldest trademark in the United States covering a complete line of the world's finest food products—Coffee, Tea, Cocoa, Catsup, Pickles, Peanut Butter, Canned Fruits and Vegetables, and other superior table specialties.

REID, MURDOCH & CO.
Established 1853
Chicago Pittsburgh Boston New York
Jacksonville Tampa Los Angeles

Monarch is the only nationally advertised brand of QUALITY FOOD PRODUCTS sold exclusively through the men who own and operate their own stores.

MONARCH
Quality for 70 Years

AGENTS—$8.50 A DAY. STEADY WORK. Wonderful new proposition. Hudson Car furnished to workers. Write quick for offer before territory is snapped up. American Products Co., 8144 Monmouth, Cincinnati, O.

Own Going Furniture Business in California, estab. 20 yrs., largest in town of 7,500; rich fruit and dairy county. $18,500 will handle. Selling to close partnership. Horton-Wimpey Furniture Co., Hanford, Calif.

Mr. Owner: Sell Your Property. Keep the commission. Farms, Hotels, Groceries, Movies, Bakeries, Business of any kind. Nat'l Business Exch., Box 496, Des Moines.

For Relief of Rheumatism, Neuritis or Lumbago, no matter how severe a case or how long you have suffered, use Burnes Remedy immediately. $1 and $2 sizes. Burnes Remedy Company, 204 Granite Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.

BE OUR AGENT, MAKE BIG MONEY selling our $50.00 Magnetic Health Belt. $17.50 for sample. RESTORO MFG. CORP., 145 West Washington, Los Angeles, Calif.

4 Beautiful Hand-Painted Crepe-de-Chine handkerchiefs, value $2.00, special now $1. Satisfaction guar. Inclose $1 to Dayton Art Studios, 258 4th St. Arcade, Dayton, O.

Carload Shipments--

We have just received a car load shipment of—

OIL MEAL IN TWO SIZES
Fine and Pea Size

Drive in and get what you need—our price is right on Oil Meal.

CAR LOAD OF TANKAGE

We will continue to offer you low prices on TANKAGE for a short time only. It will pay you to buy now.

CAR LOAD OF FLOUR

We have just unloaded another carload of MOTHER'S BEST FLOUR. This flour is a favorite with many housewives in this community, and at the very low price we are quotng it will pay you to lay in your winter's supply at once:-

MOTHER'S BEST FLOUR

Single Sack lots, per sack $2.15
Five sacks lots or more, per sack $2.05

North Iowa Grain Co.

FOR SALE

Duroc Jersey Boars

I have a number of choice Fall and Spring Boars for sale; sired by Grand Col., Lau's Hi Wonder, Fireworks and The King. These are all Cholera Immune.

I also have for sale a choice yearling dark red Shorthorn Bull. If you want any of the above buy them at once.

Emil W. Lau

Phone 61-F9 Klemme, Iowa.

We Sell Meat of Quality--

You will always find our prices right on the quality meats we sell. We buy only the best obtainable for our customers.

HAM and BACON

We take pride in the high quality Ham and Bacon we handle. We carry a complete line of each at a price that wlil please you. Keep a Ham on hand for company and a slab of bacon for your daily needs.

IT'S OYSTER TIME

Nice fresh Oysters every day, the very pick of the market. If you like oysters try ours today.

SPECIAL ITEMS

We have a nice fresh stock of Pickled Meats of all kinds. Mince Meat in bulk, sure makes fine pies. Try our Monarch Brand Catsup.

We can still sell you some of our high grade canned goods at 20 per cent discount. We make this special to close out this line.

Klemme Meat Market

Office:— Masonic Bldg. GARNER, IOWA.

Phones:— Office, 149-J. Res., 149-L.

Dr. E. H. Phillips
OSTEOPATHIC PHYSICIAN

Physiotherapy, including Osteopathic treatment, diathermy, surgical diathermy, radiant heat, high frequency, chlorine gas and auto-condensation.

News of Klemme and Vicinity

Dr. R. W. Specht, Dentist, Garner, Iowa. adv

"LAYMORE—COST LESS." 4tc

J. E. Bivens and family have moved into the Walter Lauden house.

Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Day were at Iason City on business Wednesday.

Tom Nelson was a business caller t Garner Monday morning.

Mr. Hayden, coach in our school, pent the week end visiting with his parents and friends at Dennison.

Dr. Specht and family of Garner were calling on Dr. Missman and family Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kluckhohn entertained Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hampel and family at dinner Sunday.

Mrs George Gruetzmacher and son, Warren, of Garner, were visiting Klemme relatievs Friday.

Arthur Kudje and family and Clarence Johnson and family spent Saturday evening at Mason City

Walter Lau, of Wabasso, Minnesota, spent the week end with his family here.

LOST—A Red Steer, wt. about 800 lbs. Finder notify Ed. Buenenbach 1tp

W F Pavey and family visited the big truck farms at Hollandale, Minnesota, Sunday.

Miss Anna Becker entertained the Reformed Ladies Aid society Wednesday afternoon.

Ed. Jacobs is the owner of a new Pontiac Coach. He 'swapped" his old one for a new one the other day

Mr. and Mrs Earl Finn and baby of Klemme were calling on relatives here Wednesday.

FOR SALE—One Poland China Boar, March farrow, a good one Henry Wade, Garner Rt 4 tfc

FOR SALE—Extracted White Clover Honey, $1 50 per 10 lb. pail Frank Miller, Phone 6-F45 Klemme Garner Route 4. 6p

Erwin Yahnke, of Good Thunder, Minn., and Myrtle Buck of Mankato, came Saturday evening for a visit with Klemme friends.

Mrs. R. E. Coverdale of Maquoketa, Iowa, came Saturday and spent the day visiting with Mrs. P M Wilson.

Mrs. C. A. Arnold and Miss Minnie Lenz left this morning for Minneapolis to attend a W. F. M. S convention.

Miss Clara Larsen is assisting with the house work at the Rev. Gauger home, as Mrs. Gauger has not been well the past week.

Mrs. Minnie Josten returned to her home at Garner Saturday, after a week's visit with her daughter, Mrs. A. W. Gauger.

Mr and Mrs. George Quandt, of Utica, Illinois, came last week for a visit with his brother, Conrad, and other relatives here.

The W F M S of the Methodist Church will meet next week Thursday, Nov 3, at the home of Mrs. Lester Stille.

Dr. Missman drove over to Mason City Saturday and put a cast on Vic Huenemann's leg Mr. Huenemann is getting along quite well.

Mr and Mrs. M O. Barr and La Von returned Monday from their vacation of about a month spent in Michigan and other states east. They repor having had a fine time.

Dr. and Mrs. L. R. Parsons and daughter, Doris, and Mrs. Ely and daughter, Miss Gertrude, of Belmond were visiting at the Dr. W. F. Missman home Monday evening.

Miss Adella Kuhlmann and Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Schlei and son Dale were entertained at the home of Mrs. Fred Haupt and daughter Miss Edith, Sunday.

Friday afternoon Mrs. Marlin Croner and Dorothy, Mrs. Lena Schroeder and Grandma Schroeder drove to Ventura. Returning they visited with Garner relatives.

"LAYMORE—COST LESS." 4tc

Miss Mildred Johnson, of this city, appeared on the program at the P. T. A. meeting at Garner Tuesday evening. She rendered a couple of violin selections.

A family re-union, attended by about twenty-five people, was held at the Conrad Quandt home Friday evening. Mr. Quandt has been enjoying a visit from his brother and wife of Utica, Il., the past week.

Mr and Mrs. Ollie Brooks, while visiting in Klemme, purchased a fine Kingsbury Piano from the Wellemeyer Store, which was delivered to their home in Clear Lake Wednesday.

Basket And Pie Social

There wil be a basket and pie social at Ell twp. Dist. No. 8 on Friday evening, Nov. 4 Ethel Wellemeyer, teacher, Oscar Swanson, director. 2tc

L. E. Glanville and family of Brainerd, Minn., moved into Harry Gibbs' tenant house, Monday. Mr. Glanville will work for Harry this coming year.

Mr and Mrs. Otto Schlawin, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kirchefer, of Hayfield, drovo to Lincoln Nebraska last Thursday to attend a funeral there.

Mr and Mrs Charles Gentz, Mr. and Mrs John Lee, from Eralville, and Violet Slater from Manchester were visiting at the Emil Patet and Levi Klotzbach homes the other day

A number of radio owner are complaining that they are annoyed by buzzing noises lately which seems to originate at the telephone office when rings are sent out over certain lines The radio at the Times Office is affected in this way at times.

No. 6059 Reserve District No. 7
Report of the Condition of

THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK

At Klemme, in the state of Iowa
At the close of business on Oct. 10, 1927

RESOURCES

Loans and Discounts		243,611.45
Overdrafts, unsecured		1,076.87
U S. Government securities owned, deposited to secure circulation (U. S. bonds par value)		25,000.00
All other United States Government Securities		143,400.00
Other bonds, stocks, securities, etc.		142,156.13
Banking house, 8,000.00 Furniture and fixtures,	3,515.00	11,515.00
Real estate owned other than banking house		3,426.46
Lawful reserve with Federal Reserve Bank		32,041.00
Cash in vault and amount due from national banks		57,120 86
Amount due from State banks, bankers, and trust companies in the United States.		25,475.22
Checks and drafts (including Federal Reserve Bank) located outside of city or town of reporting bank		4.00
Redemption fund with U. S. Treasurer and due from U. S. Treasurer		1,250.00
TOTAL		$685,676.99

LIABILITIES

Capital stock paid in		$ 25,000.00
Surplus fund		15,000 00
Undivided profits	16,956.00
Less current expenses paid	8,669.31	8,286.69
Circulating notes outstanding		24,995.00
Demand deposits subject to Reserve.
Individual deposits subject to check		210,901.28
Certificates of deposit due in less than 30 days		67,900.00
Time Deposits subject to Reserve.
Other time deposits		333,271.61
Liabilities other than those above stated		322.41
TOTAL		$685,676.99

State of Iowa
County of Hancock, ss.

I, F. A. Arnold, President of the above named bank do solemnly swear that the above statement is true to the best of my knowledge and belief

F. A. ARNOLD, President

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 20 day of Oct. 1927.

A. J. Kudje, Notary Public
(SEAL)

Correct—Attest:
Peter Josten
E. J. Arnold
M. H. Weigman, Director.

Oil and Grease

Our prices are right on Oils of all kinds, and grease. Now is a good time to lay in your supply at our low prices:

En-ar-co Motor Oil In Five Grades

LIGHT FORD SPECIAL
MEDIUM FORD SPECIAL
MEDIUM REGULAR
HEAVY MOTOR OIL
EXTRA HEAVY

BULK HARD OIL
10 cents per lb.

Full Line Of High Grade Tractor Oils
Black Beauty Axle Grease Cup Grease

Whenever You Need High Grade Oil And Grease, Call On Us

OUR PRICE IS RIGHT

We Handle Lee's Dip In Bulk

E. F. Jacobs

The Name Westinghouse on your Farm LIGHT & POWER Plant

KEEP in mind that in choosing your lighting plant the maker must not be overlooked. The plant we sell is made by Westinghouse—headquarters for radio, KDKA, KYW, WBZ, and KFKX—one of the greatest electrical organizations in the world—a concern employing 50,000 people.

Westinghouse knows electricity, knows how to build everything electrical—and offers you a lighting plant that is absolutely dependable, easy to operate and easy to own.

May We Tell You More?

PROUTY ELECTRIC SHOP
GARNER — IOWA

Material For Quilting

Now is a good time to make up your quilts and comforters for winter. He have a most complete line of materials needed for making up quilts of all kinds. Come in and look over our line:

CRETONNES, all kinds.
YARNS, in all colors.
CHALLIES, for nice quilts.
COTTON BATS, highest quality
TICKING, nice design, good quality
TUBINGS, etc.

BED BLANKETS FOR WINTER

Come in and see our nice line of Genuine NASHUA BLANKETS inCot ton, Cotton & Wool Mixed, and All Woolen. Many nice patterns to choose from.

SUPPLIES FOR HUSKERS

We carry a complete line of supplies for Husking—Mittens, Gloves, Husking Hooks and Pegs, Wrist Bands, Overalls and Jackets, Work Shoes, Etc. Our prices are right on our huskers supplies.

G.W. Kluckhohn & Sons

THE KLEMME TIMES

Fortieth Year—Number 12. KLEMME, IOWA, THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 3, 1927 $2.00 Per Year In Advance.Outside of Iowa $2.5.

TWO MARRIAGES HERE THIS WEEK

GENEVA SCHULDT AND DR. ANDERSON MARRIED SUNDAY

Esther Beier And Wilbur Heifner Married Here Tuesday

It is indeed a rare privelege for the Editor of The Times to record two marriages in a week of such fine couples as were married this week. We refer to the marriage of Miss Geneva Schuldt and Dr. D P Anderson, and Miss Esther Beier and Mr Wilbur Heifner.

Were Married At Radcliffe

It was indeed a great surprise to the people of Klemme and community when it was learned that Miss Geneva Schuldt and Dr. D. P. Anderson were married. This young couple had "put it over" their many friends a number of times the past year and had kept their friends in suspense waiting for the good news However, Dr. Andersen slipped away to Eldora Saturday and procured a license in Hardin county. The following morning Dr. Anderson and Miss Geneva Schuldt stole a march on their friends and went to Radcliffe, Iowa, where Rev. A. B Gedye and his good wife had made all arrangements for a wedding at their home for Sunday evening and where Dr Anderson and Miss Geneva Schuldt were quietly married. Thus is the story related in simple words

Mrs Anderson is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. H Schuldt of this city. She is a most charming young lady and is a favorite among her many friends. She has, for some time until recently, been a most efficient and courteous clerk at the J. N. Day store. Dr. Anderson came to Klemme some four years ago to practice veterinary and is a graduate of the Kansas City Veterinary College and has had over ten years of experience in his field. Dr Anderson has built up a fine business here. His work being among the farmers, he has gained their confidence and they speak very highly of his work. "Doc," as we want to call him, is the prince of good fellows, a clean-cut young man who stands high in the community.

In telling of this happy marriage a side-light of the story should be brought in The marriage of their daughter, Geneva, was also the forty-seventh wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Schuldt, and this happy event adds romance to the story and gladness to the family circle.

A wedding breakfast had been planned, but on account of the illness of Mr. Schuldt, this had to be postponed.

Some time ago Dr. Anderson purchased the Ludeke residence on East Main St. The house has been re-decorated, new electric fixtures installed and new plumbing put in. In a week or two Dr. and Mrs. Anderson hope to have their home in readiness to begin house-keeping.

Were Married Here Tuesday

Miss Esther, daughter of Mr. Henry Beier, of Liberty Township, and Mrs. Wilbur Heifner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wes Heifner, of Liberty Township, were united in marriage at the Methodist Church Parsonage in Klemme Tuesday afternoon, by Rev. A. W. Gauger, pastor of the young people, who read a most impressive ritual.

Both of these young people come from the best of families and have a host of friends who wish them well in their journey through life.

The bride is a pleasing young lady who has made a success in her chosen profession of teaching and she is the able instructor in one of the good schools in Liberty township.

Wilbur is an industrious young man whose talents lean to that of a successful farmer, which occupation he has followed and will make his work in the future.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Heifner will move to the Henry Beier farm and expect to be settled in their new home in a few days. We understand Mrs Beier wil continue to teach her school.

Wedding Dinner For Couples

Tuesday evening Mrs. Wes Heifner had prepared a bounteous wedding dinner for Mr and Mrs. Wilbur Heifner and Dr and Mrs. Anderson to which a large number of relatives and friends were invited.

That evening a large crowd of young pepole drove out to the Heifner home and put on a double charivari which they did not let up on until both of the young couples had put in their appearance and the usual treats came forth.

The Times joins with the many friends of both of these excellent couples in extending best wishes for a happy, married life.

HANCOCK COUNTY REAL ESTATE TRANSFERS

A Weekly Review Of Sales And Trades In Property

Albert Hegg to Alva Hegg. W D., date 10-20-27, $1 00. Lots 9-10-11-12-13-14-15-16 block 16 Kanawha.

E F King wife to C. W Marvel W D, date 10-18-27, $1 00. Und 3-10 interest in S½ 16-94-26.

John Holtorf to J. H. Bode W. D., date 10-7-27, $2,150 00, lots 1-2-3-4-5-6 block 11 Woden.

M S. Burgitt to L A Andrew. W D, date 10-6-27, $1.00. S½ of NW¼ 8-95-25, W½ of lots 5-6 in block 9 Andersons add. Britt, and lots 13-14 block 11 Britt and lot 6 block 2 Andersons add. Britt, and lot 6 block 12 Andersons add. Britt

Edwin H. Arnett wife to Henry Heimindenger. W. D. date 10-25-27, $1 00 W½ of NW¼ 4-95-25 and south 120 acres of SW¼ 33-96-25 except east 44 rods

Thos. Stork wife to B B Castle W. D date 10-25-27 N½ of lot 16 except west 30 feet in block 7 Andersons add Britt.

Susie A Gallup et al to B B Castle W. D., date 10-25-27, $1,000.00. S½ of lot 16 except west 30 feet of block 7 Andersons add to Britt

COMING ATTRACTIONS AT THE LYRIC THEATRE

"Chang" Will Be Shown At Garner Next Tuesday And Wednesday

"Chang" is the Wildest of the Wild and Mightiest of the Mighty! "Chang" will be shown at the Lyric Theatre. Garner, Iowa, Tuesday and Wednesday, November 8-9.

"Chang" tells no ordinary tale. There is nothing at all sterotyped about "Chang." It is just one thrill after another, a whole series of them and one gasp after another

A leopard leaps over a high wall into a hero's home; a tiger hurls itself right into the eye of the camera; four hundred ponderous, stampeding elephants attack a native village leaving desolation and death in their wake and—that only starts to tell what "Chang" holds in store for the moviegoer.

Tom Mix Friday & Saturday

Both Tom and his horse Tony are at their best in "Circus Ace," which will be shown Friday and Saturday, November 4-5. A story of a ranchman who, looking up into the sky, sees a parachute drifting downwards toward him with a beautiful girl clinging to a trapeze What follows is action woven into a story of real dramatic interes, jammed with suspence, thrills and considerable fun

"The Circus Ace" is the kind of entertainment that is sure to please old and young alike.

We are glad to report that Victor Hueneman is making a good recovery from his recent injuries. He is at the Mercy Hospital, Mason City. Vic has been enjoying a lot of company. Tuesday Will Hueneman of Marian Junction, South Dakota came to see him; and Sunday Harold Witlenberg of Fullerton, North Dakota came to see him. His wounds have healed sufficient so that some stitches were removed this week and Vic's other leg is knitting nicely.

Dr. D. P. Anderson and wife were at Mason City Wednesday evening for a visit with Mr. Ernest Schuldt at the hospial.

JURY LIST DRAWN FOR NOV. TERM

NEXT TERM OF COURT WILL BE NOVEMBER 22

Petit Jurors To Report For Duty On That Date

The Petit Jury list for the November term of District Court at Garner has been drawn and he following list of jurors given out, who are to report for duty November 22 at 10 00 o'clock a m Following is the list given out by Clerk Johansen:-

Petit Jurors

Mrs Art Ricketts, Britt	Britt
Alfred Josten, Ell	Garner
Emil Sorenson, Magor	Corwith
Wm Bell, Avery	Klemme
Adolph Ptacek, Liberty	Britt
Geo. Weaver, Madison	Forest City
Glen Kluver, Crystal	Crystal Lake
Etta Stewart, Amsterdam	Kanawha
E. J. Wilkins, Avery	Goodell
Fred Stork, Concord	Garner
Edna Besbit, Concord	Garner
Kate Costello, Avery	Goodell
Bert Leutsinger, Britt	Britt
Alice Upmeyer, Liberty	Garner
M C Brogan, Britt	Britt
Victor Swansom, Ellington	F. City
Elvin Lackore, Madison	Forest Cy
Eva Peterson, Concord	Garner
Ernest Jante, Concord	Garner
Clark Bogard, Magor	Corwith
George Cope, Madison	Hayfield
Chas Hamm, Magor	Corwith
Mabel Smith, Ell	Klemme
John Babcock, Amsterdam	Kanawha
Herman Bruns, Twin Lake,	Goodell
Jim Gambel, Madison	For. City
W J Williamsen, Amst.	Kanawha
Jens Anderson, Crystal	For. City
Hanko Freeks, Bingham	Woden
Marie Porter, Concord	Garner

Grand Jurors For 1927

F. A Arnold, Ell	Klemme
E H Cummins, Orthel	Britt
Jacob Krauss, Magor	Corwith
T J Volding, Crystal	Crystal L.
Rene Schlawin, Liberty	Garner
J N. Sprole, Concord	Garner
John Anderson, Britt	Britt
Fred Hunsley, Erin	Britt
J. E. Haugen, Ellington	For. City
Wayne Jones, Madison	For. City
O. L. Schroeder, Amst.	Kanawha
Geo. Vance, Avery	Goodell

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS

Klemme, Iowa,
Sept. 5, 1927.

Regular meeting of town Council held at the town hall.

All members of council present.

Motion made and seconded that the bills as read by the Clerk be paid.

A. E. Finn, August salary	$85.00
J. J Poort, 70 gallons of Gas	11.55
Fred Fritch, Negatives	12.00
John Heginger, 175 loads Gravel and Hauling	198.50
Central States Electric Co., Aug. Str. Lights	23.60
M. O. Barr, Agt., Freight on Pump	2.43
Dr. Geo. Zinn, Professional Services	2.50
Klemme Times, Publishing Council Proceedings	2.27
Harry Gram, Drayage	.60
Fidelity & Cas. Co., Liability Insurance	26.00
Treas. Town of Garner, 18 Ordinances at $2.00 per Ord.	36.00
C. D. Smock, Labor	.40
E. F Jacobs, Supplies	53.14

Bills Allowed.

Motion made and seconded that the Clerk have the Ordinances published in the Klemme Times according to law.

A. J. KUDJE, Clerk.

CAMP FIRE GIRLS NOTES

All of the Camp Fire Girls but one met at the home of Ethel Barz Tuesday evening. After the meeting refreshments were sereved. The next meeting will be held Monday, November 14th at th home of Lela Bachman.

Here today, there tomorrow—tin can tourist.

WILL BANQET AT BRITT NOVEMBER 5

4-H CLUB BANQUET WILL BE HELD AT BRITT

Annual Banquet Will Be Served At The Odd Fellow Hall Nov. 5

AArangements have been completed for the annual 4-H Club Banquet to be held at the Odd Fellows Hall at Britt, Saturday evening, November 5 The banquet will be served promptly at 7 00 o'clock.

Miss Josephine Arnquist and Mr. John Quist from the Club Department of the Extension Service will be present and give talks and there will also be several other numbers on the program.

4-H club work has come to be a very important Farm Bureau activity in Hancock County. This year there were fifteen girls Home Furnishing clubs, a Baby Beef club, a Dairy Heifer club, Market Pig club and a Corn Club with approximately 282 members.

Everyone interested in club work is invited to this banquet. The club members and boys and girls of club age are especially invited to attend. Tickets should be purchased from the Club Leader in your township.

IT'S THE ELEVENTH HOUR AND—AMERICA FACES EAST

It's the eleventh hour of the eleventh day of the eleventh month. All over the United States for the space of two minutes there falls a hush and—America faces East!

For this is Armistice Day, a day of remembrance of that great moment when the guns were stilled in the mightiest conflict the world has ever known, a day for honoring the memory of those who died in that conflict.

Armistice Day has a solemn significance which few of our national anniversaries have and in this issue of The Times there is a thoughtful interpretation of the spirit of Armistice Day which is well worth your reading. Be sure to read "America Faces East" by Elmo Scott Watson in this issue!

BAPTISMAL SERVICE HELD AT E. H. SCHULDT HOME

Twenty Five People Witness Ceremony Wednesday Eve

Last Wednesday evening about twenty-five relatives and friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest H. Schuldt to witness an impressive baptismal service administered by Rev. Suckow, of Forest City. The children baptised were Wesley John, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Suckow; Raymond Victor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Schoenwetter, and Donald Dwayne, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Heifner.

Following the service a bounteful supper was served to the guests.

The above item should have appeared last week in the Times but was over-looked in making up the paper.

Fool Drivers

Educating the public to avoid driving automobiles into moving trains and like dangers is a slow process and probably never will be entirely successful. Although it will gradually reduce the number of collisions. But there will always be somebody willing to take a shot at beating the locomotive to it just as there is always some moron willing to take a shot of loaded gin.

Last year 202 persons were killed and 1430 were injured by running into the sides of trains. The railroads, the highway engineers and others must do everything they can to make it mechanically impossible for us to destroy ourselves by our own folly or the carnage will continue to increase.

The family tie—one used by dad and three or four sons.

Avery Twp. News

(Special Times Reporter)

George Stokesbary was making business calls in this community.

Will Johnson was a caller at the Henry Helps home Wednesday.

Maxine Bachman was a visitor at the Ernest Helps home Thursday.

"Moses," the dry goods peddler, was in this community Thursday.

Peter Trampel and son Clarence were business callers at the Wm. Bell home Thursday.

Mrs. Clarence Bachman was at Garner Thursday to have dental work done.

Quite a few in this locality have been out during the last week working their poll tax.

Miss Bonnie Bachman spent Saturday afternoon with Maxine Bachman.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Bachman spent Friday at their farm, where Clarence Bachman now resides.

Gilman Marshall hauled some tile for his brother Clyde Saturday afternoon.

A follow up meeting on home furnishing was held at the Mrs. Leon Sherwood home Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Rob Roths attended the dance that was held in Klemme Thursday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Bachman and daughter, Margie, and sons Earl and Robert of Garner were visitors at the John Bachman home Sunday.

Mrs. Jim Thomas and Mrs. John Etchen and daughter, Betty Jean, were entertained to dinner at the Clarence Bachman home Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Bachman and family, of Garner, were Sunday evening callers at the Clarence Bachman home.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Bachman and daughter, Maxine, and Henry Beck were visitors at the John Bachman home Thursday evening.

J. R. Baggs, the county superintendent, was a visitor at the different schools in this vicinity Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Trampel and family and Henry Pals of Meservey were visitors at the John Watermiller home Sunday.

P. C. Lowenberg, the road superintendent, was in this vicinity putting in culverts on the road that was just recently graded.

Mr. and Mrs. Herb Marshall and daughter, Irene, Mr. and Mrs D. A Marshall and son, Gilman, and Lloyd Sumners were Sunday visiotrs at the Clyde Marshall home.

Mrs. Fred Bachman had the misfortune to burn her foot with some lye water that she had been using. The burn is causing her quite a bit of pain.

"See our display of lingerie, says an ad. In the windows and on the streets.

MOTHER OF MRS. M. O. BARR AT LAKE CITY, IOWA

Mr. and Mrs. M. O. Barr were called to Lake City Friday by the sudden death of Mrs. Barr's mother, Mrs. A L. Burgess.

Mrs. Burgess contracted the flu in July which greatly weakened her and complications followed which caused her death.

Funeral services were held Saturday and burial was made in the Lake City cemetery.

Mrs. Burgess is well known in this town as she and her husband conducted The New Cafe here for several months last spring, and while here Mrs. Burgess gained many good friends.

The sympathy of the community is extended to Mrs. Barr in her sorrow.

PARENTS INVITED TO VISIT SCHOOLS

NEXT WEEK IS NATIONAL WEEK FOR EDUCATION

Parent Teacher Meeting Will Be Held Next Tuesday Evening

Next week has been proclaimed Education Week and all over America people interested in our schools and the education of our youth will attend schools and programs in the interest of public education.

Rev. Gauger has agreed to stress education in his Sunday morning sermon and Rev. Grosshuesch may do, likewise, either next Sunday or the Sunday following.

Our students at school have been busy making posters and placards which will be in evidence about our school building all next week.

Parents and friends of our school should so shape their program for next week that they can attend some of our classes and get acquainted with the work our teachers are attempting and accomplishing in their interests. They will be welcome at any time, any day, or any hour, next week. They may come singly or in pairs or in groups. We have not instructed our teachers to present anything but regular class room work. We believe this may interest parents more than a concerted effort to interest or entertain them.

A short program may be prepared for Armistice Day, Friday, Nov. 11.

Parent Teacher Meeting Tues.

On Tuesday evening, Nov. 8, our Parent-Teacher Association will have their monthly program. It will be one worth while we believe. In part it will be as follows:

Community Singing ..... Audience
Paper or Talk "Schools As Related to Good Homes" Mrs. Ralph Ludeke.
Paper or Talk, "Schools as Related To a Good Comunity" ..... Mrs. P. W. Johnson.
Violin Solo ... Miss Mildred Johnson
Talk, "Schools as Related to Good Government" ..... Mr. Tompkins, of Garner.
"How Hot Lunches May Be Provided Most Economically," .....by one of our faculty. (Contemplated.)

Possibly some other special music may be provided.

Attending Teachers Meeting

Our high school teachers and the superintendent will be at the State Teachers Meeting on Thursday and Friday of this week, but grades 1 to 6 wil continue in school.

Garner teachers are also attending he Des Moines meeting.

METHODIST CHURCH NOTES

A. W. Gauger, Pastor

The National Education week is from November 6 to 13. The church has ever been abreast in educational matters. Statistics show that of the first 109 institutions for higher educaion 105 were founded by the church.

Our services next Sunday will be along this line.

A real welcome awaits all who may worship with us.

The Liberty W. F. M. S. meets in the church on Wednesday afternoon and the Klemme society meets on Thursday afternoon, with Mrs. Lester Stille.

The official board will make their canvass for the local budget during this and next week. The co-operation of everyone will be of great help to them and will be much appreciated.

KLEMME REFORMED CHURCH
Calvin Grosshuesch, Pastor

8:30 a. m. Country Sunday school.
10:00 a. m. English Service.
11:00 a. m. Sunday school.
8:00 p. m. Wednesday
Young Peoples Bible Class.
1:00 p. m. Tuesday and 9:00 a. m. Saturday, Confirmation Class.
8:00 p. m. Sat. Junior Choir.

The "Indians" are scouting thru field and wood. They're brave little warriors who'll soon come trailing home — so hungry for Monarch Cocoa and Monarch Teenie Weenie Peanut Butter sandwiches.

EVERY genuine Monarch package bears the Lion Head, the oldest trademark in the United States covering a complete line of the world's finest food products—Coffee, Tea, Cocoa, Catsup, Pickles, Peanut Butter, Canned Fruits and Vegetables, and other superior table specialties.

REID, MURDOCH & CO.
Established 1853
Chicago Pittsburgh Boston New York
Jacksonville Tampa Los Angeles

Monarch is the only nationally advertised brand of QUALITY FOOD PRODUCTS sold exclusively through the men who own and operate their own stores.

MONARCH
Quality for 70 Years

Our dresses sweaters coats can be made as rich lustrous fast black with RIT

FAST DYES OR TINTS 24 Popular Shades

Scientists do not expect to finish the task of studying and describing all the insects in the world in the next 500 years.

Don't Trust Your Butter To Luck

Market men and consumers are insisting on uniform color, now-a-days, and no real dairyman can afford to trust to luck any more. Keep your butter always that golden June shade, which brings top prices, by using Dandelion Butter color. All large creameries have used it for years. It meets all State and National Food Laws. It's harmless, tasteless and will not color Buttermilk. Large bottles cost only 35c at all drug and grocery stores.

Send for FREE Sample

Wells & Richardson Co., Inc.
Burlington, Vermont

Australia's new capital city, Canberra, is to be 12 miles square and is designed for a population of 2,000,000.

BE OUR AGENT, MAKE BIG MONEY, selling our $50 Magnetic Health Belt. $17.50 for sample. RESTORO MFG CORP., 145 W. Washington, Los Angeles, Calif

Mr. Owner: Sell Your Property. Keep the commission. Farms, hotels, groceries, movies, bakeries, business of any kind. Nat'l Business Exch., P. O. Box 496, Des Moines.

Own Going Furniture Business in California, estab. 20 yrs.; largest in town of 7,500; rich fruit and dairy county. $18,500 will handle. Selling to close partnership. Horton-Wimpey Furniture Co., Hanford, Calif.

For Relief of Rheumatism, Neuritis or Lumbago, no matter how severe a case or how long you have suffered, use Burnes Remedy immediately $1 and $2 sizes. Burnes Remedy Co., 204 Granite Building, St. Louis, Mo.

Youth Was "Loaded"

Paul Muller, a German youth of seventeen years, is serving a jail sentence of four months on a charge of burglary, at Shanghai, China. Police refer to Muller as a "walking arsenal and bar." When arrested he was weighted down with 150 rounds of ammunition, two pistols, 18 bottles of beer, two bottles of whisky, one bottle of gin, six bottles of soda water, two tumblers, six forks, six knives and eight claret glasses. Muller said he "found" the goods.

Do You Cough?

Omaha, Nebr.—"Last winter I contracted a severe cold which affected me terribly and it seemed that I could not get rid of it. Finally I decided to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. I had an idea it would relieve me if anything would, and so it did. I took three bottles and was relieved of all the affects of my very bad cold. I think the 'Discovery' is a wonderful tonic for anybody in a debilitated condition of health."—Mrs. M. E. Stillam, 2417 Dodge St.

All dealers. Tablets or liquid.

Write Dr. Pierce, President Invalids' Hotel in Buffalo, N. Y., for free confidential medical advice.

Don't be too ardently hopeful; and don't expect the worst. Look for the medial line.

Do children more boldly tell the truth, now? And is it because they are not so much afraid?

Genuine BAYER ASPIRIN

SAY "BAYER ASPIRIN" and INSIST!

Proved safe by millions and prescribed by physicians for

Colds	Headache	Neuritis	Lumbago
Pain	Neuralgia	Toothache	Rheumatism

DOES NOT AFFECT THE HEART

Safe — Accept only "Bayer" package which contains proven directions.
Handy "Bayer" boxes of 12 tablets
Also bottles of 24 and 100—Druggists.

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid

Cuticura Baths Best for Children

Teach your children to use Cuticura Soap because it is best for their tender skins. Assisted by occasional applications of Cuticura Ointment to first signs of irritation or dandruff, it keeps the skin and scalp clean and healthy. Cuticura Talcum is cooling and soothing.

Soap 25c. Ointment 25 and 50c. Talcum 25c. Sold everywhere. Sample each free. Address: "Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. B3, Malden, Mass."
Cuticura Shaving Stick 25c.

GUARD YOUR KIDNEYS NOW!

Rid yourself of "creeping ills." Put your body in trim by cleaning up your blood from the slowing down poisons poured into it by inactive kidneys, liver and bowels. You may rely upon the famous old Dutch National Household Remedy—in use since 1696. The original and genuine.

GOLD MEDAL HAARLEM OIL CAPSULES

Accept no imitations
All Druggists Three Sizes

Men Marooned

by

George Marsh

W.N.U. SERVICE

COPYRIGHT by The PENN PUBLISHING CO.

CHAPTER X

—15—

The New Year's festivities and the trade were over at Elkwan. The dance in the sleephouse, for which Etienne, seated high on a sugar barrel, provided the music from an ancient and scarred violin, had passed off without compelling the interference of the factor as peacemaker. The customary present of sugar and flour, tea and pork, had been given to each family of hunters and the Crees had feasted and gossiped to their hearts' content, oblivious of bitter moons to come on far trap-lines when, if game were hard to find, their children would whimper with hunger. The last of the dog-teams had jingled up the river trail or down the delta bound for Akimiski. Thanks to Souci, it had been an unheard-of trade which had come to the little post. Not only had he brought across the ice the Elkwan Crees but some from Kapiskau and Attawapiskat, as well. A good joke on Graham and Boucher.

For a week Garth and Etienne were busy sorting and pressing the fur, which was to go by sled immediately to Albany.

"Twenty-eight thousand dollars," said the factor as he finished checking his list. "Our little trips inland after Souci and over to the island were rather worth while, my friend."

Etienne grinned. "No leetle post lak' dis evair mak' dat trade on dis bay. Dey geeve you bigger place soon. You tak' Etienne Savanne wid you?"

"Take you with me, you old villain? How could I get along without you? You're responsible for this catch of fur, and you know it."

Savanne gravely shook his head. "Eet was you who tak' de chance on de riviere to fin' Souci. W'en we go to Albanee I tell dem peopl' dat de new man at Elkwan ees hell on catch de fur."

Guthrie stopped to laugh at the serious half-breed. Of the loyalty of his head man, who had taught him practically all he knew about pelts, he had had ample proof.

Down the coast over the sea-ice traveled the sled loaded with the Christmas trade. At Kapiskau, where the early January dusk overtook them, they turned up the delta to the post to pass the night with the surprised Boucher, whose Indians at Akimiski had left him to trade with McDonald.

Starting the following morning under the stars, before the light died, the sled from Elkwan sighted the buildings of Fort Albany.

As Garth and Etienne entered the trade room, Cameron, curious of the result of their mission, called: "Well, well, what's the news from the island? Did you get across the ice?"

"Yes, we got across a week before Christmas, but had a tough time," Guthrie dissembled gravely, nudging Etienne.

"Didn't see how you could do any good going over there. Your man failed to hold any of the Elkwan people, then?" surmised the disappointed Cameron. "Same way with Attawapiskat and Kapiskau—they lost most of their people—went to the schooner. It sure grinds me to think of that McDonald coming in here and taking all that fur."

"Well, he outbids us for it, and it's only human in the Indians to let him have it. How much is the whole island trade worth in an average year, anyway?" suddenly asked Garth.

"Let's see," said Cameron, scratching his grizzled head. "Um, I should say that it runs about two hundred fox skins, all kinds."

"Well, Mr. Cameron," drawled the factor of Elkwan, "I've got half of it out on the sled, then."

"What?" Cameron stared stupidly into the twinkling eyes of the man before him. "Thought you said you didn't—half of it? What d'yuh mean, half of it? Half of what?" sputtered the puzzled trader.

"Why, half of the Akimiski trade. We got a hundred skins."

"You got a hundred—? Why, man, you said you didn't hold 'em—your people. Are you crazy, Guthrie?" cried the excited Cameron.

Unable to contain his mirth, Etienne exploded at the far end of the trade counter, as Garth replied: "You took it for granted that we failed. I didn't say we fell down," chaffed Guthrie.

"For heaven's sake, man, stop your fooling and tell me the truth. Do you mean to say that you've got a hundred fox from Akimiski on that sled out there?" demanded Cameron.

"I do."

"Well—I'll be—skinned alive!" And the dazed trader stood, fists on hips gaping at the grinning Garth and Etienne.

"How in Jehoshaphat did you do it? You got 'em, after all, with Souci?"

"Souci and Etienne, here, scared them to death."

Then, when the fur packs had been brought in and the dogs fed, Guthrie told the story.

"Do you realize, major, that this is the largest Christmas trade ever made by a subsidiary post of Albany? Your scheme and your nerve in seeing it through make the rest up the coast look like pretty dead people. My heartiest congratulations!" The factor of Albany grasped Guthrie's hand.

"The men who turned this trick are Etienne and old Souci," protested Garth. "I don't want you to forget them. I did little."

Cameron slapped the proud half-breed on the back. "No fear of my forgetting Etienne Savanne. He's worked with me too many years. Now I wish you'd listen to what they write from Moose."

The Albany factor went to his desk and, returning with a letter, read to Guthrie:

"The Montreal office has got the idea that this free-trader, McDonald, may be the man wanted in Nova Scotia for a murder committed about three years ago. A returned soldier struck and killed a man supposed to be his wife's lover. He was traced to Newfoundland. According to McMann at Charlton island, the description of the soldier tallies with the appearance of this Laughing McDonald. I have written Montreal that the schooner is wintering on this coast. I expect the provincial police will show up here soon to investigate."

"Now, what d'you think of that?" demanded Cameron of the man whose thoughts were centered on the homecoming of a soldier with disfigured face— a face repulsive, unbearable to the woman whose weakness had caused the murder.

"There must be ten thousand men in Canada with scarred faces, Cameron. Because Laughing McDonald happens to have one doesn't make him the murderer."

Cameron sensed that the reply had a personal tinge—was in the nature of a defense of the maimed legions, and said quietly: "No, of course not, but this McDonald sailed out of St. Johns. Queer if he should be the bird they're after."

"How many police will they send on this case?"

"Oh, not more than two."

"I'm sorry for them, then. They'd never come back. Do you think that two men can go to that schooner in Seal cove and get McDonald, if he's the guilty man? He wouldn't be taken alive—and I've a notion that life isn't worth much to McDonald Ha! Ha!"

"Why, you seem to sort of sympathize with this pirate who's stealing our trade," objected the other.

The gray eyes of the factor of Elkwan held those of Cameron in a penetrating look, as he said—"I do."

The brooding face of the man with the scarred cheek sought the window. The tragedy of the man at Seal cove, if he proved to be the Nova Scotian soldier wanted by the police, was, he realized, simply the story of Garth Guthrie in an exaggerated form. The wife he had come home to, like Ethel, had turned from the mutilated face—lacked the womanhood to shield him with her heart from the mockery of an unfeeling world. How many of the Canadian maimed, he wondered, the broken, the crippled, had walked in Gethsemane with Garth Guthrie and Laughing McDonald? How many had seen veiled horror in the eyes of those they loved?

"Well, I sympathize with any man whose wife goes wrong," the voice of Cameron went on, after a pause, "but that don't justify murder, Guthrie."

"I'm not so sure," was the quiet response, "when a man comes home with a comic mask for a face, that he isn't justified in killing both his wife and the man she turns to. Put yourself in his place, Cameron. Even the children on the streets must have mocked him as he passed. Think of the hell he lived through—then she, his refuge and his anchor—falls him."

Again Cameron felt that the man championing the unknown McDonald was making the case his own. That Guthrie was sensitive of his scarred cheek he already was aware and it irritated the older man into blurting outright: "Guthrie, don't take offense at what I'm going to say, but it seems to me that you must be vain as a girl to have that scar always on your mind. Why, man, you're handsome enough to carry a dozen scars. Nobody ever thinks of it, except to envy your war record."

Guthrie's mouth curled slightly in answer: "Man, I've forgotten all about that scar, but I can't forget the men who were not so lucky."

But as Cameron's hand left the shoulder of the factor of Elkwan, he was sure that the furrow across the cheek of the younger man had played its part in a personal tragedy.

* * * * * * *

As Guthrie left the trade house to seek his room at Cameron's hospitable quarters and make himself presentable for the supper on which Mrs. Cameron would spare no effort, he turned for a short stroll across the clearing. He was approaching the mission when the fur-hooded figure of a woman passed him at a short distance on a parallel path. The face in the hood was turned from him but the swinging stride of the moccasined feet aroused his curiosity. The white women residents of the post could be counted on the fingers of a hand. It was a stranger—a new missionary teacher at the orphan Indian school, doubtless. At the mission the paths met, and Guthrie turned with a "good evening," as the woman in the fur capote came abreast, to gasp, with a furiously pounding heart, as he looked into the laughing eyes of Joan Quarrier.

"It Sure Grinds Me to Think of That McDonald Coming In Here."

"You! Here?" he exclaimed, gazing at the uptilted hood as if at a ghost.

"Welcome to Albany, Mr. Exile," she cried, extending a mittened hand. "I've just left Mrs. Cameron, and knew of your arrival with that fabulous amount of fur. Congratulations on your defeat of Laughing McDonald."

"You—wintering at Albany," he continued, 'and you never told me!"

The color rose to the dark hair on her forehead. "I found a job. You see they needed a nurse terribly, at the school." Her eyes avoided his searching look now. "My brother returns in the spring, so I decided to wait for him here."

"But when I left, you were leaving in a day or two for Moose," he relentlessly persisted. "And you wrote my Christmas letter and never told me you were only ninety miles away," he added reproachfully.

"I—I couldn't interfere with the—your fight for the fox trade," she replied weakly.

"Well, the fact is, Miss Joan Quarrier," he said with a laugh, "that you're here at Albany, and I'm at Albany, and I hereby announce that I'm going to stay a day, or two, or three, and talk to you."

"I'm sure," she said with a low bow, "that you are most flattering. But you forget that my employer, Mr. Swan, does not approve of you, sir."

"All the worse for Swan, then, for I'm going to see you tomorrow morning, afternoon, and evening, Swan or no Swan. I am a masterful man and will have my way. What time tonight do I knock on the door of the Reverend Swan?" With all his eyes Garth was caressing the face which had come to him by the fire in the snow, followed him over the tundra of Akimiski, companioned his dreams. The miracle of her being here—to talk to—look at, when he had thought her south across the forests! And why had she stayed on in the dreary north?

"I think you could come up tonight." Joan's teeth flashed in an alluring smile. "I'll try to reconcile Mr. Swan to the bitter dose of your presence. He needs me here, you know—finds my experience valuable."

Removing his mitten, with a quick movement Garth slipped off the mitten of the surprised girl and took her hand. "I need you here," he said, "as well as Swan. Eight o'clock tonight" And walked swiftly away, mad hope in his brain, his emotions out of hand.

Why had she stayed? Why had she stayed? he kept asking himself as he hurried to Cameron's house.

At supper at the Camerons' Guthrie said: "I met an old friend on the clearing tonight."

The kindly eyes of the factor's wife grew quizzical as they met the glance of her guest. "She was here when Etienne came to the kitchen and told us of your success. What did you do to that girl last September? She and I have talked a lot about you this winter."

Guthrie's heart warmed to the inference. He felt the blood in his face, and strove to cover his embarrassment with the question: "How did she come to stay and help that effigy of a man, Swan?"

Mrs. Cameron smiled. "They were dreadfully in need of some one who had training. Half the children had some ailment and Swan and his wife were at their wits' end. I suppose Joan couldn't resist the call, as her brother was to return to the bay in the spring."

"Did you meet him?" asked Garth.

"Oh, yes, they ate here several times. Very important person—the doctor!"

"Ah-h!" This from Cameron.

"What's the matter," laughed Garth. "Didn't you like him?"

"Like him? It was all I could do to keep my hands off that rooster," growled the lord of Albany. "He made a formal protest in writing to the company to the effect that he had been insulted by you and that you refused to get his stuff on Akimiski, but I told them at Moose what I thought of him."

Garth was grateful to Cameron for his omission of other details of Quarrier's charges, which he knew Joan had scornfully demolished.

"Well, Miss Quarrier is not responsible for her brother. Could I bring her over from the Mission tonight? Swan almost kicked me out in September."

"Why, of course, Major Guthrie. I was going to ask you to," said Mrs. Cameron. "The poor child has a dreary enough time with the Swans. They've been worrying about her soul, you know, because of her liberal views on religion."

After supper Garth hurried over the trail to the mission. At his knock the door was opened by the missionary.

If Garth Guthrie had been susceptible to withering looks from a reverend gentleman whose meager frame stiffened uneasily in the black cloth and clerical collar affected by Mr. Swan, he would have been embarrassed at the chilly reception extended to him when he said:

"Good evening, Mr. Swan! I have come to take Miss Quarrier over to the Camerons' for the evening."

"You, sir," indignantly replied the missionary, "have put yourself beyond the pale—have no right to the society of pure women."

Hands on hips, for a space Garth smiled good-naturedly down on the greatly excited Swan, struggling heroically with the part his conscience bade him play. Then he said quietly: "Swan, if you choose to believe the nonsense with which Qarrier has filled your peanut brain, there is no law to prevent it. But Miss Quarrier has had opportunity to judge and she doesn't believe it. She is also her own mistress and capable of determining her own actions. She is going to the Camerons' with me now. Tell her I'm here!"

The last was spoken with such cold vehemence that Reverend Swan instinctively drew back, fearing bodily harm. But the little man was stubborn. "Miss Quarrier was placed under my protection by her brother. I have a duty—"

"Oh, is that you, Mr. Guthrie?" called a feminine voice from somewhere in the building. "Just a minute! I'm putting on my coat."

"Miss Quarrier," announced the red-faced missionary, aware that the situation was swiftly slipping from his control, "I forbid you walking to the Camerons' with this man."

"Oh, Mr. Swan! You can't be really serious," said Joan, appearing in the doorway. "Mrs. Cameron expects me and I'm sure my reputation is good enough to survive the walk there with Mr. Guthrie." She was talking as one coaxes a child, and Guthrie bit his lips in an attempt to stifle a laugh.

(TO BE CONTINUED.)

Gould Credited With French-Fried Potatoes

Like all others who take delight in a platter of crisp, hot French fried potatoes, I always supposed this particular way of preparing them was originated by some eminent French chef in the distant long ago, until along came one of those fellows who are always digging into history and finding things to shatter our pet illusions.

According to his version, the French fried potato originated not in France but in New York. One day, so the story goets, Jay Gould dropped into Delmonico's restaurant in that city and said: "I want potatoes quartered and fried in deep fat." The desire to imitate the doings of a Gould probably caused the use of potatoes fried in this way to assume the proportions of a fad, although, unlike many other fads, this one survived. For years these were known simply as quartered potatoes. Then Delmonico took to slicing them thinner and called them by the name under which they are now known throughout the country.

Whatever may be said of Jay Gould as a financier and railroad builder, all lovers of French fried potatoes are under lasting obligations to this forceful American.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

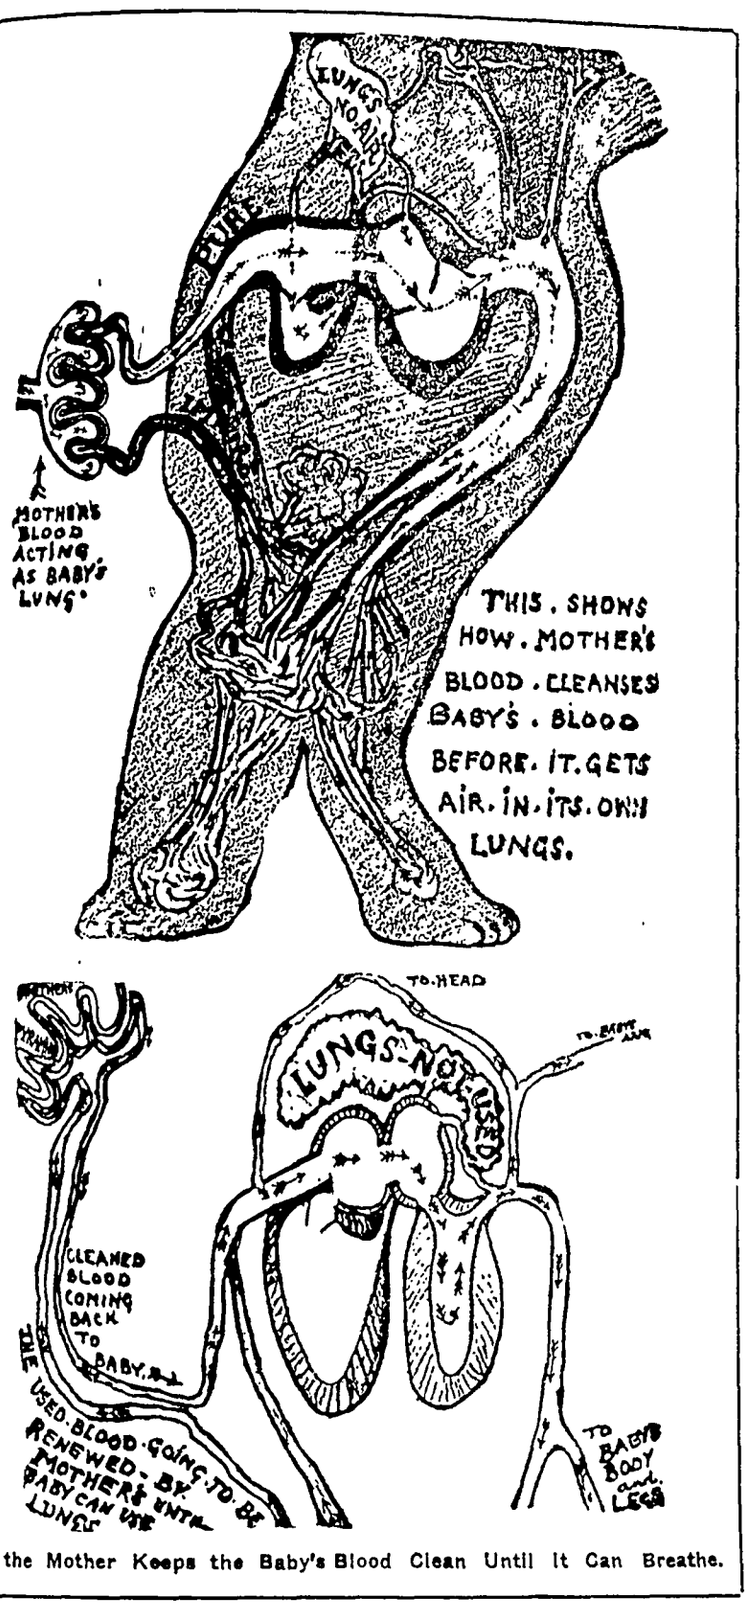
Subtle Rebuke

Cupid has shown himself to be utterly indifferent to matters of state and messages of great moment. In 1777 James Wilkinson, who later became a general in the United States army, was an aide to Gen. Horatio Gates and by him was sent to congress at Yorktown in Pennsylvania with the dispatches giving an account of the surrender of Gen. John Burgoyne and the British army at Saratoga. On the way Wilkinson stopped to spend a whole day with his sweetheart at Reading. When he finally delivered the dispatches and they were read in congress, a measure was introduced to reward the messenger who brought such pleasing news. Gov. Samuel Adams thereupon, with grave and solemn face, moved that the young man be presented with a pair of spurs.—Kansas City Star.

YOURSELF and YOUR BODY

By WILFRED T. GRENFELL

RENEWALS



LUNGS NO AIR
BLUE
MOTHERS BLOOD ACTING AS BABY'S LUNG
THIS . SHOWS HOW . MOTHER'S BLOOD . CLEANSES BABY'S . BLOOD BEFORE . IT . GETS AIR . IN . ITS . OWN LUNGS.
TO HEAD
LUNGS NOT USED
CLEANED BLOOD COMING BACK TO BABY
USED BLOOD GOING TO BE RENEWED BY MOTHER UNTIL BABY CAN USE LUNGS
TO BABY'S BODY and LEGS

How the Mother Keeps the Baby's Blood Clean Until It Can Breathe.

"THIS is a world in which everything keeps moving until it dies and moves off altogether, as I told you. Therefore, unless it is to become a desert waste and disappear, the most important of all arrangements must be that new things should all the time continue to be made, or born into the world. Otherwise there would soon be no world at all.

"You see, your father and mother each had fathers and mothers, and their fathers and mothers had the same, and so on, for nobody knows how many ages back. In the making of new bodies we have a great part and the greatest of all responsibilities.

"We who dwell in these bodies are also intrusted with the even higher honor, that of helping to build a better world. Now if you take a bit of iron, or hydrogen, or even gold, all you can make out of it is iron or hydrogen or gold. However, if you have two different things, you can, in time, make many things—just as hydrogen and oxygen combined make a new substance altogether, called water—or carbon and hydrogen make paraffin—or yellow and blue make green. So carbon, hydrogen, and oxygen make starch, or sugar, or vinegar, or a thousand other things. Take a cell and divide it equally and it will become two cells exactly like the first; but take a cell and add something to it, and it may become your body or mine.

"The most beautiful example in the world of this is when you study what all matter is made of. It is always made of two things. A center like our sun, called a proton, or first thing, and a planet circling around it, called an electron, or second thing.

"One funny thing is that these sun and planets are held together by attraction, and nothing else, and yet seem to be, as it were, exactly pulling or working in opposite ways. These are called positive and negative, just as we speak of male and female, which is practically the same thing. It is a splendid arrangement, for many reasons, that two are required; for two heads are always better than one, more capable, more strong, more useful, more happy, more self-reliant. Suppose that every weed made a weed only. The world would be choked with weeds, and no one could live in it. But something comes in and alters the weed a little, and a bit more the next time, and so on until that poor weed may become a nice flower or a fruit, just as a thorny cactus has. Suppose that every egg made a chicken. The world would be stuffed with chickens, and there would be no nightingales and no other birds, no fishes, (for they, too, come from eggs.) Birds and fishes mostly lay their eggs as they are, because birds' and fishes' bodies are not nearly such delicate machinery as those of the higher animals, like dogs, or like ourselves.

"Plants, also, can spread their eggs (or seeds) all around as soon as they are made, just as the dandelion seeds can be blown about in the air and tumble about anywhere without being hurt. They may get eaten alive by birds or animals, but they are so wonderful they can live all through the 'long red lane' of a bird while they are carried to some new place, and then come out alive and grow better than if nothing had happened. But we cannot do that. We must be taken care of much longer by our mothers.

"It is a very long while before we are old enough to breathe for ourselves, or swallow for ourselves, or see for ourselves.

"When at last we come into the world mother has to feed us, and wash us, and take care of us, and then teach us, and clothe us, and, in fact, keep us alive until we are old enough to look after our own bodies. Then begins the hard job of looking after ourselves.

"Now this most marvelous of all things on earth, this cell that will become a full-grown man or woman, a king perhaps, a George Washington maybe, a wizard like Edison, or a heroine like Florence Nightingale, is at first so small that it takes a hundred and twenty of them in a row to make a single inch. Think of it, your body was once only one one-hundred-twentieth of an inch in size; till, like the lily, or the Sleeping Beauty, it was awakened. Then a marvelous thing occurred. It started suddenly to grow large. One cell became two, two became four, till thousands of cells had been formed. Then the outside cells gradually built a covering which became the skin, and the middle cells set to work and became bones and muscles and machines of all kinds, such as we have been talking about.

"You are now at the age to look well to the bodies that mother and father gave you. Thank God, they are strong and perfect.

"Naturally all that cannot be done in a day. It takes nine months to make a baby's body ready to be born. A puppy dog's body can be made in six weeks. During all that time the growing body is floated in a special jewel-casket, so marvelous that it grows larger exactly as the contents grow bigger. Of course there is no air in the casket, so the baby body cannot breathe yet. Still, of course, it is a living body, and is growing, and must therefore get food and throw away waste and ashes, or else it would starve or be poisoned.

"The cells take care of all that. They rig up a wonderful arrangement so that the mother's heart shall drive the food around thousands of hollow pyramids in which the baby's blood is circulating, and so bring both oxygen and food, and carry away waste exactly as you saw it in the lymph follicles, and in the hair tubes or capillaries. Mother's life is the baby's life for all those long months. Think of what we all owe our mothers—debts that we can never repay. These look like this." (See picture.)

(© by the Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

What's the Answer...?

Questions No. 22

1—What is verbena and has it any particular value?

2—In what state are the Shoshone falls?

3—What is the most popular patriotic song in France? Who wrote it?

4—What President was known as "Old Tippecanoe"?

5—Who was the first commander in chief of the Union army in the Civil war?

6—What is meant by rationalism?

7—Which team won the Army-Navy game last fall?

8—Who wrote "Little Lord Fauntleroy"?

9—How many justices are there in the United States Supreme court?

10—When was the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America established?

11—What distinguished American story writer is the wife of a physician and mother of physicians?

12—Where is the region set apart as the Yellowstone National park?

13—What portrait painter, the most distinguished produced by America, died in 1925?

14—Who was the most valuable player in the National league last year?

15—When was the Erie canal opened?

16—How many states seceded from the Union in 1860 and 1861 and what were they?

17—What is physics?

18—What is a vireo and what is its particular virtue?

19—What is the salary of the chief justice of the United States?

20—When does the astronomical day begin?

Answers No. 21

1—On November 10, 1863.

2—Sequoyah, of the Cherokees.

3—That science that treats of the phenomena of the mind.

4—Bubbling Over.

5—Whistler's portrait of his mother was purchased by the French government and placed in the Luxembourg gallery at Paris.

6—Salt lake.

7—"The Compleat Angler" by Izaak Walton.

8—It has attained the length of 30 feet and feeds on mammals and birds.

9—Fifteen thousand dollars.

10—104,200,000.

11—Joseph Hopkinson, 1798.

12—Franklin Pierce.

13—A Greek scientist of the Sixth century, B. C.

14—Frank Lockhart.

15—Sarah Bernhardt; of French nativity and Jewish descent.

16—Seattle.

17—As an exciseman.

18—An interesting plant of the Sundew family which bears leaves serving as traps to capture insects. It is found in North and South Carolina.

19—William M. Jardine of Kansas.

20—May 8, 1816.

Younger Indans Turn From Faith of Fathers

Sixty or seventy years ago the Fox Indians of Iowa began the acquisition of the English alphabet from missionaries. They learned a method of writing their own language by means of the English alphabet, separating their words into syllables. Since there is only a rough conformity between the characters as employed by the Fox Indians and the actual sounds, it is necessary to restore the phonetics of any Fox text so that the symbols may correctly represent them. Dr. Truman Michelson, of the Smithsonian Institution's Bureau of American Ethnology, has been foremost in this work of collection and restoration.

Doctor Michelson, whose work has made him the foremost authority on the Fox Indians, describes their rituals as consisting mainly of eating, dancing and prayer. As is natural with a primitive people, their prayers invite material benefits such as long life, freedom from disease, that the chief's village should be strong enough to resist its enemies, and that no foe should even be permitted to gossip against the village.

According to Doctor Michelson, the younger generation now turn these once serious ceremonies into occasions for amusement. Up to some 15 years ago the tribe was so conservative as to resist education, but it has since grown progressive and all the young Indians are anxious to go to school. The tribe are good farmers and compete with the whites in the state agricultural fairs.

Very Concrete

"Oh, you Easterners can boast of your fine buildings and their splendid workmanship," said the Angeleno, "but out my way we are so careful what we put in a building that we even inspect every grain of sand."

"Maybe so," retorted the Bostonian "but here in the East our buildings go up so quick we have to use quicksand to mix with our cement before it solidifies. Otherwise the cement would be all up in the forms before the sand got in it."—Los Angeles Times.

